NORTHAMPTON (AP) — Public works officials tried for a second day yesterday to solve a problem which initially appeared to be a modest pothole on the Smith College campus and quickly grew into a chasm measuring more than 30 feet across.

Peter McNulty, assistant public works superintendent, said the hole appeared in the middle of Paradise Road, opposite a Smith College dormitory, at about 5 p.m. Sunday and police called Bay State Gas Co. after noticing a smell of natural gas.

The gas leak was stopped, but the pavement continued to crumble and the sinkhole widened throughout the day yesterday.

College spokeswoman Mary Reutener said she was told that a turn-of-the-century storm drain buried 28 feet below the surface was the culprit.

A worker wearing a harness was lowered into the hole yesterday to locate the displaced stone which was causing the chasm, Reutener said. Buried underneath the road are a 12-inch sewer line, a 16-inch water main and the gas main.

The city has called in a special contractor to excavate the site because city equipment doesn't reach that far, Reutener said. The workers expect to have the stone back in place and the hole filled within a few days, she said.

Public Works officials blocked off Paradise Road for at least three hours Sunday.

The hole was discovered in the late afternoon after a car drove over a section of the street outside an entrance to a student dormitory known as "The Quad," caving in a three-foot square section of pavement.

Baystate Gas Company supervisor Stanley Boguszewski said Sunday the gas leak posed no danger of an explosion.

Advisor's door is always open to students

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

Jackie Hazard hates doing paperwork but she loves her job.

She is one of two undergraduate advisors for the economics department at the University of Massachusetts and her door is open to anyone who needs some help getting things straight.

"I really like what I do," she says, "if I could do [advising] without the paperwork, I would gladly advise all day long. My position is, we're here for the students, we wouldn't have a job if it wasn't for the students."

Hazard likes to laugh and she laughs often, which is a good thing because on top of her advising position she and her husband are raising seven children.

"I'm not a cook," she says jokingly, "I'm a chauffeur."

Hazard, 41, graduated from the University in 1973 with a bachelor's degree in sociology and then went to work for the University part-time as an IBM machine operator (this was in the days before everyone had a personal computer, she said). After a few years she was offered a job in the economics department as a secretarial assistant, from there became a secretary and then, she just sort of "fell into" the job of advising, she said.

Being around Amherst and the University for 17 years she has seen many changes of attitude among students and others towards the black community, of which she is a member.

PROFILE

Since the 1970s, she said, people have become "used to seeing Afro-Americans walking around the town." When she was in school she said 10 or more blacks "couldn't congregate without the University security coming over and checking up. We couldn't hang out."

But she said, "there was more of a unity among people of color when I came in. Now students are striving to attain that once again."

Lately though, with the organized effort to bring Farrakhan to campus, she said there has been a greater degree of cohesiveness within the black community.

Having Farrakhan speak was good for the black community because she "can't remember the last time [the black community has] had an Afro-American speaker of such magnitude" on campus.

"He moves you," she said, "It's like going to church and hearing a good sermon or good gospel choir. Some of the things, even in church, that the minister might preach you might not be for but on the whole, it's been an inspiration."

Although she has never run into any overt racism on campus she is strongly supportive of students taking courses in sexism and racism because "a lot of students come from areas that have no people of color. I've had students tell me they've been raised and never seen a black person in their home town," she said.

Black or white, red or yellow, skin color is not important to Hazard, she is more concerned with helping students get the most out of their University experience.

"If you can make it through the University," she said, "you can make it in the real world — definitely. And I'm for pointing the way. I won't take you by the hand, but I'll point the way."

But she said, "I can't sympathize with any student who waits until the last minute to do anything."

"Some students have no problem with classes and class work, other students do. So I try to arrange a course schedule where I know they can learn and grow by, that it won't be draining. And I like to see it made as easy as possible for the students," she said.

Hazard really likes the students who come to her for help and she thinks that feeling is returned by them.

"Everybody is treated equally," when they enter Hazard's office, she said. "I really feel that a student has to work [in school], because the world outside is not easy."

Radio service helps disabled "read"

By BETH GATELY
Collegian staff

Sally Dodge, a University of Massachusetts student, keeps abreast of the news; the latest best sellers and magazine articles.

But she doesn't read these publications, she listens to them.

Through the Radio Reading Service of Western New England; newspapers, magazines, novels and short stories are read over the air by volunteers to print handicapped people.

Print handicapped people are unable to maneuver printed material for a variety of reasons. Although this group includes blind people, a print handicap may be dyslexic, arthritic or have a crippling disease.

"They are very dedicated people at the reading service," said Dodge, departmental assistant in Handicapped Student Affairs. "The thing I appreciate most about them is that they are willing to serve people who have the need. They are very congenial people and always open to suggestion to what people may need from the reading service."

Kathy Toucette, director of the RRS volunteers, said the state government cut back funds to the RRS last year. The cuts hurt the RRS because it is a non-profit organization that is funded in part by the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind and also depends on private donations and grants.

As a result, Dodge said that she has trouble picking up the broadcast from her Belchertown home and her office on campus.

Dodge, 56, was born with retinitis pigmentosa with macular degeneration. The disease left her partially blind, and she now uses a white cane when she walks. She started using the reading service soon after it began in 1983.

Dodge said her favorite program on the reading service is the Marketplace, in which sale flyers and coupon sections are read directly from the newspaper. Dodge said she likes the exposure this program provides her.

The RRS runs from 7 a.m. to 12 a.m., seven days a week. On weekdays, The Springfield Union News is read at 9 a.m., subsequent chapters in a novel are read from noon to 1 p.m. in the program called "Our Best Seller," and throughout the day and night articles are read from magazines ranging from Time to Sports Illustrated.

The material is selected to appeal to a broad audience. President of RRS, Richard Gagne said, "We have listeners

continued on page 7

Totman brawl may have racial overtones

By GEORGE FRANCY
Collegian Staff

A black man was injured in an fight last night at around 7 p.m. on North Pleasant Street near Totman Gymnasium.

Scott Taylor, of Amherst, said he and some friends were on their way home when the brawl occurred.

"We were sitting here waiting for a ride," Taylor said, pointing to an area under a tree in front of a North Pleasant Street residence. "A friend of mine was really drunk. He was yelling . . . "

Taylor said a black car stopped at the light and the occupants started looking at the man yelling and began to yell back at him.

"They started yelling 'shut up you nigger . . . my friend's black,' and 'we're going to kill you, we're gonna beat your ass.'"

Taylor said his friend, Eugene Westbrook, then walked up to the car and started punching at an open win-

continued on page 8

Former UM prof. dies

AMHERST (AP) - Botanist Frederick A. McLaughlin, a professor emeritus at the University of Massachusetts and one of its oldest graduates, has died at the age of 100.

McLaughlin, a Lee native who graduated from what was then the Massachusetts College of Agriculture in 1911, died Sunday at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton.

He taught botany and other classes at the school until 1930, when he took charge of the seed laboratory at the University's experimental station. He retired in 1954.

A past president of the Association of Seed Analysts of the United States and Canada, McLaughlin also was active for many years in Amherst town affairs, state and local conservation and sportsmen's groups.

One of his sons, Charles L. McLaughlin, who died in 1963, was director of the state fish and game department.

SGA nomination papers to be made available Thursday

Student politicians at the University of Massachusetts will have the opportunity to throw their hat into the political ring on Thursday morning when the Student Government Association formally opens the election process.

Nomination papers for SGA president, student trustee, and all open senate seats will be available in room 420 of the Student Union building starting at 9 a.m., said Sen. Ted Chambers.

Students must obtain 250 signatures, which must be returned by March 2 at 10 a.m. to insure nomination, he said.

Sen. Bud Verge estimated there will be 20 open seats in the senate for the upcoming election.

Chambers said one reason students should run is to add their voice to the fight against state budget cuts.

"This is an issue that is going to affect all of us more than most students realize," he said.

— MARIA SACCHETTI

■ professor's lawsuit

continued from page 2

tion and re-appointment information but the response was slow, he said.

Croffoot contends he "met all the legitimate and reasonable expectations of his employer" and while employed was "particularly active in advocating equal employment opportunity."

Croffoot later learned that a white male without a handicap but with less industry experience and education was hired to replace him.

He says Bosselman spread a rumor in spring 1986 that his shoulder injury was in some way connected to AIDS and Fletcher made no attempt to quell the talk of his medical condition. The lawsuit says the rumor is untrue.

He says that in 1983 or 1984 he and Fletcher had a verbal contract to teach an overloaded schedule in exchange for a reduced workload for one or two semesters in the future.

Croffoot sought the reduced semesters in the spring 1985 and fall 1986 semesters but was denied both times, according to the lawsuit. The suit claims he later learned leaves had been granted to two others — white males without physical handicaps — "to facilitate their doctoral studies."

Both professors Fletcher and Bosselman refused to comment on the lawsuit and said they only knew about it through the newspaper accounts.

"I never really had much contact with Croffoot when he was here, I was still rather new at the time," said Bosselman.

Five-college students hope to help homeless

By SCOTT ROE
Collegian Correspondent

About 25 students from the five colleges met at Hampshire College Monday night to plan a fundraising campaign to fight area poverty.

The students, members of Students Working Against Poverty (SWAP), have been meeting for nearly a year as a student activist branch of the Hampshire College Public Service and Social Change Program, according to Ada Sanchez, the program's director.

Synthia Mitchell, president of the United Poor People's Rights Association, in Springfield, said the biggest problem SWAP and other organizations have to face is transportation of goods to and from warehouses.

Mitchell, who is also director of services at the SWAP warehouse, said she hoped people would help with the fundraising campaign.

"I think that all the colleges, in Springfield and Holyoke too should be involved," she said. "Even if they don't want to form a chapter of SWAP, they could have a fund drive."

Lenore Diane, a student who works with the Hampshire College Public Service and Social Change Program, said, "This is a real community thing. Each semester we get new students involved."

Sanchez said SWAP evolved from a meeting between students and valley organizations last spring when it was decided a furniture warehouse was badly needed in the area. In September, a warehouse in Holyoke was donated to SWAP to store furniture and other household goods to aid families moving from temporary shelters to permanent homes, she said.

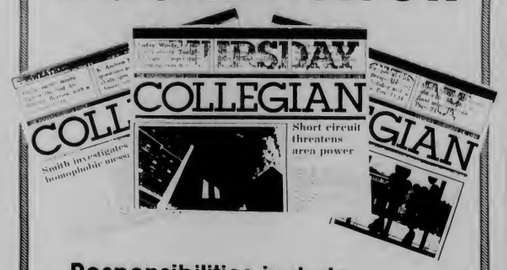
Beth Englander, a UMass freshman, said, "I'm here because the other day on the street a man asked me for money for the homeless so I gave him a dollar."

"But just giving money to some stranger on the street I'm not sure is doing anything, so I wanted to actually do something myself," she said.

SWAP next meeting is scheduled for Monday, Feb. 20 at 7 p.m. in the East Lecture Hall at Hampshire College.

POSITION AVAILABLE!

CIRCULATION COORDINATOR



Responsibilities include:
- Coordinating drivers
- Occasional delivery
- Prep. for Circulation Mgr. position

Applicants must have:
- Mon-Fri open until 11:00
- Reliable car
- Preference to Sophomores & Juniors

Apply today at Collegian
Collegian is an EOE

DRAFTING SUPPLIES

DRAWING INSTRUMENTS

We carry a full line of art and graphic supplies.

OPEN M - F 9-5
Sat 10-3

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Women attempt to restore admissions program

By SHARON WILKEY
Collegian Staff

Nancy Rios arrived at the University of Massachusetts from Puerto Rico with 58 undergraduate credits and a Spanish/English dictionary. In four years, this single mother has completed her bachelor's degree, earned her master's degree, and is working on her doctorate.

"Quitting," is one English word she seems never to have learned.

Rios, 32, attributes her success to the now-defunct Women's Admission and General Educational Support program, cut last semester because of University budget constraints.

WAGES, formerly a part of the Everywoman's Center, worked with low-income and older women to provide counseling about admissions, housing, day care, financial aid, and academics. At the time of its cancellation, WAGES served 80 undergraduates, Rios said.

A doctoral candidate for 1990, Rios says she is determined to resurrect the undergraduate WAGES program.

"I'm not blaming anybody for the cut," she said. "I just want our program back."

Rios, a WAGES child-care coordinator for 2-and-a-half years, has been meeting with four local women also dedicated to this effort. "We need this program, and we're going to prove that it's needed," Rios said.

Corky Robinson, Marie De Cristo, Nancy Bishop, and Mary Jo Connelly joined Rios last week in a meeting with members of Smith College's Ada Comstock program, UMass Boston's Low Income Students for Survival, and the Hampshire County Action Committee, to discuss WAGES' reinstatement.

"We're trying to get the word out that WAGES was cut, but we're also trying to get some advice," said Connelly, a former WAGES volunteer.

A second meeting, of all former WAGES undergraduates, will take place March 5 to outline a specific strategy for the program's redevelopment.

Connelly, a graduate student in the education department said, "It's not fair to carry on a crusade on someone else's behalf without their input about their priorities."

Rios said she and the other supporters are producing a videotape to demonstrate the importance of WAGES. The videotape, a series of interviews of those involved with WAGES, will be used to educate and foster support from the community, she said.

Organizers will also write to feminists, state representatives, and senators to draw attention to the program's cut and lobby for further support, she added.

Because of University budget constraints, Rios said, she may seek grants from private and government agencies.

Connelly cited the Ada Comstock program and the Frances Perkins program at Mt. Holyoke College as examples of successful programs serving older students returning to school. UMass could learn from these thriving organizations, she said.

Dennis Madson, vice chancellor of student affairs, said recently he cut WAGES instead of other programs because it was not reaching enough students to be considered productive.

Carol Wallace, director of the EWC, said the administration based its statistics on the number of women who used WAGES for application assistance, and then enrolled at UMass. However, women already enrolled and women only considering enrolling, used WAGES services as well, she said.

Rios said the program had not been reaching its full potential because of a lack of resources and staff. "The need was there, but the WAGES program didn't have the tools," she said.

Wallace said "A program for re-entry women is critical. Re-entry women have a variety of needs that don't get met by other agencies on campus whose services are geared toward traditional college-age students. I hope the University can recognize that need and the gap that's been created by the loss of the WAGES program."

Two admissions office employees have been assigned to

continued on page 8

Fadel drops election from agenda

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association meeting may progress further than the announcements (all the SGA could get to last week) tonight since Senate Speaker Robert Fadel yesterday ruled motions to install an SGA president were "out of order."

A motion to install a single SGA president and a second motion to approve the March 15 election of Shari Silkoff and Jason Rabinowitz as SGA co-presidents will not be considered until the SGA obtains legal advice on the matter, Fadel said.

Fadel said the SGA is seeking legal advice as to whether a consent decree signed by two student justices ordering Silkoff and Rabinowitz to take office as SGA co-presidents waives the need for senate to ratify the election.

Also, a motion passed by the senate on Nov. 30 prevents the body from voting on ratification, therefore the motion must be overturned to install an SGA president, Fadel said.

"In my opinion, Jason and Shari are co-presidents-elect," he said. The pair is neither being paid nor allowed signature power, he added.

Last week's meeting was marred by more than two hours of filibustering by conservative Senators Brian Darling and W. Greg Rothman, which several senators said was an attempt to prevent two motions from being voted on.

Highlights of tonight's agenda concern motions to restructure the Undergraduate Student Senate, a motion to require one-tenth of the senate to order a roll-call vote, a motion to insure student input in the building of the Mullins Convocation Center, and a motion to upgrade police protection in high risk areas on campus.

McGonnigal adds name to suit against Spartacus

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

The number of Republican Club members to file suit against the Spartacus League has risen to five, said Republican Club member Paul McGonnigal.

McGonnigal has added his name to the four other members of the Club who will file assault and battery charges at 8:30 a.m. in Northampton District Court today.

The club brawled last Thursday night with the Spartacus League, a Cambridge-based Trotskyist youth organization that had been invited to speak in the Campus Center by the Friends of the Spartacus Youth League here at the University.

One Republican Club member was treated at University Health Services after the fight when he was headbutted in the nose.

A total of six charges will be filed against the Spartacists.

McGonnigal said he wants the Spartacists banned from campus.

Board of Governors chairman Eric Nakajima said yesterday both groups meeting-room priviledges in the Campus Center have been rescinded by order of the building's director and the Student Activities Office until the matter is put to rest.

THE
DISTINGUISED VISITORS PROGRAM

OUTSIDE PROPOSAL MEETING

-Forms available at the D.V.P. Office, 415 Student Union
-Forms must be returned by 5:00pm, Feb. 21st
-Call the D.V.P. Office (545-0920) for any information & details
-All proposals must be accompanied with an oral presentation

To be held:
Tuesday
Feb. 28, 1989
Place:
CC 905-909

distinguished visitors program

S · U · N
BARBADOS
for SPRING BREAK
THE PLACE TO BE

We have a brand new 7-bedroom mansion reserved for the UMASS spring break party of the year. Your party abode is located on the beach and includes a fully equipped kitchen, living room, 4 full bath rooms, and daily maid service. The Sandy Lane Golf Course and Sunset Crest Resort are both close neighbors. The 3 quads, 3 triples, and 1 double are given on a first come first serve basis so don't be late.

DATES:
JFK Departure: March 17, 18, 19
Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Departures
BOS Departure: March, Friday 17 - Friday 24

Quad, Triple, or Double Occupancy: $589
Occupancy is first come first serve
Reservation Deposit: $75
Refundable Security Deposit: $25

$75 non-refundable for reservation
$25 security deposit required.
Full payment is need after February 9, 1989
Payments in guaranteed funds only!

$589

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union
545-3437
SEE US AT THE TABLE

University Placement Service Presents

CAREER FAIR '89

WHEN: FEBRUARY 15, 1989

WHERE: CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM

TIME: 10:00 AM to 3:00 PM

CAREER FAIR '89 is open to all students. Opportunities for Liberal Arts Majors, Engineers, Science and Business Majors, and HRTA.
Over 50 organizations will be represented, including:

Bank of New England-West
Biogen, Inc.
Boston University Book Store
Buckman Labs
Central Maine Power
Charles Hotel
DEQE
Digital Equipment Corp.
Federal Bureau of Investigation
GTE Government Systems
Hughes Aircraft
Interlan
JC Penney
Jordan Marsh
Lechmere
Mass Mutual
MIT Lincoln Labs
NOAA
Social Security Administration
TJ Maxx
United Technologies
Xenergy

Resumes are not required but there is nothing like being prepared!
For further information on the career fair, contact Susan Hart, University Placement Service, 545-2224.

UPS University Placement Service

Where Careers Take Off!

Grant aids study of teeth defects

Hampshire College recently received an $8,000 grant from the Wenner-Gran Foundation for Anthropological Research to study the relationship between malnutrition and enamel defects of teeth in Mexican children.

Alan Goodman, 38, an assistant professor of biological anthropology, said he will use the grant to aid his research in the Soils Valley area of Mexico where he is studying children in five communities for tooth defects caused by malnutrition.

Goodman has been studying prehistoric cultures to determine if there is a similar pattern between enamel defects in these cultures and defects in present-day cultures, he said.

"Mild to moderate malnutrition is a difficult thing to diagnose," he said.

Goodman, who received his doctoral degree from the University of Massachusetts, is working on new techniques for determining malnutrition's affect on first teeth. This makes diagnosis harder because of the difficulties of examining an infant in the uterus, he said. First teeth develop in the uterus.

Goodman said he has also received an $18,390 grant from the National Institute of Health last summer for similar research in a different Mexican community.

He said his research, which he has conducted over the past two years, has led to some promising results, although Goodman said it is unclear when his research will be finished.

Goodman has been a professor at Hampshire College since 1985.

– STEVEN PANGIONE

■ Radio Reading Services

continued from page 3

that range from blind teenagers to sighted elderly in nursing homes."

The volunteers read from the office in West Springfield and the signal is transmitted over subcarriers to WFCR in Amherst, WTCC in Springfield and WBEC in Pittsfield. The reading service gives the print handicapped a pretuned sideband FM receiver free of charge. The receiver is required to pick up the broadcast.

Gagne said RRS can be picked up on stereo televisions and by subscribing to Continental Cable in Northampton and Springfield.

Dodge said she is the only UMass student who takes advantage of the reading service. She said there are approximately 20 visually impaired students on campus but "they don't have time to listen to the service."

Toucette told Dodge if there was a demand, the reading service would read from the Collegian and the Campus Chronicle.

Dodge has been a part-time student at UMass for two years.

She has not yet declared a major, but has concentrated in leisure studies with an emphasis on the disabled. Dodge said, "I'm in no hurry, to graduate. I'm just taking my time."

Dodge said when she does graduate,"I would like to coordinate services for the visually impaired on campus. I want to make people happy and have fun despite their disabilities. I want people to learn to enjoy themselves."

As departmental assistant, Dodge serves as an advocate for students if they have a problem with a professor. "I've never had a major problem, sometimes a student does not know how to approach a professor about a particular problem with an exam or paper. Students feel comfortable knowing that there's someone in the office that can relate to them.'

■ regents

continued from page 1

spending on the state public college system.

At Tuesday's meeting he called the current proposed budget for the fiscal year beginning in July, "unacceptable."

"It's not a budget for excellence. It's a budget for mediocrity,"Tsongas said. "We have to make the case for public higher education much more aggressively."

Tsongas said the point of the study is "to take a long-range look at the mission of each institution."

Pocatello

Idaho

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS

MARCH 18-25

When you break away this year, do it with style.

SUN FUN!!

round trip air
7 nights
great night life

Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB
547-3437
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.

$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP

THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION

A $75 Reservation Deposit Required

SAVE

LAGNAF

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

DELTA UPSILON

INVITES ALL UNIVERSITY MEN to OPEN RUSH

RUSH the DUCKS!!

FEB 15: Informal Rush (All Day)
FEB 16: Special Events 8:30
FEB 22: See for Yourself 9:00
FEB 23: Special Events 8:30

We offer:

- 24-Hour Open Kitchen
- Great Social Life
- Above average Scholastics
- Strong Intramurals
- Lifelong Friendships

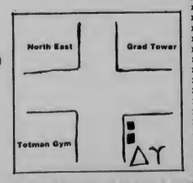
•MAP•



ALSO:
FEB 14: Kennedy 9:30
FEB 21: Basement Baker Dorm 9:00

Choose Excellence

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

"It ain't perfect but it's the only game in town. And it's an important game for students who seek careers in journalism. Experience on the Collegian is increasingly valued by the editors throughout the northeast."

Howard Ziff, UMass Professor since 1971; Reporter & Asst. City Editor, Chicago Daily News

Come write for the Collegian
113 Campus Center

For Your Information

For Your Information is a service of the Collegian to its readers. Because of a lack of space, not all press releases can be included in FYI. For more information, contact David at the Collegian, at 545-3500.

Meeting
An organizational meeting for students interested in joining the Paris study year program for 1989-90 has been scheduled for today at 1 p.m. in room 301 of Herter Hall. For more information, contact the French Department at 545-2314.

Meeting
The University Players have scheduled a meeting for today at 7:30 p.m. in room 902 of the Campus Center. New members are welcome to attend. For more information, contact Eric Goldman at 253-2348.

Discussion
The Program for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Concerns is sponsoring a discussion on "Internalized Homophobia." The forum is scheduled for tomorrow from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. For more information, call 545-4824.

Lecture
The Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies (PAWSS) will present a talk by environmental expert Dr. Arjun Makhijani on "The Specter of Global Environmental Catastrophe." The program has been scheduled for tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Thompson 106. For more information, contact Adi Bemak at 549-4600, ext. 519.

Workshop
"Financial Planning for Writers" is the subject of a workshop led by Sally A. Livingston, a financial planner who specializes in working with craftspeople and artists. The workshop is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 18, from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Jones Library. For more information, contact B.J. Roche at 339-4886.

Career Day
The Department of Hotel Restaurant and Travel Administration have scheduled a Career Day on Tuesday, Feb. 21 at the Campus Center Auditorium from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information, contact Leon at 549-6270 or Liz at 549-0975.

Meeting
Representatives of the Legal Services Center and the University Internship Program will speak about the legal assistant internships offered at LSC and how to apply for them. The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 22 at 3:30 p.m. in room 901 in the Campus Center. For more information, contact the Legal Services Center at 545-1995.

Lecture
"Dr. W.E.B. DuBois: A Personal Memoir," a lecture to be given by Dr. John Hope Franklin as part of Black History Month, is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 23 at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of Memorial Hall. Dr. Franklin is the James B. Duke Professor Emeritus of History at Duke University. For more information, call 545-3137.

Support Group
A support therapy group for cancer patients, their family and friends is beginning in Amherst. The first of eight weekly sessions is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 28. The sessions will be led by Margaret Gosselin, MPS, and Albey Reiner, PhD of the Cancer Counseling Center of Amherst. For more information, call 549-7776 or 545-0087.

Support Group
For separated and divorced men. The group will be meeting in Northampton on Wednesdays from 7 to 8:30 p.m., beginning this month. For more information, contact David Arbeitman at 527-5911.

Support Group
P-FLAG, Pioneer Valley Support Group for parents, families, friends of lesbians and gays, meets on the second Tuesday of every month at 7:30 p.m. in the Grace Episcopal Church Parish Hall in Amherst. For more information, contact Jean M.B. Genasci at 532-4883.

Escort Service
The Department of Public Safety offers a nightly escort service to all points on campus. The service runs from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. For more information, call 545-2123.

Meeting
The Third World Caucus is an "umbrella organization consisting of members from many historically oppressed and underrepresented communities."
For more information, contact Adam Stein at 546-9535.

■ assault

continued from page 7

dow. At this point, Taylor said, the men in the car got out and started beating Westbrook. Taylor said one of the men in the car was black.

Amherst Police Department received a call about the incident and responded at 7 p.m., according to Lt. Jeffrey Roy.

Roy said police believe the fight started when one of the men in the car tried to force his girlfriend into the car and then became agitated at Westbrook for yelling.

Roy said police had questioned some of the men in the car that left the scene and they were still investigating the incident. Asked if the fight appeared to be racially motivated, he said, "We're looking into that but it doesn't appear that it was."

Taylor, who had blood caked on his nose and mouth and a crimson bruise under his right eye, said he walked out onto North Pleasant Street and jumped on one of the men from the car. He said he was kicked and punched several times by the men in the car, while his friend was knocked unconscious and was lying in the middle of the street.

Taylor said the men got back in the car and sped off while he dragged his friend out of the street and others went for help.

Westbrook was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton, and according to a spokesperson for the hospital was discharged after treatment.

Patrick Sullivan, also of Amherst, a friend of Taylor and Westbrook, said he had come by to pick his friends up when he saw a man lying in the road. He said he then saw Taylor drag the man out of the road while a car sped away.

Lt. Roy said, that as of last night, neither of the two parties wanted to pursue the case in court.

Police scanner reported stolen

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Police said a police scanner was reported stolen Monday from a secure area in the basement of University Apartments. The scanner was worth $125.

In other police reports:

- A 25-year-old man was arrested on and outstanding warrant by the University police after being informed of his whereabouts by Amherst Police who had spotted him in the center of town, police said.
- Holyoke News reported a USA newspaper vending machine stolen Monday from its location on Massachusetts Avenue, police said.
- Police said they confiscated a case of beer from an individual in Lot 44 Monday night. A show-cause hearing will be sought on the minor who was in possession of the alcohol, police said.
- Police said they observed a vehicle parked in Lot 25 Monday night which had a broken window, a radio missing from it and three flat tires. Attempts to contact the owner were made.
- After responding to a disturbance in John Quincy Adams Residence Hall police said they interviewed several people and issued a trespass notice to a former student visiting the University.

■ WAGES

continued from page 5

process applications from non-traditional students previously handled by WAGES. But Bishop said, the services offered in Whitmore are not enough. "Whitmore is geared to the traditional student."

Rios said "Without the WAGES program, the state University is closing the doors to the same women that the state is pushing to further their education."

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT
Print Shop
228 Triangle St., Amherst

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd.
No. Amherst 549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Be Our Guest
JC Penney Reception
TONIGHT
University Career Center
6:00 PM
Come by, visit with our Recruiters, and learn about entry level and Summer Intern positions with America's leading retailer.
Recruiters from the following JCPenney Divisions will be on campus:
Catalog Department and Retail Stores
JCPenney

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer, his cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian, or the University unless otherwise noted.

The task of Congress is to serve the public, not get rich

Our representatives in Congress call themselves professionals. That's why they wanted a 51 percent pay raise: professionals should be paid in accordance with the services they render.

Running a country is no easy task, and receiving a mere $89,500 yearly pales in comparison to the services our Capitol Hill friends perform.

Pedro Pereira

But public pressure compelled the Congress to re-evaluate its position on the increase. Tuesday of last week, the House of Representatives killed the pay raise 380-48 and the Senate 94-6.

Learning of the impending salary increase and the sleazy way Congress had planned to implement it, the public, led by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, expressed its outrage through nasty letters and phone calls. The Democratic representative from Worcester, Joseph Early, reportedly spent Monday and Tuesday morning answering calls from angry constituents.

The press reported that some constituents were so outraged they threatened to see to it that their represntatives would not be elected again should they vote for the raise.

Evidently, the raise was defeated because our Capitol Hill friends, who have made politics their career, wanted to insure themselves against losing their jobs. If they had it their way, our legislators wouldn't have to vote for the increase.

House members had planned no sessions before Feb. 8, the deadline for the raise to come to a vote. Having no sessions meant the House couldn't vote on the bill, which in turn meant the raise would take effect at 12:01 on Feb. 8. But Speaker Jim Wright's idea to poll the members on whether they would vote for or against the raise caused the beginning of the end.

House members had a dilemma: say no to the vote and trigger public outrage, or say yes and vote down the raise to appease their constituents.

They opted for the vote, but talk of another increase proposal persists. President George Bush, who endorsed the initial raise but signed the Congress' resolution to kill it, last week solicited suggestions for a new proposal.

"I believe that some level of pay increase is in order, and I will be working with the House and Senate leadership to develop proposals to achieve that end," Bush said.

Should a new proposal start making headlines, the public is certain to disapprove again. And rightly so.

In fact, Americans must oppose any kind of pay raise for Congress until our representatives get their priorities straight. Voting down the pay raise itself was, to an extent, another instance of priorities mixed up by the blind ambition of our legislators, whose main concern is re-election rather than serving the country.

Mike Luckovich
Times-Picayune
Wow! Somebody wants a pay raise bad! Will that person stand up... C'mon, don't be shy - I'm waiting...
Congress
The Amazing Preston
- mind reader -

An abundance of issues, including child care, homelessness and the budget deficit, have become secondary because of political ambition.

Our Founding Fathers did not have career politicians in mind when they created the Congress. Representatives and senators were supposed to serve one or two terms, abandon public service and return to private life.

Had our forefathers' intentions not been prostituted by political ambition, the need for congressional pay raises wouldn't exist. Candidates would know that they would only make so much in office during their temporary stay and, hence, not have to worry about feeding their families with congressional salaries for the rest of their lives.

We don't need overpaid professionals in Washington; we need public servants.

Pedro Pereira is a Collegian columnist

UMass; an extension of high school?

Okay, I've been mistaken, I mean it. I was living on Fantasy Island for a few years, but now I've come to my senses.

I've seen the light.

We aren't in college.

I know it's a shock and has startling implications, but I firmly believe this is a reality we all must endure — especially lower classmen.

We are in upper-level high school.

Nancy Cohen

It never used to be like this. We used to be treated like adults, or at least that's what they wanted us to believe.

Professors assure me that it only appears as if we're being treated this way. They tell me it's my age that is deceiving me; senility perhaps.

But unfortunately, I can remember a time when freshmen weren't freshmen, they were first year students. Professors began classes under the assumption that they weren't ignorant and void of any kind of knowledge. They had expectations.

There was a time when first year students were here to start a new passage in their life, not to be reminded (constantly) of their old one.

The rude awakening is that this institution that claims to be a place higher learning, isn't meeting up with many of the students expectations. I suppose it's silly of me to think that this university would actually give a damn what we think, but I have just enough idealism left to fight for the desire to be treated with respect, not to be given the run-around about requirements and classes, and basically make them realize that we are here to learn, not to be weeded out in some tracking system that is outdated. It costs too much and there's too little time.

When I walk into a classroom, no matter what level it is, I don't expect professors to announce the ratio of freshmen to other students. I don't expect them to assume that because they are freshmen that they have no major. I certainly don't expect them to announce that due to the predominant amount of freshmen they will have to change their curriculum, because God forbid any freshmen should be familiar with what they're teaching. To this kind of professor, that's an inconceivable thought.

Now I'm not saying that all professors are like this. I've met many brilliant ones that have given me inspiration and have actually induced me to do my best work.

Unfortunately, as in everything, a few spoil it for the rest.

I just don't believe that it's right to make someone feel uncomfortable in a class whether it's because they are first year students or seniors.

Somewhere along the way someone lost sight of what higher education is all about. Maybe some of it is the students' fault and some the beauracracy of the system. I don't know.

But there has to be a point where we don't put up with the disrespect, and the run-around. So next time someone is giving you a hard time, whether it be the administration, a professor, or another student, realize there's no reason on this earth why you should have to put up with it.

I'm not saying you have to get out of hand and start yelling like a lunatic. Just point it out to the person who's doing it.

In the long run you'll not only be saving your own hide, but future generations as well.

Nancy Cohen is a Collegian columnist

A not so tipsy 21 in NYC

I turned 21 during wintersession, and in spite of all I had heard, no rockets soared, no fireworks flew, no gongs banged, no ball and chain was cut off my leg, and I didn't get stinking drunk.

Of course, I was with my parents.

David R. Mark

The two of them, my sister, my girlfriend (who came to New Jersey for the weekend) and I went to New York for my birthday. While I reveled in my first legal drink (a planter's punch at the Rainbow Grill at Rockefeller Plaza) from the corner of my eye I saw my girlfriend's face light up as she looked up at all the Big Apple could offer.

Of course, it was her first time in New York.

She'd seen big cities before, having lived all her life outside of Boston, and having worked all her wintersession in Baltimore. But there's something about New York — it's culture, it's skyline, and some other intangible — that shone in her eyes.

My dad became the tour guide. My mom, sister and I became extras in this movie set so new to my girlfriend. Seeing the Statue of Liberty, the Empire State and Chrysler buildings — places I took for granted became new again after hearing my girlfriend's comments and seeing her wide-eyed wonderment.

It reminded me of a time not long ago when my sister first recognized Chicago as a "big city." My dad pointed out all the sites — the Sears Tower, Soldier's and Wrigley Fields — and my sister basked in joy. Chicago winters I associated with trudging I suddenly associated with flying, so happy was my sister.

Since turning 21, I suppose I've done what every other 21-year-old does. I've been to Barsy's and The Pub, Twister's and Time Out. It's all very nice, being able to order a drink (or a pitcher) and having fun with friends.

But once again, I fail to see the great post-21 magic in the bar scene. The same problems I have with large keg parties — you can't hear, there's nowhere to sit, it smells like sweat — hold true at bars on their most crowded nights.

Beyond that my girlfriend is only 20, making a night out on the town limited to Panda East and a movie.

Unless we just stay in. . .

Three years I've gone to UMass. Three years I've heard from what seemed like everyone about the glories of turning 21 — the glories of going anywhere you want, drinking as much as you want, and getting as trashed as you want.

I guess that's not me.

Just proves the adage about the grass being greener . . . elsewhere. I'm happy I'm not still 20, but for the most part, life at 21 is no more magical than life at any other age.

David R. Mark is a Collegian columnist

Article concerning Republican club and Sparticus called biased

I found the article concerning the scuffle between the Republican Club and the Sparticist Youth League (Feb. 13) to be biased and unfactual.

A few of us in the Republican Club wanted to go hear the lecture and video presentation by the SYL. We were refused admission to the forum because we are members of the Republican Club. Upon convincing the leader of the SYL as the nature of our visit, to peacefully ask questions, we were allowed to enter.

We sat down and were surrounded by members of the League's "security personel" who attempted to intimidate members of the Club by both standing behind and following Club members around the room. The Sparticists are known for using force and intimidation. Their organization was barred from campus in the early 70's for advocating violence and they still are not an official Registered Student Organization.

During the question and answer period, one of the Club members walked in late to the meeting. He was told to sit down by one of the Sparticist "security" people, but he refused because he was not planning on staying for more than a few minutes. (Note: Until this point of time, there had been no disruptions or outbursts by Republican club members.)

Immediately, two Sparticist body guards grabbed the Republican Club member by the back of his shirt and arms, trying to force him to sit down. He asked the body guards to let go of him they only got more violent. When we saw our friend being assaulted, we naturally stood up to try and get the Sparticist guards off of him. The Republicans did not throw one punch. It was the Sparticist people who initiated the physical contact, the Sparticist people who were head-butting and kicking people, and it is the Sparticist people who should be condemned — NOT the Republican Club.

It's unfortunate this incident happened, but it's even more unfortunate that the Collegian would print an article only from information received by the Sparticists and did not investigate the other side of the story. I think the Collegian has a responsiblity to put personal opinion in the Editorial section, not the News section.

Alan Brynjolfsson
Amherst

The Collegian accepts letters and columns from the UMass community and area. All submissions must be typed, double spaced and become property of the Collegian. Hand written letters will not be printed!

UMASS SKI CLUB

GOES TO

STRATTON

$29

add $10 for non-members

Sign up:
Campus Center Concourse
or 430 Student Union
545-3437

Tuesday — Thursday

STUDENT COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Proposals are solicited for Student Commencement Speaker.

Format: 3 typewritten pages, double-spaced (approximately 5 minutes speaking time)

Deadline: March 1, 1989.
(Commencement is May 28, 1989.)

Selection process and criteria: A committee consisting of a majority of student members will review entries (authors' names will be deleted) for relevance to UMass and higher education, substance, and "appropriateness". Ratings will be assigned. Selected entrants will be asked to "audition". Final selection will then be made by the committee.

Submit proposals to: Robert N. Brooks, Director, Student Affairs Information Services, 229 Whitmore (545-3480).

Pi Kappa Alpha

The Brotherhood of Excellence

P I K E

P I K E

II K A

PIKE - There may be a better way to go through college, but nobody's found it yet.

First National Fraternity to ABOLISH HAZING
• 1988 Winner of UMass Chapter Excellence Award as the best fraternity on campus
• 1988 UMass overall athletic champs
• Unparalled social life • Lifelong friendships
• Olympic weight room • Outstanding meal plan

ACADEMICS • ATHLETICS • LEADERSHIP

SPRING RUSH

FEB 15, 16, 21, 22

REFRESHMENTS

The Brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha would like to extend an Invitation and Challenge to All University Men to come down tonight at

9:00 p.m.

and see for yourself what PIKE has to offer!!!

COLLEGIAN

ATTENTION SOPHOMORE/JUNIOR MARKETING MAJORS

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World.

THE COLLEGIAN is offering the opportunity to gain THE MOST VALUABLE BUSINESS EXPERIENCE on campus

Applications for position of
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER
are now being accepted

This position requires Responsibility, Dedication and Time Commitment—the qualities that future employers are looking for.

Come down to the Collegian Business Office in the Campus Center (RM 113 - lower level, 545-3500) and pick up a job application and description and submit it no later than Wednesday, March 1.

M/F—EOE

DEAN'S LIST FALL SEMESTER 1988

Congratulations to those who qualified for the Dean's List. Your noteworthy academic performance is a source of pride to the faculty, staff, and your student colleagues, as well as to your parents I'm sure. Such outstanding academic achievement (3.5 or higher semester average with twelve or more graded credits) is attained by fewer than 15% of our undergraduates. Providing opportunities for academic growth is one of the University's highest priorities and it is especially pleasing, therefore, to note and reward such accomplishment. Thank you for the credit you bring to the University.

Joseph Duffey, Chancellor

PRESS RELEASES

To publicize your achievement, the University News Office will be issuing a press release to your hometown newspaper if you are a Massachusetts resident. Out of state students who qualified for the Dean's List are asked to pick up a press release form at 200 Munson Hall (second floor).

ADDITIONS

The Dean's List was based on grades received and posted by the Registrar's Office as of January 23, 1989. If you had a grade change after that date, and believe you now qualify, please fill out a form available at the Information Data Bank, 227 Whitmore, and attach verification. You will be contacted with confirmation. (Reminder: only graded credits are used in calculating the Dean's List.)

The Dean's List is prepared each semester by Student Affairs Information Services as a service to the campus community.

ARTS and SCIENCES - HUMANITIES and FINE ARTS

ACHEBE,NWANDO,
AGNEW,PAUL G,JR
ALGONADA,TAMMY L,
ALDRICH,NANCI L,
ALEXANDER,MORGAN P,
ALLEN,STEFANIE A,
ALOISI,BARRY D,
ALZAMORA,STEVEN,
ANCONA,JAMES P,
ANDREWS,JEAN L,
ANDREWS,JIM,
ANGELO,MOLLY E,
ASSAD,SHARI A,
AUBIN,GREGORY S,
AUDETTE,MICHELLE M,
AUSTIN,GEORGE C,
AXTELL,KAREN J,
AYLWARD,CHARLES P,
BAETHGE,TONYA L,
BAKER,ANDREA L,
BALLOU,JENNIFER A,
BATES,TODD C,
BATTERSON,RACHEL A,
BAUMHOFF,CHRISTINE M,
BEWIS,GREGORY H,
BERARD,KRISTINE E,
BERG,ELIJAH,
BERNARD,ALLEN W,
BERRY,SUSAN E,
BLANCHARD,ANNE M,
BLANKSTEIN,ANDREW S,
BLESSING,SCHOLASTICA,
BLUMENSTIEL,APRIL,
BOBALA,ROBERT,
BODLE,PENNY A,
BONICA,MARK J,
BOSIO,PATRICIA C,
BOSTIAN,KYLE A,
BOUDREAU,MICHELLE M,
BRADY,SUSAN,
BRAIN,ARIEL F,
BREHM,JENNIFER E,
BRENNAN,JAMES M,
BRESSER,JESSICA,
BROADHURST,JAMES D,
BROWN,GREGORY R,
BRUSSEL,CAROL M,
BUCCHIERE,DIANE L,
BUCHHOLTZ,CHRISTOPHER F,
BUCKHOLTZ,ALISON,
BURBANK,KAREN M,
BURGHFIELD,KATRINA A,
BURDEN,LEANNE G,
BURR,GREGORY A,
BUSI,ANDRE V,
CALLAGHAN,PAUL S,
CALLANAN,JENNIFER M,
CALLAHAN,JODY A,
CALLAHAN,LEAH A,
CALLAHAN,NANCY M,
CAMPBELL,JAYDE E,
CANFIELD,ANNE M,
CAPOZZI,DAVID M,
CAREY,JANET M,
CARL,LISA J,
CARRIGAN,MARK E,
CARTY,TIMOTHY J,
CARVALHO,CAITLIN K,
CASHIN,PATRICIA E,
CASHMAN,JAMES W,
CAVANAUGH,LISA,
CERVANTES,CARLOS M,
CHANDLER,MICHELLE L,
CHANNER,LISA E,
CHARLIN,STEVEN H,
CHESNUT,MARY A,
CHRISTIAN,JILL E,
CLYDESDALE,HELEN M,J,
COLAN,CLAUDIA J,
COLE,MICHELLE,
COLLIER,JAY L,
CONLAN,BRENDA M,
CONLEY,ERIN E,
CONNOR,PATRICK F,
COOK,EDWARD G,JR
COON,TODD M,
CORAIS,CARLOS G,
CORDES,FRANCK J,
COUNSELL,JENNIFER E,
COUZYN,PAUL M,
COX,SUSAN I,
CRANESHAW,ANNA T,
CRAVEN,KERRY J,
CRAWLEY,MARY L,
CROGHAN,CRISTIN A,
CURTIS,LORI A,
DAKIN,CHRISTOPHER J,
DALTILIA,TRACY E,
DANZIGER,JASON A,
DAVIS,BRIGITTE D,
DAVIS,KIMBERLY J,
DAVIS,LAURA L,
DEMOVELLAN,PEDRO J,
DESMOND,ERIN J,
DEVINE,NEIL C,
DIAZ,JULIANNA,
DICARLO,KIMBERLY J,
DIMARIO,JEANINE M,
DINE,ANDREA B,
DOHERTY,JOHN M,
DONOVAN,CHERYL P,
DOULIS,YIANNI R,
DRUKMAN,JONATHAN S,
DUBERGER,DENIS A,
DUFFY,PETER J,
DUFFY,TIMOTHY J,
DUNLOP,JANICE K,
DUNN,CHRISTINE T,
DUNWOODIE,DEBORAH J,
DUSSERE,ERIK S,
EAGAN,MOLLY E,
EDWARDS,MARK A,
EL RIFAI,CHRISTINE L,
ELA,HOLLY B,
ENDOW,DENISE A,
ENTWISTLE,DAVID S,
EPSTEIN,STEVEN M,
ESSIG,JANNA,
EVANS,ROBYN K,
FALCO,LAURIE A,
FARAH,TERESA M,
FERNSEBNER,SUSAN R,
FINNERTY,MARIE E,
FIRDA,THOMAS A,
FISHER,DENISE M,
FISHER,WILLIAM D,
FLOYD,BEVERLY W,
FORTESCUE,ALAN W,
FORTESCUE,JONATHAN A,
FOSTER,SHAWN A,
FREEBERN,NEIL K,
FREEDMAN,KEITH R,
FRENCH,BRIAN K,
FRIEDMAN,MELINDA D,
FUKUSHIMA,MELISSA M,
FUTTNER,MAUREEN M,
GAGNE,KAREN L,
GALIPEAU,PETER L,
GALLAGHER,KATHLEEN A,
GALLO,LISA A,
GALVIN,ZACHARY,
GALWAY,BRIDGET K,
GARDESCU,STEVEN,
GARIEPY,LISA M,
GAUMONT,KEITH P,
GENCARELLE,SHARNA S,
GEORGE,KRISTEN S,
GETCHELL,ROBERT M,
GIBBS,JENNIFER L,
GIBLIN,ROBERT A,
GIDO,LAURA C,
GILLETTE,CHRISTINE M,
GINSBERG,DAVID M,
GIRONE,CHRISTINE E,
GITTER,ALEXANDER J,
GLAVAS,MITCHELL,
GOEPFERT,CATHERINE A,
GOLDMAN,JILL S,
GOLDSTEIN,BETH O,
GOLDSTEIN,JENNIFER E,
GOODIN,DANIEL R,
GORDON,KENNETH D,
GORDON,SUSAN E,
GOTTLIEB,RAHEL L,
GOULD,DEBORAH L,
GREENBAUM,RACHEL E,
GRENIER,DENISE E,
GRESSER,HILARY M,
GUERTIN,MATTHEW R,
GUMULA,STEPHANIE M,
GUTH,EUGENE C,
HALEY,MARYKATE,
HAMILTON,ROBERT F,
HAMILTON,SUSAN K,
HANG,BETZI LYNN,
HANNUS,JESSAME D,
HARD,KURT G,
HAROLD,JOHN,
HARRINGTON,MAUREEN L,
HARRIS,JENNIFER A,
HARTMAN,ANDREA J,
HAWLEY,KIMBER L,
HAWKINS,MICHAEL J,
HAYES,KATHLEEN A,
HEIMBERG,MARY D,
HEISEY,ROBYN L,
HELLMAN,SARA A,
HENNEMUTH,GARY L,
HENRY,KEVIN M,
HENRY,LISA M,
HERBERT,SHARON M,
HERLIHY,KERRY A,
HERRING,SUZY M,
HERSCHLER,BRIAN K,
MICKEY,ALICIA G,
MIGGINS,JAMES M,
MIGGINS,KAREN E,
MIRSCHFELD,BETH M,
MODGKINS,JUDITH M,
MOLMES,JONATHAN B,
MOPKINS,KIMBERLY,
MORNER,MICHAEL A,
MOROWITZ,AMY D,
MOULE,LOUISE M,
MOUBE,BRYAN E,
MOWES,ADAM C,
MOWLAND,STEVEN L,
MOYT,JONATHAN S,
MUGUS,JENNIFER K,
MULL,MARGARET A,
MULLINGER,THERESA E,
MURLEY,JENNIFER A,
MYND,TERRY,
IBARRA,ROSA R,
INTERRANTE,CHARLES M,
ISTWANY,SARAH J,
JAQUITH,MATTHEW V,
JEMISON,JAMES A,
JENERAL,JENNIFER J,
JENKS,BRETT S,
JOFFROY,MICHELLE,
JOHNSON,JENNIFER A,
JOHNSON,STEPHEN R,
JOKELSON,DANIEL A,
JONES,ERIK R,
JONES,SUSAN E,
JORDAN,JULIET M,
JOST,HENRY D,
JUBETT,JOAN M,
KALLERGES,SUSAN K,
KAMM,ERICH H,
KAULENAS,ALDONA B,
KEANE,ANNE E,
KEIDERLING,GLENN W,JR
KELLEHER,JOAN A,
KELLY,RUADH M,
KENNEY,JEANNE E,
KERMET,JAMES E,
KILLEEN,BARBARA,
KIMBALL,PAUL E,
KINGMAN,BRIAN A,
KIRSCHENBAUM,GAYLE M,
KNOBLOCK,STACEY L,
KNOX,ARTHUR R,
KOCH,CHRISTINA S,
KOCH,JULIE M,
KOHN,VALERIE C,
KORWAR,ARATI R,
KOVEL,ZOE E,
KRAMER,NANCY,
KRAUSE,MAX E,
KROL,CHRISTINE T,
KULJU,SUSAN K,
KUPFER,TAMMY A,
LACEY,ELEANOR B,
LAFERRIERE,JAMES E,
LANDRY,ERICA F,
LAPIERRE,DIANE P,
LARDNER,JOSEPH T,
LASONDE,MALLORY E,
LAVALLEE,LAURA M,
LAVOIE,ALAINE A,
LAVOIE,BRIGITTE J,
LAVOIE,NICOLE,
LE,NGUYEN,
LEBLANC,CHARLOTTE M,
LEBLANC,RAE ANN,
LEES,CYNTHIA T,
LEIBOWITZ,SUSAN B,
LEIF,DEREK W,
LEONE,MADELINE R,
LEVINE,ROBERT C,
LEWIS,LINDA M,
LIEDTKA,THERESA,
LILES,GAYLE B,
LILLIOS,CHRISTINA M,
LIPPING,A TIMO,
LITTERIO,HEIDI J,
LITTLER,MACGREGOR A,
LLOSA,SILVIA L,
LLOVERAS,RICARDO V,
LOHSE,FREDERICK W,III
LOMBARDO,WILLIAM J, LORING,LEILA H,
LOWENTHAL,MARC H,
LOWMAN,DEBRA E,
LUCHT,PETER K,
LYNCH,PAMELA A,
LYND,DAVID A,
MACE,NICHOLE C,
MACINTIRE,SCOTT W,
MACMILLAN,JOHN M,
MACOMBER,LAURA G,
MAGURA,LISA E,
MALCOLM,SUSAN O,
MALDONADO,LISSA G,
MANZER,RUSSELL N,
MARCH,JENIFER O,
MARGIL,DAVID S,
MARQUEZ,FRANCISCO,
MARSHALL,PATRICIA E,
MARTIN,ANTHONY J,
MARTIN,BEATRICE A,
MATTON,AMY W,
MAUNSELL,PATRICK J,
MCCARTHY,BRIAN T,
MCCONNELL,LISA M,
MCDONOUGH,JOANNE M,
MCFARLAND,JOSEPH T,
MCGEE,DONNA M,
MCGILL,CYNTHIA L,
MCGRATH,BRANDI R,
MCINERNEY,TEKLA A,
MCKENNA,CAITLIN,
MCLAUGHLIN,MAURA D,
MCLEAN,HEATHER F,
MCMURTRIE,CAROLINE S,
MCNIEL,ANGEL R,
MCQUILKEN,ANGUS G,
MEEHAN,CLAIRE A,
MEKOTA,MICHAL J,
MELLEN,DIONNE E,
MELLEY,KATHLEEN M,
MELLEY,MARY E,
MENZEL,JENNIFER A,
MERCIER,CHRISTINE E,
MERKL,FLORENCE M,
MERKL,KATHLEEN M,
MERRILL,SHONDRA L,
MIKKOLA,ATRO KY,
MILLER,ELLEN M,
MILLER,KATHLEEN M,
MILLETTE,MARGARET,
MITCHELL,BRUCE J,
MOELLER,KEVIN T,
MOIR,TAMMY J,
MOLINE,SHERYL L,
MONAHAN,LISA A,
MONTAGNA,JOSEPH M,
MOORE,JOSHUA G,
MOWAN,MARK F,
MOREY,REBECCA K,
MORIN,JAMES A,
MORIN,JEFFREY A,
MORRISON,FAITH E,
MORTON,DANA B B,
MOSELEY,LAURA M,
MOTT,ELIZABETH E,
MULCAHY,TARA L,
MULLIGAN,PAUL J,
MUNOZ,NYRA,
MUNSON,TODD S,
MURPHY,BRIAN T,
MURPHY,DEIRDRE J,
MURPHY,JOHN M,JR
MURPHY,LISA P,
NAVAS,TARIANA,
NEILL,LISA A,
NELSON,ELIZABETH L,
NOMURA,AIKO,
NOONAN,JOYCE A,
NORTHRUP,JILL M,
OBERG,AGNETA E,
ODDO,SAMANTHA L,
OLBRIS,DIANE G,
ONEILL,MARGARET M,
ONEILL,MAUREEN T,
PACKARD,DEBRA LYNNE,
PAQUIN,JOHN C,
PARKER,CHRISTINE S,
PARTRIDGE,MICHAEL A,
PASCETTA,STEPHANY,
PASQUANTONIO,SUSAN M,
PASTOR,ELIZABETH A,
PATENAUDE,SUSAN J,
PATNAUDE,MICHAEL P,
PEARSALL,MARK R,
PELLEGRI,CHRISTINE M,
PELOSKY,ANN MARIE,
PENNEY,ALEXANDRA L,
PERCIVAL,AMANDA W,
PEREZ,SUSAN I,
PERLET,HEIDI M,
PERSONS,LAURA L,
PETO,JONATHAN L,
PIERCE,MARC E,
PIERRAT,CHANTAL S,
PINKHAM,CLAIRE A,
PISCITELLI,STEVEN R,
PIZZUTO,DEREK W,
PLOESSL,ANGIE M,
PLZAK,EILEEN R,
POLK,BETSY H,
POLLEY,TABITHA I,
POMERANTZ,DAVID I,
POPENOE,PETER B,
POPSUN,JOHN W,
POTVIN,RONALD M,

CONTINUED FROM PREVIOUS PAGE

POWER,MARK ,
PRATT,KENDRA A,
PREWITT,HEATHER D, PROLMAN,LISA S,
PURIN,JOHN M,
PUTNAM,PAUL E,
QUIGLEY,MEAGHAN J,
QUINN,JARED W,
RADIN,GARY U,
RAFFAELE MITCHAEL W,
RAINS,MADELINE,
RAMOS,FRANCES I,
RANDLETT,KARIN E,
RAVER,TODD A,
REDCLIFF,JULIE A,
REGO,PATRICIA A,
REGO,WENDY A,
RETTBERG,LINDA J,
REYNOLDS,DAVID B,
RICHAROS,STEVEN P,
RITTENHOUSE,MOLLY A,
ROBERSON,DAVID,
ROBERTS,AMY L,
ROBINSON,TIMOTHY J,
ROBINSON,VICTORIA A,
ROLLINS,JAMES W,
ROOKEY,R KARL,

ROOKS,JENNIFER L,
ROOT,ANDREW D,
ROSA,SUSAN M,
ROSE TURNER,CLARINDA,
ROSE,CYNTHIA S,
RDSE,LISA D,
ROSEBORO,ROSALYN R,
ROSENBERG,ADRIENNE L,
RDSS,CHRISTINE L,
RUBIN,RACHEL B,
RUSCHMANN,ELAINE S,
RUSSELL,FRANK F,
RUSSELL,JENNIFER P,
RUTLEDGE,MARTHA J,
RUTLEDGE,MATTHEW,
RYAN,CONNOLLY C,
RYBACKI,SUZANNE M,
SADOK,RONNA L,
SALVADOR,ANDREW T,
SANBONMATSU,KIRA L,
SANDORFI,CSILLA C,
SASSON,RICHARD D,
SAVELL,MARK T,
SCANGO,SARAH E,
SCHAUFUS,KATHLEEN M,
SCHECHTER,JULIE L,
SCHINELLI,MICHAEL R,

SCHNEIDER,KRISTEN A,
SCHWAB,REBECCA A,
SCIOLETTI,TINA M,
SCORNAVACCA,CHRISTINE,
SCOTT,BERNARD J,
SEDUEIRA,ANTHONY J,
SHADUR,TAMAR,
SHAFER,DAYNA L,
SHAPIRO,SARA E,
SHEA,HEATHER A,
SHEA,JOHN T,JR
SHEEHAN,ALISON A,
SHEINIS,DANIEL M,
SHEPP,GARTH J,
SIGELMAN,STEPHANIE B,
SILVERSTEIN,ELIZABETH A,
SILVERSTEIN,KATE E,
SILVERSTEIN,SAM H,
SIMKINS,NANCY D,
SMART,CATHERINE E,
SMITH,AMY B,
SMITH,PATRICIA J,
SMITH,SERENITY,
SNOW,KEVIN G,
SOLOVAY,KARINA G,
SOLOVIEFF,DAVID M,
SPARACIO,FRANCESCA R,

SPENCE,JONATHAN M,
SPEROUNIS,HEIDI M,
SPOERL,CHRISTINE L,
ST PIERRE,PAULA C,
STADLER,KATHRYN J,
STAMP,BRENDA C,
STANKIEWICZ,PETER A,
STAPLES,JENNIE M,
STAUDER,SAMUEL G,
STEARNS,LAURIE M,
STICKLER,H LEE,
STOCK,CHRISTINE L,
SUDDERTH,NELSON C,
SULLIVAN,MATTHEW J,
SUSSKIND,ROBERT D,
SUTTER,CORINNE E,
SUTTON,SHERRI L,
SWAN,KAREN,
SWANSON,ERICA MARIE,
SWANSON,JOHN C,
SWEENEY,MICHAEL R,
TAROY,CHRISTINE M,
TARPEY,MAUREEN E,
THERIAULT,KYLE W,
THIBODEAU,CHRISTINE R,
THOMPSON,DEBORAH C,
THOMPSON,ERICA W,

TIMRUD,ADAM A,
TOBIN,MICHAEL D,
TOMA,APRIL M,
TOWNSEND,DANA E,
TREITLER,ANTA F,
TREMBLAY,PAUL H,
TRUDELL,MARY MARGARET,
UDELL,SHARI L,
ULTMAN,SHARI K,
UNIS,JULIA A,
URBONAS,STACEY A,
VALLEY,VICKI L,
VANDESTEEN,PAULA V,
VENE,DOMINICK M,
VENEAU,JAMES C,
VENTRE,MARK A,
VIGNALI,AMY C,
WALDEN,JOANNA M,
WALSH,KATERI J,
WEBB,DOROTHY A,
WEBB,MARY C,
WEBBER,SCOTT R,
WEIL,RAFAEL A,
WEINSTEIN,LISA M,
WELCH,VERONICA M,
WERTELET,MICHAEL A,
WHEELER,SUSAN V,

WHELAN,FREDERICK F,JR
WHITEHEAD,ANN H,
WILKEY,SHARON F,
WILLIAMS,EMIL A,
WILLIAMS,PATRICIA M,
WILLIS,JESSICA L,
WILSON,JAMES C,
WILSON,KAREN M,
WILSON,KATHLEEN,
WILSON,TIMOTHY C,
WOLFF,REBECCA M,
WONES,SUZANNE L,
WOOD,JEFFERSON WALLIS,
WOODCOCK,MADELEINE R,
WOODRING,BRIAN J,
YEGERLEHNER,DEBORAH R,
YEOSTROS,AMY E,
YETZ,LISA F,
YOFFE,SHIRA B,
ZARLENGO,AMY L,
ZASSENHAUS,GEOFFREY M,

ARTS and SCIENCES - NATURAL SCIENCES and MATHEMATICS

AGAHI,FARZANEH,
AHRENS,JAMES P,
ALLEGREZZA,THOMAS A,
AMIN MIRANI,SEPIDEH,
ANAND,MALA,
ARINIELLO,LEAH D,
ARMSTRONG,JUSTIN W,
ARRIAZA,ELIZABETH R,
AXEL,RALPH W,
AYASSE,SUSAN C,
AZAR,ELIZABETH A,
BARBAGALLO,JULIA D,
BARRY,ANGELA E,
BEATTY,IAN D,
BEATTY,KAREN I,
BELLEMORE,MOLLY L,
BERSANI,NEIL A,
BESSE,ANDREA J,
BEZUKA,BRENDA SUE,
BOUCHER,JENNIFER L,
BRANLAGE,ANN T,
BRENNAN,TERRY J,
BRISBOIS,KENNETH A,
BUCHWALTER,DAVID B,
BURNETT,JOHN W,
BUTERA,JAMES N,
CARLSON,ADAM,
CARNEIRO,SUZANNE P,
CHAPEL,DAVID H,
CHAPEL,VICTOR A,
CHEN,JI,
CHEVETTE,TAMARA E,
CLARK,JESSICA I,
CODE,ERIN L,
COHEN,MICHELLE S,

COLLAMORE,BETH A,
COLLIER,MARCUS H,
COLLINS,LISA A,
COOPER,DEBORAH M,
CORBETT,MAX S,
DALEY,SEAN P,
DANESE,PAUL N,
DELMOLINO,LAURIE M,
DENIS,DEBORAH J,
DEROSA,MICHAEL E,
DOBKIN,MARCY L,
DONATO,GINA M,
DONOVAN,JOHN W,
DRAGHETTY,MATTHEW J,
DRISCOLL,GLENN C,
DUBOIS,MARC K,
DUDLEY,AIMEE M,
DUNNE,ANDREW J,
ECKEL,EDWIN S,
ELLIS,DAVID J,
EWINGER,WILLIANNE C,
ERBAN,ELIZABETH A,
ERRICO,JOSEPH T,
ESPINOLE,DEREK M,
FARRAR,TIMOTHY D,
FAWCETT,GLENN S,
FEARN,HEATHER L,
FEENEY,CAROL J,
FERGUSON,ALICE L,
FERGUSON,KAREN L,
FINKBEINER,GREGORY S,
FLANNERY,JOHN V,JR
FORMATO,DAVID C,
FRISS,GREGORY A,
FRONGILLO,RICHARD J,

GARFIN,GREGG M,
GARTEN,JAMES F,
GELASCO,ANDREW K,
GEORGE,NITA J,
GETZEN,SUMMER G,
GILLAM,VALERIE J,
GOMERSAL,AMY E,
GORTLER,SHEILA R,
GRAVES,SCOTT D,
GREENFIELD,BRETT S,
GROSS,ROBIN S,
GROSSMAN,BRUCE J,
GUGLIELMETTI,JULIE A,
GUPTA,VIPUL,
HASWELL,LEDA C,
HAIGH,PAUL E,
HAMAWI,TATIANA A,
HART,AJULA M,
HARVEY,DAVID C,
HAUGSJAA,ERIN B,
HEBNER,DANIEL J,
HENRY,KRISTIN K,
HERRING,STACEY A,
HOLT,KATHLEEN S,
HUGO,MORGAN S,
HURLEY,JAMES M,
JANKOSKI,KATHLEEN,
JAROSLOW,GARY E,
JOHNSON,ROBERT O,
JONES,DOUGLAS D,
KASPER,JOHN D,
KEISMAN,ERIC L,JR
KELLER,AMY L,
KOZEL,PETER J,
KRAVETS,ROBIN H,

KRENDEL,STEVEN I,
KRUGER,SHARON H,
LABDON,LISA A,
LACEY,ERIC S,
LAMONTAGNE,RUSSELL W,
LANDRY,SCOTT J,
LEE,THOMAS J,
LEHRMAN,JULIE M,
LEVIN,THEODORE M,
LICCIARDI,KAREN A,
LIPMAN,JOANNE L,
LOMP,ANGELA A,
LONGEE,BRUCE S,
LYCETTE,CHRISTOPHER A,
LYFORD,LISA K,
MACLEOD,JOANNE M,
MAIR,GLEN W,
MANGUM,LANE K,
MARTELL,CHRISTINE R,
MARTIN,STACEY M,
MASTROMATTEO,LORI A,
MCCARTHY,BRENDAN J,
MCCLURE,KAREN E,
MCGURK,GREGORY S,
MELEEDY,DAVID M,
MEMORIALE,DANIEL E,
MORRILL,GRETCHEN L,
MUCKENTHALER,MARY E,
MURPHY,BETH L,
MURRAY,EVAN D,
NEWSTADT,KEITH G,
NG,VICTOR C K,
NISON,MAURA B,
NOBREGA,EDWARD A,
NOLAN,TIMOTHY D,

NORVELL,AMANDA,
OCONNOR,MICHAEL J,
OLBRIS,DONALD J,
OLIVEIRA,THERESA M,
OLIVIERI,DAVID N,
ONEILL,LAURIE A,
PARKER,DONALD R,
PASTEL,RANDEE L,
PEARLSTEIN,GREGORY J,
PERKEL,JEFFREY M,
PIEMONTE,KURT M,
POLLACK,MINDY J,
PRESTON,LINDA J,
QUINN,JONATHAN P,
QUIRK,CYNTHIA A,
RACINE,PAULA J,
RAPP,LISA M,
REINE,GABRIELLE M,
ROODEN,KATHERINE,
RUSSO,JENNIFER M,
SAATMAN,DONNA A,
SALAMONE,ERICA,
SANDVIK,ODDMAR A,
SANTANGELO,ANDREANA,
SARKARATI,SHANIN,
SASTRY,SARITA K,
SCHLOSSER,C ADAM,
SCHNACKERTZ,THEODORE J,
SCOTT,SARAH P,
SCULLY,EDWARD H,
SEARS,LAUREN E,
SEWARD,ROBERT J,
SHARIFI-AFSHIN A,
SHAW,JOHN H,
SHIELS,JEROME C,

SHULMAN,ERIC A,
SILK,LEE S,
SKRZYNIARZ,DAVID W,
SMITH,LISA M,
SNOONIAN,JOHN R,
SOLOMON,MICHAEL E,
SPENCE,STEPHEN P,
STARNS,TENNING C,
STANICK,JAMES A,
STEHMAN,TARA L,
STICKLER,MICHAEL S,
SU,JEFFREY,
SUMNER,KAREN J,
SYLVESTER,F CRAIG,
SZEKELY,EUGENIA E,
SZLACHETKA,KATE M,
TAI,CHIN-HUN,
THOMPSON,BENJAMIN R,
TOMLINSON,MARK E,
TRIGILIO,JOHN J,
TYNAN,KEITH W,
VALLE,GAVIN E,
VERNADAKIS,ADAM J,
WALDRON,ERIC L,
WALTERS,TIMOTHY M,
WEISBACH,PAUL J,
WEISMAN,STACY M,
WIGNESWARAN,JOHN R,
WILCOX,HEIDE M,
WILKINS,ALLEN C,
WINDOLOBKI,MARK D,
WOLSKI,KATHERINE E,
WRIGHT,BARTON J,
ZERVAS,NICOLETTE J,

ARTS and SCIENCES - SOCIAL and BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES

AARON,SUSAN B,
ABBOTT,LESLIE J,
ADAMS,PHILIP C,
ADAMS,ANDREA,
ADAMS,MEREDITH L,
ADLER,JULIE A,
ADLER,STEVEN C,
AFONSO,JOSEPH M,
ALBRECHT,MARILYN J,
ALPER,SUZANNE B,
ALSCHULER,BRIDGETTE A,
ALVES,MARK D,
ANNEAR,JOYCE A,
APONTE,EDNA L,
APPEL,WILLIAM J,
ARAGE,MICHELLE A,
ARANSKY,YZU N,
ARMSTRONG,ROBERT J,JR
ATKINSON,MARY S,
ATTERIDGE,CONSTANCE L,
AUERBACH,,LAUREN J,
BAKER,CELESTE,
BAKER,MATTHEW G,
BAKER,PAUL K,
BALTER,DEBORAH J,
BARBAGALLO,ELAINE M,
BARILAN,TALI,
BARNETT,JASON G,
BARRIGA,TERESA L,
BARRISPOLI,FRANK M,
BATES,ROBIN M,
BAYER,STEPHEN S,
BEALE,BARBARA S,
BEAULIEU,ANNE M,
BEEBE,SHERRY L,
BELANGER,LAURA,
BELDEN,RICHARD L,
BELLERO,KIMBERLY A,
BERGERON,PAULA M,
BICKFORD,BRENDA J,
BIEDA,ELIZABETH M,
BILLS,PAUL R,
BITTELMAN,LAURA J,
BLACHMAN,KAREN A,
BLACK,JAMES L,JR
BLACHER,DIANE M,
BLAKE,PAMELA E,
BLAKE,WILLIAM M,
BLANCHARD,JEFFRY W,
BLANEY,MEGAN M,
BLAZQUEZ,ENRIQUE L,
BLISS,HEIDI,
BOMBARD,LORRAINE N,
BONO,DAWN M,
BORONSKI,JASON M,
BOUCHER,MICHELLE M,
BOWEN,CARRIE A,
BOYAN,SONJA M,
BOYARSKY,MITCHELL S,
BOYD,HEATHER E,
BRAHMS,DEBORAH E,
BREEN,KIMBERLY S,
BRENNAN,STEVEN P,
BRIC,ANKA,
BRIDGENS,PAIGE,
BRISENO,MARIEL A,
BUCHHEIT,JULIE M,
BUCKLEY,MARY E,
BUECHLER,ANNE L,
BURKE,KIMBERLY A,
BURNISKE,BRENDA M,
BURNISKE,MARY A,
BURT,PAUL J,
BUTLER,JOHN F,JR

CABRANES,JENNIFER A,
CACHO NEGRETE,CARL G,
CAILLE,LAURA J,
CALLAHAN,BRIAN J,
CALLAHAN,TAMARA L,
CAMPBELL,WILLIAM S,
CAMP,LAWTON M,
CAMPAGNA,LARA K,
CAMPBELL,HEATHER P,
CAMPBELL,HUGH W,
CANLI,MELISA L,
CANNON,BRIDGET L,
CANTOREGGI,REBECCA A,
CARLAN,GLENN S,
CARLSTROM,ANDREW P,
CARON,MARK D,
CARP,JONAH,
CARTWRIGHT-KIMBALL O,
CHEN,JUANITA H,
CHENARD,SHEILA L,
CHILOS,MARGARET M,
CHITOURAS,ALEXSANDRA J,
CHOPODRIAN,DONNA C,
CHUA,WEE LENG J,
CHUPKA,DANIEL A,
CIULLA,JAIMIE L,
CLEAVES,SAMUEL D,
COBB,PAUL M,
COBURN,JEANNE M,
COHEN,ELIZABETH A,
COHEN,ROBERT L,
COLBERT,PETER D,
COLEMAN,THOMAS A,
COLLINS,ERIK A,
COLMAN,WILLIAM O,
COLON,FRANCISCA A,
COMPANION,MICHELE L,
CONLEY,LINDA M,
CONRAD,JENNIFER L,
COSTELLO,THOMAS M,
COWEN,JODI B,
COYLE,SUSANNE M,
CRAWLEY,ERIN P,
CROFTS,WENDY A,
CROMWELL,MICHAEL S,
CURLEY,MARY E,
CURRIER,CHRISTOPHER J,
CUSSON,DONNA M,
CUTRONE,JOSEPH P,
DAGGETT,BETH A,
DALSASS,ELIZABETH M,
DALTON,LINDA J,
DAMATO,SUSAN K,
DANSKY,JOE O,
DAVIS,STEPHANIE J,
DELCONTE,CHRISTOPHER S,
DELKEN,MEALS ERIK,
DEMARTINO,NICOLE M,
DEMELLO,LORI A,
DENNIS,JANEANNE M,
DEVLIN,LEEANN,
DIAMOND,PAMELA J,
DIEPHUIS,LARISA R,
DINOZZI,ROBERT R,
DWOCHOWSKI,LAURA E,
DOERING,STEFANIE A,
DOYLE,THERESA M,
DRISCOLL,BRIDGET A,
DUBIN,RANDI J,
DUCA,MARISA C,
DUDEY,SUSAN L,
DUNN,KIMBERLY L,
DUQUETTE,MARK T,
DUSSAULT,JANET M,

EASTMAN,AMBER L,
EBY,RICHARD W,
EDMONDS,ADRIANE E,
ELLIOTT,MARK W,
ENGEL,ERIC P,
EPSTEIN,PAMELA E,
ERICKSON,ERIC S,
ERRICO,LAURA J,
ERSKINE,HEATHER L,
ESSEX,EDEN,A
ESTES,KEITH D,
FAIRLEY,CAROLYNN D,
FANTARONI,JENNIFER M,
FARMAN,ROBERT A,
FEDERMAN,TONI L,
FEINBLOOM,DAVID B,
FERNANDES,PAULA N,
FERRARI,JOHN L,
FIELD,LAURIE A,
FISCH,JORDAN A,
FLAMER,TRACEY L,
FLEMING,MATTHEW J,
FLYNN,DIANE M,
FOLEY,JOSHUA D,
FONG,MYRNA C,
FORBES,TERESA A,
FORMAN,BETSY D,
FOTINOS,ELIZABETH X,
FRABETTI,ALTON C,
FRASCA,SUSAN E,
FRAWLEY,REBECCA E,
GAGNON,MICHELLE R,
GALE,MARLA O,
GALLAGHER,DAVID F,
GALLI,CHRISTOPHER P,
GALLIGAN,SHARON M,
GARAVANIAN,GREGORY J,
GARRITY,ANNE T,
GAUTHIER,TAMMI A,
GEARHART,SUSANNAH W,
GEISER,CHERYL L,
GENTILI,GINA M,
GERMAIN,PAUL M,
GERVAIS,STEPHANIE E,
GIBEAU,MARK L,
GIBSON,KAREN L,
GILBERT,VIKKI L,
GILL,THOMAS J,JR
GILLEN,AMY B,
GILMAN,JENNIFER C,
GINGRAS,MARYANN,
GOLDBERG,NAOMI B,
GOLDVNER,DAVID M,
GONSALVES,JOANNA,
GOODMAN,BRAD D,
GORMAN,WILLIAM T,
GRAB,MICHELLE L,
GRAHAM,CHRISTINE A,
GRANT,ANDREW F,
GRESENS,PAUL C,
GRISHAM,MARY L,
GROTZ,MARIA K,
GURDLA,MICHELLE M,
GUERRA,MARGARITA M,
GUIDARA,GAIL M,
GWATKIN,KRISTEN H,
HALEY,CHRISTINE M,
HAMMOND,JENNIFER J,
HAMPTON,ELIZABETH M,
HANDELMAN,ROBERT T,
HARDENBERGH,CHRISTOPHER P,
HARDISON,AGONA M,
HARMON,LORRAINE E,
HARRIS,TODD C,

HART,ALICIA M,
HAUTANIEMI,SUSAN I,
HAWKINS,BRENDA M,
HEBERT,BRYAN R,
HEMPSTEAD,MELISSA K,
HENRICKS,COLETTE C,
HERMANCE,PETER B,
HERSCOVITCH,LARA B,
HEWITT,WILLIAM S,JR
HICKS,DIANE C,
HIGGINS,THOMAS M,
HIRSCH,DAWN R,
HOCHMAN,MARNI E,
HOIBERG,LESTER L,
HOPE,SUSAN M,
HORNSTEIN,TAMI L,
HOSLEY,CHERYL A,
HUOGENS,EDWARD D,
HUDSON,JEANNE M,
HUNT,VIRGINIA A,
IOE,JAMES E,
ISELE,KATHERINE A,
ISRAEL,ALISON M,
JABLONSKI,LISA M,
JACKSON,NINA R,
JACOBS,HEIDI A,
JAMES,NOELLE R,
JANIS,MANDY A,
JANOVITZ,WILLIAM A,
JOHNSON,AMY B,
JOHNSON,ANDREW M,
JOHNSON,BRIAN T,
JOHNSON,INGER K,
JOHNSON,KIMBERLY M,
JONES,BRENDA S,
JONES,CLAYTON P,
JORDAN,SCOTT A,
JORGENSEN,MATTHEW J,
KAMIL,SETH I,
KAPLAN,ALLISON E,
KAPLAN,DANIEL A,
KAPLAN,LESLIE A,
KATZ,MATTHEW F,
KAUFMAN,ALAN H,
KEATING,MICHELLE R,
KEEFE,MARY L,
KEELER,KELLY A,
KEITT,GEORGE W,III
KELLOGG,BRIAN J,
KEMPSTER,EDWARD B,
KERMAN,MELISSA B,
KILLEEN,JENNIFER E,
KIMBALL,CHRISTINE A,
KIMBALL,EDWARD K,
KINDERMAN,SPENCER A,
KING,STACEY L,
KIRRANE,PAUL B,
KLABEN,MITCHELL S,
KLEKOTKA,PEGGIE A,
KOBACKER,PETER G,
KOENIG,SUSANNA L,
KOFMAN,JASON T,
KOGUT,MICHELLE M,
KOHN,JUDI C,
KOPLAN,MICHELLE L,
KORALEK,ROBIN O,
KRAODLFER,STEPHEN J,
KRAMER,SCOTT W,
KRAMER,SETH,
KREISINGER,JULIA L,
KRIMO,JENNIFER S,
KROCHAK,CELESTE,
KRUG,MARC S,
KUHN,DAVID L,

KUI,SIUPING,
LAINE,ALIINA M,
LANDAU,SHAWN,
LANGAN,JOHN B,
LANGER,ERIC A,
LARRABEE,PAUL H,
LARRABEE,WENDY A,
LASALLE,AMELIA G,
LASCHER,MARCIE A,
LASKEY,BRENNA G,
LAUZON,BRIAN R,
LEARY,ROBERT F,
LEBLANC,CELESTE J,
LEIPER,JENNIFER A,
LEMONDE,CHERIE A,
LENTZ,GEORGE M,
LEONARD,ETHAN T,
LEVESQUE,LISA R,
LEVINE,AMY L,
LEVY,SUSAN E,
LINDSLEY,THOMAS K,
LIPPER,MATTHEW S,
LOHNES,KIMBERLY J,
LOISELLE,LYNDA L,
LOMBARDI,ANTEOLA,
LONGAN,DIANA J,
LONGO,DEBRA C,
LOSCO,CAROLINE A,
LOUGHLIN,ROBERT F,
LOVEJOY,DAVID W,
LOVETT,GAIL A,
LUCEY,MONICA M,
LUCEY,PATRICIA M,
LUCIDO,ROBERT D,II
LURIA,LYNN K,
LYNCH,KERRY B,
MACDONALD,NATHAN R,
MACE,AMY E,
MACEOD,ANTONIO B,
MACISAAC,BRENDA M,
MACKLOW,MELANIE S,
MACNEILL,JOHN W,
MAGRANE,DIANE E,
MAIO,ANTHONY M,
MAIORE,RACHEL A,
MALCOLM,HEATHER A,
MARAVELIAS,THEODDORE G,
MARCEAU,CARRIE A,
MARCOSA,STACEY L,
MARTENS,WENDY Y,
MAURER,JESSICA L,
MAYA,DAVID,
MCCAULEY,TODD M,
MCCLATCHEY CAROL R,
MCDONNELL,BRIAN P,
MCGARRY,LYNNE A,
MCGIBBON,GLENN A,
MCGINN,KELLY C,
MCGUIRE,KATHLEEN,
MCMANUS,SEAN C,
MCNAMEE,LORETTA M,
MEDEIROS,ELIZABETH M,
MEHAN,SHEILA L,
MEISTER,LYNN K,
MELLEY,JOHN J,
MENARD,LORI L,
MERGEL,TAMARA A,
MERTENS,STEPHEN R,
MEYER,MARICHU,
MEYER,PAIGE A,
MICHAEL,KIMBERLY A,
MICHAEL,PAMELA L,
MICHAUD,ADELLE,
MICHELOTTI,JULYE A,

MICKA,ELLEN M,
MIDDLETON,DOUGLAS A,
MILES,SUSAN D,
MILKO,JOHN E,
MILLER,AMY L,
MILLER,CHARLES M,
MILLER,ELIZABETH L,
MILLER,KAREN J,
MILMAN,ALYSSA A,
MIRAGLIA,MELISSA A,
MITCHELL,ELIZABETH M,
MOLLAHAN,EILEEN M,
MONTAGNA,LISA M,
MONTY,JESSE P,
MOREHOUSE,SCOTT A,
MORELAND,PATRICIA M,
MORGAN,MARIA A,
MORGAN,MELISSA A,
MORGAN,ROBERT T,JR
MOSER,BRIGITTE A,
MOSKOW,KAREN B,
MOYNIHAN,PATRICK J,
MUIR,PAULA L,
MURPHY,CHRISTINE A,
MURPHY,EDWARD C,
MURPHY,GAIL A,
MURPHY,MICHAEL P,
MURPHY,PATRICIA M,
MURPHY,STEVE M,
MUSANTE,AMY L,
MUSSONI,KATHERINE M,
MYKYTIUK,CARLA M,
NARE,EMILY,
NARKEWICZ,DAVID J,
NASON,BARBARA L,
NATALE,FRANCIS J,
NEJAME,ALEXIS A,
NESSEL,DANNY A,
NICHOLS,ELTON J,III
NIERENBERG,KARYN J,
NOBLE,DIANA E,
NORRIS,BROOKE M,
NUMAN,SUZANNE,
NURNEY,PETER J,
NYMAN,AMY L,
NYMAN,NANCY A,
OALDERS,ERIC R,
OCONNELL,PAUL P,JR
OLEARY,ROBERT G,
OLEAR),SEAN P,
OLIVEIRA,DAVID J,
ONEILL,FRANK A,
OTT,JENNIFER A,
OUELLET,JACQUELINE A,
PAGANO,GAIL M,
PALLATRONI,ROBERT M,
PALLOTTA,JOANNE L,
PALMA,JAMES N,
PAPROWICZ,JAYNE E,
PARK,SHARON,
PATTERSON,LISA A,
PAUL,SCOTT A,
PEARLMAN,LISA G,
PEEL,JAMIE L,
PELLIZZARI,CHRISTINE A,
PELTIER,SUZANNE,
PENN,MELISSA S,
PENNACCHIO,RITA,
PERRY,MARC J,
PFEFFERLE,CHRISTOPHER F,
PICARDI,DEBORAH R,
PICCIRILLI,JOHN J,
PIGNATO,JOSEPH M,
PINEO,ALLISON T,

CONTINUED FROM PREVIOUS PAGE

PLAUT,JULIE R,
POTTS,REBECCA L,
POULIN,CELESTE M,
POWERS,BERNADETTE J,
POWERS,SCOTT E,
PRESCOTT,ELIOT D,
PRICE,RICHARD E,
PUNKE,TIMOTHY E,
PUTNAM,STEPHEN J,
QUINN,THERESA E,
QUINONES,ELBA M,
RALPH,JENNIFER C,
RAO,VEENA M,
RAPP,MICHELLE L,
RATAJ,CHRISTIAN JOHN,
REARDON,JAMES J,
REEO,MICHAEL G,
REITH,KIMBERLY A,
RENAUD,ERIC T, RENSENBRINK,ELIZABETH,
RILEY,MARI J,
RILEY,WILLIAM R,
RITCHIE,FIONA M,

ROBERTSON,MOLLY E,
ROCHE,THOMAS W,
ROCKMAN,ADAM L,
RODRIGUES,KRISTEN A,
ROMAN,WILLIAM P,
ROSENTHAL,ALISA M,
ROSS,PAUL E,
ROWELL,JAMES L,
ROY,KATHERINE A,
RUSSELL,SCOTT G,
SACHDEV,PUNEET S,
SALEM,JILL C,
SAUNDERS,SHEILA M,
SCALES,ADAM F,
SCHEIDEMANTEL,DAVID S,
SCHNEIDER,JEFFRY,
SCHNEIDERS,SUSAN L,
SCHULTZ,CHRISTINE A,
SCHWAGER,JULIE I,
SCHWARTZ,DAVID J,
SCOTT,JANET M,
SEGAL,DEBBIE S,
SHEA,LAURA A,

SHEAHAN,KELLY A,
SHEEHY,JAMES P,
SHULMAN,DAVID S, SILVA,MARIA R,
SILVA,TIMOTHY A,
SILVER,RISA L,
SILVERMAN,DEVI D,
SIMILI,LISA J,
SIMOPOULOS,VALERIE,
SKOLE,KATARINA,
SKOLNICK,LISA C,
SLONE,BONNIE L,
SLOVIN,KENNETH T,
SMITH,ABRAHAM E,
SMITH,JULIA E,
SMITH,RICHARD P,
SNOWDEN,JULIE M,
SOBOLEWSKI,ANN M,
SOODS,NADJA S,
SOLOMON,SHARI K,
SPIVAK,CAROLYN S,
ST CLAIR,LAURA E,
STAPEL,SHARON L,

STARWER,THERESA E,
STEINBERG,BRETT A,
STEINER,RACHEL L,
STEVENS,SUZI,
STEVENSON,CHRISTINE M,
STEWART,JOHN A,
STOLLER,BETH A,
STUBBAR*,KELLY A,
SULLIVAN,NOREEN A,
SULLIVAN,RAE L,
SUTTON,JENNIFER A,
SWIFT,JANET L,
TATRO,CHRISTOPHER D,
TEMKIN,MICHELLE A,
TESNEY,AIMEE S,
THELEN,LUKE A,
THOMAS,CHRISTINA L,
THOMAS,DAVID R,
THOMPSON,JOHN C,
THOMPSON,ROBERT S,
TOSCANO,TIMOTHY E,
TOTAS,KENNETH J,
TRABER,MELISSA J,

TRAINOR,TIMOTHY J,
TUCKER,HOLLY E,
TYROL,PATRICIA A,
VALCOURT,VAUGHN G,
VAN VALKENBURG,DOUGLAS R,
VATER,CRAIG J,
VERRETTE,LAURA G,
VICKERY,TERESA L,
VIGEANT,AMY M,
VINING,JOHN M,
VUILLEMENOT,NICOLE A,
WAGNER,CRAIG E,
WAKOLUK,NARDA L,
WALL,JOHN J,
WARDEN,PATRICIA A,
WARREN,AMANDA T,
WARSHOFSKY,ESTA,
WATERMAN,KIMBERLY R,
WEAVER,SCOTT W,
WEBBER,SCOTT M,
WEBSTER,ROBIN B,
WEINSTEIN,DAVINA L,
WEITZMAN,ROCHELLE A,

WELLS,MELANIE J,
WELLS,STACI M,
WELSH,CAROLINE R,
WELSH,TODD S,
WELTER,CYNTHIA A,
WIGGETMAN,ANDREA J,
WILLIAM,NERWIN N,
WILLIAMS,DANIEL C,
WOLPE,MELAINE M,
WOODHOUSE,JANE M,
WYSONG,MAURICE B,
YACHT,ANDREW C,
YORK,KATHLEEN E,
YUSKAITIS,CHRISTOPHER J,
ZAMOTTI,CAROLYN J,
ZELIZER,CRAIG M,
ZIRNHELD,BERNARD P,
ZOWLEFER,JAY R,
ZUCKER,ELEANOR A,
ZUMBUSKI,KATHLEEN A,
ZYCH,ADRIENNE L,
ZYLBERMAN,MIRIAM,

ARTS and SCIENCES - UNDECLARED

AHLQUIST,DAVID A,
ALLAIRE,JOHN J,
ANDERSON,DEBRA E,
ANDERSON,JULIE J,
ANDERSON,LAURIE J,
ANDERSON,NICOLE T,
ANDERSON,ROBERT D,JR
ANDERSON,TRACEY L,
ANDREWS,CHRISTOPHER S,
ANDREWS,MONICA R,
ANTIFONARIO,MARCELLO A,
ARAKELIAN,SUSAN E,
ARWIN,SCOTT R,
BANCROFT,DEBORAH E,
BARATTA,TRACEY L,
BARTH,DAVID W,
BERMAN,MEREDITH L,
BERNEY,WENDY J,
BETAK,PETER J,
BEYER,ALISON C,
BOBIAN,JAMES A,
BOWERS,PAUL A,
BOYER,EDWIN C,
BREWER,CHRISTOPHER L,
BRUNETTE,STEPHEN J,
BUCKLEY,KEVIN P,
BUMBULIS,KURT G,
BURKE,BRIAN J,
BURNHAM,ROBERT S,
BURNS,BONNIE A,
BUSWELL,REBECCA L,
CAFFERTY,JILL M,
CAMPBELL,CRAIG C,
CARDELLO,JENNIFER L,
CAREY,JOLEEN J,
CARINO,CHRISTIAN A,
CARRABINO,LISA,
CARROZZA,JOHN ,
CELENTANO,DIANE,C
CELT,CAROLYN,
CHAMORRO,LAWRENCE M,
CHANDER,VIVEK,
CHAPMAN,JONATHAN H,
CHARVES,MICHAEL J,
CHINIGO,LYNNE M, CHIPMAN,JEREMY,
CHUNG,YING H,

CITRIN,LAURA B,
COHEN,DANIEL M,
COLLAMORE,MATTHEW L,
CONRAD,CARLY M,
CONNEY,CHRISTOPHER C,
COULOMBE,STEPHEN L,
COVENO,JAMES F,JR
DAMOWSKI,KIMBERLY J,
DAMBROSIO,MARY E,
DAVIAU,MELINA M,
DAVIDSON,ROBERT B,
DAVIS,SARAH M,
DAVISON,JENINE L,
DELMANZO,NATHANAEL P,
DELUCA,MARY C,
DESILETS,SEAN J,
DILDINE,SCOTT L,
DIMARCO,WILLIAM J,
DISCHEL,ELISABETH S,
DIVER,EDWARD A,
DODGE,KATHLEEN M,
DONOVAN,CHRISTOPHER P,
DRAKE,DAVID S,
DRUMGOOL,PAULA E,
DUVAL,STEPHEN R,
ELLIS,BETH W,
ELSDEN,GREGORY F,
ENG,DAVID H,
EVANS,JANET J,
FAIRBANKS,HILLARY E,
FALVEY,KERRY L,
FARRAH,CLIFFORD H,
FECKO,SUSAN L,
FEIN,ELIZABETH C,
FERGUSON,GISELLE M,
FIDURKO,WILLIAM J,
FIGLIOLA,CHRIS M,
FISHER,LYANNE,
FORRISTER,TANIA E,
FOSTER,DEREK N,
FRANKEL,LYNN N,
FRATANICO,JILL A,
FRIEDMAN,MARY A,
GARDNER,STUART J,
GARUFI,JOHN C,
GAUTHIER,KEITH R,
GELMAN,JANE R,
GIACHETTI,STEFANO M,

GLICKSTEIN,JOSEPH E,
GOLDMAN,JULIE L,
GOODMAN,KIMBERLY D,
GRANT,HEATHER E,
GRAY,GILLIAN,
GRAYSON,JENNIFER P,
GREENE,JOHN S,
GREENGRASS,MARC D,
GRISSINO,DAVID L,
GUADIZ,CRISANTO N,
HABIB,ALISA B,
HAKKARINEN,ADAM J,
HALL,BRUCE W,II
HADUE,NOFIT,
HARRINGTON,TIMOTHY M,
HART,TRACEY E,
HASTINGS,TALLY L,
HATCH,BARBARA E,
HAUTALA,LORI A,
HAWES,AMY E,
HE,YAILING,
HERMAN,LISA C,
HOBBS,DAVID B,
HOGENAUER,HEATHER J,
HOPKINS,CHRISTINE E,
HOULIHAN,CHRISTINA M,
HOUSER,RICHARD CLETUS,
HURVITZ,STUART J,
IAMPIETRO,JAN M,
INGLEDUE,BRIAN J,
JACOBS,BETH M,
JAY,DAVID,
JOASSAINTE,JEAN A,
JOHNSON,CARRIE M,
JOHNSON,GAYE E,
JOHNSON,LAURIE T,
JOHNSON,NICOLE M,
JONES,CHRISTOPHER B,
KANN,AMY B,
KAMOSKI,MARK F,
KATZ,BRIAN W,
KATZ,SHARON,
KEEZER,MARC M,
KENNEDY,JAMES F,
KENYON,DANA E,
KHOK,SOKHON S,
KING,KANG-YING,
KORMAN,SARI T,

LAFONTAINE,SHERYL A,
LAKE,KELLY A,
LAMONICA,MARIE,
LANE,KELLY B,
LARRABEE,RICHARD J,
LEECH,SUSAN G,
LEVINE,ERIC B,
LEVINE,MOLLIEGE R,
LEVITT,ALEXIS F,
LICHTMAN

CONTINUED FROM PREVIOUS PAGE

LARSON,KRISTINA B.
LAWRENCE,DAVID P.
LE,NGUYET
LEET,ROBERT T.
LEVINE,DAVID S.
LIDSKY,DAVID B.
LIU,PAO LIN
MA,MINGTEH
MACDONALD,MICHAEL J.
MACKAY,ADAM L.
MACLEAN,MARK D.
MAHONEY,JOHN I.
MANNING,SEAN M.
MANZOLINI,KEVIN M.
MARANDO,JOSEPH M.
MARCH,ROBERT J.JR
MARGOLIN,CHAD N.
MARTIN,ELLEN J.
MARTIN,TODD L.
MASSEY,WHITNEY D.
MAYO,THOMAS C.
MCCARTHY,JOHN R.
MCCORDIC,CRAIG H.
MEDWAR,GLENN M.
MEGA,SCOTT T.
MIGLIACCIO,JOHN A.
MIRAGLIA,CAROLINE L.
MIRMAN,ILYA B.
MITCHELL,ALEXANDER I.
MONETTE,RONALD E.
MONGEON,MICHELLE A.
MOTZER,JOSEPH F.JR
MULERO,RENE
MURPHY,THOMAS J.
NODAL,CARLOS A.
OAK,ANDREW
OUYANG,YI JEN
PARSEE,JANICE M.
PASCETTA,MARC
PEAVEY,JUSTIN S.
PEKCAN,BURAK S.
PERRON,JONATHAN T.
PHAN,THUONG
PIERCE,JOHN M.
PIETRONIRO,ANTHONY J.
POULIN,EDWARD J.
PURINGTON,RAYMOND E.
REED,WILLIAM P.
RICE,STEPHEN H.
RIDDELL,WILLIAM T.
RIEGER,DAVID A.
ROCKWELL,JOHN T.
ROSENBACH,ANDREW D.
ROSS,JOHN T.
ROY,WILFRED F.
RUSH,PAMELA J.
RUSSE,ANTONIO J.
SANCTUARY,JAY E.
SAPPET,VICTORIA A.
SCANLON,PAULA.
SCHWARTZ,SCOTT O.
SCRANTON,ERIC D.
SELIVERSTOV,DIMA.
SENK,ROBERT B.
SETLUR,SUDEEP R.
SHAW,TRACY L.
SHORT,TODD M.
SHUMWAY,PETER B.JR
SILVERSTEIN,ROBERT S.
SIMMONS,STEPHANIE.
SIMO,JOHN A.
SMALL,DAVID S.
SOCOLIK,MICHAEL M.
SOSZYNSKI,STEPHEN J.
SOUTHWICK,LISA.
SPIEWAK,BRIAN E.
STEINER,MICHAEL L.
STEUL,DONALD R.
STEVENS,MARK G.
SULLIVAN,NEAL P.
SULLIVAN,ROGER A.
TAM,VITUS C.
TAN,HOCK MENG.
TAURASI,PAUL M.
THOMAS,JENNIFER E.
TOUCHETTE,ANDREW R.
TSO,HILLWING.
VEITCH,GREGORY D.
VESTERGAARD,LARS H.
WALDMAN,PAMELA J.
WALKER,MICHAEL P.
WALSH,JAMES A.
WALSH,JOHN P.
WALTON,RICHARD J.
WASSON,MARK C.
WAZLOWSKI,MICHAEL E.
WEBB,GARY.
WEBER,MICHELLE L.
WEIGAND,CHRISTINE E.
WEISS,SCOTT J.
WELLS,DAVID S.
WHEELER,ROBERT C.
WHEELER,TRACY J.
WHITE,JONATHAN A.
WIESEN,BENJAMIN J.
WILSON,ROBERT W.
WINIARSKI,PETER D.
WINTER,DAVID A.
WOLSTENHOLME,JAMES W.
WOOD,ROBERT J.
WRIGHT,SALLY D.
WYNER,EVAN L.
YANG,FRANK C.
YOUNG,SHARON A.
ZIMMER,MARILYN A.

FOOD and NATURAL RESOURCES (including Stockbridge with 3.25)

ALLEMAN,JOYCE E.
ALLEN,JULIE M.
AMARAL,PATRICIA J.
AMOAH,YAA O.
AMPIAW,STELLA A.
ANASTASIA,PHILIP P.
AQUILINA,DREW.
ARNESON,STEPHEN J.
ARNOLD,LINDA L.
AYER,SUSAN.
BABCOCK,CHRISTINE M.
BABCOCK,TRACY A.
BARNARD,DEBRA L.
BARTOLOMI,JOHN A.
BATOR,JUDITH A.
BAUM,ROBERT S.
BAUMANN,RAD,FRANCIS.
BECKER,CARA J.
BEDENKOP,CHRISTOPHER W.
BEERBOWER,JEANNE M.
BELFORTI,JACQUELINE.
BERRY,JUDITH M.
BLAIR,CAROLYN A.
BOURGAULT,JOHN P.
BOWERS,ANN E.
BRANAGAN,PATRICIA A.
BRAUN,MARDI.
BRAY,RANDOLPH C.
BREDVIK,BRIAN K.
BRIEN,ROSEANN M.
BROCKETT,DANIEL L.
BROMLEY,TRACY V.
BRONSTEIN,DEBRA L.
BROPHY,PEGGY L.
BROWN,CHERYL V.
BROWN,LESLIE A.
BROWN,WILLARD L.
BRUNELLE,JEAN A.
BURRELL,JOYCE A.
BUSH,KAREN D.
CAJOLET,DAVID A.
CAMPBELL,MELANIE S.
CANTY,ANDREA M.
CARLSEN,JO.
CARNEVALE,MARCI A.
CARRIERE,MICHELE A.
CASSELMAN,AMY L.
CASTONGUAY,MELISSA M.
CHAIKEN,JULIE B.
CHAN,EUGENE M.
CHEVRETTE,SHARON M.
CHOUINARD,WAYNE A.
CIMAN,SUZANNE R.
CIVETTI,JOSEPH M.
CLANCY,MICHAEL P.
CLARK,ALEXANDER.
CLARK,JEFFREY S.
CLARK,THOMAS E.
COLE,ERIC A.
CONWAY,TERESA A.
CORBIN,CHRISTOPHER J.
CORTES,PEDRO A.
COUCCI,THOMAS J.
CRUPI,MICHAEL G.
CURLEY,LAUREN A.
DEROSA,MICHAEL,III
DESIMONE,JAMES N.
DOMOLKY,ERIN A.
DONNDELINGER,MARIANNE.
DOWNS,CHRISTOPHER C.
DRISCOLL,TARA M.
DUMONT,JOEL E.
DUNN,LISA J.
DWYER,DEBORAH A.
DYAL,LEIGH A.
EDINGTON,DIANE C.
EFRON,MARK G.
FASCIANO,CLAUDIA J.
FAUBERT,RENEE M.
FERNANDEZ,SHAWN M.
FLAHERTY,MAYA G.
FORD,KIMBERLY K.
FORS,WILLIAM C.
FRAGALA,ANGELA C.
FRONTIERO,SALVATORE J.
GAMELIN,JOHN P.
GESCHKE,USCHI B.
GILBERT,BRIAN M.
GILMAN,ELSIE K.
GITS,MOLLY C.
GOLDBERG,LEON S.
GOLLER,JEFFREY L.
GOODMAN,ALISON T.
GOTTESMAN,JILL D.
GRACE,KELLEY.
GREEN,TERRI A.
GREENBLATT,MARCIA S.
GREENE,DONALD F.
GRIFFIN,DAVID C.
GRISH,A,DAWN A.
GWILLIAM,DEBORAH A.
HAGGERTY,DONALD C.
HALL,MATTHEW R.
HALSTEAD,LACEY E.
HAMILTON,SANDY J.
HAMLIN,SUZANNE M.
HARPER,DANIEL C.
HARPIN,SUSAN G.
HARTAZ,EDWIN Z.
HARWICH,JENNIFER A.
HAVILAND,PATRICIA C.
HAYES,WILLIAM N.JR
HELIE,NORMAND J.
HERSH,MARC L.
HICKEY,GLORIA A
HILL,JANE L.
HILL,SCOTT A.
HIRSCH,HILARY J.
HO,CHRISTINE.
HOLMES,DONALD V.
HOPKINS,CYNTHIA M.
HOPKINS,MEGHAN A.
HU,FLORENCE.
HUNECK,PAUL C.
HYDE,DUANE R.
IANNETTI,GINA M.
IDE,JENNIFER L.
ISLES,GREGORY F.
JARVIS,CAROL L.
JASKOVIAK,KIRK R.
JEKANOWSKI,MARK D.
JEROME,CATHERINE A.
JOHNSON,STEPHEN B.
JONKER,SANDRA A.
JOYCE,MICHAEL L.
KEEVAN,BRIAN J.
KING,KENNETH M.
KOSBERG,JOEL D.
KREISINGER,BRYAN D.
KRIKORIAN,LISA M.
KRUCHER,JENNIFER H.
KULAGA,KAREN A.
KUSTMAN,TRACY A.
LABRIE,JOHN ARTHUR.
LACROIX,HELGA.
LALIBERTY,SHEILA K.
LAMACHIA,THOMAS E.
LAMPSON,BARBARA J.
LAPOINTE,CHRISTINE.
LAPOINTE,NORMA C.
LARSON,SANDRA F.
LASKA,WILLIAM J.
LEE,SHANNON K.
LESTER,KATHRYN R.
LEVOVSKY,RISA A.
LEVY,MICHELLE T.
LEWANDOWSKI,WILLIAM J.
LIEBERMAN,JUDITH A.
LILLEY,VANESSA M.
LINDER,MADMI E.
LOCKE,ELIZABETH L.
LOPEZ,ANA D.
MACPHEE,JONATHAN S.
MAGES,DANIEL R.
MARGOLIS,JENNIFER L.
MARKOWITZ,BETH R.
MAROTTA,JOANNE U.
MARTEL,SHARON A.
MASHAYEKHI,MARYAM.
MAXGEY,KRISTINE E.
MAYZER,MICHELE A.
MCAFEE,STEPHEN J.
MCCABE,KATHRYN L.
MCCAFFREY,JUDITH S.
MCCARTHY,NEIL W.
MCKAY,AMY K.
MCKNIGHT,THOMAS S.
MCLEAN,DAVID R.
MCNAMARA,KELLIE A.
MCQUAID,ROBERTA F.
MEEHAN,RICHARD S.
MEEHAN,TRACY A.
MELCHER,CYNTHIA P.
MELFA,MARIA E.
MELIDEO,JEAN M.
MERRILL,MELINDA SUE.
MEZZETTI,SANTINA F.
MICHAL,THOMAS J.
MILLER,ANNA P.
MILLER,CHRISTOPHER J.
MINER,MEREDITH A.
MORAN,DAVID J.
MORRISON,LISA B.
MORYL,TODD A.
MORYTKO,ANDREA.
MOSS,CHARLES W.
MULLANE,TROY A.
MURPHY,KAREN A.
MURPHY,ROSEMARY A.
NALEWAK,LISA J.
NEMETZ,DEBORAH L.
NERI,MICHAEL S.
NEWMARK,MICHAEL K.
NOODIN,JAMES A.
NORDSTROM,JAMES A.
NOSEK,HOWARD R.
NOWISZEWSKI,KAREN J.
OLIVERI,JON M.
OMALLEY,BRIAN E.
OROZCO,ALAN E.
ORSILLO,SANDRA J.
OVERBECK,KRISTEN M.
PAGE,MARY E.
PAQUETTE,MICHAEL R.
PAQUIN,LEWIS E.III
PARASILITI,RICHARD C.JR
PAUL,BRICE C.
PEARLSTEIN,SUSAN K.
PEASE,DONALD R.
PELL,WENDY S.
PERALTA,JULIE A.
PETERS,WENDY M.
PFEFFER,SUSAN L.
PIAZZA,SUZETTE M.
PICKERING,MARY B.
PUCCI,LYNN M.
PUCILLO,SANDRA J.
PUFFER,ELIZABETH L.
RABINOWITZ,WENDY D.
RADZIK,STEVEN J.
RANDO,SUSAN F.
RANISZEWSKI,KIM A.
RANKIN,LAURA M.
REMISZEWSKI,JANE V.
RICHARDSON,PAMELA J.
RIVERS,BRUCE A.
ROOT,BRADLEY S.
ROSENBAUM,ALAN J.
ROSENBAUM,JOSHUA L.
RUMIANO,RITA R.
RUSEK,MICHALENE A.
RUSSO,PAULA S.
RUUD,TORKEL.
SAIA,ROSEMARIE I.
SANTAMARIA,LEIGH ANNE.
SAROUKHANIANS,SUZI.
SATZ,JONATHAN E.
SAVAGE,NANCY M.
SAVICKIS,J JUSTIN.
SAWICKE,CHERYL L.
SAWIN,RANDY C.
SCHAEFER,ERIN A.
SCHAUBER,ERIC M.
SCHICK,BRANDON R.
SCHIFFMAN,EDWARD R.
SCHILLER,KYLE P.
SCHLERNITZAUER,BRUCE P.
SCHUSTER,RANDI L.
SCHWAB,MELISSA V.
SCHWARTZ,LINDA M.
SECCARECCIA,VINCENT J.III
SEDA TORO,ERICK E.
SELIGMAN,BRANDT E.
SMAIN,JULIE C.
SMANAHAN,JULIANN M.
SHARON,GAIL L.
SHELDON,SARAH J.
SIABA,LAURA J.
SIEGFELD,MICHELE B.
SIGURDSSON,FINNUR.
SIMPSON,CAROL D.
SMACK,JAMES W.
SWIAROWSKI,KATHLEEN M.
SMITH,CHRISTOPHER,P
SMITH,DENISE L.
SMITH,LAURIE M.
SMITH,STEVEN A.
SNELL,KATHLEEN M.
SOJKA,ANIA M.
SOLOD,AMY L.
SOLOMON,DENA L.
SOUSA,JOSE M.
SPALLUZZI,LINDA J.
SPELLETICH,TIMOTHY J.
STALLMAN,KRISTEN C.
STRAND,TIMOTHY J.
STROMBERG,ALISON.
SUCHOWIECKI,MARY.
SULLIVAN,MICHAEL S.
SUTHERLAND,KAREN J.
SUTTER,CHRISTINE L.
SWAYGER,TIMOTHY M.
TAUBMAN,A.
THAYER,JANICE A.
THOMAS,DAVID C.
THOMTON,KAREN B.
TOBINS,JAMIE B.
TOOLAS,PETER G.
TRAHAN,KIMBERLEE J.
TRIANA,JOHN A.
TURNER,MICHAEL J.
VARDY,KRISTEN.
VERROCHI,LYNNE M.
WACHA,RACHAEL K.
WALKER,LYNN F.
WALLACH,ALLISON R.
WALSH,LISSA E.
WARCHOL,ERIC J.
WARREN,GAY E.
WARSHAW,DAVID B.
WASSERMAN,JILL R.
WEILL,GREGORY S.
WELCH,PATRICIA M.
WETSTEIN,STACEY J.
WILLIAMS,CAROL A.
WILLIAMS,NANCY A.
WOLKENSTEIN,JANET L.
WOLTER,KURT W.
WONG,KIM MO.
WONG,NATALIE K.
YACKER,SUSAN M.
ZABEK,LINDA M.

HEALTH SCIENCES

AKASTEN,JENNIFER E.
AZIZ,MARY A.
BRYAN,PATRICIA A.
BUCKLEY,PETER J.
CARROLL,THERESA.
CLEARY,SEAN J.
COATES,KRISTINA L.
COHEN,STEPHANIE C.
COLEMAN,TRACEY L.
CORRIVEAU,KIMBERLY A.
COTE,HEATHER A.
DAGGETT,SHEILA M.
DOYLE,ROBERT E.
FALLON,ANNEMARIE.
FINE,LESLEY A.
FREEDMAN,LISA G.
GRAVES,ANDREW E.
GUARINO,CARYN E.
HANDELMAN,
HEWETT,PAMELA J.
HOLLAND,LAURE.
HUBBARD,LISA C.
HUEBSCH,MICHELLE M.
JASPAN,SONDRA B.
JONES,JENNIFER B.
LAVALLEE,LAURA A.
LORANTOS,LINDA J.
LORUSSO,MARCUS A.
MARCUS,WENDY B.
MAXIM,AMANDA L.
MELLEN,KATHLEEN A.
MUSE,DEBRA L.
PFTERS,MELISSA.
PETERSON,KENNETH S.
PRECIOUS,KIMBERLEE J.
PREFONTAINE,DEBRA L.
QUINN,BERNADETTE.
REICH,MELISSA J.
RIVERS,NANCY E.
RODRIGUEZ,FRANCES M.
RUBINSTEIN,SHARON A.
SANTOS,KATHLEEN A.
SCHWARTZ,LEIGH A.
SEOO,NATALIA C.
SELOVER,ELIZABETH B.
SHEA,KELLY J.
SKERRITT,HELEN L.
SOMERS,MICHELE L.
SOREL,LAURIE A.
SOUTHWORTH,ELIZABETH M.
SOUZA PAMELA E.
STOUT,PATRICIA A.
STRIEMPKO,FRANCES M.
TAMKE,LORI J.
WALLER,MELISSA B.
WATROBA,LISA M.
WHITEHOUSE,MARCIA R.
WISENBURN,BRUCE A.
YARWORTH,GERI J.
ZIMMERMAN,BARRIE L.

MANAGEMENT

ABBATE,MICHAEL A.
AKEY,SUZANNE M.
ALDRICH,AMY B.
ALVARNAZ,THERESA L.
AMMONDE,CAROLE A.
ARCHAMBAULT,DAWN M.
ARMSTRONG,TRACY A.
ARNESEN,ARNE OL.
ARTURI,STEPHANIE.
ASHMAN,ANDREW M.
BABIARZ,JOAN E.
BAGLEY,CAROLYN E.
BAGLEY,DAVID E.
BANNISTER,MICHELE R.
BARZ,ROYCE N.
BATOT,ELODIE O.
BAUMAN,GARY S.
BAUSE,CRAIG J.
BELLEMORE,CHERYL A.
BENA,THOMAS J.
BERGER,RACHEL.
BERGER,ROBIN M.
BERMAN,MICHAEL J.
BEUSCHEL,NANCY C.
BIBEAU,KRISTIN A.
BICOCCHI,SABRINA K.
BILFIELD,SAMANTHA H.
BODTKER,ANETTE S.
BOLDE,MICHELLE R.
BOULAY,AIMEE B.
BOYNE,KELLY A.
BRITT,SANDRA B.
BRODY,SCOTT D.
BROWN,JENNIFER T.
BROWN,SARAH L.
BRUSH,RICHARD R.
BUCK,JUDITH A.
BUCKLEY,SUSAN M.
BURKE,EDWARD F.
BURNETT,SHEP N.
BURNHAM,DEBORAH.
BUSTARD,JENNIFER A.
CABRERA,HECTOR J.
CADIEUX,WILLIAM E JR.
CADY,ERIC B.
CAMPBELL,PATRICIA L.
CANDELLA,AARON.
CAROILLO,CLAUDINE A.
CARLL,LAURIE S.
CARMODY,MARIANN.
CARROLL,PATRICIA A.
CASEY,THOMAS F.
CASTRUCCI,KAREN M.
CATAPANO,MARYBETH D.
CERRUTI,TODD R.
CHAGNON,MAUREEN A.
CHAMBERLIN,TODD C.
CHAMBERS,STACY L.
CHAMORRO,JUAN PABLO.
CHEIFETZ,JORDAN E.
CHENG,LYNN.
CHERNEY,ALISA J.
CHEUNG,WILSON W.
CHIKKALINGAIAH,RATHNA.
CHOKSI,MANISHA J.
CIAPPENELLI,ROBERT D.
COHEN,ALLISON W.
COHEN,ERIC S.
COHEN,RHONDA B.
COLE,JASON M.
COLE,KENNETH M.
COLLINS,MICHELLE M.
CONDON,CAROLYN M.
CONNOR,LAYNE C.
CONNOR,LEIGH A.
CONSTANTINIDIS,THEOPHILOS C.
CONWAY,FRANCIS O.
COOPER,DAVID M.
CORCORAN,TARA S.
CORMIER,JEFFREY R.
CORRIGAN,JEANNE M.
COULTER,JEFFREY A.
COURTNEY,CHRISTINE A.
CUNHA,RAYMOND F.
CURRIER,SARAH A.
DANIELSON,THOMAS J.
DAVINI,MARY S.
DAVIS,JAYNE M.
DAVOREN,SHEILA M.
DECESARE,JOAN L.
DEMELLO,JOHN L.
DERSHOWITZ,SUSAN G.
DILORENZO,DAVID L.
DIOTTE,DONNA M.
DIPIETRO,PATRICK C.
DOBKIN,LEIGH B.
DOBOSZ,MELISSA L.
DONNELLAN,MICHAEL F.
DONNELLY,CAROLYN.
DONNELLY,SUSAN C.
DONOVAN,ANDREW C.
DOUGHERTY,KEITH E.
DUQUETTE,DALE M.
DUQUETTE,MARIE L.
DURANT,ROBERT J.JR
DURFEE,SCOTT J.
DUSKIN,JONATHAN D.
EAGLE,MARY W.
ECKSTEIN,MARY P.
EDWARDS,MARY L.
EGAN,JAMES J.
ELLIOTT,LEANNE.
ELLIOTT,RICHARD L.
ELLIS,JAMES E.
EPSTEIN,ANDREW S.
EPSTEIN,ELAYNE S.
FANTE,KAREN L.
FARRAND,MICHAEL R.
FARRELL,MICHAEL C.
FARRIS,STACY E.
FERDELLA,BETH A.
FERNANDES,ELIZABETH S.
FINE,ALISSA B.
FISHCO,WENDY B.
FISHER,JAMES F.JR
FISKE,SUSAN G.
FLEMING,JOHN J.
FLETCHER,SARAH O.
FLUMERFELT,SUSAN J.
FORNAN,MARNI H.
FRANCOEUR,CHRISTINE M.
FRANK,PATRICIA L.
FRUHBEIS,TODD M.
FULLAM,LINWOOD F.III
FULLER,DANIEL F.
GAINSBORO,CRAIG A.
GALLMEYER,HEIDI B.
GARDNER,ROBERT A.
GARFINKLE,LEE R.
GARIEPY,MICHELLE A.
GEHRING,PAUL G.
GELLY,PAUL M.
GEPA,MIKHEL.
GESING,WENDY D.
GHANTOUS,SUSAN A.
GHISLANI,CAROLINE E.
GINGRAS,LISA M.
GINZBURG,SAMUEL J.
GIRASELLA,GAIL M.
GITTINS,REBECCA A.
GODFREY,ELIZABETH.
GOLDBERG,STACI B.
GOLDING,SUSAN R.
GORDON,EILEEN A.
GOUVALARIS,GEOFFREY J.
GOW,DAVID M.
GRAY,LISA M.
GREENBERG,JAMES N.
GUERTIN,DOROTHY A.
GUNTHER,NANCY F.
GURWITZ,DEBORAH R.
HABEL,DANIEL R.
HAINES,FREDERICK E.
HAKAMI,HOOMAN.
HALL,JOHN D.
HANNON,SHERRI L.
HARKINS,WILLIAM H.
HARRINGTON,JOHN D.
HARRINGTON,THOMAS J.
HARRIS,STEVEN N.
HARUTUNIAN,JOHN C.
HAWKINS,JOANNE M.
HAYS,ABNET C.
HECKMAN,JOHN S.
HERSHENSON,KEITH S.
HETFIELD,LEE M.
HEWITT,JO ANNE M.
HINDIN,BARBRA J.
HIRSCH,MICHAEL S.
HOFFWEISTER,MITCHELL C.
HOPPE,LYNN C.
HOSANG,GARY W.
HUBAN,SEAN M.
IDOL,SCOTT W.
JACKIVICZ,THOMAS P.
JACOBSON,BERNA A.
JAFFE,MICHAEL B.
JARDIN,TAMARA M.
JASMIN,THERESA A.
JILLSON,DENNIS S.
JOHNSON,CHRISTOPHER D.
JOSEPH,GEORGE N.
JURMAN,SONJA U.
KAPLAN,ERIC.
KARABELAS,JOHN K.
KATZMAN,TODD A.
KELLEHER,CATHERINE J.
KELLER,JULIE M.
KELTZ,CHRISTINE M.
KENNAN,JEFFREY P.
KERZNER,ANNE L.
KING,JEFF D.
KIRSCHENBAUM,BONNIE A.
KJOSS,PETER C.
KLANE,SCOTT A.
KLEIN,CYNTHIA L.
KLEIN,ELYSA M.
KLEIN,JEFFREY I.
KLEIN,STEFANIE C.
KNIGHT,DOUGLAS K.
KOENIG,DAVID S.
KORZA,EDWARD P.III
KRASSLER,MARIE T.
KREIGER,KATHRYN E.
KRELL,STACI R.
KRUEGER,DAVID S.
KUMINS,MARI B.
KURLEJ,PATRICK J.
KUZA,KATHY A.
LANNAN,KATHLEEN E.
LAPORTE,TODD C.
LARRADE,DAWN M.
LARAMEE,KEITH A.
LAVOIE,PATRICK J.
LEACH,GLENN E.
LEFEVER,SHARON L.
LEONARD,JILL M.
LEONG,LISA J.
LESLIE,DAVID S.
LEVIN,MEREDITH S.
LEVINE,LEONARD M.
LIM,VIBORA.
LIN,NANCY HUE SIN.
LINDELL,NORMA E.
LIPSON,REBECCA.
LITMAN,DAVID A.
LONGPRE,TRACIE M.
LOS,JACK G.
LOTHE,ANNETT B.
LUCAS,BRIAN R.
MACBAIN,SARAH E.
MACDONALD,JOSEPH C.
MADISON,GREGORY P.
MAOSEN,SHARI L.
MAGUIRE,MARY A.
MAHAN,LISA A.
MAHENORU,SUNDEEP.
MANDELL,ELLEN S.
MANNING,LINDA A.
MANZELLI,STEPHEN.
MARA,JOSEPH D.
MARQUEZ,DEBRA A.
MATHEWS,RICHARD H.JR
MCAULAY,JENNIFER A.
MCAULEY,DANIEL G. JR.
MCDONALD,JOHN E.
MCENROE,CHRISTINE M.
MCGOVERN,KATHLEEN M.
MCLARY,S CHRISTINE.
MCMAHON,THOMAS D.
MCNAMEE,KELLY A.
MEDEIROS,LAWRENCE S.
MEGAN,JOSEPH F.
MEISNER,MATTHEW Q.
MELICAN,PAUL J.
MIDURA,JOHN E.
MILASZEWSKI,CARYN E.
MILLER,KEVIN D.
MILLER,KRISTIN M.
MOLONGOSKI,DEBRA L.
MONCARZ,CINDY E.
MONETTE,CHERYL D.
MOORE,BRIAN.
MORENO,MARIPAZ A.
MORRISON,MARIFRANCES.
MORTIMER,DENISE L.

CONTINUED FROM PREVIOUS PAGE

MOSS,DEREK C.
MULBARGER,OEANNA L.
MULLIGAN,JOSEPH A.
MULREY,LISA M.
MUNROE,DANIEL J.
MURPHY,BRIAN J.
MURPHY,JILL C.
MURPHY,PAUL J.
MYERROW,DEAN A.
NEUSNER,BARRY E.
NEWTON,DANIEL S.
NG,BIKKAY B.
NGUYEN,QUY M.
NOLLER,TAMMY S.
NORTON,PATRICIA A.
OCONNELL,CRAIG F.
OLEARY,JANINE K.
OLSEN,CAROLYN A.
ONEIL,SUSAN M.
ORENTLICH,MICHAEL S.
ORTOLANO,STEPHEN.
OSTROFSKY,KAREN.
OSTROWSKI,CYNTHIA M.
OZZOLEK,DIANE M.
PAINE,MATTHEW S.
PAQUETTE,COULETTE R.
PARABICOLI,MARK V.
PASCHALIDOU,CHRYSTALA J.
PENFIELD,JOANNE E.
PEREIRA,ALVARO E.
PERKEL,MERYL.
PERULLO,SUSAN C.
PIGEON,CAROLYN J.
PINNEY,MICHELLE A.
PIPER,CHRISTOPHER J.
PIRONE,JOHN M.
PISCITELLO,MICHAEL C.
PLATT,IAN J.
POPE,THOMAS A.
PRAJZNER,CHRISTOPHER E.
PRATSON,KELLY A.
PRATT,GREGORY S.
PRIMER,JULIET L.
PTAK,BETH A.
RABB,STEVEN S.
RADEY,MICHELLE M.
RAFKIN,SCOTT P.
RANKIN,JONATHAN A.
REBOULET,JULIE M.
REEF,SAMUEL P.
REICHERT,JOHN T.
REYNOLDS,CHRISTOPHER L.
REYNOLDS,JOHN F.
RITACCO,JOHN A.JR
RITTER,KRISTIN.
ROBERTS,KENNETH M.
ROCHE,JOSEPH A.
ROCK,PETER R.
RODENHIZER,LISA A.
ROMATINER,LISA.
ROSSETTI,STEPHEN M.
ROSSINI,TODD R.
ROTHMAN,PAMELA S.
ROUSSEAU,NORMAND C.
ROY,NANCY A.
RUGGIERO,KENNETH L.
RYAN,JACQUELYN.
SADOSKI,LORI A.
SAMA,FRANK P.
SASUR,MICHELLE L.
SCHLOSS,DAVID J.
SCHREIBER,JUDITH L.
SCHULLER,ERIC.
SCOTT,CYNTHIA S.
SHAUGHNESSY,DEBORAH L.
SHAW,WENDY L.
SHEA,CHERYL A.
SHERF,DAVID E.
SIGLER,ERIC M.
SILVERMAN,SHARON F.
SILVERSTEIN,MELISSA B.
SIMONEAU,MATTHEW J.
SKIBA,THOMAS M.
SNYDER,CAREY T.
SOUZA,RENEE M.
SPORY,KAREN L.
STANNE,JANET E.
STARR,ROBIN L.
STASTNY,SUNNY A.
STEIN,CINDY J.
STEIN,ERINN J.
STEINBERG,HILLARY C.
STOLFA,NANCY L.
SULLIVAN,GERALD F.JR
SULLIVAN,JAMES C.
SWINAND,PAUL F.
SYEO,AMER M.
SZCZYGIEL,AMY B.
TANDLER,JAMES R.
THACKERAY,JEFFREY M.
THERIAULT,ALLAN J.
TOUSIGNANT,JULIE A.
TROMBLY,FRANCINE R.
TUCKER,KAREN J.
TUOSTO,MICHAEL JR
TURETSKY,DARA S.
URQUHART,LORI J.
VALADE,KATHLEEN M.
VASS,CRAIG S.
VAUGHN,JULIE A.
VERGARI,ANDREA C.
VERRE,MARC J.
WALSH,PATRICIA A.
WARREN,MARY E.
WASSERMAN,DAVID A.
WASSO,WARNI K.
WEINBERG,JESSICA.
WEISSEL,MICHAEL E.
WELCH,GREGORY B.
WERB,SHIRA R.
WEST,KIERSTEN P.
WESTRA,PAUL L.
WHITE,DANIEL E.
WHITMAN,KRISTINA M.
WHITTIER,MARK P.
WILKENS,KATHRYN A.
WILKINS,LINDA M.
WILLARD,KAREN E.
WILLIAMS,BENJAMIN J.IV
WINBERG,DAVID R.
WITHEE,CHRISTINE A.
WITHERELL,ROBERT M.
WITKOP,TRISHA A.
KOLANSKY,DANIEL.
WOODFORD,KATHLEEN A.
WOZ,JENNIFER A.
ZAJAC,TARA C.
ZAPPALORTI,DEAN A.
ZAWROTNY,MARC A.
ZETTL,BETHANNE M.
ZIDEL,NOAH M.
ZIEPER,MATTHEW.
ZIRKEL,ROBERT J.JR
ZWERNER,MICHAEL E.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

ALLEN,STEPHANIE J.
BAILLIE,KEVIN C.
BANCROFT,JANE E.
BYRNE,JAMES M.
CAISSE,KRISTEN P.
CARROLL,SEAN F.
CUOZZO,KRISTOPHER J.
DAVIS,MICHAEL L.
FALLON,GREGORY F.
FLANNERY,ROBERT B.
GILBERT,MARTI.
GRAY,JOANNE M.
HARRIS,ROBYN B.
HITTNER,LORI A.
JAMIESON,MARTHA A.
KOWALSKI,KATRINA A.
KATER,APRIL S.
KING,CARL F.
KOBER,KATHLEEN S.
LAURIE,NANCY E.
LYNES,ANDREW.
MAZZULLI,DAVID PAUL.
MILLER,MICHAEL R.
MURPHY,SEAN B.
NOWAK,ANTHONY E.
RELLO,MARIA N.
ROGERS,LISA A.
RUTSCHMANN,KAREN M.
SALTER,THOMAS J.
SANDEL,JESSICA T.
SMITH,CLARK D.
SNYDER,MICHAEL A.
STONE,DONNA R.
WANNER,CHRISTINE T.
WYKER,JAMES D.

BACHELOR'S DEGREE with INDIVIDUAL CONCENTRATION

CIAMPI,THOMAS V.
COLVIN,KELLEY D.
DARROW,ADAM J.
DEMARTINO,ANNEMARIE.
DOBBS,CHRISTOPHER M.
DUGAN BIRD,DEBORAH R.
FRIES,PETER A.
HABER,ELISA.
LAIGNEL,CATHERINE J.
LANG,THOMAS B.
LITTLE,MICHAEL D.
LOWENTHAL,TANIA J.
MILLER,STEFANIE F.
MONACO,JOHN J.
MURPHY,ROBYN L.
NOBEL,CARRIE.
RITCHIE,JANET S.
RITTER,DEBORAH J.
ROBERTS,TRACI A.
TWEEDY,ANN C.
WANG,LIN.

INTERDEPARTMENTAL and OTHERS

DOTSIS,VIVIAN M.
GILMARTIN,THOMAS G.
HOWARD,GREGORY E.
JARMULOWICZ,LINDA D.
KINGSBURY,PAUL R.
MASTROIANNI,MICHAEL P.
MCCAFFERY,STEPHEN J.
RIESS,KRISTIN J.
SIMM,PETER A.
WEINBERG,CHRISTOPHER J.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

ALAVI,MAHASTI.
BROOKS,JUDY N.
BYRT,SEAN P.
CALDERIGI,DEMA R.
CARTY,LISA M.
COGEN,ELLEN B.
CRAIN,SUSAN P.
DONAHOE,LISA A.
FULGHAM,MISCHELLE R.
GAO,CECILE E.
GREENBERG,KIM.
HORNE,JONATHAN M.
KADINOFF,DANIELLE M.
LAWLOR,JEFFREY J.
LOZANI,LADAN.
MAHONEY,JUDY A.
MANION,VICTORIA E.
MARBURY,ROGER B.
MCCANDLESS,HARRY F.
MOSS,KAYA.
MOYNAHAN,ANDREW J.
OBRIEN,STEVEN W.
OH,PAUL J.
PAWLOWSKI,NANCY L.
SCHROEDER,STACEY A.
WATERMAN,CLARE M.

EXCHANGE and HONORS

A'NESS,FRANCINE MARY,
ABBOTT,EMILY.
ANDERSEN,LUCILLE B,
ANDERSSON,HANS,
BARBA,CE,INA,
BECK,JOHN MICHAEL,
BENSON,SCOTT,
BERG,PATRICIA,
BLENKHARN,NEIL,
BRANER,LOUISE,
BRYANT,GEOFFREY C,
CAWILL,EDWARD C,
CAR,ISLE,EMMA,
CHRISTY,JULIE M,
COLLEDGE,DAVID NORMAN,
CORNELIUSSEN,SUSAN A,
DAVIES,MICHAEL J,
DELANGE,GISELLE,
DOMEST,GARRETT J,
DONICH,DESIREE M,
DUGUAY,KELLY E,
ELEFTHERIADIS,MARIA,AMBOS K,
ENGLAND,ANTHONY,
FIERO,GUY M,
FRIIS,KARIN,
FUCHS,SHANNON,
GETOFF,SARAH B,
GILLEY,KRISTIN A,
GOLDSTEIN,BARBARA S,
GORDON,MARINE V,
HAGAN,ANDREA,
HAGERTY,SIOBHAN,
HALLOCK,KEVIN F,
HALPERN,CARLA A,
HARTE,ROSALEEN M,
HILTON,BOYD J,
HILTON,HOLLY C,
HIRAZ,HARUKO,
HIRSCH,ERIC A,
HOLMQUIST,KARA L,
HOLOVIAK,DANIELA A
HUDSON,ALEXANDRA,
IENE,SATSUKI,
JEFFERY,PAUL RICHARD,
KAGAWA,YOSHIKI,
KAHN,AMY,
KANTOR,BETH E,
LEMIEUX,BERNADETTE J,
LITVACK,DINA B,
LIVINGS,SIMON J,
LORDEN,SEAN M,
MAJOR,MARC,
MANGRIOTIS,LEONIDAS,
MANSFIELD,MARY E,
MCHUGH,SUSAN B,
MOCHIZUKI,NAOKO,
MOORE,LAUREN,
MORITA,TAYAKO,
MURPHY,MICHAEL B,
NICHOLS,AMY J,
O'HARA,MARIE THERESA,
PARRY WILLIAMS,ANDREW D,
PICARD,NATHALIE,
PLUMB,HEDDI M,
POWER,ELIZABETH A,
PRICE,WENDY L,
QUIMBY,JOANNE M,
RICHARDSON,SUSAN,
ROY,GENEVIEVE,
RULF,ALYSSA,
SAITO,AYAKO,
SAKAMOTO,TRACY L,
SARENPA,RYAN,
SCHEWE,STELLA,
SJOSTRAND,JOHAN,
SMITH,ELSIE A,
STEINHART,CHRISTINE,
TANITA,LAUREN,
TAYLOR,MARGARET,
TOLLS,TARA,
TOMA,NELWYN N,
TSUZAKI,LEE ANN K,
UMRUM,LAURA K,
WEEKS,JAMIE D,
WILLIAMS,GARY JOHN,
WOO,JOHN M,
YAMAGUCHI,HARUKO,

GRAPHICS

SUPERVISORS AND ASSOCIATES —
Graphics Board is scheduled for Monday at 3 p.m., for this week only.
Attendance is mandatory.
If you have a time conflict, please call Wendy at 545-3500.

Our Biggest! SALE

SATURDAY FEB. 18 - SATURDAY FEB. 25

ONKYO

Boston Acoustics A-40 speakers
Top-rated, best buy $149/pr.
A-150 Speakers $449/pr.*

Free compact discs with any CD player
Onkyo DX-530* compact disc player $299!
This model earns two free discs.
Other models earn even more.

NAD 7020e receiver
Classic high current design $239

SALE

Demo FEB. 20 (WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY)
ALL DEMOS 5% TO 40% OFF. WHILE THEY LAST

ONKYO

KENWOOD

Free Maxell Cassettes
With any Onkyo cassette deck
Onkyo TA-2120 $199 (pictured)
This model earns six free Maxell XLII-90s.
Other models earn even more!

Kenwood KRC-3002* car stereo
KFC-1661 Speakers $249 installed!
(antenna not included)

SALE ends Saturday Feb. 25

Sennheiser HD 450 headphones
Rugged, comfortable, great sound $59/pr.

Pioneer component storage rack $49
NAD 4225 tuner $139
NAD 4225 turntable $149
Dual CS-5000 turntable $129
Onkyo TX-300 receiver $229
Onkyo TI-870 receiver $549
Fried Q3 speakers $259/pr.

A complete list of all sale items including demos, one-of-a-kind, and high-end items, is now available at the store.

No toy swaps, no cash refunds.
*Quantities limited on this model

Sound & Music

Millbank Place • 351 Pleasant • Northampton • 584-9547 • VISA & MasterCard accepted

COLLEGIAN

ATTENTION SOPHOMORE/JUNIOR MARKETING MAJORS

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World.

THE COLLEGIAN is offering the opportunity to gain THE MOST VALUABLE BUSINESS EXPERIENCE on campus

Applications for position of MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER are now being accepted

This position requires Responsibility, Dedication and Time Commitment—the qualities that future employers are looking for.

Come down to the Collegian Business Office in the Campus Center (RM 113 - lower level, 545-3500) and pick up a job application and description and submit it no later than Wednesday, March 1

M/F—EOE

Some things are better the second time around— applying to Medical school isn't one of them!

Did you know that only 1 in 4 students accepted to U.S. Medical schools is a repeat applicant? That's why it's important to make sure your grades and your MCAT scores measure up ON THE FIRST TRY.

How? The BEST way is professional test preparation at the Stanley H. Kaplan Educational Center. We've been giving intensive care to MCAT candidates for over 30 years. We start with a free diagnostic test and a personalized computer evaluation of each student. Then we help you master all five subtests with live classes, homestudy notes, strategy clinics and audio practice labs.

Call us now. Get it right the first time.

KAPLAN
STANLEY H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD.
MCAT REVIEW
Your future is worth it.

THERE'S STILL TIME TO PREPARE!
COMPACT COURSES FORMING NOW.

MCAT BEGINS NOW

358 No. Pleasant Street • 549-5780

ARTS & LIVING

Black Swan Quartet coins unique style with classical/jazz

By BILL ROSENBLATT
Collegian Correspondent

The Black Swan Quartet's excellent performance at Bowker Auditorium on Saturday night demonstrated the validity of combining elements of the jazz and European classical tradition into one new music. The audience responded to their daring experimentation with a prolonged standing ovation.

The idea of combining the two forms is not new. Not counting composers in the European tradition like Gershwin and Stravinsky, who borrowed from jazz, the idea dates back to the so-called "Third Stream" movement in the late 1950s. Third Stream didn't work out because it was a forced marriage: the jazz musicians weren't familiar enough with the classical style and vice versa. But now that jazz has finally found its way into American academia, more musicians have the opportunity to be trained in both idiioms, so a merger is more possible.

Valley Jazz

Of course the challenge this kind of merger poses is not just to see what happens when two very different srtyles are juxtaposed, but to use them equally as bases on which to assert one's musical individuality. The Black Swan Quartet rose to this heady challenge, creating a new music that was all their own.

The quartet consisted of four stringed instruments: violin, two cellos and bass, in contrast to the traditional European string quatet of two violins, viola and cello. This instrumentation provided a mostly dark, sombre mood. Violinist, Akbar Ali, the Quartet's leader, composed most of the tunes; the others were his arrangements of jazz standards. Their ensemble playing included written passages as well as group imrpovisations, all of which were tight and emphatic. Elsewhere, one or more of the musicians would solo while the others accompanied.

Although all played well, cellist Abul Wadud was the most consistent improviser. His solos were confident, daring and full of personality, whether on abstract material or the blues.

Ali and cellist Eileen Folson seemed more interested in experimenting with form than in showing personality. Bassist Reggie Workman's role was mostly to provide firm yet swinging support.

Workman is a living legend of the jazz bass, having played with just about all of the major figures in post-1950 jazz. The others were primarily classically trained; beween them, their credentials include associations with most of the important New York "New Music" artists, classical orchestras, Broadway etc. Ali and Workman also have connections with UMass: the former as an ex-professor, the latter as a student in the annual jazz in July workshop.

The highlight of the evening's program was the finale, Ali's "Libation." During this long piece, one could hear intimations of Beethoven, a phrase from John Coltrane's "A Love Supreme" being tossed around from player to player, and an astounding Reggie Workman bass solo. Another high point was Ali's inventive arrangement of Duke Ellington's "Prelude to a Kiss," in which the musicians explored both the serious and the schmaltzy side of Duke's classic tune. The only disappointment was that, despite the standing ovation, there was no encore.

THE ARTS PAGE IS EMPTY WITHOUT YOU. Come talk to Cosmo or Graeme if you want to write for Arts-113 Campus Center.

Breakdown beats up on Hollywood

By SAAD HOPKINS
Collegian Staff

Women On The Verge Of A Nervous Breakown
Academy of Music Theater

In Pedro Almodovar's Women On The Verge Of A Nervous Breakdown, Pepa (Carmen Maura) is infuriated by the way Ivan (Fernando Guillen) has been literally avoiding contact with her.

In an attempt to do something about this, she cascades around sunny Madrid looking for him. Ivan is important to Pepa, in fact so important that she destroys a couple of telephones, sets her bed on fire nearly torching the place, and without thinking twice, adds an entire bottle of Downers to her daily Gezpatcho. Obviously nothing gets in the way of her wanting to confront him, even though a normal person might think that Ivan is scum, a sly smooth-talking sleaze. Ivan is taking Pepa, and a couple of other women, for a ride because he's the type that would rather have someone break his fingers before he became emotionally comitted to another woman.

Meanwhile, Candella (Maria Barranco) is in need of Pepa's help because one night with the wrong man led her to be a suspect in a Shiite terrorist conspiracy. (Coincidentally, the film contains many political relevancies; The Shiites are planning to bomb a jet-plane headed for Stockholm, The AIDS metophore of sleeping with the wrong man). In a humourous scene, Pepa stops blowing her off to come to her rescue. It is then when we understand how much Ivan means to her, and we have even more of a hard time believing she's being for real. Marissa (Rossy De Palma), a spitting immage of the Dora Maar (the Picasso portrait) storms in the room ordering people around, acting out every spoiled, rich JAP stereotype imaginable. Her presence is sudden and powerfull in a negative way; you can't help but to laugh at her. Her fiancee, Carlos (Antonio Banderas) doesn't bicker with her, he acts as if he's waiting for the right moment to break up with her. He's probably hanging out with her just to make his wealthy mother Lucia (Julietta Serrano) happy. Lucia is also a victim of Ivan's false intentions, and after having spent some years in a mental institution, is out on the prowl for his head.

To be honest, I've never liked war-of-the-sexes flicks. I have a hard time accepting those myopic messages claiming that the woman is a victim of circumstance, or under the thumb of a man's frustrations. Themes like this often continue to enforce the traditional roles of men versus women, giving the audience the impression that they're stupid, and that always leaves me feeling empty. Plus in most cases the humour is bad. But Almodovar's women aren't stupid, they know what they're getting into, and if they don't know, it's not going to take them long to figure out what obstacles lie in their way. Almodovar knows that women can sometimes for the sheer pleasure of chaos, bring difficulties or sour romances upon themselves. They ignore nature's expectations of them, and do what they want to do. It's not going to take Pepa years to figure out that Ivan is good for nothing but sweet-talk, she wants him anyway. Whether or not that's a weakness is up to the viewer.

Women on the Verge of a Nervous Breakdown is a lot of fun. It's like watching Love Boat in spanish with an all female cast who are being forced to act around "that time of the month."

Latest releases by something Sweet, something single and something Dead

By AL KAUFMAN
Collegian Correspondent

For some inexplicable reason there will always be musicians such as Roddy Frame of Aztec Camera and Tommy Keene, who write catchy, well-crafted pop songs that will never make it to Top 40 radio. The name Matthew Sweet, whose new album is called Earth should be added to this list. Once you get used to the fact that this former Golden Palomino has a voice that sounds like Neil Young at age 5, you will begin to appreciate his finely textured melodies.

It seems that Sweet went to the Marshall Crenshaw school of lyric-writing. Like Crenshaw, Sweet's lyrics are simple yet poignant. Every song (except for "The Alcohol Talking") is a love song, either about love being good, bad or love being good but the world being bad.

Simplistic subjects such as these can quickly be turned into drivel by many songwriters. But in the skillful hands of Sweet, this is not the case. The upbeat songs are fun. "Vixen" makes you want to jump into your convertible and cruise around the countryside at 80 mph on a hot summer's day. Other songs, such as the first single, "Vertigo" just make you want to get up and dance.

Even the break-up songs have a great driving beat to them. The harsh, angry "When I feel Again" is well suited to Sweet's whiney voice. And how can you not like a break-up song called "How Cool."

The only songs that do not work are the ballads ("Love and "Having a Bad Dream") that conclude both sides of the album. They are too dreamy and go nowhere. Yet despite these mishaps, Earth is one of the best pop albums on the shelf today.

Another album that is sure to cause a stir at record stores everywhere is Dylan and the Dead. The Grateful Dead are probably the only band that can share the stage equally with rock legend, Bob Dylan. They do not serve simply as a back-up band to him as Tom Petty and the Heartbeakers or the Band did. The Dead are Dylan's equal.

Recorded from their 1987 tour, all seven Dylan songs on the album have a distinctive Dead sound. Jerry Garcia rips off some of his patented guitar solos, especially on "All Along The Watchtower," and Bob Weir plays a steady rhythm guitar. The album drags a bit in the middle with "Queen Jane Approximately" and "Joey," but who really expects a tight show from these survivors of the 60s? All in all, it's great to hear the new life that papa Jerry and company bring to such Dylan classics as "Slow Train" and "I Want You."

In the singles department, it's been almost four years since the release of the brilliant, self-titled debut LP from Fine Young Cannibals. But if the new single, "She Drives Me Crazy" is any indication, the new album, The Raw and the Cooked (to be released Feb. 20) will be well worth the wait. The single, although a bit different sounding from previous Cannibals songs, is simply the best new song on the radio today.

Chekov's Seagull plays well despite rough spots

By MICHAEL T. PUOPOLO, II
Collegian Correspondent

The Seagull
Emily Dickinson Recital Hall
Hampshire College

The Seagull is definitely one of Anton Chekov's best plays. It's a must see for anyone interested in vintage Chekov. The Seagull is a classic tale of fame, fortune, love, and a family torn apart by it all. The Hampshire College production has its moments of serious psychological humor in an otherwise depressing story. Though it isn't nonstop comedy, if you're quick, there's plenty of subtle verbal humor to be picked up on and enjoyed.

All the actors were consistent with their respective characters, but some lacked the emotion they should have displayed. At certain key points in the characters monolouges, the actors could have displayed more sadness or more intense emotion. Most of the performance consisted of the characters expressing their sorrows and displeasures with life to one another.

Certain actors did rather well with their characters. Arkadina, played by Mary Downing, was handled nicely. Masha, portrayed by Meg Arthurs, was also quite believable. Both women were undoubtedly the most humorous of all the characters. Lesley James, who played Nina, had a great voice, but her full potential of emotion was not reached in certain key scenes where it was needed. Loren K. Davidson, Trigorin, also needed more feeling to make the audience believe his plight.

Paul DiDomenico and Mike Demaine were very good in their respective roles. James B. Chase was lucky his role was so small or else he would have stolen the show as the hopelessly devoted lover of Masha.

Props and scenery were good and periodic, however, the set design was less than impressive. There was a need for the raised stage, but the ramp and pier-like set was hardly creative. While few of us have ever seen a 19th century Russian summer cottage, its doubtful that the set at Emily Dickinson Hall was representative.

In spite of the stumbling blocks, overall, it was an enjoyable evening. It was quite interesting to see such a masterpiece being performed at Hampshire College. If you are curious about Chekov, be sure to see the production in its final week - February 16-18. Call the Hampshire College box office between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. at 549-4600 extension 351, to make ticket reservations.

■ Neon revolution from UMass grad

continued from page 1

Garjian graduated from the University in 1969 with a bachelor's degree in business administration, but took several engineering courses and physics courses along the way. He said he first got the idea for his invention in 1974 while driving through the Mt. Tom pass in Holyoke. He spent the next 15 years developing his invention and looking for investors.

The lighting process has received attention from the Museum of Neon Art, and major companies such as Pepsi have already signed on as accounts.

Garjian said that a major advantage of his invention is that unlike conventional neon light, his device doesn't become an unreadable jumble of glass when shut off. Because Garjian's light is an etched piece of glass rather than a bent up tube, the areas surrounding the light channels can be painted, so that the sign is just as readable when it's off.

Garjian also said his development allows for an exact neon reproduction of a company's logo, unlike the bent tube signs that can't be shaped into detailed designs.

"People who didn't like neon will [like it] now," he said.

Another advantage to Garjian's lighting is that it can be mass produced. Unlike tube neon signs, which must be sculpted by a trained artisan called a "tube bender," his signs are relatively easy to make, and can be assembled by machine once the master design is carved. Also, Garjian's signs can be packed and shipped, unlike conventional neon tube signs, which are too fragile for regular mail delivery.

Garjian said that he wants to use these advantages to bring his form of lighting to highways and homes.

"Red neon light is the most visible light," he said when talking about the possibility of neon highways. "It cuts right through the fog." He added that neon light requires very little power, and that solar cells could furnish all the needed energy for the road signs.

Though he said home neon lighting is "a long way off," Garjian said "light panels," plates of neon light, could burn for 25 years before running down, and that all that would be needed to recharge them is a fresh supply of neon.

"People are saying let's bring technology to Massachusetts. Well, that's what I want to do," Garjian said.

Photo courtesy of Alligator Records

BLOWIN THE BLUES! Tenor Saxophonist A.C. Reed has shared the stage with such legends as Earl Hooker, Son Seals, Albert Collins and Junior Wells. He plays Sheehan's this Saturday night.

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY

Why More?

The UMASS Ski Club invites you to Montego Bay, Jamaica, West Indies. We will be staying in the Towers at the Seawinds Resort where all your Spring Break needs are directly below. We are next to the beach, pool, evening entertainment, tennis courts, and the hottest night club in the bay. Located five minutes from town, this resort has, at your disposal, water sports, sunbathing, and an array of restaurants and bars. Don't be lured by low-budget, problem-filled tear-offs that, in the end, turn to rip-offs. WE PROVIDE GUARANTEED RESERVED ACCOMMODATIONS AND FLIGHTS! Spend $9 a day more and step above the rest on your own vacation island!

A VACATION SHOULD BE A PLEASURE—NOT A HASSLE!

LAGNAF

BECAUSE IT'S WORTH IT

Mar. 18 - Mar. 25 • $569 per person from JFK
*All Prices are Inclusive—No Hidden Extras
Double & Triple Occupancy Rates Available

Presented By
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

MasterCard VISA

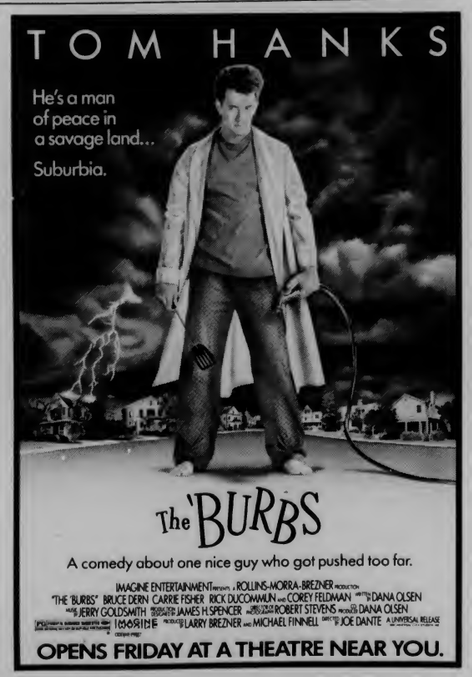
Professor seeks singers

Singers are needed for a spring concert of Jewish music to be conducted by Emanuel Rubin, Ph.d. Professor of Music at the University. There's no audition necessary. All voices are needed, especially tenors. There will be both classical and folk music, from many traditions including: Yemenite, Sephardic, Israeli, Yiddish and Western European.

There are no special language requirements

Rehearsals will be held each Thursday night from 7:30 to 9 at Congregation B'nai Israel in Northampton.

Call S.B. Goldsmith at 586-1064 for information.



TOM HANKS
He's a man of peace in a savage land...
Suburbia.
The 'BURBS
A comedy about one nice guy who got pushed too far.
IMAGINE ENTERTAINMENT presents A ROLLINS-MORRA-BREZNER PRODUCTION
"THE 'BURBS" BRUCE DERN CARRIE FISHER RICK DUCOMMUN and COREY FELDMAN written by DANA OLSEN
music by JERRY GOLDSMITH production designer JAMES H. SPENCER director of photography ROBERT STEVENS produced by DANA OLSEN executive producers BRIAN GLAZER and LARRY BREZNER and MICHAEL FINNELL directed by JOE DANTE A UNIVERSAL RELEASE
OPENS FRIDAY AT A THEATRE NEAR YOU.

Fly II gets trapped in a web of gooey gore

By DOUG MIDDLETON
Collegian Correspondent

Break out the Raid. Usually I tend to view films with at least the respect not to carry on other activities while I'm watching. During The Fly II, however, I almost pulled my hair out, not from fright, mind you, but in sheer disbelief at the awfulness of this picture. This film is going to make us a nation of Cy Sperlings.

The audience Sunday night was buzzing more than the over-dubbing of fly noises on the ridiculous opening sequence. If one recorded the environment of the theatre, indications would suggest comedy of the year. I felt like I was at a taping of Hollywood squares with the stream of one-liners being thrown at the screen. In fact, as entertainment, the audience far outshone the main feature. This movie was so bad, the coming attractions for another celebrated January stinker, Who's Harry Crumb? proved better.

To realize the extent of the cinema experience you are in store for, I will quote the Boston Globe explanation of the film's content - ". . . Rated R (bloody deaths, failed biological experiments, simulated sex.)" Yes, the film really is that much fun. I won't even begin to describe what the above-mentioned "failed biological experiments" category entails.

The Fly II is directed by Chris Walas, who was responsible for the make-up in the 1987 David Cronenberg re-make.

Gee, after those credentials I don't see how he managed to steer the picture into an orgy of ripping flesh and spewing blood that resembles chili more than anything else.

Eric Stoltz gives an embarrassing performance and should at least be thankful he gets to hide under gobs of gooey make-up for large portions of the picture. (I can see Rocky Dennis turning over in his grave). Stoltz plays the son of Seth Brundle, the scientist played by Jeff Goldblum in the Cronenberg film.

Daphne Zuniga (The Sure Thing) plays the "hey-waiter-there's-a-boyfriend-in-my-soup!" love interest,and performs with only two emotions I could detect - stupidity and confusion, two feelings, incidentally, that kept reccurring to me during the film whenever I thought of the five bucks I had spent.

The plot involves Stoltz turning into a fly while he tries to help figure out how his father's teleporting, gene-mutating machine works. In the meanwhile, he runs around a lot and throws up on a lot of hammy supporting actors.

Every scene drags on at least twice as long as it should and the editing seems to have been done by a vengeful entomologist wielding a pair of scissors. Shots of injecting needles and horror film cliches like the old "I wonder if he's dead, so I'll kick him" routine help this become the worst film of the year so far (This is no easy task with such dogs as Three Fugitives and Deepstar Six in theaters this month).

As far as sequels go, this is up there with Exorcist II- The Heretic and Jaws 4 - The Revenge. As with the latter mentioned turkey where shark-goes-to-Bahamas-in-three-days-to-eat-Brodys, the best moments come in the form of flashbacks of the Cronenberg classic via a videotape Stoltz keeps popping in his VCR (Hey, he's no fool-even he knows the superior film).

If heaps of scientific mumbo-jumbo, actors regurgitating vanilla frosting at each other and more body parts falling off than in your average leper colony, then The Fly II is your flick. If you are forced to see this abysmal mess (and this would be at gunpoint only) make sure you bring your swatter.

An education for those who can't look the other way.

If you gain satisfaction from reaching out and helping others, Northeastern University has a special place for you. At Boston-Bouvé College of Human Development Professions you can learn to assist others realize their full potential.

Most of our programs are offered on a part-time or full-time basis combining classroom theory with practical, hands-on experience.

Call (617) 437-2708 or write to us at 106 Dockser Hall, Northeastern University, Boston, MA 02115.

Master of Science Programs
- Counseling Psychology
- Exercise Sciences
- Human Resource Counseling
- Physical Education
- Recreation, Sport, and Fitness Management
- Rehabilitation Counseling
- Speech-Language Pathology & Audiology

Master of Education Programs
- Counseling
- Consulting Teacher of Reading
- Curriculum & Instruction
- Educational Research
- Human Development
- Rehabilitation Administration
- Special Education

Nondegree Certification Programs
- Counseling
- Elementary & Secondary School Teacher Preparation
- Special Education

Boston-Bouvé College
Northeastern University
An equal opportunity-affirmative action university

Operetta, acoustic and cultural music

The Valley Light Opera will present a concert performance of the rarely-heard operetta, "El Capitan" by American march composer, John Phillip Sousa. The performance will be given on Friday, Feb. 24, at 8 p.m. at the Amherst Regional Junior High School. Proceeds of the concert will be used to benefit Amherst's ABC House. General admission tickets are on sale at the Regional High School office, at the Superintendent's Office in the Junior High School and at the Jones Library in Amherst.

After a standing room only crowd in January, New Moon Productions proudly presents its second moonlight coffeehouse, featuring Jaime Morton, on Thursday, Feb. 16. Jaime will perform at 7 p.m. in the backroom of Lunaria bookstore at 90 King St. in Northampton.

Offering original songs, Jaime's acoustic guitar and vocals have enraptured audiences throughout Vermont. Likewise, her music, through encorporating traditional folk, blues and jazz methods, blends them in new and interesting ways. In addition to stylistic innovations, Jaime offers lyrics which reflect tangible experiences of love and life.

Tickets for the concert are available from Lunaria bookstore or New Moon Productions.

Soprano Paulina Stark, pianist Nadine Shank and guest cellist, Leopold Teraspulsky will be the featured artists in "An Evening of Jewish Music" on Sunday evening, Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College.

Sponsored by the Smith/Amherst Hillel Foundations and supported by a grant from the Northampton Center for the Arts, the performance is in celebration of Hillel's sixteenth annual Jewish Arts Festival.

Included in the program will be a selection of Yiddish Art Songs by composer Lazar Weiner. Admission is free.

Attention Students: WE'VE MOVED!

Undergraduate Admissions and Transfer Affairs have relocated to the University Admissions Center (behind Hills South) 545-0222.

PLEASE NOTE THE FOLLOWING:

1. PRIOR APPROVALS - Students can pick-up and return forms for signature at either the Records Office (201 Whitmore) or Transfer Affairs, Monday thru Thursday. Approved copies can be picked-up on Fridays at Transfer Affairs only (in case there are questions).

2. TRANSFER EVALUATION REVIEW DAY - (For enrolled students only) Evaluation updates, questions and problems may be resolved on the first Thursday of every month, when Transfer Affairs staff will be available by appointment only, in the Records Office (201 Whitmore), from 2-4 pm. Thursday review appointments can be made by calling Transfer Affairs (545-0222).

TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL

Attend the National Student Exchange Information Session today at 4:00 in room 174-76 in the Campus Center

TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL
TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL

AP photo

NICE TRY – Dee Elder, of Anchorage, loses the ball on a dive play attempt during the Fur Rendezvous snowshoe softball tournament Saturday in East Anchorage. Elder's team, British Petroleum Exploration, came up short as well, losing 3-1 to O'Shea's.

家湖園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE

The Best Chinese Buffet

BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet served 5-8 p.m., Mon.-Thurs. • Brunch served Sunday 11:30 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Children under 10 - $3.00

1) Hot and Sour Soup
2) Chicken fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Fried Wontons
5) Pan Fried Ravioli
6) Beef with Snow Peas
7) House Spiced Chicken
8) Sweet and Sour Chicken
9) Roast Pork Fried Rice
10) Vegetable Fried Noodles
11) Chinese BBQ Pork
12) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce
13) Shrimp and Cashew Nuts

256-0251
256-0252
TAKE-OUT SERVICE — FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd., at Rte. 9, Amherst 256-0252
Open Sun.-Thur. 11-10, Fri.-Sat. 11-11
LUNCHEON SPECIALS
Mon.-Sat. 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
We Deliver Every Day! 5-9:30 p.m.

SMART COOKIES KNOW...

CHINESE KITCHEN
150 KING ST., NOHO • 586-8220
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 253-2571

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
RENTAL LEASE PURCHASE

Copies Half Off After 100
After your first 100 copies of a single sheet original, the rest are half price at Kinko's, the copy center.
kinko's the copy center
220 N Pleasant St.
253-2543

CAMPUS CENTER PRINT SHOP
LOCATED ON THE CONCOURSE LEVEL OF THE CAMPUS CENTER, ACROSS FROM THE COFFEE SHOP & NEXT TO CAMPUS TRAVEL
225 CAMPUS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
AMHERST, MA 01003
(413) 545-0371

— SERVICES —
XEROX® COPYING • OFFSET PRINTING
GRAPHIC DESIGN • SIGN MAKING EXPERIENCED TYPESETTING

— HOURS —
9:00 AM-5:00 PM ACADEMIC YEAR
8:00 AM-4:00 PM SUMMER
CLOSED WEEKENDS & HOLIDAYS

Conveniently located in the Campus Center and specializing in service to students, faculty and staff, as well the general business community.

- letterheads, envelopes, business cards
- carbonless business forms
- posters, flyers
- newsletters
- brochures
- programs
- table tents
- booklets
- photostats
- name plates
- vinyl signs
- rubber stamps
- velobinding
- wedding invitations

Resume Services
—TYPESETTING—
- 12 years experience
- Large selection of typestyles
- Superior letter quality
- Resumes stored on disk for 3 years

—OFFSET PRINTING—
- Excellent quality control
- Durable ink stands up to folding
- Large selection of text papers including specialized UMass stock
- Matching envelopes available

—MAIL ORDERS—
Samples Available

545-0371

Officials ban funeral home discrimination

HOLYOKE (AP) - State and federal officials Tuesday announced guidelines banning discrimination in funeral homes under an agreement that stemmed from a 4-year-old case of alleged discrimination against Hispanics here.

"We feel with these guidelines in effect statewide than we can, and will in the future, take action against any funeral home that discriminates," said John Crane, a member of the state licensing board for funeral directors.

He told a City Hall news conference that although state law prohibits discrimination, the board had not taken any action in the alleged Holyoke incidents, which dated back at least four years, in part because they involved a number of homes, rather than one or two funeral directors.

Paula Gold, state secretary of consumer affairs, under whose jurisdiction the licensing board falls, said that her office did not become actively involved in the negotiations until after the US Justice Department began working on the case 18 months ago.

"I did not know if we would ever get where we are today," said Grace Arzuaga of Holyoke. "My faith in the US Government has been strengthened."

But several Holyoke funeral home directors questioned their exclusion from the negotiations.

"This is a fine agreement. But there are funeral directors in the city, who have been complying 100 percent with all these guidelines and if this was a community problem why were the funeral directors in the community never consulted," said John Czelusniak, who has a funeral home in the city. "This is the first time we are seeing these guidelines."

And a Roman Catholic nun, who had established a facility for holding non-denominational wakes in a church-run community center four years ago, said she would recommend to her trustees that they shut down their operation.

"It's a shame that we should have to have these kind of meetings, but I'm very glad to see the agreement and that the facilities of Broderick House will no longer be needed," said Sister Margaret McCleary. She said that since the family of a murdered Hispanic teen-ager was turned away from various city funeral homes in 1985, the Sisters of St. Joseph have put on more than 100 wakes for poor and Hispanic city residents.

Josephine Carabello, one of a team of mediators from the US Justice Department's Community Relations Service, said the federal anti-discrimination group became involved after receiving about a half-dozen complaints of alleged discrimination between 1983 and 1986.

"Since 1986, there has been no discrimination against Hispanics by Holyoke funeral directors that we know of," she said.

FBI to investigate computer company

BOSTON (AP) - The FBI confirmed yesterday that it will investigate the finances of Leading Edge Products Inc. to determine whether the computer company has violated any federal laws.

John J. Cloherty, a spokesman for the FBI's Boston office, said the probe had been launched within the past week, but would not comment on what information had led the bureau to initiate an investigation.

Leading Edge's legal problems mounted Monday when six computer dealers filed a petition in US Bankruptcy Court claiming they paid a total of $779,000 in advance for Leading Edge computers they never received.

Dealers said they agreed to the advance payment, an unusual practice in the industry, because of the large demand for the computers.

LEGAL PROBLEMS?
Call LSC serving the students of UMass
Housing • Family • Student Rights • Civil Rights • Workers Rights • Criminal and Consumer Law •
(We regret that we can no longer offer legal representation to students following the Trustees' August 31, 1987 decision.)
call 545-1995

TIME OUT

WE HAVE BUSCH
PITCHERS $3.60
Best price in town!
Lunches served daily
You deserve some Time Out
37 N. Pleasant St • Mass ID required

TAKE ANOTHER PEAK

BRECKENRIDGE
GENUINE COLORADO SKIUSA
THE PEAK
Breckenridge is three majestic, interconnected ski mountains, each with its own high-speed four-passenger SuperChair, as well as twelve other lifts. It all towers above a lovingly restored genuine Victorian town full of shops, restaurants, nightspots and enough lodging to entertain over 20,000 visitors at once. Isn't it time you took another peak? You may never look elsewhere.
$599
PRESENTED BY UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437

WHAT'S MORE IMPORTANT ... A DEGREE OR AN EDUCATION?

A degree is only part of an education. The larger part is your growth as a person. Not only what you are exposed to, but whom.

That's why we've been around for over seventy-five years. We are Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity, and we offer everything you can't find in a textbook. Stop by and see for yourself what a fraternity can mean to you.

When you graduate there is a lot more to take with you than a piece of paper.

FIND IT HERE!
LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

ΛXA RUSH ΛXA RUSH

FEBRUARY 14,15,21,22
TUES. AND WED. 9:00-11:00 PM.
374 NORTH PLEASANT STREET
ANY QUESTIONS CALL:
253-9032

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON

FOR YOUR EYES ONLY

SPECIAL UNIVERSITY PRICING!
40–50% OFF RETAIL PRICE
GREAT PERFORMANCE
GREAT PRICE

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN–

ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS INVITES YOU
TO AN OPEN HOUSE DEMONSTRATION ON CAMPUS

A Zenith Data Systems Open House Will Be Held At This Location:

Campus Center Concourse

10:00 AM to 3:00 PM

February 22, 1989

American Express VISA, MasterCard Credit Cards Accepted.

ZENITH | data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

Prices subject to change without notice.
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems

AP photo

DOG DAYS OF WINTER — Haune Lauridsen of New York City takes advantage of a patch of artificial snow in Central Park to get in some cross-country skiing while walking her four dogs Sunday afternoon. The artificial snow has given New Yorkers their first chance to ski in the park during a virtually snowless winter.

WILLIAM E. HASSAN
CRIMINAL LAW
25 Years Experience
Former Asst. District Attorney
Free First Consultation
Ford & Hassan
69 S. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253-2501

Spring Break
DAYTONA BEACH
- High quality oceanfront accommodations for 7 fun-filled nights.
- Round trip chartered motor coach transportation.
- Free pool deck parties and optional activities.
- Food, merchandise, and service discounts.
- Optional excursions available.
- Full-time staff on location.
- All taxes, tips, and service charges included.
FOR DETAILS AND RESERVATIONS
Call Rob
253-7153
or
Sean 546-8252
$139 HOTEL PACKAGE
$214 FULL PACKAGE
ARRANGEMENTS BY INTER-CAMPUS PROGRAMS

charlie's
1 Pray St., Amherst 549-5800 • Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week • Call for Take Out
Kitchen Open till midnight
New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables
Tonight 99¢ Nacho & Cheese Platters
9:00 PM - 12:00 AM
Bloody Mary $1.25 Drink of the Week
Moosehead $1.75 Beer of the Month
FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Mon. 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks 9-12
Tues. 10¢ Buffalo Wings 9-12
Sunday 4 Burger Platters for $5.00 6-10

To: Professional Staff Members

After months of deliberation a representative committee of professional staff members from the Boston and Amherst campuses interviewed several unions to determine which would best represent your needs.

It wasn't an easy choice. Eleven unions—including two organizations that had previously led campaigns—agreed to be interviewed. We chose Local 509, SEIU.

As a first step Local 509, SEIU, has commissioned a poll consisting of a random sample of UMass professional staff.

Professional pollsters may call you soon. Please respond as honestly and fully as possible. We need to have a complete and true picture of what you think about unionization at UMass. In addition, the more we know about the issues that concern you, the sooner we can work on them.

This poll is completely confidential. Thanks for your cooperation.

UMass Professional Staff Organization Committee

REGION

Black senator proposes bill to compensate for slavery

BOSTON (AP) - Following the example of federal reparations to wartime Japanese internees, a black state senator has proposed a bill that would have the state of Massachusetts compensate blacks for the injuries of slavery and racism.

Lawmakers in the state, which was one of the first to outlaw slavery and a hotbed of abolitionism, are not expected to enact the measure. But a Harvard law professor and several other observers said the idea should spark a worthwhile debate.

The measure, which has yet to have a public hearing before a committee, was proposed by Sen. Bill Owens, a Democrat who represents the Roxbury section of Boston. It does not specify how much compensation should be paid and calls instead for creation of a commission to "negotiate with legitimate representatives of African descendants."

Owens, in an interview, said the central issue was the obligation of the government and the country's white majority to acknowledge the wrongs of slavery and the continued impact of racial discrimination.

"Because of the continuing state of mind of white America that blacks want something for nothing, [whites] tend to forget that we are the only people who gave to this country our work, our labor and our lives . . . and got nothing for it," Owens said.

His proposal is modeled on a bill passed by Congress last year which pays $1.25 billion in damages to Japanese-Americans forced into internment camps during World War II. The law promises lump-sum payments of $20,000 to more than 60,000 Japanese-Americans who were imprisoned without trial.

"The Japanese claim that they had been deprived of educational opportunity, they had been deprived of housing and they had been deprived of employment, which diminished their social and economic condition? xactly the same thing," Owens said.

After the Civil War, the senator noted, Radical Republicans in Congress proposed guaranteeing "40 acres and a mule" to all former slaves, but that plan was never adopted.

"What has happened is we have been deprived of property, as well as life and liberty, without due process. We have been deprived of housing, of education, of employment - which has led to the deprivation of considerable wealth, leaving our people in a terrible social and economic condition," Owens said. "The vestiges of slavery, as we view it, continue even today."

In addition, the senator argued that blacks are unique in American society in having been brought to America against their will and made citizens involuntarily.

As drafted, the one-paragraph bill is likely to raise practical problems because it does not define " people of African decent" or state whether claims could be pressed only by descendants of former slaves.

Asked about the proposal, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis said he had not seen the bill. But he balked at the potential cost. "At this point, we're trying to make ends meet around here," said the governor, who is facing a $500 million deficit.

Sen. David Locke, the Republican floor leader, also expressed surprise at the legislation and questioned its merits.

"I think it's one of those ideas that probably nobody argues much with the goal - to undo any conduct that has not been justified through history. On the other hand, however, I think it becomes practically impossible to deal with it," Locke said. "My concern is it drives a wedge between the black community and the white community, and I think that should not be done."

Slavery was outlawed in Massachusetts in 1783 by the state Supreme Court, which ruled that the practice violated the state Constitution, which holds that "all men are born free and equal."

Outside government, the proposal drew a mixed assessment.

"There's no question that from a moral standpoint, it's just," said Boston University historian Howard Zinn. "I don't think it's going to happen, of course."

Autopsy reports ruled closed to public

BOSTON (AP) - A medical examiner's autopsy reports are protected from public disclosure under Massachusetts law, the state Supreme Court ruled unanimously yesterday in a case stemming from the deaths of three Bridgewater State Hospital patients.

Autopsy reports are considered medical records and therefore are exempt from the state's freedom of information law, the justices said in reversing an opinion from the secretary of state's public records division and a lower court ruling in a suit brought by the Boston Globe to obtain the Bridgewater autopsies.

"Autopsies performed by physicians are diagnostic in nature and yield detailed, intimate information about the subject's body and medical condition," the justice said. "Therefore, they are medical records."

The high court, in an opinion by Justice Joseph Nolan, noted that there is a "strong public policy in Massachusetts that favors confidentiality as to medical data about a person's body," such as hospital records, AIDS tests, records of venereal disease and Reyes Syndrome and reports of infectious diseases.

The justices' decision essentially affirmed that the dead have the same rights of privacy as the living, said Assistant Attorney General Judy Zeprun, who argues the case for the state.

"I think the important point of all this is that the character of the information doesn't change just because you died," she said, "I think the court was right to find that just because you are autopsied by a medical examiner doesn't mean that the information generated about you is not your personal property."

The Globe brought the court action in 1987 to compel the release of autopsies conducted on three Bridgewater patients who died earlier that year. The newspaper had reported that two of the patients committed suicide and the third had quantities of pain relievers in his blood.

THE SPRING GOLD RUSH IS ON!

$75 OFF 18K

$50 OFF 14K

$25 OFF 10K

Order your college ring NOW.

JOSTENS

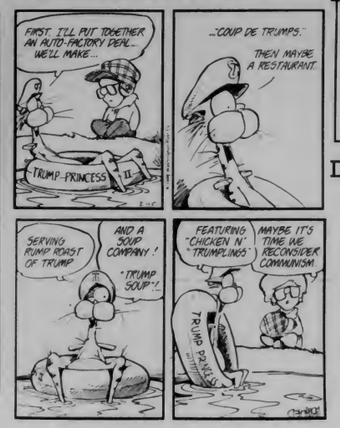
AMERICA'S COLLEGE RING™

Date: Feb. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17—Monday - Friday
Time: 10:00 - 4:00 • Deposit: $25.00
Place: University Store

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"Just look at those stars tonight ... makes you feel sort of small and insignificant."

BLOOM COUNTY By BERKE BREATHED



FIRST, I'LL PUT TOGETHER AN AUTO-FACTORY DEAL... WE'LL MAKE...
TRUMP-PRINCESS II
...COUP DE TRUMPS.
THEN MAYBE A RESTAURANT.
SERVING RUMP ROAST OF TRUMP AND A SOUP COMPANY!
"TRUMP SOUP"!
FEATURING "CHICKEN N' TRUMPLINGS"
MAYBE IT'S TIME WE RECONSIDER COMMUNISM.
TRUMP PRINCESS II

ETC.

"We haven't the time to take our time."

-Eugene Ionesco

"The best way out is always through."

-Robert Frost

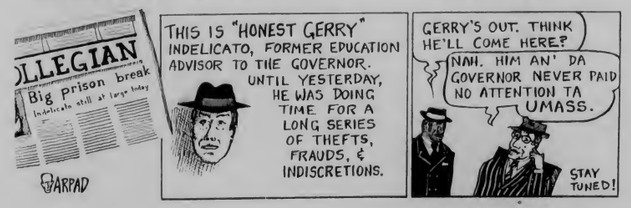
DOONESBURY By GARRY TRUDEAU

WHAT WE CARTOONISTS ARE HOPING TO EN-COURAGE HERE, MARK, ARE SOME BOLD IN-ITIATIVES FROM THE BUSH ADMINIS-TRATION!
WHAT A LOT OF PEOPLE DON'T UNDERSTAND IS THAT CAR-TOONISTS ARE PATRIOTS! WE WANT TO SEE OUR PRESIDENTS SUCCEED! IF A CARTOONING MORATORIUM HELPS BUSH GET A LITTLE CONFIDENCE, THEN WE'RE HAPPY TO OBLIGE!
SO WE PUT A CAP ON THE VITRIOL FOR A WEEK. WHAT CAN IT HURT? OUR EDITORS ARE PATRIOTIC, TOO. THEY'LL UNDERSTAND.
WILL YOU STILL GET PAID?
OH, SURE. WE'RE ALL TAKING SICK LEAVE

CALVIN AND HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

I SURE HOPE YOU MEMORIZED THIS PAGE ALREADY, BECAUSE YOU'RE NEVER GOING TO SEE IT AGAIN!
NO! DON'T FLUSH IT! TELL ME WHAT YOUR STUPID DEMANDS ARE.
THAT'S MORE LIKE IT! OK, FIRST WE WANT TO STAY UP UNTIL MY PARENTS DRIVE IN. SECOND, WE WANT YOU TO GO PICK UP A PIZZA AND RENT US A VIDEO PLAYER.
YOU'RE OUT OF YOUR MIND!
THIRD ... ARE YOU WRITING THESE DOWN?

THE BEACON HILL GANG By AL ARPAD



OLLEGIAN
Big prison break
Indelicato still at large today
ARPAD
THIS IS "HONEST GERRY" INDELICATO, FORMER EDUCATION ADVISOR TO THE GOVERNOR. UNTIL YESTERDAY, HE WAS DOING TIME FOR A LONG SERIES OF THEFTS, FRAUDS, & INDISCRETIONS.
GERRY'S OUT. THINK HE'LL COME HERE?
NAH. HIM AN' DA GOVERNOR NEVER PAID NO ATTENTION TA UMASS.
STAY TUNED!

YEASTHEAD By JASON TALERMAN

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

EDITED By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

ACROSS

1 Call Me —
6 Arabian robes
10 House in Seville
14 — acid
15 Finished
16 Viva voce
17 Wanderer
18 Humdinger
19 Liana: e g
20 Supplement with: out
21 Exertion
24 Cheese tray item
25 Musician's need
26 True
29 Connecting devices
34 Last but not —
35 Bridge
36 Farrow of films
37 Working energetically
41 Crowed down
42 Building wings
43 Hagar's spouse
44 In a wretched manner
47 Touch gently
48 Conquistadors quest
49 — Marian
50 Go air out
55 Lessen
58 Gander's call
59 Actress Moran
60 Hawkins or Thompson
62 Poker stake
63 1492 caravel
64 Out of the way
65 Bender
66 Angry with off
67 Type of bug or buffalo

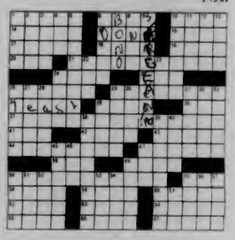
DOWN

1 Hair found in name
2 Excited
3 Roosevelt coin
4 Collection of anecdotes
5 Mild
6 Type of brick
7 Sonny the mayor
8 Once more
9 Beatles — Pepper
10 Surreptitious
11 Musical highlight
12 Lacking
13 Out of the wind
22 Adjective for Abner
23 Talk mod style
24 Barbara or George
26 Pseudonym
27 Literary patchwork
28 Spud
29 Put to use
30 Speaker's platform
31 Zola
32 A corpus has three
33 Heroic stories
35 Be a bear on Wall Street
38 Fragrant
39 Lumberjack's tool
40 Flock
45 Stage of court cases
46 Annoy
47 Crow's cry
49 Single-celled organism
50 African tea plant
51 Parental reproof
52 Do — others
53 Canal of song
54 Sub
55 Prepare for print
56 Continue
57 Foamy brew
61 Jehoshaphat's father

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	M	O	R	E		P	E	L	T	S		S	P	A
C	A	P	E	R		I	D	I	O	T		M	E	W
T	H	E	L	O	V	E	D	O	N	E		A	R	A
S	A	R		R	A	N		A	L	O	R
		A	L	A	O			D	E	P	E	N	D
A	R	T		P	A	S	A	D	E	N	A
L	O	I	R	E		A	N	I		T	A	M	E
L	O	V	E	T	H	Y	N	E	I	G	H	B	O	R
S	T	E	M		A	R	U	G		L	Y	O	N	S
		A	N	T	E	L	O	P	E		H	A	I	R
P	A	N	D	A	S		A	N	T	I
S	T	E	P		S	N	A	P		A	G	E	S
A	R	P		L	O	V	E	M	A	C	H	I	N	E
L	I	E		E	L	I	M	I		C	O	N	I	C
M	A	L		S	E	N	O	R		D	E	E	D	S

2:15:89



TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Go ahead and be adventurous! You have everything to gain and very little to lose. Express your hapiness on receiving a small gift! Movement and change will be good for your finances.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A risky gamble is not for you today. New financial gains are possible but only if you control expenses better. Communication and transportation delays could affect a romantic relationship. Be patient.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Listen, but do not repeat what you hear. Your close attention to detail may upset some co-workers but it will please higher-ups. Catch up on correspondence and phone calls. Call home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not let your guard down today. Jealous competitors resent your success. Close personal relationships enjoy unusually satisfying aspects. You want to share your good fortune with parents, siblings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your awareness of a problem is the first step toward solving it. Rein in your ego if you want to be a serious candidate for a leadership post. Develop more tolerance for others' foibles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Let others exercise in their way; you stay behind and do what is right for your health. Moderation in all things works best. Do not sully your own reputation by spreading gossip. Be descreet.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Treat a workplace dilemma seriously. Deal with everyone involved on an individual basis or it will be impossible to sort things out. You could be given an interesting Tay. Use your talents wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Any favors you do today will be repaid tenfold. Challenge and excitement make a relationship stimulating. Try to get more fresh air. You decide to go where you want to when you want to.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Your troubles seem to be behind you. A friendship is tested when you encounter the unexpected. Prepare for change by getting your act together. Keep track of your possessions. Avoid lending expensive items.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Practical endeavors will take up most of your time today. You get a surprising emotional response from a child. Cash flow is much improved. Nothing can hold you back! Save time for relaxation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) A wealthy, powerful person could upset your plans. A search for pleasure is delayed. Play a waiting game. Money remains tight. Postpone a luxury purchase. Better times lie just ahead!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Plan a spring vacation while you can still get the air fare you want. Do whatever is necessary to keep your health good. You can get your ideas approved now if you are very diplomatic.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Hot pastrami on rye Pizza	Roast top round of beef Baked haddock
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
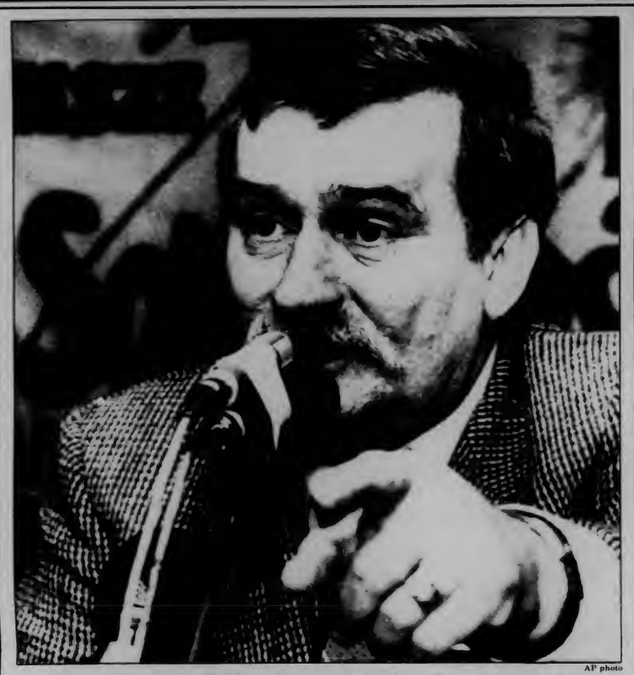
Carrot and cauliflower pie Pizza	Ratatouilli Baked haddock

WORLD & NATION



AP photo

WALESA APPEALS TO MINERS — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa appeals to miners in Jastrzebie yesterday, seeking rank-and-file support for union negotiations with the Polish government.

Baker plans to sell controversial stocks

ROME (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III announced yesterday that he is selling his controversial holdings in a New York bank and all other publicly traded stocks that have been held in a blind trust.

Baker announced the decision through a spokeswoman while on a tour of Western European capitals.

His wife Susan is disposing of her stock as well. The trust, set up when Baker went to work at the White House in 1981 as former President Reagan's chief of staff, also will sell publicly traded stock held by their daughter, Mary Bonner Baker.

"While I believe this decision goes well beyond what us required or has been recommended, I think it is the correct decision for someone committed in meeting the highest ethical standards," Baker's statement said.

Spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said Baker made the decision in London on Saturday after consulting with his lawyers.

Baker's latest financial disclosure form, filed with the Office of Government Ethics, puts a value of more that $250,000 on the assets held in the secretary's qualified blind trust.

The form shows that the secretary received "over $100,000" in income from the trust during the time that was covered, January through August of 1988.

The disclosure form also lists the separate property of Mrs. Baker, which includes 1,087 shares in Houston Industries, with a valuation between $15,001 and $50,000.

The spokeswoman said State Department lawyers had offered Baker a number of other potions, which were not disclosed, but that Baker's decision went further than any of then. She said the sales will be completed after details are worked out.

Baker's portfolio was not disclosed apart from Chemical New York Corp., in which he acquired holdings after Chemical Bank took over Texas Commerce Bankshares of Houston, a bank his grandfather helped found, during Baker's tenure as treasury secretary.

Scientist invents salt-free de-icer

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Highway trucks will spread a non-corrosive, non-polluting de-icer made of corn rather than salt if a scientist at a federal lab succeeds in reducing the cost of the product.

The goal is to eliminate the use of salt, which penetrates concrete and corrodes metal and there are several advantages of the corn-based de-icer," sad William Nryan, a chemical engineer at the US Department of Agriculture's research laboratory in this central Illinois city.

"It's not only non-corrosive to automobile bodies, roads and bridges — it actually acts as an inhibitor. Plus, it's non-polluting and it would create a new market for corn products," Bryan said yesterday.

The corn-based de-icer, a compound called calcium magnesium acetate or CMA, already is produced commercially but only on a small scale.

State highway departments simply can't afford to make a large investment in it because it costs so much more than salt — $600 per ton for CMA compared to $25 a ton for salt.

"We estimate the damage to New York state roads, bridges, automobiles and environment at $900 million to $2 billion a year from the use of salt," said Lawrence Hudson, of the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority in Albany, N.Y.

New York uses about 1 million tons of salt each winter, Hudson said, or about 11 percent of the national total. The US Environmental Protection Agency estimates salt causes $5 billion damage nationwide.

"For every ton of salt we buy for $25 and put on the road, society ends up paying a great deal more - about $1,000 per ton," Hudson said.

"The problem is that CMA is very expensive. We must find a way to bring down the cost of CMA so that state highway departments can afford it without needing a tax increase".

Now is your chance to talk about

RETAIL MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES with OSCO DRUG

If you're interested in retail management as a career, then Osco Drug is the company for you!

Osco Drug, one of the largest retail drug chains in the nation, can put your talents, skills, and drive on the road to success. If you have an interest, background, training or education in retail management, we have the career you've been waiting for.

Our structured management training program, including manager training phase manuals, video tapes and workshops, along with hands-on experience, will start you on your way to a progressive career in retail management.

For all management positions we offer an excellent starting salary and a comprehensive benefits package:

- health insurance
- life insurance
- disability pay plan
- dental plan
- employee discount
- profit sharing
- and more!

In addition, once promoted from management trainee to the next level of management, you will participate in our lucrative bonus program.

From the hiring, training, and development of people, to the buying of virtually every item, the Osco management team exercises a great deal of autonomy in their stores. Find out more about an Osco Drug management career. We will be at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst to conduct initial interviews:

Wednesday, March 1st
and
Thursday, March 2nd
(School of Management)

If you are unable to attend, please send your resume to: Osco Drug, Attn: Recruiting Department, 1818 Swift Drive, Oak Brook, IL 60521. We are an equal opportunity employer.

OscoDrug
Count on people who care.

Council Travel

DON'T WAIT
BOOK NOW FOR SPRING BREAK!

SPRINGBREAK from BOSTO

4 NIGHTS NASSAU $379pp
7 NIGHTS CANCUN $479pp
7 NIGHTS PUERTO la CRUZ $599pp
VENEZUELA, the NEW EXOTIC DESTINATION!
Incl all hotel/room taxes & service charges.
Departure taxes not included.

BOOK NOW!
413-256-1261
78 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

Restaurant Managers
You are cordially invited to a

Chi-Chi's Mexican Restaurants

OPEN HOUSE
Tuesday, February 21,
from 10am-8pm
at Chi-Chi's®,
955 Riverdale St.,
W. Springfield, MA

We'd like you to come in and talk to our top management about exciting opportunities that are currently available for MANAGERS AND ASSISTANT MANAGERS in MASSACHUSETTS, CONNECTICUT and NEW JERSEY. Our careers are second to none, and offer all of the great incentives you'd expect from a company with our reputation for quality, innovation and employee recognition.

Come in and learn about the exciting plans we have for our future growth- and yours! Please bring a resume with you.

If you're unable to attend our open house, please send a resume, in confidence, to: Anne Fleshman, Chi-Chi's, Dept. SR, 1006 Old Post Rd., Copley, PA 18037.
EOE m/f.

UMass Arts Council
GRANT PROPOSAL DEADLINE

The next deadline for submission of grant proposals for arts-related projects and events:

Monday, March 1

Guidelines and application forms are available at the Arts Council office and the Student Activities Office

UMass Arts Council
125 Herter Hall, 545-0202

Rockets reach new high against struggling Celts

HOUSTON (AP) — Akeem Olajuwon had 35 points and 19 rebounds and the Houston Rockets rolled to their highest points total of the season in a 137-123 victory over the Boston Celtics Tuesday night.

Sleepy Floyd contributed 18 points and 10 assists and Otis Thorpe added 15 points as the Rockets won their third straight and their eighth in the last 10 games.

Reggie Lewis led the Celtics with 31 points, followed by Kevin McHale with 25 points and 12 rebounds and Robert Parish with 22 points and 12 rebounds.

Houston's previous high point total for the season was 129 last Nov. 13 against Sacramento. The 137 points is the most points ever scored by Houston against Boston.

The Rockets outscored the Celtics 19-9 to open the second half for an 83-68 lead. The Celtics closed the gap to 91-87 with 2:32 left in the third quarter, but trailed 99-92 going into the fourth period.

The Rockets increased their lead to 111-101 after a pair of baskets by Tim McCormick with 8:09 left. A 3-point play by Olajuwon gave Houston a 120-105 lead, and the Celtics never were closer than 11 again.

Boston built a 24-14 lead midway through the first period. Lewis had 14 first-quarter points as the Celtics held on to lead 34-33 going into the second period.

The Rockets outscored the Celtics 14-2 to take a 47-39 advantage at 7:52 of the second quarter.

Parish scored eight points in the final five minutes of the first half to cut the Celtics' deficit to 64-59 at halftime.

Koubek, Duke roll over Harvard

BOSTON (AP) — Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski wanted to give struggling Greg Koubek confidence. Harvard was the perfect overmatched opponent for him to get it against.

The sophomore forward, starting his first college game, scored six of his career-high 19 points during a 15-1 surge in the first five minutes of the second half as 11th-ranked Duke rolled to a 98-59 victory over cold-shooting Harvard last night.

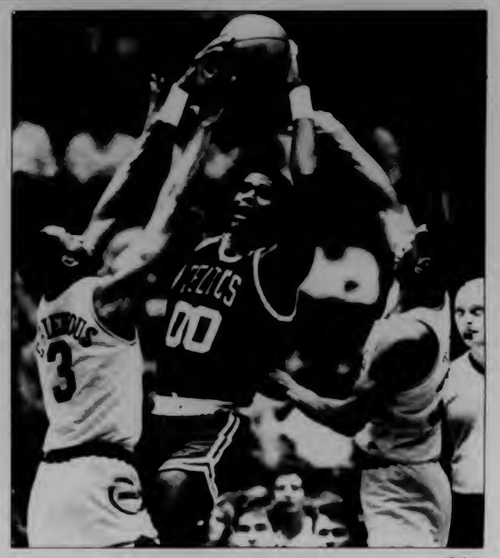
"I think this was just a one-game start to instill confidence in me and to say, 'Greg, we're going to need you later in the year,'" said Koubek, whose previous high was 14 points last season.

"He deserved to get an opportunity to" start, Krzyzewski said. "He played a good game."

Koubek, who had hit only 39.6 percent of his field goal attempts this season and 69.2 percent of his free throws, was 5-for-5 from the field and 7-for-8 from the foul line.

Harvard made just 22 of 77 shots for 28.6 percent and couldn't capitalize on Duke's season-high 34 turnovers. The Blue Devils made 55.9 percent of their shots.

The game figured to be a mismatch since Harvard, 8-12, plays in the weak Ivy League and Duke, 18-4, plays in the powerful Atlantic Coast Conference.



AP photo

Boston Celtic Robert Parish is surrounded by Houston Rockets Derrick Chievous (3) and Otis Thorpe (33) as he tries to move toward the hoop in one of the C's most embarrassing loses of the season.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE...CC 113...MON - THURS 8:30-3:30 FRI 8:30-2:30 • DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION • CASH IN ADVANCE 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

THIRD WORLD CAUCUS MEETING TONIGHT! Get involved in an umbrella minority organization. At 5:30 in campus center 178.

ATTENTION! Very important meeting for the University Players tonight, Wednesday, 7:30 in the CC. Discussion of spring musical. Be there & let your opinion be heard! New members welcome & encouraged.

UMASS SKI CLUB runs the best spring breaks to: Barbados, Bahamas, Bermuda, Killington and Breckenridge 545-3437/430 SUB

WHAT'S THE POINT OF LIFE? Unique dream techniques, special visualizations, and simple twenty-minute spiritual exercises can help you find your destiny in this life. Learn about the transforming spiritual exercises of ECHANKAR. One-hour presentation. 30-minute video and basic how-to's. UMA Campus Center 7:30 Thursday Feb 9, 16,23

SOUTHWEST AREA GOV. is looking for someone to coordinate our annual Spring Concert. Interested? Call 5-0960 for details

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE

SAPCIOUS 1,2, and 3 BEDROOM UNITS in Sunderland. Ample off street parking and free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Call 665-3856

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUTO FOR SALE

81 HONDA CIVVIC WAGON. Very well mantained, dependable $1200 549-2733

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500 00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CAMP COUNSELORS

COME WORK FOR an accredited 3-camp organization in the Pocono Mountains of PA. Positions are available in: Tennis, Archery, Waterfront (W.S.I.), Gramalics, Office Administration, Computers, Radio, Arts & Crafts, Nature, Athletics, Jewelry, Photography, Dance, Wrestling, Cooking, Adventure/Challenge Course, Film making. Camp Drivers Season 6/24-8/20. Call 800-533-CAMP (215-887-9700 in PA) or write 407 Benson East, Jenkintown, PA 19046

COMPACT DISC MUSIC MACHINE

DISC JOCKEY SERVICE - quality tunes for all occasions. 549-1421 or 253-7855

DAYTONA BEACH

BEACHFRONT HOTEL $139 w/bus $214 Florida is calling you! Call us Sean 546-8252 or Rob 253-7153

FLORIDA SPRING BREAKS

DAYTONA'S CASTAWAY BEACH RESORT - $139 Panama City Beach's Miracle Mile Resort - $119 roundtrip transportation add $80 Call Mark 549-2871

FOR RENT

PUFFTON VILLAGE: One bedroom in a 3-bedroom apt $190 furnished Call Tom or Rahul 549-4834 immediately

FRIDGE RENTALS WE DELIVER 253-9742

BE A BOARDER IN A SORORITY! Females only. Great location! Great food! Call 545-0527. Ask for Trel, Steph, or Tracey

FOR SALE

BRAND NEW WINTER COAT, medium size, navy blue, knee length. Going cheap Call 549-5592 Asky

FOR SALE HEAD SKIIS with Solomon bindings $100 or BO 546-9001

49 STICKER FOR SALE 256-1187

BUY A BIKE Cannondale $300 or best offer. Reacing and touring suntour gear system. Dia compe brakes, mistral aluminum rims, frame alone is worth five hundred dollars Call Anytime 549-3512

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES- 2 year old rental income property. 18,000 dollars gross rental income per year. Live rent free and pay for tuition. Call Dale or Ginny 253-9449

SONY RECEIVER 75 watts/channel, digital inputs for CD, 2 tapes, 3 video. Appraised at $325. BO takes it. JC 549-1978

BURMESE PYTHON for sale 548-6309

SELLING 85 MZD GLC just had accident excellent for parts price B/O call 546-5918 leave message

RUG-GREAT FOR DORM
Sky Blue
Excellent condition
$45 or best offer
Call Alisa 527-6505

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles. Call 256-8369

FOUND

HEY - GREG SMITH. We have your I.D. Down here at the collegian. Just ask at the front desk. The Classifieds

SET OF CAR KEYS found outside of Southwood 83 on Saturday February 4. Please contact 546-9631

MENS WATCH FOUND in front of Herter on Wed Feb 8 if missing, please contact Christine at 546-6944

GREAT DEAL

STATION WAGON $500 or best offer 1979 Pontiac Catalina Cruiser good condition. Great car for around town or road trips. Call after 8:30pm Shane 549-1594

GUITAR LESSONS

PRIVATE GUITAR LESSONS with Doug Hewitt. Rock-Blues-Folk all levels. Songwriting, improvisation, theory, reading. Studio on 3 bus lines 549-4786 or 549-6968

HELP WANTED

SALES/MARKETING HELP NEEDED for small growing company. Experience desired, not necessary. Travis *584-9158

FREE MEALS can the DC Fraternity in need of night kitchen help, in exchange for meals Call Jon 545-0046

GREAT JOB - NO PAY
FREE MEALS
Call Today
549-2905

SCREW THE DC
MEALS FOR FREE
For info call me
549-2905

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED FOR UMass Dorms No car necessary. 7 days/week 1-2 hours/day. Good pay! Call 253-7009

JOSH GORDON

CONGRATULATIONS JOSH on your choice to run for SGA President. You are the best person for the job. We promise our support. I'll Love your favorite SOM study group

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands'on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on February 22 from 3:30-4:30 in room 901 Campus Center (545-1995)

LOST

LOST VERY SENTIMENTAL- Brown twones leather bomber jacket and royal blue DAlogonia ski jacket. Both stolen at my own afterhours last Rhursday at Apt -5 Griggs! Reward and no questions asked! All I want are my only winter coats back. Call 253-7083 or 256-1826 Nancy

BROWN LEATHER BOMBER JACKET taken from 53 TOWNEHOUSE, Saturday Night. We can recognize you easily. Please return the jacket to the Washington Cluster office or call Mary at 546-9216 No questions asked

LOST IN HERTER THURS. 2-9 Black Brief Case of great personal value. Any info please call Lisa at 549-6989 Very important. Thanx

LOST: Gold ropechain bracelet between Mahar 108 and Hills South from 2-3pm. 2-8-89. Has special meaning. If found please call Shari 546-5092

PERSONALS

POOR, POOR JUDY GATELY She made it through one long year. Somebody out there better help her out

KELLY IT'S BEEN a great 2 months. Happy (one day late) Valentines I love you. Scott

KILLER KELLY
Thanks for being
My Valentine
Joey Love

KIM - You know how much we miss you, but we'll see you next tuesday

LORI GABORI Happy Birthday!! You sexy vixen! Today open up all your presents then come over to my place and show me what you got. Jas

SUE HAPPY BELATED VALENTINE'S DAY. The cold weather has made me a little slow, but I still love you. Bill

TO FRISKY DOE. Love Raging Bull

GARY, I LOVE YOU!! You're a hot sexy knish and you always will be. Marry me! Love, your one and only, babby, Mandy

JOSH GORDON, you're the best. Love Monique

KENDITA BEBITA: Te amo. Eres el lucero que ilumina mi camino. Feliz Valentin. No 2 de mil. Parece que fue ayer que te conoci. Mi amor por ti es como un pozo sin fondo. Tuyito. Tu Papito. Net!

ELLEN YOU BORROWED my colleagan and stole my heart. Same place - same time MWF...or 6-9387 Jim

JAMIE J. at Brittany Mnr. Roses are red, violets are blue. I sure would enjoy must talking with you! Look here again Tue-Wed.

SUE GORSKI Get ready get psyched! Shave! Tomorrow night! Do it this weekend! Swim awesome at New Englands don't be grumpy. Love your SP

TRUMBULL- Get psyched to swim fast at New Englands!!! SP

ROXANNE, it's been an explosive week. I'll be coming by soon. Keep on hooting. Luther Te quiero mucho cuquito.

KILA Here's your first personal. I love you. Happy Valentine's day-Lyz

MICHELE LEARY Good luck at New englands! Swi well and laz do it! Love you S Paycher

EDNA, MERCY, MIRITA, OLGA Y PATRICIA Ustedes si se merecen un personal. Gracias por todo. Les quiere ricardo

LATE NIGHT MUNCHIES? Pinocchios has the answer. Monday Tuesday Wednesday and Thrusday night special large cheese pizza for only $5.50 + tax. A buck a topping. We deliver

ASK A BUSH-BASHER... When you say LAGNAP you say a lot! Spring Break with UMass Ski Club 545-3437

HAPPY B'DAY Tom love Elise

BRIGHTEN YOUR LIFE! Meet that someone special through our singles club. Intro singles club. Box 3005, Boston, MA 02130

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt. or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later

RESUME SERVICE

RESUME SERVICE. We're -1 and we'll beat any price! Free pick up & delivery. Laserhypesetting, etc. Call today 549-4135.

RIDE WANTED

LOOKING TO SHARE RIDES w/ th people who commute to and from Spfld 731-8301 aves.

ROOMMATES WANTED

FEMALE NEEDED FOR SPACIOUS squire village apt Feb and March free 183/mo 367-2092

2 FEMALES TO SHARE Townehouse apt Call 6-9207

1 OR 2 NEEDED for Amity Place Condo 225 each 549-1839

BRANDYWINE APT LOOKING for 1 female February free leave message 549-2710

LICENSED DAYCARE PERSON has full/parttime openings. Ages 1-4. Call 549-7988

SERVICES

RESUMES, SAMPLES, various styles, different formats. Actual successful examples. Interested? Send $3.00 Box 801 Bellmore New York 11710

AUTO REPAIRS: Very reasonable, experienced mechanic. Work your place or mine. Messages for Mark 665-8467.

PROFESSIONAL RESUMES, LASER-PRINTING, copies, typing 665-8873

TAROT READINGS by apmt 546-8935. Find out about yourself

RESUME TYPESETTING. Avoid the end-of-semester panic. Very experienced, inexpensive, overnight laserwriter quality. Lisa 665-8969

SPRING BREAK - DAYTONA

JOIN MTV AND 1000s OF * SPRING BREAKERS IN DAYTONA * Just $139 or $219 w/bus. Plus tanning * discount at La Bon Soir * Call Dana 549-6064

SUMMER SUBLET

SUBLET/TAKE OVER LEASE June 1st one bedroom apt. $370 mo. Call Linda or Tashana 253-7185. Leave message

TICKETS NEEDED

TO LA RO VEGAS anywhere between for Spring Break 66378

TRAVEL

PARTY WITH THE LEADERS IN SPRING BREAK Crimson Travel specialized for 21 years best thing is you don't have to be 21 to drink

HOT NIGHTS, COOL FROZEN DRINKS, reggae music, sandy beaches...and you. Affordable spring break trips to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco, and Daytona. Call Karen or Shara at 546-6612, or Merideth at 549-8274 for details.

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT. COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TUTORING

RETIRED FORMER PROFESSOR OF SPEECH will help foreign students with English also Edit papers for correct english usage. Reasonable rates, no charge for initial interview. 253-3354

TYPING

FLYING FINGERS TYPING. Work done fast. Delivery too. Call Kevin 549-0118

"WORDSMITH" PROFESSIONAL TYPING. Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck. 253-4564

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional, accurate. 665-4501

UMASS LAX SWEATSHIRT

 LOST/STOLEN ON 8th FLOOR OF * * Coolidge 1st weekend in Feb. Reward * * offered for the return of this navy * * sweatshirt with a Lacrosse Logo * * No questions asked. Just please return * * if, no one else has one and it has * * extreme sentimental value. Call Laura * * at 546-8031 ***

UNCLE SAMMY WANTS YOU!

THE BROTHERS OF SIGMA ALPHA MU Fraternity invite all University men to Spring Rush! Feb 14 Pizz Party Campus Center -904 7-11pm Feb 15 Casino Night Campus Center -917 8-11pm Feb 18 Bowling with the Brothers. Meet at Southwest Horseshoe 6pm. All events are free!

WANTED

PING PONG TABLE. Any condition. Please call Teresa at 546-6397

The Love Affair Continues

SPORTS

Minutewomen pull out another one, 70-67

Riley buzzer shot helps UM over Harvard

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

Trish Riley had a little magic in her last night at the Curry Hicks Cage.

With a page fresh out of the book of Magic Johnson's improbable last-second shots, the sophomore guard launched a halfcourt three-pointer at the buzzer that gave the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team a 70-67 win over Harvard University.

In a season that has seen many down-to-the-wire finishes, the Minutewomen keep finding different ways to pull it out. And the stunned look on Riley's face after the ball fell through the rim showed that this ending was the most amazing of them all.

Harvard had just tied the game with five seconds left as senior center Beth Chandler worked free for an inside bucket to tie the game. UMass coach Kathy Hewelt called timeout to set up the final play.

Just as diagrammed, right coach?

Well, not exactly. Senior forward Beth Wilbor inbounded from the end line, with the pass originally intended for Christel Zullo. However, when Zullo was double-teamed, the ball went to Riley deep in the backcourt. Confused, she sprinted upcourt and let it go from the stripe just a tick before the buzzer.

"I didn't know there were only five seconds left," Riley said afterward, then admitting that she didn't think the shot counted at first. That would explain her look of shock, but the shot did count, which would explain the jubilation on the parts of the UMass team and fans.

However, as has been the case a lot this year, the game never should have been that close. The Minutewomen enjoyed a 36-25 cushion at the half, after holding the Crimson to just 25 percent shooting (8-of-32) in the first 20 minutes.

They were clicking well in the first half, buoyed by a strong bench performance and some new twist in the starting lineup. Riley, along with senior guard Dianne Burke and freshman Jenny Moran, were starters along with Wilbor and Keyburn McCusker.

"Dianne has helped us," said Hewelt. "She'll play aggressively for 40 minutes or until she drops. She's making our defense click."

The Minutewomen broke open a close game, closing it with an 18-9 run that pushed the lead to 11 at the half.

The lead was as much as 10 early in the second half, before the Crimson got down to earth behind the inside play of Chandler. She scored 19 of her 26 points in the second half, wearing down the foul-plagued Minutewomen inside.

"We got a little tired and didn't play inside defense," Hewelt said.

A quick glance at the stat sheet would show this, the Crimson simply owning the glass with a 60-39 rebounding advantage.

Harvard chipped away until a Chandler bucket gave the Crimson a 61-60 lead with 2:51 to play. UMass captured the lead back on a hoop by Moran and never trailed again, although Harvard did all it could to force the game into overtime.

"We didn't want the overtime. We were pretty tired," Hewelt said.

Wilbor led the Minutewomen with 16 points, followed by Riley with 12.

Hoop-la: With her 16 points, Wilbor moves even closer to a milestone. Her 242 points this season gives her 929 for her four-year career. She would need to score 71 over the team's final seven games (six regular season and at least one in the Atlantic 10 tournament), or just over 10 a game, to reach 1,000 for her career. Currently, she ranks sixth on the all-time list with Tara Lewis (937) the next checkpoint.

Minutewomen, 70-67

Massachusetts (70): Beth Wilbor 6 4-6 16, Jenny Moran 4 0-0 8, Keyburn McCusker 2 2-4 6, Dianne Burke 1 0-0 2, Trish Riley 4 3-6 12, Christel Zullo 2 5-7 9, Helen Freeman 3 3-6 9, Sue Serafini 0 0-0 0, Colleen Hopkins 0 0-0 0, Lisa Hair 3 2-2 8. Totals: 25 19-31 70.

Harvard (67): Jen Mazanec 5 2-3 12, Sarah Duncan 2 0-3 4, Beth Chandler 7 12-15 26, Hanya Bluestone 3 0-0 6, Heidi Kosh 2 1-3 5, Beth Wambach 1 2-2 4, Jody Fink 1 0-0 2, Sandy Springer 1 1-2 3, Dina Hadrick 0 3-6 3, Melinda Nelson 0 2-2 2, Heather Harris 0 0-0 0. Totals: 22 23-35 67.

Three-point goals: Riley.

Collegian photo by Joel Solomon

Beth Wilbor (30) led UMass with 16 points and Trish Riley (24) hit a three-pointer at the buzzer to lead UMass past Harvard, 70-67 last night at the Cage.

Men's track takes third place at Eastern meet

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

Given the expectations, the weekend went about as good as it could have gone for the University of Massachusetts men's track team.

The Minutemen traveled to New Haven, Conn. Sunday to compete in the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Association meet. According to coach Ken O'Brien, the team didn't anticipate finishing any higher than third.

And third place it was for the Minutemen, though just barely, needing a solid team effort to pull it out.

"I felt there were several teams that were battling for places three through six, and we grabbed third by a narrow margin," O'Brien said. "We competed well to get it."

UMass finished with 56 total points, just barely ahead of the University of Maine, which came in with 54.5. The hosts from Southern Connecticut State University won the meet with 116 points, and the University of New Hampshire was second at 80.5. Rounding out the top six were Springfield College (48) and Lowell (37).

The score was almost similar to the one UMass had in this meet last year, but it was a more pleasing performance for O'Brien because it was more of a team effort.

"I feel we ran pretty well. It was one of those days where well beyond half the people competed well," O'Brien said. "There was little margin for error and about 80 to 85 percent of the team came through."

Highlighting the meet was a victory by the distance medley team of Herb Heffner, Steve Brown, Reinardo Flores and Fitzpatrick Hagan with a time of 10:22.5 seconds.

Brown also captured second in the 600 in 1:14.50 and Flores was second in the mile in 4:14.89. Art Smith was another second place finish, running a 9:04.22 in the two-mile. The two-mile relay team was also second in 8:04.66.

Other top finishers for the Minutemen were freshman Derek Moore, fourth in the 880 (1:58.58), Kevin Walters in the dash (fifth in 6.68 seconds) and Heffner in the mile (fifth in 4:22.74).

The mile relay team also finished fifth in 3:35.93.

"We scored in the events we had to score in. We went down naked in some events, but we've known that all year," O'Brien said. "There were no surprises."

UMass will run its final regular season meet Saturday, when it visits Dartmouth along with New Hampshire. After that, the Minutemen travel to the New England championships at MIT on Feb. 24-25 and the IC4A meet at Princeton on Mar. 4.

"We'll use the Dartmouth meet to tie up the loose ends before the New Englands," O'Brien said.

The future looks bright for UMass

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

With the problems the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team has had this season, a lot of people have been asking, "What next?"

But the question "what next?" — as in next season, is a pleasant one to think about.

The Minutemen will lose one senior, John Milum. Granted, when Milum is on, he can be effective.

But a couple of future Minutemen, high school seniors Tony Barbee and Tom Pace, are giving UMass plenty to look forward to.

Barbee and Pace, who have both signed letters of intent to attend the University next year, are both having standout seasons.

Barbee, a forward at North Central High School in Indianapolis, was called "probably the best player in the county" by the sports editor of the Indianapolis Star.

Barbee scored 34 points Friday night against Northwest City School and added 44 the next night against Perry Meridian. He averages 5.5 points per game for North Central, which is 12-6 and in second place in the county.

Pace averages just under 10 points per game for the Manuel High School in Denver. Manuel is currently 16-0 and ranked 11th in the country by USA Today.

So no matter how things turn out for the Minutemen this season, there is a bright future for the team to look ahead to.

Collegian staff member Ronn Garry contributed to this story.

Former UM athlete dies

Allyson Rioux, a former All-American shortstop for the University of Massachusetts women's softball team, died at her home in Stamford, Conn. last Thursday after an extended illness.

Rioux, who played for the Minutewomen between 1981-84, starred both on the field and off, according to UMass softball coach Elaine Sortino.

"I don't think I'll ever coach a nicer player," Sortino said. "She was one of the nicest people in the world, and that's not an exaggeration."

Rioux was named second team All-America her senior year after batting .372 with three home runs and 30 runs batted in.

WEATHER
Snow ending before noon. Windy and in the 20's. Tomorrow, partly sunny, 20's again.

SPORTS
Mens' hoops hits the road to take on 14th-ranking West Virginia University. Page 24.

NEWS
Department of Public Safety to announce new unit, deputy today. Page 3.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1989

COLLEGIAN

VOLUME CXXII LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY IN NEW ENGLAND ISSUE 13

Student listed 'fair' after 30-foot fall

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts student was listed in fair condition yesterday after falling 30 feet down an elevator shaft late Tuesday in Washington Residence Hall, officials at Cooley-Dickison Hospital said.

First-year student Dane Stolgitis, of Hardwick, was rushed to Cooley-Dickinson just before midnight where he was placed in the intensive care and treated for head, chest and back injuries, police said.

According to UMass spokeswoman Stacey Chase, officials believe the elevator in which Stolgitis was riding became wedged between the 3rd and 4th floors. Stolgitis then opened the doors from the inside and attempted to swing down to the 3rd-floor landing, missed, and plummeted to the bottom of the shaft.

Police, responding to a call from student security at 11:48 p.m., were able to communicate with Stolgitis who informed them he was injured.

Police and firefighters, unable to open the outer elevator doors to get to Stolgitis, gained access to the shaft through a service entrance.

Officials at the hospital said yesterday that Stolgitis was still in the intensive care unit.

"He's not critical by any means," said a hospital official. Further details about his condition were unavailable.

Soon after Stolgitis was removed from the shaft, the elevators were closed down and State inspection officials were notified and were on the scene this morning, said Paul Lawler, director of elevator maintenance at the physical plant.

State inspectors did not release any findings yesterday, but a more-detailed account of what happened is expected upon the completion of their investigation today, Lawler said.

Lawler said Stolgitis would have been able to open the hallway elevator doors from the inside of the shaft by tripping an electro-mechanical switch that controls the doors.

"There's an electro-mechanical interlock and it's just a matter of reaching into the hoistway and unlocking the door," he said.

Officials said they expect this is what happened because the elevators will not operate if either door is open, Lawler said.

But Lawler said it will not be clear what happened until the investigation is complete and the police talk to Stolgitis.

"It's hard to say," he said. "Everything right now is assumuptions. I don't know if he stopped the elevator with the stop switch," or if the elevator was to blame.

But he said it does not look as if a mechanical failure was the cause of the incident.

Lawler said that there have not been any major problems with the elevators in Washington or on campus generally, outside of routine maintenance.

Collegian photo by Chris Hosford

PUDDLE PEDAL — Alex Depillis, a senior mechanical engineering major, splashes his way by the School of Management in yesterday's drizzle.

Iran offers $2.6m bounty for life of Salman Rushdie

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS AND STAFF REPORTS

Iran yesterday placed a $2.6 million bounty on the head of Salman Rushdie, whose novel "The Satanic Verses" has enraged many of the world's Moslems, and he dropped from sight with police guarding his home and his publishers.

Rushdie — a Moslem born in Bombay, India, and educated at Cambridge — was reported yesterday to be with his wife, American novelist Marianne Wiggins, as he pondered whether to go ahead with a tour of the United States that was to begin Friday.

Rushdie was rumored to have included the University of Massachusetts on his tour, but school spokespersons yesterday could not confirm that a date had been set for his visit.

In Iran, Hojatolislam Hassan Saneie, head of the 15th Khordad Relief Agency said "If the executioner is a foreigner he will receive a million dollars," according to the Iranian news agency.

The reward for an Iranian, however, will be 200 million rials, or $2.6 million, the Islamic Republic News Agency quoted Saneie as saying.

Tehran Radio denounced the book as "a shameless onslaught on the sacred character of Islam's prophet," and protesters shattered windows at the British Embassy in Tehran.

"With a glance at the writer of this book one may see the hidden hands of world imperialism and the devious role of arrogance in the activities of publication agencies which serve it," said a Tehran Radio broadcast monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp.

About 2,000 noisy protesters appeared at the British Embassy in Tehran, Charge d'Affaires Nick Browne told BBC-TV, but he said authorities protected the embassy and the seven people inside.

"There was never any question of any of us being in danger," Browne said.

Tehran Radio, monitored by the BBC, reported other protests yesterday in Kashan, southeast of the holy city of Qom, and Firuzukh, east of Tehran.

Six people died earlier this week in protests in Pakistan.

A day earlier, Tehran Radio quoted Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini as saying Rushdie and his publishers "are hereby sentenced to death."

continued on page 7

Tsongas to meet with faculty

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

Paul Tsongas, designated the new chairman of the Massachusetts Board of Regents, is scheduled to meet with faculty at 9:30 this morning to discuss higher education in the state. The meeting is slated to last two hours in Bowker Auditorium.

Tsongas, a former US Senator, will be "exchanging his ideas with their [the faculty's] ideas," said Regents spokesman Terry Zoulas.

Today's forum will consist of a short speech by Tsongas and then a question—answer period with the audience, Zoulas said.

The meeting comes on the heels of an announcement yesterday by the Board of Regents that it plans to revamp the whole higher education system in Massachusetts.

Franklyn Jenifer, chancellor of the regents, said, "We're going to look at everything: closings, mergers, trimming down and expansions."

Zoulas said no definite plans have been

continued on page 4

UMass site of equestrian games

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

Some of the world's most talented student riders will compete at the University of Massachusetts this summer in the second equestrian tournament ever to be held in the United States.

More than 100 students representing 15 countries will compete in the International Intercollegiate Equestrian Games (IIEG) scheduled for Aug. 8 to 15, said Vickie Kahn, assistant riding instructor for Tilson Farm at UMass.

Kahn said the competition features events on par with Olympic tournaments. They include show jumping over 5-foot barriers, and dressage, which tests the harmony between the horse and rider, Kahn said.

"There's some excellent riders," she said. "Some are right up on their way to the top."

The UMass equestrian team will not be allowed to compete on their home ground, but Kahn said team horses will be used in the event.

In addition, the IIEG is planning to lease 50 horses for the event, and is organizing the students' housing, meals, and the week's festivities, she said.

In January, members from the UMass equestrian team competed in this year's first Nation's Cup competition in West Germany and Berlin, and Kahn said the August event will be similar to last month's tournament.

"It's the same idea," she said. "We may have a Nation's Cup someday, but not this year."

The competition will receive no funding from the University, and Kahn said the IIEG is seeking donations and corporate sponsorships to help students with air fare and other provisions.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation: 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr. GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
ASSOCIATES	BETTY-ANN MURPHY YANA DLUGY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE GEORGE FRANCY TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	RICK SASSON
COPY EDITOR	BETH GATELY
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	GEORGE FRANCY
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	GEORGE FRANCY
PRODUCTION	TRICIA HANLEY JOE KEENAN MIRIAM PIERCE JOYCE COHEN BETTY-ANN MURPHY KIM FRISINO

People in the news...

CBS to air unusual movie Sunday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cheryl Ladd's new TV movie might have a rather scandalous plot, but the story was recommended to her by her mother.

Airing Sunday on CBS, "The Fulfillment of Mary Gray" is based on the romantic novel "The Fulfillment," by LaVeryle Spencer, about a turn-of-the-century farm couple who consider an unusual way of overcoming their lack of children.

"The husband decides that his younger brother can father their child," Ladd said.

The author based the book on stories she had heard from her grandmother. The book was recommended to Ladd by her mother.

"My mother's an avid reader," Ladd said. "She not only recommended that I read it but said it would make a fabulous film. I read it and agreed with her. It has great characters and a rich and powerful story. Good stories are tough to find. I worked on the script six to eight months with Laird Koenig."

Ladd's husband, Brian Russell, was supervising producer on the film. Ladd said she liked the story because of the way the characters' relationships changed.

"The wife and the brother had been friendly up to that time, but there was nothing more," said Ladd. "But when the husband makes the announcement at the dinner table, it changes all relationships. They had been married seven years and had no children. He comes to the conclusion it was because he had mumps as a boy. He's a very religious man and he prays and prays and comes to this decision.

"She's very hurt by the suggestion that he would give her to another man. He thinks he's giving her a gift. Children are very important on farms, and it's important that the land be passed on generation to generation. When the husband goes out of town for a few days they make a baby and fall in love. Now it really gets sticky because she loves both of them."

The move also stars Ted Levine as her husband and Lewis Smith as the younger brother. Piers Haggard directed. The movie was filmed in Brenham, Texas, which stood in for Minnesota.

Ladd said she was attracted to the book because it's a strong story that presents "a moral issue that we can all relate to."

"These are all imperfect people," she said. "You can feel the pain they're going through. They're good people trying to do the right thing. The husband is solid, quiet and introspective. The brother is more open and more fun. Put them together and they make a complete man."

Ladd's last television appearance was the CBS miniseries "Bluegrass," but she is best known for the popular series of the 1970s, "Charlie's Angels."

Her latest feauture film, "Millenium," which also stars Daniel J. Travanti and Kris Krux will be out in April.

Fonda and husband to try separation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress and aerobics guru Jane Fonda and husband Tom Hayden have decided to separate on a trial basis, a spokesman for the couple said yesterday.

"Tom and Jane consider this separation a private matter and will have no public comment or statement on it," said Stephen Rivers.

Fonda, 51, and Hayden, 49, a California assemblyman who first rose to prominence as a co-founder of Students for a Democratic Society and as a Chicago Seven defendant, were married in 1973.

They have a two children, Troy, 15, and Vanessa, who is Fonda's daughter from a previous marriage to director Roger Vadim.

AP photo
Actress Jane Fonda and husband Tom Hayden

Tonite Tonite Tonite

THE FIVE COLLEGE PROGRAM IN PEACE AND WORLD SECURITY STUDIES

PRESENTS:

"THE SPECTER OF GLOBAL ENVIRONMENTAL CATASTROPHE"

A talk by:

Dr. Arjun Makijani

Director, Institute for Energy and Environmental Research

8:00 P.M.

Thursday, February 16

Thompson Hall, 106, the University of Massachusetts

Sponsored by the Five College Program in Peace an World Security Studies (PAWSS). This event is free and open to the public. For additional information, call PAWSS at 549-4600, ext. 519

ALL NEW! ALL PREMIERES!
The 21st International Tournee of ANIMATION
PLEASANT ST. THEATER
Northampton
586-0935
LAST WEEK
Weekdays at 7 & 9:15
Friday at 5:45, 7:50, 10
Sat. & Sun. at 3:45, 5:45, 7:50, 10

Pearl Street
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON MA
Thursday, February 16
BO DIDLEY
Postponed
Postponed until April 7
Come on down and get down anyway with Little Frankie and The Premiers only $3 cover
Friday, February 17
Yes, Brazil
Mambo Calypso Bosanora
Carnival Band
$5 cover
Saturday, February 18
Comedy 8:00-10:00 pm
Larry Norton
Paul Kozlowski
Bob Seibel
after comedy
Urban Blight
NYC's hottest dance band
Ska Meets Rhythm and Blues
$5 cover

LOCAL

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman
THE HILLS ARE NOT ALIVE — It was a quiet and gray day up on Orchard Hill yesterday.

Collapsed storm drain under repair at Smith College

NORTHAMPTON — The Department of Public Works said yesterday they are enlarging the 25-foot-wide sinkhole, which developed on Smith College campus last weekend, to get at the main problem — a collapsed storm drain.

The chasm, which began as a three foot wide hole in the middle of Paradise Road, opened up Sunday when a stone block from an old storm drain became displaced 26 feet underground and caused the sewer and gas mains to rupture. The resulting sewage flow caused the underbelly of the street to erode and eventually collapse.

DPW officials sent a man wearing protective equipment through the outdated storm drain until he located the cave-in sight.

"We're very lucky the 16-inch water main that runs through there didn't break. That would be real trouble," said DPW Department Superintendent Paul O. Hadsel.

Hadsel said his men are in the process of expanding the hole so they may fit the necessary equipment inside to fix the damaged areas. They are installing bracing systems to keep the water main undamaged, he said.

He said it could cost the city $20,000 to $30,000 to fix the old storm drain.

Hadsel said he hopes to restore normal traffic to the street, which has been closed off since the accident, by the beginning of next week. — THOMAS RODRIGUES

Public Safety to announce deputy chief and new unit

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

The Department of Public Safety at the University of Massachusetts is scheduled to announce today its choice for a new deputy chief of police and structural changes.

Director Arthur Hilson is scheduled to introduce the six new full-time officers appointed to the police force last fall, and a new specialized investigative police unit.

The Community Disorders Unit, Hilson's brainchild with a name borrowed from a Boston police detachment, will investigate crimes against race, color, sex, religion, national origin or sexual preference.

"The group will work on these problems which deserve full-time attention, day or night, they will be there to investigate the situation," Hilson said.

CDU will also handle all criminal investigations, drug cases, sensitive crimes such as rape and moral offenses and juvenile crimes.

The unit, headed up by Lt. Michael Grabiec, is currently slated to be made up of three officers, of which only one has been named. Hilson said the unit may increase its force to five officers.

In addition, Hilson said he will announce three clergy members who will serve as police chaplains. They will be issued badges and will be on call to serve the ecclesiastical needs of police officers, victims and crime suspects.

"There certainly are times when an officer, or a victim may need the counsel of a clergyman and they are there to answer that need," Hilson said.

The new deputy chief will fill the void left by former UMass police Chief Robert G. Joyce, who resigned last September when Hilson announced plans to reorganize the department, creating a deputy chief's position to serve as the department's senior uniformed officer.

A Medal for Exceptional Service will be awarded and Letters of Commendation and Certificates of Appreciation will be distributed to about a dozen recipients.

The announcements will be made at 3 p.m. in the Robsham Memorial Center for Visitors.

Two vehicles collide near NAH $1,700 in damages was reported

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

Police said an accident near New Africa House caused a total of $1,700 in damage to the two vehicles involved Tuesday.

The first vehicle, double-parked in front of the New Africa House was backing up when it collided with a truck travelling south on the one-way drive.

The driver of the backing vehicle, which sustained $1,500 in damages, was cited for failure to use care in backing and violating a learner's driving permit. The truck received $200 in damages.

In other police reports:

- A student reported a knapsack, containing a calculator and Sony Walkman worth $185, stolen from the Campus Center Tuesday, police said. Further investigation with Amherst Police revealed that an individual they had arrested for house break-ins was allegedly in possession of the walkman at the time of arrest. UMass police will summons the individual on a charge of receiving stolen property under $250, police said.
- Police said a state vehicle parked near Morrill Science Building was found Tuesday with its window smashed. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $300.
- A hole was found in the glass of a Parking Control Booth Tuesday and its door was found kicked in. The padlock on the door had been broken and damage was estimated at $55, police said.
- A door in room 66 Bartlett Hall was found filled with glue Tuesday. Repair to the door was estimated at $100, police said.
- A student reported that his vehicle had been struck by another vehicle upon entering the Campus Center Garage Tuesday, causing $400 in damages. The driver of the offending car then fled the scene. The victim furnished police with a description of the car and the driver. The case is under investigation, police said.
- A student reported Tuesday a ski rack had been stolen from the roof of his car while parked in E Lot, police said.
- Police aided a young woman on the 10th floor of John Adams Residence Hall Tuesday night when she slipped in some water on the floor and received a laceration to her chin, police said.

Rothman reads Bible

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association last night managed to pass two motions on its agenda, calling for an increase in police presence on campus and the creation of a student committee to help plan the projected Mullins Convocation Center.

At its onset, the meeting was stalled by attempts to adjourn from last week's meeting, where filibustering prevented an official dismissal.

The meeting was mired only by W. Greg Rothman's attempt to filibuster by reading from the Bible and from the student directory for several minutes.

For months, conservative senators have attempted to block a senate ratification of Shari Silkoff and Jason Rabinowitz as co-presidents.

Rothman's antics were quickly ruled out of order by Senate Speaker Robert Fadel, acting in accordance with Robert's Rules of Order, the procedure followed by the senate.

Rothman said the attempt was a "successful" effort to prevent last week's motion to approve the co-presidency issue from reaching the floor.

Sen. Bob McDevitt said last night's was the most productive meeting the SGA has held in months, delayed only by the Silkoff and Rabinowitz issue, which was dropped from this week's agenda because of legal difficulties.

In dealing with campus issues, the senate unanimously supported upgrading police presence in "high crime" and "high rape and attack" areas including E-lots and the Orchard Hill/Sylvan path.

Sen. Robb Smith, who sponsored the proposal, said "It's about time [the motion] passed." The Public Policy committee will begin forming its recommendations to the administration immediately, he added.

Some recommendations include permanently assigning security workers to parking lots as a crime deterrent, and allotting greater funds to public safety, Smith said.

"I know the budget cuts may not make this feasible," he said. But, "I think we have to make it feasible."

Smith said he will be meeting with Executive Director of Public Safety Arthur Hilson in two weeks to discuss further concerns and formulate recommendations.

Also passed was a proposal to establish a student governing board for the Mullins Convocation Center, which was approved for construction last semester.

The SGA previously endorsed a student fee for the center, and Sen. Dan Chesnicka, the motion's co-sponsor, said student input as well as student monies should be involved in the building's planning and construction.

Several committee appointments were also finalized, after heated debate and extended speeches initiated by campus conservatives.

In other business, the SGA nominating sub-committee appointed Susan Gordon and Sen. Brett Min to the SGA Finance committee and Martha Rutledge, Sens. W. Greg Rothman and Matthew Happy to the Government Affairs committee.

The United Students Agenda also announced its political ticket for the upcoming SGA elections: Tracy Davis for president and Eric Nakajima for Student Trustee.

No permit, rain stop bonfire

Poor weather conditions yesterday may not be the first barrier to a local fraternity's plans to rally students around a bonfire at the campus pond in protest of state budget cuts.

Phi Mu Delta President Alan Aikens said he is trying to reschedule the bonfire for next Wednesday at 6 p.m., but confusion surrounding the purpose of the event may prevent a permit from being obtained.

The University is allowed one bonfire permit a year. Paul Lalonde, assistant chief of the Amherst Fire Department, said he thought the fraternity's event was to be part of a UMass "winter carnival."

Aikens said the event was inspired last fall by the winter carnival, but "red tape" caused the bonfire to be rescheduled because the fire from coinciding with the winter events.

Lalonde said he will not issue a permit to the fraternity until he is able to "physically" inspect the site at the campus pond, gather information about plans for crowd control, and speak with the event's organizers.

Tsongas

continued from page 1

made for specific schools in the system yet, but that anything is possible.

"Everything is on the table," he said.

The Regents did not release any specific information about the plan along with the announcement.

Tsongas has yet to be officially accepted as the chairman of the Regents because of his affiliation with the law firm Foley, Hoag and Eliot, which represents several state colleges and universities. He cannot make any motions within the board, but he is behind an aggressive campaign to bring UMass into competition with schools such as Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Zoulas said.

After the meeting with faculty and students Tsongas will leave for Springfield where he will meet with all the presidents and chancellors of Massachusetts' 29 public higher education facilities, Zoulas said.

SAVE SAVE SAVE SAVE SAVE SAVE

THE FIVE COLLEGE PROGRAM IN PEACE AND WORLD SECURITY STUDIES

PRESENTS:

GLOBAL PERILS IN THE 1990's: CHALLENGES TO INTERNATIONAL PEACEMAKING

The PAWSS Spring 1989 Lecture Series

Thursday, February 16: Arjun Makhijani, Institute for Energy and Environmental Research: "THE SPECTER OF GLOBAL ENVIRONMENTAL CATASTROPHE." UMass. Thompson 106. 8:00 p.m.

Wednesday, March 1: Jason Clay, Cultural Survival, Inc.: "IN THE FACE OF EXTINCTION: INDIGENOUS PEOPLES." Smith College. Seelye 10. 8:00 p.m.

Wednesday, March 8: Leonard Spector, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. "THE UNDECLARED BOMB: NUCLEAR PROLIFERATON IN THE 1990'S." Amherst College. Campus Center Theater. 8:00 p.m.

Tuesday, March 14: Robert Shuey, Congressional Research Service, and Michael Klare, PAWSS, Hampshire College: "FANNING THE FLAMES: ARMS AND MISSILE SALES TO THE THIRD WORLD." Hampshire College. Franklin Patterson. West Lecture Hall. 8:00 p.m.

Thursday, March 30: Gordon Burck and Charles Flowerree, Federation of American Scientists: "PROLIFERATING POISONS: THE SPREAD OF CHEMICAL WEAPONS." UMass. School of Business Administration. Rm. 120. 8:00 p.m.

Thursday, April 6: Isabel Letelier, Institute for Policy Studies: "GENDER VIOLENCE: THE GLOBAL WAR AGAINST WOMEN." Umass. Thompson 102. 8:00 p.m.

Monday, April 10: Susan George, Transnational Institute: "THE DEBT CRISIS: GLOBAL ECONOMIC DISORDER IN THE 1990'S." Smith College. McConnell 103. 8:00 p.m.

All events are free and open to the public.
For information, call PAWSS, 413-549-4600, ext. 519

COLLEGIAN
NEEDS WRITERS
Come down to 113 Campus Center to start a successful writing career

-Are you an Art Major who wants to design posters?
-Are you an English, Communications, or Journalism Major who wants to do press or publicity?
-Are you interested in bringing diverse speakers to this campus?

WE WANT YOU!!
DVP
Distinguished Visitors Program
New members meeting
February 21st in C.C. 811B at 6:30 PM
distinguished visitors program
refreshments will be served

UMASS SKI CLUB

18th Annual Ski Snatch Thank You Party
(For those who worked 10 hours or more.)
Sunday, February 19, at 9:00 p.m.
Pick up invitation and information at Ski Club Office, 430 Student Union

RIDES PROVIDED
Please Don't Drive!

SAME DAY FILM PROCESSING
FILM IN BY 10 AM / PRINTS BY 4 PM
1-HOUR SERVICE ALSO AVAILABLE

A Different Money-Saving Special Every Day . . .

MON: 25% OFF FILM & ALBUMS
TUE: LARGE SAVINGS ON REPRINTS
WED: 2 PRINTS FOR THE PRICE OF 1
THU: 1 FREE 5x7 PRINT WITH EVERY 3
FRI: SAVE ON 5x7 SUPER PRINTS
EVERY DAY: A SECOND SET OF PRINTS AT A SUBSTANTIAL DISCOUNT

The Foto Factory
257 TRIANGLE ST. / AMHERST

Knapp to address Faculty Senate

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

The new chairman of the Board of Trustees and the President of the University of Massachusetts will address the Faculty Senate at its first meeting of this semester today.

It is not known what President David C. Knapp or Chair Gordon Oakes will tell the faculty at the 3:30 p.m. meeting, but all indications would point to the topic of the University's budget plight, faculty members say.

The two men were invited to address the faculty with the hope that they could shed more light on the financial crisis the school faces and perhaps discuss remedies, said Faculty Senate Secretary Roland Chilton.

"We're most concerned with the budget cuts and hope he [Knapp] will speak to that issue. This really is a crisis time for the University because the state simply doesn't have the money to give us," Chilton said.

Chilton said the faculty is likely to pose a variety of questions to Knapp and Oakes, and it is possible the discussion will turn to what former Sen. Paul Tsongas, designated chairman of the Board of Regents of Higher Education who is also scheduled to speak today, had to say to the entire faculty during his morning address.

In other scheduled senate business:

- An annual report from the University Writing Committee, which met seven times in the 1987-1988 academic year to discuss aspects of the freshman writing program, including placement tests, tutoring programs and teaching assistant training and working conditions.
- The special report of the Academic Matters Council concerning the approval of five new courses to the curriculum.

Awareness week planned for April

Organizers to confront stereotypes of gay and lesbian life

By PAUL McALEER
Collegian Correspondent

Planning for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Awareness Week 1989 began earlier this week, and according to the event's coordinator, the goal this year is to confront stereotypes and provide support to the gay community.

The annual event, now in its 5th year, is scheduled for April 7-14, said Felice Yeskel, coordinator of the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns.

Yeskel said nothing has been specifically planned yet for this year's week, but "people are trying to get Harvey Fierstein." Fierstein is a Broadway playwright whose best-known work is Torch Song Trilogy.

In past years the Week has consisted of 40 different events, such as workshops, speakers, films, panel discussions and cultural events, Yeskel said.

"The goals of awareness week on campus about gay, lesbian and bisexual people; to confront myths, stereotypes and misinformation the people have," she said. "And to support gay, lesbian and bisexual people on campus and to make more visible the diverseness of the gay, lesbian and bisexual culture."

Planning sessions will be held 12 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. every Tuesday, until the week of April 7, in the Campus Center. The meeting are open to the public.

In past years, co-sponsors of the event have been the chancellor's office, the dean of students office, the area governments and various on-campus groups. The budget for past Awareness Weeks has been $5,000 to $10,000. This year's budget is not yet known, she said.

"I think it's an opportunity to get involved, have fun, broaden awareness of gay, bisexual and lesbian concerns for the whole campus community and help actualize the goal that UMass is a diverse community," Yeskel said.

"People involved in the planning of the week can learn a variety of new skills, including organizational skills, outreach, skills, production skills and poster design," she said.

Women's Forum

Lecture

The Women's Studies and Anthropology departments are co-sponoring a lecture by Henrietta Moore of Cambridge University on "Feminism and Anthropology: Gender and Difference" at noon Tuesday, Feb. 21, in the 6th floor lounge of Thompson Hall.

Brown bag lunch

As part of its brown bag lunch series, the Women's Studies department is sponsoring an informal lecture by by Barbara Schreier, a professor in the Home Economics department, from 12:15 to 1:30 Wednesday, Feb. 22 in Room 804-808 of the Campus Center.

Schreier will speak on "Becoming American Women: Clothing and Acculturation for Jewish Immigrant Women 1880-1920."

WAGES

Former undergraduate WAGES members are encouraged to attend a meeting at 6 p.m. Monday, March 5, to discuss attempts to reinstate the Women's Admissions and General Educational Support program. Call Nancy Rios at 549-4422 or Nancy Bishop at 256-0941 for information and location.

Concert

At 8 p.m. March 18 at the Northampton Center for the Arts, The Buds and New Moon Productions will present Alix Dobkin and special guest Linda Shear in a concert for women.

Dobkin produced the first lesbian album, and Shear was a founding member of the first openly lesbian band, in this country. The concert will benefit the Support Group for Dykes with Illness and Disabilities.

Support group

Women auto-mechanics, landscapers, carpenters, electricians, plumbers, and others who work in non-traditional jobs have formed a support group. All women in such jobs or interested in such trades are invited to meetings from 5:45 to 7:45 Monday nights during February, March, and April. Call 545-0883.

Kids driving you crazy?

Parents Anonymous is a free and confidential self-help group for any parent who would like support in the difficulties of parenting. For a contact person and location of weekly meetings, call 1-800-882-1250.

LARGEST MUSICAL SALE IN NEW ENGLAND

FALCETTI MUSIC CENTERS CELEBRATING 32nd ANNIVERSARY

$500,000.00 INVENTORY CLEARANCE SALE

Holiday Inn, Holyoke, MA Exit 15 Rte. 91

3 DAYS ONLY- Sat., Sun., mon. Feb. 18, 19, 20, 1989
12:00 noon to 8:00 p.m. EACH DAY

FOR MORE INFORMATION, CALL 538-7970 or 543-1002

ACCESSORIES
GUITAR STRINGS ½ PRICE
CBI 10' CABLE ½ PRICE
MICROPHONES ½ PRICE
HARMONICAS 32% OFF
KEYBOARD STANDS 32-64% OFF
THOUSANDS OF ACCESSORIES FROM $1.00 ON UP

GUITARS & BASSES
APPLAUSE, CARLOS & YAMAHA ACOUSTICS 32% OFF
CHARVEL 32-50% OFF
GUILD 32% OFF
PEAVEY 32-50% OFF
YAMAHA ELECTRICS ½ PRICE
USED GUITARS $50 ON UP
OVER 200 GUITARS & BASSES

PORTABLE KEYBOARDS
YAMAHA PSRT2 was 219 109.50
YAMAHA PSR80 was 995 495.00
YAMAHA & CASIO PORTABLES 32-50% OFF
USED PORTABLES $20 ON UP
OVER 150 PORTABLE KEYBOARDS

CRATE 32% OFF
KMD GV100 64% OFF
PEAVEY 32%
YAMAHA BUDOKAN $69
YAMAHA 1/2 PRICE
OVER 50 AMPLIFIERS

SYNTHESIZERS
YAMAHA DX100 was 445 NOW 199
YAMAHA YS200 was 1295 NOW 879
ENSONIQ MIRAGE was 1295 NOW 879
ALL YAMAHA DX's 32% OFF
USED SYNTHESIZERS FROM $100 ON UP

RECORDING EQUIPMENT
FOSTEX X-30 4 TRACK 395.00
FOSTEX 20, 2 TRACK 995.00
FOSTEX 80, 8 TRACK 1,795.00
FOSTEX 4050 695.00
AUTOLOCATOR
ALL HOSA & FOSTEX RECORDING ACCESSORIES 32-50% OFF

DRUMS
ALL CB, LUDWIG AND YAMAHA 32-50% OFF
CYMBALS & HARDWARE 32-64% OFF
DRUMSTICKS ½ PRICE
USED CYMBALS & HARDWARE $5.00 ON UP

MIDI EQUIPMENT
AKAI PRODUCTS ½ PRICE
YAMAHA RX7 595
YAMAHA RX5 895
YAMAHA QX21 149
ALL ENSONIQ, 360 SYSTEMS
KURZWEIL, ROLAND & YAMAHA 32-64% OFF

SIGNAL PROCESSORS
YAMAHA R100 was 295 175.00
YAMAHA SPX500 was 595 395.00
DOD DSP128 was 495 335.00
DOD & YAMAHA RACKMOUNT GEAR AT 32% OFF

EFFECT PEDALS
DOD 32% OFF
BOSS 32% OFF
PEAVEY ½ PRICE
YAMAHA ½ PRICE
OVER 100 EFFECT PEDALS

MUSIC
OVER 500 ASSORTED BOOKS PRICED AT $1.00 AND UP!!

SOUND REINFORCEMENT
ALL CRATE
PEAVEY & YAMAHA
*POWER AMPS
*MIXERS
*SPEAKERS
32-50% OFF

FILENE'S BASEMENT
ON MARCH 18th UMASS TAKES OFF
7 NIGHTS HOTEL/AIR/TRANSFERS
NO HIDDEN COSTS!
FROM BOSTON/STAY AT THE BEST HOTELS
Buy with confidence. Buy your vacation from Filene's basement.

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY or NEGRIL
Sat. night dep
from $449+12

BAHAMAS
At Deluxe Beachfront Nassau Beach Hotel
Fri. night dep
from $479+10

PUERTO LA CRUZ
Suites at Beachfront Doral Beach Hotel
Sunday dep
from $569+17

CANCUN
Beachfront 1st Class Hotel
Sat. night dep
from $449+17

OPEN TODAY
10 Locations in New England
Guaranteed Reservations!
Guaranteed Low Prices!
THE VACATION OUTLET
FILENE'S BASEMENT
For information or to Book call
617 267-8100
FIRST CLASS VACATIONS AT BARGAIN BASEMENT PRICES!

For Your Information

For Your Information is a service of the Collegian to its readers. Because of a lack of space, not all press releases can be included in FYI. For more information, contact David at the Collegian, at 545-3500.

Discussion
The Program for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Concerns is sponsoring a discussion on "Internalized Homophobia." The forum is scheduled for today from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. For more information, call 545-4824.

Lecture
The Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies (PAWSS) will present a talk by environmental expert Dr. Arjun Makhijani on "The Specter of Global Environmental Catastrophe." The program has been scheduled for today at 8 p.m. in Thompson 106. For more information, contact Adi Bemak at 549-4600, ext. 519.

Workshop
"Financial Planning for Writers" is the subject of a workshop led by Sally A. Livingston, a financial planner who specializes in working with craftspeople and artists. The workshop is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 18, from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Jones Library. For more information, contact B.J. Roche at 339-4886.

Fundraiser
The Hampshire County Association for Retarded Citizens has scheduled its first annual Cross-Country Ski-a-thon and Citizen's Race for Sunday, Feb. 19. The race is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m., and the ski-a-thon is scheduled to start at 10 a.m. For more information, contact Frank Netto at 268-3298.

Support Group
For separated and divorced men. The group will be meeting in Northampton on Wednesdays from 7 to 8:30 p.m., beginning this month. For more information, contact David Arbeitman at 527-5911.

Career Day
The Department of Hotel Restaurant and Travel Administration have scheduled a Career Day on Tuesday, Feb. 21 at the Campus Center Auditorium from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information, contact Leon at 549-6270 or Liz at 549-0975.

Lecture
"JAP-Baiting: Harmless Fun or Ethnic Slur?" is the subject of a lecture to be delivered by Prof. Gary Spencer Tuesday, Feb. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in room 804-808 of the Campus Center. For more information, contact Leslie Morris at 545-2350.

Meeting
Representatives of the Legal Services Center and the University Internship Program will speak about the legal assistant internships offered at LSC and how to apply for them. The meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 22 at 3:30 p.m. in room 901 in the Campus Center. For more information, contact the Legal Services Center at 545-1995.

Lecture
"Dr. W.E.B. DuBois: A Personal Memoir," a lecture to be given by Dr. John Hope Franklin as part of Black History Month, is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 23 at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of Memorial Hall. Dr. Franklin is the James B. Duke Professor Emeritus of History at Duke University. For more information, call 545-3137.

Fax Service
The Campus Center Hotel now offers Fax service to the University community, as well as a Telex service. Documents to be faxed are to be brought to the Hotel Reservations office on the third floor of the Campus Center from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Payment may be made directly or by using departmental purchase orders. For more information, contact the service at 549-6000, ext. 7535.

Support Group
P-FLAG, Pioneer Valley Support Group for parents, families, friends of lesbians and gays, meets on the second Tuesday of every month at 7:30 p.m. in the Grace Episcopal Church Parish Hall in Amherst. For more information, contact Jean M.B. Genasci at 532-4883.

Census Information
The annual town census is now underway by mail in Amherst. All forms must be returned by March 1. For more information, contact Cornelia Como at 253-9382.

Escort Service
The Department of Public Safety offers a nightly escort service to all points on campus. The service runs from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. For more information, call 545-2123.

Lecture
The UMass Central American Solidarity Association (CASA) is scheduling a lecture by Salomon Alfaro Estrada and Rene Hernandez. The two are from the University of El Salvador. The lecture is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 23 at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. For more information, contact Geoff Zassenhaus at 546-6873.

Support Group
A support therapy group for cancer patients, their family and friends is beginning in Amherst. The first of eight weekly sessions is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 28. The sessions will be led by Margaret Gosselin, MPS, and Albey Reiner, Ph.D of the Cancer Counseling Center of Amherst. For more information, call 549-7776 or 545-0087.

Meeting
The Third World Caucus is an "umbrella organization consisting of members from many historically oppressed and underrepresented communities." Meetings are held every Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. in room 178 of the Campus Center. For more information, contact Adam Stein at 546-9535.

Cutting colleges costs the state

BOSTON (AP) — Continued reductions in state support for the University of Massachusetts system could jeopardize the state's future economic growth, according to a report issued Tuesday.

"Some legislators are used to thinking that public colleges and universities are dependent on the state, instead of the other way around," said Sen. John Olver, D-Amherst.

Olver said the report by UMass-Boston political science professor Thomas Ferguson shows the economic impact the state's public higher education system has on the state and the need for continued strong support from state government.

The report said the immediate economic impact of the UMass system is more than $1 billion, although its total budget this year is $732 million.

But the greatest impact is long term, the report said, noting that more than 70 percent of UMass graduates remain in the state and continue contributing to the economy. Ferguson told a Statehouse news conference that this differs from the state's private institutions, whose students typically come from out of state and who frequently leave the state after graduation.

Considering the widely held view that Massachusetts faces a labor shortage in the near future, Ferguson said the need for state support of its public universities and colleges is even more acute.

Ferguson projected that a 10 percent increase in direct state funding to the colleges, totaling nearly $74 million over four years to produce 3,261 additional graduates, could net a $225 million gain to the state's wealth.

Traditional mentoring has downfalls, dean says

By KENDRA PRATT
Collegian Correspondent

Women and minorities who are searching for jobs should be wary of the ingrained inequities in the traditional mentoring process and should attempt to develop less hierarchial ways of interacting professionally, the new dean of the School of Education said yesterday.

Marilyn Haring-Hidore, the first woman to hold her position at the University of Massachusetts, spoke to more than 80 faculty and students yesterday afternoon in Campus Center Room 808.

As the third speaker in the Women's Studies department's informal Brown Bag Luncheon and Lecture series, Haring-Hidore said alternatives to the traditional methods of mentoring need to be employed.

Haring-Hidore said the traditional understanding of mentoring, "the element of a more experienced person helping a less xperienced person in a transitional period," adds to elitism.

White men, who have dominated the job market, tend to select proteges who resemble themselves, she said, adding that this hinders the career opportunities of minorities and women.

The term mentoring should be changed to "education and modeling" to equalize and harmonize the positions of the colleagues, Haring-Hidore said.

She suggested two alternate terms to mentoring: networking and empowerment.

Networking, she said, allows two people to exchange needs in a peer relationship, and empowerment makes leadership a method in which power and information are shared.

These two approaches to mentoring would help open access to those people who have been excluded from career advancement, she said.

"If we make an effort to use these methods ourselves," Harding-Hidore said, "then we can change the internal stucture of the system."

TOM HANKS

He's a man of peace in a savage land...
Suburbia.

The 'BURBS

A comedy about one nice guy who got pushed too far.

IMAGINE ENTERTAINMENT presents a ROLLINS-MORRA-BREZNER production
"THE 'BURBS" BRUCE DERN CARRIE FISHER RICK DUCOMMUN and COREY FELDMAN written by DANA OLSEN
music by JERRY GOLDSMITH film editor JAMES H. SPENCER director of photography ROBERT STEVENS produced by DANA OLSEN
PG SOME MATERIAL MAY BE INAPPROPRIATE FOR CHILDREN UNDER 13 1989 STRIKE produced by LARRY BREZNER and MICHAEL FINNELL directed by JOE DANTE A UNIVERSAL RELEASE

OPENS FRIDAY AT A THEATRE NEAR YOU.

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS
MARCH 18-25

When you break away this year, do it with style.

SUN FUN!! round trip air 7 nights great night life

Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB 547-3437
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.

$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP

THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION

A $75 Reservation Deposit Required

SAVE

LAGNAF

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

■ Rushdie

continued from page 1

"I call on all zealous Moslems to execute them quickly, wherever they find them, so that no one will dare to insult Islamic sanctity," it quoted Khomeini as saying.

"The Satanic Verses" has sold more than 100,000 copies since it was published in Britain in September to critical acclaim.

At least five countries have formally banned the novel: India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Egypt and South Africa.

Christian Bourgois, a French publishing house that bought the rights to the novel, said yesterday it was delaying pulication to avoid any risk to the company, its clients and readers.

Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati told diplomats in Tehran the government would order the closure of cultural centers of nations that permit publication of the book, Tehran Radio reported.

"There has been no direct impact on ties so far," IRNA said yesterday, "but by being the first to allow the book to be published on its soil, Britain could pay a heavy price for ignoring the strong sentiments of over 1 billion Moslems worldwide."

Mostafa Barzegar, spokesman for Iran's Culture and Islamic Guidance Ministry, announced a ban on books published by Viking and other imprints of the Penguin Group, and said Penguin's invitation to the second Tehran International Book Fair in May has been canceled, IRNA said.

Playwright Harold Pinter led a delegation to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's residence at 10 Downing St. to deliver a letter denouncing the Iranian threats.

"Salman Rushdie lives in this country and must be given full protection, along with the other people involved," said the letter.

Police were posted outside Rushdie's home and the office of his publisher, Viking, and Kureishi said Rushdie had gone into hiding.

"He is obviously very frightened," said Kureishi.

AP photo

SATANIC VERSES PROTEST — Raising clenched fists, Iranians demonstrate in Tehran streets yesterday, chanting, "Down with Britain and down with America" to protest the publishing of the controversial book "The Satanic Verses" in Britain.

University Health Services is offering a 10-session group:

"Exploring Lesbian, Gay, and Bi-sexual Identities."

Tuesday evenings,
7:30 - 9:00,
beginning early March.

Pre-registration and pre-group interview required.

For information, or an appointment, call 545-2337.

PRESIDENTS DAY SALE!

Panasonic COS505 $149 WITH SPEAKERS, INSTALLED

SANYO ER 100 $199 WITH SPEAKERS, INSTALLED

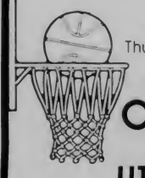
Panasonic CQ 300 $239 WITH SPEAKERS, INSTALLED

- THESE ARE ONLY 3 of the NUMEROUS SYSTEMS ON SALE FOR PRESIDENTS DAY!

FOR CELLULAR PHONES, RADAR DETECTORS AND AUTO SECURITY SEE THE EXPERTS AT

CUSTOM CAR SOUND
573 RIVERDALE ST W SPRINGFIELD 734-4995
141 DAMON RD NORTHAMPTON 586-5258

CATCH THE TOP AT THE TOP!



9:30 PM
Thurs., Feb. 16

BOSTON CELTICS VS UTAH JAZZ

ALSO AT 8 PM - URI VS TEMPLE

TOP of the CAMPUS LOUNGE
Monday-Friday 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 a.m.
Saturday & Sunday 4:00 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.
11th FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER

HAIKU Contest!
Win a trip to Japan.

OLD POND...
A FROG LEAPS IN WATER'S SOUND.

Win a trip to Japan. Winner will be drawn from 200 honorable mentions selected this spring. Qualified haikus will be published in the American Haiku Society's Anthology.

Send one Haiku poem per person with two self addressed stamped envelopes to American Haiku Society P.O. Box 1084 Middletown, CT 06457

Restaurant Managers
You are cordially invited to a
CHI-CHI'S MEXICAN RESTAURANTE
OPEN HOUSE
Tuesday, February 21, from 10am-8pm at Chi-Chi's®, 955 Riverdale St., W. Springfield, MA

We'd like you to come in and talk to our top management about exciting opportunities that are currently available for MANAGERS AND ASSISTANT MANAGERS in MASSACHUSETTS, CONNECTICUT and NEW JERSEY. Our careers are second to none, and offer all of the great incentives you'd expect from a company with our reputation for quality, innovation and employee recognition.

Come in and learn about the exciting plans we have for our future growth--and yours! Please bring a resume with you.

If you're unable to attend our open house, please send a resume, in confidence, to: Anne Fleshman, CHI-CHI'S, Dept. SR, 1008 Old Post Rd., Copley, PA 18037.
EOE m/f

STILL COMICS' #1 SWINGER!

the AMAZING SPIDER-MAN™

Available at:

Same Bat Channel
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
586-8775

Hundreds of 25¢ Comics
All back issues 15% off
(including wall comics)

Discount Games and Supplies

GRADUATE NURSES

Look Into Your Future at New England Medical Center

New England Medical Center is committed to the professional development of our nurses. Here you will find a variety of specialty areas in adult and pediatrics that provide you with the opportunities to develop your nursing skills in the areas of your choice. During your six week orientation, you will be supported in meeting your objectives by a preceptor and during your first year you will participate in patient care conferences, workshops, seminars and management training. As you gain primary nursing experience, you will have an opportunity to join a collaborative practice and work with a physician and ambulatory nurses to coordinate the care of your patients through an entire episode of illness. We are committed to your success on our staff and practice in an autonomous environment that fosters your professional growth.

- Salary with rotation $32,219
- Board Review Course Offered Free of Charge
- Early Decision Program

Confirm your starting date by May 1st and receive a $1,000 bonus.

In addition to offering one of the highest salary schedules in the area, our progressive benefits package includes continuing education providing CEU's, generous tuition reimbursement, flexible schedules including 12-hour shifts, and participatory time planning. We have a parking garage on-site and the convenience of an Orange Line T-stop.

For additional information about these opportunities, please call our Nurse Recruiter at 617-956-5575, 750 Washington Street, Box 465, Boston, MA 02111. An equal opportunity employer.

New England Medical Center Hospitals

SPRING BREAK IN
CANCUN!
Departure Date: March 17, 1989
Group Space: Plaza Del Sol $519.00 p/p based on quad occupancy
The Calinda $759.99
p/p based on triple occupancy
Included Features: Round Trip air from Boston • 8 days/7 nights hotel accommodations • All taxes and tips • Manager's Coctail Party • A GREAT TIME
FOR MORE INFORMATION CONTACT:
CARROLL TRAVEL
15 Cowles Lane, Amherst, 413-256-8931

The Best Way Off Campus
Peter Pan
Hourly Express Service, Daily to
New York City & Boston
Serving: Springfield • Worcester • Newton • Hartford • Albany
Bradley & Logan Airports
Service Throughout New England with Connecting Service Nationwide
Student Fares from Amherst to Boston $20.95 round-trip, New York City $34.95 round-trip
The People Professionals
Tickets and information available at: U-Mass Hotel Tel #1 or #2 545-2006 549-6000; Amherst Center Bus Terminal 256-0431; Hampshire College Book Store 549-4600; Price Watch Parmacy So. Hadley 533-7115; Northampton Bus Terminal Roundhouse Pl 586-1030

AIM HIGH
SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING MAJORS!
The Air Force has openings for men and women in selected science and engineering fields. To prepare you for one, you can apply for an Air Force ROTC scholarship. See what it can do for you. Contact the campus Air Force ROTC representative today.
CAPT MIKE LACOMBE
413-545-2451
AIR FORCE ROTC
Leadership Excellence Starts Here

$ave $ave $ave $ave
Europe This Summer?
Buy your tickets before March 1

Boston To:	From
London	$489
Prestwick	$579
Frankfurt	$569
Amsterdam	$624
Copenhagen	$659

* (Based on roundtrip, plus $23 taxes, restrictions apply.)

586-8953
Your Partners in Travel
Maplewood Shops, Northampton, MA
$ave $ave $ave $ave

THE ALTERNATIVE SPRING BREAK '89
Killington VERMONT
CONDO LODGING & LIFTS
SKI and PARTY WEEK
MARCH 19-24
$259
LAGNIAPPE
CONDO LODGING & LIFTS
PROGRAM INCLUDES:
• 5 DAYS LIFTS TO SIX MOUNTAINS
• SPECIAL COLLEGE PARTIES
• 5 NITES CONDO LODGING AT PINNACLE
• FUN SHUTTLE
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437
INCLUDES TAXES AND SERVICES
NON-MEMBERS WELCOME
PARTIES PARTIES PARTIES

YVONNE'S CARIBBEANA
Now Open For Lunch
Tues.-Fri. 11:00a.m. - 3 p.m.
All you can eat multi-cultural cuisine buffet
$4.95—Homemade soups, salads, etc.
Also Sunday Brunch 11-3
And a New West Indian Bakery and Pastry Shop
Wedding and Birthday Cakes
All Occasions—cakes made to order
Open 10 a.m.-3 p.m.
Dinner 5-10 p.m. Tues.-Sun.
Authentic Caribbean Catering—All Events
206 Russell St., Hadley,
on the bus route—586-4389

UMass Arts Council
GRANT PROPOSAL DEADLINE
The next deadline for submission of grant proposals for arts-related projects and events:
Monday, March 1
Guidelines and application forms are available at the Arts Council office and the Student Activities Office
UMass Arts Council
125 Herter Hall, 545-0202

Laser treatment erases infants' birthmarks

Technique said to help children physically and psychologically

BOSTON (AP) — A newly developed laser treatment can safely erase port-wine stains from the faces of children, even during infancy, and often spare them from growing up with these disfiguring birthmarks, a new study concludes.

Doctors have used similar lasers for several years to lighten the purplish birthmarks, which appear most often on the face. While the therapy often worked well in adults, it caused unacceptable scarring in children.

Now, a new laser is available that doctors say can frequently remove the birthmarks completely in young children, leaving normal skin.

"We hope to get rid of these lesions before children go to school, where they have had severe psychological problems from teasing and bullying," said Dr. Oon Tian Tan, who has worked with the laser at Boston University School of Medicine.

In last Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, Tan reported on her experience with the laser in 35 children who ranged in age from 3 months to 14 years. She said about 300 children are currently being treated at Boston University, and doctors at other medical centers are also working with the therapy.

The latest approach uses a device called a flashlamp-pulsed tunable dye laser. It was developed at Massachusetts General Hospital and produced by Candela Laser Corp. of Wayland, Mass. The US Food and Drug Administration approved it for routine use in November 1986.

Tan said that in 33 of the 35 children, or 94 percent, the birthmarks disappeared entirely.

"When we completely cleared the patient of port-wine stains, we got normal skin that is indistinguishable from adjacent skin with normal pigmentation, normal texture and normal hair growth," she said. "The only structure that was destroyed was the abnormal blood vessels."

Two of the patients had small, isolated, depressed scars when their skin was accidentally injured soon after the laser treatment.

Dr. Jerome Garden of Northwesten University, who has also extensively used the tunable dye laser in children and adults, agreed that the treatment rarely causes scars. But he questioned whether it produces such uniformly complete removal of birthmarks as Tan found.

"I just don't feel that the amount of lightening she is getting is the same as other people are seeing, me included," Garden said.

Port-wine stain is an abnormality resulting from overgrowth of enlarged blood vessels in the skin.

Lasers produce intense beams of light. Their effects on the body vary, depending on their color or wavelength. When used by skin specialists, the new tunable dye laser produces yellow light. It passes harmlessly through normal skin but is absorbed by anything that is red.

When aimed at port-wine stains, it selectively burns the enlarged blood vessels but spares surrounding tissue.

"The younger the children who are treated, the fewer the re-treatments that are necessary," Tan said. " It's like a layer cake. You destroy one layer of blood vessels and then another and another with each treatment."

The youngsters required an average of 6½ treatments to clear up their blemishes, and skin over bone required about half as many sessions as skin on the cheek.

Thursday Night is Party Night at Mike's!
MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Rolling Rock 99¢
Woo-Woo's $1.50
☆ Free hors d'oeuvres every afternoon ☆

The Spoke
It's RED HOT Week at the Spoke!!
Drink of the Week
Red Hots $1.00
Beers of the Month
Bass Ale $1.75
and Grolsch $1.50
35 E. Pleasant St. • Proper ID required!

POSITION AVAILABLE!
CIRCULATION COORDINATOR

Responsibilities include:
- Coordinating drivers
- Occasional delivery
- Prep. for Circulation Mgr. position

Applicants must have:
- Mon-Fri open until 11:00
- Reliable car
- Preference to Sophomores & Juniors

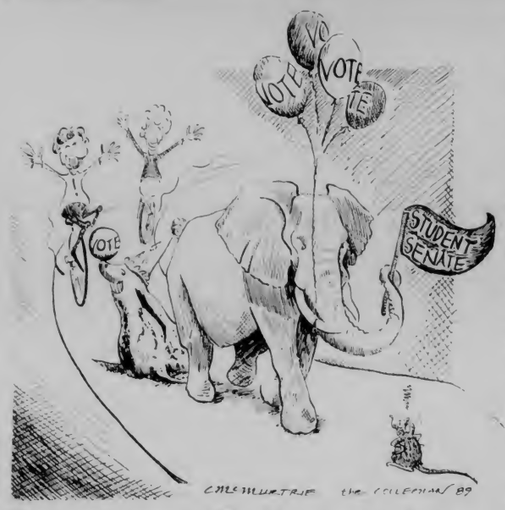
Apply today at Collegian
Collegian is an EOE

GEAR FOR SPORTS

Photo by Buck Stewart
OPEN M-F 9-5
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.



Barnum and Bailey's training

If there's one thing I love, it's a show. The Student Senate is a small part of the student government as a whole. It is, if you haven't noticed, the part that seems the most newsworthy. So last November I decided to investigate this noisy institution.

Clarinda Rose-Turner

From my vantage point in the stands, I deduced the true reason the Senate exists. It took several months of hard work and close scrutiny, not to mention several government grants and millions in experimental research. The discovery came as little surprise to anyone: the Senate is Barnum and Bailey's secret training ground!

This is not a surprising conclusion considering the showpersonship and comic infighting displayed for the last year. Just as things seem to be quieting down, somebody puts on some makeup and jumps into the limelight. People keep getting more and more outrageous. I heard a rumor that next week the Republicans will rent an elephant to prove their point while the "far left" will bring in the "Keystone cops" to administer justice. Then the marching band will begin to play while the president, (or co-presidents, whatever you believe in) will bring in the school seal dressed as a clown.

Unfortunately, my sarcasm, is too accurate to be funny.

It's time to straighten up the government. Issues that students need to hear about, and that we need to act upon immediately, get less attention than the dance of the Senate. Instead of providing the leadership to fight budget cuts, senators plan to "get even" with one another. A small group of people work all day and all night to try to find solutions, then can't get the Senate's attention long enough for them to hear their proposals.

Crime keeps getting worse every year. People are afraid. UMass becomes less of a community and more a city of strangers. The Senate could serve as an example of good faith, trust and commitment to ideals instead of the butt of this campus' jokes.

It's time to say enough, loudly. Most of our representatives will respond to students talking to them. If that doesn't work, perhaps it's time to remind the Senate who their constituents (their bosses) are.

In a month, this campus will be voting for a president, student trustee, and all open area government and senate seats. It's time to know what these people stand for, and choose those best suited to make the government work. Most candidates will tell you what they believe in, if they don't, they are not worth voting for anyway.

Finally, consider running for office yourself.

We need a working student government. Since the current Senate only seems interested in preening in the media, it's up to the rest of us as a student body to change it.

Clarinda Rose-Turner is a UMass student

Are the anti-abortionists really on the side of life?

If Nancy Klein could talk, she would talk about life.

After a car accident left her in a coma, doctor's feared her pregnancy increased the risk that she would never recover.

Janine Warner

Since her case appeared in the papers in December, two men who had never even met the Kleins, have fought a bitter legal battle with her husband to prevent her from having the abortion which could save her life.

Appealing a lower court ruling which determined "that these absolute strangers to the Klein family, whatever their motivation, have no business in the midst of this family tragedy," Lawrence Washburn and John Short went all the way to the Supreme Court.

Finnaly, Martin Klein was allowed to make the decision he thought could save his wife's life. She is now listed in "guarded condition" at North Shore Univeristy Hospital in Manhasset after her abortion on Saturday.

Short and Washburn succeded only in delaying her abortion and possibly placing her life in even greater danger.

These two "pro-lifers" embody the anti-abortion movement in its most extreme and dangerous form. Clearly their concern was not for the life of Nancy Klein, but anti-abortionists have never seemed concerned with the lives of women.

Anti-abortion groups never talk about how many women lost their lives when abortions were illegal. Instead, they feed on the notion that if abortion becomes illegal again they will be saving lives; that they are heroic in their mission and have a divine right to fight for such legislation. Here, when the woman's life was in jeopardy, they still fought to make her abortion illegal.

If abortion becomes illegal again, more women will lose their lives. When abortion was illegal, it is estimated that over a million illegal abortions were performed every year and over a thousand women died each year as a result.

Anti-abortion groups will never offer these statistics. They'll never mention the countless women who were butchered in back allies or who overdosed on drugs or homemade remedies because they thought it was their only option.

They'll never provide statistics on the number of lives we have saved while abortion has been legal.

Making abortion illegal will only result in more lives being lost. Nancy Klein can't talk, but we can. We should all be pro-life — pro-women's lives. And we should fight to keep abortion a safe and legal choice as long as women's lives are in jeopardy.

Janine Warner is a Collegian columnist

Respect interracial relationships

On a sunny spring day last semester, black and white hands joined together in Hands Across UMass as a positive display of support for Civility Week. Students of all "races" succeeded in forming a human chain across campus to dispel the racist reputation that UMass had rightly earned.

If this event had such strong support, then why is a black hand holding a white hand in the Bluewall such a spectacle? Was the motivation for the racial attack in Sylvan residential area based on the public unacceptance of mixed couples or simply ignorant bigotry? If the moratorium called for after this event was to educate, why weren't the rewarding and sometimes frustrating aspects of "interracial relationships" confronted and explored at this time?

Interracial relationships occur with much more frequency in collegiate communities compared to urban or rural communities for a variety of reasons. Perhaps students who have moved away from their families are re-examining the values taught to them as children, breaking away from the notion of "staying with their own kind." Maybe living in the dormitories introduced them to people they wouldn't have easily met in their hometowns or geographically segregated city neighborhoods, opening their mind to someone different. Or most probably, the two people met in a bar or party or were introduced by mutual friends, becoming friends or acquaintances for a while, and fell in love.

Ideal love should entail an intimate relationship between equals. Why aren't "mixed" couples included in this category? Instead, people assume the partners either secretly wish to become a part of their mate's ethnic group due to misidentification or it's strictly a sexual relationship involving no personal respect. "Something is wrong with these people," the world assumes. "What they are doing isn't right or normal."

It's time to wake up, people! The world itself hasn't been right or normal for some time now. We have been brought up to distrust people who aren't like us and been taught not to mix by our school systems and the media. The mixed couple has put aside these differences for a much more rewarding pastime — love. Give them their long-due respect.

Kendra Pratt
Northeast

The Collegian accepts letters and columns from the UMass community and area. All submissions must be typed, double spaced and become property of the Collegian. Hand written letters will not be printed!

All submissions automatically become property of the Collegian and are subject to editing for space, clarity, and grammar.

Any questions? Drop by or call us at 545-3500. Ask for Pam, Meredith, or Janine.

How to avoid the whole "rescheduling" dilemma

Monday, Feb. 20th, is Presidents' Day. It is a holiday — no classes! You know that means a change in the class schedule at the University of Massachusetts. In this case, it means on Tuesday, Feb. 21st, Monday's class schedule will be followed. Therefore, you don't have Tuesday classes according to this policy. So far nothing new.

What has been your personal experience, either as an undergraduate or graduate student, regarding the logistics of this policy? My guess is that a number of you have had this UMass ruling changed in your individual classes, but probably without any input from you. As one graduate student said to me, he didn't think he had any say in the matter. What can end up happening when the policy is changed unilaterally without student input is a phenomenal juggling act of attempting to attend both Monday and Tuesday classes on Tuesday, using the present holiday as an example.

Do you know the facts about this class re-scheduling ruling? I didn't until it affected me personally. The purpose of this article is to share the facts I so that both faculty and students have the same information on the issue, the purpose of this article is not not polarize students and faculty into "us" and "them." Rather, it is to enable both groups toward a mutual accommodation if a change in the policy is suggested for a particular class.

Janet Malone

Here are the facts on the UMass class re-scheduling policy as I understand them from my inquiries to Janet Bell, Acting Registrar; Dr. S.F. Conti, Dean of the Graduate School; Dr. Howard Gadlin, Ombudsman and the Provost's office. The UMass Faculty Senate mandates the Space and Calendar committee to set the schedule for each academic year. All faculty members are informed of this schedule well in advance so they can adjust their course content and class meetings to honor the policy.

The reason why UMass has a class re-scheduling policy is very reasonable. It ensures that the number of class meetings for each semester is evenly distributed no matter what days the class meets. For example, the class meetings for this semester are evenly distributed across all days classes meet using the policy: MWF: 14, 14, 14; TuTh: 14, 14; S: 14.

I found out that the UMass re-scheduling is technically binding but that it can be changed if both professor and students can come to a mutual accomodation. This means, from my perspective, that the professor, in justice, can't make a unilateral decision to change the policy.

What steps do you take if you experience problems regarding this issue? From my discussions with the Ombusdsman, the following steps are recommended:

1) Speak to your professor about your concerns.

2) Speak to the chairperson of the department if your concerns were not addressed adequately by your professor.

3)Report the issue to the Provosts' office, now that a precedent has been established specific to class re-scheduling.

4)Contact the University Ombusdsman, Howard Gadlin, (Campus Center 821) should you need further information or held in mediating an incident.

Janet Malone is a UMass graduate student

Avoiding the real world after UMass

In a few short months myself and about four thousand of my closest friends are going to be bidding this fine institution a fond farewell. Does time fly like the wind? Yes it does, and I can assure any frosh that are reading this that you will have no idea what happened until you too are staring down the barrel of that most dreaded by college students, real life.

Peter Lucht

So, what to do now? "You must be psyched," people say to me with the assurance of the unwitting. "What are you going to do after you graduate?" they ask.

Simple questions, unless you have been agonizing over them for the past six months with no clear target in sight. My personal favorite is, "Are you going to work for the Boston Globe?" Yeah, sure I am, right after I win the decathalon in the 1992 Olympic Games. But seriously folks, I admire those people who have their pat answers all ready. As far as being psyched to graduate, who can honestly say they hate it here? Come on, this is the good life, and by the time you are a senior you should even have it arranged so you don't have to go to class on Fridays, if you are on the ball. "I'm ready to get on with my life," these college critics say. Well, you have no choice in the matter, so what's your rush? Let us consider the alternatives.

The legions of grey-suited, serious-faced students who haunt the halls of SOM all lust after that most legendary of big game, the entry-level management position. These people all spout a jargon that make the E-Lab engineering types actually seem clear, and all with the goal of diving into a pool of mediocrity, a la the Organization Man. If I seem unduly harsh, don't worry, the journalists who walk around the newsroom of this paper muttering about cutlines and headline counts, myself included, are the same, but not as nattily dressed. The point is that many seniors get tunnel vision as Black May approaches, and let youthful zeal intefere with common sense.

Let us not forget graduate school, the land of the tiny seminar, the dinner at the professor's house(just call me Bob, son), and the patronizing look you give the regular students as you walk around campus. I'm not an undergrad. I'm not an undergrad. I'M NOT AN UNDERGRAD! Yes well that's terrific, but don't you wish you still were? Grad school is a good way of hiding out for a while, but it is sometimes shunned by those who fear the contempt of their brothers in the working world.

Wait, a lone cry from the back of the room, "What about the Peace Corps?" The what? Either I just stepped through a time portal to the early sixties orthere are still people who want to take their degrees in Civil Engineering or whatever to Kenya. Sounds great. Have you tried to get a decent bottle of beer or anything else in Kenya lately? This is the real world, cry the self-righteous. It's real alright, but it's not our world. Where else could be better for hiding out a few years than Africa?

Now that I'm done playing devil's advocate, I'll return to my original premise, college is not something to be wished away. The real world comes soon enough. You can call me immature for not being in a hurry, but I am looking forward to about 80 years of aduld responsibility, maturity, etc. And somehow I can't see myself in the Peace CXorps, or as a number wearing a suit at Digital Equipment Corporation of E.F. Hutton. Graduate school, well...we'll see, but I know it won't be the same.

I can picture it now, as clear as day. The roar of the crowd, the smile on my parents' faces, and later the job hunting and the new responsibilities. Even as I'll be regretting the passing of my college experience I'll be looking toward the new challenges of the future with a confidence and determination I could not have imagined when I first came to the university four years before. I've had a lot of fun, learned a lot, and will be ready, if reluctant when May rolls around.

Peter Lucht is a Collegian staff member

A trip back to the not-so-distant past

The ride seemed ordinary enough. We were having fun the way any other busload of college students on vacation would — drinking, chattering away, being loud and rambunctious, you know, your average run-of-the-mill party crowd. It was almost as if we had forgotten where we were going. Suddenly, the racket stopped. In an instant, our noisy, fun-loving bunch turned silent. This was it.

Scott Green

Honestly, I didn't know what to expect, which was most appropriate, because my ancestors probably arrived at this gate or another like it some 45 years ago, thinking the same thought. Or, they may have heard all the rumors, but perhaps not have truly known the sheer magnitude of the atrocities that were about to be committed here. Atrocities against them, their husbands and wives, mothers and fathers, sons and daughters, closest friends and against all of humanity were about to happen.

As I stood before this rusty old gate, the faint discernable drone of several thousand quivering voices echoed in my ears. How were these poor, ill-fated souls to know that they were about to die a miserable death a few weeks or months from now? Some of them weren't even so lucky.

Upon their arrival, a musical ensemble played sprightly and merry tunes as the unsuspecting Jews were told to go wash themselves. How were they to know that the procession to the bath houses was really a death march into the gas chambers? Sometimes they were even given towels! The prisoners may have suspected something was amiss, for as many as several hundred of them were packed tightly into the chamber making it almost impossible to take a shower.

Through thick glass portholes, the executioners could watch what happened next. The naked prisoners would be looking up the showers from which no water spouted or at the floor, wondering why there were no drains. It was then that they'd panic, crowd away from the gas pipes and stampede toward the huge metal door where they'd pile up in one blood-spattered pyramid. Minutes later, when the huge mass of naked flesh ceased to writhe and the gas was turned off, the Sommerkommando would take over to perform the most ghastly job of all. Protected with gas masks and rubber boots, these Jewish male inmates whose lives were spared, went to work.

Their job was to remove the blood and defecations before dragging the clinging dead apart with nooses and hooks, the prelude to the ghastly search for gold and the removal of teeth and hair.

A testimony from a Nazi executioner describes it, "The men (in the chamber) were still standing, like columns of stone, with no room to fall or lean. Even in death, you could tell the families, all holding hands."

I saw those gas chamber. I saw the ovens in which they burned these poor people, sometimes while still alive. I saw the gallows from which they hung, and the "infirmaries" where they performed horrifying experiments.

Surely no one thought it humanly possible to cold bloodedly destroy an entire people, innocent and defenseless, and yet, it almost happened. People like you and I were murdered every day by the thousands. Still, people deny it ever happened. Imagine it was you and your family who were plucked from your daily lives, blamed for the problems of a nation and herded into camps to be brutally slaughtered.

When I peered into the window of the gas chamber, I couldn't help but see my own mother and father's sad, frightened eyes peer hopelessly back out at me. Walking past those ovens, I couldn't help but see my grandparents' emaciated bodies about to be reduced to mere ash. As I stood before the gallows, I couldn't help but see my brother swing lifeless by the throat in the wind. And I cried. I cried.

Scott Green is a UMass student

If you want to tell your state representative or the trustees how the budget cuts are affecting you, send your complaints to the following addresses (unless you like add-drop and spending an extra semester or two here):

Statehouse
Beacon Street
Boston, MA 02133

Board of Regents
Room 1401 McCormack Bldg.
1 Ashburn Place
Boston, MA 02108-1696

Are we the victims of re-education?

Sit down. Brace yourselves. Prepare for the bad news I bring.

We've been found out.

No longer can we strap poor, impressionable fellow students to the chairs of halls and indoctrinate them with Communist propaganda. No more cattle prods, folks. No more oppressive, liberal viewpoints. It's all been ended, we've been foiled by the noble young men of Young America's Foundation.

Pamela McCarthy

My grandmother was warned by them. A young twerp named Robert Jansen from State University of New York/Buffalo wrote to her and told her of these things. The letter was a mimeographed hand-written piece which showed the insight and intelligence he gained from his SUNY experience.

He told her that colleges (one of the names was the University of Massachusetts) indoctrinate students with liberalism. He told her we were forced to take leftist classes by Marxist professors. He told her that we were forced to sit through "hate-America lectures" (I suppose questioning the status quo is the definition of "hate"). He told her that radicals were taking over the schools and corrupting the minds of the students — as if the students couldn't decide for themselves what to think.

Jansen told her that such attitudes created a "biased, one-sided atmosphere." Then he went on to infer that he didn't like the idea of people learning about civil rights; the history of non-Western cultures such as Japan, China, Russia, Africa, and the Middle East; and didn't like the idea of people understanding why others may have liberal ideas. God forbid that anyone understands why someone thinks a certain way. Why, you might learn something. Learning about things we've never been taught in high school is just so uh, "biased and one-sided." Is Jansen afraid if we learn about liberal ideas we may question his beloved conservative establishment? What's the matter, can't measure up? Afraid to argue?

This got my grandmother alarmed. I don't think she would have been surprised if I had been strapped to chairs and poked at with cattle-prods for the purpose of education. He made it seem as if I was about to be leading the Red Army into American borders.

I tried writing her a letter and reassuring her, but I have to let my temper cool before I can do it. I wanted to say that although we do have a very liberal perspective here, no one is forced to take any "leftist" classes, or be indoctrinated. I've spent two years here. I have learned a great deal about other cultures, civil rights, and all of the "isms." Some liberal views I agree with, some I don't. But I will listen to everyone. I am not a "radical" because of this.

Here's the kicker: after the scare, they asked her to contribute $500 or $1000 to their foundation. They say it will help bring conservative speakers and literature to colleges across the nation.

They also wanted her to fill out a postcard and send it to her governor. The postcard shows their displeasure of liberal professors, and demands the politicians do something about them (read: get rid of them).

Is it me, or does this reek of censorship? Come on fellas, who's trying to brainwash who? Their letter reeked with propoganda.

Isn't it just so coincidental that after you scared my grandmother half to death, you asked her for money? She has muscular dystrophy and lives on a fixed income. Leave her alone. And kindly stop slandering my school. It has it's faults, I'll be the first to admit it. But if you can't take free expression, I suggest that you move to a dictatorship. You may be more comfortable there.

They wanted to stop professors from giving a liberal perspective. They want to implement their own agenda. Now who's censoring and indoctrinating?

Pamela McCarthy is a Collegian columnist

In other news . . .

A school tosses out a moldy old mural. It falls into the hands of an art conservator, who restores the painting. Sixteen years latere, the one-worthless work is appraised at 1.25 million. Who is the rightful owner? The school? or the conservator?

"Finders, keepers," says Stephen A. Wise of New Canaan, a lawyer who represents Hiram A. Hedzer, a muralist from Armonk, N.Y., who restored and currently possesses the mural, painted in the Expressionist style by James Daugherty in Stamford High School in 1934.

Not so, according to Mary E. Sommer, the corporation counsel of Stamford, who believes the city is still the legal owner of the painting. "There's more to our position than 'losers, weepers,'" she says.

— Nick Ravo, The New York Times, Feb. 13

REGION

AP photo

REFLECTIONS – City hall clock tower is reflected in a curbside puddle as warm temperatures bring rain instead of snow to Central Massachusetts.

Study: nursing home deaths rising

BOSTON (AP) — The number of elderly Americans dying in nursing homes rose sharply during the 1980s as hospitals began discharging terminally ill patients to save money, a new study concludes.

The report largely attributed the change in Medicare rules that encourage hospitals to release elderly patients as quickly as possible. However, it said that other cost-cutting pressures, including the rise of health maintenance organizations, may also have contributed.

Dr. Mark A. Sager, who directed the study, said that sending dying people to nursing homes rather than keeping them in hospitals is not necessarily a bad trend.

"It may be very appropriate and less costly," he said. "The issue is whether nursing homes can adequately take care of a sicker population today than they wee seeing a few years ago."

Medicare's new payment system began in October 1983. Instead of covering patients' actual expenses, the federal program pays hospitals flat fees in advance for each patient. Hospitals get the same amount for each patient with a specific disease, regardless of whether he stays in the hospital for a day or a month.

The program was intended to give hospitals a financial incentive to use health dollars more sparingly. Another report provides evidence that the strategy is working, because Medicare expenditures have risen less sharply than experts predicted a decade ago.

Both studies were published in last Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

Sager's study found that in 1981, 65 percent of all deaths among poeple over 65 occurred in hospitals. By 1985, this had fallen to 61 percent. At the same time, the proportion of deaths occurring in nursing homes rose from 19 percent to 21.5 percent.

"What has to be said is that hospitals are in a bind because they are being pressured by cost cutting," said Sager, a physician at Dean Medical Center in Madison, Wisc. "Nursing homes are in a bind because nobody wants to pay for nursing home care. Patients are in a bind because they are in a system that does not want to provide continuity of care and health care financing is fragmented."

Sager said that while he is concerned about whether nursing homes can adequately care for their increased burden of dying patients, he said there is no sign that quicker hospital discharges have shortened these people's lives.

The other study in the journal, directed by Dr. Louise B. Russell of Rutgers University, estimated the savings to Medicare from the new payment system. It compared Medicare's projections of rising costs with what actually happened.

In 1980, the Hospital Insurance Trust Fund, the branch of the federal government that actually pays Medicare hospital bills, predicted that it would be spending about $55 billion by 1990. Instead, it looks as though the actual expense by then will be $43 billion in 1980 dollars.

The savings will amount to $12 billion in 1980 dollars or $18 billion in 1990 dollars. The researchers said this means that the new payment program will be responsible for a 3 percent reduction in the nation's total health care bill, which is expected to be $650 billion in 1990.

NOTICE: We regret that a mistake was made in the Spring 1989 Division of Continuing Education catalog's explanation of the Basic Health Plan.

Coverage is provided between February 1 and May 31 (not August 31).

Coverage for the summer is available to eligible students for a Summer Basic fee of $91.

Fees and Expenses

BASIC HEALTH PLAN
($135 per semester)

University Health Services (UHS offers a prepaid health plan to Continuing Education students who are enrolled for six or more credits. Services available at UHS include unlimited physician/nurse practitioner visits, laboratory, x-ray, physical therapy, allergy shots (allergens extra), pharmacy (most with a $1.00 copayment), and mental health consultation. Other services, such as dental and eye care, are available on a copayment basis. (For a complete listing of available services, please obtain the informational brochure available at UHS.)

The fee for the Spring 1989 semester is $135. Coverage is provided from February 1, 1989 through August 31, 1989. To be covered for the entire semester, you must enroll in the Basic Health Plan by February [illegible]. If you are already covered under a hospitalization insurance plan, such as Blue Cross, a blue waiver card will need to be filled out at the UHS cashier's office during enrollment. The Basic Health Plan does not automatically cover you; you must enroll in the UHS Supplemental Health Benefits Plan.

For Healthier Skin
Facials
Deep Pore Cleansing Facials
Lash & Brow Tinting
Hair Removal with Warm Wax
Lip • Brow Shaping • Chin
Bikini Line • Legs
Gift Certificates Available
Licensed Aesthetician
AESTHETICS
EUROPEAN SKIN CARE
for
Men and Women
34 Main Street, Amherst
253-9879

COME CLEAN WITH US!
Open 7 days a week 7 a.m.-10 p.m.
Campus Coin Op 107 Sunderland Rd. North Amherst
Speedwash, 11 Pray St., Amherst
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St., South Amherst

The only way to go.
Peter Pan
Stratton
Express Package

A great day of skiing shouldn't have to end with a long and boring drive home. This year, once again Peter Pan is offering a Ski Express package to Stratton Mountain. Pack your skis safely in our spacious luggage compartments, board our Peter Pan motorcoach, sit back, relax and ride in confidence.

Then, enjoy a full day of great skiing at Stratton. You'll explore up to 90 exciting trails, and with the new Stratton Starship XII summit gondola, you'll spend more time skiing, less time waiting.

The Peter Pan/Stratton Mountain Ski Express . . . a great package price, great skiing, and the comforts of a warm motorcoach. It's the only way to go. Agreed?

Package includes:
Round-trip transportation and a one day lift ticket for as little as $29.95
Advanced reservations only. For further information on pick-up points, prices and schedules, contact:

The People Professionals
NON-STOP SERVICE FROM GREENFIELD AVAILABLE THROUGH
Clarke Sporting Goods, 289 Main Street, Greenfield, MA Call [illegible]
79 South Pleasant Street, Amherst, MA, 256-0431
UMASS Campus Center, Amherst, MA Ticket Office 545-2006
Peter Pan Bus Terminal, 1776 Main Street, Springfield, MA
Call 1-800-332-8995 Ext 270
For group rate information, contact: Peter Pa Charter Department 781-2900

Strong discounts mean big savings at Liquors 44!
BEER WINE LIQUORS
Moosehead CANADA'S Premium Beer, $12.99 + Dep case of 24 12-oz bottles
Labatt's Ale $11.99 + Dep case of 24 12 oz cans
COORS LIGHT case of 24 12 oz. cans $10.29 + Dep.
RINGNES BEER Norway's finest $16.99 + Dep. case of 24 12 oz bottles
PEPSI 2.0 LITER 99¢
Gallo WHITE GRENACHE 750 ml $2.69 NEW!
Paul MASSON White Zinfandel 1.5L $3.99
Great Western CHAMPAGNE XTRA DRY BRUT PINK $5.49
INGLENOOK Rhine, Rose, Burgundy, Chablis, Blanc de Blanc, Blush $5.79 3.0L
DeKuyper original PEACHTREE SCHNAPPS $4.99 750ML
AMARETTO di SARONNO 750 ml $12.99
SEAGRAM'S 7 1.75L SALE $12.99 MAIL-IN REBATE $3.00 = $9.49
HIRAM WALKER VODKA 1.75L 8.99
BACARDI RUM (light only) 1.75L $12.99
LIQUORS 44
Route 9, Amherst/Hadley Line 253-5344
30 Lincoln St., Holyoke 534-4004
(Both stores at SUPER STOP & SHOP Plazas)
SALE PRICES THRU 2/21/89

ARTS & LIVING

Mime plus juggling plus song equals Peking Opera

By JOHN O'LEARY
Collegian Correspondent

The Peking Opera
Fine Arts Center
February 14

On Tuesday evening, the Peking Opera, on tour from the People's Republic of China put on an exciting performance for an enthusiastic Valentine's Day audience at the Fine Arts Center.

The word opera for most people conjures up images of immensely overweight people bellowing in Italian. Not this night.

The Peking Opera is multi-faceted entertainment, encompassing all aspects of traditional Chinese performance. In addition to the beautiful singing that one expects from opera, this show includes juggling, martial arts, mime and the spectacular acrobatics for which the Chinese are renowned. Add to this colorful costumes and a live orchestra, and you have an evening of complete entertainment.

Tuesday evening's program was divided into four segments, each one an excerpt from a longer opera. These four pieces served to present a variety of operatic styles and demonstrated the versatility of the performers.

The first set, taken from a story written during the Ming dynasty, depended largely on mime. The singing, while impressive, was harsh in its artificially high trained falsetto.

The third segment told the story of a Chinese bavdit of the eleventh century who risks apprehension to visit his blind mother. Sung in a more pleasing, natural voice, this piece featured some moving performances during the emotional reunion between the blind mother and her outlaw son.

The second and fourth sets highlighted the acrobatic and stylized martial arts skills of the performers. Simply spectacular, the fight scenes in the second segment made Revenge of the Ninja look like Revenge of the Nerds. A colorful combination of ballet, juggling and martial arts, this piece defined its own genre and was the highlight of the evening.

Having trained for years, the players in this troupe displayed skill and precision in the various disciplines required of them.

The Peking Opera has evolved from a theatrical heritage over 2,000 years old, and the beauty and richness of their art forms continues to delight modern audiences as evidenced by the enthusiastic response of the near sell out audience on Tuesday.

All styles present as local clubs diversify

By JODY GABIN
Collegian Correspondent

This week, they key word is diversity at area clubs and colleges, as virtually every genre of music makes an appearance.

Tonight, legendary singer/songwriter Bo Diddley makes a rare appearance at the Universal Joint in Northampton. Diddley, regarded as one of rock and blues' most influential pioneers, takes the stage at 8 p.m.

LIVEWIRE

Local dance band No Such Animal performs at Sheehan's tonight. English singer/songwriter Pete Morton (influenced by the likes of Billy Bragg and Richard Thompson) plays a 7 p.m. show at the Iron Horse.

Tommorrow night, the Universal Joint hosts salsa bands Yes, Brazil and Carnival Time. Local favorites the Pajama Slave Dancers return to Sheehan's and Aztec Two Step entertain at the Iron Horse.

On Saturday, February 18, the Iron Horse presents legendary bluesman, Luther Guitar Jr. Johnson. Johnson, an 8 year Muddy Waters veteran, will be performing at 8:30 p.m.

Also on Saturday, Chicago bluesman A.C. Reed returns with his sax to Sheehan's along with Wailin' Dave (of Radiators fame) and the Blue Dogs. Reeds last show was a sell-out, so you're advised to arrive early. doors open at 9 p.m.

At Katina's Saturday, Boston's eclectic Fools will be appearing at 8 p.m.

On Sunday, Cindy Kallet, Ellen Epstein and Michael Cicone perform at the Amherst College campus center. The New England folk trio will take the stage at 8 p.m.

Also on Sunday,Ed Vadas and the Fabulous Heavyweights play the Universal Joint; the Edgar Winter and Leon Russel Band play Katina's; and at the Iron Horse, enjoy an evening of jazz with the Ron Carter and Stece Kuhn Duo. Carter and Kuhn will play two shows, at 7 and 10 p.m.

On Monday, celebrate Washington's birthday with country favorite Cheryl Wheeler, performing a 7 p.m. show at the Iron Horse.

Also on Monday (the 20th),Jeff Holmes' Big Band will be at the Universal Joint from 8:30 to 12. Wildcat O'Halloran appears at Sheehan's.

Tuesday the 21st is 70's night at Katina's, when Meatloaf arrive to rehash such forgettable classics as Paradise by the Dashboard Light and Bat out of Hell. In celebration of Black History Month, Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers appear at the UMass Fine Arts Center. Doors open at 8 p.m.

Up-and-coming events: Iron Horse 10th Anniversary extravaganza on the 24th at the Academy of Music Theater, and the Proclaimers at Pearl Street on the 27th.

Rock and roll, and the ongoing search for meaning

By COSMO MACERO JR.
Collegian Staff

In 1959, when someone mentioned rock and roll, just about everyone knew what they were talking about. Little Richard, Elvis, Jerry Lee Lewis, Buddy Holly, Eddy Cochrane etc. etc. Well . . . nowadays, it ain't so easy.

In the 30 years since, the term rock and roll has taken quite a beating. In addition to losing its second half somewhere along the line (in favor of the one syllable "rock"), it's also been force fed a number of 'prefixes' such as soft rock, hard rock, jazz rock, punk rock, folk rock, progressive rock, acid rock; and become the parent to many other "styles" of music; i.e. heavy metal, rockabilly, thrash and the like.

Rap music has fused with rock to some degree by incorporating the searing guitar normally associated with white boys' metal. Just listen to Public Enemy, Tone Loc, The Beastie Boys, The Fat Boys and of course, Run D.M.C. That's not just scratchin', it's good old fashioned geetar.

The stuff featured on MTV falls under the rock generalization, and the weekly WMUA playlist is considered a collection of rock music.

What the hell does rock and roll mean?

For those ethnic purist types, it's a delta blues term referring to that ultimate act of pleasure. That's right . . . sex. You rock a little, you roll a little . . . whatever.

Music wise, this thing is tough to pinpoint. Blues is safe to name as an early form of rock. The chord progressions are the same, most songs are in the key of E, or A or G. Heck, some of Led Zeppelin's best stuff was ripped off from delta bluesmen. Even jazz had some influence on the development of rock and roll.

But where does this leave us today?

If you go to a club and see a ska band, you're bound to find elements of the rock sound in there. Same with reggae, or "new age", or "world beat". Call it what you like.

Hard rock is a curious term. Where do you draw the line between Aerosmith and White Lion? What's wimpy and what isn't? Is Guns-n-Roses a heavy metal band? What about Poison? Do we all agree that Winger is an April Fool's joke that nobody got? If Bon Jovi has so many fans, how come I've never seen any?

In any case, the point of this senseless rambling is to clarify the fact that labels are becoming obsolete. If a 15 year old kid is wailing away on a cheap guitar up in his bedroom, making it up as he goes along, is that jazz? It doesn't really matter, anyway . . . thank you.

Photo courtesy of Dennis Letzler Organization

BANG! The Japanese performing company Kodo will return to the University of Massachusetts in March. The Kodos live communally on Sado Island in the Sea of Japan, training daily for the displays of physical strength, stamina and energy which make up their electrifying performances.

'El Capitan' comes to Amherst

The Valley Light Opera will present a concert performance of the rarely-heard operetta, "El Capitan" by American march composer, John Phillip Sousa. The performance will be given on Friday, Feb. 24, at 8 p.m. at the Amherst Regional Junior High School. Proceeds of the concert will be used to benefit Amherst's ABC House. General admission tickets are on sale at the Regional High School office, at the Superintendent's Office in the Junior High School and at the Jones Library in Amherst.

After a standing room only crowd in January, New Moon Productions proudly presents its second moonlight coffeehouse, featuring Jaime Morton, tonight. Jaime will perform at 7 p.m. in the backroom of Lunaria bookstore at 90 King St. in Northampton.

Offering original songs, Jaime's acoustic guitar and vocals have enraptured audiences throughout Vermont. Likewise, her music, through encorporating traditional folk, blues and jazz methods, blends them in new and interesting ways. In addition to stylistic innovations, Jaime offers lyrics which reflect tangible experiences of love and life.

Tickets for the concert are available from Lunaria bookstore or New Moon Productions.

Soprano Paulina Stark, pianist Nadine Shank and guest cellist, Leopold Terespulsky will be the featured artists in "An Evening of Jewish Music" on Sunday evening, Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College.

Q.T.B.

(Quitting Time Buffet)

FREE Buffalo Chicken Wings

FREE Cheese & Crackers

FREE Veggies & Dip

And More and it's all ★★★★ FREE ★★★★

Monday thru Friday
4:00 - 7:00

FitzWilly's restaurant bar

23 Main Street, Northampton 584-8666

Pi Kappa Alpha

The Brotherhood of Excellence

PIKE PIKE

IIKA

PIKE - There may be a better way to go through college, but nobody's found it yet.

First National Fraternity to ABOLISH HAZING
• 1988 Winner of UMass Chapter Excellence Award as the best fraternity on campus
• 1988 UMass overall athletic champs
• Unparalled social life • Lifelong friendships
• Olympic weight room • Outstanding meal plan

ACADEMICS • ATHLETICS • LEADERSHIP

SPRING RUSH

The Brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha would like to extend an invitation and challenge to all University men to come down tonight at

9:00 p.m.

and see what PIKE has to offer.

FEB 16, 21, 22

REFRESHMENTS

COLLEGIAN

ATTENTION
SOPHOMORE/JUNIOR
MARKETING MAJORS

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World.

THE COLLEGIAN is offering the opportunity to gain THE MOST VALUABLE BUSINESS EXPERIENCE on campus

Applications for position of
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER
are now being accepted

This position requires Responsibility, Dedication and Time Commitment—the qualities that future employers are looking for.

Come down to the Collegian Business Office in the Campus Center (RM 113 - lower level; 545-3500) and pick up a job application and description and submit it no later than Wednesday, March 1

M/F—EOE

BONUS STORAGE FILE

BUY (4) 5¼ MD-2D 10 PACKS
GET A $9.95 DISK STORAGE FILE
FREE!

SONY

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 10-3

UNIVERSITY STORE

Mass. lawmakers predict passage of gay rights bill

BOSTON (AP) — A state gay rights bill that has languished on Beacon Hill for 17 years got its first hearing of the legislative season yesterday as lawmakers predicted that this may be the bill's year.

"In a very real way, our inaction is seen as some sort of approval for this discriminatory activity," said state Rep. Mark Roosevelt, D-Boston.

The legislation would add a category for homosexuals to an existing state law protecting women, minorities and other groups from discrimination in housing, employment, credit and accomodations.

Initially proposed in the early 1970s, the bill has slowly gained support. Its most recent and dramatic failure occurred in the 1987 session when the legislation, despite the support of the House and a majority of state senators, died in the waning days of the session.

When a group of senators led by Arthur Lewis, D-Boston, used procedural methods to kill the bill, scores of gay rights demonstrators disrupted a Senate session. Several protestors chained themselves to seats in the gallery. Police arrested 14 and state Attorney General James Shannon is still in the midst of suing three Senate court officers for roughing up demonstrators.

In 1988, an election year, the legislation again died in the Senate but did not come as close to final passage. This year, Senate Majority Leader Walter Boverini, D-Lynn, has said the measure has the votes to pass.

In a Statehouse hearing yesterday before the Legislature's Commerce and Labor committee, several legislators and gay rights activists spoke in favor of the legislation.

Arline Isaacson, co-chairwoman of the Massachusetts Gay and Lesbian Political Caucus, said she has counted 24 out of 40 Senate votes in favor. While that number would pass the bill, it is three shy of the two-thirds needed to override a parliamentary maneuver which, two years ago, kept the legislation locked up in committee.

'I am not that optimistic yet at all" about the bill's chances, Isaacson said.

Committee co-chairwoman Lois Pines predicted the commerce and labor panel would send the bill to the House floor with a favorable recommendation. A poll of the committee was expected by this afternoon.

"Homophobia, I think, is being quietly encouraged by the political arena," said Eleanor Smeal, former president of the National Organization for Women.

Two witnesses opposed the measure. Gerald D'Avolio of the Massachusetts Catholic Conference said passsing the bill would be "tantamount to approving the homosexual lifestyle." And Milo Grugg, speaking for the Christian Science Church, said a gay rights law would force churches to break the law if they refused to hire gays and bisexuals.

Stephen Rosenfeld, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' chief secretary, said that in a tight budget year with little money to spend on high-profile state programs, 1989 may be the best time to pass the gay rights bill.

"This is not a bill that requires new spending," Rosenfeld said. The time is right, he said, "given that it is going to be hard for us to find other avenues to show continuing leadership as a Legislature and from the governor."

continued on page 16

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-RENT

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT Print Shop
228 Triangle St., Amherst

ARTHUR TREACHERS SEAFOOD
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
10%
Student Discount
With College ID
Phone In Order
585-0209
During this Lent Season
KEEP THE FAITH
with
ARTHUR TREACHER'S!

Patrick invites you to come meet his new associates ... there is a difference at Patrick & Co.

Ana Paulin
formerly of Regency in Amherst

Kelly Ervin
former manager at Hairstyles by Harvey

Patrick & Co.
Distinctive Hairstyling For Men & Women
104 Russell Street
Elmwood Shops
Hadley • 586-7477
PLENTY OF FREE PARKING

TAKE ANOTHER

BRECKENRIDGE
GENUINE COLORADO
SKIUSA

THE PEAK

Breckenridge is three majestic, interconnected ski mountains, each with its own high-speed four-passenger SuperChair, as well as twelve other lifts. It all towers above a lovingly restored genuine Victorian town full of shops, restaurants, nightspots and enough lodging to entertain over 20,000 visitors at once. Isn't it time you took another peak? You may never look elsewhere.

$599

PRESENTED BY
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437

Scott's LIQUORS

OPEN
MON-SAT
8 AM to 11 PM

It's another week of Scott's great specials!

ABSOLUT VODKA
1.75 L
$18.99

COORS LIGHT & EXTRA GOLD suitcase cans
$10.99 plus dep.

CAPTIAN MORGAN SPICED RUM
750 ml
Sale price $5.99
Mail-in refund $1.50
$4.59
Also ask about Captain Morgan 200 ml for only 39¢

PEACHTREE SCHNAPPS
750 ml
$5.99

PIELS
bar bottles
24-12 oz.
$6.99 plus dep.

HEINEKEN
12 pack bottles
$7.99 plus dep.

Register to win two free tickets to Ascutney Ski Resort

We want to be your favorite liquor store!
Open Mon. - Sat. 8 a.m. - 11 p.m. • 549-2692
VISA-MasterCard Accepted
Located in Newmarket Center next to Louis Foods and Sounds Easy Video. Diagonally across from UMass Stadium.

■ Gay rights

continued from page 15

State Sen. Michael Barrett, D-Cambridge, said the bill has been around so long on Beacon Hill that "there's very little left in this bill to dispute."

Barrett emphasized that the bill "is not an exemption from the criminal laws. Consorting with kids, whether heterosexual or homosexual, is a crime and will remain one."

AP photo

WOODEN ORR — Sculptor Armand LaMontagne poses yesterday on a life-size wooden sculpture of hockey great Bobby Orr created at his studio in North Sciuate, R.I. commissioned for the New England Sports Museum in Boston. The statue will be unveiled in a special tribute to Orr on March 15.

TWISTERS TAVERN

DRINK SPECIALS
Rolling Rock $1.50
Labatt's $1.50
90¢ Rolling Rock Drafts

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
TONIGHT—POOR BOYS
FRIDAY—LIVE JAZZ
SOUTH END JAZZ BAND
SATURDAY—RHYTHM & BLUES
THE CRUNCH
WEDNESDAY—REGGAE
NEW HORIZONS
THURSDAY
INNER CITY BLUES
FRIDAY
SHAWN PATTERSON QUARTET
TRY OUR DELICOUS FULL MENU
30 BOLTWOOD WALK, DOWNSTAIRS, AMHERST 253-2083

THE SUMMER SCHOOL THAT GETS DOWN TO BUSINESS.

Babson College has a well-deserved reputation for preparing men and women for successful business careers.

You'll find a learning environment that's definitely not boring, with some of the most respected business and management professors in the country. And Babson offers a field of study in business and liberal arts that includes everything from "Entrepreneurship and New Ventures" to "Japanese Language and Culture."

So if you're serious about business, don't just spend your summer vacation at any school, invest it at Babson. Call today or send in the coupon for complete information.

Summer Session I:
Registration deadline May 30.
Summer Session II:
Registration deadline July 15.

SUMMER SESSION I & II

Dean Albert L. Dragon
Babson College
Babson Park, MA 02157
Call (617) 239-4451 or
MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY

Name
Address
City State
Zip Phone

BABSON COLLEGE
EXECUTIVE THINKING

SAVE
On Personal Needs At COLLEGE DRUG
In Amherst Center

LENSEPT Disinfection Solution For Use With All Soft Contact Lenses
8 oz.
Reg. $5.19 $1.99

Bausch & Lomb Disinfecting Solution
Reg. $5.29 $3.49

LENS PLUS
by Allergen Opticai
12 oz.
Reg. $6.73

KERI LOTION
For dry skin care
6.5 oz.
Reg. $3.99
$1.99
STOCK UP

COLLEGE DRUG
4 Main St., Amherst
253-2523 • Visa • MasterCard • American Express
Mon.-Fri 9-8 • Sat. 9-6 • Sun. 9-5

Choose Excellence
COLLEGIAN

"I always recommend to incoming students that they write for the Collegian, both because the Collegian should always look at fresh talent and because the work is good preparation for studying journalism."

Jim Boylan, Professor of Journalism, UMass since 1979; Founding Editor, Columbia Journalism Review

Come write for the Collegian
113 Campus Center

S · U · N
BARBADOS
for SPRING BREAK
THE PLACE TO BE

We have a brand new 7-bedroom mansion reserved for the UMASS spring break party of the year. Your party abode is located on the beach and includes a fully equipped kitchen, living room, 4 full bath rooms, and daily maid service. The Sandy Lane Golf Course and Sunset Crest Resort are both close neighbors. The 3 quads, 3 triples, and 1 double are given on a first come first serve basis so don't be late.

DATES:
JFK Departure: March 17, 18, 19
Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Departures
BOS Departure: March, Friday 17 - Friday 24

Quad, Triple, or Double Occupancy: $589
Occupancy is first come first serve
Reservation Deposit: $75
Refundable Security Deposit: $25

$75 non-refundable for reservation
$25 security deposit required.
Full payment is need after February 9, 1989
Payments in guaranteed funds only!

$589

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union
545-3437
SEE US AT THE TABLE

DELANO'S
Proper Identification A Must
57 NORTH PLEASANT ST • 253-5141
COMING SOON...
MILLER LITE
SPRING BREAK EXPRESS
and much more!
Drink of the Week
Rum & Coke $1.00
Beer of the Month
Bud & Miller Lite $1.00
PITCHERS!!!
MILLER, MILLER LITE & ROLLING ROCK - $5.00
MEISTER BRAU $4.25

WILLIAM E. HASSAN
CRIMINAL LAW
25 Years Experience
Former Asst. District Attorney
Free First Consultation
Ford & Hassan
69 S. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253-2501

STUDENT AFFAIRS INFORMATION SERVICES
IDB/TIPS

Call 545-1540 for 'TIPS' about academic records and ask for these tapes by number:

1703 Alpha Sigma Lambda
1601 Bachelor's Degree Programs
1010 BCP (Bilingual Collegiate Program)
1011 BDIC (Bachelor's Degree w/Indiv. Concen.)
1024 CCEBMS (Comm. for Coll. Educ. of Black and other Minority Students
1023 Credit by Exam
2578 English as a Second Language
2804 Honor Societies
1028 Minority Engineering Program
1606 Part-Time Second Bachelor's Degree
1037 Writing Program

IDB/TIPS is open Monday - Friday, 8:30am-5pm (walk-in and phone-in) and 5-9pm (phone-in only)
By telephone only on Saturday and Sunday, 10am-3pm

IF YOU HAVE FURTHER QUESTIONS CALL IDB (545-1555)
Information Data Bank (IDB)
Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON

FOR YOUR EYES ONLY

SPECIAL UNIVERSITY PRICING!
40–50% OFF RETAIL PRICE
GREAT PERFORMANCE
GREAT PRICE

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN–

ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS INVITES YOU TO AN OPEN HOUSE DEMONSTRATION ON CAMPUS

A Zenith Data Systems Open House Will Be Held At This Location:

Campus Center Concourse

10:00 AM to 3:00 PM

February 22, 1989

American Express VISA, MasterCard Credit Cards Accepted

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON•

Prices subject to change without notice.

© 1988, Zenith Data Systems

AP photo

BEST ACTOR NOMINEES — Best actor nominees announced yesterday for the 61st Academy Awards are from left: Dustin Hoffman for "Rain Man," Tom Hanks for "Big," Gene Hackman for "Mississippi Burning," Edward James Olmos for "Stand and Deliver," and Max von Sydow for "Pelle the Conqueror."

Our Biggest SALE

SATURDAY FEB. 18 - SATURDAY FEB. 25

Free compact discs with any CD player
Onkyo DX-530* compact disc player $299!
This model earns two free discs.
Other models earn even more.

Boston Acoustics A-40 speakers
Top-rated, best buy $149/pr.
A-150 Speakers $449/pr.*

NAD 7020e receiver
Classic high current design $239

SALE

Demo FEB. 20 (WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY)
ALL DEMOS 5% TO 40% OFF, WHILE THEY LAST

Free Maxell Cassettes
With any Onkyo cassette deck
Onkyo TA-2120 $199 (calibrate!)
This model earns six free Maxell XLII-90s.
Other models earn even more!

Kenwood KRC-2002* car stereo
KFC-1661 Speakers $349 installed!
(antenna not included)

SALE ends Saturday Feb. 25

Sennheiser HD-450 headphones
Rugged, comfortable, great sound $59/pr.

Pioneer component storage rack $40
NAD 4225 tuner $139
NAD CS-401 turntable $149
Dual CS-5000 turntable $229
Onkyo TX-830 receiver $249
Onkyo TX-870 receiver $349
Fried CD speakers $359/pr.

A complete list of all sale items including demos, one-of-a-kind, and high-end items, is now available at the store.

No lay-aways, no cash refunds.
•Quantities limited on this model.

Sound & Music

Millbank Place • 351 Pleasant • Northampton • 584-9547 • VISA & MasterCard accepted

The A capella Singing Group Competition

Winter Festival
Invitational Silver Cord Bowl - Smith College
John M. Greene Hall

Featuring:
"Octet"—Williams College, "Noteables"—Smith College
"Madrigal"—Ithaca College, "Sabrinas"—Amherst College
"Aires"—Dartmouth College, "Baker's Dozen"—Yale University

Time: 8:00 p.m., Date: Sat., Feb. 18, 1989
Price: $4.00 with College I.D.
Advanced Adults and Senior Citizens $5.00 At the Door $6.00

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY

Why More?

The UMASS Ski Club invites you to Montego Bay, Jamaica, West Indies. We will be staying in the Towers at the Seawinds Resort where all your Spring Break needs are directly below. We are next to the beach, pool, evening entertainment, tennis courts, and the hottest night club in the bay. Located five minutes from town, this resort has, at your disposal, water sports, sunbathing, and an array of restaurants and bars. Don't be lured by low-budget, problem-filled fear-offs that, in the end, turn to rip-offs. WE PROVIDE GUARANTEED RESERVED ACCOMMODATIONS AND FLIGHTS! Spend $9 a day more and step above the rest on your own vacation island!

A VACATION SHOULD BE A PLEASURE—NOT A HASSLE!

LAGNAF

BECAUSE IT'S WORTH IT

Mar. 18 - Mar. 25 • $569 per person from JFK
••All Prices are Inclusive—No Hidden Extras
Double & Triple Occupancy Rates Available

Presented By
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

MasterCard VISA

WORLD & NATION

AP photo

POLICE GUARD BALLOT BOXES — Police provide security while workers transport ballot boxes after polling closed in yesterday's parliamentary elections in Sri Lanka. Sinhalese and Tamil militants oppose the elections and at least 56 killings were reported yesterday.

Gunman kills three, himself in office

BETHESDA, Md. (AP)— A gunman opened fire in an office building yesterday, killing three people and wounding one before killing himself, Montgomery County police said.

Police Capt. Richard Williams said the man emerged from an elevator and opened fire. After killing three people, he turned his gun on himself, Williams said.

The shootings occurred at the credit card department offices of Chevy Chase Federal Savings Bank in this Washington, D.C., suburb.

The gunman appeared to be a "disgruntled employee," according to another police spokesman, Officer George Luddington.

The identities of the victims were not known immediately.

Hillary Murphy, spokeswoman for Suburban Hospital, said a 30-year-old man was listed in critical condition with a gun shot wound to the face.

Alex Chapin, of Atlanta, who was on the telephone with a bank employee when the shooting occurred, told WUSA, a Washington television station:

"I heard the gun shots and I heard a woman screaming in the background and I heard a guy say 'I'm hit, I'm hit,' and another person say 'quick, get some towels.'"

GREAT MEXICAN FOOD!

in downtown Amherst
beer & wine served

TACO VILLA

Offering Quality Mexican Foods

NORTHAMPTON	AMHERST	SPRINGFIELD
21 CENTER ST 584-0673	41 BOLTWOOD WALK 256-8217	749 SUMMER AVE 788-0919
Bring Your Own Beer & Wine	Beer & Wine Served	Bring Your Own Beer & Wine

Fight the Cost of Tuition work with CLEAN WATER ACTION

- Fastest growing environmental organization in the country
- $7 - $8 / hr.
- Evening Hours
- Convenient Amherst location
- Election training / community organizing

Work P/T & make a full time difference. Help citizens organize to hold government officials accountable to the public, and polluters accountable to the law. 549-7450.

OOPS!

Now's the time to call...

North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd.
No. Amherst 549-2880

Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

GHB

UPSTAIRS
114 MAIN ST
NORTHAMPTON
586-0259

THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
9 E. PLEASANT ST
AMHERST
549-3507

HANDCRAFTED FUTONS
and HARDWOOD FRAMES

FUTON • COVERS • DUVETS • PILLOWS • BLANKETS • QUILTS

The Students Choice
GOOD NIGHT BEDDING

DELIVERY AVAILABLE

To: Professional Staff Members

After months of deliberation a representative committee of professional staff members from the Boston and Amherst campuses interviewed several unions to determine which would best represent your needs.

It wasn't an easy choice. Eleven unions—including two organizations that had previously led campaigns—agreed to be interviewed. We chose Local 509, SEIU.

As a first step Local 509, SEIU, has commissioned a poll consisting of a random sample of UMass professional staff.

Professional pollsters may call you soon. Please respond as honestly and fully as possible. We need to have a complete and true picture of what you think about unionization at UMass. In addition, the more we know about the issues that concern you, the sooner we can work on them.

This poll is completely confidential. Thanks for your cooperation.

UMass Professional Staff Organization Committee

CMI Campus Marketing, Inc.
presents
A Great Beach Party
at
DAYTONA BEACH
$139

At this low, affordable price: you arrange your own transportation.

CMI TOUR INCLUDES:

- oceanfront
- FREE
- save you money
- smooth trip
- good time

TRANSPORTATION OPTION INCLUDES:

ADD $80
SPEND A WEEK — NOT A FORTUNE

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION AND SIGN UP
CALL DANA 549-6064

MTV will be there!

plus! Tanning Discount

Le Bon Soleil

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"Get ready! He's put the rubber ducky down and now he's reaching for the bar of soap!"

BLOOM COUNTY By BERKE BREATHED

DONALD, I HAVE A CONFESSION TO MAKE
YES, MY LITTLE ONYX PEA?
I LIQUIDATED OUR BILLIONS AND REDEDICATED MY LIFE TO EASING THE SUFFERING OF STARVING THIRD-WORLD CHILDREN
I'M KIDDING YOU BIG GULUMP.
DON'T DO THAT IVANA!

DOONESBURY By GARRY TRUDEAU

LET ME SAY THIS ABOUT BUSH, MARK. BY ALL ACCOUNTS, HE'S A NICE, DECENT MAN. HIS STRONG EMPHASIS ON ETHICS IS AS COMMENDABLE AS IT IS IN CHARACTER.
HE VIEWS PUBLIC SERVICE AS A PRIVILEGE AND A SACRED TRUST. ANYONE WHO VIOLATES THAT TRUST WILL HAVE NO PLACE IN HIS ADMINISTRATION.
WELL, THAT WAS UPLIFTING. ANY BOLD INITIATIVES YET?
NOTHING ON THE WIRES

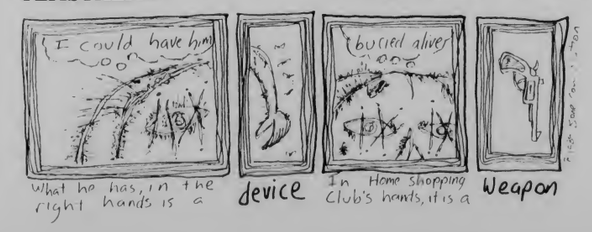
CALVIN AND HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

I DON'T HEAR HER OUT THERE ANYMORE.
ROSALYN?? ARE YOU LISTENING? WE HAVE MORE DEMANDS!
DO YOU THINK SHE WENT AWAY?
WHY WOULD SHE? WE'VE STILL GOT HER SCIENCE NOTES
DOESN'T SHE WANT THEM ANYMORE? WHAT'S SHE DOING?
MAYBE SHE'S CALLING THE FIRE DEPARTMENT TO AX OPEN THE DOOR.
REALLY? YOU THINK SO? GOSH, THAT'D BE GREAT! REAL FIRE MEN WITH REAL AXES! I HOPE THEY DRIVE THEIR BIGGEST FIRE TRUCK!
I HOPE YOUR PARENTS ARE HAVING A REST FUL EVENING

CAMPUS COMIX By AL ARPAD

SAY, YOU BEEN TO ANY CLASSES YET THIS SEMESTER?
LET'S GET DRUNK AND VOMIT IN THE HALLWAY.
MY PARENTS DIDN'T SEND ME ANY MONEY THIS WEEK.
I WONDER IF IT'S TOO LATE TO APPLY AT THE HAIR STYLING SCHOOL?
THIS CARTOON ABOUT SIMPLE-MINDED PEOPLE IS BROUGHT TO YOU ON BEHALF OF STUDENTS FOR SIMPLER CARTOONING. CONTAINS NO IDEAS!

YEASTHEAD By JASON TALERMAN



ETC.

"You can have an affection for a murderer or a sodomite, but you cannot have an affection for a man whose breath stinks - habitually stinks, I mean."

-George Orwell

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Separate
5 Genus of bees
9 German comma
13 Expression of understanding
14 African language
16 Ponderosa mar.
17 Bogart-Hepburn film
20 Brats
21 Bone of cap
22 Coup
23 Ja
24 Carpenter's aid
27 — nolo
31 Hilarity
32 Upper layer
33 — glass
34 Jumps
35 John F. Kennedy, America
36 Lion or a physician
37 — Bastion, Los Cochises
38 Trazzer II pilot
39 Actress Bernhardt
41 American byzantine
44 Mr. Mineo
45 F. Nietzsche, eg.
46 Ordeals
47 Blue-ribbon
50 Partner of E and
54 Versatile
56 Hepburn, the Mommas, Wallach
57 Been mean
58 Fertile embryo spot
59 What is an Bill Parker or Danny Bonaduce
61 Noise

DOWN
1 Sgt. Mancini
2 Arrival of terror
3 Solomon Burke

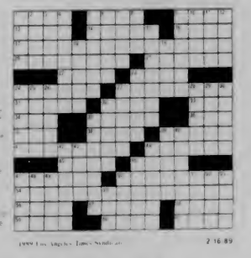
4 Read by a dyslexic
5 Go — travel
6 Do art work
7 Corp. abbreviations
8 RR stop
9 Endorse
10 Bartor, for one
11 Donkey, in Frankfurt
12 Slave of Vitis
15 Dirty
18 — in schedule
19 Semi-liquid
23 — made from of many colors
24 Part of the Marshall Islands
25 Nebr.
26 Bite in noir
27 — — sweet song
28 Diver
29 Tel Aviv dances
30 Deter
32 Wide awake

35 Show from a show
39 In or out follower
40 Nonetheless
42 Liquid sealer
43 Scrubby tree
44 Clyde and Frum
46 Loners in prose
47 Slightly open
48 Be rumours
49 Summer refreshers
50 Sheet of ice at sea
51 Lemon additives
52 Bantu native
53 WWII landing craft
54 Saints a sound

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

M	A	D	A	M		A	B	A	S		C	A	S	A
A	M	I	N	O		D	O	N	E		O	R	A	L
N	O	M	A	D		O	N	E		W	I	N	E
F	R	E		E	L	B	O	W	G	R	E	A	S	E
		B	R	I	E			E	A	R
A	C	T	U	A	L	A	D	A	P	T	E	R	S
L	E	A	S	T		S	P	A	N		M	I	A
I	N	T	H	E	R	E	P	I	T	C	H	I	N	G
A	T	E		E	L	S	E		H	E	L	G	A
S	O	R	D	I	D	L	Y		C	A	R	E	S	S
		O	R	G		M	A	I	D
K	N	U	C	K	L	E	D	O	W	N		E	E	B
H	O	N	E	Y	B	E	E		H	A	I	R
A	N	T	E	N	I	N	A		A	S	I	D	E
T	O	O	T		T	E	E	D		W	A	T	E	R

2-16-89



TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is not the best time for a legal confrontation. Great rewards lie ahead if you exercise patience when making career choices. A mystery intrigues you. Probe deeper.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Money could become an obsession if you are not careful. Your public loves you. Allow greater give-and-take in a relationship and a rift will mend quickly. Avoid harsh criticisms.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Intense emotions may swamp you for the moment. Stay out of debt by limiting credit card use, eagerly pursue a job that offers both travel and a large expense account.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is safety in numbers today. Your playful attitude toward romance takes the emotional pressure off a relationship. A serene environment helps you turn in top work performance. Show a becoming modesty.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Shared values are essential if a relationship is to last. Your performance on the job is related to the state of your personal life. Steer clear of gossipy people. Keep your own counsel.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Romance takes a backseat today, you are caught up in a whirlwind of other concerns related to your work. Be alert to hazards when making home repairs by yourself. Observe safety rules.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Overtures from partner makes you burn today. If married, you may be thinking about expanding your family. Developing new intellectual interests will make you a more interesting conversationalist. Keep up with current affairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) It may be time to end a relationship that is draining your energy. Your sense of humor returns following an emotional blow-up. The element of surprise helps you move in the right direction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Friends are great allies, but they also provide distractions you do not need right now. A close relationship takes a confusing turn. Curb an urge to act impulsively. Take a wait and see approach.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your life seems more settled now. A financial windfall reduces day-to-day pressures. You find a practical answer to a complex problem. Travel proves invigorating. Follow up on an important introduction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Do not neglect the spiritual side of your life. Remember your roots. Self-improvement projects enjoy highly favorable influences. Show off your communication skills. Make this a time of learning.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Your position at work looks safe, unless you do something really out of line. Plan a vacation near water. The more beauty there is around you, the happier you will be.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Hamburger on roll Chicken burrito	Vegetable chow mein Spaghetti and sweet sausage
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Golden burgers Chicken burrito	Vegetable chow mein Spaghetti with garden vegetables

AP photo

BEST ACTRESS NOMINEES – Best actress nominees announced yesterday for the 61st Academy Awards are from left: Sigourney Weaver for "Gorillas in the Mist," Glenn Close for "Dangerous Liasons," Melanie Griffith for "Working Girl," Meryl Streep for "A Cry in the Dark," and Jodie Foster for "The Accused."

ATTENTION:

to all minority graduates. The Minority Graduate Student Association will hold their next meeting on Thursday, February 16, 1989. This meeting will take place on the second floor of the Graduate Research Center building at 7:00 p.m.

Contact Kit Holder, President, for more information: 545-0327

Government changes Zero Tolerance Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) – Small quantities of illegal drugs will no longer be sufficient reason for federal agents to seize commercial fishing vessels at sea, according to a change in the government's Zero Tolerance policy.

Coast Guard Adm. Paul Yost and Customs Commissioner William von Raab are issuing interim guidelines, expected to be announced today, to conform with a congressional mandate that was included in the sweeping anti-drug legislation signed in to law in November.

Under the controversial Zero Tolerance policy that began last March, federal agents were free to seize vessels within 12 miles of the US coastline if any amount of illegal drugs was found on board.

Recreational boat owners were furious, complaining that they faced the loss of millions of dollars worth of property even if a crew member or guest possessed a trace of marijuana without the boat owner's knowledge. And commercial fishermen said they could lose their livelihoods even if they were eventually found innocent and their vessels were returned.

Congress narrowly approved a series of modifications to Zero Tolerance late last year that would, in the words of Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska, "prevent innocent owners of fishing vessels from being persecuted by well-meaning but over-excited enforcement agents."

Congress instructed the executive branch to issue new regulations within 60 days and then hold a 30-day public comment period. But the Bush administration already is a month late, and Customs Service officials said they do not expect formal regulations to be proposed for at least several weeks.

NOW CARRYING COMICS

Main St RECORDS

HARDCORE

The area's largest selection of independent and imported records, cassettes and compact discs

Monday-Wednesday 9:30-6:00 | Thursday-Saturday 9:30-9:00 | Sunday 12:00-5:00

213 Main Street, Northampton, Massachusetts 586-5726

Introducing the

POT BELLY DELI

Route 9 • Hadley • 584-1603

HAM & CHEESE HERO $2.49

★ Free 1 oz. bag of New York Style Deli Chips with Every Sub

NO FAT. NO CHOLESTEROL.

Nothing But Delicious.

BANANARAMA fabulous frozen YOGURT

Try some Nonfat Frozen Yogurt the taste will leave you amazed!

Amherst Boltwood Walk

Northampton Main Street

SMART COOKIES KNOW...

$1.79 LUNCH SPECIAL

CHINESE KITCHEN

150 KING ST., NOHO • 586-8220

ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 253-2571

■ Eggers

continued from page 24

Redshirting is most often utilized with freshmen to allow them to develop another year but in cases like the one of Egger's last season, the rule gives the athlete another chance to perform at his highest level. Eggers was redshirted last year.

"I was a little disappointed but also a little relieved," Eggers said. "The reason why I redshirted was because I was injured. I was getting psyched for the season, doing my routines. As far as being redshirted, I was relieved because I didn't have to hold back."

Since coming back this year, Eggers has been the most consistent gymnast in UMass' lineup. He has regularly hit nine or aboves on the horizontal bar, the floor exercise, and the still rings. One of Eggers' goal is to qualify for the NCAA Championships which will be held in Nebraska upon the completion of the season in March in at least one of those events.

Eggers is a senior, but has one year of eligibility left because of the redshirt year. After next year, whether he will continue gymnastics is up in the air.

"It depends on my compulsories," Eggers said. "Meaning that if I'm reaching the level where my compulsories are strong enough to do well in the USA Championships, then I'll stick with gymnastics after I graduate. Otherwise, I can't really see it worthwhile to pursue. So it depends on where I am a couple of years from now."

When UMass takes the floor this weekend at the Boyden Gymnasitics Center he knows he will have at least two fans sitting up in the stands. His parents have made the 4½ hour trip from Stonybrook, N.Y. to Amherst for almost every UMass home meet and have also traveled to almost every road meet the last four years.

"I don't think my mother or my father have ever missed anything I've ever done," Eggers said. "My mother has seen every meet I've ever been in. I used to do wrestling, play baseball, they've been there. A matter of fact, in four years of college, they haven't missed a meet except for one or two. The year I redshirted, they came to most of the meets."

Clemens signs for $7.5 million

NEW YORK (AP) – Roger Clemens agreed to a three-year contract yesterday with the Boston Red Sox worth 7.5 million, the highest average annual salary in baseball history.

Clemens, a two-time Cy Young Award winner, will get a $300,000 signing bonus, $2.2 million this season, $2.5 million in 1990 and $2.5 million in 1991.

Including a prorated share of the signing bonus, Clemens will earn $2.6 million in each of the 1990 and 1991 seasons, which if not surpassed, would become the highest single-season salary ever in baseball. The previous high was Don Mattingly's $2.5 million 1990 salary from the New York Yankees.

Pitcher Dwight Gooden, who will receive $2,416,667, including a share of his signing bonus, from the New York Mets this year, is the highest paid player in 1989.

At four years, 142 days of major league service, Clemens reached $2 million faster than any other player in history, beating Minnesota's Kirby Puckett by five days.

Boston co-owner Haywood Sullivan and Clemens' agents, Randy and Alan Hendricks, each confirmed the agreement had been reached.

"While it may represent the highest salary per year ever earned in baseball, that's not going to last too long in my opinion," Randy Hendricks said. 'I believe that salaries are going to continue going up."

In addition to his salary, Clemens can earn $350,000 per year in bonuses. He would get $100,000 for winning the Cy Young Award, and $50,000 for finishing second. He would get $10,000 for winning the American League Most Valuable Player and $50,000 for finishing second and third. He would get $50,000 if he is MVP of the AL playoffs and $100,000 if he is MVP of the World Series.

■ women's hoop

continued from page 24

If we come out and put pressure on, we need to keep people fresh. We're in a good situation where our freshmen and bench have been getting more floor time," Hewelt said.

Collegian photo by Joel Solomon

Senior guard Christel Zullo (10) and the Minutewomen will play Penn State tonight.

PRESIDENTS' DAY FEBRUARY 20

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON—THURS 8:30-3:30 FRI 8:30-2:30 • DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION • CASH IN ADVANCE 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

VIETNAMESE STUDENTS ASSOCIATION Thank you to all members who have helped during the Vietnamese New Year Party From Staffs

ANNOUNCING THE FINANCE AND INVESTMENT CLUB'S Inaugural gathering of 1989 featuring Elections and social events planning. New members graciously welcomed Thursday 7:8pm SOM lobby. Don t let it be another extracurricularless semester

UMASS SKI CLUB runs the best spring breaks to Barbados, Bahamas, Bermuda, Killington and Breckenridge 545-3437/430 SUB

WHAT S THE POINT OF LIFE? Unique dream techniques, special visualizations and simple twenty-minute spiritual exercises can help you find your destiny in this life. Learn about the transforming spiritual exercises of ECKANKAR. One hour presentation, 30-minute video and basic how-to s UMA Campus Center 7:30 Thursday Feb 9 16 23

SOUTHWEST AREA GOV is looking for someone to coordinate our annual Spring Concert. Interested? Call 5-0960 for details

AMHERST FIRE DEPARTMENT

THE AMHERST FIRE DEPARTMENT is recruiting volunteers to work as firefighter/EMTs No experience necessary. See our table on the concourse February 2 2 24

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE

SAPCIOUS 1,2, and 3 BEDROOM UNITS in Sunderland Ample off street parking and free bus service to UMass and shopping areas Call 665-3856

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass We can send it almost anywhere For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUDIO

NIKKO AMPLIFIER 85 watts per channel $150 00 549 4901

AUTO FOR SALE

81 HONDA CIVVIC WAGON Very well maintained, dependable $1200 549-2733

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500 00 or BO Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CAMP COUNSELORS

COME WORK FOR an accredited 3-camp organization in the Pocono Mountains of PA Positions are available in Tennis, Archery Waterfront (W S I), Dramatics, Office Administration, Computers, Radio, Arts & Crafts, Nature, Athletics, Jewelry, Photography, Dance, Wrestling, Cooking, Adventure/Challenge Course, Film making, Camp Drivers Season 6/24-8/20 Call 800-533-CAMP (215-887-9700 in PA) or write 407 Benson East, Jenkintown, PA 19046

COMPACT DISC MUSIC MACHINE

DISC JOCKEY SERVICE - quality tunes for all occasions 549-1421 or 253-7655

FLORIDA SPRING BREAKS

DAYTONA'S CASTAWAY BEACH RESORT - $139 Panama City Beach's Newest Mile Resort $119 roundtrip transportation add $80 Call Mark 549-2871

FOR RENT

PUFFTON VILLAGE One bedroom in a 3-bedroom apt $190 furnished Call Tom or Rahul 549-4834 immediately

FRIDGE RENTALS WE DELIVER 253-9742

BE A BOARDER IN A SORORITY! Females only Great location! Great food! Call 545-0527 Ask for Tiel Steph or Tracey

FOR SALE

BRAND NEW WINTER COAT medium size navy blue knee length Going cheap Call 549-5592 Ally

FOR SALE HEAD SKIS with Solomon bindings $100 or BO 546-9001

49 STICKER FOR SALE 256-1187

BUY A BIKE Cannondale S300 or best offer Raiging and touring suntour gear system Dia compe brakes mistral aluminum rims frame alone is worth five hundred dollars Call Anytime 549-3512

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES- 2 year old rental income property 18,000 dollars gross rental income per year Live rent free and pay for tuition Call Dale or Ginny 253-9449

SELLING 85 MZD GLC just had accident excellent for parts price B/O call 546-5918 leave message

RUG-GREAT FOR DORM
Sky Blue
Excellent condition
$45 or best offer
Call Alisa 527-6505

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles Call 256-8369

FOUND

HEY - GREG SMITH. We have your I D Down here at the Collegian Just ask at the front desk The Classifieds

GREAT DEAL

STATION WAGON $500 or best offer 1979 Pontiac Catalina Cruiser good condition Great car for around town or road trips Call after 6:30pm Shane 549-1594

GUITAR LESSONS

PRIVATE GUITAR LESSONS with Doug Hewitt Rock Blues-Folk all levels Songwriting improvisation, theory reading Studio on 3 bus lines 549-4786 or 549-6966

HELP WANTED

FIGHT THE HIGH COST OF TUITION! Work with Clean Water Action Earn $6.80-10 00/hr working on our professional campaign staff We are seeking motivated, articulate and environmental thinking people Great work-experience for Comm, Poli-Sci, Env and Marketing majors Call 549-7450

SALES/MARKETING HELP NEEDED for small growing company Experience desired, not necessary Travis 584-9158

FREE MEALS can the DC Fraternity in need of light kitchen help, in exchange for meals Call Jon 545-0046

GREAT JOB - NO PAY
FREE MEALS
Call Today
549-2905

SCREW THE DC
MEALS FOR FREE
For info call me
549-2905

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED FOR UMass dorms No car necessary 7 days/week 1-2 hours/day Good pay Call 253-7009

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center Get hands on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided An information session will be held on February 22 from 3:30-4:30 in room 901 Campus Center (545-1995)

LOST

CASIO WATCH ON SATURDAY Feb 11 sentimental value Reward call Suresh 6-1044

BROWN LEATHER BOMBER JACKET taken from 53 TOWNEHOUSE Saturday Night We can recognize you easily Please return the jacket to the Washington Cluster office or call Mary at 546-9218 No questions asked

LOST IN HERTER THURS. 2-9 Black Brief Case of great personal value Any info please call Lisa at 549-6989 Very important Thanx

LOST Gold ropechain bracelet between Mahar 108 and Hills South from 2-3pm 2 8 89 Has special meaning If found please call Shen 546-5092

NOMINATION PAPERS FOR SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE

NOMINATION PAPERS FOR SGA President and Trustee are available in Rm 420 in the Student Union Nomination close March 2nd

PERSONALS

JILL KAPLAN - This is your big day Happy 21st Birthday Live it up Julie

SUE AND MO Happy B-Day from the rest of the family Love Greg Peter and Bobby

MK, DO YOU DANCE? Love and miss you DC

SWEETNESS - I was only joking when I said 40 yr old divorcees deserve one more moondance with you my love so take that pc man and slowly dance into the mystic Really nice!!!

CONGRATULATIONS! To the new Rib-bonettes of Sigma Delta Tau!!!

TO THE GUY IN DUCKBOOTS:
You were in the music store
you were sitting on the floor playing that guitar
while I saw you from afar
It was Friday afternoon
so please respond here soon! Ciao, C B

RIDE NEEDED TO SYRACUSE 2/17 253-2320 ROD

HAPPY 21st BIRTHDAY SUSAN! Can't wait till tonight! It's going to be most interesting to say the least! I'm not too sure you'll be making that Friday morning class Love Buns

JILL KAPLAN - Happy 21st. Just think in three years we can party legally. Deb

WOMEN'S SWIM TEAM
Kick ass at NE s!
Wish I could be there
Love you guys Sue G

JAMIE J. at Brittany Mnr. Roses are red, violets are blue, I sure would enjoy must talking with you! Look here again Tue-Wed.

LATE NIGHT MUNCHIES? Pinocchios has the answer Monday Tuesday Wednesday and Thrusday night special large cheese pizza for only $5 50 + tax A buck a topping We deliver

HAPPY B DAY Tom love Elise

BRIGHTEN YOUR LIFE! Meet that someone special through our singles club Intro singles club Box 3006 Boston, MA 02130

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later

RIDE WANTED

LOOKING TO SHARE RIDES with people who commute to and from Sofld 731-8301 eves

ROOMMATES WANTED

ONE ROOM IN APARTMENT 254 inclusive 1-2 people 256-0958 256-4270

FEMALE ROOMMATE NEEDED for three bedroom townehouse apt 165/mo Call 549-6448

FEMALE NEEDED FOR SPACIOUS squire village apt Feb and March free 183/mo 367-2092

2 FEMALES TO SHARE Townehouse apt Call 6-9207

1 OR 2 NEEDED for Amity Place Condo 225 each 549-1839

LICENSED DAYCARE PERSON has full/parttime openings Ages 1-4 Call 549-7988

SERVICES

AUTO REPAIRS Very reasonable, experienced mechanic Work your place or mine Messages for Mark 865-8467

PROFESSIONAL RESUMES, LASER-PRINTING, copies, typing 665-8873

RESUME TYPESETTING Avoid the end-of-semester panic Very experienced inexpensive overnight laserwriter quality Lisa 665-8969

SHABBAT

SHABBAT IS FULFILLING AND ENJOYABLE when celebrated at Chabad House Rabbi Adelman and family look forward to welcome you 549-4094

SPRING BREAK - DAYTONA

JOIN MTV AND 1000s OF
* SPRING BREAKERS IN DAYTONA *
Just $139 or $219 w/bus. Plus tanning discount at Le Bon Soleil
Call Dana 549-8064

STUDY ABROAD

INFORMATIONAL MEETING ON CIEE PROGRAMS (UMA sponsored) in Spain and the Dominican Republic 601 Herter Hall 3-5pm

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

CAMP YOUNG JUDEA, AMHERST, NEW HAMPSHIRE Resident co-ed 1 hour from Boston is in need of Department directors and activity specialists for this summer in Athletics, Gymnastics, Swim Instruction (WSI), Waterskiing, Sailing, Arts & Crafts, Campcraft, Israeli Dance, Drama, Israeli Folk song, Riflery, Tennis, Photography, Office personnel and Nurses (R N.) Excellent salaries and fringe benefits Please contact Dr Charles B Rotman, Director 81 Kingsbury Street Wellesley, MA 02181 617-237-9410

SUMMER SUBLET

SUBLET/TAKE OVER LEASE June 1st one bedroom apt $370 mo Call Linda or Tatiana 253-7185 Leave message

TICKETS NEEDED

TO LA RO VEGAS anywhere between for Spring Break 66378

TRAVEL

SPRING BREAK WEEKENDS
Montreal $79
Includes round trip motor coach and 2 nights hotel
Directly downtown
Breakaway tours
508-842-7336
420 Boston Turnpike
Shrewsbury, MA 01545

SPRING BREAK SPACES AVAILABLE but selling out fast! Cancun Special! only $389/quad -no additional charges! Plus amazing prices to Acapulco, Nassau Reserve your space immediately! Call Janice or Jennifer 549-8239.

ONE WAY TICKET Boston to Los angeles leaves March 20th $100 or best offer call 549-7586 leave message

HOT NIGHTS, COOL FROZEN DRINKS, reggae music, sandy beaches, and you. Affordable spring break trips to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco, and Daytona Call Karen or Shara at 546-6612, or Merideth at 549-8274 for details

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW, OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483

TUTORING

RETIRED FORMER PROFESSOR OF SPEECH will help foreign students with English also Ed papers for correct english usage Reasonable rates, no charge for initial interview 253-3354

TYPING

WORDSMITH ' PROFESSIONAL TYPING. Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck 253-4564

WORD PROCESSING fast professional accurate 665-4501

UMASS LAX SWEATSHIRT

LOST/STOLEN ON 8th FLOOR OF
* Coolidge 1st weekend in Feb Reward * offered for the return of this navy sweatshirt with a Lacrosse Logo * No questions asked Just please return * it no one else has one and it has * extreme sentimental value Call Laura at 546-8031

UNCLE SAMMY WANTS YOU!

THE BROTHERS OF SIGMA ALPHA MU Fraternity invite all University men to Spring Rush! Feb 14 Pizz Party Campus Center 9pm 7:11pm Feb 15 Casino Night Campus Center 9:17 8:11pm Feb 16 Bowling with the Brothers Meet at Southwest Horseshoe 8pm All events are free!

WANTED

HELP! Need to buy a 49 sticker please call 6-1156

FEMALE SHARE ROOM IN apt on Amity St $175 mo Call asap 549-7783

PING PONG TABLE Any condition Please call Teresa at 546-6397

SPORTS

Minutemen head south for A-10 games

UMass to face 14th-ranked West Virginia, then head to Pittsburgh to play Duquesne

Collegian photo by David Higashiguchi

Freshman guard Anton Brown (11) and the Minutemen will take on West Virginia in an Atlantic 10 game tonight.

By RONN GARRY
Collegian Staff

Parting the Red Sea was a nice trick, and that walking on water stuff was pretty impressive BUT, if you want a real miracle . . . hold your breath and pray tonight.

As most armchair experts or even the real authorities will tell you, the University of Massachusetts basketball team has only a little more than a prayer against the University of West Virginia University tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Morgantown.

The Mountaineers are currently the 14th-ranked team in the country and owners of the longest Division I winning streak in the country at 18 games. Now, throw in the fact that UMass isn't the strongest of teams on the road (the last time the Minutemen won on the road it was still 1988 — Coastal Carolina, on Dec. 30. One of UMass' only two road wins) and the ingredients don't add up to a for a nail-biter. In fact, UMass will more likely end up biting the bullet.

Is the outlook really as bleak as looks? Should UMass just forfeit and get some extra rest? Well of course not. Positives for UMass are: the Minutemen lost by 16 to WVU at home after learning only that morning about the loss of two seniors, and we must remember the Mountaineers have lost this season — twice.

West Virginia began the season 1-2 (losing to Robert Morris and Bradley) before beginning its current win streak.

But for UMass coach John Calipari, tonight's game goes beyond merely win/loss objectives.

"You might see a different style against West Virginia because it will be test time. Because, if we win the first round of the playoffs, we'll probably play West Virginia next. So [tonight] we're going to do everything in five minute spots," Calipari said.

Calipari will be looking for just that right combination which might confuse the Mountaineers in their probable meeting in three weeks.

West Virginia has a turbo-charged offense which scores over 80 points per game. The Mountaineers are paced sophomore Chris Brooks (13 ppg) and senior Herbie Brooks (14 ppg).

Other members of the West Virginia attack include Steve Berger, the top assist man in the conference (6.14 apg), and Darryl Prue, who ranks eigth in the conference in rebounding with almost seven per game. The Mountaineers have a super freshman of their own. Six-foot guard Tracy Shelton was the player who broke UMass' Jim McCoy's bid for A-10 freshman of the Week in three consecutive weeks.

And, there are even more superlatives for UMass' hosting opponent. West Virginia leads the A-10 in scoring defense, scoring margin, and shooting percentage; and WVU coach Gale Catlett won his 350th career game after nudging Rutgers by two points last week.

Hoop du-jour: How is this for irony? Prue and Chris Brooks of West Virginia are among the top 15 players in the country in field goal percentage at over 60 percent per game but, both are shooting around 40 percent from the free throw line — don't they let you take those for free? . . . If the season were to end today, UMass would be ranked 8th in the A-10 and would face St. Joseph's in the first round of the tourney. If they were to win that game, UMass would most likely face West Virginia on the following day.

Women's hoop to play Penn State

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts women's basketball coach Kathy Hewelt conducted practice yesterday while wearing a Penn State sweatshirt.

She wasn't entertaining any thoughts of a career move, but rather wanted to get her team inspired for tonight's game, when the Nittany Lions visit the Curry Hicks Cage (7:30).

"I don't want them to forget what happened the last time we played them, and how embarassing it was," Hewelt said.

On Jan. 12 the Minutewomen played Penn State at University Park and proceeded to fall behind 27-0 at the start and 45-14 at halftime, as the Lions rolled to a 79-50 win. Needless to say, the Minutewomen can't afford to be so generous tonight.

The Lions are currently 9-12 overall and 7-5 in the Atlantic 10 Conference. Not staggering numbers by any means, but there is still plenty of talent on this team. Freshman Sue Robinson, a ??? "Penn State is a great basketball team. We'll have to play ext??to do, it's up to [the players] to get it done."

What must be done is that the Minutewomen need to be more relaxed on the offensive end, while playing tight pressure defense.

They played good defense for the most part in Tuesday night's narrow win over Harvard, but were struggling to get the ball in on offense.

"We got the shots we wanted, but we needed them to drop," Hewelt said. "We understand what we have to do to calm ourselves down."

UMass also knows that it needs a win to prove to themselves that they are capable of beating a top team.

"This is a game that's very important for us, for our self-esteem and pride, to come and be ready for them," Hewelt said. "Defensive pressure will be the key."

In order to do that, Hewelt will need strong performances from everyone. She plans to her starters up a bit, as she has done in recent games, to keep the Lions off guard.

continued on page 23

One more chance

Eggers makes use of the redshirt rule

By GEORGE AUSTIN
Collegian Staff

The career of a college athlete is short enough. Four years and you're history, whether you graduate or not.

If you happen to be in such a sport as gymnastics, there is no hope of a professional career after college unless you go the coaching route.

For some, there is a slight glimmer of hope of making the United States Olympic team, but only a select few out of thousands will be chosen and even that will last just a short stint of time.

So you have to make the most of your four years.

Senior co-captain John Eggers of the University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team has made the most out of the first 2½ seasons that he has been with the Minutemen.

One of those four seasons was almost taken away from Eggers when he injured his ankle during a floor exercise routine in a preseason all-star meet last year.

UMass coach Roy Johnson had to weigh his options. He could go with Eggers at less than 100 percent for the rest of the season, or he could exercise the redshirt rule, which allows college athletes to sit out a season without losing a year of eligibility.

Sports Information photo

Senior gymnast John Eggers is getting another chance despite an injury, thanks to the redshirt rule.

WEATHER	NEWS	SPORTS
Time to find your extra-heavy sweaters. Partly sunny, highs in the mid to upper 20s.	New deputy chief named, and new unit formed, at Public Safety ceremony. Page 3.	McCoy scores 23, but 14th-ranked WVU whomps Minutemen, 88-55. Page 16.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1989

COLLEGIAN

VOLUME CXXII LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY IN NEW ENGLAND ISSUE 14

Tsongas reveals education plan

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

Speaking before nearly 250 professors in Bowker Auditorium yesterday, Paul Tsongas said the public higher education system needs to run more like a business to succeed and be competitive.

AP photo

Former Sen. Paul Tsongas

"The system we have here is starvation and famine and it's not conducive to good management. The public higher educational system [in Massachusetts] is a manager's nightmare," because planners never know how much money they will have to work with in the coming year, he said.

Tsongas, the newly appointed president of the Board of Regents, suggested that the state allocate a fixed percentage of the annual budget to higher education.

That way school administrators would at least have a definite amount to plan with, he said.

In a pre-forum press conference Tsongas said that the new motion by the Board of Regents for revamping public higher education in Massachusetts will impact University of Massachusetts less than other institutions in the state but he did not have any details about the plan.

He did say, however, that reducing admissions to any of the state's schools is not part of the motion.

"The idea of reducing access into the system is not acceptable," he said.

A preliminary draft of the motion will be released sometime in March, he said.

During the forum, which attracted faculty from many different schools across the state, Tsongas made repeated references to the idea of running the higher educational system like a business venture with incentives and streamlining tactics aimed at making the system run more effectively.

One idea Tsongas proposed was for six faculty to be recognized at graduation for outstanding contributions in areas such as teaching excellence, academic performance and community activities.

Each faculty would also receive a cash bonus from funds raised by alumni contributions, he said.

Another important aspect of returning higher education to a stable financial footing, Tsongas said, is getting the public to understand the importance of the system to the commonwealth that "we count, we mean something."

One idea Tsongas proposed was an "adopt-a-classroom" program where professors would take one class of kids, elementary through twelfth grade, and help them on their way to college. This would be tangible evidence to people that universities make a difference in the community, he said.

He said the public needs to realize that public higher education "is not just a social service, this is how we [the commonwealth] survive in the world."

"I think anybody with a double-digit I.Q. can figure out that if we don't turn this thing around, we're all going down the tubes," he said.

Iranian contract opposed

Professors angered by death threat to author

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

Some professors at the University of Massachusetts are unsettled by Iran's assassination contract put out on novelist Salman Rushdie, whose book has flared Moslems' tempers.

Rushdie, who was to appear at the school next week during the tour for his book The Satanic Verses, was sentenced to death by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and is now, with his family, under police protection.

"This is horrendous. I think the Americans and the British have got to take a firm and obvious stand against this kind of threat," said English department professor George Cuomo.

Other Comparative Literature and English professors have said they were appalled, shocked and annoyed with the threats made on Rushdie's life, and

continued on page 4

State officials declare emergency

From the Associated Press

BOSTON — State Environmental Secretary John DeVillars and other state officials formally announced a water emergency yesterday for the 44 communities served by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, calling for households to conserve water in every possible way.

"It's going to take more than a few rain showers like we had this week to solve this problem," DeVillars said at a news conference.

"In face, we could have more than a half dozen blizzards like we had in '78 and we'd still have a very worrisome situation."

The MWRA, along with the Metropolitan District Commission and the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, announced the emergency in light of the season's unusually low precipitation and the low water level at the Quabbin Reservoir, which provides water for 2.5 million people in the area.

"We must begin now to limit our water use, or we'll be in serious trouble this summer," DeVillars said, adding that the usual 25 inches of snow cover that provides the reservoir with the spring water supply is down this year to "a light dusting."

DEQE Commissioner Daniel Greenbaum said the affected communities have 30 days to draw up a contingency plan to outline how they want to deal with any possible reduction in water availability this summer.

The MWRA and the MDC are to come up with similar plans within 45 days.

The average Massachusetts household uses approximately 60 gallons of water a day, according to MWRA Executive Director Paul Levy. A 10 percent reduction in water use would be easily accomplished through simple measures.

Levy stressed the need to attend to household problems that cause water waste, such as fixing leaky faucets and pipes, limiting toilet use and cutting back on garden watering.

"All these things combined are less than $10 at your local hardware store, and I guarantee you with the rates we are setting the payback will be quick," Levy said, referring to the MWRA's proposed 43 percent rate increase proposed.

Levy also unveiled a public service announcement on water conservation featuring Boston Celtic Robert Parish that has been made available to local television stations.

DeVilloars said Quabbin, the largest reservoir in the Northeast, is usually at 81 percent capacity, and is down this year to 68 percent, the lowest level since March 1967, when it fell to 45 percent.

Britain prepares for Moslem violence

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press

Britain protested to Iran yesterday over Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's orders to kill Salman Rushdie, the author of The Satanic Verses, and religious students in Iran threatened suicide attacks on him.

The bounty for killing the Indian-born writer was doubled to $5.2 million, and Britain's airlines — including British Airways - tightened security following bomb threats against some flights.

The death threats against Rushdie, whose book has been denounced across the Moslem world as blasphemous, were called "appalling" by the US State Department. A leading Islamic theologian who opposes the book said in Egypt that Khomeini erred by not giving Rushdie a chance to repent.

Rushdie, a naturalized Briton whose novel has sparked violent protests from Islamic fundamentalists, has canceled a promotional tour for the book in the United States and remains in hiding with his American wife, Marianne Wiggins. Published reports said they were under police guard in Britain.

Moslems say the allegorical novel offends their faith by satirizing the prophet Mohammed as fallible; implying that Islam is not the only true religion; portraying Mohammed's wives as prostitutes and suggesting he wrote the Koran, rather than

continued on page 12

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

STUCK IN THE MUD — Leonard Baskin's Swan Sculpture stands, frozen, at Smith College.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation: 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA. 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr. GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
ASSOCIATES	BETTY-ANN MURPHY YANA DLUGY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE GEORGE FRANCY TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	DAVID R. MARK
COPY EDITOR	KATHY LAMOTHE
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	MARK INFIELD
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	TERRY STARMER
PRODUCTION	LAURA ROBINSON MICHELLE GEMME CELIA CORNISH MIGUEL DE LOS REYES KEITH GAUMONT RORY EVANS

amc THEATRES
$2.75 TWILITE SHOW LIMITED TO SEATING
WT. FARMS 4 584-9153
THE FLY II
TOM HANKS in The 'BURBS
RAINMAN
GREGORY HINES TAP
HAMPSHIRE 8 584-7550
Working Girl
BEACHES
THREE FUGITIVES
TRUE BELIEVER
MISSISSIPPI BURNING
Her Alibi

BUDGET TRAVEL CENTER
Cheapest Fares to
• EUROPE
• ASIA
• AUSTRALIA/ NEW ZEALAND
LONDON FRANKFURT PARIS SYDNEY TOKYO AMSTERDAM AUCKLAND HONG KONG
Plus railpasses international student ID, tours and much more. Ask for our free travel catalog
COUNCIL TRAVEL
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-RENT

WRITE FOR THE COLLEGIAN

ALL NEW! ALL PREMIERES!
The 21st International Tournee of ANIMATION
PLEASANT ST. THEATER
Northampton
586-0935
LAST WEEK
Weekdays at 7 & 9:15
Friday at 5:45, 7:50, 10
Sat. & Sun. at 3:45, 5:45, 7:50, 10

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
RENTAL LEASE PURCHASE

Copies Half Off After 100
After your first 100 copies of a single sheet original, the rest are half price at Kinko's, the copy center.
kinko's the copy center
220 N Pleasant St.
253-2543

AMHERST CINEMA
BIRD
Directed by Clint Eastwood
Held over 2nd week
1 showing every evening at 7:30
AMITY ST. 253-5426

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT Print Shop
228 Triangle St., Amherst

Master Card James H. McManus Visa eating place
OPEN 24 HOURS OPEN 24 HOURS
•BREAKFAST SERVED ANY TIME
•OPEN 6 A.M. - 3 A.M. SUNDAY - THURSDAY
•OPEN 24 HOURS FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
•BEER AND WINE SERVED 'TIL MIDNIGHT
•PLENTY OF PARKING
CAMPUS PLAZA
Route 9 next to Super Stop & Shop
HADLEY/AMHERST 256-6889
We now accept Mastercard and Visa
Employment Applications Being Taken

GRADUATE NURSES
Look Into Your Future at New England Medical Center
New England Medical Center is committed to the professional development of our nurses. Here you will find a variety of specialty areas in adult and pediatrics that provide you with the opportunities to develop your nursing skills in the areas of your choice. During your six week orientation, you will be supported in meeting your objectives by a preceptor and during your first year you will participate in patient care conferences, workshops, seminars and management training. As you gain primary nursing experience, you will have an opportunity to join a collaborative practice and work with a physician and ambulatory nurses to coordinate the care of your patients through an entire episode of illness. We are committed to your success. Join our staff and practice in an autonomous environment that fosters your professional growth.
• Salary with rotation $32,219
• Board Review Course Offered Free of Charge
• Early Decision Program
Confirm your starting date by May 1st and receive a $1,000 bonus.
In addition to offering one of the highest salary schedules in the area, our progressive benefits package includes continuing education providing CEU's, generous tuition reimbursement, flexible schedules including 12-hour shifts, and participatory time planning. We have a parking garage on-site and the convenience of an Orange Line T-stop.
For additional information about these opportunities, please call our Nurse Recruiter at 617-956-5575. 750 Washington Street, Box 465, Boston, MA 02111. An equal opportunity employer.
New England Medical Center Hospitals

PRESIDENTS DAY SALE!
Panasonic CQS505 $149 WITH SPEAKERS, INSTALLED
SANYO ER 100 $199 WITH SPEAKERS, INSTALLED
Panasonic CQ 300 $239 WITH SPEAKERS, INSTALLED
- THESE ARE ONLY 3 of the NUMEROUS SYSTEMS ON SALE FOR PRESIDENTS DAY!
FOR CELLULAR PHONES, RADAR DETECTORS AND AUTO SECURITY, SEE THE EXPERTS AT
CUSTOM CAR SOUND
573 RIVERDALE ST. W SPRINGFIELD 734-4995
141 DAMON RD NORTHAMPTON 586-5258

LOCAL

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

DINOSAUR'S EXTINCT? — Giant tin Tyrannosaurus Rex lies dormant at the closed down Mountain Park in Holyoke.

Luippold named deputy police chief

By CAROL McCLATCHEY
Collegian Correspondent

A 12-year veteran of the University of Massachusetts Police Department was named deputy chief of the department yesterday during a ceremony at the Robsham Visitor's Center.

Lt. John Luippold, 34, of Belchertown, will assume his new duties Sunday, according to Director of Public Safety Arthur Hilson.

"I am proud to be a part of the department," Luippold said, "and I hope to continue to offer services to students and the community."

The formation of a unit within the Department of Public Safety was also announced yesterday. Luippold said it "would provide tailored service and protection to the community which are long overdue."

The new Community Disorders Unit will investigate all major disorders and all crimes against race, sex, color, religion, national origin and sexual orientation, Hilson said.

Luippold joined the UMass force in 1977, was appointed sergeant and later lieutenant. As deputy chief, he will be in charge of all police operations, answering solely to Hilson.

He is filling a slot vacated by Robert Joyce, who resigned last summer after disagreements about reorganization of the department.

The new deputy said yesterday that serving the community with a limited budget will be his biggest challenge.

In announcing Luippold's promotion, Hilson said, "We have called upon someone to take on a problem — a headache."

Moments after the announcement, Amherst Police Chief Donald Maia congratulated Luippold, saying sarcastically, "My condolences to you."

Lt. Michael Grabiec, who will head CDU, said he will lead a team of three in investigating campus crime. Hilson said he hoped to have five officers eventually on the CDU's staff.

Public Safety, like all departments on campus, is facing a hiring freeze. Hilson said the unit would be much more effective if new positions could be created.

He cited the CDU's involvement in the last two major drug busts, including the recent bust at Price Chopper that netted three of the largest drug suppliers to the area.

"I feel the staff and the program of the CDU have been doing a marvelous job," Hilson said.

Luippold said he was proud to be a part of the UMass community. "My number one goal is to make this a safe place," he said.

Collegian Staff Member Thomas Rodrigues contributed to this story

Nakajima, Davis announce candidacies

United Student Agenda announced yesterday its candidates for the March 14 elections for campus president and Student Trustee.

The candidates will be running on a platform of student rights and a united campus free of racism and violence, according to USA.

Tracy Davis, USA candidate for president, said, "The cost and quality of education are color blind, they concern us all."

Davis said she wants to get as many students involved as possible on issues that really affect students on campus, such as racism and the cost of education.

Eric Nakajima, USA candidate for Student Trustee, said, "There are many problems facing us. We are divided by goals and ideology, but we must stand together as one community."

"We need to come together and understand what binds us," he said. "Education is an important component in dealing with rape and racism on campus."

—PATRICIA REGO

Officials praise, caution UMass

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

Administrators had words of praise for the University of Massachusetts yesterday, but were far less optimistic about the projected impact of state budget cuts this year.

Gordon Oakes, new chairman of the Board of Trustees, spoke for the first time yesterday before the Faculty Senate and voiced his approval of the University's progress in recent years.

"This campus should be very proud of its accomplishments in the past," said Oakes, a 1964 UMass alumnus.

The University has a "tremendous" potential for development, he said, citing increases in privately-sponsored research and plans for new engineering and polymer science buildings.

Oakes lauded faculty members for becoming leading information sources around the globe. Between 1983 and 1985, UMass faculty members produced 618 books, 718 chapters, and more than 4,000 articles.

"This campus has resources available which I believe are as good as any in this country," he said, also noting the University's increased emphasis on writing skills, historical studies, and diversity courses.

As a land-grant institution, the University serves as a major resource for the community but Oakes said this public function should not undermine the quality of the institution.

"This is a first-class university and campus," he said. "Being accessible does not mean being second-rate."

Oakes said the recruitment of minority students is "challenging," but urged continued efforts to maintain diversity on campus.

Although the University is under strict budget constraints, Oakes said a science resource library, increased laboratory space and other equipment are necessary improvements.

"The cost of doing this is high," he said. But, "the cost of not doing this is higher."

Oversubscribed or cancelled courses and underpaid teaching assistants are some aspects of the budget cuts that Oakes said "cannot be tolerated."

"I believe it is unwise for the state to disinvest in public education," he said. "This is one of the finest institutions in the country. I think we have nowhere to go but up."

Despite Oakes' optimism, University President David Knapp said after suffering two budget cuts, two revisions and the temporary suspension of capital outlay monies in the past two years, projections for the state's fiscal year 1990 remain dim.

"Increasingly, we have been seen on Beacon Hill as simply one more spending agency, rather than as an investment in the economic and social well-being of the state," Knapp said.

Keeping public higher education a priority in Massachusetts will result largely from University student, parent and faculty activity, he said.

"I think it is fair to say that no year in the past decade will be more critical than this in determining the future of the University of Massachusetts."

In other business:

- Provost O'Brien reported a lengthy search for a new registrar ended this month with the appointment of Nancy Fitzpatrick, formerly of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Also, he reported the University computers will undergo "drastic" changes in system organization.

- Negotiations for a $6 million telecommunications gift for the University from MCI will be underway for the next several weeks, said Deidre Ling, vice chancellor for University relations and development.

Amherst to build new post office

By GEORGE FRANCY
Collegian Staff

A new, $3 million Post Office for the town of Amherst should improve mail service to the University of Massachusetts, according to the Amherst Postmaster.

Walter A. Bush, Amherst postmaster, said the town has outgrown the current facility on North Pleasant Street in Amherst Center.

"We're elbow to elbow here," Bush said. "We're in such cramped quarters here that it hurts our productivity."

The new facility, on Stadium Drive near the Price Chopper supermarket, is scheduled to be completed next fall, he said.

"I can't imagine that it will be anything but an improvement," said Director of Administrative Services Marabeth Clapp. Administrative Services oversees several campus operations, including campus mail.

Bush said the current office will remain open as a retail center. "I promised the townspeople that what is here now will remain. Mostly what's moving is behind the walls, stuff you don't see anyway."

The Amherst Post Office, which serves Amherst and three other towns, sees between 100,000 and 150,000 pieces of mail per day, he said.

He said the new facility will have a retail area, which should reduce long lines sometimes encountered at the downtown office. There will also be more parking than the current Post Office, he said.

Construction began on the new facility in November, and Bush said he hopes to move in by October. He said construction was held up briefly to receive approval by the Amherst and Hadley conservation commissions because the building is near wetlands, protected by Massachusetts law.

"Any planning of a building that occurs within 100 feet of wetlands has to be reviewed by the Conservation Commission," said Mary Donahue-Klein, assistant conservation director of the Amherst Conservation Commission.

Collegian photo by Joel Solomon

Skeleton of the new post office being built on University Drive.

Professors

continued from page 1

agreed that freedom of speech is at stake.

Director of Judaic and Near-Eastern Studies at UMass, professor Adnan Haydar tried to explain the Moslems' reactions.

"What he has done is encourage a rather small group of very conservative Moslems into action and has been branded as a blasphemer," Haydar said. "However, many Moslems who are upset keep the anger at the level of ideas and do not like Khomeini's call for his [Rushdie's] assassination," he said.

"As a religious leader," Haydar said, "Khomeini is probably expressing this anger, at the book and its author, as a spokesman for Moslems of the world."

Haydar likens Rushdie's book with the controversial movie The Last Temptation of Christ that raised a similar anger in conservative Catholics when it was released last year.

He said he has the feeling Rushdie knew exactly what he was doing when he wrote the book and about the enormous profits that would follow the sensationalism it has received. "But," Haydar says, "I don't think he calculated this reaction [the call for his death]."

JB's Sub
HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES

JB's Roast Beef
50 Main St., Amherst
(across from Police Station)
253-7018

OPEN WIDE —AHHHH

I'll bet you could never guess how many JB's delicious roast beef sandwiches I pack into this mouth daily? Well, let me save you the trouble—four! I just scrunch 'em up and stuff em in. Of course I need a malted milk shake to make things go down easier and two orders of fries to nibble on afterwards. Hey, some habits are hard to break and JB's is one of them. At least I don't bite my nails!!!

GREAT FOOD • GREAT PRICES • OPEN TIL 2 AM
If this is you take this ad to JB's for a free order of Chicken Fingers.

C & C LIQUORS
61 Main St., Amherst
Next to Town Hall
FOR FREE DELIVERY OF $20 MINIMUM ORDER. (OFF UMASS CAMPUS)
Dial 253-3091
— All Prices In Store Cash Only —

CAPTAIN MORGAN SPICED RUM 750 ml.....$5.99

JACOBS CREEK AUSTRALIAN CHARDONNAY.....$4.99

SANGRE DE TORO.....$3.99

MILLER LITE SUITCASE.....$10.99

OLIFANT DUTCH VODKA 1.75 L.....$12.99
WOW!!

SMUGGLERS SCOTCH 1 Liter.....$7.99

-Are you an Art Major who wants to design posters?
-Are you an English, Communications, or Journalism Major who wants to do press or publicity?
-Are you interested in bringing diverse speakers to this campus?

WE WANT YOU!!
DVP
Distinguished Visitors Program
New members meeting

February 21st in C.C. 811B at 6:30 PM

distinguished visitors program

refreshments will be served

COLLEGIAN

ATTENTION SOPHOMORE/JUNIOR MARKETING MAJORS

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World.

THE COLLEGIAN is offering the opportunity to gain THE MOST VALUABLE BUSINESS EXPERIENCE on campus

Applications for position of MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER are now being accepted

This position requires Responsibility, Dedication and Time Commitment—the qualities that future employers are looking for.

Come down to the Collegian Business Office in the Campus Center (RM 113 - lower level; 545-3500) and pick up a job application and description and submit it no later than Wednesday, March 1.

M/F—EOE

Colloquia offer credits, experience

By JOHN SWANSON
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts colloquium program offers students the opportunity to instruct and enroll in one-credit courses in non-traditional fields of study, and according to the program's director, the deadline to get involved in rapidly approaching.

"Colloquia may supplement students' educational experience by providing subjects which may not be offered at the University, or might not be accessible to some," said Hrayr Tamazarian, the program's director. These courses include a range of topics such as health and social issues, arts and crafts and sign language.

Tamazarian added that the programs frequently offer instruction in material taught in courses that may be difficult to get into. Photography and dance classes, for instance, are not always available to students outside the major, he said.

Colloquia are taught in dormitories throughout campus. The program, established in 1972, is now run by Residential Academic Programming, he said.

University staff, and undergraduate and graduate students are encouraged to submit proposals for courses they wish to instruct, but Spring Semester colloquia proposals are due today in Brett, room B35, Tamazarian said.

UMass student Clarinda Rose-Turner, who teaches "Couples in Science Fiction Fantasy," has been a colloquium instructor for four semesters. She said cutbacks in state-sponsored educational programs have affected the program, which is now run solely by Tamazarian part-time.

"I think [the program] works because it is students interacting with students," Rose-Turner said. "But it's one of those programs that could be considered extraneous."

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Friday Afternoon Smorgasbord!

$2 - All you can eat!

Ribs, Chicken Wings, Eggplant Parmisagna, Pasta, Salads, etc...

Come down and start your weekend off right!

Busch Pitchers	$3.75
Rolling Rock	.99
Woo-Woo's	$1.50

Spirit Haus
338 COLLEGE ST. (RT. 9) • AMHERST • 253-5384

ROLLING ROCK 12 pk. Bottles	$5.99 plus dep.
BECKS and HEINEKEN 12 pk. Bottles	$7.99 plus dep.
RINGNES EXPORT PURE NORWEGIAN
$4.49 6-pack plus dep.	$16.99 case plus dep.
HOPE LAGER BEER FROM RHODE ISLAND
$3.70 6-pack plus dep. cans only
GUINESS GOLD 6 pk.	$4.99
HAREM WALKER RED HOT SCHNAPPS	4.79 750 ml
JACK DANIELS	9.99 750 ml
CAPTAIN MORGAN SPICED RUM	$2.45 200 ml

$2.50 Mail-In Rebate!!!

• MEGABUCKS •
• IMPORTED & DOMESTIC KEGS, BEER & WINE •
ALWAYS ON HAND

Amherst College Presents
CINDY KALLET, ELLEN EPSTEIN & MICHAEL CICONE
New England's Own Dynamic Folk Trio!

SUNDAY, FEB. 19
8 p.m. $5 Public
$1 Amherst College

SUNDAYS AT EIGHT
in the Campus Center
Info: (413) 542-5773

Coming: Tom Chapin with Mark Rust—Feb. 26

TAKE ANOTHER PEAK

BRECKENRIDGE
GENUINE COLORADO SKIUSA
THE PEAK

Breckenridge is three majestic, interconnected ski mountains, each with its own high-speed four-passenger SuperChair, as well as twelve other lifts. It all towers above a lovingly restored genuine Victorian town full of shops, restaurants, nightspots and enough lodging to entertain over 20,000 visitors at once. Isn't it time you took another peak? You may never look elsewhere.

$599

PRESENTED BY UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437

New Product Watch

CASE SPECIALS

COORS SUITCASE	10.99
CARLING BLACK LABELS	6.99
FALSTAFF	7.99

NEW ARRIVAL
GUINNESS GOLD 16.99 case
$8.00 Mail-In Rebate—Your Cost $8.99

ONES, FOURS, SIXS AND TWELVES

CALIFORNIA COOLERS 2 Lt.	2.99
PURPLE PASSION 4 pk.	4.99
HAFFENREFFER 6 pk.	3.99
O'DOUL'S PALE ALE 6 pk.	3.99
You won't see this one again!
RED STRIPE 6 pk.	4.99
BALLANTINE 12 pk.	3.99
ROLLING ROCK 12 pk.	5.99

STOLICHNAYA 750 ml	10.99
Mail-In Rebate $1.50 Final Cost $9.49
FOUR SEASONS GIN 1.75L	8.99
FOUR SEASONS VODKA 1.75L	8.99
CAPTAIN MORGAN 750 ml	5.99

THERE'S NO REASON TO GO ANYWHERE ELSE
FOUR SEASONS
KEGS—ALL SHAPES & SIZES MC/VISA WE DELIVER
Located on Route 9, Hadley—Just beyond Burger King
OPEN MONDAY—SATURDAY 9 a.m. - 11 p.m.
584-8174

HRTA Dept.

presents

Future Opportunities...

The Right Place

The Right Time

CAREER DAY '89

Over 50 Hospitality Companies Represented
Opportunities for Summer Employment, CO-OPS, and Future Careers.
All Majors Welcome

Career Day also features Two Banquets at 11:30 and 1:00
Tickets Available for $5 at Flint Cafe between 10 and 2
Tues., Feb. 21 Campus Center Auditorium 9:00-4:30

HEY SENIORS: Get Shot!

Senior Portrait Sittings will be held from Feb. 27 - Mar. 17, 9-5 pm in Rms 177/178 of the Campus Center. Call 5-2874 for info & appointments.

ORDER your 1989 INDEX NOW!
It's a $25 investment in memories that last a lifetime!

Send coupon to address below.

Make your checks payable to: INDEX Yearbook

NAME _____

PERMANENT ADDRESS _____

LOCAL PHONE NO. _____

INDEX 103 Campus Center/UMass, Amherst 545-0848

S · U · N BARBADOS

for SPRING BREAK

THE PLACE TO BE

We have a brand new 7-bedroom mansion reserved for the UMASS spring break party of the year. Your party abode is located on the beach and includes a fully equipped kitchen, living room, 4 full bath rooms, and daily maid service. The Sandy Lane Golf Course and Sunset Crest Resort are both close neighbors. The 3 quads, 3 triples, and 1 double are given on a first come first serve basis so don't be late.

DATES:
JFK Departure: March 17, 18, 19
Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Departures
BOS Departure: March, Friday 17 - Friday 24

Quad, Triple, or Double Occupancy: $589
Occupancy is first come first serve
Reservation Deposit: $75
Refundable Security Deposit: $25

$75 non-refundable for reservation
$25 security deposit required.
Full payment is need after February 9, 1989
Payments in guaranteed funds only!

$589

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union
545-3437
SEE US AT THE TABLE

POSITION AVAILABLE!

CIRCULATION COORDINATOR

Responsibilities include:
- Coordinating drivers
- Occasional delivery
- Prep. for Circulation Mgr. position

Applicants must have:
- Mon-Fri open until 11:00
- Reliable car
- Preference to Sophomores & Juniors

Apply today at Collegian
Collegian is an EOE

EDITORIAL/OPINION

US sets a bad example for law-abiding citizens

Recently, I spent some time in the audience of the Lawrence District Court watching America's brand of justice being dispensed. Case after case dealt with defendants from the lower end of the Massachusetts Miracle. Their crimes ranged from petty theft to assaults, with a vast majority there for drug charges. Each defendant was quickly sentenced with either fines or prison sentences.

Michael R. Sweeney

The fact that most of the defendants came from tragic social and economic situations was never introduced. The general feeling was that, ultimately, they had made an individual choice to break the law and now had to pay the price. My mind was appalled by the contrast of this scene to that the three-ring circus in Washington, DC, disguised as the trial of Lt. Col. Oliver North.

Oliver North was charged with crimes of a far more ghastly nature than those of the defendants in the Lawrence court room. Indeed, Special Prosecutor Lawrence Walsh saw fit to charge North with two of the most "unpatriotic" charges that can be made in a democracy: conspiracy and fraud against the government. These charges were dropped and North's right to a fair trial to clear his name may be lost because Edward Dennis of the Justice Department is pushing hard to have the entire case dismissed.

To release the classified information that North feels he needs to get at the truth would, in the eyes of the US government, "compromise" national security. This excuse is, of course, an old one for the US government. It was used to commit and then deny atrocities in Vietnam, Iran, Cambodia, Guatemala, Chile... the list is almost endless.

Too many questions linger in regard to drug trafficking, arms running, and misappropriation of funds from Congress to allow this trial to be swept away. Former Supreme Court Justice Louis Brandeis once stated, "Our government teaches the whole people by its example, if the government becomes a lawbreaker it breeds contempt for law. It invites every man to become a law unto himself. It invites anarchy."

It seems to me that many Americans on the lower end of the economic scale have lost faith in their government and their own ability to be successful in a legitimate manner through their own determination and skills. They watched as men like Ivan Bolsky robbed millions and then as punishment had to spend a few years at a country club doubling as a prison for the rich and famous. They read of the allegations that the upper echelon of the US government is involved in drug trafficking and another illegal war. They see that no one of political or economical importance will be imprisoned for conspiracy, that many government contacts stand to make a healthy profit for this business of murder and deceit.

Regardless of who knew what, men such as North, President Bush and retired General Richard Secord, made individual decisions to participate in or allow criminal activities under the cover of national security. The American people, including the defendants in the Lawrence courts, deserve an explanation and the opportunity to decide what the truth is. A real trial for North may compromise national security to some extent, but surely nothing is a greater threat to democracy than having its people lose faith in the government and the laws that it issues.

Michael R. Sweeney is a UMass student

A mechanical dictator

Tick tock, tick, tock. . .

Presidents, Kings, Queens, Tyrants, and Gods have all been thrust into a position of rule at one point on the historical spectrum, but did you ever wonder who or what it was that ultimately rules all? Did you ever consider what it is that tells people how they will live their lives day in and day out? Exactly what it is that commands people from the moment they wake until the moment they sleep? What is it that commands such power that it virtually transforms people into robots?

Dino Privitera

It has become so entrenched in human culture, that it is futile to run or hide from its hypnotic effect. Most people consider it an ally, a friend to be relied on every second of the day. People can't begin to conceive of the danger to them. This thing is a machine that can be found on classroom walls, office walls, and on people's wrists. It's a clock, and it's everywhere.

Unfortunately, we have all fallen under the numbing influence of the clock. In the society that we've become, clocks tell human beings how lives are to be led. Students here can understand how structured and controlled life is when clocks become so important. Students have to be at a certain building on campus for a certain class, at a certain time all because the clock on the wall tells them so. Life in the work force is no different than life here. People's lives are controlled by clocks. They have to be at work at nine and they can't leave until five, all because the clock told them so.

Every now and then, people refuse to listen to the commands of a clock. They blow off a class or call in sick for whatever reason; the result is we feel guilty.

I fear that as a people, society has become much too dependent on clocks. Society is like a massive army of wind-up toy soldiers who follow without question the orders of their commander-in-chief, the clock. It's the clock who winds us up; we no longer wind the clock up. Today, clocks have succeeded in taking from people things that make them human. Spontaneity, impulse, genius, and emotion are all part of a world that cannot be timed, controlled, confined, or scheduled.

Once upon a time (pardon the pun), there existed people whose time came not from a machine on a wrist, or on a wall, but rather more in accord with nature. Time was in the hands of white clouds, blue skies, the stars, the moon, and the sun; not in the short and long hands of the hour and the second, which run around in an endless circle.

It would be interesting to meet the genius who first proclaimed to the world that s/he invented time. More important, how s/he could trap time within the confines of a clock like a jailor would trap a criminal. My objection is not with the notion of time; on the contrary, I have the utmost respect for time and its important relationship to history. I simply object to the need to capture time and imprison it behind a clock. This leads to caging the human spirit, or at the very least, controlling it.

The whole concept of a clock has become too important in the society we live in. Everything is done according to how much time people have. People have become callous and uncaring, concerned only with their own self-interest. There is no longer time to care. People do what clocks tell them is important. Eight hours devoted to work, eight hours devoted to sleep, and the remaining eight hours devoted to making up for the time lost at work and sleep. The option to care about homeless people, hungry people, and sick people can be taken only when we disregard the regulations imposed by this tick tock society.

It's a crying shame that people are too often "on the clock" because the simpler pleasures in life are without time. Rainbows, a child's laughter, a lover's kiss, a hug, an Autumn afternoon walk are all alien in a world ruled by the tick tock of a clock.

Dino Privitera is a UMass student

Congress not only recipients of raise

The public has once again been mislead. After I finished reading the editorial "The Task of Congress is to Serve the Public, Not Get Rich" (Feb. 15) I felt obligated to comment.

Perhaps the members of Congress should not get their pay increase, but one must be aware that the proposed pay increase was to be issued not only to congressional members, but to many other individuals working for the government. These are the people who have been overlooked in the editorial, and the people most affected by the outcome of the decision not to pass the bill.

My father is a civilian who has been working at a government Air Force base for at least fifteen years. As a civilian, he is in the highest position possible for his profession -- meteorology. He is extremely well known and respected within his field. Yet, he has not received a raise in many years, at least as long as I can remember. He also would have been issued a pay increase that would have helped my family become financially stable and insure seeing me through the remainder of my college years. However, my father is only an example -- there are many more.

It is not my intention to portray a biased view or come across as being selfish. Rather, my goal is to provoke thought on the reader's part and provide insight for the public's behalf.

Carol McClatchey
Puffton

Kindness is DC key

As a college student, I know that most of us can not afford to pay for our meals everyday. For those of you that can, there's no need to read any further,

We all love to make fun of the DC, right? How bad the food is, how we hate the place in general, and so on. I worked in a similar place over a summer and I can see where DC workers are coming from when they complain about the people who eat there. The sight in the DC at closing time is especially disgusting -- trays are scattered on every table, food is lying around, newspapers, class handouts and all sorts of junk are strewn all over the place. Just think about it for a minute, these people are our mothers and maids for the time that we are here, and the best we can do to thank them for everything they put up with, is to complain about how we hate it so much.

The next time you find yourself in the DC, try your best to show the people that work there, that we appreciate what they go through to keep us fed. Take your tray up like they always ask you to, maybe even pick up the area around where you've just been sitting. Little things like that will be seen and appreciated by the people that work there. And who knows, maybe if we all do those small things they'll want to pay us back with better food!

I don't care that everyone always makes fun of the DC. Hey, it's a way to make conversation, right? Just don't be a hypocrite by giving them anything to complain about you.

Chris Willey
Sylvan

Nursing Division cutbacks harm health care

It is common knowledge that our health care system is suffering a major crisis. America's largest health care profession is decreasing rapidly. There is no question hospitals desperately need nurses.

The health care problem is not due to a lack of people wanting to pursuit a nursing career -- at least not here in Western Massachusetts.

Over 100 students are applying for an estimated four openings to the Division of Nursing at the University of Massachusetts. According to the department, all applicants could be accepted, if funds were available to pay faculty for clinical observation. There are plenty of registered nurses who would accept a teaching position.

I have never felt so sure of myself, so proud of myself, since my decision to become a nurse. My dream however, grows ever so clouded. It does not seem likely that I will be accepted.

The irony is incredible. Our health care system is crying out for dedicated, compassionate people, to do that oh, so demanding work. Here I am, apparently not alone, ready to care, proud to care.

The Division of Nursing is comprised of successful, dedicated and committed professionals, willing to give their extra to educate graduates prepared to accept leadership roles and implement change. We all share the same dream, to provide our fellow human with their basic human right to health care.

With the newly proposed cuts in funding for higher education, it seems that the situation is only going to worsen. I encourage the students at UMass to write their local representatives and demand support for the University. Together we can save the high ideals of health care and education for all.

Eric Michael Goodman
Kennedy Residence Hall

ARTS & LIVING

Film classics hit Broadway, strike 2 on The Fly II

By ADAM CAMPBELL
Collegian Correspondent

The Fly II is a bad film. I'm not just talking about its artistic merits here. This sequel to David Cronenberg's 1986 remake of the 1956 camp classic is a dark, abrasive and basically evil film. It has a mean streak so pronounced it is likely to leave a sensitive viewer with the feeling of having been emotionally abused.

THE SCREENING ROOM

The film boasts none of the original's redeeming qualities, though it must be said that Eric Stoltz, as the late Seth Brundle's son, Martin, does an admirable job with very little to work with.

I won't even begin to cite my specific complaints. There are far too many, and I'd only frustrate myself by having to stop myself once on a roll. Just don't go see this film and maybe we'll be spared a third episode.

Unsubstantiated Rumors and Self-indulgent Musings

- The Batman film has completed shooting and is now in post-production. It will be released this summer. Kim Basinger was signed early in the production to replace an ill Sean Young as Bruce Wayne's lover.
- There will be musical versions of the films on Broadway this year: The Graduate; Kiss of the Spider Woman; It's a Wonderful Life; Sunset Boulevard.
- There are three current films that bear a frightening resemblance. Deep Star Six, Leviathan, and The Abyss are all about undersea terrors a la Aliens (Leviathan tag: "Not all Aliens are from space"). This is either an argument for more stringently enforced work ethics or for the validity of Jung's "collective conscious."
- Steven Spielberg gets one dollar for every E.T. videocassette sold. Get out your calculator and Kleenex.
- Richard Dreyfus and Holly (Broadcast News) Hunter star in Always, Spielberg's remake of A Guy Named Joe. He begins shooting after he's done working on Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade.
- This summer's hit, Big, is slated for television serial treatment next fall.
- Meryl Streep is Evita in the upcoming film of Andrew Lloyd Weber's musical. We're told she wanted to be a singer before she wanted to be an actress.
- Alan Parker is set to direct the film of Broadway's current smash Les Miserables. It'll be a while, though. Preproduction doesn't begin until late 1990.
- See Ya.

STILL COMICS' #1 SWINGER!

the AMAZING SPIDER-MAN™

Available at:

Same Bat Channel
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
586-8775

Hundreds of 25¢ Comics
All back issues 15% off
(including wall comics)

Discount Games and Supplies

Screenprinting...
Tee Shirts, Sweatshirts, Jackets, Bumperstickers, Decals, Athletic Jerseys, Hats-
For your Group, Company or Organization
YOU NAME IT- WE SCREEN IT!
RUSH ORDERS OUR SPECIALTY
Complete Art and Design Department screenprint specialists
47 Jackson Street, Box 771
Holyoke MA 01041
In Mass.- 413-534-5634

★WANTED
Managers for
UMASS Football Team
—male or female
all interested come to Football Office
in Boyden Building
See Coach Jones

Restaurant Managers
You are cordially invited to a
Chi-Chi's Mexican Restaurants
OPEN HOUSE
Tuesday, February 21,
from 10am-8pm
at Chi-Chi's®,
955 Riverdale St.,
W. Springfield, MA
We'd like you to come in and talk to our top management about exciting opportunities that are currently available for MANAGERS AND ASSISTANT MANAGERS in MASSACHUSETTS, CONNECTICUT and NEW JERSEY. Our careers are second to none, and offer all of the great incentives you'd expect from a company with our reputation for quality, innovation and employee recognition.
Come in and learn about the exciting plans we have for our future growth-and yours! Please bring a resume with you.
If you're unable to attend our open house, please send a resume, in confidence, to: Anne Fleshman, CHI-CHI'S, Dept. SR, 1008 Old Post Rd., Copley, PA 18037.
EOE m/f

UMASS
SKI CLUB

18th Annual Ski Snatch Thank You Party
(For those who worked 10 hours or more.)
Sunday,
February 19, at 9:00 p.m.
Pick up invitation and information at Ski Club Office, 430 Student Union

RIDES PROVIDED
Please Don't Drive!

Bluesman Reed brings his sax appeal to Sheehan's tommorrow

By COSMO MACERO JR.
Collegian Staff

Around these parts, the blues is a staple (and a popular one at that) and for many folks, the more they hear the better.

Sheehan's Cafe in Northampton gets a nod of approval for consistently booking quality blues acts, in addition to holding their Monday night open blues jams.

Tommorrow night, singer/tenor saxophonist A.C. Reed takes the Sheehan's stage.

A member of the family on Chicago's all blues Alligator record label, Reed fetched critical acclaim and positive reactions with his 1988 album I'm in the Wrong Business, which featured guest spots by Stevie Ray Vaughn (guitar) and Bonnie Raitt(slide guitar/vocals).

A.C.(Aaron Corthen) Reed has a vocal style best described as a Howlin Wolf/Jimmy Reed/T-Bone Walker hybrid. His tenor sax sound is classic blues, and serves as an example of the style which inspired so many blues (and rock, i.e. Jimi Hendrix) guitarists to "steal" from the vocabulary of sax riffs to develop their own style beyond the traditional electric guitar sounds of the pre-1960 era.

Reed's own band, The Sparkplugs features the guitar talents of Maurice John Vaughn, and Joanne Collins. Vaughn's licks are reminiscent of the alternate phrasing so prominent in the music of B.B. King and Robert Cray.

Collins is quite capable of belting out some gritty vocals of her own, in addition to laying down an impressive line of bottleneck slide riffs.

Overall, Reed has a solid band behind his already established sound. Chances are, the Valley experts will approve.

Photo courtesy of Dept. of Music & Dance

FAST FINGERS Pianist Nigel Coxe will lead a troupe of his faculty colleagues Tuesday, March 4 at 8 p.m. through a program of works by Australian composer Percy Grainger, in the Bezanson Recital Hall. In honor of the Australian bicentennial, the program is designed to illustrate the many facets of Grainger's style.

What they play on MUA

Here is WMUA's rockin' playlist for the week ending 2/12/89.

1. ANTISEEN . . . Honor Among Thieves . . . Bona Fide/Chopper
2. the BEVIS FROND . . . Inner Marshland . . . Reckless
3. the LAZY COWGIRLS . . . Radio Cowgirl . . . Sympathy
4. the BASTARDS . . . "Loser" 7" . . . Treehouse
5. DWARVES . . . Toolin' for a Warm Teabag (EP) . . . NG
6. HALO of FLIES . . . Headburn 12" . . . Twin Tone
7. COMPILATION . . . Lookey Dookey . . . Burn
8. SOME VELVET SIDEWALK . . . "I Know" 7" . . . K
9. the DERELICTS . . . "A Bullet for Fifi" 7" . . . Penultimate
10. CRAWLSPACE . . . "Silent Invisible Conversation" EP . . . Grow up Wrong

Chart compiled as ever by DJ Caramel Norm — Smorgasbord.

SPORT Style

Photo by Buck Stewart

OPEN M-F 9-5
Located in the
Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY

Why More?

The UMASS Ski Club invites you to Montego Bay, Jamaica, West Indies. We will be staying in the Towers at the Seawinds Resort where all your Spring Break needs are directly below. We are next to the beach, pool, evening entertainment, tennis courts, and the hottest night club in the bay. Located five minutes from town, this resort has, at your disposal, water sports, sunbathing, and an array of restaurants and bars. Don't be lured by low-budget, problem-filled tear-offs that, in the end, turn to rip-offs. WE PROVIDE GUARANTEED RESERVED ACCOMMODATIONS AND FLIGHTS! Spend $9 a day more and step above the rest on your own vacation island!

A VACATION SHOULD BE A PLEASURE—NOT A HASSLE!
LAGNAF

BECAUSE IT'S WORTH IT

Mar. 18 - Mar. 25 • $569 per person from JFK
All Prices are Inclusive—No Hidden Extras
Double & Triple Occupancy Rates Available

Presented By
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437
MasterCard VISA

Railroad Salvage Stores

CONNECTICUT STORES OPEN 7 DAYS
SAT 10-9 • SUN 10-6 • MON-FRI 10-9
ROUTE 5 - EAST WINDSOR, CONN.
1131 CAMPBELL AVE., WEST HAVEN, CONN.
ROUTE 184, GROTON, CONN.
(OPP. GROTON MOTOR INN)

SHOP EARLY

SALE ENDS FEB 23RD

MASS STORES OPEN 7 DAYS
HAMPSHIRE MALL - HADLEY, MASS.
SUNDAY 12-5 • MON-SAT 10-9
CANAL STREET
TURNERS FALLS, MASS.
SATURDAY 10-9 • SUNDAY 12-5 • MON-FRI 10-9

QUANTITIES ARE SUBSTANTIAL. ALL ITEMS LIMITED TO STOCK ON HAND.

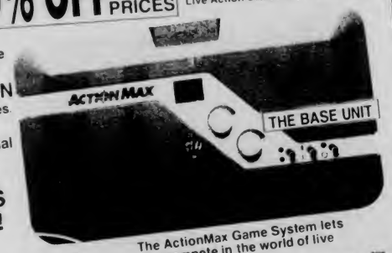
1500 WATT QUARTZ ELECTRIC HEATERS
Value $49.95
$24.88

ACTION MAX GAME SYSTEM

TO SELL AT 80% OFF LAST YEARS PRICES

Everything is included to turn your TV and VHS VCR into the Hottest Live Action Stereo Experience

Welcome to the ULTIMATE DIMENSION in Action Games. This is NOT 2 Dimensional Computer Graphics — THIS IS REAL!!



The ActionMax Game System lets you compete in the world of live action VHS Movies.

STEREO HEADPHONES
THE GAME PISTOL
SCORE SIGNAL
WORLDS OF WONDER
LIMITED 90 DAY WARRANTY
Sonic Fury
GAME VIDEO

LAST YEAR $89.99
NOW $15.88

ADDITIONAL GAME VIDEOS AVAILABLE

3000 KITCHEN CABINETS

29 SIZES
WESTERN OAK CABINETS
Bring in your measurements and we'll help design your New Kitchen Free.

Remodel your kitchen now with our beautiful new Whitegate Western Oak Kitchen Cabinets. Natural graining with a Melamine protective finish which stays beautiful and is so easy to keep clean. Just Use A Damp Cloth and Whitegate Melamine comes up Bright and Sparkling every time!

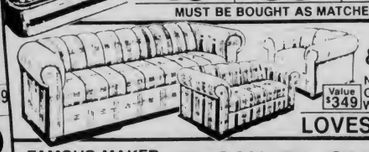
50% OFF SUGGESTED LIST PRICE
HERE'S JUST ONE EXAMPLE
30" RANGE/SINK BASE SUGGESTED LIST $179.95 NOW $89.99
IN STOCK AND FLAT PACKED

MATTRESS AND FOUNDATION

THESE PRODUCTS ARE MANUFACTURED TO EXACT SPECIFICATIONS PRODUCT FOR PRODUCT • ITEM FOR ITEM • SPECIFICATION FOR SPECIFICATION AS THAT OF MAJOR BRANDS—ALL ARE FIRST QUALITY

TWIN SIZE	FULL SIZE	QUEEN SIZE
$49 EA PC	$59 EA PC	$79 EA PC

MUST BE BOUGHT AS MATCHED SETS



SOFA & CHAIR
Value $349 NOW $198
LOVESEAT $99

FAMOUS MAKER
FLANNEL SHEETS

TWIN SIZE FLAT OR FITTED	FULL SIZE FLAT OR FITTED	QUEEN SIZE FLAT OR FITTED
IF PERFECT $9.95 NOW $5.48	IF PERFECT $11.95 NOW $7.48	IF PERFECT $16.95 NOW $10.88

IRREGULARS WILL NOT EFFECT WEAR • MANY DESIGNER PRINTS • COTTON BLENDS

CARPET REMNANT SALE

BRAND NAME • FIRST QUALITY
SIZES FROM 9'x12' TO 12'x28'

SAVE 40% TO 60%
THEIR PRICES $10 TO $40 SQ YD
NOW $6 TO $16

1 INCH FOAM CHAIR CUSHIONS
Covered in colorful Print Fabric
Our Reg $2.79 NOW $2

TOILET LID COVERS
IF PERFECT $1.95 TO $2.95 NOW $1

SAVE 50% AND MORE
J.P. STEVENS
KITCHEN ENSEMBLE
WINDOW PANE PATTERNS
TOWEL REG $2.99 NOW $1.50
YOUR CHOICE - MATCHING DISH CLOTH OR POT HOLDER
VALUES $1.49 TO $1.89 NOW 75¢

FINAL CLEARANCE WINTER CLOTHING

YOU SAVE 67% TO 80%

RED LION DINER
NORTHAMTON, MA

PHOTOS BY JASON TALERMAN

■ Bounty

continued from page 1

receiving it from God.

The British Foreign Office summoned Iran's lone diplomat in Britain, told him Khomeini's threat was "totally unacceptable," demanded special protection for its Tehran Embassy and froze plans to expand diplomatic relations with the Islamic State.

"We recognize that Moslems and others may have strong views about the contents of Mr. Rushdie's book," British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe said after his office summoned Iranian Charge d'Affaires Mohammed Basti.

"However, nobody has the right to incite people to violence on British soil or against British citizens. Ayatollah Khomeini's statement is totally unacceptable."

Howe stopped short of threatening to break diplomatic relations. But in an address to a Foreign Press Association luncheon he said "a stable and serious relationship . . . will not be possible while Iran fails to respect international standards of behavior."

Basti emerged from the Foreign Office in defiant mood, saying Rushdie's "infamous book" has had "appalling consequences in some Islamic countries."

"It is a decree, it is a verdict after careful consideration," he said of the death sentence. "It has nothing to do with any particular country."

On Wednesday, protesters stoned the British Embassy in Tehran.

Britain reopened the embassy in December after an eight-year closure, and intended to appoint an ambassador and have more than 12 diplomats, the Foreign Office said.

In New Delhi, an anonymous caller to the United News of India threatened to bomb British flights unless Rushdie emerged from hiding.

Eat, Drink & Be Merry!

ADVOCATE BEST OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1988

It's Easy As:

1. PEKING GARDEN ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET — Mon.-Thurs. 5-8 PM — $5.99
2. PEKING GARDEN ALL YOU CAN EAT SUNDAY BRUNCH — 11 AM-3 PM — $6.99
3. NEW!! THE COMEDY ZONE — The Best COMEDY from Boston and New York

Fri. 9:30 p.m. Sat. 8:30 & 11:00 p.m.
Dinner & Comedy Package Includes: Dinner and choice of 1 Beer with meal for $13.95
—2 for 1 admission Sat. 11 p.m. show

Friday & Saturday Evenings at the: Perfect Party Banquet Room

PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
on Route 9, Hadley 北京 next to Hadley Subaru

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS
MARCH 18-25

When you break away this year, do it with style.

SUN FUN!! round trip air 7 nights great night life

Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB 547-3437
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.

$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP

THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION

A $75 Reservation Deposit Required

SAVE LAGNAF

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

THE SPRING GOLD RUSH IS ON!

$75 OFF 18K
$50 OFF 14K
$25 OFF 10K

Order your college ring NOW.

JOSTENS
AMERICA'S COLLEGE RING™

Date: Feb. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17—Monday - Friday
Time: 10:00 - 4:00 • Deposit: $25.00
Place: University Store

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"It's no use. I drink and I drink ... and I still can't forget."

BLOOM COUNTY By BERKE BREATHED

DOONESBURY By GARRY TRUDEAU

ANOTHER THING ABOUT GEORGE BUSH, MARK. HE DOESN'T JUST TALK ABOUT FAMILY VALUES, HE LIVES THEM!
HE AND HIS WIFE HAVE BEEN LOVING, CARING PARENTS, AND THE RESULTS SHOW! THIS WHITE HOUSE WILL BE A HAPPY PLACE, RINGING AS IT WILL WITH THE LAUGHTER OF TRULY CHERISHED CHILDREN RING!
IT WILL SERVE AS AN INSPIRATION TO US ALL!
I THINK WE HAVE A CALLER, HARVEY.
IT'S THE BUSHES THEY WANT A COPY OF THIS FOR THEIR FRIDGE.
THEY COULD JUST CLIP IT, RIGHT?
RIGHT. TELL THEM TO USE THE DOTTED LINES.

CALVIN AND HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

ROSALYN? ARE YOU OUT HERE? ARE YOU CALLING THE FIRE DEPARTME...
GOTCHA!
OH, NO!
I DIDN'T REALLY FLUSH YOUR NOTES! THEY'RE ALL THERE! GO LOOK! PLEASE DON'T KILL ME!
PHOOEY.
WELL, IT'S 7:00. WE GOT TO STAY UP A HALF-HOUR LATER THAN USUAL

CAMPUS COMIX By AL ARPAD

SO WHAT CAN YOU DO WITH AN ENGLISH DEGREE ANYWAY?
HANG IT ON THE WALL AND GO LOOK FOR A JOB SAME AS EVERYBODY ELSE.
CERTIFIED
SSC
ARPAD

YEASTHEAD By JASON TALERMAN

"a thousand, thousand
Sludge realizes that hatred slimy things lived on,
runs the express route.
and so did I."
He knows why this is good.

ETC.

"Senator Tower is having a news conference tomorrow to deny everything. It's in the West Wing of the Capitol, and remember: ladies get in free and it's B.Y.O.B."
– Pat Sajak

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

EDITED By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

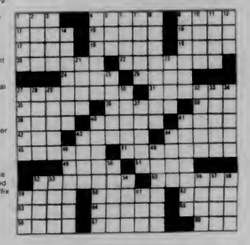
ACROSS
1 The Few, to WSC
4 Pour out slowly
9 Back talk
13 — whose — being gored
15 Copy of a kind
16 Montreal player
17 "Middle Como form
18 Nepal's neighbor
19 Holly
20 Actress Smith
22 Pure
24 Little ones
26 Actress Lollobrigida
27 Ledger entries
31 Ticket agent's headache
35 Sherry district of Spain, old style
36 Turns thumbs down
38 Guido's high note
39 Presently
40 Angry
41 49 to Hadrian
42 Cowboy star Tom
43 Sugar Ray, e.g.
44 Excavate
45 What do you have to — yourself?
47 Feeder artery
49 Tiny amount
51 Essential point
52 Noted movie critic
55 Andover's rival
59 Redd
60 MD's tools
62 — Coburg-Gotha
63 Olympic runner of a sort
64 — Tagos one day
65 Corn sly
66 WW II alliance
67 Poorly drained
68 Follower: Suffix

DOWN
1 City on the Tevere
2 Feat for Debi Thomas
3 Bona —
4 Is
5 Foreign: Prefix
6 Hindustani
7 Not idle
8 Investigated
9 Tennis notable
vic. —
10 Wheel shaft
11 Hurried
12 Red or White team
14 Sweet: Ital.
21 Charged particles
23 Namesakes of Cadmus's daughter
25 Old man to Cicero
27 Campus finals
28 City ESE of Dayton, O.
29 Agent of a kind
30 — or at sevens
32 Word of greeting
33 Marine snail genus
34 Waned's partner
37 Dry, as an environment
40 Whirlwinds
41 King of ancient Persia
43 Vet blanket
44 Pas de —
46 Author runner: Jim and kin
48 Stylish
50 Lotty retreat
52 Sauce or soup thickener
53 Vet
54 Hamlet, e.g.
56 Move along the runway
57 Theater sign
58 Culprit, in Roman law
59 Sun Belt state: Var. short
61 Slangy affirmative

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

P	A	R	T	A	P	I	S		S	P	E	E
I	S	E	E		B	A	N	T	U		H	O	S	S
		T	H	E	A	F	R	I	C	A	N	Q	U	E	E	N
H	E	L	L	I	O	N	S		C	U	T	T	L	E
			E	T	A		M	A	L	A	I
R	E	L	A	I	D		A	C	E	S	I	N	T	H	E
A	L	O	F	T		A	N	D	A		H	O	I
L	E	G			S	L	O	A	N		E	R	G
I	M	A		P	E	T		S	A	R	A	H
K	I	N	G	B	I	R	D		F	I	N	E	S	S
			A	I	N	T		T	I	D	Y
A	R	I	S	T	O		F	I	R	E	W	A	L	L
J	A	C	K	O	F	A	L	L	T	R	A	D	E	S
A	G	E	E		F	R	O	T	H		Y	E	T	I
R	E	S	T		F	E	S	S		S	S	T	S

2/17/89



YOUR HOROSCOPE

By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can get your ideas across now if the facts are there to support them. Be more assertive. An artistic project gets off the ground. Learn to take things in stride.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Rise and shine! The early bird gets the prize today. You are inspired by events and want to pitch in and help. Good services is the key to business success. A financial situation improves.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your aspirations become clear. Learn more about a project before putting your money on the line. A positive attitude counts big when it comes to smoothing out a troubled relationship. Follow your intuition.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Concentrate on making the most of a fresh start. Look beyond the present; evaluate potential and pay attention to your first impressions. A change of environment lifts your spirits and sharpens your wits.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A relationship may be draining your financial resources. Better step back and look at what is going on. You need to put your foot down. Even a mistake works to your benefit today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work conditions improve. Personnel show new cooperation. A financial decision should not be postponed. Bite the bullet and do whatever is indicated now. Travel plans are subject to change. Be flexible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A sudden flurry of sales or business activity provides you with an opportunity to show your special skills. Raises and promotions are under consideration. Put your best foot forward. Do not slack off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This is no time to make waves. Consolidate recent gains, then take off for a relaxed, romantic weekend. Startling financial developments put the icing on your cake. Seek a more fulfilling relationship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be a bit accident-prone today; think about letting someone else drive if you hit the road this weekend. A financial plan looks brighter after a phone call. Romance is favored.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Decisive action lets you remove a millstone from around your neck. Hold fast in the face of a trying situation. You hate to tell anyone "no," but today you must. Be firm.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Recognize your limitations and let others handle things they can do better. An apology helps you reconcile your differences with partner. Focus on making a romantic relationship whole again.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do not be stingy when it comes to showing affection for those you love. Taking out some travel insurance could give you peace of mind. A child plays the central role today.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Sloppy joe	Corned beef & cabbage
Seafood salad roll	Breaded scallops
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Tofu sloppy joe	Stuffed cabbage
Seafood salad roll	Breaded scallops

■ women's swimming

continued from page 16

This long awaited three-day event includes 15 Division I and II swim teams from the New England area. According to UMass coach Bob Newcomb, Boston College, a school that beat UMass by a relatively substantial margin, is favored to win the championship. Northeastern University will likely be second, and third place will be a close battle between the University of Maine, Providence Collegr and UMass, he said. "The third place competition will probably go down to the last day, last event."

Michele Leary will have a tiresome weekend with participation in the 50-, 100-, and 200-yard freestyle, plus four separate relay events. Newcomb said, "Michele is going in with the right attitude. I think she can do it."

Melissa Waller will be defending last year's 100-yard breaststroke championship (1:09:18). Regina Jungbluth will continue her season-long competition with Waller in this event.

Three Minutewomen, Sue Gorski, Lori Carroll, and Jodi Schwartz, will be competing for a 200-yard butterfly victory. Gorski came in second place last year.

Tracy Young, the team's best long distance swimmer and the UMass record holder in the 1000-yard freestyle (10:41.26), will vie for the win in the 200-, 500-, and the grueling 1650-yard freestyle swims.

Coach Newcomb said his team is going into the meet with the right attitude. "They have been psyching each other up all week. This is what we've been working for all year."

■ women's track

continued from page 16

• Simone Marisseau: she has not officially broken the necessary standard of 38 feet in the shot put but there have only been six qualifiers. If not enough athletes qualify, the top 16 athletes will automatically be given bids. Since Marisseau is only two inches short, she is almost guaranteed a trip to BU.

• Kristin Peers: she has earned a trip to the NE in the 5000, but she's also earned this weekend off.

• Shana Smith: like Peers, she has qualified for the NE (in the 1000), but she will not be running Saturday.

• Michelle St. Laurent: the 8000 meter New England qualifier will run both the open half and in the half relay at Dartmouth.

• Tina White: the shotputter has broken the school record twice in as many weeks and will be looking to make it to the ECAC's at Yale University.

"We have to beat Temple to keep the EIGL championship alive," Johnson said.

The Minutemen are hoping that the fiasco of two years ago will not repeat itself. By losing that meet, UMass was pushed back into third place instead of a three way tie for first with Temple and Navy going into the EIGL Championships which were held at UMass that year.

■ men's gymnastics

continued from page 16

Both the Minutemen and the Owls are one meet back from Navy, who they are hoping to catch at the EIGL Championships over Spring Break to capture the league championship.

■ ski teams

continued from page 16

be juniors John Roche and Rick D'Elia, who have been the top performers for the men this season. The two, along with senior Loren Coburn, comprise all the experience for UMass.

■ women's gymnastics

continued from page 16

From here on out the Minutewomen will be looking to post some fat scores in the hopes of securing a post-season regional tournament bid. Saturday's meet gives UMass a good opportunity to do so — and improve on its new school scoring record — while also tinkering around a bit with some individual routines.

"We'll test some things out and see how they look," said Mitchell.

glen's HAIR UM SALON

Now Open in Amherst!

A Creative Hair Salon Specializing in:
Wave Nouveau • Leisure Curl
Care Free Curl • Weaves • Extensions
Braids • Color • Permanent Waves
Design Cuts
228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3999
Monday thru Saturday

ARTHUR TREACHERS SEAFOOD
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
10%
Student Discount
With College ID
Phone In Order
585-0209
During this Lent Season
KEEP THE FAITH
with
ARTHUR TREACHER'S!

UMASS SKI CLUB
GOES TO STRATTON
$29
add $10 for non-members
Sign up:
Campus Center Concourse or 430 Student Union
545-3437

Weekend Warm-up!
TODAY
All you can eat
Hot & Cold Munchies
4:00-6:00 pm
Take a look at our special drink board
Stoney live at 6 pm
TOP of the CAMPUS
L•O•U•N•G•E
Mon.-Fri. 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 a.m.
Sat.-Sun. 5:00 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.
11th FLOOR • CAMPUS CENTER

THE ALTERNATIVE SPRING BREAK 89
Killington VERMONT
CONDO LODGING & LIFTS
SKI and PARTY WEEK
MARCH 19-24
$259
LAGNAF
INCLUDES TAXES AND SERVICES
PROGRAM INCLUDES:
• 5 DAYS LIFTS TO SIX MOUNTAINS
• SPECIAL COLLEGE PARTIES
• 5 NITES CONDO LODGING AT PINNACLE
• FUN SHUTTLE
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437
NON-MEMBERS WELCOME
PARTIES PARTIES PARTIES

■ men's hoop

continued from page 16

In the first half, if any one of the five 3-pointers UMass attempted in the first 13 minutes fell for the Minutemen might have had a lead. Instead UMass relied on a slew of Rafer Giles leaning 10-footers (6 first-half points) and gutsy offensive board work by Tate to stay close.

UMass pulled within 21-17 with 7:30 left in the half, behind a Tate muscle-bound offensive board. However, through the final 7:30 minutes of the half, the Mountaineers streaked off with 16 points to a mere 4 for UMass.

The Minutemen will wrap up their weekend road swing when they face Duquesne tomorrow night in Pittsburgh.

Massachusetts (54): Beth Wilber 2 1-2 5; Jenny Moran 2 0-0 4; Helen Freeman 8 6-7 22; Dianne Burke 0 0-2 0; Trish Riley 3 3-4 9; Keyburn McCusker 0 0-0 0; Chrisetel Zullo 1 0-0 2; Sue Serafini 4 1-1 10; Colleen Hopkins 0 0-0 0; Lisa Hair 0 2-4 2. Totals: 20 13-20 54

Penn State (79): Susan Robinson 8 3-4 19; Lynn Dougherty 2 3-4 7; Adrie DeVyss 3 2-3 8; Dana Eikenberg 4 2-4 12; Tanya Garner 5 10-10 22; Kathy Phillips 5 0-0 10; Terri Williams 0 1-2 1; Lisa Lambert 0 0-0 0 Totals: 27 21-27 79

■ women's hoop

continued from page 16

points) and freshman sensation Sue Robinson (19 points and 15 rebounds) quickly had UMass in a 49-29 hole just six minutes into the half.

From that point, it was too big a deficit to overcome, as UMass would scratch no closer than 13 the rest of the way.

UMass will look to rebound tomorrow against St. Bonaventure at the Cage (2 p.m.) The Minutewomen dumped the Bonnies in their first meeting in Olean, NY, but the visitors are getting inspired play from freshman Sue Shay, who had 40 points in a recent game against St. Joe's.

West Virginia (68): Chris Brooks 5-10 1-2 11; Darryl Prue 6-9 1-2 13; Herbie Brooks 5-9 4-5 14; Steve Berger 3-7 0-0 6, Tracy Shelton 6-10 0-0 14, Mike Yeest 3-7 1-2 7; Wade Smith 3-7 1-2 7; Shaun Jackson 0-2 0-2 0; Ray Foster 3-7 1-2 7, Steve Hardwick 1-1 1-2 3, Thomas Kroger 0-2 1-2 1, Chris Leonard 1-6 2-2 4, Rod Samuel 0-2 0-0 0. Totals: 29-76 14-25 58

Massachusetts (55): Jim McCoy 8-22 6-9 23; John Tate 4-10 2-2 10; John Milum 0-4 0-2 0, Rafer Giles 3-7 0-0 6; Anton Brown 2-16 0-0 4; Michael Brynes 0-2 0-0 0; Ishmael Butler 1-3 1-2 4, George Hardin 3-8 1-3 7; Carey Herer 0-0 0-4 4, Sean Neles 0-0 0-0 0; Chris Bailey 1-3 0-1 2 Totals: 22-75 10-22 55.

charlie's
1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week • Call for Take Out
Kitchen Open 'till midnight
New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables
Sunday Night 4 Burger Platters for $5.00
(Fries included -Bring your friends!)
6:00-10:00 pm
Bloody Mary $1.25 Drink of the Week
Moosehead $1.75 Beer of the Month
FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Mon. 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks 9-12
Tues. 10¢ Buffalo Wings 9-12
Wed. Nacho & Cheese Platters 99¢ 9-12

HUNAN GOURMET
京 CHINESE RESTAURANT 湘
BEST NEW RESTAURANT
ADVOCATE BEST OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1988 SECOND PLACE
Thanks to the Advocate Readers for voting for us in the Best of the Valley Poll. Even though we were only open for one month when the poll was taken, we are pleased we made such a great impression in such a short time span.
FULL LIQUOR LICENSE
261 King St., Northampton•585-0202•Ample Parking
Open 7 days a week•NO MSG
TAKE OUT SERVICE AVAILABLE

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE • 5 WORD TITLES • 30 WORDS • 3 DAYS • DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION • CASH IN ADVANCE • 20 WORDS OR LESS FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

ΔSIGMA ALPHA MU RUSH!!! Feb 21 Sammy Feud 8pm Campus Center –101 Feb 22 Sammy Cinema 8pm Campus Center –162

SALVADORAN STAUDENT LEADERS to speak. CC101 7pm on 21 February Contact CASA 5-2148 for more info

PAGAN STUDENTS MEETING Sunday Feb 19 Campus Center 165-169 7:00pm All interested welcome Call 1-659-3155 or 546-6293 for info.

LEARN TO MEDITATE - FREE Find hidden self! Expand universal outlook Any Mon or Wed 3-5pm Campus Center - Room – posted near elevators

CONGRATULATIONS APO PLEDGES: Karen, Mike, Zahid, Andrea, Dave, Christa, Kathleen and Tara! Good Job!! Welcome Aboard.

JUGGLING CLUB MEETING TODAY, 3-6 in Campus Center 183 Be there to plan for Sunday's MIT Video Day (rip! Yahoo!

HRTA PRESENTS: The Right place, the right time, Career Day '89 Tues. Feb 21 9-4:30 50 Companies all majors welcome

PLEASE COME AND HEAR THE TRUTH about Jesus Friday nights 7:30 Campus Center. We're Maranatha, room number will be posted.

UMASS SKI CLUB runs the best spring breaks to: Barbados, Bahamas, Bermuda, Killington and Breckenridge 545-3437/430 SUB

WHAT'S THE POINT OF LIFE? Unique dream techniques, special visualizations, and simple twenty-minute spiritual exercises can help you find your destiny in this life. Learn about the transforming spiritual exercises of ECKANKAR. One-hour presentation 30-minute video and basic how-to's UMA Campus Center 7:30 Thursday Feb 9, 16,23

SOUTHWEST AREA GOV. is looking for someone to coordinate our annual Spring Concert. Interested? Call 5-0900 for details.

AMHERST FIRE DEPARTMENT

THE AMHERST FIRE DEPARTMENT is recruiting volunteers to work as firefighter/EMTs. No experience necessary. See our table on the concourse February 22-24.

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE

SPACIOUS 1,2, and 3 BEDROOM UNITS in Sunderland. Ample off street parking and free bus service to UMass and shopping areas Call 665-3856.

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUDIO

PAIR MARANTZ SPEAKERS 60 watts 6 mos old excellent condition $200 or BRO 546-6533 leave message

NIKKO AMPLIFIER 85 watts per channel $150.00 549-4901.

AUTO FOR SALE

81 HONDA CIVVIC WAGON. Very well maintained, dependable $1200 549-2733.

1983 FORD ESCORT WAGON- 50,000 miles A/C roof rack-excellent condition $2500 call 256-0933

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CAMP COUNSELORS

COME WORK FOR an accredited 3-camp organization in the Pocono Mountains of PA. Positions are available in: Tennis, Archery, Waterfront (W.S.I.), Gymnastics, Office Administration, Computers, Radio, Arts & Crafts, Nature, Athletics, Jewelry, Photoography, Dance, Wrestling, Cooking, Adventure/Challenge Course, Film making Camp Drivers Season: 6/24-8/20 Call 800-533-CAMP (215-887-9700 in PA) or write 407 Benson East, Jenkintown, PA 19046

CHILD CARE NEEDED

2 DAYS A WEEK for boys ages 2 and 4 $4.50 per hour. Childhood Ed. major preferred. Must have own transportation and flexible hours. Call 548-9321

COMPACT DISC MUSIC MACHINE

DISC JOCKEY SERVICE - quality tunes for all occasions. 549-1421 or 253-7655

DAYTONA BEACH

BEACHFRONT HOTEL $139 w/bus $214 Florida is calling you! Call us Sean 546-8252 or Rob 253-7153

FLORIDA SPRING BREAKS

DAYTONA'S CASTAWAY BEACH RESORT - $139, Panama City Beach's Miracle Mile Resort - $119, roundtrip transportation add $80 Call Mark 549-2671.

FOR RENT

PUFFTON VILLAGE: One bedroom in a 3-bedroom apt. $190, furnished. Call Tom or Rahul 549-4834 immediately.

FRIDGE RENTALS WE DELIVER 253-9742

BE A BOARDER IN A SORORITY! Females only. Great location! Great food! Call 545-0527. Ask for Tiel, Steph, or Tracey.

FOR SALE

FOR SALE HEAD 8KIIS with Solomon bindings $100 or BO 546-9001

BUY A BIKE Cannondale $300 or best offer. Racing and touring suntour gear system. Dia compe brakes mistral aluminum rims frame alone is worth five hundred dollars Call Anytime 549-3512

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES- 2 year old rental income property. 18,000 dollars gross rental income per year. Live rent free and pay for tuition. Call Dale or Ginny 253-9449

SELLING 85 MZD GLC just had accident excellent for parts price B/O call 546-5918 leave message

RUG-GREAT FOR DORM
Sky Blue
Excellent condition
$45 or best offer
Call Alisa 527-6505.

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles Call 256-8349

FOUND

DONNA STONE, I found your wallet. Pick it up at 415A Student Union Building

GAIL G. GIANOULIS

HAPPY 21st TO THE ORIGINAL BAR TROLL!! Amherst/Lowell will never be safe again! Your the best! Love ya Janine.

GREAT DEAL

STATION WAGON $500 or best offer. 1979 Pontiac Catalina Cruiser good condition. Great car for around town or road trips. Call after 6:30pm Shane 549-1594

GUITAR LESSONS

PRIVATE GUITAR LESSONS with Doug Hewitt. Rock-Blues-Folk all levels. Songwriting, improvisation, theory, reading. Studio on 3 bus lines. 549-4788 or 549-6966

HELP WANTED

SUMMER BUSINESS POSITION in your hometown. Earn avg $8,000. Excellent experience. 665-2527

FREE MEALS can the DC Fraternity in need of light kitchen help, in exchange for meals. Call Jon 545-0046.

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands'on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on February 22 from 3:30-4:30 in room 901 Campus Center. (545-1995)

LOST

CASIO WATCH ON SATURDAY Feb 11 sentimental value. Reward call Suresh 6-1044.

MOTORCYCLES

WANT TO BUY MOTORCYCLE, 84-87, 600-750 cc. Call Finn 549-4793, leave message

PERSONALS

WENDIE WUENSCH - Happy 22nd Birthday Have a great day. We are going to go crazy. You are one in a million! Love ya lots Ellen

TWO OF MY GORGEOUS MALE FRIENDS live down the hall I'm sick of them complaining about their lack of women Call 546-6847 ask for Jen and more info on John and Corey

HAPPY BIRTHDAY DAVID NUNEZ! I hope I can make you as happy tonight as you've made me the past 18 months. I love you whole bunches. Brenda

SCOTT A, Thank you for the 3 most wonderful months of my life. I love you so much. Ilyssa ATTENTION UMASS AND CHI OMEGA'S: Today is Wendie Wensch's birthday! When the sun goes down, we're going uptown. Here's to the best "Twin"! Love Stacey.

AMY P. Happy 21st Birthday! I'm glad we're roommates. We're quite a pair. Love Stephanie.

CURIOUS GEORGE HAPPY 21st BIRTHDAY! Now you can stop being Billy Long and be yourself. Love your four favorite gals.

CELLA THANKS FOR EVERYTHING you wenchshyt? Your the best, but don't swell your head love forever Gut with an 8.

LOOK OUT JAPAN, here comes Trish! Congrats on interview. We're gehind you 100 Luv Jen and Lisa.

IS A WUBBIE SOMETHING soft and cuddly, or just a gee?

GINA, WANNA GO TO THE TOC again? 447-7527 Tim. After six

SUKIE: HAPPY 21st! ENJOY YOUR DAY • BEWARE OF "SURPRISES" !I WE LOVE YOU! MAIN ST. * SE ST.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA SENIORS How are you feeling today? Good luck accomplishing your senior goals.

DEAR ANONYMOUS, thank you for the nicest valentine I have ever received. Love, Cammie.

JAMES- Thank you so much for everything I love you. Remember - never forget to tap! HA Cathy.

ILYSSA GRANT - I'm the luckiest guy in the whole world! I'll love you forever! Happy 3 months! -Love Scott

MURPH - Thanks for all our insane times- you're the best friend and roommate ever! Happy B-Day - I love ya - Sudz

YO MURPH HAPPY BIRTHDAY to one of the best friends ever! We love ya! Jill and Andra

MIKE: Happy Birthday!! (One day late) love your friends' Maggy, Sue, Marie + Sam

SAM: HAPPY BIRTHDAY!! Hope you have a blast on sunday with all your friends. Love your old roomie, Maggy

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY ALISA, Love Hubert

AMY, HAPPY 21 BIRTHDAY Honey Bun with Cherries and fudge and whipcream and yummy delicious cake. May all your dreams come true! I love you, Love your Civil Engineer.

RIDE NEEDED TO SYRACUSE 2/17 253-2320 ROD

JAMIE J. at Brittany Mnr. Roses are red, violets are blue. I sure would/simply just falling with you! Look here again Tue-Wed.

HAPPY B'DAY Tom love Elise.

BRIGHTEN YOUR LIFE! Meet that someone special through our singles club intro singles club Box 3006, Boston, MA 02130

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt. or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later.

RIDE WANTED

LOOKING TO SHARE RIDES with people who commute to and from Spfld. 731-8301 eves

ROOMMATES WANTED

ONE ROOM IN APARTMENT 254 inclusive 1-2 people 256-0958 256-4270

FEMALE NEEDED FOR SPACIOUS squire village apt. Feb and March free 183/mo 367-2092

2 FEMALES TO SHARE Townehouse apt Call 6-9207.

SERVICES

RESUMES SAMPLES, various styles, different formats. Actual successful examples. Interested? Send $3.00 Box 801 Belmore New York 11710

AUTO REPAIRS: Very reasonable, experienced mechanic. Work your place or mine. Messages for Mark 865-8467

RESUME TYPESETTING. Avoid the end-of-semester panic. Very experienced, inexpensive, overnight laserwriter quality. Lisa 665-8909

SIGMA ALPHA MU RUSH!!

RUSH SIGMA ALPHA MU! Feb 21 Sammy Feud 8pm Campus Center –101 Feb 22 Sammy Cinema 8pm Campus Center –162

SPRING BREAK - DAYTONA

JOIN MTV AND 1000s OF • SPRING BREAKERS IN DAYTONA Just $139 or $219 w/bus. Plus tanning discount at Le Bon Soleil Call Dana 549-6064

SUMMER SUBLET

SUBLET/TAKE OVER LEASE June 1st one bedroom apt. $370 mo. Call Linda or Tatiana 253-7185. Leave message

TICKETS NEEDED

TO LA RO VEGAS anywhere between for Spring Break 66378

TRAVEL

SPRING BREAK WEEKENDS
Montreal $79
Includes round trip motor coach and 2 nights hotel
Directly downtown
Breakaway tours
508-842-7336
420 Boston Turnpike
Shrewsbury, MA 01545

SPRING BREAK SPACES AVAILABLE... but selling out fast! Cancun Special: only $369/quad -no additional charges! Plus amazing prices to Acapulco, Nassau Reserve your space immediately! Call Janice or Jennifer 549-8239.

ONE WAY TICKET Boston to Los angeles leaves March 20th $100 or best offer call 549-7586 leave message

HOT NIGHTS, COOL FROZEN DRINKS, reggae music, sandy beaches, and you. Affordable spring break trips to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco, and Daytona. Call Karen or Shara at 546-6612, or Merideth at 549-8274 for details.

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW...OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

UMASS LAX SWEATSHIRT

LOST/STOLEN ON 8th FLOOR OF • Coolidge 1st weekend in Feb. Reward • offered for the return of this navy • sweatshirt with a Lacrosse Logo. • No questions asked. Just please return • it, no one else has one and it has • extreme sentimental value. Call Laura • at 546-8031.

WANTED

TUTOR WANTED FOR DBASE III Call Steve at 549-0133.

HELP! Need to buy a 49 sticker please call 6-1156

FEMALE SHARE ROOM IN apt on Amity St $175 mo. Call asap 549-7783.

PING PONG TABLE. Any condition. Please call Teresa at 546-6397

TUTORING

RETIRED FORMER PROFESSOR OF SPEECH will help foreign students with English also Edit papers for correct english usage. Reasonable rates, no charge for initial interview. 253-3354

TYPING

FLYING FINGERS TYPING. Work done fast. Delivery too. Call Kevin 549-0118.

"WORDSMITH" PROFESSIONAL TYPING. Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck. 253-4584.

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional, accurate. 665-4501.

SPORTS

UMass hoop teams get double dunking

Collegian photo by David Higashiguchi

Despite 23 points from freshman Jim McCoy, the UMass men's hoop team just couldn't keep up with 14th ranked West Virginia.

• Minutemen buried by no.14 West Virginia, 88-55

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — This is a big time college basketball program. Complete with a 10,000 seat arena, two mascots, a raunchy but well-drilled student cheering section, and a beefy collection of basketball talent.

Last night, at the coliseum in Morgantown, W. VA., it all ganged up to hand the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team an 88-55 loss. UMass is now 9-14.

The Mountaineers, who entered the contest as the number 14th ranked team in the country, extended their winning streak to 20 games, and their Atlantic 10 record to 14-0.

The 4,081 locals that attended did see a scrappy and fairly competitive game at least through the first minute of the second half. They also got excited about UMass freshman Jim McCoy, who heated up in the second half, on the way to a game-high 23 points.

Down 37-21 at the break, UMass came out of the locker room and crashed the boards, as John Tate came up with two points and a renewed sense of optimism. WVU, however, then took off on a 9-2 run, capped by a Herbie Brooks' 3-point play with 15:42 left to play. The freebie gave WVU a 46-25 lead, and through the next 10 minutes, and the Minutemen would never get within 20.

In spite of McCoy unleashing his full array of short jumpers, the Mountaineers extended to a 56-35 lead with 12:10 to go, on a Stevie Berger drive. The lead peaked at 84-47.

UMass' traditional woes hurt them again last night. The Minutemen shot a pitiful 29 percent from the floor for the entire game, and were thoroughly outrebounded 65-35. The Mountaineers, however, shot a credible 45 percent from the floor.

continued on page 15

• Penn State too powerful for Minutewomen, 79-54

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

The first time the University of Massachusetts women's hoop team played Penn State, the Minutewomen played horribly in the first half before regrouping in the second half.

Last night at the Curry Hicks Cage, UMass was able to stay close for 20 minutes before falling off the edge, as the visiting Lady Lions rolled to a 79-54 Atlantic 10 Conference win.

"We played a good game for 30 minutes and kept battling, but we just ran out of gas," said UMass coach Kathy Hewelt.

The Minutewomen hung tough early, leading 9-7 before the Lions went on a 13-2 run to take over for good. UMass closed the gap to seven at the half as Sue Serafini buried a three-pointer just before the buzzer, and the Minutewomen were still in good shape, down just 32-25.

The strong point of the half for UMass was the play of junior center Helen Freeman, who had 13 of her game-high 22 points in that span. However, Penn State buried UMass by going 10-of-10 from the line in the half, and 21-of-27 for the game.

One of the key plays in the game, and maybe the remainder of the season, came with about five minutes left in the half. Senior co-captain Christel Zullo stole the ball and coasted in for a layup, but came down hard on her ankle. Zullo had to be helped from the floor, and will be x-rayed this morning. It is undetermined how long she will be out.

But with her gone for at least the rest of the game, the lack of depth on the Minutewomen showed in the second half, as the deeper and stronger Lions roared out of the box with a 17-4 run. The play of guard Tanya Garner (22

continued on page 15

UMass Ski teams head to Bershire

By ROBERT SIMPSON
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's and women's ski teams will travel to Charlemont today, the sit of Berkshire East where this weekend's competition will take place.

UMass coach Bill MacConnell and his teams will certainly feel comfortable at Berkshire East. It's the closest thing to home-field advantage that they have.

"It's our home training area," MacConnell said. "We spent the whole month of January there, and made thousands of trips down over it."

The giant slalom will be held both days, rather than slalom one day and giant slalom the other, and conditions should be good. Because of the recent rain fall, the snow at Berkshire East should be hard, producing "long fast races on steep terrain," MacConnell said.

Leading the men this weekend will again

continued on page 14

Gymnastics to meet SCSU, Temple

Women on road

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

After three weeks worth of war, culminating in last Saturday's losing battle with rival New Hampshire, the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team (4-1) heads into the kinder, gentler part of their season's schedule this weekend.

UMass will head to Southern Connecticut State University on Saturday to face the Owls (3-1), a team that falls short of the Minutewomen's statistical standards set so far this season. SCSU has averaged 170.225 points per outing, compared to UMass's 175.76.

The two programs have also faced a common opponent this winter; UMass toasted Navy to open their season 174.35 to 132.10, while the Owls beat them 168.2 to 143.35 in late January.

Coach Alfie Mitchell views the competition with a coach's diplomacy. "We can't afford to take any meets lighty," said Mitchell. "And in gymnastics, it really doesn't matter who your opponent is, you're really competing against yourself."

Like the Minutewomen — who set the school scoring mark in defeat last Saturday at New Hampshire — the Owls are coming off their first loss of the season. Last Saturday against Rutgers, SCSU was outgunned 174.6 to 170.55. SCSU had previously defeated Salem State and East Stroudsburg, as well as Navy.

Freshman Sally Clement has tallied the highest all around scores thus far for the Owls, averaging 34.5 points per outing. Sophmore Kim Bessette has added 34 all around points to the cause on average, despite being slowed with a lower back strain.

continued on page 14

Minutemen home

By GEORGE AUSTIN
Collegian Staff

How can a team lose by less than a point? Just ask any one of a number of seniors and juniors on the University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team. They pulled that feat off two years ago at the Boyden Gymnastics Center.

The team that beat the Minutemen in that meet my a mere .05 of a point (266.25-266.20) was Temple University. The Owls will make their first trip back to the Boyden Gymnastics Center since the closest meet in UMass history tomorrow at 1 p.m.

And this, the first home meet of the season for the Minutemen, is promising to be every bit as competitive as the heartbreaker of two years ago.

"This will make or break our season," UMass coach Roy Johnson said. "We're right in there in the EIGL standings. They've been scoring around 260 and that's what we've been around, and without a home meet."

UMass is 4-1 overall, 2-1 in the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League, its only loss coming at Navy. Temple, in its own gymnasium, also lost to the Midshipmen who are leading the EIGL. The Owls are 1-2 overall and 1-1 in the EIGL.

"I think it's going to take a lot of consistency," UMass senior gymnast Joe Fitzgerald said. "Everyone is going to have to hit and we're going to have to score above a 260. As I see it, both teams are evenly matched."

continued on page 14

Track teams run meets before NEs

Men to face Big Green

By JOHN STEVEN MARPLE
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's track team heads to Dartmouth College tomorrow where it will do battle with not only Dartmouth but also the University of New Hampshire and Colgate.

UMass came in second in this meet last year with 33 points, behind Dartmouth (125) and ahead of UNH (25). UMass was led by its 4x880 relay team which came in first place with a time of 7:46.04.

"This meet should be pretty much like last year's," said UMass coach Ken O'Brien. "Dartmouth is superior to us and UNH. They are very, very deep."

O'Brien is very frank about the expectations of the Minutemen. "Our objective is to go up there and finish second. Dartmouth is just too strong for us," he said.

While O'Brien concedes that Dartmouth will most likely come out on top, he feels it will be a toss-up for the number two position.

Ditto, women at Dartmouth

By RICK SETO
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's indoor track will run in its last regular season meet at Dartmouth University Saturday in preparation for the New England Championships in two weeks.

With the season winding down, here is a recap of all those who have qualified for the New Englands, which will be held at Boston University.

- Lee Ann Ambrose: In addition to qualifying for the 200 and 400 in the NE, she is the only Minutewoman to qualify for the ECAC's (in the quarter-mile). At Dartmouth, the freshman will run in the 55, 800, and the mile relay.
- Helen Balaouras: she has qualified in the 20-pound indoor weight, and she is also close in the shot put. Balaouras will be throwing both at Dartmouth.
- Precious Hill: she has qualified in a team-high 4 events (1000, 1500, 3000 and 5000 meters) and she will run in the 3000 Saturday in hopes of qualifying for the Easterns.

continued on page 14

W. swimming faces 15 at Holy Cross

By DEBORAH PICARDI
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's swimming team (8-4) will begin three tough days of competition today at the 10th Annual New England Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Championships at the University of Rhode Island.

continued on page 14

DON'T FORGET	BLACK AFFAIRS	WEATHER
Follow Monday class schedule today. Ignore your calendar. At UMass, it's Monday.	Black Students Conference held at Smith College over weekend. Page 7.	Pull out the galoshes, and put away the ski boots - it will be rainy today and tomorrow.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1989

COLLEGIAN

VOLUME CXXII LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY IN NEW ENGLAND ISSUE 15

Pro-choice advocates air opinion

From Collegian Staff Reports

Chanting "our bodies, our lives, our right to decide," participants in a pro-choice rally in Amherst Saturday afternoon released 200 balloons to bring attention to the pro-choice movement.

"The anti-abortion movement is a very vocal minority," said Rom Birnbaum, a second-year Hampshire student.

More than 250 participants crowded the Unitarian Church in the center of town to hear a series of speakers and then moved out to the sidewalk for the balloon launch. The event was sponsored by Birnbaum and Cara Page, also a Hampshire student, in conjunction with the Civil Liberties and Public Policy Program at Hampshire.

"On the end of each balloon we attached a piece of paper with a picture of a crossed out coat hanger and the message 'keep abortion safe, legal and funded,'" Birnbaum said. "On the other side people wrote about what is happening in the Supreme Court and who to send letters or contributions to."

Birnbaum described the rally as a "celebration of choice," and said the primary motivation was to bring attention to the fact that the Supreme Court is now reviewing the Missourie, Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services, case.

This case, she said, "was brought to the Supreme Court by Bush supporters and other conservative groups in the hope it will be used to overturn the Roe vs. Wade case which made abortion legal in the first place."

She said she wanted to bring attention to the issue now because the Supreme Court is expected to reach a decision by July.

Matt Podowtitz, a first year Hampshire student who spoke at the rally, urged supporters to send letters to Supreme Court Justices and state representatives. "I stand up here as a man who was ignorant," he said, "but I learned and now I care.

Susan Tracy, a history professor at Hampshire who spoke at the rally, reflected on her own experience with an illegal abortion. She said that, as part of the "so-called sexual revoltuion," she had done what students in her generation were supposed to do and "made love not war."

But she said, the first time she had sex she got pregnant. "In the 1960s it was not legal for a single woman to purchase birth control," she said, but men could easily purchase condoms.

"The right to life business is not about life," she said, it's about controlling women's bodies. Patriarchal societies have always put men in control of women's bodies."

In an interview after the rally, Birnbaum said she "was glad to see so many people, both men and women, speak out.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

ONE'S A CROWD — Jim Gipe, a photographer for the Amherst Bulletin, occupies the empty stands during a recent women's basketball game at the Cage.

Minuteman draws more fire

By RICK SANTOS
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts administration announced Friday that the school is exploring ways to distance itself from a conservative student newspaper published on campus.

"The paper routinely offends people," said University spokeswoman Stacey Chase. "It's not one particular article. It's a cumulative effect."

The school's action is in the wake of allegations by the area gay community that the paper, The Minuteman, prints homophobic information.

A memo issued Thursday to a campus gay and lesbian organization by Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson encouraged members to address harassment by filing charges with the dean of students office or the campus police, Chase said.

The office is already handling a case in which harassment charges were brought against the newspaper by the former president of the Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Alliance, Jay Festa, stemming from the February issue. The LBGA is a registered student organization.

Chase said, "The tone of the regular attacks [on homosexuals] are not consistent with the University's commitment to civility, and the school does not want it to appear that the paper is a formal voice of the University."

UMass is also looking into ways to have its name removed from the paper's front page, she said. The University in no way is trying to curtail the paper's First Amendment rights, she said.

The newspaper's managing editor, Stephen Lutz, said the school's announcement about distancing itself from the paper is vague, and it did not upset him since "we haven't really had the administration's support anyway."

"I feel the adminstrators are a bunch of hypocrites," he said. They claim they are stressing diversity of opinion, Lutz said, "and here they are trying to keep us down."

Paul McGonnigal, a contributing editor to the paper said, "We honestly believe the University is afraid of us because we're presenting values that are reflective of mainstream American values."

"They don't like seeing students counter their ideals which we find repulsive — namely the homosexual issue," McGonnigal said. "They'd like to see us disappear, and that's not going to happen."

Some of the complaints about the newspaper were expressed last week by participants at a meeting of administrators and student government officials, according to Robert Fadel, the undergraduate student senate speaker, who co-chaired the meeting.

"There was some discussion about students filing a [harassment] case against The Minuteman in court," Fadel said.

McGonnigal said he and others at the newspaper are upset because they were not notified about the meeting in which their publication was discussed.

About possible actions the administration may take, Lutz said, "we're going to fight anything they try to do, and we're going to keep publishing."

Executive to head panel

Tsongas acts to counter abuse of funds

BOSTON (AP) — Following reports of continued abuse of state college trust funds, former US Sen. Paul Tsongas yesterday named a corporate chief to head a blue-ribbon panel that will propose new guidelines designed to curb abuse of the funds.

Tsongas, the incoming head of the state Board of Regents of Higher Education, appointed William Thurston, chairman of GenRad, Inc. a Concord-based electronics firm, to head a three-member panel on the trust fund issue.

"These stories are taking the public's confidence away and destroying the larger story which is the need for public higher education," said Tsongas. "There are a number of presidents furious about this issue and angry at the insensitivity shown by their colleagues.

Tsongas said the presidents of the 29 state public colleges and universities have already agreed to abide by the guidelines produced by Thurston's committee.

"Once somebody wanders off the reservation," Tsongas said, referring to

continued on page 4

Battered woman found guilty

From Collegian Staff Reports

SPRINGFIELD — Lisa Becker Grimshaw, whose defense tried to convince jurors that she had her estranged husband killed because her life was in danger, was found guilty of manslaughter Friday.

Prosecutors said Becker Grimshaw, 27, had convinced two men to beat her husband, Thomas Grimshaw, to death with baseball bats by promising to split his insurance money with them afterward.

Becker Grimshaw's defense had contended she was a battered woman who felt she could survive only if her batterer was dead.

The case marked the first time the battered woman's syndrome, a category of the post-traumatic stress disorder, was allowed to support a claim of self-defense in a murder trial in the state.

"I think it is very sad," said Gail Kielson, a spokeswoman for Necessities/Necesidades, a Northampton shelter and advocacy group for battered women.

"I don't consider it a defeat, but I don't consider it a victory," she told the Daily Hampshire Gazette.

The jury "didn't fully understand what it's like for a battered woman who tried to use the system, who called the police, who was in genuine fear for her life and her child's life," Kielson said.

"If they had fully embraced . . . what it was like for [Becker Grimshaw] as a bat-

continued on page 4

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation: 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA. 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr. GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL MONROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
ASSOCIATES	BETTY-ANN MURPHY YANA DLUGY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE GEORGE FRANCY TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	NANCY KLINGENER
COPY EDITOR	SAM SILVERSTEIN
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	FLORENCIO TERRA
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	FLORENCIO TERRA
PRODUCTION	WENDY RAE NUTTER THOM DEVITA BRITT WINER PAUL SPECHT JOE KEENAN

Budget cuts cause state schools to turn away students for first time

BOSTON (AP) — The state's $1 billion public higher education system is designed to provide an education to any state resident who wants one. This year, for the first time in the system's history, students are being turned away.

The stories they tell range from a woman whose child could receive day care at a college by who couldn't get into classes herself to a communications major who signed up for five classes and got none.

The reason? A state budget some $600 million out of balance this year and in need of $600 million in increased taxes next year to come out in the black.

Individuals and interest groups of all sorts feel the pinch, including welfare recipients in line for only a cost-of-living benefit increase and environmentalists who see land conservation and hazardous waste cleanup programs threatened.

But at the 29 state colleges and universities across Massachusetts the budget crunch hit home with stunning immediacy. Forced to cut back an already scaled down budget by another 3 percent, the schools cancelled classes, laid off part-time teachers, left vacant slots unfilled and cut down enrollments — all in the current second semester.

Part-time students, many of them mothers or workers seeking to increase their earning power, found themselves unable to get into the state's 15 community colleges, which, since their inception have had open enrollment policies and never turned away applicants. And young undergraduates at the systems's colleges and universities saw required courses canceled or filled to capacity.

Kim Coutour was home after Christmas with her husband John and 2 1/2-year-old daughter Lauren preparing to return to Holyoke Community College when she got some good news: the school that both she and her husband have attended would have room for Lauren in its day care center.

"The college called and said everything was OK," said Coutour, 24, who is studying retail management. "I knew about the cutbacks, but I didn't think it would affect me because I had been a prior student."

She was wrong. Coutour son learned that the education she had been putting off throughout her daughters infancy would have to wait until fall.

"I couldn't believe it because ever since I had got pregnant I said, 'Not this semester; you can't go because she's too young.' I kept putting it off knowing there would be a time when I could go to college to get a degree."

Now Coutour's husband and baby go off to college while she works in town.

"This really made me angry not only because I'm a prior student. I'm also not someone who is straight out of high school. I have responsibilities. I need to have something to offer," Coutour said.

Coutour was one of some 2,000 students who would have been attending college this semester but for the budget cuts. The exact number is uncertain because some students were turned away from more than one school, said Terry Zoulas, a spokesman for the state Board of Regents for Higher Education.

Hardest hit were the community colleges — small, regional schools that offer job-oriented courses for students of widely varying education levels. They accounted for half the students turned away.

"For the first time in history the communities had limited enrollment. They are the ones most hurt by this," Zoulas said.

Those who made it into a state college still had some trouble to contend with.

John Dunlap, a junior communications major at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, signed up for five courses in his major. He got into none of them. When add-drop day came, Dunlap got in line at 5:45 a.m. and, within a short time a mad dash was on to get courses.

The Amherst campus, flagship of the state college system, turned away only 100 students for the current semester. But budget cutbacks forced cancellation of hundreds of courses, according to James Langley, associate vice chancellor for University Relations and Development at UMass-Amherst.

"Some 16,000 students out of 20,000 have not been able to get at least one of their first choices," Langley said.

Sometimes classes were cancelled even after they had been placed on a student's schedule for the semester, as senior Stephanie Orefice learned. Unable to get all the political science courses she needed to graduate, Orefice, who is also the student trustee, is taking independent study credits.

In the meantime, students are being asked to pay more for their leaner education. Fees were increased on 20 of the 29 campuses, ranging from $25 extra per student to $150. And this spring the regents plan on discussing tuition increases.

Higher education Chancellor Franklyn Jenifer says the student enrollment cuts will largely be over with this semester. But UMass-Amherst plans on admitting 400 fewer students next year.

And the proposed budget of more than $790 million for the school year beginning in September is by no means secure on Beacon Hill. The higher education system spends another $450 million a year out of trust funds, but officials worry that the trust funds cannot carry the burden of further budget cuts.

State Rep. Nicholas Paleologos, D-Woburn, co-chairman of the Legislature's education committee, said it would be difficult for legislators to resist the temptation to balance the state budget by finding cuts in such a major budget item.

First black woman to be on Superior Court hopes appointment will encourage others

BOSTON (AP) — As the first black woman on the Massachusetts Superior Court, Barbara A. Dortch hopes the landmark nature of her appointment will encourage others to push past societal barriers.

But more important, she says, is the effect her appointment will have on minorities and women coming before the court, "by virtue of the fact that someone who looks like them is sitting in a position of authority."

"The effect is not so much upon me. I could make the same ruling same kind of decision as[a] white male judge, and no doubt I do," she said. "The benefit, I think, comes from the perception of the public.'

Dortch, who currently is a Boston Municipal Court judge, will replace retired Judge Harry Elam when she is sworn in as a Superior Court judge this week. The Superior Court hears felonies and major civil cases.

The appointment makes Dortch the highest-ranking black woman in the state's judiciary, a distinction she says she never dreamed of as a teen-ager growing up in the South.

Dortch was 13 when her father died and although the family, supported by her mother, lived in a low-income neighborhood, Dortch said she never thought of herself as poor, or felt her future was boxed in by limitations.

"People sort of assumed that I'd do something that would include a college education," she said, crediting junior high and high school teachers with pushing her toward college.

In 1967, she enrolled at Brandeis University as a biology major. Then, in her freshman year, civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated, touching off rallies and protests by black students on campuses across the country. Dortch took part in some of the protest and switched her major to politics, choosing to go on to law school, partly at the urging of instructor Pauli Murray, a black feminist lawyer who taught law and politics at Brandeis.

"At that point I was very much interested in seeing what I could really do, " she said.

After graduation from law school at Boston College, Dortch worked briefly in Tennessee and then moved to Boston in the mid-70's, where she began working for the city as an associate corporation counsel.During the next several years she worked for the US Interior Department, the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority and the Massachusetts Port Authority.

Sometimes it was tough establishing her authority, although generally not with lawyers, she said.

"I have had a couple of instances where I have been presumed to be present at a meeting to take notes," she said. "You never get used to that sort of thing, but it happens and you respond and you move on."

In the courtroom, Dortch said she's rarely encountered problems. "The robe helps."

Dortch said she wanted to become a judge because she enjoyed working in the public sector.

"Being in the public sector you get a sense that you can impact a large number of people, she said. "I thought that being a judge was just the pinnacle of public service.'

In 1984, Judge Margaret Burnham, who was stepping down from the Boston Municipal Court to return to private practice, was one of a number of blacks in the legal profession who urged Dortch to apply for the vacancy.

Dortch filed an application late in the term of former Gov. Edward King and was appointed to the post by Dukakis.

During her five years on the Boston Municipal Court, Dortch won a reputation for fairness, associates said.

' I think she's going to make a terrific judge," said Pamoja Burrell, president of Massachusetts Black Woman Attorneys, a group Dortch help found. "She has all of the qualities that we normally look for in a judge. She's a compassionate and caring individual."

Like Dortch, Burrell said the implications of the appointment may help broaden perceptions about the judicial system.

"In the 1980's why should it be landmark or a first? It is, but I think that the significance of that is less the fact that she's sort of a first black female than, 'Hey, she's a qualified woman and she was able to attain the position because the process has been depoliticized. She was able to get there on her merits,"' Burrell said.

After Dortch was nominated to fill the vacancy left by Elam's retirement last August, the state's Executive Council in January suspended its rule to immediately confirm her, skipping the usual seven-day wait and and investigation.

Among those testifying in favor of her nomination were the chief justices of the Superior Court and Boston Municipal Court, lawyers who practiced before her and members of charities with which she has been involved.

At the time of her nomination, Tommy H. Brewer, president of the Massachusetts Black Lawyers, praised Dortch, but said his organization regretted it took so long for a black woman to be appointed to the Superior Court bench.

LOCAL

Asian students said to lack support services

By SARAH DEMASTER
Collegian Correspondent

Asians are the largest minority group on campus, yet there are almost no services for them, said the chairperson of the Asian-American Students Association.

"There is only one counselor — Lucy Nguyen, who is Vietnamese — to serve 30 different Asian nationalities," said Debbie Lee, chairperson for AASA. "A lot of the problem is that people haven't heard much about us in the past. The administration thinks, 'We haven't heard from them, so they must be happy.'"

According to the organization's leaders, the AASA attempts to offset a lack of support Asian students receive from UMass.

"We are not a politically active club," said Five College Representative Kenneth Chu. "I think [the members] are looking for this club to be more of a support group to help Asian students make new friends and adjust to a large school," he said.

The club tries to help Asian students both academically and socially, said Vanh Inthirath, vice chairman of AASA. "If a student needs a paper typed, or help with homework, the members try to help each other out. In that way we become close friends." The members are also given the officers' telephone numbers, with invitations to call anytime with a problem, she said.

"A lot of students feel lost," said Lee. "I was born here, but there are a lot of differences in our cultures. For example, burping after a meal is polite in Asian culture, but you can't do that here."

AASA is making an extra effort this year to reach Asian students, she said. The club is sending letters to Asian exchange students, to let them know an Asian organization does exist, she said.

"It's harder to reach exchange students," said Chu. "They can't always fit us into their schedules."

In addition to providing support for one another, the AASA's approximately 40 members work to educate non-Asian students about Asian culture, he said. They show films, plan ski trips, organize dances, and sponsor volleyball and basketball tournaments with Asian groups in the Five Colleges area and elsewhere.

"This year, because of the [budget] cuts, we'll be having only one volleyball game," said Chu, "which I think is sort of sad."

On a more positive note, plans for the upcoming sixth Annual Asian Night, which is the club's biggest event, are running smoothly, Chu said. He said that the club will be able to raise the approximately $6,000 needed for the event through groups on campus, as well as private Asian organizations in Boston and New York.

The event features a fashion show, for which Chu would like to use "traditional costumes, unique to our culture." It also features dances and other acts, put on by professional and non-professional organizations from the Five College area, Boston and New York. The talent show and the dance that follows it are free and open to the public.

The club hopes that their efforts will help to dispel the stereotypes of Asians students held by non-Asians students, said Lee. "Stereotypes are harmful," said Lee.

"But non-Asian students need to make a personal effort as well," she said. "[Getting rid of] stereotypes doesn't just happen."

She said non-Asians need to attend Asian-sponsored events and dances, come to the meetings, and attend the films.

The club tries not to let stereotypes get in the way of adjusting to UMass. "I don't pay attention to [stereotypes]," said Inthirath. "I don't look for those kinds of issues. I'm too busy to think about it."

She added, "Most of my friends are American. They treat me like one of the gang."

AASA meetings are open to all students. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 21 at 6 p.m. in room '62-175.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

THREE POINT LAND — Smith College's Scott Gymnasium is tranquil, at least for a moment.

Governor and Regents chair to visit campus

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

Gov. Michael Dukakis is scheduled to meet with students from colleges and universities across the state Friday afternoon in a closed forum at the University of Massachusetts to discuss concerns over this year's budget cuts.

Dukakis, who will be accompanied by Paul Tsongas, chairman-designate of the state Board of Regents of Higher Education, will meet for one hour with about 50 students in a "non-confrontational" atmosphere, according to UMass Student Trustee Stephanie Orefice.

Orefice said Dukakis has not offered strong support for public higher education in the past and the meeting is a sign that "our proponents on Beacon Hill are getting to him."

"It's a positive step," she said. "In the past, student visits were not necessarily on his agenda."

Three student representatives from the state's 29 public colleges and universities will be invited to the meeting, which will be closed to administrators and the media, Orefice said.

"Each school has its own story to tell," she said. Over-subscribed or cancelled classes and tuition and fee hikes are especially plaguing the University, Orefice said.

Chancellor Joseph Duffey said he thinks the meeting is a "good idea." He added that the Governor will also visit several refurbished research laboratories.

"It's an effort to try to dramatize the importance of sound fiscal policy to public higher education," Duffey said.

In the past two years, the University has suffered a total of $15 million dollars in budget cutbacks, preventing many students from continuing their education, said Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson.

"Every $100 increase is a real hardship for many students," Madson said. "Some students find it difficult to come or don't at all."

Orefice said the $15 million loss places state budget expenditures at the 1987 level and added the 1990 budget is not going to improve the situation.

Orefice said she will meet with student government officials before the meeting to prepare statements and ensure that the meeting will be peaceful.

Amherst workshops counter rape

By LISA SHAPIRO
Collegian Correspondent

Fighting misconceptions about all forms of rape was the goal of Anti-Sexual Harrassment Week, which took place last week at Amherst College.

Denise McGolrick, coordinator of Health Education, said three groups: Health Education; Advocates, Counselors, and Educators Against Sexual Harassment; and the Friends of the Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Alliance, cooperated in covering a broad range of topics dealing with sexual harassment.

One important goal of the week was to dispel the misconception that rape is an act of lust, she said. In all instances rape is an act of power and aggression, she said.

"Date rape is a hidden issue at many campuses. I wanted to bring out the fact that date rape is rape," McGoldrick said.

Steve Berman, an ACE member said, "There's a denial factor. People say, 'Not at Amherst . . . we're not rapists.' We need to deal with these real issues on campus."

The FLBGA provided information regarding anti-gay violence nationwide, according to Brian Albert, an area coordinator of the Week. Albert said the group also provided anti-violence whistles to be blown in response to a personal attack or a sighting of an attack.

"The first step is to educate people," said Jen Radin, an ACE member. "We need to remove sexual harassment from the realm of silence. There is absolutely no reason for it to exist."

Internship office offers needed experience

By JAMIE MACLACHLAN
Collegian Correspondent

You're trying to get a job and nobody will hire you because you don't have any experience, but since you can't get a job, you can't get experience.

An internship might be a way out of this senior-year catch 22.

Internships are structured, supervised apprenticeships through which students can earn up to 15 credits. Nearly 600 University of Massachusetts students each year take advantage of the opportunity. About 900 companies worldwide recruit at UMass, according to Program Director Ellen Wolf.

Senior communications major Beth Scheiner interned for the USA Network in New York City, helping produce nationally broadcast programs like "Calliope" and "Commander USA's Groovy Movies." Scheiner not only earned 15 credits, but she now has no doubts about the career path she has chosen.

"The best part [about the internship] is that I have on-the-job experience," she said.

Jenina Braun, a senior political science major, said her internship with the [Washington] D.C. Corporation Council helped her plan for the future.

"I didn't know if I wanted to go to law school, but now I'm sure. That was the best thing to come out of my internship," she said.

In Washington, Braun worked alongside attorneys who deal with child abuse and other domestic violence. Braun said she did everything the attorneys did except present the cases in court. She earned 12 credits for the internship.

Wolf said the credits are just one aspect of the internship experience.

"The most important benefit from an internship is that you are discovering what you are about to get into and can decide if you really like it or not," she said.

Karen Kilcoyne, promotion assistant for the program, said interns can apply theories they learn in the classroom direct-

continued on page 4

ASK US

"Ask Us" is a weekly column designed to inform and refer students about sexuality questions such as contraception, sexually transmitted diseases, and AIDS.

"Ask Us" is peer-written and reviewed by members of the Peer Sexuality Education Class, which is affiliated with University Health Services. All questions and comments are welcome and should be addressed to "Ask Us" at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, or to G. Krull at Health Services, c/o Health Education Dept.

All questions/comments will remain anonymous and confidential. Please feel free to write.

■ trust funds

continued from page 1

a president who strayed from the guidelines, "I would consider that person fair game," for disciplinary action.

Thurston, 67, a Harvard resident, said his first task would be to name two other committee members. Beyond that he said he has only begun to ponder the issue, saying, "There seems to be widespread agreement that some sort of guidelines are needed on trust funds to help all the people involved walk the proper line."

According to a Regents source who asked not to be named, Thurston is being seriously considered as an appointee to the Regents following his work on the trust fund committee.

Yesterday's action came in the wake of a report that some college presidents are using the funds to pay for such luxuries as travel, parties and even an office aquarium, according to a published report.

The Boston Globe reported yesterday that despite repeated scandals involving the abuse of trust funds, some college presidents use the money to pay for perquisites. The report cited several examples:

- James Amsler, the former president of Salem State College, used college funds to take his wife on a trip to New Orleans several years ago and to pay for a class on Creole cooking she took while there.
- Geread F. Burke, president of Massasoit Community College, has a $740 saltwater aquarium in his office paid for from his discretionary trust fund. He also uses the fund to pay the $61 monthly fee to maintain it and replace dead fish.
- Robert A. Corrigan, former chancellor of the University of Massachusetts in Boston, threw two Christmas parties in 1987 for staff and university supporters at a total cost of $12,000.

■ internships

continued from page 3

ly to the internship.

Kilcoyne, a communications major, interned for Cone Communications in Boston and worked on the Reebok account. Reebok Inc. sponsored the Amnesty International Tour, and her responsibilities included dubbing concert and video footage, creating press kits and sending facsimile information to the concert sites during the tour. Kilcoyne said it was a real confidence builder.

Kilcoyne, Scheiner and Braun agreed that the University program makes it very easy to get an internship, since program advisors help interns throughout their internships. This includes advice on internships and resumes.

Said Wolf, "It is totally tailored to the student. They choose where they want to go and who they want to intern for."

The University requirements to qualify for an internship are 45 graduation credits and a minimum grade point average of 2.0. Each department has its own requirements, but students interested in an internship are urged to make an appointment to attend a planning session in Curry Hicks.

■ Becker Grimshaw

continued from page 1

tered woman, then they would have acquitted her," she said. "But it's definitely better than first-degree murder or second-degree murder."

The jury returned the verdict against the Amherst woman at about 6:30 p.m. Friday, after some four hours of deliberation. Immediately after the verdict was handed down, Becker Grimshaw was taken to the Massachusetts Correctional Institute in Framingham, where she awaits sentencing, set for this Friday.

Q.T.B.

(Quitting Time Buffet)

Mon-Fri

4-7

FitzWilly's restaurant bar

23 Main St. • Northampton 584-8666

DELANO'S

Proper Identification A Must

57 NORTH PLEASANT ST • 253-5141

"THE BUCK STOPS HERE"

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MA!

Drink of the Week Tequila Sunrise $1.00 Beer of the Month Bud & Miller Lite $1.00

PITCHERS!!!

MILLER, MILLER LITE & ROLLING ROCK - $5.00

MEISTER BRAU $4.25

WHAT'S MORE IMPORTANT ...
A DEGREE OR AN EDUCATION?

A degree is only part of an education. The larger part is your growth as a person. Not only what you are exposed to, but whom.

That's why we've been around for over seventy-five years. We are Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity, and we offer everything you can't find in a textbook. Stop by and see for yourself what a fraternity can mean to you.

When you graduate there is a lot more to take with you than a piece of paper.

FIND IT HERE!

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

ΛRUSHΛ ΛRUSHΛ

FEBRUARY 14, 15, 21, 22
TUES. AND WED. 9:00-11:00 PM.
374 NORTH PLEASANT STREET
ANY QUESTIONS CALL:
253-9032

Munchy Sale

ON SALE NOW THROUGH FEBRUARY 25

Cheese-Its, 1 1/8 oz.	Sale 5/$1.00
Cambell's Cream of Celery Soup	Sale 2/$1.00
Kellogg's Just Right Nugget Flakes, 11 oz.	Sale $2.00
Fruit 'N Nut, 13 oz.	Sale $2.00
Swiss Miss Cocoa (Reg.)	Sale 2/$3.00
Ocean Spray, 32 oz. Cranberry	Sale 2/$3.00
Oodles of Noodles	Sale 3/$1.00
Kit Kat Candy Bars, 1.625 oz.	Sale 3/$1.00

Stock Up Now

AVAILABLE IN THESE MUCHYS

HAMPDEN WORCESTER FRANKLIN

Trend-setters surveyed at Hatch

Students outside the Hatch last week answered a barrage of questions about their time, money, and travel intentions — and received a T-shirt to boot.

The students participated in a marketing research survey conducted by Trends, Inc., of Princeton, N.J.

"Trends, Inc. is an independent marketing company hired out by other companies," said Jim Glover, a freshman communications major and a three-year employee of the company.

"It's market research," he said. "It's like taking the Pepsi Challenge."

"Surveys are the best way of compiling market research," Glover said. "We want as wide a variety as possible to represent the student population."

Glover said the company sets quotas on the number of students from each class to be interviewed. He also said he has interviewed an equal number of men and women from each class.

"We will be sending the surveys back to Trends and they will compile the data," he said. "Some of the students may receive a phone call from them to validate 10 percent of the surveys I conducted."

"It was interesting," she said, "the T-shirt was good, too."

—MARY HUYGENS

■ Anti-Sexual Harassment Week

continued from page 3

'NO' MEANS NO, printed on a red heart shaped background, was the slogan for the week.

The slogan was promoted through tables in Valentine Hall, at the college. The tables provided information pamphlets, buttons, stickers, whistles and balloons. There was also a true/false quiz board designed to help students understand myths and untruths associated with harassment and rape, McGoldrick said.

"This is the kind of thing that people don't talk about on a regular basis. We live in a sexist and violent society. Cultural norms are accepted here that are not accepted elsewhere," she said.

Four workshops were held, including a panel discussion for men, a female perspective workshop, a self defense program for women, and an event devoted to sexual harassment outside of Amherst. An episode of the television program "Cagney and Lacey" that dealt with date rape was shown in the McCaffrey Room continuously Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

In addition to the events, Amherst students received a mailing from the college containing information on rape and sexual harassment.

BMCP Radio Shows

Spring 1989

Mondays-Fridays 7:00PM-9:30PM
Saturdays-6PM-6AM
Sunday-9PM-12AM

Monday	"All that Jazz" Rick Townes
Tuesday	"Set it Off" Evelise
Wednesday	"D.J. Diamond" Diamond
Thursday	"Thursday Nite Throwdown" Rick G.
Friday	"The Rio Jam" Rio
Saturday	"BMCP Rap Attack" Ice-T 6-9
	"Kevy Kev Goes House" Kevy Kev 9-12
	"Saturday Seduction" Colette 12-3
	"Love's Interlude" Chris Winslow 3-6

JB's HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES

JB's Roast Beef
50 Main St., Amherst
(across from Police Station)
253-7018

YES BABY! JB'S HERE I COME

Joe: I'm starving and this party stinks. After hours of convincing I finally got my friends to leave with me and head to JB's. I'm going to have me a nice thick super deluxe roast beef sandwich, a veggie, fries, milk shake and a double order of cole slaw. My mouth is watering just thinking about it. Mmmmm...

(If this is you, take this ad in for a free roast beef sandwich.)

GREAT FOOD • GREAT PRICES • OPEN TIL 2 AM

STUDENT AFFAIRS INFORMATION SERVICES

IDB/TIPS

CALL 545-1540 FOR TIPS ABOUT ATHLETICS AND ACTIVITIES AND THE SPRING SCHEDULES
ask for these tapes by number :

2800	Art Galleries
2685	Body Shop Fitness Centers
1515	Daily Events
1504	Fine Arts Center Events/Tickets
2453	Gym Schedules
2678	Intramurals
2459	Pool Schedules
2471	Racquetball and Squash Court Schedules
2464	Tennis Court Schedules
2476	Weight Room Schedules

see page 17 of the Student Telephone Directory for a complete listing of TIPS tapes

IF YOU HAVE FURTHER QUESTIONS CALL IDB (545-1555)
Information Data Bank (IDB)
Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

DELTA UPSILON: THE BETTER ALTERNATIVE

In case you did not know it, there is a better alternative to living in the dorms. What do you have? You have a room in the dorm. You have a few friends down the hall. You have lousy food in the Dinning Commons. You have terrible reception for your T.V. and stereo. You may not have anyone to study with. You have a limited social life, to say the least. You may not know enough people to make a team, so you do not participate in intramurals. You can not make a difference in area governments. It is impossible, the University is too big.

What could you have if you join Delta Upsilon Fraternity? You become a part of a house, of a brotherhood. You move into a home with 30 best friends. You eat catered meals made with fresh foods by our professional chef. You get a social life that does not quit, but when it does slow down, there is always cable T.V. You would be joining a house that is currently in first place for the campus wide intramurals championship, and the coveted Olympus Cup. We are campus champions in tennis, swimming, and cross country, and the Greek Area champions in football and soccer.

The best thing is that your grades do not have to suffer while you enjoy the good life here. As a house, we have the fourth highest GPA in the Greek Area, well above the all mens average. Our older brothers act as informal tutors and advisors to the younger brothers. In addition, academic files are available in the house to help you get ahead. Our alumni offer special internships and co-ops for an added advantage in the game of life. From turf management to sports management, from political science and economics to theater and math, and from engineering to food marketing, we have brothers in all majors. You can not lose, so come by and see for yourself the better alternative to dorm life!

If you have any questions feel free to call us, or drop by the house (we are four houses away from the grad tower). Our number is 549-3831, ask for Paul or Brad. See you at rush!

RUSH DATES: FEB. 14, 15, 16, 21, 22, 23

Look for DU rush posters everywhere!

ΖΨ RUSH ZETA PSI ΖΨ
ALL UNIVERSITY MEN WELCOME
Tuesday, Feb. 21
Rush Party!
Wednesday, Feb. 22
Bar-B-Que!
Thursday, Feb. 23
UMASS Hoop!
8-10PM
ZETA PSI
23 PHILLIPS ST. 256-6845

Amherst Fire Dept.
is now recruiting for
VOLUNTEER FIRE FIGHTERS
Join the student force
Engine Company 3
Gain Valuable Experience
Serve your Community
For information see our table in the Campus Center Concourse
February 22 - February 24 or call 253-9233

ACCIDENT VICTIMS
Know Your Legal Rights
Call us for FREE answers
Concentration in injuries from: • Auto Accidents • Slips and Falls • Workers Compensation • Dog Bites • And All Other Accidents • No legal fee unless successful; costs payable at conclusion in most cases • FREE Consultation
SOFORENKO & GOGEL, P.C.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
586-6700 • 1-800-245-5678
see us in the Nynex yellow pages

The Spoke
It's RED HOT Week Again at the SPOKE!!
Drink of the Week
Red Hots $1.00
Beers of the Month
Bass Ale $1.75
and Grolsch $1.50
35 E. Pleasant St. • Proper ID required!

UPC Presents
IN CELEBRATION OF BLACK HISTORY MONTH
ZIGGY MARLEY and the MELODY MAKERS
TUESDAY, FEB. 21
8:00 FINE ARTS CENTER UMASS
$12 UMASS STUDENT
$15 GENERAL PUBLIC
TICKETS ON SALE AT F.A.C. BOX OFFICE OR CALL TO CHARGE mc/visa:545-2511

Now get copies as colorful as your imagination.
COLOR!
• Create full 4-color, high-quality reproductions of color photos, 35mm film, or any color document.
• Change colors and create entirely new images.
• Reduce or enlarge images from 50% to 400%.
• Get customized, full-color copies for all your business needs, whether you're in real estate, advertising, or graphic design.
• Ideal for all your personal color copying needs.
Canon COLOR LASER COPIER
AMHERST COPY CORNER
37 East Pleasant St. • Amherst • 549-2854

BLACK AFFAIRS

Third World women's program operating despite setbacks

By JANINE WARNER
Collegian Staff

Despite budget cuts, a hiring freeze and a tumultous campus environment, the coordinator of the Third World Women's Program at the University of Massachusetts said there are services available.

After having no coordinator for a year-and-a-half, the Third World Women's Program at the Everywoman's Center hired Madeline Peters last January.

A graduate student in the Organizational Development program, Peters graduated from the UMass School of Education in 1986.

She had been the programs coordinator only two weeks when the New Africa House was occupied by a group of African-American students in response to a series of racially motivated incidents at UMass.

At that time she said, she postponed development of the Third World Women's Program to help students and administrators organize around the takeover. "I did a lot of work behind the scenes," she said.

As the campus settled down again, she said she was hit with another stumbling block: budget cuts. "Once again we were put in limbo-stage," she said.

A university-wide hiring freeze and reorganization of the Everywoman's Center left the entire program in turmoil, Peters said. "It's really only now starting to settle down again."

Despite these setbacks, however, Peters said she has been able to organize the program's office and offer services to women of color on campus. It's a slow process, she said, because with limited funds for advertising, it is very hard just to let people know there is something here for them.

"We're currently trying to work with staff members to reach out to women of color on campus," she said, noting that she has set up an advisory board with representatives from various campus communities to gain input on future projects.

"Everyone's trying to work together because people are feeling so oppressed on campus," she said. But reaching out can be hard, "we're very scattered and there's not that many of us."

To combat the double and even triple barriers faced by women of color, Peters said she has co-sponsored such events as a monthly potluck for lesbians of color, has offered workshops on racism in the gay, lesbian, and bisexual community, has been active in organizing the Martin Luther King Celebration in Northampton, and has facilitated workshops for minority engineers.

With the assistance of two graduate students, Peters said she has been working to set up files of information on services such as beauty salons and day care programs for women of color. Peters said she has an extensive book list students can use when doing research, and has a listing of organizations and events from all over the world.

These services are available to any student on campus and can be found at Everywoman's Center in Wilder Hall, she said.

As a member of the Social Issues Training Project, Peters said she works with other graduate students to offer weekend workshops and is now teaching a Resident Assistant course.

In the last year, Peters said she has seen few women of color "because people see the Everywoman's center as a program for White women." But, she said, that is really just a problem of advertising.

"Women don't come in here until they have a problem," she said, adding that she has worked with single parents and older women who are trying to get back into school.

"I have experience dealing with the problems that women who are single mothers face," she said. "I am a resource. If women want someone to speak to I'm here."

Collegian photo by Jason Taberman
Madeleine Peters, coordinator of the Third World Women's Program at the EveryWoman's Center.

Smith College hosts Karenga, Sanchez

By THOMAS MAMBANDE
Collegian Staff

Saturday morning on the campus of Smith College, Sonia Sanchez and Dr. Maulana Karenga addressed black students on self identification and political empowerment. Ms. Sanchez and Dr. Karenga were two of six lectures featured this weekend at Smith Colleges Second Annual Black Students Conference.

Dr. Maulana Karenga, Riverside Scholar/Activist at the University of California, creator of the Kwanzaa celebration and Nguzo Saba (The Seven Principles) and author of several books including Introduction To Black Studies ,one of the preeminent textbooks used in African Studies departments, spoke on "The Political Empowerment of Black Students."

Karenga emphasized the communality common throughout African cultures and admonished black students to see themselves in terms of "us" rather than " we."

"As Frantz Fanon wrote during the sixties, 'Each generation must, out of relative obscurity,discover its mission and then fulfill or betray it,'" quoted the renowned educator.

"In the sixties our mission as students was clear. It was to dare to achieve liberation and a higher form of living and it was a collective vocation which African-American students set for themselves as a people and students of the sixties accepted as equally their own. So they understood that black freedom is indivisible, and that as long as any one of us is abused or oppressed all of us are."

Karenga stressed the great importance of academic achievement to the progress of African-American achievement.

"You are not a student if you do not study, and if you don't study and you don't achieve you can't help yourself or your family or your people or anybody else that might be an ally or that needs you. You came here to be a student and that must be your priority — not at the exclusion of everything else but because you want to do those other things and because you want to do them with grounding. No matter what I say now, if I didn't go to school and get my doctorate and root myself in academia I would

continued on page 16

The black experience in Britain:

A contemporary profile

Collegian photo by Tamara Burke
Prof. Stephen Small

By STEPHEN SMALL
Collegian Correspondent

Editors Note: The following is the second in a series of articles to provide a historical analysis of blacks in Britain and their relationship to blacks in America.

First things first. Exactly who are we referring to when we talk about "black people" in Britain. And when did they arrive there? The British population does not have the range and diversity of the United States, but what it does have is quite varied, and many have been there for a long time.

The latest census [1981] indicated that the "ethnic minority" population was 2.2 million, or just under 4 of the total population. Approximately 40 of this group was born in Britain, and the rest are immigrants. The total Black population is just about 700,000. This includes 550,00 Afro-Caribbeans, 123,00 Africans, and 26,000 so-called "British born blacks," from Englands longstanding black communities, such as Liverpool and Bristol.

The largest minority group is "Asian" numbering 1.2 million. In Britain, though, "Asian refers to anyone from India, Pakistan or Bangladesh and is never used to refer to people from the Far East. Most of the Afro-Caribbean population is from the British West Indies, (Jamaica, Trinidad, etc), while the Africans are mainly from West and East Africa. The remaining ethnic minorities are from South East Asia, the Mediterranean and elsewhere in the Commonwealth, that is, Britain's former colonies.

Lets get a sense of perspective by comparing this with the USA: the 1980 census lists the total minority population as just over 48 million, including 27 million blacks, 16 million Hispanics, 3.5 million Asians, and 1.4 million Native Americans. This constitutes approximately 20 of the population. Compared to this figure, the 4 of minorities in Britain seems inconsequential. And Britain's black population is under 1.5, compared to the 12 figure for America. So when we talk about "minority" in Britain, we really mean "minority."

Most white English People refer to anyone who is not white as "coloured." The name reflects the shared white English perception that all immigrants were different from themselves, and therefore "coloured."

A common joke in the 1960s concerned an English factory manager who was having trouble communicating with a Nigerian worker. Perplexed at his inability to get obedience he solicited the help of another worker, an Indian Sikh, suggesting "you talk to the chap, you're all coloured, aren't you?"

Given the common response of white to lumping them together, and the discrimination that they shared, different minority groups were prone to accept the term "coloured" often using it as a rallying cry to mobilize for action. Today, it is far from clear that people from India, Pakistan and elsewhere would accept the term "black," but it is commonly used by all those active in the struggle for equality. People from Africa and the Caribbean call themselves "Black," and this has gained some acceptance by whites.

Compared to the overall numbers, the settlement of blacks reveals quite a paradoxical pattern. While the total number of minorities is small, the fact that they are heavily concentrated in certain cities, especially London, gives the impression that there are many more in the country than is really the case. To begin with, 98 percent of blacks live in England, with 1 percent each in Scotland and Wales. Around 56 percent of all minorities, and 65 percent of blacks live in one area, (the south-east, including London).

> Only 1.5 percent of England's population is black; but 50 percent of all blacks live in London.
> – Stephen Small

London on its own is unique and its population makes the figures for the south-east so large. Over half of all Afro-Caribbeans in the country live in London.

A distinctive feature of the American situation is the high concentration of blacks in major cities. It has become expected and accepted that there are, and should continue to be, viable black communities Not so in England, where the areas reputed to have black concentrations, and often called "ghettoes," invariably have more whites in them than blacks. Brixton is regarded as the Harlem of London; yet only around 30 percent of this small neighborhood is minority. Despite the fact that the minority population is heavily concentrated in London they still add up to less than 12 percent of the city's 8 million people. And the neighborhood of Toxteth in Liverpool, which experienced the most destructive rioting in 1981, has 20 percent blacks. If you want to find concentration higher than that, you will have to come down to the level of blocks. There just is no mass concentrations of blacks like those found in the large cities over here.

Now we know where they [blacks] are, how did they get there?

There have been small concentrations of blacks in England since the 1550s. But they arrived in considerable numbers in the 1950s. A nationwide survey in 1951

continued on page 16

McFeely delivers second lecture

By DENNIS MADSON
Collegian Correspondent

Last Thursday, Feb.16, at Amherst College, the second in a series of six lectures by William S. McFeely was presented. The lecture, entitled "To be free and Black in Antebellum America: Baltimore and New Bedford," gave accounts of noted black abolitionist Frederick Douglass' experiences while working in Baltimore and New Bedford shipyards.

The focus was on interracial cooperation among the workers at the shipyards and the differences in treatment of free blacks and slaves by whites.

In the lecture, McFeely pointed out that while in Baltimore as a slave Douglass, also known as Frederick Bailey, was treated poorly. He was taunted and beaten and grossly underpaid. However, as a free black in New Bedford, he also experienced racism.

For a while whites and blacks had been able to work together well but many whites began to feel that free black workers were taking food and jobs away from them

continued on page 16

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON

FOR YOUR EYES ONLY

SPECIAL UNIVERSITY PRICING!
40-50% OFF RETAIL PRICE
GREAT PERFORMANCE
GREAT PRICE

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN-

ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS INVITES YOU
TO AN OPEN HOUSE DEMONSTRATION ON CAMPUS

A Zenith Data Systems Open House Will Be Held At This Location:

Campus Center Concourse

10:00 AM to 3:00 PM

February 22, 1989

American Express VISA, MasterCard Credit Cards Accepted

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

Prices subject to change without notice.
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Same news, different dates

When I was a smooth-faced and optimistic undergraduate, the big news on campus was that Afghanistan had a puppet government in turmoil, Khomeini was trying to kill citizens of western nations, and Dukakis wanted to starve UMass. Now that I am a grizzled and surly graduate student, I open the same papers and read the same stories, except that they have this year's datelines on them. Somehow, calling it news seems inappropriate. Maybe we should just put stories like these into syndication and feature them as re-runs on late-night TV.

Rusty Denton

Actually, the saga of the UMass budget goes back much further than the Dukakis years. In the lobby of the Graduate Research Center, there's a plaque honoring John W. Lederle, president of UMass during "the dynamic decade." That was the 1960's, when admissions here more than doubled, and spiffy new residential and administrative buildings went up all over this campus. However, as I understand it, some people feel Lederle's greatest feat was to get the legislature to grant us fiscal autonomy.

Fiscal autonomy meant the state had to stop playing musical chairs with items in the UMass budget. They give us money; we decide how to spend it. Of course, that can be taken to extremes. At one point, a special bill was passed to build an arena for a new hockey rink here after years of lobbying (the current news re-run of this involves a football stadium), but administrators spent the money repairing older buildings instead. On the other hand, maybe we wouldn't have condemned buildings on campus if we got the support we needed.

Which brings us to the present. UMass/Amherst still has buildings on campus with condemned areas. And next year our admissions will be lower by thousands of students because we can't afford to educate them. Our modest libraries have had to cancel journal subscriptions, to stop ordering new books, and to operate on a skeletal schedule with shoe-string staffing.

Some departments can't hire faculty to replace those members who are retiring. Others can't offer potential profs salaries high enough to compensate them for the high cost of buying a home around here; it makes it tough to get the brightest and the best. Graduate teaching assistants are given tuition waivers, and then they're required to take a full load of credits whether they need them or not, which means they get billed several hundred dollars in fees to support the university every semester.

And athletics (the one sure way to bolster school pride, increase alumni donations and get invaluable advertising all over the country) has never been sufficiently funded. We've had national championship teams that couldn't even get varsity status.

Other states are proud of their public universities. Other states can remember their annual commitment to public higher education when they have a university that's been around for 125 years. They strive for excellence. Virginia has been luring Nobel laureates to teach at its schools. Texas regularly steals faculty from Harvard. California has so many top departments in the sciences that I've lost count. Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Georgia, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, New York; the list goes on.

But here in Massachusetts we have a legislature with very few members who graduated from UMass, and a governor who thinks state taxpayers should be content with paying $15,000 per year to send their kids to private colleges.

I don't know. Somehow I suspect that in another 10 or 20 years, when I am a jowly and unapproachable professor, I'll open the papers and read that the Soviets have annexed Afghanistan again, the son of Khomeini has dropped The Bomb on Kansas, and Dukakis has emerged from retirement to terrorize UMass.

Rusty Denton is a Collegian columnist

A psychotic reaction

Okay, so maybe Salman Rushdie won't receive the Pulitzer Prize for his latest novel "The Satanic Verses", but it's certainly popular these days. The Ayatollah is even ranting about it. People are screaming about it in the streets of Tehran. Wow, this must be some book, huh?!

Meredith O'Brien

It's been rumored that this esteemed novelist will tour the United States, even grace this university with his presence. But somehow, I don't think that will happen. Salman Rushdie has a price on his head (and I'm not talking about some kind of Minnie Pearl price tag, either!) He has the dubious pleasure of being the target of any money-hungry bounty hunter (yes, just like in Star Wars) who wants to have his name go down in Iranian history.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini (the wonderfully humane leader of Iran) has called for Rushdie's death for writing his novel. To be more specific, the head of the 15th Khordad Relief Agency said, "If the executioner is a foreigner, he will receive a million dollars." But if you happen to be an Iranian citizen, you can receive 5.2 million dollars for killing this evil novelist!!

Tehran radio called Rushdie's book "a shameless onslaught on the sacred character of Islam's prophet." Thousands of Iranians agree with the Ayatollah, Rushdie and all of the people involved in the publishing of his novel, should die. And why not? He did portray Moslem wives as prostitutes, called Mohammed fallible and implied that Islam is not a true religion.

What we seem to forget is that there is no separation of church and state in Iran. The church IS the state and insulting the Islamic religion is a nasty case of sedition.

But something like that would not happen here, in America! We have the freedom of speech, as stated in the First Ammendment of our Constitution. We can express ourselves freely, right? I think some of us have a selective memory.

Though we have not officially placed bounties on people's heads nor offered rewards for the death of evil novelists, we have not been completely innocent and tolerant of other citizen's First Ammendment rights.

Remember the tremendous controversy over the film "The Last Temptation"? In a country where there is a separation of church and state, thousands of Americans wanted this movie banned, for religious reasons. Remember the people who wanted to silence Louis Farrakhan? Although many people may not agree with his viewpoints or means of expression, he too is given the freedom of speech by the First Ammendment.

Even our own government has tried to silence its own citizens despite their Constitutional rights. During the McCarthy Era, if you admitted that you believed in Communism, Marxism, or socialism you were sought out by the government, lost your job, and had your life destroyed.

During the Reagan administration (and I sure many other administrations before that), the press was silenced by the government. Reporters who asked the "wrong" questions, pushed too hard on a touchy issue or uncovered some unsightly aspect of executive policies often found themselves pulled off of their beat and sent on some obscure assignment — away from the DC action. (Sound suspiciously like being sent to Siberia?)

Granted, those reporters weren't sentenced to death or exported. The "communists" weren't sent to concentration camps. The film makers weren't executed. Louis Farrakhan still makes his speeches. BUT, their First Ammendment rights were jeopardized.

Before we piously look down our noses at Iran for its torrid suppression of Salman Rushdie, sentencing him to death IS a bit harsh for an act of "sedition", we have to realize that our record for freedom of expression is somewhat tarnished. I'm not taking our freedom for granted, believe me! (How much do you think the Ayatollah would give for my death, after all — I'm condemning him. Maybe $19.99?)

Meredith O'Brien is a Collegian columnist

Some students earn disrespect

In response to Nancy Cohen's column concerning the level of education at UMass. I agree with you that freshman are subject to being treated like high-schoolers. However, have you taken a look at the freshman? Perhaps you will find out why. I am a senior and in order to fill a D core, I am taking a freshman level sociology course. There is never a silent moment in the classroom; always a murmer of chitter-chatter. "... her boyfriend did this and she did that..." and "Oh my God! you'll never believe..." It would seem that many of your fellow freshman are not so eager to learn.

There is little respect for both the Professor and the more serious students in the classroom. It is no wonder that many professors treat freshman like high-schoolers; they are. When freshman mature and begin to show more respect for their professors, their professors will show more respect for them. That's what happens when you become an upperclassman — you have proven that you are here to learn, and you earn due respect.

David H. Sprogis
Amherst

Facts overlooked in SGA article

Although the Collegian is "always near perfect" on its coverage of the Senate meetings, I would like to clarify a few points. The Student Senate passed far more then two motions last Wednesday, the actual number was seven. Aside from the motions mentioned in yesterday's article the Senate finalized arrangements for the Spring elections, began planning for debates between the various candidates and also moved the Commuter balloting location from the Hatch to the Cape Cod Lounge.

Furthermore, the Academic Affairs Committee will begin to investigate current and attempt to install additional Student Advisory Councils in the different academic departments. Three other motions were tabled to committees for recommendations thus ending the meeting with the Senate having cleared its agenda.

Finally, I would like to point out that Sen. Rothman never managed to read from the Bible and also that he only made it through the first two names in the phone directory. I congratulate the Senate for coming together for a successful meeting but remind them that there is still a significant amount of work to be done.

Robert D. Fadel
Speaker of the Senate

The Collegian accepts letters and columns from the UMass community and area. All submissions must be typed, double spaced and become property of the Collegian.

Hand written letters will not be printed.

Restaurant Managers
You are cordially invited to a
CHI-CHI'S MEXICAN RESTAURANTS
OPEN HOUSE
Tuesday, February 21,
from 10am-8pm
at Chi-Chi's®,
955 Riverdale St.,
W. Springfield, MA
We'd like you to come in and talk to our top management about exciting opportunities that are currently available for MANAGERS AND ASSISTANT MANAGERS in MASSACHUSETTS, CONNECTICUT and NEW JERSEY. Our careers are second to none, and offer all of the great incentives you'd expect from a company with our reputation for quality, innovation and employee recognition.
Come in and learn about the exciting plans we have for our future growth and yours. Please bring a resume with you.
If you're unable to attend our open house, please send a resume in confidence to: Anne Fleshman, CHI-CHI'S, Dept. SR-1008 Old Post Rd., Copley, PA 18037
EOE m-f

ARTHUR TREACHERS SEAFOOD
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
10%
Student Discount
With College ID
Phone In Order
585-0209
During this Lent Season
KEEP THE FAITH
with
ARTHUR TREACHER'S!

AMHERST CINEMA
BIRD
Directed by Clint Eastwood
Held over 2nd week
1 showing every evening at 7:30
AMITY ST. 253-5426

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-RENT

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT
Print Shop
228 Triangle St., Amherst

★WANTED
Managers for UMASS Football Team
—male or female
all interested come to Football Office
in Boyden Building
See Coach Jones

TIME OUT

WE HAVE BUSCH
PITCHERS $3.60
Best price in town!
Lunches served daily
You deserve some Time Out
37 N. Pleasant St • Mass ID required

AXP RUSH

EVENTS:
February 14: Southwest (Pierpont Basement) 7-9 p.m.
February 15: Campus Center (Room 101) 7-9 p.m.
February 16: Orchard Hill (Field Basement) 7-9 p.m.
February 21: Northeast (Leach Basement) 7-9 p.m.
February 23: Central (Van Meter Basement) 7-9 p.m.
For more information: 253-9494 (Brian)

-Are you an Art Major who wants to design posters?
-Are you an English, Communications, or Journalism Major who wants to do press or publicity?
-Are you interested in bringing diverse speakers to this campus?

distinguished visitors program

WE WANT YOU!!
DVP
Distinguished Visitors Program
New members meeting
February 21st in C.C. 811B at 6:30 PM
refreshments will be served

NO FAT. NO CHOLESTEROL.
Nothing But Delicious.

Try some Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
the taste will leave you amazed!
Amherst Boltwood Walk
Northampton Main Street

"J.A.P.* - Baiting: HARMLESS FUN OR ETHNIC SLUR?"
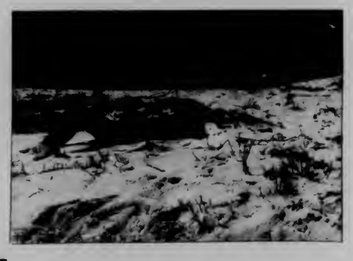
SLAP A J.A.P.*
*"JEWISH AMERICAN PRINCESS"
PROF. GARY SPENCER
Professor of Sociology at Syracuse University
TUES. FEB. 21 7:30 p.m. CAMPUS CENTER 804-808
Sponsored by THE UMASS REFORM JEWISH CHAVURAH, HILLEL, OFFICE OF THIRD WORLD AFFAIRS, OFFICE OF HUMAN RELATIONS, EVERYWOMAN'S CENTER, STPEC, WOMEN'S STUDIES PROGRAM

We're New!
Is It For You?
ΣAM
Check Us Out!
Rush Sigma Alpha Mu
Tuesday "Sammy Feud"—C.C. 101 8:00 pm
Wednesday "Sammy Cinema"—C.C. 162 8:00 pm

charlie's
1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week • Call for Take Out
Kitchen Open 'till midnight
New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables
Tonight 10¢ Buffalo Wings
9:00 PM - 12:00 AM
Cuervo Tequilla Sunrise $1.50 Drink of the Week
Moosehead $1.75 Beer of the Month
FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Mon. Night 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks 9-12
Wed. 99¢ Nacho & Cheese Platters 9-12
Sunday 4 Burger Platters for $5.00 6-10

UMASS SKI CLUB
Spring Break Information Session
Find out about all of our trips!!
Open To All!!
LAGNAF
SPRING BREAK 1989



TODAY
Tuesday February 21st • Room 163 Campus Center
6:00 - 8:00 p.m.
GO WITH SOMEONE YOU TRUST

ARTS & LIVING

Despite budget cuts, University sticks by Gen Ed

By MICHELLE BILODEAU
Collegian Correspondent

Beginning next fall, all undergraduates at the University of Massachusetts will be required to fulfill the General Education Requirements, as opposed to the traditional Core/Distribution Requirements. According to Associate Provost Norman Aitken, the Gen Eds (which now must be satisfied by the Classes of 1990 and later) will make for a student body of well rounded individuals.

"The old Core requriements were like a buffet table. One may take 3 helpings of grapes, beef or chicken without even trying the other foods," Aitken said.

Under the Core requirements, students were required to take 3 classes from each group of Natural Sciences/Math, Arts and Sciences and Social and Behavioral Sciences. "With that policy, a student could take all science, art and psychology classes without ever being exposed to any kind of math, literature or history classes," he said.

"This (the Gen Eds) was not a campus move, but rather a nation-wide movement," Aitken said. The Massachusetts Board of Regents is looking at the quality of state education and will probably move to a state-wide General Education system.

"Under the new requirements, there are Analytical Reasoning, Laboratory, Diversity and Interdisciplinary components," Aitken said. "However, due to the state budget cuts, the laboratory component has not been implemented," he continued.

"The two Diversity requirements are very important. The faculty felt with the incidents of racism on campus and misunderstandings between culturally different groups that it was important for students to be exposed to cultures in society other than their own," Aitken said.

However, there are not enough courses under the Diversity requirement. "The first year of the program, a huge number of classes were added. Now, we're having a hard time because of the financial problems, but we're working on it," Aitken said.

"The Interdisciplinary component is sort of a substitute for requirements," he said.

An "I" course can be used as a "wild card" in place of 1 natural science, history or behavioral science course. Again, there is a shortage of classes, a problem which is currently being worked on.

The two goals of the original plan which have yet to be fully reached are the laboratory component and a heightened writing program throughout all Gen Ed courses.

"Food Science and Nutrition 130 is being 're-vamped' to incorporate writing and abolish the multiple choice testing," Aitken said.

Lab and writing components have yet to be implemented simply because of the lack of time and resources."There isn't enough funding for teachers or labs, there isn't enough Teaching Assistant support to impliment the writing, and it takes time for the faculty to get acquainted with the new curriculum," he said.

Coyne tops hard rockin' superstars with axe appeal

By JASON TALERMAN
Collegian Staff

We're basically a visual race. We all listen but it's just a reserve, a subsidiary to what we see. So as not to confuse my point with any of the pretentious Susan Sontag crap that's been solidly rammed down my throat for the last five years, I am not talking of the freudian perception of visual imagery. I am talking about good, hardy lust at first sight. Actually, it's not just me talking. After all, I am the one who deals with the music, and only music.

Today, I have a partner in crime, a genuine rock-jesus-sex-queen from Northampton itself, the county seat for everything that rocks. She remains nameless though, for every single freak long hair on campus and beyond would get that crimp in the loins at the mere mention...

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

ARTIE HURWITZ - joining the ranks of Dinosaur Jr. on upcoming releases.

Well, what she (we will call her Bone Woman) has for us today is the top three hot guys in rock. We're talking visuals here, though I'm going to try to legitimaiize some of the choices, just like the Grammys.

Top gun is Wayne Coyne, original rock stylist of Oklahoma's Flaming Lips. To me, and my people, Mookie Blaylock runs a distant second to Coyne as the Sooner state's favorite son. Leading the nation in steals is nothing compared to a Lips album. Bone Woman believes deeply in Wayne Coyne, and his many charms. I believe in his ability to rock.

BONES

The Lips are due for some new vinyl and they'll be iin Boston mid March with Buffalo Tom. The word is that they are going to squeeze in a U-joint show either the day before or after. Fine with me because the last time the Flaming Lips were here Northampton just couldn't supply enough electricity for Wayne to feed into the system, a beautiful, wonderous system. Bone Woman and I are in agreement, numero uno.

Runner up has got to be the indomitable Mark Arm of Seattle's Mudhoney. All of those Sub Pop boys might be facing a little bit of overexposure, but I still listen to a lot of their records. There's no doubt that Mark Arm has got every revivalist in the Northwest screamin loud and shakin that long blond hair. I don't care what they shake because that Sub Pop 200 boxed set has got to be the best release of the year. Bone Woman says her roomate Robin has the same "luscious" hair as Mr. Arm which indicates to me more of a gender orientation problem than anything else but...

Bone Woman's number three is more of a bonus pick than anything else. She wanted another long hair but I coerced her into choosing one Artie Hurwitz. You may not know Artie and he may be more of a scholar of Arabic than a rock front man but he is a part of the inevitably mentioned Dinosaur Jr.. Artie recently took time out of his travels in North Africa to sing Neil Young's "Lotta Love" and the Byrd's "Feel a whole lot better"for D-saur cuts on upcoming compilations. Artie is a genius who should be handled, handled often, though carefully.

The rest seem to be also rans. Besides, Bone Woman was getting hot just talking about it so I had other problems to deal with. Capiche?

Council Travel
DON'T WAIT
BOOK NOW FOR SPRING BREAK!
SPRINGBREAK From BOSTO
4 NIGHTS NASSAU $379pp
7 NIGHTS CANCUN $479pp
7 NIGHTS PUERTO la CRUZ $599pp
VENEZUELA, the NEW EXOTIC DESTINATION!
Incl all hotel/room taxes & service charges
Departure taxes not included
BOOK NOW!
413-256-1261
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

Fancy Fingers
For Appointment call 549-4979
NAIL & SKIN CARE SALON
The ultimate in nail fashion and skin beauty
February Special
Complimentary Eyelash Tint with Every Facial
Manicures • Waxing
And Much More!
228 Triangle St., Amherst

$ave $ave $ave $ave
Europe This Summer?
Buy your tickets before March 1

Boston To:	From
London	$489
Prestwick	$579
Frankfurt	$569
Amsterdam	$624
Copenhagen	$659

* (Based on roundtrip, plus $23 taxes, restrictions apply.)
586-8953
Your Partners in Travel
Maplewood Shops, Northampton, MA
$ave $ave $ave $ave

University Health Services is offering a 10-session group:
"Exploring Lesbian, Gay, and Bi-sexual Identities."
Tuesday evenings,
7:30 - 9:00,
beginning early March.
Pre-registration and pre-group interview required.
For information, or an appointment, call 545-2337.

Shhh...
it's a secret.
ENJOY UNCROWDED SKIING AND GREAT SAVINGS
Present this coupon and take $6.00 off the price of an all day adult mid-week ticket at Maple Valley Ski Area. Valid any Tues.-Fri. except 2/18 – 2/26/89. Not good with any other offer. 1 coupon per person required.
"Best Kept Secret in Vermont"
MAPLE VALLEY SKI AREA
802-254-6083
P.O. BOX 5 • WEST DUMMERSTON, VT • 05357
0651

Some words on the blues from A.C. Reed

By JOE McGUIGAN
Collegian Correspondent

Saturday night, Feb. 18, blues saxophonist/ singer/ songwriter A.C. Reed played Sheehan's Cafe in Northampton. Between sets, the Collegian caught up with Reed for a few words:

Collegian: Where and when were you born?

A.C. Reed: I was born in Wardell, Missouri in 1926.

Collegian: Who were your earlier influences at that time?

Reed: Im my day it was big band music you know. Erskine Hawkins was a popular band.

Collegian: Erskine Hawkins?

Reed: Yeah, and he had this horn man and his name was Paul Baskin, and he was a popular horn man in big band in them days man, and I was really influenced by him. I was something like 8 or 9 years old and I would listen to that kind of music.

Collegian: What do you think of jazz music, like jazz men like Coleman Hawkins and Lester Young?

Reed: Well I grew up with jazz musicians you know, like Gene Allman and sonny Steele. I grew up with them, the was my friends. But Coleman Hawkins and Lester Young I would say they are something like the godfathers of jazz men. All horn men respected them, because they was something like the originals of the tenor saxophones.

Collegian: When did blues music appeal to to you as a profession? How old were you, at what point did you hit the road?

Reed: I was pretty young . . . but I went out and played blues for white people in the 50's and that's when I was surprised that the really liked this kind of music. What I'm playing now I played for 'em in the 50's.

Collegian: Was it electrified?

Reed: When we first started out they didn't even have the electric bass. I think they created the electric bass when I was playing with those guys cause the one who was playing the bass, he was playing the piano and we bought him an electric bass. He started playing that in about 6 months.

Collegian: Instead of the piano, so the piano was playing the bass line instead of the bass.

Reed: Right.

Collegian: How is it playing for Alligator Records? Do you think they're building the blues up?

Reed: The Alligator label is about the best blues label going. He do more for blues (Alligator founder Bruce Iglauer) . . . I even knew him when he was working for a record company, he didn't even have his own. He respects me and I respect him cause he's a good businessman.

Collegian: What obstacles did you have to overcome to get to the point where you are now? What would you say was the biggest obstacle in your life to make it, to finally make it?

Reed: Ah (laughs). That's kind of hard. But it's hard working. You got to go through a lot of stuff. Like when I started out, most of the guitar players they was more advanced than me, on their own, you know, moving fast. What I see I have to do is write good tunes and put out good albums. That's the whole point of everything, and I do that.

Photo by Tom O'Neal courtesy of the Ohio Ballet

THAT'S DANCING! - Anna Shaheen and Curtis Dick of the Ohio Ballet company perform "Games," choreographed by the company's artistic director, Heinz Poll. The Ohio Ballet will be appearing this coming Monday, Feb. 27 at the UMass Fine Arts Center.

HEY SENIORS:
Get Shot!
Senior Portrait Sittings will be held from Feb. 27 - Mar. 17, 9-5 pm in Rms 177/178 of the Campus Center. Call 5-2874 for info & appointments.
ORDER your 1989 INDEX NOW!
It's a $25 investment in memories that last a lifetime!
Send coupon to address below.
Make your checks payable to: INDEX Yearbook
NAME _____
PERMANENT ADDRESS _____
LOCAL PHONE NO. _____
INDEX 103 Campus Center/UMass, Amherst 545-0848

Super Sport Crewneck by Champion
only $19.95

Photo by Buck Stewart
OPEN M-F 9-5 Sat 10-3
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

We survived Spring Break'88.
"Hurricane Gilbert" was just another Party Animal.

CANCUN

READY FOR YOU IN '89!

CANCUN--Proud Host of the 1989 Ms. UNIVERSE PAGEANT!
"Ours are still the best beaches in the world, and the most beautiful women in the world are still on our beaches!"

ONE FULL WEEK ON THE BEACH!
Departrures from BOSTON

KAH CHE	$399
PLAYA LINDA	$449
HOTEL OASIS	$509

Special Includes - R.T. Air, 7 Nites on Beach, Discount Fun Book, Many Extras! Other Hotels Available. Call Today!

Jennifer or Janice
(413) 549-8239

STUDENT TRAVEL CONNECTION, INC.
Proud Members of: Better Business Bureau (TX), American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA), International Airline Travel Agent Network (IATAN)
(800) 637-8926 or (800) 225-3058

Collegian photo by Mark A. Gisi

CLAY PEOPLE - Artist Ellen Hirschberg (left), pictured here with gallery director, Jacqueline Maidana (center) and manager, Elisa Silberman (right) displays her Works in Clay and Paint at the Wheeler Gallery until Friday, Feb. 24.

Join The Winning Tradition . . .
BECOME A MEMBER OF A FRATERNITY!

Alpha Epsilon Pi	545-0046	Phi Mu Delta	256-8028
Alpha Chi Rho	253-9150	Phi Sigma Kappa	549-7369
Delta Chi	549-6505	Pi Kappa Alpha	545-2150
Delta Upsilon	549-3831	Sigma Alpha Mu	549-4235
Kappa Alpha Psi	546-7525	Sigma Phi Epsilon	549-6440
Lambda Chi Alpha	253-9032	Theta Chi	253-9015
		Zeta Psi	256-6845

RUSH DATES
FEBRUARY 21, 22, 23

Zora is fitting tribute to author Hurston

By ALEXANDRA RAYNOLDS
Collegian Correspondent

First World Images presented a first-rate performance of Zora Friday and Saturday, Feb. 17-18 at Hampden Theatre. Presented in recognition of Black History Month, Zora commemorates the literary career of Zora Neale Hurston, a poet, novelist, storyteller and short-story writer whose career blossomed during the Harlem Renaissance of the 1920s.

The show was first performed in the Valley two years ago, to sold-out audiences. Although neither Friday or Saturday night's shows fared as well, the quality of the production was certainly not to blame.

The acting team, which includes newcomer Chase Burns, gave very professional performances, rich with emotion and confidence. Mr. Burns was wonderful as Joe Banks, the bashful young husband of Missy May; he had the walk of a proud, self-assured man, and the to-die-for smile of a seven-year-old. When Missy May, beautifully portrayed by Suyen Lyn, tells him how handsome he is, he replies, "Shoot, you're only saying that because you love me."

Celia O. Hilson as Isis Watts was another highlight of the show. As a mischievous 11 year-old who charms the neighbors but drives her grand-mother to "whuppin' her", Hilson captivated the audience in no time with her playful performance. She was very comfortable in character, and it was obvious that she had as much fun acting as the audience did watching her.

A three-part narrative gave the audience some insight into Zora Neale Hurston's feelings about being black and a woman. Of slavery, Zora -1 declares with outstretched arms, "The operation was a success and the patient is doing fine." Zora -2 dances on the floor of a nightclub where a white man drums his fingers on the table in time with the music. "He has only heard what I have felt," she says. Zora -3 is the "eternal feminine." "Sometimes," she says, "I am no color."

The three actresses painted a picture of a proud, dignified, intelligent woman, who made no excuses nor felt any shame for her sex or the color of her skin.

The only major flaws with the two shows were technical ones. A problem with the slide-projector on Friday night produced nothing but a blank screen and the hum of the machine. The problem was fixed by Saturday night, however, and the slide-show with narration and music went off without a hitch. The slides presented a vivid portrait of black America sixty years ago, and together with the narration and sound, could have been very effective. The audio portion of the show, however, varied in quality from barely audible to muffled, depending on your seats.

Regardless, Zora was a wonderful performance event which certainly celebrates Black History month and does Zora Neale Hurston proud. I enjoyed the show so much, I returned Saturday night at my own expense.

Zora will be performed at the Hampden Theatre in Southwest again, Feb. 24-26 at 8 p.m. It will also be showing at the Emily Dickenson Theater at Hampshire College, Feb. 19 at 3 and 8 p.m., and at the Network in Springfield, March 3-4 at 9 p.m. and March 5 at 3 p.m.

Wheeler exhibit is a burst of colors

By KEM MALLON
Collegian Correspondent

Ellen Hirschberg Exhibit
Wheeler Gallery

The Wheeler gallery is presently featuring an exhibit of sculpture and oil paintings by Ellen Hirschberg. Running through this Friday, the exhibit is a perfect cure for the depressing February blues.

Most exciting are Hirschberg's ceramic sculptures, including three cars. Hot and Sweet is a pair of fantastic vehicles. A bright red convertible with a nude, pink-haired driver is being chased by a white car with large angel wings that flutter in the wind.

In another car, Love is Blind, a green armed man clutches the red haired driver in a passionate kiss as she drives blindly down the road.

Also included in the collection of ceramic sculptures are four whimsical reprsentations of Greek deities. Eros is a three and a half foot tall red cupid with bright orange hair and wings. An orange Aphrodite performs a handstand on a big red heart, and a blue Zephyr holds out a bouquet of flowers.

Hirschberg's paintings are primitively colorful. While On top of the Morning is reminiscent of the classic "Cornflakes" rooster, the other works are somewhat overwhelmed by the more expressionistic ceramics.

Ellen Hirschberg is a BFA thesis candidate at the University of Massachusetts. She has also studied at the Studio Art Center International in Florence Italy.

photo courtesy of Chrysalis Records

DOUBLEVISION - Scottish twins Craig and Charlie Reid, otherwise known as the PROCLAIMERS, drop into the U-Joint, Pearl St. this coming Monday, Feb. 27. The brothers, currently riding high on the critical and commercial success of their second LP, Sunshine On Leith play a unique brand of rousing country and folk with a political edge. Go hear 'em roll those "Rs".

$50.00 deposit NOW
all FINAL PAYMENTS DUE
MARCH 3
DAYTONA BEACH
$139

At this low, affordable price: you arrange your own transportation.

CMI TOUR INCLUDES:

- 6 glorious days/seven endless nights at the oceanfront hotel, distinctively Daytona Beach! (And, face it, as a beauty, you've been longing to be there.)
- Unlimited FREE 500 deck parties every day.
- Admission pre-arranged-accounts! save you money. (Ain't it great.)
- Five motivational meetings (sure) smooth trip and a good time.
- Optional Ski Extravaganza to Sunday River! World Famous Spring Break Party Nights in...
- All taxes and tips.

TRANSPORTATION OPTION INCLUDES:

- Deluxe transportation on beautiful, modern highway coaches.

ADD $80

SPEND A WEEK — NOT A FORTUNE

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION AND SIGN UP

CALL DANA 549-6064

MTV will be there!

Sponsored by Campus Marketing

plus!
Tanning
Discount
at Le Bon
Soleil

FEELING GREAT LOOKING GOOD

Students, we've taken away all the excuses— only $99 for the entire semester

Aerobics Asylum

Denise Johnson

CALL NOW 586-7503 HAMP PLAZA NORTHAMPTON

■ Smith College conference

continued from page 7

have less authority to speak to you now. So the first aspect of your ideology must be excellence but not to the exclusion of social responsibility."

"What black people do, especially African-Americans, borrowing from Europe, they compartmentalize things. They think that if you're going to be a good student you can't be a good activist. You can be both" said the professor.

Dr. Karenga stressed most the need for African peoples and students to identify with themselves and their own values rather than attempt to emulate European ones, saying, "One of the worst things in the world,as Fanon pointed out, is to become an obscene caricature of Europe. Nobody can respect you; neither European, nor African, nor Asian nor Latin American. Nobody in the world can respect an obscene caricature."

Sonia Sanchez, in her lecture which followed Dr. Karenga's, continued with variations on the same theme. Sanchez, professor at Temple University, is the author of thirteen books including "Homecoming","We A Bad People","I've Been A Woman","Homegirls And Hand-Grenades", is a contributing editor to the Black Scholar, a recipient of the National Endowment For The Arts, recipient of the Outstanding Arts Award from the Pennsylvania Coalition of 100 Black Women, recipient of the Community Service Award from the National Caucus of Black Legislatures, and 1985 Book Award for "Homegirls And Hand-Grenades." She has lectured at over 500 colleges and universities nationwide and read her poetry in such places as Australia, Cuba, England, Nicaragua, The Peoples Republique of China and Norway.

Professor Sanchez began her lecture with an anecdote a recent experience.

She said "Someone said to me last night' rascism is surfacing all over the campuses,resurfacing-you know'.And I said, sister, tell me about it; it never disappeared.It's always been here and will be here-make no mistake about it."

"You got to know who you are in order to survive in these places. I'm not saying you won't graduate. I'm not saying you won't be 'bad', come out premed and prelaw people. I'm saying that that you will not get what you truly should get in a place like Smith and other places when you come in not knowing who you are.You've got to understand truly where you came from to really understand what the Smiths and Amherst's are about in order to compete in the world. That is to say simply that you can come out,go and get your jobs, go to med school and become doctors,dentists and Indian chiefs ;but you don't really have a sense of where you've come from and you won't understand if you're a doctor you've got to go out into the community and start those clinics for people who can not ,will not get the treatment that you've gotten."

Ms. Sanchez also touched upon the theme of self-appreciation and reiterated its importance for the black woman and man in a white society which teaches blacks to despise themselves.

■ Britain

continued from page 7

revealed that 50 percent of those interviewed had never seen a "coloured" person. London, Liverpool and Bristol -all major slave ports during the heyday of the British Empire - have had minuscule but distinct black communities since the 1500s. They reached an estimated peak of 15,000 in the 18th century and since that time are largely believed to have intermarried with the indigenous white population.

Small numbers of blacks went to England as members of the armed forces, during and after the two world wars. Then in the 1950s blacks were encouraged to go to England in response to labor shortages. Post-war Britain called on natives of its colonies to come to the "mother country" to carry out work in the National Health Service, British Rail and the London Underground [subway].

At that time they had full and equal citizenship rights with all members of the United Kingdom and the Colonies, including freedom to enter, work and vote in England. The vast majority of these jobs were unskilled and semi-skilled. The black population grew as the spouses and dependents came to join them in the 1960s and 1970s.

As an immigrant group, blacks have faced a number of distinct problems not faced by blacks in America A major one is the perception on the part of white English people that they are somehow "not English" even if born in England. Englishness and blackness are seen as incompatible, though the English are sometimes ambivalent. American essayist Paul Thurow captured the contradictions and hypocrisy in English terminology about blacks: Policemen were "colored," convicted criminals were "West Indian," and purse-snatchers were "nig-nogs." But when a black runner came first in a race against foreigners, he was "English." If came in second, he was "British." If he lost he was "colored." If he cheated, he was "West Indian."

But this is not unique to the UK. The same thing happened recently in Canada to Ben Johnson, the Canadian, I mean West Indian, I mean black, I mean, phew! runner!

Unfortunately, the problems facing blacks as immigrants go much further than name calling. While over 90 percent of blacks in America were born here; only around 40 percent of blacks born in England were born there. The immigration legislation there reveals the venality and dishonesty of the English at its worst. Before we look at the intricacies of the immigration legislation, next week we'll look first at the resilience of Britain's historical black presence.

The author is a member of the sociology department. He teaches courses on comparative class and racial inequality.

THE CLASS OF '52 COULDN'T SEE INTO THE FUTURE

Folks here are still talking about "The 1952 Incident." For some reason still unknown, a certain graduating class at a certain university missed what was certainly the opportunity of a lifetime.

The chance to meet with a recruiter from the National Security Agency.

Maybe they were busy that day. Maybe something else caught their eye. But the fact remains, a meeting with NSA could have meant a future full of challenging, exciting projects.

Now you've got the same chance. Our recruiter will be visiting campus soon in search of talented mathematicians, computer scientists, electrical engineers and linguists. We're looking for people who want to work on important hands-on assignments, right from the start.

NSA is the agency responsible for producing foreign intelligence information, safeguarding our government's communications and securing computer systems for the Department of Defense.

And we're equally committed to helping you make your future strong. So do yourself a favor and meet with us. You don't need 3-D glasses to see that it's a great opportunity.

NSA will be on campus March 13, interviewing seniors majoring in Engineering, Computer Science, Math and Language.

National Security Agency

Attn: M322 (AAM), Ft. Meade, Maryland 20755-6000

An equal opportunity employer U.S. citizenship required for applicant and immediate family members

■ McFeely lecture

continued from page 7

and refused to work if blacks were allowed skilled jobs and not relegated to the tedious, unskilled, manual labor. Douglass was finding that though Emancipation made black people free, it did by no means grant them equality in the eyes of whites.

Douglass distinguished himself later in life as an anti-slavery lecturer, became City Marshall for Washington D.C. and a minister to Haiti. He also published the abolitionist papers "The North Star," and "Frederick Douglass' Paper."

The lecturer, William S McFeely, is a professor of American History at the University of Georgia and holds numerous degrees and awards, among them the Pulitzer Prize. His next lecture will be on the second floor of he Octagon at Amherst College, Thursday, March 2 at 4pm.

Area Events

Collegian Staff Reports

The following is a partial list of events occurring in the Five College Area this week.

Tuesday Feb. 21

"Three Generations..." 7.30 at the Betty Shabazz Cultural Center. Mt. Holyoke College.

Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers. 8pm at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. Umass. $15; $13 students

Wednesday Feb. 22

W.E.B. DuBois: A: personal memoir. Given by John Hope Franklin. 4pm at Memorial Hall. Umass

Sammy Price Plays and Tells It Like It Is. Umass. Times and locations TBA.

Carl Bloice [noted journalist] : "New Thinking for socialism and the world."

Thursday Feb. 23

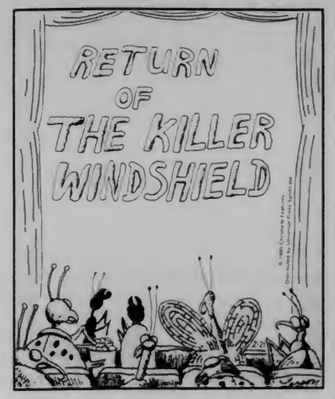
John Quincy Adams: A yankee insider in an age of slave holding presidents. 8pm at Historic Deerfeild White Church.

Saturday Feb. 25

A World Apart: movie on Apartheid as seen through the eyes of a white teenage daughter of a jailed anti-government activist. 7 and 9pm at Gramble Aud. Mt. Holyoke College. $3

THE BLACK AFFAIRS DESK NEEDS WRITERS. PERSONS INTERESTED IN WRITING FOR BLACK AFFAIRS SHOULD CONTACT JOSEPH L HILL Jr. OR THOMAS MAMBANDE AT 545-3500.

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



BLOOM COUNTY
By BERKE BREATHED

IN A THOUSAND HERE
SIR, WE'VE BEEN WONDERING WHY NONE OF US HAVE ANY CLOTHES ON LATELY
SWEEPS WEEK NEWSPAPERS NATIONWIDE ARE MONITORING THE READERSHIP RHINOS OF THEIR COMICS ALL THIS WEEK
SO THIS IS JUST MORE EVIDENCE THAT THE CORPORATE PAPER SHUFFLERS IN CONTROL OF AMERICA'S GREAT CREATIVE MEDIUMS ARE A MUMBLING BUNCH OF HOMEBEERS WHAT? THAT?
NOTHING...
WATTERSON

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

THIS JUST IN, CAMPERS! THE FIRST "HIT PARADE OF SHAME" FROM THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION. I KNOW, I KNOW, IT SEEMS A TAD EARLY. BUT WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO?
LET'S GET TO IT! SENATOR JOHN TOWER, ALLEGATIONS OF DRINKING AND WENCHING; REP JACK KEMP, FINANCIAL IMPROPRIETIES; C. BOYDEN GRAY, ETHICS CHIEF. SAME.
ETHICS CHIEF?
THAT CAN'T BE RIGHT
SEE WHAT HAPPENS WHEN WE GO OFF THE JOB FOR A WEEK?

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

DAD SAYS THE ANTICIPATION OF HAVING SOMETHING IS OFTEN MORE FUN THAN ACTUALLY HAVING IT.
I THINK HE'S CRAZY. I HATE WAITING FOR THINGS. I LIKE TO HAVE EVERYTHING IMMEDIATELY.
I CAN'T THINK OF ANYTHING I'D RATHER ANTICIPATE THAN HAVE RIGHT AWAY. CAN YOU?
DEATH COMES TO MIND.
I DON'T KNOW WHY I BOTHER TRYING TO HAVE A LITTLE DISCUSSION WITH YOU WHEN YOU'RE ALWAYS SO MORBID.

THE BEACON HILL GANG
By AL ARPAD

A MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR: "RAISING THE DRINKING AGE HAS CUT WAY DOWN ON DRUNK DRIVING..
..SO, I AM NOW INTRODUCING LEGISLATION THAT WILL MAKE POSSESSION OF ALCOHOL BY BLACKS, ASIANS, HISPANICS, ITALIANS & SHORT PEOPLE A CRIME.
OUR INSURANCE COMPANIES... SHORT PEOPLE!?!
WHAT?
YOU CAN'T MAKE LAWS ABOUT SHORT PEOPLE! THAT'S DISCRIMINATION!
"RATSO" BULGER, LEGISLATOR & REAL ESTATE KINGPIN.
ARPAD

YEASTHEAD
By JASON TALERMAN

ETC.

"They towed it with me in it. I knew the program was down."

— UMass basketball coach John Calipari, on having his car towed on his fifth day at work.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS

1 Theater offering
6 Dispute
10 Heavenly instrument
14 "Bolero" composer
15 Area or Moise
16 Golden calf, e.g.
17 Coral island
18 Touching
19 Forum garb
20 Globetrotter's expertise
22 Playing card
23 Part of a pint
24 Subtexts
26 Spoiled the beans
30 Novelist Maurois
32 Spirit
33 Station in Paris
35 Setter or wolfhound
39 Enjoyed
41 Fencing thrust
43 Wedge
44 — Rio
46 King of comedy
47 Destiny
49 Presbyter's council
51 Unusual person: with 58 Down
56 Slush
57 Go inwardly
63 Nay-sayer
64 Finished
65 Grand night (of song)
66 Down Under bird
67 South American monkey
68 Showcase (by)
69 Musical sign
70 Bring
71 Hasps

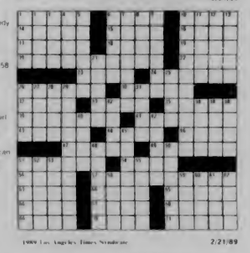
DOWN

1 Sketch
2 Pro
3 River to the Severn
4 Blend
5 Aver
6 Racing boat
7 Wide spread
8 Hubbubs
9 Went camping
10 Scram!
11 E'steem
12 — Rainbet
13 Grid calls
21 Range of hills
25 Slumber
26 Try out
27 Wing shaped
28 Volcano's output
29 Wander aimlessly
31 Shout's Wolfe
34 Eliot's Bede
36 Capes
37 Headliner
38 Coop dwellers
40 Gather
42 Unmoving
45 Shops for groceries
48 Secluded
50 Range rope
51 Passbook number
52 — de cacao
53 Charges
55 Eagle's home
58 See 54 Across
59 Jason's craft
60 Prehistoric ax
61 Leg joint
62 Cliques

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S	O	A	P		A	L	T	A	R		J	A	B
I	G	L	U		L	O	A	N	E	D		A	C	E
F	R	A	N	K	F	U	R	T	E	R		C	H	A
T	E	N	S	E		P	I	S	A		S	E	E	N
		T	R	A	M		S	E	W	E	R
A	I		E	N	D	E	D		S	T	A	R	E
P	O	D	R	A		A	R	O	M	A		L	E	D
E	L	M		M	I	N	E	D		D	U	T
R	E	F	S		S	I	D	L	E		B	I	T	E
S	T	O	P		P	L	A	C	E		R	E	P
		D	P	A	L	S		T	T	E
O	W	L		L	O	P	E		T	E	A	M	S
D	O	D		M	O	L	L	Y		C	O	D	D	L	E
E	R	R		S	M	I	L	E	R		E	D	I	E
S	K	Y		S	T	E	N	D		R	S	V	P

2/21/89



1989 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 2/21/89

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21- April 19) Although you are eager to mix business and pleasure, doing so would be a mistake. Move in a new direction. Concentrate on clearing up a misunderstanding within the business community.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your sense of daring carries you onward and upward today. You clear up any doubt about your deepest emotions. A relationship develops a whole new dimension. Romance plays a more meaningful role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Look for any weaknesses in your financial plan and seek ways to shore up your resources. You may be more temperamental than usual right now. Curb your tongue and postpone making major decisions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not exaggerate a minor office tempest or you could slow your own progress. Instead, look for ways to capitalize on what is happening. Pursue a relationship with someone who will cherish you.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) Career advancement depends on your ability to keep your emotions under control. Occasional hurt feelings can be expected in any love relationship. Try to avoid a battle of wills; be less critical at mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You cannot afford to take anything or anyone for granted today. Do your homework and you will succeed in whatever you undertake. A daily walk or swim will boost your physical fitness.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22) Your skill at obtaining cooperation makes you a very attractive candidate for a promotion. Cutthroat competitors will lose out. Be true to your high ideals. Set a good example for the young.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21) You show your true colors and come to the aid of a pressured parent or sibling. Good luck and a new job are part of the picture. Be receptive to new ideas.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec.21) Make a final decision on a work matter and follow thorugh before the weekend. Your close relationships benefit from your affable and affectionate nature. Entertain at home this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your sense of well-being is in the spotlight. You need more rest. Creative work opens doors closed to you in the past. Avoid any sort of personal confrontation today. Suggest intelligent compromises.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Love is a many-splendored thing now. Almost anything can happen today. Focus on business projects that will provide long-term financial security. Your future is in your hands. Take positive steps.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) A relationship concern may be more serious than you thought. Apply "first aid" by opening better lines of communication. Do not neglect your own needs while trying to help someone else.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Pepperoni and pesto boboli Chicken cutlet sandwich	Roast top round of beef Ravioli, tomato sauce
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Pesto, olive and alfalfa boboli Chicken cutlet sandwich	Sweet and sour tofu Ravioli, tomato sauce

■ men's hoop

continued from page 20

point McCoy drops through the hoop Thursday evening vs. Penn State at the Cage will rewrite the books.

The Dukes cut up a spacious UMass zone in the first half while building as much as a 21 point lead (the halftime gap was 13). Duquesne then turned up the rpm's in the second frame against the backpeddling Minutemen, streaking out of sight midway.

"They did a nice job offensively," said Calipari of Duquesne. "They played us pretty hard, and we had some miscommunication. Guys were popping open; you've got to be able to play your own man and we're just not very good — not very atheletic."

Duquesne guard Clayton Adams fed Brian Shanahan on the run to stretch the Dukes lead to 50-33 with a minute and a half ticked off the second half clock. The Minutemen, facing a chaotic full court press, matched baskets with the Dukes through the next five possesions before Shanahan snaked a half-court bounce pass to Darrell White, who capped the play with a (Charles) Barkley-esque dunk.

The jam startled the 1,954 fans in attendence and gave the Dukes a 57-40 lead. From that point, Duquesne reeled off a 12-2 streak that featured some more acrobatics by White and several clever fast break assists from Adams. A Shanahan pull-up 8 footer at the 12:58 mark gave the Dukes a 27 point lead, at 69-42. The last 10 minutes of the ballgame contained McCoy's pursuit of the record books and the Dukes quest for 100 pts.

In the early moments of this contest, the Minutemen siezed a 6-2 lead on a McCoy jumper and a pair of transition hoops from Anton Brown and Butler.

A Brian Anslemino stuff with 16:51 to play, however, gave the Dukes a 7-6 lead they would never lose.

With 12:16 in the half, a George Hardin free throw and McCoy three-point jumper pulled the Minutemen to within 20-15. The Dukes then rode a 20-5 run to a 40-20 lead as the front line of White, Shanahan and Anslemino walzed through the UMass zone for easy inside points.

UMass scratched to within 46-33 at the break behind a Brown three pointer and nine consecutive free throws, before the second half assault.

The Minutemen never hit their offensive stride until McCoy took matters into his own hands in the final minutes of the game — long after the competition had become an exhibition. In shooting a reasonable 45.6 percent from the field, UMass only squeezed off 57 shots, compared to 84 for the Dukes.

McCoy scored six straight points for UMass at one stretch late in the game, tying Hempel's mark on a patented horizontal baseline leaner with 3:12 left to play. McCoy, who had jammed the thumb on his shooting hand a minute earlier, didn't attempt another shot before sitting down for good with 2:18 to play.

"I knew I was pretty close (to the record)" said McCoy after the game. "But I really wasn't concentrating on it too much. I'm glad I did it now that I know ... It was nice to play in front of my home crowd."

McCoy's 27 led all scorers, while Brown added 18 for the Minutemen. White, a late minute sub when regular Arnd Neuhaus caught the campus cold, led the Dukes with 22 points and 8 rebounds. Adams chipped in 21 points and 8 assists.

Duquesne 105-74

Massachusetts (74): Jon McCoy 8-20 10-13 27, John Tate 3-4 0-0 6, John Milum 2-6 2-4 6, Ishmael Butler 2-5 0-0 4, Anton Brown 8-13 4-5 18, George Harden 1-3 2-2 4, Michael Byrnes 2-4 0-0 4, Ben Grodski 0-0 0-0 0, Chris Baily 0-0 0-0 0, Carey Herce 0-0 1-5 1, Matt Anderson 1-1 0-1 2, Sean Nelen 1-1 0-0 2. Totals: 26-57 19-33 74.

Duquesne (105): Brian Shanahan 8-16 3-4 19, Darrell White 10-16 2-3 22, Brian Anselmino 2-7 2-2 6, Clayton Adams 8-17 5-9 21, Collins Dobbs 7-13 1-2 16, Tony Petrarca 1-2 0-0 3, James Felix 3-3 2-2 8, Keith English 2-6 0-1 4, Richard Jean 1-2 0-0 2, Robert Vriend 1-1 0-0 2, Brett Paige 1-1 0-1 2. Totals: 42-84 19-24 105.

Three-point goals: UMass 3-6 (McCoy 1-1, Brown 2-5); Duquesne 2-4 (Dobbs 1-2, Petrarca 1-2).

Collegian photo by David Higashiguchi

Men's hoop was pounded on the road again Saturday. This time it was Duquesne which belittled the Minutemen 105-74.

■ women's hoop

continued from page 20

they played hard and smart," Hewelt said. "Sue Shay is an outstanding player."

Shay had 19 of her points in the first half as the Bonnies opened up a seven-point intermission lead that they would never lose. The visitors exploded out of the block, utilizing a 12-point dash to take a 15-4 lead. UMass, behind junior forward Helen Freeman, closed the gap to 30-26 before the Bonnies opened it back to 38-31 at the half.

UMass, which lost senior point guard Christel Zullo two nights earlier to an ankle injury, was plagued even more by Freeman's early foul trouble, as she picked up three in the first half and then fouled out after playing only two minutes in the second half.

"Obviously without Christel and without Helen on the floor we're a completely different team," Hewelt said. "Our bench is sparse in terms of numbers, and we played a poor first half, intensity-wise. We've got to come out and play as hard as we can."

The Bonnies stretched their lead to 14 with 14:18 left before UMass shaved it back to five, 51-46 with 9:25 to play. But UMass couldn't come any closer than four the rest of the way. Forced to foul late, the Minutewomen watched the composed Bonnies nailed down the game with 11-of-14 accuracy from the line in the final three minutes.

Senior forward Leslie McGhee added 18 points and sophomore point guard Roni Hergenroeder 10 for the Bonnies. Senior co-captain Beth Wilbor led UMass with 15, and now needs 51 points in at least five games (four regular season plus at least one conference tournament game) to reach the 1,000-point plateau.

Trish Riley added 14 points and eight assists, Sue Serafini had 13 points and 11 rebounds while Keyburn McCusker chipped in nine points and nine rebounds for the Minutewomen, who fell to 10-13 overall and 4-10 in the Atlantic 10. St. Bonaventure, with its second consecutive conference win, is now 2-14 and 9-16 overall.

Despite the loss, Hewelt feels something positive can still come out of it.

"This is a good test of our character. The challenges we're facing will help us grow up," Hewelt said.

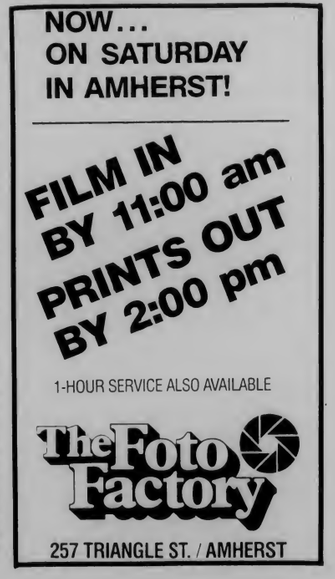
"We're not in the position to write off this year," she added. "We've got some good opportunities left to be competitive."

St. Bonaventure 75-69

Massachusetts (69): Beth Wilbor 7-18 1-2 15, Jenny Moran 2-7 0-0 5, Helen Freeman 3-5 2-3 8, Dianne Burke 0-0 0-0 0, Trish Riley 6-16 1-1 14, Keyburn McCusker 7-12 5-8 9, Sue Serafini 5-10 2-4 13, Lisa Barr 2-5 1-3 5, Colleen Hopkins 0-0 0-0 0. Totals: 28-71 10-19 69.

St. Bonaventure (75): Sue Shay 10-19 1-1 13, 31, Leslie McGhee 6-18 5-6 18, Lou Marquis 3-6 2-2 8, Kristen DeLuca 1-7 1-6 6, Roni Hergenroeder 2-13 5-8 10, Kris Hoffman 0-0 0-0 0, Natalie White 1-2 0-1 2, Vachelle Manles 0-2 0-0 0. Totals: 23-67 27-34 75.

Three-point goals: UMass 3-7 (Riley 1-3, Moran 1-1, Serafini 1-3); St. Bonaventure 2-13 (Hergenroeder 1-8, McGhee 1-4, Shay 0-1).



UMass ski teams take 2nd and 3rd at Berkshire East

By ROBERT SIMPSON
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's and women's ski teams wrapped up the regular season at Berkshire East this past weekend, and ended on a good note, according to head coach Bill MacConnell. "We skied well. Everyone on the team stood up," he said.

As a team, the UMass women had a fine weekend. They finished 2nd in the giant slalom both days behind Boston College, and were able to slip into a second place tie with Plymouth St. for the season.

For UMass, Marcy Blacker grabbed 5th, Elise McDevvit was 10th, and Marti Gilbert and Mary Sontin had 11th and 12th respectively. But the good performance on Saturday by the UMass women was marred by the loss of sopohmore co-captain and standout skier Elise McDevvit to injury. After racing through the finish on her second run, her skis caught on a ridge. She dislocated her knee, and will be sorely missed for next week's Eastern Championship in Middlebury.

On Sunday, Cammy Potter of BC again won the giant slalom. Marcy Blacker's 5th place was best for UMass. Also for UMass were Marti Gilbert (11th), and Mary Sinton (13th).

"A good year for our women. They got turned around and proved they could finish with Plymouth St." said MacConnell.

The UMass men finished the season 3rd behind Plymouth St. (1st) and BC (2nd). The results on Saturday and Sunday reflected the exact order of the final standings, as the UMass men finished 3rd both days.

Rick D'Elia was tops for UMass on Saturday, finishing 12th. Also for UMass were John Roche (16th) and Mike Boulanger (21st). On Sunday, Roche captured 4th place, D'Elia finished 10th, and John Donovan 16th.

■ women's swimming

continued from page 20

was 25 seconds faster than the old UMass record. Young's second place finish in the 500-yard freestyle took five seconds off the UMass record.

"All the distance swimmers should be commended on how they swam," Newcomb said. "They had perfectly paced and technically gorgeous swims."

In the five years that Newcomb has been UMass coach, the Minutewomen had never won a relay race in the New Englands. This weekend they came up first in the 200-yard medley relay, and the 200-,400-,and 800-yard free relays.

Newcomb said, "The 200-yard relay was the most important race of the weekend. It was the first race of the meet, and the win enabled us to set the tone for the whole competition." The team of Laurie Schwarz, Melissa Waller, Sue Gorski, and Michele Leary won by cutting five seconds off the UMass record.

The 200-yard free relay team of Patty Pike, Kim Morin, Keira Cruz, and Leary pulled out a UMass record in a close race. Into the last lap the first two teams were dead even. "When Michele Leary dove in for the last lap, I knew they would win," Newcomb said.

The last event of the weekend, the 400-yard relay, brought the meet to an exciting end. In the 400-yard relay Morin, Pike, Leary, and Cruz set a UMass and New England record (3:34:53). In order to take a second place overall finish, Northeastern had to come in higher than fifth in the event. Unfortunately for UMass, the Huskies managed to take fourth — the second place overall victory slipped just out of reach of the Minutewomen.

Sue Gorski set UMass records in the 100- and 200-yard butterfly events. She took fourth and third in these races, respectively.

Melissa Waller set UMass records in the 100- and 200-yard breaststroke and a fourth in the 200-yard breaststroke.

■ men's gymnastics

continued from page 20

"I was just hoping everyone would hit their set," Ronayne said. "That's the name of the game."

Bart Balocki's 8.85 on the horizontal bar was also a key score down the stretch.

"When Bart Balocki's score came up, I thought we had a chance," UMass coach Roy Johnson said. Both teams were battling very evenly down to the last event. The Owls jumped out to an early lead in the floor exercise, scoring a 45, powered by Bill Roth's 9.6 and Joe Rowlette's 9.2. For UMass, co-captain John Eggers finished third with a 9.15.

The next event was the pommel horse where the Minutemen showed considerably more depth than Temple. The Owls had three exceptionally well efforts that took the first three places, Roth winning the event with a 9.55. But Temple also had three very low scores also that cost them some very valuable points. On the other side, UMass got pretty consistent scores from all six of their gymnasts, headed by senior Joe Fitzgerald's 8.85. UMass evened up the score with the Owls at 85.6 after the pommel horse.

However, Temple regained the lead with a superior performance on the still rings and increased the lead a little more in the next two events, the vault and the parallel bars, before the big finish.

"The team looked very good," Eggers said. "They came through in the clutch."

This could be the turning point for UMass' season for a number of reasons. First of all, the win raised the Minutemen's record to 5-2, and more importantly 3-1 in the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League in second place behind the United States Naval Academy. Number two, the Minutemen may have established some momentum for the rest of the season by tallying their highest score of the year. And number three, the last three EIGL league meets of the year will be at home.

Temple fell to 1-3 on the year and 1-2 in the EIGL.

"Meets like this really bring the team together because it was a team effort," UMass coach Roy Johnson said.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—ROOM 113—MON.-THURS. 8:30-5:30 FRI. 8:30-2:30•DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION•CASH IN ADVANCE 20¢ WORD PER DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

SIGMA ALPHA MU RUSH!! Feb 21 Sammy Feud 8pm Campus Center -101 Feb 22 Sammy Cinema 8pm Campus Center -162

CHRISTIAN BOOK READING CLUB starting 367-2361

CONSERVATIVES UNITE! Meeting tonite! CC 174 at 8:00pm

ADD DROP A PAIN? Budget cuts got you down? Write a letter to your representative. Table outside the Miniatore S.U.

ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENT ASSOC. General Meeting tonight Campus Center 162-175 New members are welcome

MARKETING CLUB GENERAL MEETING new members welcome! Tuesday, 2/21 at 4:00 Watch club board in SBA for location

TODAY CCA 9-4:30 HRTA Career Day! Opportunities! 50 Hospitality companies represented! Don't miss out

JAZZ HOT DANCERS into meeting Wed 22 6:00pm Melville 2nd floor lounge Call Lisa 6-7334

FIGHT THE HIGH COST OF TUITION! Work with Clean Water Action Earn $6.80-10/hr working on our professional campaign staff. Great work experience for Comm. Poli Sci, Env., and marketing majors Call 549-7450

"JAP-BAITING: HARMLESS FUN, ETHNIC SLUR?" Lecture by professor Gary Spencer/Syracuse University Tonight 7:30pm CC804-808 Reform Jewish Chavurah Sponsored

STRONGEST MAN AND WOMAN COMPETITION Saturday Feb 25th at the Kennedy Bodyshop 12-4pm $2.00 fee and many great prizes

PAHTETIC AT CHESS? We are. Show us how to lose tonight 7:00 Campus Center check into desk for room number

LEARN TO MEDITATE - FREE Find hidden self. Expand universal outlook. Any Mon or Wed 3-5pm Campus Center Room posted near elevators

UMASS SKI CLUB runs the best spring breaks to Barbados, Bahamas, Bermuda, Killington and Breckenridge 545-3437/430 SUB

WHAT'S THE POINT OF LIFE? Unique dream techniques, special visualizations, and simple twenty-minute spiritual exercises can help you find your destiny in this life. Learn about the transforming spiritual exercises of ECKANKAR. One-hour presentation, 30-minutes video and basic how-to's. UMA Campus Center 7:30 Thursday Feb 9, 16, 23.

SOUTHWEST AREA GOV. is looking for someone to coordinate our annual Spring Concert. Interested? Call 5-0960 for details

AMHERST FIRE DEPARTMENT

THE AMHERST FIRE DEPARTMENT is recruiting volunteers to work as firefighter/EMTs. No experience necessary. See our table on the concourse February 22-24

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE

SAPCIOUS 1,2, and 3 BEDROOM UNITS in Sunderland. Ample off street parking and free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Call 665-3856

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUTO FOR SALE

1983 FORD ESCORT WAGON- 50,000 miles A/C, roof rack, excellent condition $2500 Call 256-0933

1982 GRAY SAAB TURBO exc cond records avail a/c Apline stereo/cass. Fast, fun, runs like new call Michael 773-5864

81 HONDA CIVIC WAGON. Very well maintained, dependable $1200 549-2733

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CAMP COUNSELORS

COME WORK FOR an accredited 3-camp organization in the Pocono Mountains of PA. Positions are available in: Tennis, Archery, Waterfront (W.S.I.), Gramatics, Office Administration, Computers, Radio, Arts & Crafts, Nature, Athletics, Jewelry, Photography, Dance, Wrestling, Cooking, Adventure/Challenge Course, Film making Camp Drivers Season 6/24-8/20 Call 800-533-CAMP (215-887-9700 in PA) or write 407 Benson East, Jenkintown, PA 19046

COMPACT DISC MUSIC MACHINE

DISC JOCKEY SERVICE - quality tunes for all occasions 549-1421 or 253-7655

DAYTONA BEACH

BEACHFRONT HOTEL $139 w/bus $214 Florida is calling you! Call us Sean 546-8252 or Rob 253-7153

FLORIDA SPRING BREAKS

DAYTONA'S CASTAWAY BEACH RESORT - $139. Panama City Beach's Miracle Mile Resort $119. roundtrip transportation add $80 Call Mark 549-2871

EARTH

RAINFOREST ACTION GROUP meets today noon 905 Campus Center 4:30 Come watch a very green video

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances 256-8526

FOR RENT

FRIDGE RENTALS WE DELIVER 253-9742

FOR SALE

BUY A BIKE Cannondale $300 or best offer. Ragging and touring suntour gear system. Dia compe brakes mistral aluminum rims frame alone is worth five hundred dollars Call Anytime 549-3512

RUG-GREAT FOR DORM
Sky Blue
Excellent condition
$45 or best offer
Call Alise 527-6505

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles Call 256-8369

FOUND

FOUND WOMEN'S WTCH ON 2-14 at bust stop by S-West black band black face gold hands made in hong kong Call Time at 546-9030

DONNA STONE, I found your wallet! Pick it up at 415A Student Union Building

GUITAR LESSONS

PRIVATE GUITAR LESSONS with Doug Hewitt. Rock-Blues-Folk all levels. Songwriting, improvisation, theory, reading. Studio on 3 bus lines 549-4786 or 549-6966

HELP WANTED

THIS PAST SUMMER 350 College Students took on a Management Position gaining exceptional managerial and business skills for their career. Average net summer earnings $10,740 1-800-922-5579

$10,000 A MONTH  Market product in untapped region. Drive and persistence pay off greatly. Dave 584-5757

SGA COMMUNICATIONS IS HIRING - Publicity/advertising consultant. Applications at 304 SUB. AA/EOE

SUMMER BUSINESS POSITION in your hometown. Earn avg $8,000. Excellent experience. 665-2527

FREE MEALS can the DC Fraternity in need of light kitchen help, in exchange for meals. Call Jon 545-0046

KATHLYN S. COX

HAPPY 21st BIRTHDAY! Get ready to rage! Love ya Janine

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on February 22 from 3:30-4:30 in room 901 Campus Center. (545-1995)

NEED CASH

GET SOME SPRING BREAK MONEY before it's to late!! Sell me your baseball cards. Call Todd anytime 549-8361

PERSONALS

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE NEWEST BIDDIES of Alpha Chi Omega. We are all so happy to have you. See you tonight!

BRIAN AUSTIN— It's been a great and interesting two year. Happy anniversary. Love Julie

TO A SEXY SENSUOUS BABE MIKE Hardamia birthday wishes available for you JUZ

MURPH OF GREENWICH--met you at your party think you're really hot! Meet me in the Hatch at 12:15 on 2/23 I'll be wearing red

CONCRETE CITY
Rock-n-roll Borne from the depths of rocks

VERONICA WOLF OF CHI OMEGA: It's finally here! Have a great 21st B-Day. Love your roommate

STEVIE YOU LOVE--SLAVE! Too bad your parents didn't fool around a year earlier! Hope your birthday was wild and remembrable! If not, we'll make up for it this weekend! Party hearty you sweet thang

IF ANYONE SEES ANNIE LOWSON wish her a belated happy birthday because she turned 21 on Sat. Love your Big Sis

JAMIE J. AT BRITTANY MNR. Hope you enjoyed our flowers. Will call soon to say hello

AMY WATSON GOOD LUCK IN ENGLISH 132 from the guy who pays more attention to you in class than the prof

RITO BOTELHO HAPPY B--DAY sorry is a day late hope you have a good one. PS: have you start working on your 3.0 yet? Love Deb & Linh

YA!!!! I was only kidding when I said to be ignorant--especially toward me

HOPE AND SARAH THANKS FOR THE nice tip wednesday night. It made my night. Love your waiter

JEN HI THERE'S YOUR PERSONAL! Who's a little late? Happy 19th. ILY ALLY

MENDEL - Au contraire mon frere. You're gonna die of malnutrition, dude. Love, Suzie and Eli

NEED A HAIRCUT!? For the lowest rates call 253-9127. Leave message

M&M- Can you believe one year of domestication? I know we'll make it! 3 out of 3 is terrific! Feb, March or Sept? (Dec) Shut the door (very, very much). The Hare

JOSH GORDON Best wishes on your campaign for SGA president

TO MY TRUEST LOVE - Thanks for the best Valentine - O.K.!!

WHO IS PAUL RICHARE JEFFERY?

SARAH PERCHANCE YOU READ THIS Happy Birthday. Love you like a sis

MICHELE KOSKI Happy Birthday Love your Roomie

LOUISE- Happy Anniversary. Love always Paul, one more tear

WHY DOES THE SKI CLUB run Spring Break trips? For the parties. LAGNAF with the best! 430 SUB/545-3437

HELP! LOOKING FOR attractive male upperclassman as an escort to a wedding in the Bahamas weekend of March 3. Tickets purchased but dumped my boyfriend. Free ride. Interested? Call Cathy Coons 546-8909

GINA, WANNA GO TO THE TOC again? 447-7527 Tim. After six

DEAR ANONYMOUS, thank you for the nicest valentine I have ever received. Love, Cammie

HAPPY B DAY Tom love Elise

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later

ROOMMATES WANTED

ONE ROOM IN APARTMENT 254 inclusive 1-2 people 256-0958 256-4270

FEMALE NEEDED FOR SPACIOUS square village apt Feb and March free 183/mo 367-2092

2 FEMALES TO SHARE Townehouse apt Call 6-9207

SERVICES

PROFESSIONAL RESUMES, Laserprinting, copies, typing 665-8873

AUTO REPAIRS: Very reasonable, experienced mechanic. Work your place or mine. Messages for Mark 665-8467

RESUME TYPESETTING. Avoid the end-of-semester panic. Very experienced, inexpensive, overnight laserwriter quality. Lisa 665-8969

SIGMA ALPHA MU RUSH!!

RUSH SIGMA ALPHA MU!! Feb 21 Sammy Feud 8pm Campus Center -101 Feb 22 Sammy Cinema 8pm Campus Center -162

SIGMA KAPPA

SIGMA KAPPA CONGRATULATES OUR AWESOME new pledges: Melissa Barlow, Samantha Boyd, Linda Collins, Laura Malloy, Jennifer McInerney, Patricia Mooney, Raechel McGinn, Carolyn Spivak, Ojas Tambone, Lisa Eden Walsh and Debi Woodworth. Love, The Sisters of Sigma Kappa

TICKETS NEEDED

TO LA OR VEGAS anywhere between for Spring Break 86378

TRAVEL

SPRING BREAK WEEKENDS
Montreal $79
Includes round trip motor coach and 2 nights hotel
Directly downtown
Breakaway tours
508 842-7336
420 Boston Turnpike
Shrewsbury, MA 01545

SPRING BREAK SPACES AVAILABLE... but selling out fast! Cancun Special; only $389/quad -no additional charges! Plus amazing prices to Acapulco, Nassau. Reserve your space immediately! Call Janice or Jennifer 549-8239.

ONE WAY TICKET Boston to Los angeles leaves March 20th $100 or best offer call 549-7586 leave message

HOT NIGHTS, COOL FROZEN DRINKS. reggae music, sandy beaches, and affordable spring break trips to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco, and Daytona. Call Karen or Shara at 546-6612 or Merideth at 549-8274 for details

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW, OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TYPING

"WORDSMITH" PROFESSIONAL TYPING. Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck. 253-4564

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional, accurate. 665-4501

UMASS LAX SWEATSHIRT

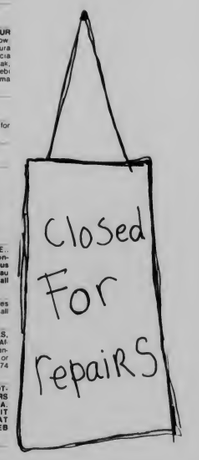
LOST/STOLEN ON 8th FLOOR OF Coolidge 1st weekend in Feb. Reward offered for the return of this navy sweatshirt with a Lacrosse Logo. No questions asked. Just please return, it, no one else has one and it has extreme sentimental value. Call Laura at 546-8031

WANTED

TUTOR WANTED FOR DBASE III Call Steve at 549-0133

FEMALE SHARE ROOM IN apt on Amity St. $175 mo. Call asap 549-7783

PING PONG TABLE. Any condition. Please call Teresa at 546-6397



SPORTS

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

It came down to the final event but when the scores were tallied, the UMass gymnastics team pulled out on top of Temple by less than one point.

M. gymnasts topple Temple

Minutemen improve to 5-2

By GEORGE AUSTIN
Collegian Staff

The atmosphere was like that of two boxers waiting in the ring for the decision of the judges after a long hard fight.

The University of Massachusetts men's gymnastic team did not know if they had beaten Temple University after the last event of the day. The Minutemen had to wait for the scores of the horizontal bar to be tallied.

And when announcer John Langan read the score "Temple University 261.7 and the University of Massachusetts 262.65," the crowd of about 300 people let out a roar that has not been heard in quite some time at the Boyden Gymnastics Center.

It was the first home meet of the year for UMass and there could not have been a more climactic finish.

Things did not look good for the Minutemen going into the horizontal bar, trailing 219.4-217.45. But senior Jay Ronayne came up with a career performance on the h-bar, hitting a 9.6, a personel high for Ronayne and just .10 off the school record of 9.7. A 9.1 for freshman Calvin Booker and a 9.15 for senior Tim Myers capped the strongest event of the day for UMass, racking up a 45.2 team score to bring home the victory.

continued on page 19

Minutewomen slide past So. Conn

Improves record to 5-1

By GEORGE AUSTIN
Collegian Staff

There is only one thing to do when a win streak is ended. Forget about it and start another one.

That's what the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team did this weekend in New Haven, Ct. by disposing of Southern Connecticut State University on Saturday, 175.40-173.65. Though, not in the fashion that UMass coach Alfie Mitchell wanted.

"We won the meet but not so nicely," Mitchell said.

Though Mitchell got some good individual efforts from freshman Erin Klier and Kim Grady, as well as Debbie Schultz, he wanted to see some higher team numbers on the board.

"As a team we didn't look good at all," Mitchell said. "Everything just seemed too dull. There wasn't any excitement so maybe they just couldn't get up for the meet."

The Minutewomen, now 5-1 on the season, did generate a little excitement in the floor exercise where Klier and junior Erika Baxter battled to a first place tie, each receiving a 9.15 from the judges.

Grady took first on the balance beam with a 9.1 for her efforts on the way to a 35.25 in the all-around to top all scorers.

But with the exception of Grady's routine, the Minutewomen had a weak performance on the beam, registering four falls that lowered their score by two points.

Schultz's score of 9.3 on the uneven parallel bars was good enough for first place. But the bars were also a sore spot for UMass where it had three falls.

Maybe one of the reasons that there was a little letdown in this meet by the Minutewomen was because this was the third week in a row that they have been on the road. UMass will get a chance right away to improve upon yesterday's performance when it return to the friendly confines of the Boyden Gymnastics Center tomorrow night for the first time in three weeks for a 7:30 p.m. encounter with the Chiefs of Springfield College.

W. swimming takes 3rd place at Rhody

By DEBORAH PICARDI
Collegian Correspondent

By placing third in the New England Swimming and Diving Championships this weekend at the University of Rhode Island, the University of Massachusetts women's swim team proved that it is a team to be contended with.

The Minutewomen racked up an amazing five New England records, 15 UMass records, and 50 lifetime best swims. The weekend produced first place winners in three individual events and 4-out-of-5 relay races. UMass coach Bob Newcomb said, "It was the best coaching experience I've had in my life. The team responded very well. They swam well day in and day out. They went after it and never let up."

Michele Leary put in another phenomenal performance by taking the only UMass individual championships in the 50-,100-, and 200-yard freestyle events. She took .5 of a second off the New England record with a time of 24.02 in the 50-yard freestyle. In the 100-yard, a tired Leary produced a UMass record and tied the New England record. Newcomb said, "Michele had a great meet. She was by far the outstanding swimmer of the meet. I may be biased, but other coaches said they felt the same way."

Tracy Young came up with a second place in a grueling 1650-yard freestyle race. Her time (17:31:34)

continued on page 19

Newcomb: Coach of the Year

UMass women's swimming coach Bob Newcomb was named the New England Women's Swimming and Diving Association's coach of the year for the second straight season, this weekend at the New England Championships.

"To me, it is a stamp of approval by my peers. It proves that what we're doing is being recognized as excellence," Newcomb said.

Hoop teams drubbed on Saturday

Minutewomen lose by six

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts women's hoop coach Kathy Hewelt Saturday likened her team to the Boston Celtics — which would have been quite a compliment if uttered anytime during the past decade until last October.

But Hewelt was referring to the latest version, the one sans Larry, the one that is wounded and struggling to save face.

The Minutewomen are just that, now minus the two guards that started the season as well as a freshman who has not played a minute all year. Though none have a Bird-like impact, the lack of depth hurts badly.

That was never more evident than Saturday afternoon at Curry Hicks Cage as the Minutewomen fell into a quick gulley from which they could never escape, a 75-69 loss to St. Bonaventure.

And while comparisons are being thrown about, let's assimilate Saturday's effort to the Celtics dropping a game to the Charlotte Hornets. The Lady Bonnies are a team that have competed in Division I for just three years, but are starting to show signs of improvement.

One need not look far to see why this team is on the rise. Freshman forward Sue Shay gave the Minutewomen a rude lesson, working inside and outside for a game-high 31 points, just a week after she torched St. Joseph's for 40 in a six-point loss to the league's number two team.

"St. Bonaventure is much improved. Give them credit.

continued from page 18

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball lost it's second game in a row Saturday when it fell to St. Bonaventue 75-69.

Men's team crushed by Duquesne, 105-74

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — This story was going to write itself. Pittsburgh natives Jim McCoy, John Tate and John Calipari were going to return to their home turf and show the folks what they had learned at college. McCoy, who entered the game in search of 28 points to break the all-time University of Massachusetts freshman scoring mark, would do so in style, in front of all those people who "knew him when..."

Nope. Saturday evening in the new A.J. Palumbo Arena in downtown Pittsburgh, PA, the Duquesne Dukes greeted the visiting Minutemen with a 105-74 pounding. The loss dropped UMass to 9-15 on the season (and 0-2 on their tour of Carnegie country following Thursday's loss at West Virginia), while their hosts improved to 10-14.

McCoy did scrap for 27 points to pull dead even with John Hempel's freshman season record of 470. The first

continued on page 18

The US Fish and Wildlife service may move its regional office to UMass. Page 4.

The reviews are in on The Burbs starring Tom Hanks: stay in the city. Page 12.

The women's gymnastics team will be home for the first time this semester. Page 20.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1989

COLLEGIAN

VOLUME CXXII LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY IN NEW ENGLAND ISSUE 16

AP photo

Former White House aide Oliver North leaves U.S. District court in Washington Tuesday after opening arguments in the Iran/Contra trial.

North trial commences

Opening statements paint different pictures of North

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Oliver L. North "placed himself above the law" by lying to Congress and shredding documents to conceal his support of the Nicaraguan rebels, a prosecutor told jurors yesterday at the opening of the former presidential aide's Iran-Contra trial.

Associate independent counsel John W. Keker said North's lies to congressional committees and to the attorney general amount to "a crime that goes to the soul of our self-government."

But North's lawyer, Brendan Sullivan, countered that "the defense says to you, he is not guilty on all charges. He never broke the law . . . and he followed instructions of higher authority."

Keker, then Sullivan, delivered their opening statements, each describing a different North, the first person to go on trial in the Iran-Contra affair.

"He was doing his job as he understood it. He was doing his duty as he understood it," Sullivan said. "If he didn't, then there could be death resulting to the people he worked with and dangers resulting to the United States."

continued on page 10

LSC loses second bid in court

By TOM CIAMPI
Collegian Correspondent

A First US Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday rejected a University of Massachusetts student government appeal to return the power to the Legal Services Center to represent students in court.

The decision will continue to limit the LSC to provide only legal advice and referral, as was ordered by a Board of Trustees decision in the summer of 1987 that rescinded the power of the LSC to litigate for students.

Thomas Coish, a lawyer who works at the Legal Services Center, said yesterday's decision may be further appealed by students.

The appellants were members of the Student Government Association and the Graduate Student Senate and other individual students. They were appealing an 1988 decision by a US District Court which ruled that the University had not acted discriminatorily and in their own interest when they barred the LSC (then called the Legal Services Office) in the summer of 1986 from representing students in cases against the University.

Coish said the trustee's 1986 move was "clearly discriminatory." And their 1987 move to take away all power from the LSC was "clearly tactical to enhance their position in the federal litgation pending, by getting rid of the argument that they [the University] weren't discriminating on the basis of who was being sued."

The litigation Coish referred to was a suit filed by students against the trustees after the 1986 move, the attorney said. The students claimed the LSO's success in suits against the UMass incited the trustees to bar the LSO from suing the University.

That suit resulted in the court ruling in 1988, in which the judge ruled the later move by the school in 1987 to rescind all power from the LSC rendered the students' initial case of discrimination no longer a live issue.

Part of the latest appeal was an objection to that ruling. Coish said "if it can be shown that a state actor acted with improper or illegal motives, then the action itself is unconstitutional."

The students also contended there were free speech violations, the trustees were restricting the intended use of student activities fees, and the University was blocking students' rights to petition the government to seek compensation.

The court ruled against the students on all four counts.

At the time of the 1986 trustees' decision, University officials said the school's ability to secure liability insurance was being jeopardized by the number of lawsuits by students against the school.

Coish said "only 13 lawsuits have been brought against the University since 1975, but some have involved serious civil rights abuses that have embarrassed" the school.

Career day offers students help

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

The department of hotel, restaurant and travel administration's career day helps students decide where and for whom they want to work, said co-organizer Elizabeth Locke.

The 14th annual career day was held yesterday in the Campus Center Auditorium and attracted at least 600 students from the University of Massachusetts and surrounding schools, said Locke.

The purpose of the day is not for students to actually interview, but to find out what companies are out there and to give seniors an opportunity to drop off resumes, she said.

A total of 49 companies were represented ranging from Peter Pan Bus Lines to Burger King.

David Kemp, a Burger King representative, said the company has been attending HRTA's Career Day for the past three years and has hired about five UMass graduates because of career day.

Kemp said because UMass has one of the few four-year HRTA programs in the country, they will continue to recruit here.

"[Career day] gives us an opportunity to build a good relationship" with students, he said.

Alex Pratt, representing Omni Hotels, said the day helps generate interest in the company and gives students a chance to ask questions.

"They're [the students] shopping us as much as we're shopping them," he said.

continued on page 10

Indelicato gets 7-10 years

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — Gerard T. Indelicato, the former president of Bridgewater State College and former education adviser to Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, was sentenced yesterday to serve at least a year in the state's maximum-security prison on an array of corruption charges.

Led into the court in handcuffs, Indelicato pleaded guilty to eight counts of forgery, larceny, conflict of interest, filing a false income tax return and lying to the state. Under a plea bargain arrangement, Indelicato was spared a trial and 33 other counts were placed on file.

The 42-year-old Norwood resident — now serving a federal prison term in Pennsylvania on corruption charges — stood stoically as the punishment was handed down by Superior Court Judge Robert W. Banks. Dressed in a tweed jacket and striped tie, Indelicato, a once powerful political figure, clenched his jaw and kept his composure.

On the two forgery counts, Banks imposed a sentence of 7 to 10 years in the maximum-security prison in Walpole, with three years to be served, after Indelicato finishes his federal prison term. Under state law, Indelicato would be eligible for parole after one year.

In all, Banks said he anticipated that Indelicato would spend 2½ years behind bars on the federal and state charges

continued on page 5

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
ASSOCIATES	BETTY-ANN MURPHY YANA DLUGY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE GEORGE FRANCY TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	RONN GARRY
COPY EDITOR	GEORGE AUSTIN
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	RICK SANTOS
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ
PRODUCTION	TERRY STARMER MIKE WESTER BRYAN LONG BETTY-ANN MURPHY RICK SANTOS

People in the news...

AP Photo

IT'S A BEAGLES AIRPORT–Jackpot sits at JFK Airport where he is the top dog of the Beagle Brigade–the canine arm of the US Department of Agriculture Plant Protection.

Robin Williams wins Harvard award

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — In one of his best-known roles, comedian Robin Williams played a visitor from outer space who shrieked "nanu-nanu," drank water with his finger and wore rainbow-colored suspenders.

In a real-life appearance only slightly less outlandish, Williams came to Harvard University yesterday to share a stage with female impersonators, receive a brass pudding pot, strap on a pair of rainbow-colored falsies and accept the 1989 Man of the Year Award from the Hasty Pudding Theatricals.

Hasty Pudding, the nation's oldest undergraduate dramatic organization, gave an identical brass pot and its Woman of the Year Award to actress Kathleen Turner last week.

Williams was to receive his award before the curtain went up on the Hasty Pudding's 141st annual musical farce, a spoof on Prohibition called "Whiskey Business." As always, the show has an all-male cast, including many students dressed as women.

Since gaining fame as Mork in the television series "Mork & Mindy" Williams has gone on to success in films, including "The World According to Garp" and "Moscow on the Hudson." His portrayal of Adrian Cronauer, the comic deejay in "Good Morning, Vietnam," earned him a Golden Globe Award for Best Actor and an Academy Award nomination in 1987.

His latest film, "The Dead Poets Society," is scheduled for release in June.

Hasty Pudding members advised Williams at lunch that he would be allowed to drink from the pudding pot with his finger, but cooking anything in the brass vessel could be a problem. When past man-of-the-year recipient Steven Spielberg it, his melted.

Pearl Street
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON, MA
Cover is only 99¢ before 9:30 413 584 7771
UPSTAIRS DANCE CLUB
GET DOWN, DOWN TOWN
FRI & SAT NIGHTS 8:30-1:00
UNIVERSAL
JOINT
THE LIVE MUSIC CLUB
THURSDAY FEB 23rd
Rock-Steady Reggae an'Skankin' w/
NEW HORIZON
Only $5.00 at the door
FRIDAY FEB 24th
DIRECT FROM TRINIDAD
WORLDWIDE SOCA SENSATION
ARROW
Topping the charts in Enghland & Europe this is HOT, HOT, HOT!
Also
LOOSE CABOOSE
advance tix $11.50
SATURDAY FEB 25th
COMEDY EVERY SAT 8 to 10
THIS WEEKS TRIO
ED REGINE
The male Tina Turner of Comedy
FRANK O'DONNELL
Boston's Madman
and
RICK JENKINS
Following Comedy at 10:00 p.m.
STREET TEMPERATURE
Red-Hot 8-piece soul, horn dance band
only $5.00 at the door
SUNDAY FEB 26th
Chicago's Rising Blues Star
MELVIN TAYLOR
Soul-sweet, aching, blues guitar, don't miss!
This young man is going to go to the top
$5.00 at the door—Doors open at 7:30 p.m.
MONDAY FEB 27th
Straight from Scotland
THE PROCLAIMERS
MARCH 2nd ALL-AGES SHOW
JANES ADDICTION
adv. tix $10.00/$2.00 surcharge for under 21's
Doors open at 7:00 show at 8:00 sharp
MARCH 3rd
TOOTS AND THE MAYTALS
Doors open at 7:00 show at 8:00 sharp
Adv tix $12.50 must be 21 years old
413-584-7771
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON

AP photo

FEELING BETTER — Kitty Dukakis is "terrific" after two weeks of treatment at an alcoholic rehabilitation center, said her husband Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Soviet musicians to perform in Idaho

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — Pianist Leonid Vintskevich and saxophonist Lembit Saarsalu, two of the top Soviet jazz musicians, will give their first North American performance this week at the Lionel Hampton Jazz Festival.

Festival director Lynn Skinner said it has taken two years to obtain the Soviet government's permission and clear all the diplomatic hurdles for the two to come to the event sponsored by the University of Idaho's School of Music.

the 22nd annual festival begins its three-day run Thursday and will feature performances by the Soviet jazzmen at each night's featured concert.

"They don't speak any English, but they speak the language of jazz," Skinner said. "The recordings they've sent us have been the very finest you could imagine in terms of performance skills."

Although Saarsalu lives in Estonia and Vintskevich several hundred miles away in Kursch, they have played a number of concerts together in the Soviet Union and have teamed up at European jazz festivals, Skinner said.

They'll get a chance to play at the festival with Hampton and his New York Big Band, along with other American jazz greats such as trumpeter Wynton Marsalis, saxophonist Stan Getz, vocalist Carmen McRaw and Guitarist Kenny Burrell.

LOCAL

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

TOTALLY MARLEY– Ziggy Marley delighted the crowd at the Fine Arts Center last night with his classic array of reggae music.

Emergency phones on the way to UMass

By PETER LUCHT
Collegian Staff

Additional emergency phones on campus are one facet of the TelCom Project now being planned at the University of Massachusetts and slated for implementation next year, said John Miller, project director at the Office of Computer and Information Science.

Six phones are currently being planned by OCIS, four will be placed in bus shelters in the E-Lots on the edges of campus, one at the observatory between the Orchard Hill and Sylvan residential areas and one at the Southwest playing fields, Miller said.

The University of Massachusetts Division of Public Safety has coordinated with the University Telecommunications Office as to where the emergency phones should be placed for maximum effectiveness, said Lawrence G. Holmes, associate director of the Division of Public Safety.

"Sometimes it is very difficult to find a phone on campus, especially at night. We must provide students with a link to the police," Holmes said.

"We are providing a service to students, as well as making the campus safer. It's an excellent program, the feedback has been good. An indication of this is that there has been very little damage to the phones already in operation. Abuse of the phones is the same as someone pulling a fire alarm. The fact that there has been so little vandalism is a sign that everyone appreciates them," Holmes said.

Holmes said he hopes the new phones will encourage students to report any unlawful incidents they might witness on campus, and serve as a deterrent to campus crime.

Gilberto Perez, lead inside inspector at the University Telecommunications Office, said there is a plan for 99 phones to be installed eventually, but there is currently funding for six phones to be installed, at a cost of approximately $600 per unit.

The new phones will be of a more sophisticated design, providing a direct link to the police and also allowing students to make on-campus calls. Different designs are being investigated now as part of the project planning, said Perez.

Miller said funds for the emergency phones are embedded in the funding for the entire TelCom project, which will, when installed, provide data links between student dormitories and university computers, along with other services. The bulk of the nearly $30 million allocated for the three University of Massachusetts campuses comes from a state grant, Miller said.

Miller said approximately $21.5 million has been allocated to the Amherst campus for the entire TelCom project. Maintenance costs for the three campuses will be about $1 million per year, Miller said.

"It is a higher front-end cost for the University, but the ongoing maintenance costs will be a lot lower than if we didn't own the equipment. The installation will be done by Ericsson Inc., the lowest bidder," Miller said.

Perez said the telecommunications office will oversee Ericsson, making sure all technical and construction specifications are met when the project finally gets underway.

Holmes said the 10 phones in existence automatically record the location of a caller, and police dispatchers have direct lines to the fire department and other area police departments. Response time to the phones averages three minutes.

Students volunteer time to fight fires

By PATRICIA REGO
Collegian Staff

An important and sometimes overlooked part of the Amherst Fire Department is the Volunteer Student Force, according to George Bowler, the department's assistant fire chief.

"The student force is comprised of up to 15 or 16 students who volunteer their time," Bowler said. "Their payment is serving the community." Currently 13 students make up the force, he said.

The student force supplements the Amherst Fire Department, said the student force's captain, James Wright. "The student force fights fires and attends to medical emergencies," he said.

"I joined the force because I like doing those things [fighting fires and attending medical emergencies]," said Wright, a UMass student.

"It takes a lot of time but it's enjoyable," he said. "It breaks up the monotony of just going to classes."

Wright said there are many advantages to becoming a student firefighter, such as living in the fire station rent free upon gaining seniority, and obtaining all-area parking stickers. But he said there are also disadvantages.

"Now and then we are up at all hours of the night," he said. "Sometimes it affects your studies but then it's worth it if you save a life or a house from burning."

Bowler said the job is "a lot of responsibility to handle at their age."

"They are protecting the town of Amherst just as if they were getting paid, and they handle their job well," he said.

The student does not need experience in fighting fires to join the force, Bowler said, but before becoming a student firefighter, the department puts the recruit through intense training.

"We don't just take these kids off the street and put a hose in their hands and then send them into a flaming building," he said. "We do send them through intense training before the school year and during the year also. They are always practicing to improve themselves."

Once a student is accepted onto the force, that person is required to attend Wonder Week, three-hour weekly drills, two or three all-day drills and Emergency Medical Technician [EMT] training, Bowler said.

Wonder Week, consisting of approximately 60 hours of training in a five-day period, is led by the captain of the student force and supervised by the assistant fire chief, Bowler said.

"After completion of this week they have a good foundation to build on," he said. "They meet the National Fire Prevention Agencies standards for a No. 1 firefighter."

All five-college undergraduates living in Amherst can apply to the student force and an information table will be set up on the Campus Center concourse today through Friday, Bowler said.

Gordon joins SGA race

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

Student Sen. Josh Gordon became the fourth contender in the race for president of the Student Government Association this week when he formally announced his candidacy for the position.

Gordon, a junior accounting major and co-president of Gorman House Council, said fighting budget cuts, restoring tailgating before football games, and increasing minority enrollment at the University are among his main priorities.

"We have to work harder than any other university because of the way it's been," he said. "We need to work harder."

A member of the SGA budget committee, Gordon said he helped to "successfully" formulate the $2.2 million Student Activities Trust Fund budget, an experience he said demonstrates his ability.

Gordon said if elected he will organize a team of volunteers, the Massachusetts Unified Student Lobby (MUSL) group to contact state legislators and the community to improve higher education.

Spartacists to fire back at Republicans

By Scott C. Hill
Collegian Correspondent

Several affiliates of the Spartacus Youth Club intend to file charges of assault and battery against six members of the University of Massachusetts Republican Club.

The Spartacists will face the Republican charges on Feb. 28.

The new charges come one week after five of the six accused Republican Club members filed similar charges in Northampton District Court against the Spartacists following a Feb. 9 brawl.

Of the new charges, Tom Daley of the Spartacist League says the Republicans perpetrated a "premeditated, violent assault, trying to censor [the Spartacist's] anti-racist views through physical terror."

The Spartacists intend to file charges in Northampton against Republican Club members Paul McGonnigal, Doug Dratch, Ken Rudy, Brian Darling, Scott Kramer and W. Greg Rothman. Rothman was not present during the brawl.

continued on page 10

Trustees start letter writing campaign

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

Colleges and universities in Massachusetts are waging literal war against state legislators as of yesterday, when student trustees began enlisting students in a letter writing campaign.

The campaign, part one of a four part program designed by student trustees at the University of Massachusetts to educate state legislators about the needs of public higher education, is compiling letters from students to send to state representatives.

Student Trustee Stephanie Orefice said she hopes the drive, which 27 of the state's schools are participating in, will collect 1,000 letters from UMass students by Monday. The Trustees have set up a letter writing table in the Student Union.

At the end of the first day the campaign had netted about 75 letters. Several students had crowded the table to learn about the drive and the facts posted behind the table.

The facts, a series of posters explained the reasons behind the campaign which, in brief, are these:

- Trustee records show a 7.9 percent tuition increase last year.
- Trustee records show that an emergency curriculum fee increase of $315 went into effect in last July and that another $50 fee increase went into effect in January to counter budget shortfalls in state funding.
- According to University Relations and Development the number of classes cancelled by departments in one year has doubled from 863 to 1,654 this spring.
- About 350 fewer students will be admitted to the school next semester.

Orefice said trustees statewide have organized a rally at the Statehouse in Boston on March 29, two days after Public Higher Education Week is scheduled to begin.

The week, part two of the program running from March 27 to April 1, will start off when phone lines between student government organizations and state representatives will be opened and complaints may be aired.

The remaining two parts of the program involve graduate students conferring with other students about the budget cuts, and organizing political action committees.

LSC prepares students for future in law

By TOM CIAMPI
Collegian Correspondent

Pursuing an internship at the Legal Services Center can be rewarding in many ways, according to Thomas Coish, an LSC lawyer.

Coish said interns gain experience in many different fields of law. "Each legal assistant receives ongoing training in the areas of law that they are focused on," Coish said. "Each works for a particular attorney, and each attorney works in a certain field of law."

Coish is one of three lawyers at the LSC. Most of the cases he handles are landlord-tenant disputes, but he also gives advice on immigration and labor issues. Other lawyers advise and refer students on criminal and consumer matters, Coish said.

The University barred the LSC from representing students in August, 1987, and since then the LSC has been limited to giving only legal advice and referral. The LSC, however, is still handling open cases that were initiated before August, 1987.

Coish emphasized that "even without litigation powers, we are still a very active office. Students can become involved in ongoing negotiations and in the drafting of letters and documents to try to resolve students' problems without litigation."

Interns at the Legal Services Center receive training on how the legal process works, Coish said. "They learn how to do legal research, how to negotiate, and how to interview."

Each student will also receive courtroom experience "through ongoing litigation that we have, in cases we refer, or in private cases that one of the LSC lawyers might have in court," Coish said.

"Many of our interns have been able to successfully go on to law school and other fields as a result of this experience," he said.

The LSC can sponsor a full academic courseload for their interns. "We strongly prefer full-time interns, but we have gone to part-time as well," Coish said.

Full-time interns seeking 15 credits work 40 hours per week.

Representatives of the LSC and the University Internship Program will be speaking to prospective interns today at 3:30 p.m. in room 901 of the Campus Center, Coish said.

Environmental agency at UMass?

By KATHERINE T. LAMOTHE
Collegian Staff

The US Fish and Wildlife Service may be moving its regional headquarters to the University of Massachusetts, officials said last week.

Sites in New York and Pennsylvania were considered, said Jaymie Chertoff, the University's director of industry and regional development. Other sites in South Hadley, Deerfield and Amherst are also being investigated.

On campus, two possible locations for the offices are a tract of land on Orchard Hill and an area on University Drive, she said.

The inability to recruit biologists and clerical help in Newton, where the headquarters are currently located, spurred the move to Western Massachusetts, Dale Coggeshall, assistant regional director for the agency, said.

The University has also been enthusiastic about the agency's possible arrival, he added. "(We've had an) indication that Provost Richard D. O'Brien wants us on campus," he said.

There is great interest in the move within the University as well, according to Chertoff. "The faculty and college (of Food and Natural Resources) are very excited," she said.

Donald Arganbright, head of the forestry and wildlife management department, said, "It's a neat opportunity for the University and the department (and for) student and faculty interaction with the department."

The University has encouraged the agency's arrival, Chertoff said, "(to strengthen) relations with an outside agency."

However, the proposal is not without its complications. Coggeshall said the University, the state and federal governments and the General Services Administration must approve the move. The Secretary of the Interior, who oversees the Fish and Wildlife Service, must also approve the action, but, he said, that is coming in the near future.

If the proposal is accepted, Coggeshall said, the building will be completed in four years and members of the agency will assist in education with guest lectures. Chertoff added that there is great potential for research interaction between the University and the agency.

Artists receive financial advice

By ANN WHITEHEAD
Collegian Correspondent

Self-employed artists and writers rarely consider business as part of their job, a financial planner said last week, but their survival depends on making this a high priority.

Sally Livingston, an insurance agent and a financial planner for Massachusetts Mutual Life in Springfield, told a group of artists and writers during a workshop at the Jones Library to avoid frivolous spending and set specific financial goals.

"It's really tough to make a living as an artist of any kind," Livingston said. Artists must have an "unswerving belief that they can do what they want to do and put everything into doing it," she said.

Such professionals sacrifice expectations of an extravagant lifestyle or early retirement and must focus immediately on planning for the future, she said.

"Saving just for the sake of saving doesn't work," Livingston said, urging participants to save for specific goals such as pension plans and income taxes.

Keeping detailed records of expenses and transactions is necessary to better regulate incoming funds and prevent excess spending, she said.

"A lot of money is coming in when people don't keep records," Livingston said. "The money flow is controlling you and you're not controlling it."

Livingston warned against the compulsive use of credit cards because the risk of sinking into debt is too high.

"They're charging you 18 percent each year (on your unpaid balance)," she said. "That's money you could be putting in your pocket."

The Jones Library workshop was sponsored by the western Massachusetts sub-local of the National Writer's Union and is one of several to be held this year.

Moscow Reporter to speak in CC tonight

Veteran journalist and Moscow correspondent Carl Bloice is scheduled to give a first hand account of his experiences in the Soviet Union tonight.

Bloice, an associate editor of the People's Daily World, will deliver a lecture called "New thinking for peace, freedom, and socialism" in room 101 of the Campus Center at 7 p.m.

A Moscow correspondent for the Daily World since 1987, Bloice has written frequently on "perestroika" as well as other developments in the Soviet Union and other socialist countries.

Bloice has reported extensively from Siberia, the Soviet Far East, and the transcaucasian republics of Armenia and Azerbaijan.

This African-American journalist is well known for reporting the perspective of ordinary working person, as well as of intellectuals, government and Party spokespeople.

— THOMAS RODRIGUES

ΔX DELTA CHI ΔX DELTA CHI ΔX

ALL UNIVERSITY MEN

DELTA CHI FRATERNITY

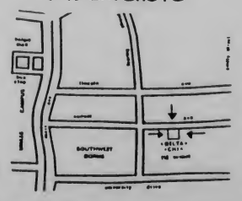
OPEN RUSH TONIGHT

- Great Social Advantages
- Superb Meal Plan
- Academics
- Intramurals
- The First Fraternity to abolish Hazing

Wed 2/22 6:30 - until ?

Bus Trip to Hartford Jai Alai (we pay!)

Refreshments Available



Delta Chi
118 Sunset Ave
call 549 6505 for rides & info

DELTA CHI ΔX DELTA CHI

Three cars involved in accident on Mass. Ave

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

Police said a three car accident on Massachusetts Avenue Friday caused a total of $2,100 in damage to the cars.

The three cars were travelling north on the avenue when the lead car slowed to turn right. The second car, directly behind the first, pulled left to pass the turning vehicle, striking a third vehicle when doing so. The driver of the first car received a citation. The second car received $2,000 in damages, the third received $100 in damages.

In other police reports:

- A student reported a $60 sweatshirt stolen Friday from locker in Totman Gymnasium, police said.
- A vehicle in Lot 43 struck another vehicle while avoiding pedestrians in that lot Friday. Both cars received a damage total of $2,000, police said.
- A student reported the window of his vehicle parked in Stadium Lot E, smashed. Damage was estimated at $150, police said.
- Two 18-year-old Springfield men were arrested Friday on charges of being minors carrying alcohol. The second man was also charged with giving false information to obtain a Mass. liquor identification card, police said.
- A 19-year-old Granby man was arrested Friday on charges of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol, being a minor transporting alcohol and failure to keep top the right of way, police said.
- A student security officer working on the second floor of the Campus Center reported he put out a wastebasket fire with a cup of water Friday, police said.
- A group of people in the vicinity of Gorman Residence Hall were in the process of simulating an arrest scene when they were confronted by safety officers Saturday, police said. Police said they confiscated a knife and a fake wooden gun which were being used as props.
- An 18-year-old Pierpont Resident was arrested Saturday on charges of being a minor in possession of alcohol, police said.
- Police said they confiscated a pair of nunchucks and a wrist rocket slingshot after dispersing a large group of people on the third floor of MacKimmie Residence Hall Saturday, police said.
- A student reported scratches, believed caused by a key, made in driver's side door of his car Saturday. Police said damage to the vehicle was about $500.
- A student reported having his radar detector and AM/FM stereo stolen from his vehicle after its window had been smashed while parked in E Lot Saturday.
- A student reported a $250 ski rack stolen from his vehicle parked in E Lot Saturday, police said.
- A 22-year-old Waltham man was arrested Monday on charges of operating a motor vehicle without a license, police said.
- A vehicle parked in Lot 63 slipped out of gear and travelled unoccupied across an access road and struck another vehicle Monday, police said. The runaway car sustained $200 in damages and the struck vehicle received $1,000 in damages.
- A student reported the right front quarter panel of his vehicle parked in Lot 32 Friday had been damaged, police said. Damage was estimated at $1,000, police said.

■ Indelicato

continued from page 1

combined, then serve a lengthy probation.

After sentencing, Indelicato was led away by guards and did not speak to reporters. His attorney, Steven Brooks, called the sentence "severe" for a public official who "made a few mistakes," but he did not say whether he would appeal.

"He's certainly learned his lesson," Brooks told the judge in arguing for a lighter sentence. "He's lost his reputation. He's lost his job. He's lost his income. He's about to lose his house. There's very little else Dr. Indelicato can lose."

Assistant Attorney General Nadine Pellegrini, who recommended the sentence, told the judge she did so knowing what Indelicato has already lost "in terms of position and prestige."

But, she continued, Indelicato held positions of public trust as the governor's adviser and as a college president and "Dr. Indelicato violated that trust in every position he held in the commonwealth."

As a former special assistant to the governor, Indelicato is the highest-ranking Dukakis administration official to face criminal charges. Dukakis has publicly condemned Indelicato's actions and has said his administration cooperated in the state and federal investigations.

Last July, Indelicato was sentenced to 2½ years in prison after pleading guilty in US District Court in Boston to five charges of conspiracy, mail fraud and tax evasion in a scheme involving his brother and two other men to skim more than $80,000 from an adult education program funded by the federal government and run by the state.

At the same time, he pleaded innocent to state indictments stemming from his activities while serving as Dukakis' education adviser from 1983 to 1986 and while serving as the Bridgewater school's president from 1986 to December 1987.

Amherst Fire Dept.
is now recruiting for
VOLUNTEER FIRE FIGHTERS

Join the student force
Engine Company 3
Gain Valuable Experience
Serve your Community

For information see our table in the Campus Center Concourse
February 22 - February 24 or call 253-9233

THE COOPERATIVE EDUCATION JOB FAIR
YOUR ENTRANCE TO SUMMER & SEMESTER JOBS!
-All Majors-
Thursday, February 23 10:00 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium
MEET REPRESENTATIVES FROM MORE THAN ★ 70 plus EMPLOYERS ★
• Employer interviews • Workshops • Co-op Information Sessions

Accord Diversified Consultants
ADP
AETNA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY
* American Cyanamid Company
 Amherst Leisure Services
Boston Globe
Gt Boston Stock Exchange
 Central Maine Power
+ Clean Harbors
 Consolidated Civilian Personnel
Cullinet Software
* Data General
 Deluxe Check Printers
 Department of Labor
* Digital Equipment Corporation
✓ ERC Wiping Products
Food and Drug Administration
General Electric Plastics
GTE Government Systems
Hanscom Air Force Base
Hills Department Stores
H.P. Hood, Inc.
Hyde Athletic Industries
+ IBM ASTC Program
 IBM Credit
+ IBM East Fishkill
 IBM Southbury
 IBM Tarrytown
 IBM Watson Research
Inncorp Management Corporation
International Foundation of Employee Benefits
International Data Group
International Revenue Service
* James River Graphics
Kaman Aerospace
* Keystone Provident Life
* Liberty Mutual Insurance
MCI
Metcalf and Eddy
Mitre
Monsato
Nestle Westreco
* Newton Marriot Hotel
Northwestern Mutual Life
Office Specialists
Perstorp Compounds
 Pfizer Central Research
Pratt & Whitney
Raytheon Missle Systems
* Reebok
Rizzo Associates
Royal Sonesta Hotel
Sheraton Tara Framingham
Silver Bay Association, YMCA
Simpson, Gumpertz and Heger
Star Market
Sweet Life Foods
Touche Ross
Toys R Us
* Travelers Insurance
U.S. Army Corps of Engineers
U.S. Dept. of Transportation
* U.S. Gen'l Accounting Office
* U.S. Office Personnel Mgt
+ U.S. Postal Service
* Uniroyal Chemical
Unisys Corporation
* United Parcel Service
Vanesse Hangen Brustlin
Weston & Sampson Engineers
General Electric Ordinance

* Interviewing Feb. 23 at the Campus Center
 Interviewing Feb. 24 at the University Career Center
+ Interviewing both days
✓ Offering workshops Feb. 23 at the Campus Center

For more information call the Co-op Office at 545-2224

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON

FOR YOUR EYES ONLY

SPECIAL UNIVERSITY PRICING!
40-50% OFF RETAIL PRICE
GREAT PERFORMANCE
GREAT PRICE

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN-

ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS INVITES YOU
TO AN OPEN HOUSE DEMONSTRATION ON CAMPUS

A Zenith Data Systems Open House Will Be Held At This Location:

Campus Center Concourse

10:00 AM to 3:00 PM

February 22, 1989

American Express VISA, MasterCard Credit Cards Accepted

ZENITH | data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON*

Prices subject to change without notice
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems

Collegian Workshop

Al Romm
of Ottaway
Newspapers

Tonight at 7:30

in the Collegian Office
Basement of the
Campus Center

Counts Toward Staff Status

This Saturday!
FEBRUARY 25th 1989

Killington VERMONT

add $10 FOR NON-MEMBERS

$32 FOR MEMBERS

PRESENTED BY UMASS SKI CLUB

LAGNAF 430 STUDENT UNION BLDG. 545-3437

Tues. — Thurs.
Campus Concourse

S · U · N
BARBADOS
for SPRING BREAK
THE PLACE TO BE

We have a brand new 7-bedroom mansion reserved for the UMASS spring break party of the year. Your party abode is located on the beach and includes a fully equipped kitchen, living room, 4 full bath rooms, and daily maid service. The Sandy Lane Golf Course and Sunset Crest Resort are both close neighbors. The 3 quads, 3 triples, and 1 double are given on a first come first serve basis so don't be late.

DATES:
JFK Departure: March 17, 18, 19
Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Departures
BOS Departure: March, Friday 17 - Friday 24

Quad, Triple, or Double Occupancy: $589
Occupancy is first come first serve
Reservation Deposit: $75
Refundable Security Deposit: $25

$75 non-refundable for reservation
$25 security deposit required.
Full payment is need after February 9, 1989
Payments in guaranteed funds only!

$589

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union
545-3437
SEE US AT THE TABLE

Pi Kappa Alpha
The Brotherhood of Excellence

PIKE

PIKE

ΠΚΑ

PIKE - There may be a better way to go through college, but nobody's found it yet.

First National Fraternity to ABOLISH HAZING
• 1988 Winner of UMass Chapter Excellence Award as the best fraternity on campus
• 1988 UMass overall athletic champs
• Unparalled social life • Lifelong friendships
• Olympic weight room • Outstanding meal plan

ACADEMICS • ATHLETICS • LEADERSHIP

SPRING RUSH

University men come down tonight at 9:00 p.m. and see what PIKE has to offer

LAST NIGHT!

REFRESHMENTS

TAKE ANOTHER

PEAK

BRECKENRIDGE
GENUINE COLORADO
SKIUSA

THE PEAK

Breckenridge is three majestic, interconnected ski mountains, each with its own high-speed four-passenger SuperChair, as well as twelve other lifts. It all towers above a lovingly restored genuine Victorian town full of shops, restaurants, nightspots and enough lodging to entertain over 20,000 visitors at once. Isn't it time you took another peak? You may never look elsewhere.

$599

PRESENTED BY
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437

HEY SENIORS:
Get Shot!

Senior Portrait Sittings will be held from Feb. 27 - Mar. 17, 9-5 pm in Rms 177/178 of the Campus Center. Call 5-2874 for info & appointments.

ORDER your 1989 INDEX NOW!
It's a $25 investment in memories that last a lifetime!

Send coupon to address below.

Make your checks payable to: INDEX Yearbook

NAME _____
PERMANENT ADDRESS _____
_____
LOCAL PHONE NO. _____

INDEX 103 Campus Center/UMass. Amherst 545-0848

RESIDENT ASSISTANT SELECTION PROCESS 1989 - 1990

BECOME A R.A.

A RA is a live-in part-time student staff member. Duties include fostering floor and cluster community, assisting with hall management, and enforcing University policies.

Final Information Sessions

Wed. Feb. 22, 1989 1:00 - 2:30 CC168
Wed. Feb. 22, 1989 3:00 - 4:30 CC168
Thurs. Feb. 23, 1989 7p.m. Brett Main Lounge

Become a student leader in your residence hall. Apply now for a Resident Assistant (RA) position!

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, sex, sexual preference, age, marital status, national origin, mental or physical handicap, political belief or affiliation, membership or non-membership in any organization, or veteran status, in any aspect of admission or treatment of students or in employment.

STUDENT COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Proposals are solicited for Student Commencement Speaker.

Format: 3 typewritten pages, double-spaced (approximately 5 minutes speaking time)

Deadline: March 1, 1989.
(Commencement is May 28, 1989.)

Selection process and criteria: A committee consisting of a majority of student members will review entries (authors' names will be deleted) for relevance to UMass and higher education, substance, and "appropriateness". Ratings will be assigned. Selected entrants will be asked to "audition". Final selection will then be made by the committee.

Submit proposals to: Robert N. Brooks, Director, Student Affairs Information Services, 229 Whitmore (545-3480).

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Ayatollah's threat political, not religious

Moslems are the fastest growing population in the world, and by the turn of the century one of every four people will be a devote of Islam, according to ABC News.

So, watch what you write in the future because if you offend the ayatollah by exercising your freedom of expression, he might just put a price on your head.

Pedro Pereira

Forget hiding. There will be enough Moslems, many of whom willing to carry out the ayatollah's orders, to make attempting to stay out of sight futile.

Salman Rushdie, whose head is worth about $6 million, is trying to hide. But he apparently realized some Moslem with dollar signs in his pupils will inevitably find him, for the author of "The Satanic Verses" apologized for blaspheming Islam and offending Moslems.

"I profoundly regret the distress the publication has occasioned to sincere followers of Islam," Rushdie announced Saturday through his agent.

Rushdie apologized to sincere Moslems because he knows religion isn't the only cause of the distress over his book. Opportunists, headed by Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, have used the situation for political reasons.

Fanatical mobs in Pakistan last week seized the opportunity to denounce the United States as they rioted in front of Islamabad's American cultural center, killing several people in the process.

Khomeini, who in his 10 years in power hasn't missed a chance to start trouble, knew exactly when to cause an uproar over the book although it's been sold in Britain for a year: publication in the United States.

The ayatollah's resentment toward the United States has a legitimate foundation. After all, before "Iran's spiritual leader" ascended to power following a revolution in the late 1970s, Washington and the CIA had controlled the country's politics.

But sentencing to death an India-born British citizen to get at the United States is, at best, cowardly.

Khomeini knows that by invoking Allah he can get his brainwashed followers to do anything, especially since many interpret the Koran as sentencing to death those who insult Islam.

What else could we expect from a man whose concept of foreign policy revolves around terrorism?

The ayatollah's madman tactics are damaging the image of Islam and its followers more than "The Satanic Verses" ever could. Westerners who may not suspect Khomeini's cowardly political game, are looking upon the fuss over Rushdie's book as simply a bunch of religious lunatics making a mess.

Western countries need to make it clear, as Britain did by freezing relations with Iran last week, that they will not tolerate Khomeini's intimidation. The 12 European Community nations' ordering their envoys in Iran to leave the country is a step in the right direction.

Diplomatic reprisals, however, are not enough when dealing with a madman. Besides, the ayatollah's actions indicate an attempt to undermine the work Iranian moderates have done toward improving relations with the West.

The West should seriously consider economic sanctions, which would hurt more than freezing relations ever could.

Pedro Pereira is a Collegian columnist

Pitching pays, politics doesn't

Over the next three years, Orel Hershiser will make $7.9 million; Roger Clemens will make $7.5 million. What do these two men do for a living? Are they the rulers of the world? No. Are they the leaders of a nation? For some us, maybe. But for most of us, no. What do they do to earn this kind of money? They throw a baseball around.

Bob Bobala

Now, the salary of members of Congress — the real leaders of our country (whether they are good leaders or not is another matter, but they are our leaders) — is under $100,000 a year. Recently, an attempt to raise their salaries was met by public outcry all across America. Constituents from all over the country called their representatives and informed them that if they voted for the pay raise they would not be in office long enough to enjoy it.

Okay, so no pay raise. "Congressmen don't need more than $90,000 a year anyway," you say. But now, if you're a parent of a young boy, and you want him to succeed in life, what do you do? Do you begin to teach him about American values and tell him of our country's need for leadership, hoping that you will spark an interest in him to run for Congress some day? Of course not. Instead, you start working on his pitching arm.

At least, that's what I would do. I wouldn't want to be a member of Congress who works day and night, only sees his kids when they're sleeping because it's so late by the time he gets home (that is, if his family has relocated to Washington), travels all over the place, and has the enormous burden that what he does affects the welfare of millions of people. All for less than a hundred grand a year.

"But if someone is a member of Congress, he or she shouldn't be in it for the money," you say. Of course not. But like it or not, money is a factor. It is ingrained into our society. Warped as it may be, money is the common denominator for success in this country. Who do we look up to as the real success stories in our culture? Members of Congress? Teachers? Social workers? No. We look up to the people who are making big money — Eddie Murphy, Donald Trump, Roger Clemens.

If you were making $250 thousand a year as the president of some corporation, would you want to give it up to run for Congress? Maybe — if you really wanted to serve. But, subconsciously at least, there must always be a little voice within you saying, "Stick with cash, man. Stay where the bucks are."

An "overpaid" Congress would certainly not be right. Public service is a sacrifice and money should not be a reason to run for office. But as an incentive, the buck couldn't hurt — especially for the leaders of the government bureaucracy outside of Congress. The people who fill these positions — which may hold less glory, but nevertheless may be just as important — need to be competent. Higher pay may lure more qualified business leaders, attorneys, etc., into public service.

As for the members of Congress, let them have a couple hundred thousand dollars a year — and keep them accountable for it. Make sure they earn it. The value of their work has a much greater potential for society than what Orel Hershiser does. Let them be paid at least a little more accordingly. Instead of calling up John Kerry and telling him you're not going to vote for him in the next election if he gets a pay raise, call up Roger Clemens and tell him you'll never buy another Red Sox ticket as long as you live because of what he's making.

Bob Bobala is a Collegian columnist

Write to your regents about your rights!

Do the budget cuts making a wreck out of your college experience?
Is this the seventh semester you haven't gotten any classes in your major?
If you want to tell your state representative or the trustees how these cuts are affecting you, send your complaints to the following addresses (unless you like add-drop and spending and extra semester or two here):

Board of Regents
Room 1401 McCormack Bldg.
1 Ashburn Place
Boston, MA 02108-1696

Statehouse
Beacon Street
Boston, MA 02133

The Collegian accepts letters and columns from the UMass community and Five-College Area. All submissions must be typed, (handwritten pieces will not be considered) with the author's name, address, and phone number attached. All letters and columns automatically become property of the Collegian and are subject to editing for space, grammar, and clarity. Correspondence can be sent to 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Any questions or comments? Then drop by or call us at 545-3500, and ask for Pam, Meredith, or Janine.

Some simple steps to curb prejudice

"I'm not a racist," he said. "One of my best friends is a Puerto Rican."

Instead of saying "what kind of guilt-solving technique are you trying to kid yourself with?" I bit my tongue and decided to let him wallow in his ignorance. Now I wish I had not.

A lot of whites who don't consider themselves racists, are unknowingly just that. For them, I have a few suggestions. I hope to ring a few bells in the minds of some of my fellow white students here at the University of Massachusetts.

1) Next time you hear a racial joke, refuse to laugh. Instead, you might explain that racism is a horrible sociological disease that plagues our society, and is not to be joked about.

2) Next time you find yourself saying "I won't date outside my race or religion because of what my parents would say," ask yourself if someday your children are going to be saying the same thing. Don't perpetuate backward ideals.

3) Next time you find you are inspired to say or do something on behalf of racial unity, don't hesitate because you are afraid of being ridiculed by other whites. Do it anyway. Do you really believe in something you will not stand up for? Not being racist by what you define as a racist is not enough. One does not have to be a card-carrying member of the KKK to be bigoted.

The struggle for racial equality may sometimes seem like it has nothing to do with us (whites), but it does. As long as we live in a backward society, there can be no moving forward for any of us. I am calling on other white students of this university to open your eyes to the fact that racism still exists in a bigger way than most of us want to admit — around us, among us, and all too often, within us.

Paige Dygert
Northampton

■ Spartacus

continued from page 3

The fight between the Republican Club and the Spartacist League, a Cambridge based Trotskyist organization, lasted approximately 10 minutes and involved nearly 20 people. The wrestling match eventually spilled out into the hallway and was broken up by police.

The Republicans allegedly disrupted the forum the Spartacists were holding.

The Republicans stringently denied being unruly and defended their right to attend the Spartacist League's meetings.

"We weren't there to protest," said McGonnigal. "We merely attempted to engage in discourse concerning ideological differences."

The Spartacists said they tried to eject a Republican who refused to take a seat after he was asked to several times. The scuffle occurred when the Republican Club members thought their standing friend was being manhandled. One Republican was treated at University Health Services after being headbutted on the nose during the fight. This was the only reported injury.

Blame for starting the fight has not been placed on either group, however, both groups have been barred from obtaining meeting rooms in the Campus Center facility by order of the building's director.

■ North trial

continued from page 1

Keker tole the jury, "The need for secrecy is no excuse for lying to Congress. Lying to Congress is a crime."

"You don't have to be a political scientist to understand why that's so," Keker said. "Congress enacts the law, the president approves it and enforces it. If they start lying to each other, our system of government is not going to work."

A year after it passed the 1984 Boland Amendment banning US military assistance to the Nicaraguan Contras, Congress received news reports that North, then a Marine Lieutenant colonel, was secretly raising money for the rebels from foreign countries and private donors and providing tactical military advice.

North and his boss at the time, national security adviser Robert McFarlane, "decided they didn't want Congress to know what Colonel North had been doing. They decided they would not tell Congress," Keker said. "They decided they would place themselves above the law and not tell Congress about Colonel North's activities."

Similar inquiries a year later were met with false answer from North, including a meeting with the House Intelligence Committee at the White House when the National Security Council aide "looked them right in the eye and lied," Keker said.

■ HRTA career day

continued from page 1

Omni has been recruiting at career day for four years and in that time has hired about eight UMass graduates, he said.

"This is one of our major feeding grounds for management trainees," he said.

Students also believe that career day is a good way to make necessary contacts.

Pranjul Pandey, a junior, is looking for a part-time summer job for 1989 and hopes to make contacts with people in the industry, he said.

"If you get a part-time job with a good corporation you might have an inside track" to a full-time position after graduation, he said.

Lynn Nigro, a representative for Corporate Chiefs, got her job with the company about two years ago through career day and she is back trying to get the company some recognition, she said.

Joe MacDonald, a senior personnel management major, was "just trying to make some contacts" and said career day will help him decide where he wants to work when he graduates.

Locke, who co-organized the day as an independent study, said career day has been very successful because companies keep coming back.

AIDS:

Support Group for Family, Friends and Lovers of people with AIDS

A support group is being sponsored by University Health Services to assist people who are coping with the fact that a family member, lover, or a friend has AIDS.

The first meeting will be on March 9, Thursday, 5:30-7:30 pm

For more information regarding the make-up of the group and the meeting place, please call the Health Education Office on Wednesdays and Thursdays and ask for Debbie (549-2671, ext. 181) Confidentiality is assured.

STILL COMICS' #1 SWINGER!

the AMAZING SPIDER-MAN™

Available at:

Same Bat Channel
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
586-8775

Hundreds of 25¢ Comics
All back issues 15% off
(including wall comics)

Discount Games and Supplies

DRINK SPECIALS
Rolling Rock $1.50
Labatt's $1.50
90¢ Rolling Rock Drafts

TONIGHT—REGGAE
NEW HORIZONS

THURSDAY—RYTHM & BLUES
INNER CITY BLUES

FRIDAY—LIVE JAZZ
SHAWN PATTERSON QUARTET 7:30-10:30

SATURDAY—FROM N.Y.C.
REBECCA KANE TRIO 6:30-9:30
JOE KEENAN & "THE BAND OF CROWS" 9:30-closing

TRY OUR DELICOUS FULL MENU

30 BOLTWOOD WALK, DOWNTOWN, AMHERST 253-2083

THE ALTERNATIVE SPRING BREAK '89

Killington VERMONT

CONDO LODGING & LIFTS

SKI and PARTY WEEK

MARCH 19-24

$259

LAGNIAPPE

CONDO LODGING & LIFTS

PROGRAM INCLUDES:
• 5 DAYS LIFTS TO SIX MOUNTAINS
• SPECIAL COLLEGE PARTIES
• 5 NITES CONDO LODGING AT PINNACLE
• FUN SHUTTLE

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437

INCLUDES TAXES AND SERVICES

NON-MEMBERS WELCOME

PARTIES PARTIES PARTIES

ARTS & LIVING

Byrne brings beleza beat of Brazil to US audience

By GRAEME THOMSON
Collegian Staff

Yes chums, the DJ is back in the hot seat after an elongated credit anxiety attack - and I'm not talking dosh here. Anyway, thanks to that lad Drukman (he of the Steak Tenderising Instructions and Raspberry Seedless) for so adequately filling in while I was away. It's a real mixed bag (and yet only one record) I've got for you this week, I suppose if you were really hard up for a label you could call it "World Beat" - whatever that means.

DISC JUNKIE

What I'm basically on about here, in a roundabout and not terribly matter of factual sort of way is David Byrne's eagerly awaited collection of Brazil Classics Vol 1 - Beleza Tropical (Sire), but before all you Swiss muesli-eatin'-grapefruit-juice-with-the-bits-swiggin'-Basho-quotin'-Art-pseudent-types start reaching for your biodegradable cheque-books, I should perhaps point out that Mr. Byrne's only actual contribution to this album is the sleeve notes.

Still if, like me, you have an unquenchable thirst for cool latin rhythms and deftly-crafted melodies, coupled with the wonderfully seductive sound of the Portugese language, then much of this is definitely for you.

The opener, Jorge Ben's "Ponta de Lanca Africano (Umbabarauma)" sounds like some kind of tribal chant riding off an Atomic Rooster riff and provides, if my chronology is correct, some idea as to where Byrne and the Heads got the unmistakably primitive drum sound on "Burning Down the House." And Ben's vocal stylings are also remarkably similar to Byrne's - or is it the other way round?

Much of what follows is Bacharach-goes-Bossa - flamenco-tinged "cool" jazz whipped up 'til it's really light and fluffy, not to everyone's taste (especially all you "kick ass" rockin' hard cases out there) certainly, but as Byrne points out, you shouldn't be fooled by the apparent sweetness of these songs. The politically subversive messages in the lyrics prompted the Brazilian fastist regime of the late 60s and early 70s to force many of the artists into exile. Caetano Veloso and Gilberto Gil, were judged to be so much of a threat to the establishment of the time that they were imprisoned.

However, all this was largely lost on me because the English translations of the lyrics come only with LP and CD, and not the cassette which I had. So to my ears, Lo Borges' "Equatorial" still sounds like a particularly awful R.E.O. Speedwagon dirge.

But the wheat far outweighs the chaff. Veloso's epic "Terra" has the gravity of Leonard Cohen at his best, Nazare Pereira's "Caixa de Sol" sounds like Yello (no doubt also devotees of this kind of music) meets the Throwing Muses (really twisted combo there), and "Sonho Meu" by Maria Bethania and Gal Costa is an absolute delight, bringing back memories of Carmen Miranda, and images of exotic lands which, in this climate, are more than welcome.

Brazil Classics has given me the bug for this music, and I'm looking forward to promised future compilations of Samba and Pagode which from Byrne's description, must be the Brazilian equivalents of Techno and Acid House. In the meanwhile this is enough to show there's more to Brazilian Music than a club remix of "La Habanera."

Next week something of a change of scene when I'll be investigating that most revered of institutions - the WMUA playlist, and like Ted Koppel will attempt to "make a complex world clear." Later.

Photo courtesy of the Arts Council

SCRAPS! The Arts Council of Franklin County will present the exhibit "Scraps of Life: Chilean Arpilleras" from March 9 to April 21. This arpillera (above) and 40 others will be on display at the Artspace Gallery in Greenfield. the exhibit is free and open to the public.

Dance, and music for tight budgets

Outstanding student dancers and choreographers from the University of Massachusetts will be featured in the annual "UMass Student Dance Concert" presented by Alive with Dance on February 23, 24 and 25 at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Student choreography in various idioms has been selected to create an exciting evening of varied dance styles. Many of the featured works are upbeat and fast-paced, while others are introspective or lyrical.

Admission to the concert is $4 for the general public, $3 for students and $1 for senior citizens and children under 12. Tickets are available from the Fine Arts Center Box Office.

***

"Go Into the Chapel", a Department of Theater and Dance production written and directed by Beth Rosenberg, will be presented at 8 p.m. Feb. 23, 24 and 25 in Johnson Chapel of Amherst College. In this 90 minute production the author attempts to show how intellectual ideas about the social, economic and political place of women in society relate to the "real world" in which they function. The author creates a work tht deals with women's struggle to have a voice, a body and a mind all at the same time. From the sermon dedicating Johnson Chapel, to a marriage of ideas, to a game show about our bodies, the ensemble of 5 actors runs, sings, and speaks out about using and learning experiences.

***

Finally, the Smith College Chamber Orchestra under the direction of Philipp Nagele, will perform its first concert this year on Sunday, Feb. 26 at 8 p.m. in Sage Hall at Smith College. The program includes works by Handel and Bach and the concert is fre and open to the public.

Readings in Black Music, more than aesthetic

By BILL ROSENBLATT
Collegian Correspondent

As this is the last Wednesday of Black History Month, it's only fitting to offer some music related reading suggestions to those of you who became inspired to do some of your own investigation into Black history. Hopefully the books discussed here will extend your learning well beyond the month of February. Most of them are available at the UMass music library.

Valley Jazz

Most books on Black music treat the subject from an aesthetic point of view, ignoring the all-important historic and socio-economic factors behind it. However, there are a few books that deal with the music as a reflection of, and sometimes a contributor to, the overall struggle of Blacks in America. These books also expose the racist scorn, neglect and exploitation that Black musicians have suffered. Not surprisingly, the first was written by a Black author at a time when Black consciousness was on the rise. Blues People (1963) by LeRoi Jones (now known as Amiri Baraka) is a landmark work. It deals with how the socio-economic history of Blacks (the "blues people") has been reflected in their music, and is written in a "scholarly" style. Jones' second book on music, Black Music (1967), is a compendium of magazine articles, album liner notes, etc. When it was published, the Black cause was asserting itself in more obvious ways, musically as well as politically; accordingly, Jones eschews his "scholarly" style for "vernacular". The book is powerful and uncompromising.

More books on this subject came in the wake of Jones' pioneering works. Frank Kofsky's Black Nationalism and the Revolution in Music (1970) covers what the title suggests. He makes a good case for John Coltrane and Malcom X as the most important Black figures of the 60's, drawing interesting parallels between the two, and suggests that Marxism is the best way to provide economic equality for Blacks (musicians in particular). Kofsky's Marxist leanings are typical of the now-defunct Jazz & Pop magazine, for which he wrote. His long, probing interview of Coltrane, contained in the book, is also available on cassette at the Forbes Library in Northampton.

Pianist/vocalist Ben Sidran's Black Talk (1971) is similar to Jones' Blues People, but focuses more on the oral tradition central to African-American music as an alternative to European music's written tradition. It is very informative, though its "academic" style makes it slower going than the other books mentioned here (the book resulted from Sidran's Ph.D. work in the field). The foreward is by UMass professor Archie Shepp, who is the "horses mouth" on the subject.

Finally, it is worthwhile to read about the lives of the central figures of the 1960's musical revolution that paralleled the political developments. C.O. Simpkins' Coltrane (1975) is the most rewarding of the three existing biographies of the saxophone giant. Simokins includes several poems that were inspired by particular Coltrane performances. A.B. Spellman's Black Music: Four Lives (1966) covers the lives of Ornette Coleman and Cecil Taylor, the other two central figures, as well as Herbie Nichols and Jackie McLean, both great but lesser-known musicians. The book is particularly valuable for laying bare the evils of the New York nightclub and recording industries.

Joe Crash and the Whiplash, Michael Gregory hit Noho, Hadley

Tonight at Sheehan's cafe in Northampton, area rockabilly/tex-mex/rock and roll/blues favorites Joe Crash and the Whiplash will take the stage. A winner of several UMass battle of the bands contests (under their previous name The Movers), Joe Crash serves up a crisp, unique and sometimes unpredictable brand of music. Get there early.

This Saturday night at Katina's in Hadley, guitarist Michael Gregory will give a special performance. Gregory has worked with Steve Winwood in the past, and now is embarking on a rejuvenated solo career. Featured in this month's Guitar Player magazine, his skillful technique is widely admired by guitarists in every genre of popular music.

Photo courtesy of Student Development Center

BLACK HISTORY MONTH will be commemorated by the Five Colleges with a special concert performed by singer/songwriter Jane Sapp (above) on March 4, at John M. Greene Hall, Smith College, Northampton. sapp has performed with Pete Seeger and Sweet Honey in the Rock. Tickets available at the FAC Box Office.

Tom Hank's new movie, The Burbs, has no barbs

By RAYMOND MARTIN
Collegian Correspondent

The Burbs
Mt. Farms Theaters

Tom Hanks is a good actor. His performances in Punchline and Big (for which he was nominated for an oscar) were outstanding. Unfortunately, though he was magical in those two films, he could barely pull a rabbit from a hat with the material he had to work with in The Burbs.

This awful movie isn't the fault of the cast, the director or the editor. The story is incredibly stupid and full of holes. Carrie Fisher plays Hanks' wife in a lackluster performance that I attribute to her realization that the script is moronic.

Hanks plays Ray Peterson, a man who is frazzled by his job and decides to spend some time vacationing at his house in the suburbs. All is not so restful in suburbia, however.

Ray's neighbor and friend Art is so stupid, he makes Goofy look like Einstein. He also shares the block with an eccentric war veteran who dresses in khaki and addresses his fellow neighbors as "soldier", and a snobbish man with a pesky poodle.

All is well until the Clopecs move into the neighborhood. They are weird. The never come out during the daytime, and because Ray's son sees them digging in their backyard at night, he and the other neighbors naturally assume that they're mass murderers. Their suspicions are strengthened when Walter (the poodle owner) mysteriously vanishes. The rest of the movie is a boring "let's spy on them and get proof" farce that's reminiscent of an ill written episode of The Munsters.

The movie is obviously trying to say that all of those lush green lawns and perfect houses we see in the suburbs are occupied by nosey, prying people who have nothing better to do than see what's going on next door. It's a parody of main-stream American life. Well, that would have been fine if there was a real screenplay to work with.

The humor is predictable and so is the story. In one scene, Ray and Art are being attacked by bees, and their gung-ho army man neighbor tells them to run to him so he can spray them with a hose to get the bees off. He tries to run towards them (stop me if you see this coming) but the hose is too short and he falls flat on his back.

The holes in the script are so big they have gravitational pull, however, to elaborate on them would give away most of the ill-fated story. If you do choose to see this movie (don't) keep this in mind: why would a world famous doctor who is probably quite intelligent be stupid enough to keep that in his trunk?

I'd like to see Tom Hanks in more movies. He's magnetic and has a disarming quality about him that makes you like him. It's too bad that this bomb had to come around at Oscar time. It certainly won't help him.

CORRECTION

Press information regarding pianist Nigel Coxe's upcoming performance was incorrect. Coxe will appear Tuesday, March 7 at 8 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall, not March 4.

HADLEY TIRE & AUTO CENTER
We Care!
253-9911 253-9054
Cooper TIRES
COOPER
Trendsetter A/W Radial
COOPER'S NEW ALL-WHEEL POSITION RADIAL OFFERS SUPERB PERFORMANCE IN ALL WEATHER.
$39.95
End Seasonal Changeover! P155/80R-13

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS
MARCH 18-25
When you break away this year, do it with style.
SUN FUN!!
round trip air
7 nights
great night life
Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB 547-3437
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.
$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP
THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION
A $75 Reservation Deposit Required
SAVE
LAGNAF
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY
Why More?
The UMASS Ski Club invites you to Montego Bay, Jamaica, West Indies. We will be staying in the Towers at the Seawinds Resort where all your Spring Break needs are directly below. We are next to the beach, pool, evening entertainment, tennis courts, and the hottest night club in the bay. Located five minutes from town, this resort has, at your disposal, water sports, sunbathing, and an array of restaurants and bars. Don't be lured by low-budget, problem-filled tear-offs that, in the end, turn to rip-offs. WE PROVIDE GUARANTEED RESERVED ACCOMMODATIONS AND FLIGHTS! Spend $9 a day more and step above the rest on your own vacation island!
A VACATION SHOULD BE A PLEASURE—NOT A HASSLE!
LAGNAF
BECAUSE IT'S WORTH IT
Mar. 18 - Mar. 25 • $569 per person from JFK
All Prices are Inclusive—No Hidden Extras
Double & Triple Occupancy Rates Available
Presented By
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437
MasterCard VISA

REGION

BU student dies in leap

BOSTON (AP) — A Boston University communications student who fell five stories to his death this weekend was attempting to leap a 20-foot alley from one building to another, a Boston University spokesman said yesterday.

Matthew Waldron, 20, of Drexel Hill, Pa., died in the Fenway section of Boston about midnight Saturday because of a "daredevil stunt" that went awry, according to reports quoting Waldron's friends.

Waldron tried to leap from an apartment complex to the roof of the Boston Latin Academy after drinking with friends who lived in the apartments. One friend, who declined to give his name, said the group went to the roof by way of an emergency exit. All but Waldron and one other person returned to the apartment.

Waldron suddenly "took off his coat, backed up to get a running start" and tried to leap to the academy rooftop, the friend said.

He fell to the alley and was pronounced dead about 1 a.m. Sunday at Brigham and Women's Hospital.

A police spokesman said the death was "definitely an accident."

Studies show powerful drugs may help breast cancer victims

BOSTON (AP) — Four new studies show that chemotherapy and hormones can moderately improve the outlook for the 70,000 women diagnosed each year with early breast cancer, but experts disagree whether every patient should get these powerful drugs.

Until recently, doctors believed that chemotherapy should be reserved for women whose breast cancer had spread to their lymph nodes. The new research suggests that many of those whose tumors are still confined to their breasts could also benefit from this treatment.

The studies found that women who received chemotherapy or hormonal therapy were somewhat more likely to remain free of cancer, but that they did not live any longer than those who were treated with standard surgery of radiation.

About 70 percent of women operated on for early breast cancer do well without any followup drug therapy. The newest results present physicians with a dilemma: Should they subject all patients to often-grueling courses of drug therapy, even though only a small minority of them will benefit?

Some experts agreed that the decisions to use the medicines should be left up to the patient and not made by the physician alone.

"The mistake would be for the doctors to automatically give the drug without explaining the unresolved issues about whether there will be a survival advantage and the possible long-term side effects," said Dr. Nicholas Robert of New England Medical Center, a co-author of one of the studies.

Last May, the National Cancer Institute sent letters to doctors recommending that all breast cancer patients get chemotherapy or hormone therapy. As evidence, it revealed the broad conclusions of three of the latest studies but gave few details.

Snow brought to college for publicity photos

WILLIAMSTOWN (AP) – In a measure of the lack of snow in the Berkshires this winter, Williams College officials trucked in 60 tons of man-made snow from a ski area for photographs for a college promotional brochure.

"We're not faking anything," Philip F. Smith, director of admissions, maintained Monday as workers spread the white stuff from the nearby Brodie Mountain Ski Area in front of a dormitory and the geology building. "We are just hoping to get some good winter shots."

Student models were posed amid the manufactured drifts for photographs to be used in the college's prospectus. About 30,000 copies of the brochure are mailed to high school students each year.

The college may have snapped its photos just in time. By late yesterday morning, the campus was soggy under a spring-like rain and temperatures were expected to reach the unseasonable 50's, according to Ellen Barek of the Williams publicity office.

"There may be a lump or two of it left," she said of the imported snow. "But the rest of the campus is still the same dull brown it has been all winter."

The northern Berkshire Mountains, which normally receive 50 to 55 inches of snow by this time of year, have received only about 18 inches of snow said John Hockridge of the New England Weather Associates office in nearby North Adams.

"The snowfall has been about one-third normal and most of that has come in one-inch falls," Hockridge said. "We got about two inches of snow in North Adams early this morning, but its all turned to slush and rain now."

Ski areas throughout the region, even those that make snow, have reported their business off at least 20 percent because of the balmy winter.

"In the 24 years we've been in operation, I've never seen anything like this winter," said Matt Kelly, general manager of Brodie Mountain.

"In the ski business you have two major holidays- Christmas week and Washington's Birthday week-and if you don't get it during this holidays, that's it," Kelly said.

On the mountain above Williamstown, about fie inches of snow fell before daybreak Tuesday, but "then the rain knocked that back to about two inches," Kelly said.

"We've made more snow this year than we ever have before," Kelly said. "But one of our problems is a lot of our customers come from Long Island and Northern New Jersey where the ground is totally bare and the golf courses and outdoor tennis courts are still open and they are not really thinking of skiing."

Williams is not the only place where the ski area has provided snow to the snowless.

In January, Kelly said, the ski area sent 80 tons of snow to Grafton State Park in New York state for its annual winter carnival.

PERFORMERS/ENTERTAINERS WANTED
For amusement parks world wide
Singers, dancers, actors, musicians, comedians, magicians, jugglers
Saturday, February 25th, 1989
Sheraton Tara Hotel
1 Monarch Place—Springfield, MA 01144
10:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Paul Osborne's Park Shows

charlie's
1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11 a.m. 7 Days A Week • Call for Take Out
Kitchen Open till midnight
New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables
Tonight 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
9:00 PM - 12:00 AM
Cuervo Tequilla Sunrise $1.50 Drink of the Week
Moosehead $1.75 Beer of the Month
FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Tues. 10¢ Buffalo Wings 9-12
Wed. 99¢ Nacho & Cheese Platters 9-12
Sunday 4 Burger Platters for $5.00 6-10

1989/90 FINACIAL AID FORM DEADLINE—MARCH 1, 1989
To recieve priority consideratin for Financial Aid your Financial Aid Form (FAF) must be recieved by College Scholarship Service (CSS) by Wednesday, March 1, 1989.
You can obtain the FAF at Finacial Aid Services, 243 Whitmore Administration Building, Monday thru Friday from 8:30 AM to 5 PM. Also SAFA (Students Advocating Finacial Aid) members will be on the Campus Center Concourse on Tuesday Feb. 21, Wednesday Feb. 22, thursday Feb. 23 and Tuesday Feb. 28, 1989.
Don't risk the loss of your Finacial Aid Dollars, file on time!
1989/90 SOLICITUD DE ASISTENCIA ECONOMICA
FECHA LIMITE—1 DE MARZO DE 1989
Para recibir prioridad para assistencia económica su solicitud (Finacial Aid Form (FAF)) debe ser recibida por el College Schlarship Service (CSS) en o antes del i de marzo de 1989.
Usted puede obtener una copia en la oficina de assitencia económica: Finacial Aid Services, 243 Whitmore Administration Building, de lunes a viernes, de 8:30 AM a 5:00 PM. También el 21, 22, 23 y el 28 de febrero, miembros de SAFA (Students Advocating Finacial Aid) estarán en el Campus Center Concourse.
No te arriesques a perder tu assistencia económica: llena tu solicitud a tiempo.

SMART COOKIES KNOW...
$1.79 LUNCH SPECIAL
興旺樓
CHINESE KITCHEN
150 KING ST., NOHO • 586-8220
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 253-2571

TOP of the CAMPUS

RESTAURANT & LOUNGE

All are Welcome!

L·O·U·N·G·E

Ideally located where faculty, staff, and students can meet to enjoy the friendly atmosphere. The Lounge offers full cocktail service, light hor d'oeuvres at 4 pm, and hearty snacks at 9 pm most every night.

MON.-FRI.: 11:30 AM-12 MID.
SAT.-SUN.: 5 PM-12 MID.
POSITIVE I.D. REQUIRED.

L·U·N·C·H

A great variety of hot and cold sandwiches, salads, and hot entrees fill our menu. For a quick lunch try our MINI BUFFET with two hot entrees, two vegetable dishes, and soup of the day or salad bar.

MONDAY-FRIDAY: 11:30 AM-2:00 PM

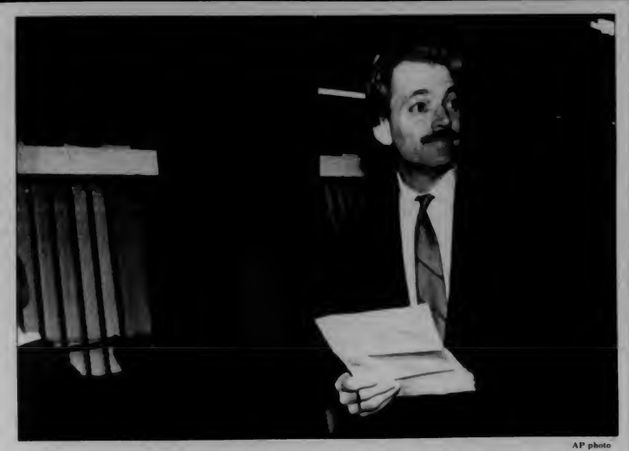
D·I·N·N·E·R

All are welcome to enjoy our great prices, great food, and great view. Dinner entrees start at $5.75.

TUESDAY-SATURDAY:
5:00 PM-9:00 PM
DURING ACADEMIC YEAR

11th Floor Campus Center • (413) 549-6000
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

WORLD & NATION



AP photo

CHECKING THE VOTES — David Duke checks the vote totals as the voting machines are opened at a warehouse in Kepner, La., yesterday morning. In the election Duke, a former Ku Klux Klan member, won a seat in the Louisiana state legislature.

Bush condemns Iranian death threats

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, calling Iran's death threats against author Salman Rushdie "deeply offensive to the norms of civilized behavior," yesterday backed European countries against the goverement of Ayatollah Khomeini, who has called on Muslims to send Rushdie "to hell." Noting existing economic sanctions against Iran, Bush said only that "I don't know where we'll go from there."

Bush also said American booksellers deserve the protection of the law against threats of retaliation if they display copies of Rushdie's novel, "The Satanic Verses." Several book dealers, including two large chains, have taken the book off the shelves.

"However offensive the book may be, inciting murder and offering rewards for its perpetration are deeply offensive to the norms of civilized behavior," said the president. "I've just laid down how I feel in terms of in this case [of the Iranian government] exhorting people to go out and commit murder."

At a meeting with reporters on the eve of a six-day trip to the Far East, Bush also reiterated his support for his embattled Pentagon nominee John Tower and urged the Senate to "move forthrightly" to approve the nomination.

The president said the allegations that have held up action on Tower's nomination were "very unfair treatment of this man by rumor and innuendo." He said a new FBI

continued on page 16

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
RENTAL LEASE PURCHASE

SHEEHAN'S CAFE
NORTHAMPTON
TONIGHT:
JOE CRASH AND THE WHIPLASH
24 Pleasant St., Northampton
586-4258 21+

PLEASANT ST. THEATER
"Russell is at his kinky best. delightfully outrageous."
— Gene Siskel, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE
KEN RUSSELL'S
THE LAIR OF THE WHITE WORM
Weekdays 7 & 9 p.m.
Friday 6, 8, 10 p.m.
Sat-Sun 4, 6, 8, & 10 p.m.
27 Pleasant St. Northampton
586-0935
Also Playing Almodovar's MATADOR

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT Print Shop!
228 Triangle St., Amherst

AMHERST CINEMA
BIRD
Directed by Clint Eastwood
Held over 2nd week
1 showing every evening at 7:30
AMITY ST. 253-5426

Council Travel
DON'T WAIT
BOOK NOW FOR SPRING BREAK!
SPRINGBREAK from BOSTO
4 NIGHTS NASSAU $379pp
7 NIGHTS CANCUN $479pp
7 NIGHTS PUERTO la CRUZ $599pp
VENEZUELA, the NEW EXOTIC DESTINATION!
Incl all hotel/room taxes & service charges.
Departure taxes not included.
BOOK NOW!
413-256-1261
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd.
No. Amherst 549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

BUDGET TRAVEL CENTER
Cheapest Fares to:
LONDON
FRANKFURT
PARIS
SYDNEY
TOKYO
AMSTERDAM
AUCKLAND
HONG KONG
• EUROPE
• ASIA
• AUSTRALIA/ NEW ZEALAND
Plus railpasses international student ID, tours and much more. Ask for our free travel catalog.
COUNCIL TRAVEL
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

Copies Half Off After 100
After your first 100 copies of a single sheet original, the rest are half price at Kinko's, the copy center.
kinko's the copy center
220 N Pleasant St.
253-2543

$2.00 OFF new clients only
Chic Cuts
• Wash + Wear
Perms, Body Waves
• Coloring and Dimensional Highlighting
• Facial Waxing
• Manicure
• Facials
• Body Wraps
• "Wolff" Tanning
Expires 2/28/89
We offer a 100% money back guarantee on all of our hair care products
•Redken •Nexus •Paul Mitchell
make your fashion statement
Styles By Deborah
65 University Dr., Amherst
549-5610

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Wednesday Night is Mexican Night!
Corona $2.00
Jose Cuervo $1.75
Margaritas $2.00
Free Nachos!

Dissident given sentence

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Playwright Vaclav Havel yesterday was convicted and sentenced to nine months in prison for his role in a rally commemorating a student who killed himself to protest the 1968 Soviet-led invasion.

Havel, Czechoslovakia's best-known dissident, denied charges that he incited people to "anti-state and anti-Socialist" activity.

In the one-day trial, he was convicted of inciting participation in the banned Jan. 16 rally and for obstructing the duty of a public official.

On the first count he could have been sentenced to a maximum term of two years, on the second to another six months in prison. Prosecutors had asked for a one-year term, but Judge Helena Hlavata ruled on a nine-month prison term and rejected a proposed fine.

The prosecution of Havel and other opposition activists has gone on despite widespread criticism at home, in the East bloc and the West that the communist leaders are dealing too harshly with dissent. Seven other activists from the Charter 77 human rights committee and other independent movements also went on trial yesterday.

Authorites banned a number of Western diplomats and representatives from human rights organizations from the trials.

■ Bush

continued from page 15

report, released Monday, had "gunned down" the allegations of misconduct.

"I saw this as a reaffirmation of what I knew all along. John Tower is qualified to be secretary of defense," he added.

"Anybody that's been through this ordeal will be stronger, not weaker," Bush said.

Bush, who leaves today for Japan, South Korea and China, was asked at one point if the United States had given up momentum in foreign affairs to the Soviets, whose foreign minister Eduard Shevardnadze has been in the Middle East on a peace mission.

Bush brushed off the suggestion as "preposterous."

Later, when asked what the Soviet role in the region ought to be, he replied, "I think it should be a limited role, and I think that's what it's going to be."

"I don't want to be stampeded by the fact that the Soviet foreign ministers of the European Community nations, it was decided to withdraw diplomatic representatives from Iran in the wake of Khomeini's call from the assassination of Rushdie, an Indian-born British citizen living in London.

JFK NEW YORK
New York City
$99 roundtrip

SEA SEATTLE
Seattle
$99 roundtrip

PHX PHOENIX
Phoenix
$99 roundtrip

DEN DENVER
Denver
$99 roundtrip

ORD CHICAGO
Chicago
$99 roundtrip

BOS BOSTON
Boston
$99 roundtrip

FLL FT. LAUDERDALE
Fort Lauderdale
$99 roundtrip

SFO SAN FRANCISCO
San Francisco
$99 roundtrip

LAX LOS ANGELES
Los Angeles
$99 roundtrip

$99 roundtrip airfares on Northwest Airlines. A special offer for students, only for American Express Cardmembers.

If you want to go places, it's time for the American Express® Card.

Because now you can take advantage of new travel privileges on Northwest Airlines only for full-time students who carry the American Express Card.

Travel privileges that offer:

Two $99 roundtrip tickets—fly to any of the more than 180 cities served by Northwest in the contiguous 48 United States. Only one ticket may be used per six-month period.

Special Quarterly Northwest Destination Discounts throughout 1989–up to 25% off the lowest available fare.

5,000 bonus miles in Northwest's WORLDPERKS® free travel program—where only 20,000 miles gets you a free roundtrip ticket to anywhere Northwest flies in the contiguous 48 United States or Canada.

NORTHWEST AIRLINES LOOK TO US

And, of course, you'll enjoy all the exceptional benefits and personal service you would expect from American Express.

The only requirements for privileged travel: you must be a Cardmember, you must be a full-time student, and you must charge your Northwest Airlines tickets with the Card.*

Getting the Card is easier than ever because now you can apply by phone. Just call 1-800-942-AMEX. We'll take your application and begin to process it right away. What's more, with our Automatic Approval offers, you can qualify now while you're still in school.

Apply now. Fly later—for less.

Apply Now: 1-800-942-AMEX

AMERICAN EXPRESS TRAVEL RELATED SERVICES
An American Express company

*Some restrictions may apply. For complete offer details, call 1-800-942-AMEX. Current student Cardmembers automatically receive two $99 vouchers in the mail.

© 1989 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"Hmm ... not bad, Kemosabe ... but this one little better maybe."

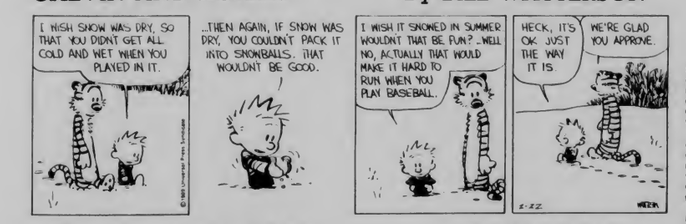
BLOOM COUNTY By BERKE BREATHED

NUDE? EVERYONE'S ALL WEEK?
ORDERS FROM THE HEAD OFFICE.
GEE. I HATE TO THROW A COLD SHOWER ON A SHRIEKO CORPORATE IDEA FOR A RATINGS BOOST...
BUT WE'RE PRETTY MUCH AN UGLY ALL MALE PRODUCTION AREN'T WE?
HERE.
I KNOW, I'M STICKY LINE?
OPUS TAKES A FIELD TRIP TO "THE ACME STEWARDESS SCHOOL."

DOONESBURY By GARRY TRUDEAU

LESS THAN ONE MONTH AGO GEORGE BUSH'S THEME OF THE WEEK WAS ETHICS! HE WOULD NOT TOLERATE, HE TOLD US, EVEN THE APPEARANCE OF IMPROPRIETY IN HIS ADMINISTRATION!
SINCE THEN WE'VE SEEN JOHN TOWER SCANDALIZED BY HIS PECCADILLOS INVOLVING WINE, WOMEN AND ... ONE ASSUMES, SONG. JACK KEMP ACCUSED OF FINANCIAL IMPROPRIETIES, DITTO, ETHICS CHIEF C. BOYDEN GRAY.
ALL OF THIS DURING THE FIRST TWO WEEKS OF GEORGE BUSH'S WATCH! IS THIS WHAT BUSH MEANT BY... BY...
ACTUALLY, I FEEL KINDA SORRY FOR THE GUY
DELAYED HONEYMOON SYNDROME

CALVIN AND HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON



I WISH SNOW WAS DRY, SO THAT YOU DIDN'T GET ALL COLD AND WET WHEN YOU PLAYED IN IT.
...THEN AGAIN, IF SNOW WAS DRY, YOU COULDN'T PACK IT INTO SNOWBALLS. THAT WOULDN'T BE GOOD.
I WISH IT SNOWED IN SUMMER. WOULDN'T THAT BE FUN? ...WELL NO, ACTUALLY THAT WOULD MAKE IT HARD TO RUN WHEN YOU PLAY BASEBALL.
HECK, IT'S OK. JUST THE WAY IT IS.
WE'RE GLAD YOU APPROVE.

THE BEACON HILL GANG By AL ARPAD

OUR STORY SO FAR: HUGE BUDGET CUTS HAVE UNLEASHED CHAOS ON THE ONCE PEACEFUL CAMPUS...
YO, STUDENTS! WE ARE IMPLEMENTIN' ANOTHER FEE, SO HAND OVER ALL YOUR MONEY.
ADMINISTRATIVE PROFESSIONALS
ARPAD
YOU MEAN ANOTHER CURRICULUM FEE?
YEH, DAT'S IT- WE NEED A BUNCHA NEW CURRICULUMS.
TOMORROW: STUDENT GOVERNMENT TO THE RESCUE!

YEASTHEAD By JASON TALERMAN

ETC.

"One thing I know. If living isn't a seeking for the grail it may be a damned amusing game."

-F. Scott Fitzgerald

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS

1 Happy beginning
5 Thrashes
10 Uninviting
14 Beauchican's concern
15 Indian title
16 Word with weight or work
17 Feed unit
18 On the fence
20 Delivery person
22 Cardinals or Orioles
23 Giver's opposite
24 Toughens
25 City on the Seine
28 Sea duck
30 Maxims
32 Fragrance
33 Relaxing piece
36 Window unit
37 Crowbar
39 Garment for 15 Across
40 Noah's masterpiece
41 Fontevn's title
42 Occurrences
44 Ripen
46 Collect
47 California team
50 Aromatic seed
52 Casablanca actor
53 Attacker
57 Greased lightning
59 Polynesian wear
60 Shoshoneans
61 Blender
62 Equal
63 Soften
64 Glutted
65 Budget item

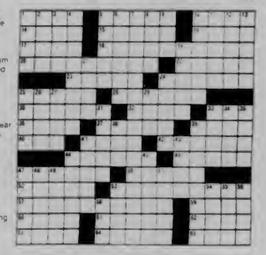
DOWN

1 Phoney
2 Delicate edging
3 Attestations
4 Notability
5 Potation
6 Grassiands
7 Spy
8 — and skittles
9 Brut
10 More snug
11 Sheepish
12 Flat
13 Raiment
19 Collegiate starter
21 Facility
24 Boutique
25 Nursery tale bear
26 Aleutian outpost
27 Flagrant
29 Lyric poem
31 Mattress supports
33 Biblical miracle town
34 Part of B A
35 — Piggy
38 Ostrich's cousin
39 Half-year term
41 Dingoes
43 Vessel for violets
44 Most simple
45 Mesh
47 Record book
48 Actor Nick
49 Cereal grain
51 Annoyed
53 Sulfanilic specialty
54 Reserve
55 Frank
56 Buster
58 Recipe abbr

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

D	R	A	M	A		S	P	A	T		H	A	R	P
R	A	V	E	L		C	O	D	E		I	D	O	L
A	T	O	L	L		U	P	O	N		T	O	G	A
W	A	N	D	E	R	L	U	S	T		T	R	E	Y
			G	I	L	L		E	T	H	E	R	S
T	A	L	K	E	D		A	N	D	R	E
E	L	A	N		G	A	R	E		T	R	I	S	H
S	A	V	O	R	E	D		R	I	P	O	S	T	E
T	R	A	C	E		A	M	O	N		A	L	A	N
		K	A	R	M	A		E	L	O	E	R	S
S	C	R	A	P	E		R	A	R	A
A	R	A	B		M	A	K	E	T	R	A	C	K	S
V	E	T	O		O	V	E	R		T	R	E	N	E
E	M	E	U		T	I	N		A	N	G	L	E	T
R	E	S	T		E	S	S	E		P	O	T	E	S

2/22/89



TODAY'S HOROSCOPE By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An urge for privacy must temporarily give way to meetings and personnel discussions. Remain strictly aboveboard in your efforts to acquire new business and funds those who count admire your integrity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A dreamy mood could overtake you early today. Do not fight it! A romantic relationship is enhanced when you talk easily and hopefully about family values and career goals. Discuss your love of children.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Magic is in the air! You and romantic partner are creating something wonderful together. You are happier about the way joint finances are being handled. An unexpected money gift brings delight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You open the door to better times. A promising relationship takes a giant step forward. Financial security dominates you thoughts today. You have good ideas. Follow your intuition where a new venture is concerned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have the opportunity to reach out and touch someone's life in a meaningful way. Go ahead and make a dream come true! It is not too early to gather tax data.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may find it difficult to mix business with pleasure today. Although you are not naive, it could be to your advantage to appear that way now. An intimate alliance grows more intense.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Pursue your goals but keep up appearances while doing what you have to do. There are plenty of activities to engage you at home today. Treasure the time you spend alone.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) If you earn your own money, you can spend it any way you desire. You may find a special item costs much more than you imagined. You make a wanderful impression on someone attractive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Be perfectly clear about your plans and you will avert a serious misunderstanding with mate. A sophisticated approach may not be the right strategy now. Decide what you want most.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The correct blend of assertiveness and persuasion will get you what you want. Changing your mind from one moment to the next could affect a relationship in a negative way. Be consistent!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Take time out to reassess your priorities. Happiness lies within your grasp. Relationships thrive on open, honest communication. Recognize the Destructive power of jealousy. You have more going for you than you realize.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Rejoice! Your recent efforts are about to pay off in greater family harmony. You are tempted to chuck your work and relax with a favorite companion. Accept an invitation to the movies.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Tuna melts	Barbecued spareribs
Beef Fajitas	Savory beef strudel
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Tuna melts	Greek style skillet
Soybean, corn and tomato caserole	Broccoli and cheese strudel

Sports at a Glance

Today: Women's gymnastics vs. Springfield (7:30)

Tomorrow: Men's hoop vs. Penn State (7:30)
Women's hoop at West Virginia (5:00)
Men's swimming at New Englands
Women's swimming at Easterns

Friday: Men's swimming at New Englands
Women's swimming at Easterns
Men's track at New Englands

■ co-captains

continued from page 20

Said Riddell, "A lot of times we have to step in and say 'Hey, [UMass swim coach] Russ [Yarworth] has a point,'" and, continues Gardiner, "you have to tell Russ when the team has a point."

"You have to give the guys a slap in the head sometimes," Riddell explained. "But you can't just walk away," added Gardiner. "You have to try and make them understand the slap in the head."

This particular responsibility has resulted in occasional friction between the co-captains and the team members but it never lasts.

"They might think you're a jerk for a while but then they come up and straighten it out," Riddell said.

The team has had the advantage of coming largely out of the same recruiting class and, as a result, they are very close.

"Half of the kids in our class knew each other before they came here," said Riddell. This has made the co-captains' job a lot easier.

"They keep each other psyched, not just us," Riddell said, while Gardiner added that "anybody can play captain on any given day." Yarworth felt differently, however.

"I wanted my captains to be dedicated, have leadership abilities in and out of the pool . . . be mature and reliable. I felt that Will and Chico would be the best for the job. They've definitely lived up to [my] expectations," Yarworth said.

In the upcoming New England Championships, Riddell will be swimming the 1650-(mile) and 500-yard freestyle and the 200-yard butterfly and Gardiner will swim the 50-yard freestyle and the 100- and 200-yard breaststrokes. But more importantly they will be providing the support necessary for the Minutemen to win their third consecutive title.

Swimmers get academic honor

Men's swim team members Will Riddell and Roger Kennedy will receive the Outstanding Student Service Award for Students in Engineering today at the annual Engineers Week Convocation.

According to Dr. Nancy Hellman, Assistant Dean of the School of Engineering and founder of the award, it is presented to those students "in recognition of contributions to the quality of student life."

Winners are required to hold a grade point average above 3.0 in engineering and be a member of a varsity sport. Riddell has a 3.8 in civil engineering and Kennedy is a mechanical engineering major with a 3.1 G.P.A. They are being recognized for their academic progress in the engineering field, according to Hellman.

—DENNIS MADSEN

■ men's hoop

continued from page 20

Giles walked through the layup line two nights later at Duquesne, but did not play. His status for Thursday's date with Penn St. at the Cage is "questionable," according to team trainer Jim Laughnane.

Tough town: Sprawled atop Thursday's Pittsburgh Press sports page was an assault on the Dukes basketball program. Columnist Bob Smizik spent several trees worth of type lamenting the loss of colorful former coach Mike Rice seven years ago. Jim Satalin replaced Rice, and has posted and 81-117 record since. The Dukes entered the contest losers of eight of their last nine.

Hoop Du Jour: The Mountaineer media guide offers a "player pronunciation guide,' which instucts the reader to say Tom Kroger's name "just like the store." Got me.

PARAMOUNT
Performing Arts Center
1700 Main Street, Springfield, MA 01103

SIS and Digital Equipment Corporation Present
Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble
Saturday, March 11
8 pm
on behalf of YWA Foundation of Pioneer Valley and its affiliates

Clancy Brothers with Robbie O'Connell
with special guest
The Dustmen
Sunday, March 12, 7 pm

TICKETS ON SALE FEB. 25
THE FIXX
Sunday, April 2

An Outspoken Evening with
MORTON DOWNEY, JR.! May 6

Tickets available at the Paramount Box Office (413) 734-5874
All Ticketron Outlets and Teletron 1-800-382-8000

FILENE'S BASEMENT
ON MARCH 18th UMASS
TAKES OFF
7 NIGHTS HOTEL/AIR/TRANSFERS
NO HIDDEN COSTS!
FROM BOSTON/STAY AT THE BEST HOTELS
Buy with confidence. Buy your vacation from Filene's basement.

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY or NEGRIL from $449 +12
Sat. night dep.

BAHAMAS
At Deluxe Beachfront Nassau Beach Hotel
Fri. night dep. from $479 +10

PUERTO LA CRUZ
Suites at Beachfront Doral Beach Hotel
Sunday dep. from $569 +17

CANCUN
Beachfront 1st Class Hotel
Sat. night dep. from $449 +17

All prices are per person. Quad occupancy and are plus $10.17 departure taxes. Hotel taxes and airport transfers in your area also are additional. Limited space available and all passengers must sign Tour Operator's terms and Agreement. Subject to change. Void where prohibited. Double occupancy basis, triple.

OPEN TODAY
10 Locations in New England
Guaranteed Reservations!
Guaranteed Low Prices!
THE VACATION OUTLET
FILENE'S BASEMENT
For information or to Book call
617 267-8100
FIRST CLASS VACATIONS AT BARGAIN BASEMENT PRICES!

ΑΕΠ RUSH
Make The Move!
ALL UNIVERSITY MEN INVITED

Tonight at 9:00 PM
HYPNOTIST JOHN SACCO
Sacco returns to UMass for another night in the realm of the subconscious. While under his spell, one never knows what one might do!

ALPHA EPSILON PI FRATERNITY
382 North Pleasant Street
For More Information, Call Michael At 549-6723

University Health Services is offering a 10-session group:

"Exploring Lesbian, Gay, and Bi-sexual Identities."

Tuesday evenings,
7:30 - 9:00,
beginning early March.

Pre-registration and pre-group interview required.

For information, or an appointment, call 545-2337.

★WANTED★
Managers for UMASS Football Team
—male or female
all interested come to Football Office in Boyden Building
See Coach Jones

Are you concerned about Eating Problems?
Drop-in for information session
No Charge • No Registration
Tuesdays, 4-5 pm Feb. 7 — May 16
Univ. Health Services RM 304
UHS Nutritionist and Mental Health Therapist will answer questions, show a film and provide general information.

■ Oklahoma

continued from page 20

watch on the news and see the three of them being led into jail. They are all chained together at the waist.

You are a worried young man. What if you have your girlfriend up for the weekend next year and you get called into coach Switzer's office? You wonder how she'll react when you tell her to lock the door as soon as you leave and not let anyone in until you come back.

On Feb. 13, five days after you signed your letter of intent, Charles Thompson, the quarterback who was to be your option partner is arrested and charged with selling 17 grams of cocaine to an undercover agent. A week later OU Athletic Director Donnie Duncan says that Thompson underwent drug rehabilitation last summer after failing two drug tests.

The Sooner football trainer claims that since last August Thompson has been tested four times for drugs and each time he came up clean. You wonder if that is really true. After all just a week before his arrest Thompson told an elementary school that by saying "no" to drugs he was able to have a successful college football career.

You remember watching Thompson being interviewed on television during the Florida Citrus Bowl and saying how he was going to have to be able to motivate the players next year since they would be ineligible to be on television or to go to a bowl game. You wondered how he planned to do this. Was he going to say, "Hey, if we win you guys can buy an ounce of coke from me and I'll give you a second ounce for free." Not even Price Chopper has money saving deals that good.

You sit and wonder what next year will hold in store for you. When you think about going to OU next fall there is a twinge of nervousness in your gut. You are a worried young man.

Sox ink Greenwell to two-year pact

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Mike Greenwell agreed to a two-year, $1.725 million contract with the Boston Red Sox on Tuesday, several hours after talks had collapsed.

Greenwell will get $500,000 this year and $1.225 million in 1990, according to a source familiar with the negotiations. In addition, he would get a $100,000 for winning the American League MVP, $75,000 for finishing second in the voting and $50,000 for finishing third.

He earned $205,000 in base salary last year plus $100,000 in bonuses. He batted .325 with 22 homers and 119 RBI in 1988.

"I'm an honest person who wants to play baseball and have fun doing it," said Greenwell, who is 75 days short of salary arbitration eligibility. "Now I can do that and try to help the team win a World Series."

Greenwell, runner-up to Oakland's Jose Canseco in the MVP voting last year, earlier walked out on Boston general manager Lou Gorman after a 39-minute meeting.

"They came back and we sat out in the left-field bleachers and had a 30-minute meeting," Gorman said. "We're delighted to get him in the fold. I wanted to get this deal done in the worst way."

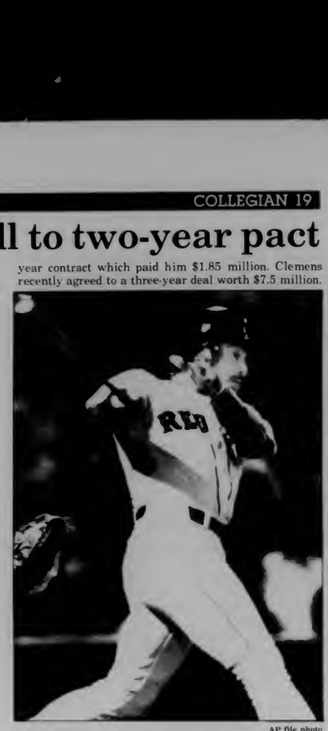
At the start of the day, Greenwell was asking for $1.9 million over two years and the Red Sox were offering $1.2 million.

Boston then offered $1.7 million and Greenwell asked for $100,000 more as a signing bonus, a source said. That's when the outfielder walked out. Several hours later, Greenwell and his agent, Joe Sroba, returned.

"We were too close and I didn't want the thing to fall apart," Greenwell said. "We didnt call. We just walked in and said let's try to get it done. It was frustrating at times, a lot of ups and downs. But now I'm very happy with it. It's an excellent package."

Gorman said Greenwell linked his demands to the two-year contract awarded 1986 AL MVP and Cy Young Award winner Roger Clemens.

After boycotting the 1987 exhibition season, while ineligible for salary arbitration, Clemens settled for a two-year contract which paid him $1.85 million. Clemens recently agreed to a three-year deal worth $7.5 million.



AP file photo

Red Sox outfielder Mike Greenwell, shown here in action last season, yesterday agreed to a two-year contract worth $1.725 million.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE –CC 113 MON.-THURS 8:30-3:30 FRI 8:30-2:30•DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION•CASH IN ADVANCE 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

THIRD WORLD CAUCUS MEETS TONIGHT!! Help minority empowerment and build coalitions! Meeting in Campus Center 177 at 5:30.

UNIVERSITY DEMOCRATS GENERAL MEETING Feb 23, 6pm Earth Foods Come Find out what it's all about

HEY! FIRST ARMENIAN CLUB MEETING of the semester Thursday 23rd 6pm in room 917 Campus Center

TONIGHT!! Eyewitness report from moscow with Carl Bloice. Moscow correspondent for The People's Daily World. 7:00pm C.C. 101 Free

SALVADORAN STUDENT LEADERS to speak at UMass. 7pm 23 February CC101 For more info call CASA 5-2148

LEARN JEWELRY & SILKSCREEN 4 workshops meeting once a week at Student Union Craft Center

ANNOUNCING THE FINANCE AND INVESTMENT CLUB'S inaugural gathering of 1989 learning elections and social events planning. New members graciously welcomed. Thursday 8:30-7:30pm SOM lobby. Don't let it be another extracurricularless semester.

SIGMA ALPHA MU RUSH!! Feb 21 Sammy Feud 8pm Campus Center -101 Feb 22 Sammy Cinema 8pm Campus Center - 162

CHRISTIAN BOOK READING CLUB starting 367-2361

ADD DROP A PAIN? Budget cuts got you down? Write a letter to your representative. Table outside the Ministore S.U.

JAZZ HOT DANCERS info meeting Wed 22 6:00pm Melville 2nd floor lounge Call Lisa 6-7334

FIGHT THE HIGH COST OF TUITION! Work with Clean Water Action Earn $6.80-10/hr working on our professional campaign staff. Great work experience for Comm., Poli-Sci., Env., and marketing majors. Call 549-7450

STRONGEST MAN AND WOMAN COMPETITION Saturday Feb 25th at the Kennedy Bodystop 12-4pm $2.00 fee and many great prizes.

LEARN TO MEDITATE - FREE Find hidden self. Expand universal outlook. Any Mon or Wed 3-5pm Campus Center Room posted near elevators

UMASS SKI CLUB runs the best spring breaks to Barbados, Bahamas, Bermuda, Killington and Breckenridge 545-3437/430 SUB

SOUTHWEST AREA GOV. is looking for someone to coordinate our annual Spring Concert. Interested? Call 5-0960 for details

AMHERST FIRE DEPARTMENT

THE AMHERST FIRE DEPARTMENT is recruiting volunteers to work as firefighter/EMTs. No experience necessary. See our table on the concourse February 22-24.

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE

SAPCIOUS 1,2, and 3 BEDROOM UNITS in Sunderland. Ample off street parking and free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Call 665-3656.

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUTO FOR SALE

75 FORD FUTURA 4 SPEED fun 131K miles Daytona special $400/B.O. 444-0231.

84 ISUZU PUP WITH CAP 88K must sell! $2500 days 545-0600 x39 Elaine

78 OLDSMOBILE CUTLESS STATION-WAGON automatic powersteering Air condition runs great $600 or B.O. 665-8955

1983 FORD ESCORT WAGON- 50,000 miles A/C roof rack - excellent condition $2500. Call 256-0933

1982 GRAY SAAB TURBO exc. cond. records avail. a/c. Apline stereo/cass. Fast fun, runs like new call Michael 773-5864.

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CAMP COUNSELORS

COME WORK FOR an accredited 3-camp organization in the Pocono Mountains of PA. Positions are available in Tennis, Archery, Waterfront (W.S.I.), Gramatics, Office Administration, Computers, Radio, Arts & Crafts, Nature, Athletics, Jewelry, Photoography, Dance, Wrestling, Cooking, Adventure/Challenge Course, Film making. Camp Drivers Season 6/24-8/20. Call 800-533-CAMP (215-887-9700 in PA) or write 407 Benson East, Jenkintown, PA 19046

COMPACT DISC MUSIC MACHINE

DISC JOCKEY SERVICE - quality tunes for all occasions. 549-1421 or 253-7655

FLORIDA SPRING BREAKS

DAYTONA'S CASTAWAY BEACH RESORT - $139. Panama City Beach's Miracle Mile Resort $119. roundtrip transportation add $80 Call Mark 549-2871

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances. 256-8526.

FOR RENT

ONE BEDROOM IN A 3 bedroom apt. in Sunderland on bus route $200/ No last mo. or sec dep. Call Jenny or stephen 665-8617

FRIDGE RENTALS WE DELIVER 253-9742

FOR SALE

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES Amherst 2 yrs old income property positive cash flow (gross rental 18,000/yr) Live rent free and make spending money too! Call Dale 253-9949

BUY A BIKE Cannondale $300 or best offer. Racing and touring suntour gear system. Dia compe brakes mistral aluminum rims frame alone is worth five hundred dollars. Call Anytime. 549-3512.

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles. Call 256-8369

RUG-GREAT FOR DORM
Sky Blue
Excellent condition
$45 or best offer
Call Alisa 527-6505

FOUND

MICHAEL D. DEVANNEY I have found your wallet. I have not been able to contact you. So you can call me at 253-2107. Ask for Hong and leave a message.

FOUND WOMEN'S WTCH ON 2-14 at bus stop by S-West black band black face gold hands, made in hong kong. Call Time at 546-9030

HELP WANTED

THIS PAST SUMMER 350 College Students took on a Management Position gaining exceptional managerial and business skills for their career. Average net summer earnings $10,740 1-800-922-5579

$10,000 A MONTH  Market product in untapped region. Drive and persistence pay off greatly. Dave 584-5757

SGA COMMUNICATIONS IS HIRING - Publicity/advertising consultant. Applications at 304 SUB. AA/EOE

SUMMER BUSINESS POSITION in your hometown. Earn avg $8,000. Excellent experience. 865-2527

FREE MEALS can the DC Fraternity in need of light kitchen help, in exchange for meals. Call Jon 545-0046

INTERESTED IN VIDEO?

UNION VIDEO CENTER GENERAL MEETING Thursday 7:00pm Come find out what we have to offer! Commuter Lounge by the Hatch

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands on experience in the legal field-work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary-training provided. An information session will be held on February 22 from 3:30-4:30 in room 901 Campus Center (545-1995)

LOST

BLACK ZIPPERED AGENDA/ADDRESS BOOK Lost in Herter 106 Call 546-4131

PERSONALS

CONGRATULATIONS! NDW YOU ARE THE NEWEST RIBBONS of Alpha Chi Omega. Get psyched for an amazing semester!!!

BILLY— Willy, Happy Birthday! We love U very much! The Methuen Club

LES- Will you buy for me now? Happy 21st Birthday from your "Woman from Mars" Luv HMR

BLONDIE BG Thanks for everything you've given me. I love you most. Love our radiating lollipop. PS. I like you.

SCOTTY HAPPY ANNIVERSARY, BABY! Believe it or not, I love you! Love always, your baby, Rachel

HAPPY BIRTHDAY EDIE SAULIER! Party over where? Our house Saturday - a bit late but we'll celebrate! Love, Obscene

Bon Jovi 4 tix Hart Mar6 $80 or BO 549-7878. Great seats!

JELLY- Happy belated 19th! and you thought we didn't love you. Well we do. Keep smiling. Love the crew (Joyce, Laura, Heather, & Gab.)

LOOOONY! YEAH YOU! Laura Berman! Can you do this?!?!

.
.
.

SPORTS

Sooner football: a scary situation

You are Dewell Brewer and you are a worried young man. This should be the time of your life. In four months you will graduate from Lawton (Okla.) High School. You are 5-foot-9 and can cover a distance of forty yards in 4.4 seconds. Every adult who claims to know about such things has told you that you are one of the top five running backs in the country. This past season you ran close to 2,000 yards and were named a second team USA Today All-American. You have been compared to a young Tony Dorsett.

John Steven Marple

And despite all this you are a worried young man.

In January there was a newspaper article that said you were leaning toward leaving the state and signing on with rival Nebraska. Living in Oklahoma and going to play football in the farm belt of Lincoln, Nebraska would tend to upset certain people.

The day after the Nebraska article was printed you walked out the front door to discover that some locals had thrown a few dozen eggs at your house. It seems they didn't appreciate you even thinking about going anywhere but good ol' OU. You think it may be in your's and your mother's best interests if you sign with Barry Switzer. On Feb. 8 you sign a letter of intent to join the Sooner wishbone.

The day should have been a celebration. A reward for all your years of hard work. Instead it was relief. Now you didn't have to worry about your house being egged any more.

But you are scared by what you have seen and read about your future team. In early September you read former Oklahoma linebacker Brian Bosworth's autobiography, The Boz: Confessions of a Modern Anti-Hero. In one chapter you read that former OU receiver Buster Rhymes once shot off a few rounds on his Uzi machine gun during a snowball fight.

You thought it was another one of Boz's exaggerated statements. Then you see that redshirt freshman Jerry Parks, a starter last year, shot teammate Zarak Peters in the chest. The police charge him with shooting to injure. Another teammate tells the press that after shooting Peters, Parks put the gun to his head and tried to shoot himself. There were no bullets left in the chamber. Suddenly you think the Boz may have been telling the truth.

In early February you open the sports page to read that a 20-year-old female student at the University of Oklahoma has accused five men, including three Sooner football players, of raping her. Sophomores Nigel Clay and Glen Bell and junior Bernard Hall are all arrested and charged with first-degree rape. You

continued on page 19

Women's gymnastics team to host Springfield tonight

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics squad is homeward bound after three weekends worth of road work.

Back to their winning ways after this Saturday's defeat of Southern Connecticut State University, the Minutewomen will host the Chiefs of Springfield College this evening under the Boyden bigtop.

The meet is scheduled to kick off at 7:30 p.m.

UMass improved its record to 5-1 with a 175.40-173.65 win over SCSU, despite turning in a performance that coach Alfie Mitchell described as "dull." The meet followed the Minutewomen's first loss at the University of New Hampshire the previous Saturday.

Against SCSU, freshmen Kim Grady, Erin Klier, and Debbie Schultz culled the largest part of the Minutewomen's points. Grady led the all around competition with 35.25 points. Klier tied Erika Baxter for the top marks in the floor exercise with a 9.15.

Women's track second at Dartmouth

By RICK SETO
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's indoor track team finished second in a field of five at Dartmouth University last Saturday. Hit by a bug of the flu and resting some runners in preparation for the New England Championships, coach Julie LaFreniere sent only nine athletes.

Host Dartmouth easily won the meet with 109 points, followed by UMass (35), Fitchburg State (30), Colgate (22), and Lowell (21).

Sophomore Simone Marisseau threw exactly what she needed — 38 feet — to qualify for the shot put in the New Englands. She finished second in the event and finished ninth in the 20-pound indoor weight.

Senior Helen Balaouras bettered her seeding for the New Englands with a toss of 39-11½ in the weight, good enough for fourth. She is also very close to qualifying in the shot put, with a throw of 36-1 1/2. Balaouras can still make it if there are not enough athletes and if her throws are among the top 16.

School-record holder Tina White threw a disappointing 39-7, finishing fifth. "She just couldn't get her head into it. She wasn't letting herself throw naturally," said LaFreniere.

The last of the throwers, freshman Diane Ozzolek, set a personal-best with a throw of 35-4.

Another frosh, Lee Ann Ambrose, continued to burn up the track, as she qualified for her third New England event, the 55-yard dash. Ambrose won the event, breaking the tape in 7.4 seconds.

Right after the finish of that event, Ambrose changed shoes and hopped into the half-mile. She didn't do that poorly, finishing third behind runner-up Michelle St. Laurent.

Precious Hill was hit with the bug, finishing second with a lackluster time of 10:44.96. She can still attain her goal of qualifying for the ECAC 3000 if she can run fast enough in the N.E. meet.

Like Ambrose, she ran back-to-back, later running the anchor leg for the winning mile relay team. Also running in the 4x4 was Sue McFadyen (fifth in the 55), St. Laurent, and Ambrose.

The team will continue to practice and prepare for the New Englands, to be held Saturday and Sunday at Boston University.

Men's hoop notebook

Pittsburgh trip a sort of homecoming

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Jim McCoy lost track of how many tickets he dished out after 70 ("could have been 100," he shrugged). John Tate's entourage included family, former coaches and members of his hometown church. Coach Calipari's following included daughter Erin, who conveniently celebrated her second birthday over the weekend in front of her "home crowd."

All three Minutemen call the city of Pittsburgh (or, to be fair, its immediate environs) home. McCoy, in fact, played his high school ball for coach Chuck Crummie at Central Catholic, a bounce pass down the road from Duquesne's new arena.

With the Duquesne student body scattered for spring break (hey, there's buds on the trees down there already), the home side stands were half full of UMass backers. Had the Minutemen given them anything to cheer about, it could have been a factor in the game.

***

Rafer Giles sprained his ankle early in the second half against West Virginia, and had to be carried off the floor.

continued on page 18

Men's swimming seeking third straight NE title

By DENNIS MADSEN
Collegian Staff

This weekend the University of Massachusetts men's swimming team will find out if all the work they've done this season pays off. Tomorrow through Saturday, the Minutemen will take part in the New England Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Association championships at Springfield College.

UMass is sending 19 swimmers to the three-day meet, hoping to take a large number of individual titles as well as its third straight championship.

"It will basically be a meet between us and Boston College for the title," said UMass men's swimming coach Russ Yarworth. "It could go down to the last meet on the last day."

The Eagles handed the Minutemen a season-opening loss that snapped a UMass 41-meet winning streak and Yarworth's team is spoiling for revenge.

Said co-captain Will Riddell, "Losing to B.C. was something to get us up in the morning during intersession." Boston College had surprised the Minutemen by shaving, giving the Eagles an advantage, but, said Yarworth, "now we'll both be shaved."

The meet will be set up so that preliminaries for six or seven events will be run in the morning of each day with the holders of the top 18 times advancing to the finals in the evenings. Not only will the team be looking to defend its title but a number of swimmers, including Brian McIver, Dave Ehle and G.T. Ladd, will be defending their individual top rankings.

Dan Chesnicka is one of the favorites in the one- and three-meter diving competitions and teammate Dave Wells is also expected to make a "strong showing," according to Yarworth.

"The only way we win is if the whole team contributes. We need a total team effort. Each [swimmer] is just as important," Yarworth said. "That's why we've won for the last two years."

Right now the team is ready to go and confident in its ability to win number three.

Gardiner, Riddell provide winning balance for UM

By DENNIS MADSEN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's swimming team has dual personalities. At times the team is brash and confident but when crunch-time comes and work needs to be done, that changes. They adopt a hard-driving, no-fooling-around attitude until the meet is won.

The team co-captains, John "Chico" Gardiner and Will Riddell personify this contrast. While Riddell, a civil engineering major out of Needham High School, is normally the stoic, down-to-earth quiet guy, Gardiner, a Woburn High graduate majoring in HRTA, is the opposite.

"I have the big mouth," said Gardiner. The differences in style don't make for any turmoil though.

"We compliment each other," Gardiner continued. The two attitudes of the team are mixed well enough to provide a winning team for the UMass.

Between them, the co-captains have a number of responsibilities. They organize fund raising for the team, keep up motivation and, during the championships, Riddell becomes the "designated team barber." Shaved heads, compliments of Riddell, are going to become a more common sight on campus as nearly every swimmer gets a visit from the razor.

But most importantly, the co-captains serve as "intermediaries between coach and team." Differences are bound to arise between the two and that's where Riddell and Gardiner come in.

continued on page 18

Collegian photo by David Higashiguchi

The men's swim team hopes to be No. 1 for the third straight year in the New England Championships this weekend at Springfield College.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1989

COLLEGIAN

VOLUME CXXII LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY IN NEW ENGLAND ISSUE 17

WEATHER	SPORTS	WOMEN'S ISSUES
Today: Cold, cloudy, chance of snow. Tonight: Settling in the 20's.	UMass women's gymnastics sets school record in win over Springfield. Page 24.	Local reactions surface to the Grimshaw case as she awaits sentencing. Page 15.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

Roy Eddington

For inmate, graduation to mark a fresh start

First of a two-part series

By RICK SASSON
Collegian Staff

When Roy Eddington graduates Cum Laude from the University of Massachusetts this May, he plans to hold a day-long jubilee with his family and friends. By nightfall, he'll be back in prison.

Eddington, a convicted felon serving a 6-year sentence for larceny, has been taking courses at the Amherst campus since September and is nine credits away from a bachelor's degree in General Studies.

For the Springfield native, whose young-adult life was beset by crime and an addiction to drugs, higher education was a pursuit that began two years ago in a minumum security prison in Lancaster and led him to the student-filled lecture halls of a sprawling campus.

"I see education as something to help me up a ladder," he said recently. "The ladder would have been 50 feet away from me. Now it's 25 feet, but I still got to struggle to get there."

Persuaded by a fellow inmate at Lancaster in September of 1987, Eddington entered the Prison Education Project, a rehabilitation program for inmates based out of the Division of Continuing Eduaction at UMass.

He had previously earned an associates' degree from Mount Wachusett Community College during an earlier incarceration, and had taken scattered courses through an inmate program at UMass-Boston.

Because Eddington is within 18 months of parole, he is allowed day-time furloughs to attend classes on campus.

Now matriculated into the University, he is scheduled to graduate with the Class of 1989. If he finishes this May, he will be the first convicted felon from the program to complete an undergraduate degree at UMass.

"I was in prison doing nothing," he said of his decision to take up school. "I knew that I could sit in jail, sit idle, and come out in the same boat that I went in. Or I could forgo telling war stories on the yard with the fellas and say, 'OK Roy, it's time to get down to

continued on page 7

House approves 1990 budget

Duke's proposal slashed by $31 million

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday approved a public higher education budget for fiscal year 1990 of $638.4 million, $31 million less than the Govenor's recommendation, said State Rep. Stan Rosenberg.

But the approved budget, Rosenberg said, has a base increase of $18 million over current spending.

Rosenberg was quick to point out that House budget, in real terms, offers more money for higher education than the Governor's proposal.

"The House is proposing more money for now," he said, "the Governor is proposing more for later."

The budget will be subject to open debate on the floor of the House starting March 6, Rosenberg said.

Of the $31 million included in the Governor's proposal and killed by the House, $21 million was ear-marked for a 53rd pay week for faculty in 1990 and any wage increases for faculty and staff due to contract negotiations this year.

An additional $8.5 million included in the Governor's budget was to be used for programs throughout the higher-ed system, but these funds were to come from tuition increases and tuition retention programs, Rosenberg said.

The thinking in the House, said Rosenberg, is to pay for the extra week of wages and salaries out of fiscal year 1991 monies and to raise funds for any contract-mandated pay increases for faculty and staff when they are needed and not before, as the Govenor's budget suggested.

Rosenberg said that the House budget will bring public higher education back to 1988 levels.

Rosenberg said the Governor's budget proposals were based on revenues generated by $600 million in new state taxes that have yet to be approved by the House and Senate.

The House budget, said Rosenberg, is not based on any new taxes and can be funded from existing sources.

Also, Rosenberg said the Ways and Means committee has done away with money for library book purchases which, up until now, has been a separate part of the budget not included in the lump sum for public higher education.

"It's been the view of the House for a long time that books are a central part of [a university] and should be taken from the budget" of each school, he said.

7 conservative groups stripped of privileges

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

Amid repeated reports of harassment, Campus Center officials yesterday stripped all building use privileges from seven of the University's conservative student organizations.

The seven registered student organizations affected are: The UMass Republican Club, Students against any inefficient Government and Administration, Students for Life, the Silent Majority, Organization for American Studies, The Friends of the Spartacus League, and Students for Bush.

Yesterday afternoon, each organization received a letter signed by Building Services Director Dudley J. Bridges, notifying members they no longer had authorization to use meeting rooms, vending tables or audio/visual services.

The letter also stated the ban will continue until the individual organizations had been reinstated by Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs, Dennis Madson.

Madson said he believes the action against the conservatives stems directly from the two confrontations between the Spartacist League and the Republican Club.

The two groups brawled Feb. 9 during a Spartacist meeting in the Campus Center. The fight was broken up by police. On Wednesday night the two groups were broken up by police again before a fight could take place (see related story) after the Republicans found the Spartacists meeting in the Student Union.

Bridges said the restriction placed on the groups is one which will prevent the original offenders, the Spartacists and the Republicans, who had their meeting room privileges rescinded last week, from using any of the other conservative organization's meeting space.

"They (the Republicans and Spartacists) have been meeting in the other organization's rooms as their guests despite the original ruling. This suspension will end that," Bridges said.

Bridges would not speculate when the ban could end.

Student Activities Director Irene Carew, who had direct input into the decision to suspend the privileges, could not be reached for comment at press time.

UMass observes DuBois' birthday

From Collegian Staff Reports

In commemoration of the 121st anniversary of the birth of Dr. William Edward Burghardt Du Bois, the University of Massachusetts has said it will announce plans today to turn an area home of the late black pioneer into a memorial and tourist site.

The site, an interpretative memorial to Du Bois at his Great Barrington homesite, will be presented by Chancellor Joseph Duffey and Deborah First, director of the State Office of Tourism.

W.E.B. Du Bois was the first black to receive a Ph.D. from Harvard University, in 1896. He was a founding member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and was the founder and editor of "The Crisis," the NAACP's monthly magazine. He died in 1963 a citizen of Ghana, and is buried there in Accra.

Du Bois came to the house of his maternal relative Othello Burghardt soon after his birth in 1868 and lived in the now-demolished farmhouse for four years before moving to another part of Great Barrington. The house was purchased by friends as a 60th birthday gift to Du Bois in 1928, and he used it as a summer retreat until 1954. A year later, financial and political

continued on page 5

Smith College celebrates traditional Rally Day

By C.C. SANDORFI
Collegian Correspondent

NORTHAMPTON

John M. Greene Hall resonated yesterday with the shouts and cheers of the Class of 1989 at Smith College during the annual Rally Day celebration.

Rally Day is a 113 year-old tradition of calling off classes and gathering to commemorate the birthday of George Washington. Yesterday's exercises drew a crowd of about 1,300.

Seniors were allowed to wear their gowns (without caps) for the first time in honor of the occasion, said Mary Reutener, the Associate Director of College Relations.

However, most seniors made up for the cap deficit by donning outlandish headgear. Some seniors topped their somber black robes with Mickey Mouse ears, while others wore floppy "bug antennae."

"The seniors are very upbeat," she said. "There are a number of focuses to the celebration in addition to Washington's birthday; we also celebrate tradition, spirit, and exuberance,

continued on page 4

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr. GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
ASSOCIATES	BETTY-ANN MURPHY YANA DLUGY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE GEORGE FRANCY TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	RICK SASSON
COPY EDITOR	BETH GATELY
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	GEORGE FRANCY
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	GEORGE FRANCY
PRODUCTION	JOYCE COHEN DANIELLE PETRELLA TRICIA HANLEY MIRIAM PIERCE KIM FRISINO

AP photo

WEATHER FOR FROGS – Kim Hisgch, an employee for the Boston Costume Co., is dressed in a frog costume Tuesday afternoon in Boston during a store promotion out in the rain. The weather may be only fit for frogs but the precipitation is greatly needed across Massachusetts during the water emergency announced last week.

Take a look at the savings this week at Liquors 44
ROLLING ROCK two twelve pack bottles $9.99 + DEP
DOS EQUIS XX IMPORTED BEER Case of 24 12-oz Bottles $14.99 + DEP
RED, WHITE & BLUE Case of 24 12oz cans $6.29 + DEP
CARLING BLACK LABEL Case of 24 12oz. cans $5.75 FINAL COST
SALE $7.00 MAIL IN REBATE 1.25
Seagram's COOLERS ALL FLAVORS $1.69 FINAL COST
SALE $2.69 MAIL IN REBATE 1.50
TAYLOR CALIFORNIA CELLARS Burgundy Chablis Blush Rose Rhine $4.99 3 LITER
MARCUS JAMES White Zinfandel 750 ml $2.49
FREIXENET $5.29 750 ml
CORDON NEGRO
HARVEY'S BRISTOL CREAM $5.99 FINAL COST
SALE $7.49 MAIL IN REBATE $1.50
McGREGOR SCOTCH 1.75L $10.99
IMPORTED BLACK VELVET CANADIAN WHISKY 1.75L $9.99 FINAL COST
SALE $11.99 MAIL IN REBATE $2.00
CASTILLO RUM $6.99
SALE $9.99 MAIL IN REBATE $3.00
$9.79 KAHLÚA 750 ML
COSSACK VODKA 1.75L $8.49
SALE PRICES THRU 2/28/89
LIQUORS 44

If you care, take the time to listen.
Are you looking for a challenging, rewarding profession? You'll find it, and more, while learning to help people with speech, language and hearing disorders.
Boston-Bouvé College at Northeastern University offers two exciting master of science programs in Speech-Language Pathology or Audiology (the only one of its kind in the Boston area). Both programs are accredited by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association.
You'll have the opportunity to gain practical experience in our on-campus speech clinic. In addition, both programs include clinical practice in many of Boston's prestigious medical institutions. Graduate assistantships and other financial aid are available.
Call (617) 437-2708, or write Graduate School, Boston-Bouvé College of Human Professions, 106 Dockser Hall, Northeastern University, Boston, MA 02115. Because some people's problems are worth listening to.
Boston-Bouvé College
Northeastern University
An equal opportunity/affirmative action university

LOCAL

Frustrated students attempt senate coup

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

More than 30 students stormed last night's Student Government Association meeting waving bananas and chanting "overthrow the senate" in anger over filibusters and political differences that have clogged the SGA's agenda in past months.

The coup, which was launched as the meeting began, barely lasting five minutes, was organized by the so-called People's Union for a Revolutionary Junta (PURJ), a non-profit organization.

Co-leaders Clarinda Rose-Turner and James O'Keefe, said the bananas were used to symbolize "guns" or "power," and the "facetious front had a serious message of anger behind it."

"The students have had enough!" Turner told the senate. "You have ignored us for too long."

Senate Speaker Robert Fadel unplugged the microphone and Campus Center security was present, but any attempts to curb the protest did not prevent Turner from listing the students' demands.

The students' demands include charging the senate to lead the fight against state budget cuts, to address the rise in crime on campus, and to publish of a concise monthly report of its accomplishments, she said.

Turner also compelled the senate to end its "evil ways," including anarchy and conflict and instead practice bi-partisanship, claiming "it is not one of the seven deadly sins."

PURJ is circulating petitions demanding reforms in the SGA, and have accumulated 600 signatures toward its goal of 1,000, she said. Next Wednesday, Turner said students will be asked to wear armbands to "show their disapproval of the senate.

"A democracy is the responsibility of everybody, not the burden of a few," she said, and warned the senate, "you have not heard the last of us. We will take necessary measures to insure that the senate as a whole acts in the interest of the students."

Several senators said they respected the students' actions and Sen. Jay Festa, commuter area president, said "I thought it was excellent. Most of the senate is not responsible for the students."

But, the coup angered several members of the SGA, prompting some to blame Shari Silkoff and Jason Rabinowitz and their pending ratification as SGA co-presidents for the senate's lack of progress in recent months.

"The only reason the student senate hasn't gotten anything done is because of the co-presidency issue," Sen. Bob McDevitt said. "That has torn the senate apart more than anything in the past four years."

Sen. Doug Dratch said, "the senate has been held up for the past few months, not because of senators, but because of Silkoff and Rabinowitz fighting their case against the SGA."

Despite the initial uproar, the senate was able to pass several motions including a move authorizing the SGA to hire a private attorney to defend the senate against a suit filed by Silkoff and Rabinowitz in regard to their co-presidency.

Sen. W. Greg Rothman said the motion allows former student Bill Collins to be represented as he is also being sued in his capacity as former student attorney general.

The senate approved several financial transactions, some of which include $1,650 for Black History month events, $1,500 to for the Jewish Arts Festival, and $2,000 to the Newman Club for t-shirts for the annual Run for Ritter.

Two motions to immediately consider the ratification and the installment of the next SGA president were unanimously passed.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

Senator W. Greg Rothman eats a banana during last night's attempted coup of the SGA. The bananas were supplied by students who say they've had enough of the senate's antics.

Parts of UMass will stay in the dark

New lighting delayed by budget cuts

By WENDY LEE
Collegian Staff

No additional outdoor lights will be installed on the University of Massachusetts campus until the budget crisis is resolved, the director of the Physical Plant said last week.

J. Roger Cherewatti, director of the plant since 1984, said $14 million allocated for landscape improvements over the next seven years has been cut from the budget. Part of this money was to be used for lighting, he said.

Because of the money loss, some areas on campus will remain in the dark.

Shari Silkoff, co-president-elect of the Student Government Association, said she considers a path that cuts through the woods from the Northeast Residential Area to the Sylvan Residential Area to be a "high-risk area" because it has no lights and is not patrolled by the police.

The Physical Plant is not willing to install lights there at this time, Silkoff said, because of "astronomical wiring costs."

However, signs will be posted this week to alert people of the dangers, she said. In the past, the area had been blocked off, but the ropes and chains were stolen, she added.

Cherewatti said last semester $6,500 was spent to install eight lights on the lane by the chancellor's house because the campus police reported this area as one of the most dangerous on campus.

Arthur Hilson, executive director of Public Safety, said he did not know at this time whether the new lights have helped cut crime. However, he said, one can "seriously assume it will reduce the number of people hiding in the dark." Hilson said a review will be conducted at the end of the year.

Stacy Roth, coordinator of the Educator/Advocate Program at the Everywoman's Center, said lighting and emergency phones help improve campus safety. But, she said, "A lot of money earmarked for lighting could also be spent, or better well spent on education.

"Prevalent attitudes which exist in our society need to be changed. Education needs to be valued equally with safety measures," Roth said.

Silkoff said she has been trying to improve the lighting situation at UMass since 1986. "It's important for students to realize that efforts like these take time – it's a slow process," she said.

continued on page 5

Photo by Jason Danziger

HOO-RAY – Lisa Echevarria, a junior anthropology major, jumps in a sunbeam at Northampton's old post office on Pleasant Street this past weekend.

UM police respond to potential conflict

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Police Tuesday night stopped what was amounting to be a replay of the Spartacus League vs. Republican Club brawl of two weeks ago, police said.

The Spartacus League, which along with the Republican Club, has been banned from meeting in the Campus Center for involvement in the brawl, was trying to hold a meeting in room 404 of the Student Union when the Republican Club stumbled upon them.

The Republican Club members were emerging from a staff meeting of the conservative campus publication The Minuteman when one member said he recognized a Spartacist who allegedly assaulted him.

The Republicans said they found the Spartacists meeting in the Commuter Area Government Office and attempted to enter the room, but the door was locked. A Minuteman photographer was taking pictures of the room's occupants, which upset the Spartacists, the Republicans said.

Before things got out of hand the Republicans said they called the police and told them about the Spartacist meeting.

This second incident between the two groups comes amid assault charges filed in Northampton District Court last week by members of the Republican Club against the Spartacists. The case will be heard Feb. 28. The Spartacists say they will file counter suits.

Contract plan draws mixed reactions

By ALETHEA O'DONNELL
Collegian Correspondent

University of Massachusetts Provost Richard O'Brien's plan to convert some staff members to 43-week contracts has drawn mixed reactions from several deans.

The 43-week plan, proposed Jan. 12 by O'Brien before the Professional Association Senate (PAUMA), asks deans to look into the possibility of staff members voluntarily reducing their contracts to 43 weeks, instead of the normal 52-week contract. The plan is being considered as one way to offset budget constraints.

O'Brien said yesterday that the plan is completely voluntary. "We simply want deans to take a look at the people they employ and see if they can work out a shorter schedule," he said, adding that were an employee to resign or retire, deans would "seek to replace them with an employee on a 43-week contract."

"This might appeal to some people," said George Urch, acting dean of the School of Education, "such as women who have young children, or men who might want to use that period to travel."

"I do not know if [our professional staff] would be interested," he said. "The College of Education has a strong summer school, and we're pretty busy all year long." Urch said other departments may have a "slack time" during the summer, and the proposal would therefore be more appealing to them.

Glen Gordon, dean of the Faculty of Social and Behavioral Sciences, said the plan probably would not affect many people in his department. "Occasionally, we have had staff that prefer that, because they want to take off for the summer," he said.

"Looking at it from the perspective of the secretary, they don't make a lot of money already, and many of them wouldn't want to take the cut in salary," Gordon said. "A lot of secretaries have budgeted their lives on the basis of a certain salary."

Some people would agree to the new contract, but not many, Gordon said.

Frederick Byron, dean of the Faculty of Natural Sciences and Mathematics, agreed. "I think it's a perfectly fine thing to do, but personally you're not going to find all that much interest in it."

Several deans agreed the budget cuts, $12 million in less than a year, have severely hurt their departments, both because of hiring freezes and a lack of resources.

"What the provost is looking for in this budget climate is some way, any way, to save money," said Dean Gordon. However, the proposed plan is not much of a solution, he said.

Actress tells of her ups and downs

By C.C. SANDORFI
Collegian Correspondent

NORTHAMPTON — As both a woman and an actress, Colleen Dewhurst says she has faced similar problems.

Dewhurst, an Emmy-award winning actress and president of the Actors' Equity union, spoke to the Smith Class of 1989, faculty, and guests at a convocation for Rally Day, a commemoration of George Washington's birthday.

"The acting profession is known as the 'rejection profession,'" she said. "The rejection ... the anguish, the pain never stops. On the other hand, the joy never ceases."

She compared acting to living as a woman, stressing that success at both endeavors depends on maintaining a certain vulnerability.

Once bitterness and anger take over, "They won't let you get ahead," she said. "I don't know exactly who 'They are,' she said, 'but they're out there.'"

When vulnerability disappears, both the talent for acting and the talent for living are undermined, she said.

Dewhurst urged her audience to come to terms with their fears. "When you are scared, say to yourself, 'I'm scared. I'm afraid.' Fear is a necessary part of the actor's process and of the life process," she said. "Then say, 'It's dangerous and I'm going for it,'" she said.

Some of her personal fears included doubts about her ability to serve as Actors' Equity president, she said, a post she was elected to in 1985.

When members of the union asked her to run for office, she said, "you're talking to woman who can't find a pencil!"

"They replied, 'We have someone to find a pencil for you,'" she said.

In addition to overcoming their personal fears, women must struggle against societal problems in the United States, she said.

People are often encouraged by such publicity to see women as victims, she said.

On one side, the constant publicizing of all types of abuse directed at women can become a sort of exploitation, she said. People are often encouraged by such publicity to see women as victims, she said.

Finally, Dewhurst had some words of wisdom to women who wanted to be tomorrow's leaders.

Instead of trying to be "the best" at something, or trying to be famous, women must "go for what they want," she said.

"The most important thing I realize now is that I wouldn't give up one of my experiences," she said. "Not one."

■ Rally Day

continued from page 1

"The seniors are very upbeat," she said. "There are a number of focuses to the celebration in addition to Washington's birthday; we also celebrate tradition, spirit, and exuberance, as well as the accomplishments of alumnae."

"It's a triple-play day," she said.

Several scholarships and awards were presented during the ceremonies. Deborah Coletti, a sophomore economics major, received the Jill Ker Conway Scholarship for $1,000.

Two students shared the Thomas Corwin Mendenhall History Prize, which is awarded yearly to an outstanding student in the field of history. Students Lisa Buoncoure and Barbara Curran received the honor.

Two teaching awards were presented for excellence in teaching. Assistant professor of art Barbara Kellum received the Junior Faculty Award and Achilles professor of history Nelly Hoyt received the Senior Faculty Award. The awards were based on student nominations.

Five Smith alumnae were honored with Smith College Medals in recognition of accomplishments in their lives and their careers: Priscilla Blum, founder and president of Corporate Angel Network, a free transport service for cancer patients; Nelly Hoyt, Achilles professor of history at Smith; Madeleine Will, US assistant secretary for special education and rehabilitative services; Virginia Wing, former director of the Winsor School; and Caroline Yang, executive director of the Japan-United States Educational Commission (Fulbright Commission).

In addition, actress Colleen Dewhurst was presented with an honorary degree as doctor of the fine arts. Dewhurst gave the keynote address for the convocation.

Celebrations concluded with a re-enactment of an 1893 basketball game and the Rally Day Show, in which each class performed original satirical skit, said Reutener.

Rally Day began with the first class at Smith, "The Hardy Fourteen," in 1876. They decided to hold a reception in honor of Washington's birthday, said Reutener. The reception later evolved into a full day of activities including dancing, singing, and sports. In 1962 the awarding of an honorary degree to a woman of distinction was included, and in 1973 the presentation to alumnae of the Smith College Medal was added, she said.

Refrigerator stolen from Coolidge

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

Staff in Coolidge Residence Hall reported Tuesday a refrigerator had been stolen from the fifth floor kitchenette, police said.

In other police reports:

- Police said they trespassed a man from university grounds Tuesday when he was reported to be harassing a former girlfriend in Crampton Residence Hall.
- A student said her car's paint had been scratched and the air let of the vehicle's tires while it was parked in Lot 32 Tuesday, police said.
- A student reported his 10-speed bike missing from a rack at Emerson Residence Hall Tuesday, police said.
- A student reported her handbag stolen from outside the Campus Center Auditorium Tuesday, police said.
- A 19-year-old Washington Residence Hall man was arrested Tuesday on an outstanding Amherst Police warrant, police said.
- After police stopped a motor vehicle on North Pleasant Street Tuesday for speeding they arrested the 28-year-old driver.

The Rhode Island man was arrested on charges of operating a motor vehicle without a license, operating an unregistered and uninsured vehicle, attaching plates to that vehicle and speeding.

GREAT MEXICAN FOOD!
in downtown Amherst
beer & wine served
TACO VILLA
...Offering Quality Mexican Foods
NORTHAMPTON 21 CENTER ST 584-0673 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine
AMHERST 41 BOLTWOOD WALK 256-8217 Beer & Wine Served
SPRINGFIELD 749 SUMNER AVE 788-0919 Bring Your Own Beer & Wine

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS
MARCH 18-25
When you break away this year, do it with style.
SUN FUN!! round trip air 7 nights great night life
Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB 547-3437 430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.
$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP
THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION
A $75 Reservation Deposit Required
SAVE
LAGNAF
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY
Why More?
The UMASS Ski Club invites you to Montego Bay, Jamaica, West Indies. We will be staying in the Towers at the Seawinds Resort where all your Spring Break needs are directly below. We are next to the beach, pool, evening entertainment, tennis courts, and the hottest night club in the bay. Located five minutes from town, this resort has, at your disposal, water sports, sunbathing, and an array of restaurants and bars. Don't be lured by low-budget, problem-filled tear-offs that, in the end, turn to rip-offs. WE PROVIDE GUARANTEED RESERVED ACCOMMODATIONS AND FLIGHTS! Spend $9 a day more and step above the rest on your own vacation island!
A VACATION SHOULD BE A PLEASURE— NOT A HASSLE!
LAGNAF
BECAUSE IT'S WORTH IT
Mar. 18 - Mar. 25 • $569 per person from JFK
All Prices are Inclusive—No Hidden Extras
Double & Triple Occupancy Rates Available
Presented By
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437
MasterCard VISA

■ lights

continued from page 3

In 1973, lights on campus were shut off at night to save money, according to Arlene Avakian, a professor in the Women's Studies department.

The situation has improved mainly because of demands by women's groups, Avakian said. "The campus is still not a safe place, but there is more concern and awareness of the problems."

Cherewatti said to save money he is considering shutting off the lights during semester breaks in Lot 21, where only campus employees park.

Nancybeth Hubert, a senior living in Northeast, said she would never walk alone at night even with adequate lighting, because as an emergency room technician at Health Services, she has seen the consequences of doing so.

Women are not the only victims of assault; Hubert said as many as one or two men a night on weekends come to the emergency room after having been assaulted. "A car stops to ask for directions, and being a good Samaritan, the men try to help. They get jumped and need medical attention. They never say they've been robbed; they all said they didn't know why it happened."

■ Du Bois

continued from page 1

reverses forced him to sell it. The house was listed in the National Register of Historic Places in 1979.

The day's events will commence at 1 p.m. with a luncheon for foreign ambassadors and other invited dignitaries. A slide show depicting Du Bois' life will be shown.

At 4 p.m. a lecture, "W.E.B. Du Bois: A Personal Memoir," will be conducted by author John Hope Franklin. An open reception is scheduled to follow.

Franklin, the James B. Duke Professor Emeritus of History and Professor of Legal History in the Law School at Duke University, is the author of several books. In 1985 he received the Clarence L. Holte Literary Prize.

The Du Bois lecture series is an annual event dedicated to preserving the legacy of Du Bois, according to UMass officials. In 1973, the University acquired the papers of Du Bois, consisting of 150,000 items of correspondence, documents, notes and manuscripts.

The preservation, arrangement and description of the papers was supported by grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the National Historical Publications and Records Commission and the Associate Alumni of the University.

These papers carefully document Du Bois' involvement in many social, literary and racial reforms of the 20th century. The collection was opened to the public in 1980, and is located on the 25th floor of the Tower Library.

SMART COOKIES KNOW...

興旺樓
CHINESE KITCHEN
150 KING ST., NOHO • 586-8220
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 253-2571

DELANO'S
Proper Identification A Must
57 NORTH PLEASANT ST • 253-5141
MILLER LITE
SPRING BREAK EXPRESS
ON WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1
AT 9:00 PM!
Drink of the Week Tequila Sunrise $1.00
Beer of the Month Bud & Miller Lite $1.00

Champion
Double Reverse Weave Sweatshirt with Pockets

Photo by Buck Stewart
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 10-3
UNIVERSITY STORE
Located in the Campus Center

S·U·N
BARBADOS
for SPRING BREAK
THE PLACE TO BE
We have a brand new 7-bedroom mansion reserved for the UMASS spring break party of the year. Your party abode is located on the beach and includes a fully equipped kitchen, living room, 4 full bath rooms, and daily maid service. The Sandy Lane Golf Course and Sunset Crest Resort are both close neighbors. The 3 quads, 3 triples, and 1 double are given on a first come first serve basis so don't be late.
DATES:
JFK Departure: March 17, 18, 19
Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Departures
BOS Departure: March, Friday 17 - Friday 24
Quad, Triple, or Double Occupancy: $589
Occupancy is first come first serve
Reservation Deposit: $75
Refundable Security Deposit: $25
$75 non-refundable for reservation
$25 security deposit required.
Full payment is need after February 9, 1989
Payments in guaranteed funds only!
$589
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union
545-3437
SEE US AT THE TABLE

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON

POWER- UP

SPECIAL UNIVERSITY PRICING!
40–50% OFF RETAIL PRICE
GREAT PERFORMANCE
GREAT PRICE

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN–

WITH THE NEW Z-248/12 WORKSTATION
TO GIVE YOU THE MAXIMUM IN 286 SPEED AND POWER!

Power-up your grades with the ultimate in 286 desktop performance.
Just get the lightning-fast, 12MHz Z-248/12 Workstation from Zenith Data Systems—
one of the leading suppliers of high-speed AT compatibles.

FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE CONTACT:
Steve Orlandi
ZDS Student Representative
256-1198

American Express VISA, MasterCard Credit Cards Accepted

MOUSE
AND MICROSOFT WINDOWS
INCLUDED FREE

Microsoft is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corp
Prices subject to change without notice
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems

Commencement to mark a fresh start

continued from page 1

business and do something that will help you in the long run.'"

"Basically, I saw the golden opportunity and decided to capitalize on it," Eddington said.

His day starts at 6:30 a.m., and within an hour, he's on a campus-bound bus from the Hampden County Pre-release Center in Springfield, where he was transferred last September. At UMass he is free, aside from several mandatory telephone checks with corrections officials in Springfield.

Eddington, who is up for parole in August, is focusing on the liberal arts, particularly legal studies, political science, and sociology.

While his dapper appearance and glowing demeanor make him a standout among undergraduates, he says students do not realize, unless he lets on, that he is a prisoner.

But as he nears the end of a life he wants to leave behind — one marred by heroin, street crime, and later degradation in the state's toughest prisons — Eddington says it is time to tell his tale, that others may learn from it.

***

Roy Eddington grew up in what he describes as a lower middle-class home in the north end of Springfield. His father died when he was 10. A decade later, in 1974, his oldest brother was killed by a drunk driver.

As a teen-ager, Eddington steered clear of the classroom, favoring the streets. Ten or so days at Commerce High School were enough. At age 15, he began "hanging with the fellas" — smoking pot, drinking, and later using heroin. His life before 1983 was largely a blur of police chases, robbery charges, and short jail terms.

In 1974, while attempting to elude police after a robbery, Eddington was shot in the back. The bullet punctured a lung and exited his chest, leaving two nickel-sized scars.

Then almost 10 years later, he was put away for a house robbery, motivated by the need for money to support his drug addiction.

During the last six years, he has served time at Hampden County Jail in Springfield, Cedar Junction state prison in Walpole, South East Correctional Center at Bridgewater, North Central Correctional Institution at Gardner, and Massachusetts Correctional Institutions at Shirley, Concord, and Lancaster.

At the outset of his sentence, delving into studies was a spontaneous move — not based on any conviction to seek a college degree. He attained his high school Graduate Equivalency Diploma to pass the time, he said. But at Lancaster, education took on a new focus, one of healing.

During his 1987 stay at the prison, a minimum security/pre-release facility for men and women, he met up with an inmate who, upon discovering how many credits he already accumulated, persuaded him to join the UMass program.

For Eddington it was the beginning of a journey, one filled with as many frustrations as accomplishments: the taunting of jealous prison guards, the difficulty of tackling overwhelming reading assignments while others watched television. And later he would face adjusting from a regimented lockup to a bustling campus — and having to leave it each day at 5 p.m. to return to prison.

> "I knew that I could sit in jail, sit idle, and come out in the same boat I went in. Or I could forego telling war stories in the yard with the fellas and say 'OK, Roy, it's time to get down to business and do something that will help you in the long run."
>
> – Roy Eddington

But, he said, for the first time he felt in control of his life.

"Education for me is a tool in gaining self-respect, power, and money," he said.

Walter Silva, who started the Prison Education Project in September of 1987 and still heads it, calls Eddington a bright, yet typical inmate-student.

"Roy has always been qualified [for higher education]," Silva said. "He just never realized it back then. He never really gave it a thought."

Donna Lynch, Eddington's academic advisor in Continuing Education, calls Eddington a pioneer — one of the first success stories in the UMass program. "He really offers a kind of hope to others," she said.

***

When he is not in class, Eddington works in Goodell library, either manning the Prison Education office or assisting personnel in Continuing Education. During an interview there, office staff joke with him without a trace of reserve.

"They don't see the social stigma of a convicted felon," he said of his officemates. "They see me as just another undergraduate pursuing an education. And that's all it should be."

Reflecting on social stigmas, Eddington lifts his shirt, revealing the two indelible bullet marks. Even with all the education in the world, he says, a convict carries his scars through life, struggling often in vain for a clean slate.

"All social stigmas stick with you because people never want to let you live them down," he said. "Regardless of what you do, regardless of the achievements you make, somebody is always going to lay in the backround, sticking that stuff in your face."

"I see myself as having three stigmas," he said. "I've got the stigma of being a black man. Number two is being a convicted felon. And number three is 'the guy is a junkie.'"

Although an abundance of drugs was available to him in prison, he said, he has stayed clean.

"I kind of still want to get high, but I've come to the realization that getting high in this society is only going to lead to one avenue," he said. "Because I don't have a lot of money, I'm going to have to break the law to get drugs. Therefore I'm going to end up in jail. And I've given the system enough of of my life."

Eddington is a class coordinator for Drugs and Society, a popular sociology course on campus. While he neither condemns nor condones drug use, Eddington said he wants "to give students some reasons that I never got to stay away from drugs."

"You can't tell a person 'just say no' and not give them a reason," he said. "You have to let them see this ugly stuff. You have to tell them the reality that you can walk on the street corner and for two dollars you can have a woman's body."

Eventually, Eddington would like to get into business for himself. He says he has no illusions about the difficulties ex-offenders face in seeking employment. But he said he is no less determined.

"I've reached a stage in my life where I just have to keep on moving," he said. "I definitely have my heart and mind set on being my own boss. I want to take my street hustling, put it in a positive sense, and hustle at business — legally."

Tomorrow: a look at the Prison Education Project at UMass

- Create full 4-color, high-quality reproductions of color photos, 35mm film, or any color document.
- Change colors and create entirely new images.
- Reduce or enlarge images from 50% to 400%.
- Get customized, full-color copies for all your business needs, whether you're in real estate, advertising, or graphic design.
- Ideal for all your personal color copying needs.

AMHERST COPY CORNER

37 East Pleasant St. · Amherst · 549-2854

RESIDENT ASSISTANT SELECTION PROCESS 1989 - 1990

BECOME A R.A.

A RA is a live-in part-time student staff member. Duties include fostering floor and cluster community, assisting with hall management, and enforcing University policies.

Final Information Sessions

Wed. Feb. 22, 1989 1:00 - 2:30 CC168
Wed. Feb. 22, 1989 3:00 - 4:30 CC168
Thurs. Feb. 23, 1989 7p.m. Brett Main Lounge

Become a student leader in your residence hall. Apply now for a Resident Assistant (RA) position!

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, sex, sexual preference, age, marital status, national origin, mental or physical handicap, political belief or affiliation, membership or non-membership in any organization, or veteran status, in any aspect of admission or treatment of students or in employment.

ARTS & LIVING

Animal science student gets hands on training

By AL KAUFMAN
Collegian Correspondent

Professor Peggy McConnell's livestock management class teaches students how to raise and feed animals. Though McConnell lectures weekly, much of the work for her class is done outside the traditional classroom environment.

"I call it my 'get dirty class,'" McConnell said, "because if you've got to pick up something wet and messy, you pick it up."

Meghan Hopkins, a junior animal science major and a member of McConnell's class, experienced first hand what it's like to spend a frigid winter night in a rat infested barn with no bathroom. In a chapter right out of All Creatures Great and Small, she devoted an entire evening to helping a pregnant ewe give birth to it's baby lamb.

At 6 p.m. on Thursday, February 2nd, Hopkins arrived for her 12 hour shift at Youngstock Farm, expecting an uneventful evening of studying and eating pizza. Her partner, Ann Bush, was due to arrive at 6:30 because of a late class.

A little after 6:00, while checking the sheep, Hopkins noticed a lamb's head protruding from a ewe.

"First I panicked," she said, "because I was by myself and I had never done it before." She calmed herself down and tried to remember what she learned in her lab. She reached deep into the ewe's birth canal and did not like what she felt.

"Both legs were back, which is bad because the feet should come out first." She had to push the lamb back in so that she could move its legs forward.

"It's like trying to push your hand through a wall, because the sheep contracts against you, " she said.

Pushing the lamb back in took about 10 minutes, but according to Hopkins, "It seemed like forever." After moving the legs forward, she easily pulled the lamb out.

"I was totally shocked it was still alive," she said, "I didn't know how long it had been birthing since the shepardess (the caretaker at the barn during the day) leaves at four. Plus, the lamb's tongue was all purple."

By then, her partner Ann had arrived. Hopkins cleaned off the lamb, dried it, and put it by the mother to see if she would accept it. The mother began licking its baby's face, demonstrating acceptance.

But that's where the mother's cooperation ended. "The ewe was being a real jerk. She wouldn't let the lamb suckle," Hopkins said.

Hopkins eplained that it is very important for lambs to drink their mother's milk within the first four hours of their life because the milk contains antibodies that the lamb needs to survive. Hopkins and Bush restrained the

continued on page 9

Step Into Style —

Walk Out In Newness

Ankle High Westerns In Brown and Black

Zanna SHOE BIN

north pleasant street, amherst 253-2563
daily 10-6 sunday 12-5

YVONNE'S CARIBBEANA
Now Open For Lunch
Tues.-Fri. 11:00a.m. - 3 p.m.
All you can eat multi-cultural cuisine buffet
$4.95—Homemade soups, salads, etc.
Also Sunday Brunch 11-3
And a New West Indian Bakery and Pastry Shop
Wedding and Birthday Cakes
All Occasions—cakes made to order
Open 10 a.m.-3 p.m.
Dinner 5-10 p.m. Tues.-Sun.
Authentic Caribbean Catering—All Events
206 Russell St., Hadley,
on the bus route—586-4389

Pearl Street
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON, MA
Cover is only 99¢ before 9:30 413 584 7771
UPSTAIRS DANCE CLUB
GET DOWN, DOWN TOWN
FRI & SAT NIGHTS 8:30-1:00
UNIVERSAL
JOINT
THE LIVE MUSIC CLUB
THURSDAY FEB 23rd
Rock-Steady Reggae an'Skankin' w/
NEW HORIZON
Only $5.00 at the door
FRIDAY FEB 24th
DIRECT FROM TRINIDAD
WORLDWIDE SOCA SENSATION
ARROW
Topping the charts in England & Europe this is HOT, HOT, HOT!
Also
LOOSE CABOOSE
advance tix $11.50
SATURDAY FEB 25th
COMEDY EVERY SAT 8 to 10
THIS WEEKS TRIO
ED REGINE
The male Tina Turner of Comedy
FRANK O'DONNELL
Boston's Madman
and
RICK JENKINS
Following Comedy at 10:00 p.m.
STREET TEMPERATURE
Red-Hot 8-piece soul, horn dance band
only $5.00 at the door
SUNDAY FEB 26th
Chicago's Rising Blues Star
MELVIN TAYLOR
Soul-sweet, aching, blues guitar, don't miss!
This young man is going to go to the top
$5.00 at the door—Doors open at 7:30 p.m.
MONDAY FEB 27th
Straight from Scotland
THE PROCLAIMERS
MARCH 2nd ALL-AGES SHOW
JANES ADDICTION
adv. tix $10.00/$2.00 surcharge for under 21's
Doors open at 7:00 show at 8:00 sharp
MARCH 3rd
TOOTS AND THE MAYTALS
Doors open at 7:00 show at 8:00 sharp
Adv tix $12.50 must be 21 years old
413-584-7771
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON

Council Travel
DON'T WAIT
BOOK NOW FOR SPRING BREAK!
SPRINGBREAK From BOSTO
4 NIGHTS NASSAU $379pp
7 NIGHTS CANCUN $479pp
7 NIGHTS PUERTO la CRUZ $599pp
VENEZUELA, the NEW EXOTIC DESTINATION!
Incl all hotel/room taxes & service charges.
Departure taxes not included.
BOOK NOW!
413-256-1261
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

COME CLEAN WITH US!
Open 7 days a week 7 a.m.-10 p.m.
Campus Coin Op 107 Sunderland Rd. North Amherst
Speedwash, 11 Pray St., Amherst
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St., South Amherst

The Best Way Off Campus
Peter Pan
Hourly Express Service, Daily to
New York City & Boston
Serving: Springfield • Worcester • Newton • Hartford • Albany
Bradley & Logan Airports
Service Throughout New England with Connecting Service Nationwide
Student Fares from Amherst to
Boston $20.95 round-trip
New York City $34.95 round-trip
Peter Pan
The People Professionals
Tickets and information available at:
U-Mass Hotel Tel #1 or #2 545-2008 549-6000
Amherst Center Bus Terminal 256-0431
Hampshire College Book Store 549-4600
Price Welch Parmacy So. Hadley 533-7115
Northampton Bus Terminal Roundhouse Pl. 586-1030

$ave $ave
Europe This Summer?
Buy your tickets before March 1
Boston To: From
London $489
Prestwick $579
Frankfurt $569
Amsterdam $624
Copenhagen $659
(Based on roundtrip, plus $23 taxes, restrictions apply.)
586-8953
Your Partners in Travel
Maplewood Shops, Northampton, MA
$ave $ave

Return of the Cannibals worth the wait

By AL KAUFMAN
Collegian Correspondent

It was worth the wait. At the end of 1985, two former members of the English Beat (guitarist Andy Cox and bassist David Steele) teamed up with a strikingly handsome singer with a rich, distinctive voice (Ronald Gift). They called themselves the Fine Young Cannibals, and released a well-crafted pop album that yeilded them a minor hit with "Johnny Come Home", as well as many critical accolades. They were a band to watch.

Then they disappeared. Gift emerged in the critically acclaimed movie about riot-torn England, Sammy and Rosie get Laid (he also appears in the upcoming Scandal; and Cox and Steele worked on soundtracks. People began to wonder if the "band to watch" had been nothing more than a flash in the pan.

However, these people were wrong. With The Raw and the Cooked, the Cannibals have staked their claim as soulful, funky pop artists, who can write an infectious hook as well as a clever lyric.

The first single, "She Drives Me Crazy", incorporates all of these qualities. From the funky, Prince-like guitar riffs to the "ooh-ooh" chorus, the song is sure to be a smash in every dance club as well as on the radio. The same can be said of "Don't Look back", "I'm not Satisfied", and, to a lesser extent, "It's OK (It's Alright)".

An album filled with danceable, funky tunes, like these would have been good enough. but the trio, along with a countless number of additional musicians, explore other territories as well. Gift's soulful voice carries the emotionally charged "I'm Not the Man I Used to Be". He becomes the perfect lounge lizard in "As Hard as It Is", which comes complete with a bluesy sax solo. The band even throws in some 50's flavor into the bouncy standout "Tell Me What". Their only misfire is "Don't Let It Get You Down". It's a piece of techno-trash in which Gift sounds strangely similar to Mick Jagger in "Emotional Rescue".

Two songs from movie soundtracks round out the album. "Good Thing", from Tin Men, is another upbeat funk number that includes a rocking solo by Jools Holland of Squeeze. In "Ever Fallen in Love", from Something Wild, the Cannibals take the Buzzcocks' punk classic and make it their own, much as they did with Elvis Presley's "Suspicious Minds" on their debut album.

The incision of two previously released songs is normally taboo on albums unless your name happens to be Glen Frey or Kenny Loggins. But songs as good as these deserve to be on the album.

The Fine Young Cannibals made us wait, but it was well worth it. Hopefully, we won't have to wait another three years.

■ animal science

continued from page 8

ewe, milked her, and fed the bottled milk to the lamb. Eventually, the ewe let the lamb suckle on its own.

For the rest of the cold evening, the two did hourly checks on the goats and sheep, did homework, ate pizza and got bored. But the beginning of the evening is one Hopkins is not soon to forget. She said, "Once I got over my panic, I felt exhilarated. I was able to help a mother give birth and it was a great learning experience."

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN

Can we build one for you?
Serving—Sandwiches, Foot Long Subs, Bagels & Lox, Fresh Soups & Salads
★ DELIVERIES CALL 549-6314
★ In the Carriage Shops

NEWSDEALER & STATIONER
A. J. Hastings INC.
253-2840

OFFICE SUPPLIES
STATIONERY
GREETING CARDS
UNIVERSITY SUPPLIES
45 SOUTH PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST

Main St RECORDS
Expanded Selection Of
BLUES AND CAJUN
On Record, Cassette and Compact Disc
Monday-Wednesday 9:30-6:00
Thursday-Saturday 9:30-9:00
Sunday 12:00-5:00
213 Main Street, Northampton, Massachusetts 586-5726

NO FAT. NO CHOLESTEROL.
Nothing But Delicious.

BANANARAMA fabulous frozen YOGURT
Try some Nonfat Frozen Yogurt the taste will leave you amazed!
Amherst Boltwood Walk
Northampton Main Street

LEGAL PROBLEMS?
Call LSC serving the students of UMass
Housing • Family • Student Rights • Civil Rights • Workers Rights • Criminal and Consumer Law •
(We regret that we can no longer offer legal representation to students following the Trustees' August 31, 1987 decision.)
call 545-1995

Thursday Night is Party Night at Mike's!
MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Rolling Rock 99¢
Woo-Woo's $1.50
☆ Free hors d'oeuvres every afternoon ☆

Boogie master Price pounds Hatch keys tonight

By JODY GABIN
Collegian Correspondent

Hey, here it is - what's hip and happenin' around the Pioneer Valley for the week of February 23rd-March 1st.

This evening, the Iron Horse hosts jazz greats the McCoy Tyner Trio for two shows at 7 and 10pm.

LIVEWIRE

At Katina's in Hadley, Marty Balin, former lead vocalist and songwriter of Jefferson Airplane, performs at 8.

Over at the Universal Joint, catch local rock band New Horizon; or for those in the mood for some energetic thrash, don't miss Chlorofoam Kate at Sheehan's.

If that's not quite your speed, UMass welcomes 80 year-old boogie woogie legend Sam Price to the Hatch, for one show at 9pm.

Tommorow night, celebrate the 10th anniversary of the Iron Horse with a whole contingency of area favorites, including Suzanne Vega, The Bobs, Cassellberry-Dupree, Shawn Colvin, Garnet Rogers, Eric Woods, and Winds of Change. The event takes place at the Academy of Music in Northampton, and doors open at 7pm. However, don't plan on attending if you haven't already purchased tickets - the show's completely sold-out.

Also tomorrow night, Arrow plays along with Loose Caboose at the Universal Joint, In the Flesh appear at Katina's, L'il Frankie and the Premiers return to Sheehan's, and if you miss Sam Price tonight at the Hatch, he returns to UMass to tickle the ivories one more time tommorrow at the Hampden Theater. Curtain - 10:15pm.

On Saturday the 25th, singer/songwriter Chris Smither (who penned such Bonnie Raitt classics as "Love Me Like a Man" and "I Feel the Same") appears at the Iron Horse for one show at 8:30pm.

Also on the 25th, Boston-area fusion rock/reggae band the Happy Campers perform at Sheehan's, RCA recording artists the Michael Gregory Band take the stage at Katina's, and following comedy night from 8-10pm at the Universal Joint, it's the band Street Temperature.

On Sunday the 26th, L.A.-area heavy metal bands, Omen and Violent Playground, appear at Katina's; and Chicago bluesman Melvin Taylor entertains at the Universal Joint.

Sunday at the Iron Horse, singer Ronnie Gilbert (of Sweet Honey and the Rock Fame) performs along with Erica Wheeler for two shows at 7 and 10pm; and as part of Amherst College's Sunday at Eight series, Tom Chapin and Mark Rust will be appearing at the college's campus center.

On Monday, February 27th, the Iron Horse sponsors Scotsmen The Proclaimers, at Pearl Street. Influenced by the likes of Elvis Costello and Billy Bragg, the band has had a number of hits within Europe, and last month released their new album Sunshine on Leith, in the U.S. Doors open at 8:30pm, and opening for the band will be the Holiday Clocks.

Also on Monday, Wildcat O'Halloran returns to Sheehans, and The Bobs return to the Iron Horse.

FAC rasta jam is family affair for melodic Marley clan

Like the cover of Conscious Party suggests, the atmosphere at Tuesday night's Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers show was a festive one. Shaking bodies and wiggling arms weaved throughout the Fine Arts Center capacity crowd, as Marley and his band (including 2 sisters, who nearly stole the show with their energetic dancing) proved that in a live setting, their music has an edge that may have been dulled on their near platinum LP.

The fast paced 90 minute set (of which 15 minutes was encores) pulled a good deal of material from Conscious Party, while also touching on their own recorded past, and acknowledging Papa Marley's undying presence with "Get Up, Stand Up" and "Buffalo Soldier".

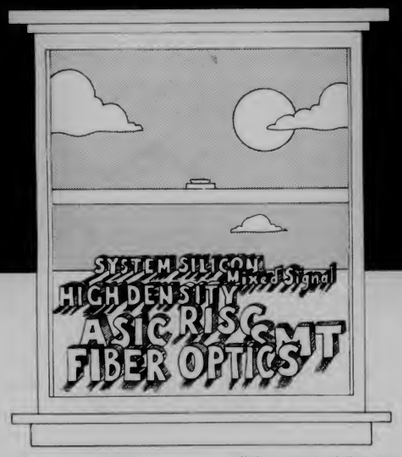
Marley's singing was unafraid, if not confident. The band's rhythmic sense was defined from the first number, the percussive stylings straying at times from the traditional reggae beats, and providing a feel much like that of the juju music of King Sunny Ade.

At a time when most reggae fans must be content to settle for rip-off package tours consisting mainly of "rap-reggae" (i.e. Stitchey) artists with ticket prices well into the 20 dollar range ($22 at the Channel in Boston last summer), Ziggy Marley no doubt is making a move to lead the continued advancement of Kingston Jamaica's musical export. "Tommorrow People" offered a message of hope, as did most of the evening's performance; a message passed down through family legacy.

COSMO MACERO JR.

TERADYNE

WINDOW TO THE FUTURE



Technological change. How do you keep up?

A few short years ago, daring people were talking about 1,000 bits of memory on a single device. Today, it's millions. Tomorrow, anything's possible.

A decade ago, card edge connectors with 20 contacts per inch were sufficient. Today, connector systems boast three times the density. Tomorrow will push designs even harder.

A short while ago, a telephone call was a telephone call. Today, telecommunications has gone from analog to digital, from simple relay switches to computers, from copper wire to fiber optics.

At Teradyne, we've got to stay one step ahead of technological change because we're working with the world's leading high tech companies designing and building for today and tomorrow.

We're meeting that challenge every day — in our electronics ATE divisions in Boston and California, in our world-class backplane connection system, and circuit board complex in Nashua, New Hampshire, and in our telecommunications network test division in Deerfield, Illinois. In fact, we're the recognized leader in each of our businesses.

We need creative people to help us continue our track record of success... to develop solutions to changing questions. Excitement, career opportunity, growth, energy. That's what you'll find at Teradyne.

The challenges are great.
So are the rewards.

For more information, visit your Placement Office.

SHARE IN OUR SUCCESS

R+P
LIQUOR STORE
West St., RTE. 116
Amherst 253-9742

Close to Brittany & Riverglade
I mi so on 116

Bring us your empties

PLEASANT ST. THEATER

"Russell is at his kinky best. delightfully outrageous."
—Gene Siskel, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

KEN RUSSELL'S
THE LAIR OF THE WHITE WORM

Weekdays 7 & 9 p.m.
Friday 6, 8, 10 p.m.
Sat-Sun 4, 6, 8, & 10 p.m.
27 Pleasant St. Northampton
586-0935

Also Playing Almodovar's MATADOR

CHOOSE EXCELLENCE

LARGEST COLLEGE PAPER IN NEW ENGLAND

The Massachusetts Daily COLLEGIAN

Edger

July 25, 1988 / West E

Historic clu will rebuild
from ashes

By Richard Sasson
The Patriot Ledger

WESTWOOD — Dominic Marinelli of Walpole, president of the 92-year-old Norfolk Golf Club on East Street, vowed yesterday to rebuild the clubhouse that was destroyed in a $100,000, three-alarm fire over the weekend.

Marinelli said the golf course will reopen in a couple of days and the clubhouse will be rebuilt.

"It's a disappointment," he said. "The building has been there a lot of years and there's a lot of history to it. But we'll come out of it. The club will survive like it has in the past."

No members were in the club during the fire which started near the club's function room at yesterday, leaving only the shop and a section of locker room standing, said John J. Sheehy said. "The private club

PBA tries to leave airport

Fee hikes at Logan blamed for move

By Pedro Pereira
Standard-Times staff writer

NEW BEDFORD — The only airline that runs regular flights from the city to and from Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket plans to withdraw its service in September, but federal law says another airline has to take over before the pullout.

Eastern Express/Provincetown-Boston Airlines, owned by Bar Harbor Airways Inc., will withdraw at New Bedford Municipal Airport because of passenger demand, higher landing fees and the need to concentrate on international in Boston and Lac... York and the need t... announced Thursday.

But the F... may not...

disaster

Shop owners face disaster in slump from beach closing

By DAVID R. MARK
Press Staff Writer

THE BRENNANS have been doing a ... wondering lately ... business beach shop ... well.

Gloucester Daily Times, Friday, June 24, 1988

Fitchburg firefighter charged in loc

By THOMAS ROOMIGUES
Advocate intern

Fitchburg firefighter Joseph F... Gerante was released on $100,000 bail ... Tuesday after being charged with ... trafficking in $1.5 million in cocaine ... in Arlington.

Police said they arrested Gerante, ... of Fitchburg, on ... Police said he was allegedly ... pounds of alleged ... 136 Wil... F... Friday Jul... by ... transa...

Loyal group accompan

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1988 DAILY HA

Judge denies injunction in Sakowicz suit

By JENNIFER DEMPSEY
Times staff

come I was pleased that the court agreed with us. As far as I'm concerned the matter is finished.

2 Congressmen Deny Speech Fees Spurred

By GREGORY GORDON and RICK SANTOS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reps. ... Hochbruecker, D-N.Y., ... Hutto, D-Fla. deny a con... ... acceptance ... a... appeared separately at small luncheons at the Democratic Club in the spring of 1987, Hochbruckner and aides to Hutto acknowledge.

Two days before delivering an honorarium check to Hochbruckner, Evergreen President Robert Brooks, a former congressman, ... personally donat... congress...

Why join the Collegian?

Students serious about getting their foot in the door of the journalism field join the Collegian. Last summer several Collegian editors and staff members worked in professional newspapers and news organizations across the country.

Among newspapers that have hired Collegian reporters as interns or permanent staff members are the Boston Globe, Quincy Patriot Ledger, Standard-Times in New Bedford, Arlington Advocate, Daily Hampshire Gazette, Cape Cod Times, Gloucester Times, and many more.

Journalism is a competitive field and it pays to get experience early. So, what are you waiting for? Come down to 113 Campus Center today.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Mike Ludwich
Times-Picayune
Charles Manson, you've been denied parole. However, your application to purchase an AK-47 assault rifle has been approved...

Politicians not known for niceness

It is not a subtle or unusual ploy, especially in Massachusetts. Politicians here are not known for their gentleness.

Last summer, in the town of Hull, voters rejected a package of tax increases. So the town threatened to fire nineteen teachers and cancel all honors and athletic programs at the high school. The resulting controversy made news all over the state because students and educators in Hull believed that the politicians did not understand the importance of education.

Al Arpad

Those advocates of education were naive. The politicians understood the importance of education, but they measured importance on a different scale. Let me give another example.

The budget in Massachusetts is way out of balance lately, and indications are that the governor has been aware of the problem at least since last spring, probably longer. Big spending cuts have been made, and colleges and universities have taken more than their share of the losses.

University administrators responded to these cuts with plans for unpaid furloughs, layoffs and admissions reductions. Most recently, students here have seen courses cut back so badly that many of us won't graduate on time. Again, student leaders and administrators are telling us that the politicians don't understand the importance of education.

Again, the advocates of education are naive. Governor Dukakis understands the importance of education, as a tool for manipulating public opinion.

The University's budget cuts, debilitating on the local level, have been basically symbolic in terms of the total shortfall in state funds. Those cuts will make up for far less than one percent of the deficit. But just like in Hull, the cuts are targeted at the most visible, vital programs, in order to generate popular support for a tax increase.

Governor Dukakis is the preeminent tough-guy in Massachusetts politics. And lately, blaming Dukakis has become a fashionable pastime transcending political party lines. Although Governor Dukakis has taken some well-deserved criticism, University administrators, the trustees and the Board of Regents of Higher Education, all of whom actively participated in the budgetary gamesmanship, are busily turning the discontent to their own advantage.

Near the end of last semester, at the same meeting where they approved a $50 fee increase and other emergency measures, the University trustees approved a $45,000 allocation for the "Commission for the Future of the University". This commission, which at the time of the meeting had already overspent its original $175,000 budget, will eventually produce a report that the Board of Regents can use as justification for the highly questionable restructuring they now hope to accomplish in public higher education.

Although the big budget crisis is real, there is always enough money at the University of Massachusetts for bureaucracy, red tape, consultants and commissions.

Next time the trustees get curious about the future of the University, but find themselves strapped for cash, I have a suggestion. The trustees should drive all the way out to Amherst, stand on the steps of the Student Union, look around, and ask people: "What does the future look like for a school that cuts undergraduate education in order to fund administrative commissions?" Or they could ask: "What lies in store for a state funded institution that exists only as a political football in the minds of top policy makers?"

From the steps of the Student Union, the future looks a little grim.

Al Arpad is a UMass student

Plagued by college toddlers

I have made a startling discovery. Most of the campus activists are really oversized children.

It sounds harsh, but it's true. Don't tell me that we are surrounded by adults. I used to think so. Then, I opened my eyes.

Pamela McCarthy

I don't want to hear anyone on this campus tell me how students are treated like children. Tough. Some of us act like children.

I don't mean to sound nagging and bitter, I mean to sound frustrated and angry. No one wants to act like an adult. Case in point: the Spartacists League vs. the Republican Club. What a match! What an exciting sports event! Such tremendous boxing skills! Such a pathetic debate!

I can hear the sports announcer now: "It's looking mighty tense, folks. Oh! The Spartacists just called the Republicans Nazi Stormtroopers. The Republicans fight back with more slurs. Someone is being dragged away, a Club member, I believe. Oh, look at that swing! True masters of fighting, let me tell you."

Yeah, sure. Streetfighting is more like it.

This isn't the only time things like this have happened. Every rally that's held must have its hecklers. While I understand there will always be some obnoxious twits who like to disrupt things, I always thought that "some" only counted for about ten people. I was wrong. Up here, it counts for five hundred.

I tend to get very emotional over certain issues. I'm the first person to admit it. If I didn't, I'd never have gotten the title of "columnist." However, if someone espouses a view I don't agree with, I shut up and listen. I may get the urge to scream insults and hurl slurs at the person, but I won't. If you are going to a lecture to hear someone speak, you should have the courtesy to can it and listen. When I object, I either state my view calmly or write a column when I am more composed.

If I was to speak about censorship and realized that pro-censorship people were in the audience, the last thing I would do is single them out and insult them. It seems just a tad unwise, considering the fact that I'd want these people to listen to me and consider what I had to say. If I wanted them to behave themselves, it would certainly be a rather short-sighted move.

Oh, but wait. Have I hit on something? Do you people really care if anyone listens or understands you? Naahhhh. I think maybe you'd rather whip the other side up into a fury and make them look bad. Sure, why not? Martyr yourselves. How very cute. By the way, I hate self-proclaimed martyrs. They come off as whiny and pretentious.

It sure is clever how people bait each other to try to further their own personal cause. Getting ahead in the campus popularity polls is easy, just bash on your opposing group and push them into bashing back. Then, whine about how abused and misunderstood you are. Poor, poor, babies.

Can you say demoguagery?

These people have the nerve to complain about student apathy. Has it ever occured to them that people get intimidated and then fed up by the antics of many of these so-called activists? If you question anything the conservatives do, you are a bleeding heart liberal-communist-pinko. If you question anything the liberals do, you are an oppressive, conservative, facist pig.

Come on, children. Behave yourselves. I know it's hard, but self-control and civility is all a part of diplomacy, and will help you get your views across. It's becoming clear that campus politicians are only interested in their own personal glory. And believe me, you're not fooling all of us.

Pamela McCarthy is a Collegian columnist

We overlook the most important profession

"America is a whole new world," they told me, a foreign student from Australia. But where university editorials are concerned, I see now that discussions in the Collegian and my own university's Semper are in fact the same.

In particular, I have noted the presence of the debate that women are still presumed to be the housespouse in the modern marriage and are not given a fair bite at the career cherry. Perhaps this is true, but in America (as in Australia) it seems to me that we are all missing the real point of this issue.

There is a common fixation that being a housespouse is something to be ashamed of — it is undignified, unsophisticated and unfulfilling. This belief is where the problem lies. Surely the most important occupation of all is the upbringing of our young, the nurturing of the new generation. Isn't that the very reason the housespouse is "stuck at home" maintaining the house in the first place?

Surely it is an occupation to be proud of, and to be held in only the highest regard. But because "a housespouse" is such a common profession, and because we tend to glorify those who reach great heights in any other profession, we have completely overlooked the fact that housespousing is the most important profession of all.

J. Nicklin

These college editorials shouldn't be filled with articles trying to balance the scales so that an equal number of males and females are housespouses. They should be directed at reminding people that this profession should never be disregarded or overlooked, and that it is our most important profession.

So some of you are now thinking, "I'll bet that is a rationalizing male chauvinist" while others are thinking, "stupid housewife trying to justify having four kids before she was twenty-five." Well, you'll never know because I am trying to make the point that gender is the least important factor here. I am writing this as a citizen concerned about what has become a grossly developed non-argument.

I will at least say, that if I am female and my time came, I would be proud and honored to be a housewife should my husband and I so decide. If I am male, and my wife and I so decide, I would be a honored househusband.

In either case, I would be more than satisfied that I am helping with the most important role in society.

Australia is frequently described as being the most male chauvinistic country in the western world, so I had thought that Australia's perserverence of such a pointless argument as "which spouse for housespouse" has been a consequence of that.

America, you have disappointed me. Can't we argue about real issues anymore?

J. Nicklin is a UMass student

Curriculum and education help perpetuate racism

What's wrong with David Duke? He won fair and square. Did he not subscribe to the "democratic" rules this nation was founded upon? I find myself oddly rooting for people like Duke; whereas guests on news spotlights, they are rudely provoked by biased commentators. What is it that he said or did wrong? Isn't Affirmative Action drawn along racial lines? Doesn't a lot of crime emanate from the "underclass?" In fact, based on what you've learned right here at the University of Massachusetts, isn't it a natural conclusion that Africans are inferior?

Charles Sheffield

I find it odd that people get so excited over a man voicing that which their won rationaltiy and logic would determine anyway. What have Africans created without the blessed guidance and instruction from the fatherly white man? Didn't Christian Charlie bring religion, science, and by golly, civilization to the naked savages? Aren't the beastly niggers better off now that the good white people have taught them agriculutre, bathing, government, and all else that they imitate to shape their meager existance? Based on the University's teachings, can we refute the immortal words of David Hume who wrote: "I am apt to suspect the Negroes. . . to be naturally inferior to the white. There never was a civilized nation of any other complexion than white, nor even any individual eliment either in action or speculation. No ingenious manufacturers among them, no arts, no sciences."

Foolish students, learning nothing but Negro history from the department, absorb nothing but an apologist's oppressed mentality. Edited from all doctrine at this University are the academic refutements that might have repelled a man like David Duke from joining the Ku Klux Klan in the first place. As long as Greek Civ 101 is not challenged, the Africans are a race of apes in human form. As long as our African history is only intensely described beginning in 1619, when we were bound and brought to the Big West, Africans are no more than thankful savages.

I eagerly await the rebuttal that Africans are not the inferior of whites without reference to Chiekh Anta Diop, George G. M. James, Carter G. Woodson, Yosef A. A. Ben Jochanan, Joel Rogers, Ivan Van Sertima, Walter Rodney and Chancellor Williams. Yet, these pillars of African consciousness are no where to be found at this university.

It is this educational system that reinforces racist attitudes. While this university and those of its class continue to feed their students lies, omissions and debauchery concerning the contributions of Africa to world civilization, perverted whites and self-hating Negros will continue to destroy themselves and one another. Carter G. Woodson concretized the point: "It is strange, then, that the friends of truth and promoters of freedom have not risen up against the present propoganda in the schools and crushed it. This crusade is much more important than the anti-lynching movement, because there would be no lynching if it did not start in the schoolroom. Why not exploit, enslave, or exterminate a class that everybody is taught to regard as inferior?

Charles Anthony Sheffield is a UMass student

AK-K-KADEMY AWARD
...And winner for best actor for his portrayal of a mainstream politician...
LOUISIANA DAVID DUKE
Mike Ludwich
Times-Picayune

You don't need an excuse to be sick

Yes, I am one of the lucky ones on this campus — the few, the scared, the healthy.

But while I may run in the opposite direction when I see you sneezing, I am not unsympathetic to your plight.

Janine Warner

This semester I have seen an unusual number of students and faculty fall prey to the flu, and the result has been an inordinate number of visitors to Health Services.

Having had the flu in the past, I relate to your dilemma. I know the feeling that you might do better without your nose or sinuses, and the desire never to subject your stomach to food again. But I also know that a simple cold or flu does not necessarily warrant medical attention.

Are students really trekking all the way to Health Services just to be told modern medicine still hasn't found them a cure? Somehow I doubt it. Instead I think it has more to do with the requirements of professors and department heads that students have "official excuses" when they miss classes.

I was astounded the first time a professor told me my grade would be partially based on my attendence. College is not mandatory, we've chosen to be here. We should be able to decide for ourselves whether to stay in bed or go to class.

I suspect it is student's knowledge that their grades will suffer if they cannot furnish an "official excuse" which forces them from their beds and confronts them with a pink and white form and a pencil with no eraser.

Health Services is certaintly adept at providing students with "official forms," but I think most of them would rather have their pillows.

Grades should be determined by a student's performance in class, not their presence. And while I realize some students do "blow-off" classes, I still think the decision should be left up to them.

If students are missing an excessive number of classes, it should be reflected in their ability to do coursework and pass exams. And if the lectures are so useless that they are not necessary, the professors are not doing their jobs.

Why then must we furnish "official excuses?" Why are we flooding Health Services with students they would rather not see anyway? Why hasn't Health Services complained about this? And what about all the students who really do need medical attention?

Colds and flu are not life threatening ailments, but they do warrant missing a few classes. And when students do need medical attention, they shouldn't have to wait in line behind a bunch of people who need a note to stay in bed.

The next time you're too sick to go to class and need rest more than an "official note;" take this to your professor.

Janine Warner is a Collegian columnist

Insults and assumptions lead to nothing but anger

I am a white heterosexual male and thusly I am the worst, most oppresive human being ever created.

I do not hate blacks, asians, hispanics or any person of different skin pigmentation. I do not hate women. I do not hate girls. I do not hate any females regardless of their age. I do not hate homosexuals, bisexuals, unisexuals, transexuals or any other sexuals.

Anthony Padovano

DON'T CALL ME RACIST. DON'T CALL ME SEXIST. AND DON'T CALL ME HOMOPHOBIC. I AM NONE OF THE ABOVE.

I have been attending the University of Massachusetts for the past four years and in each of those four years, I have been called all of the above. The people who call me these names are as bad as those who actually are racist, sexist and homophobic — they make a judgement based on ignorant, unfounded beliefs.

Oh, I won't argue that homosexuals have been the target of many a heterosexual assault, both verbal and physical. I don't have to go any farther to see racism than my own backyard. And the number of rapes in this country is still on the rise.

But because I'm the color of my parents (white), and have an extra Y chromosone, I am grouped with people in the KKK or the neo-nazi party, people like Roger Libby, and people like Paul Cameron. But I am not like them. They disgust me.

I treat everybody with respect — until they prove they don't deserve it. I have lost respect for those who insult me.

If a white was to call a black a nigger, the insult is reported as a racist incident, and rightly so. When a heterosexual calls a homosexual a faggot, the insult is reported as a homophobic incident, as well it should be. But what happens when a black calls a white a racist? What happens when a homosexual calls a heterosexual a homophobe? And what happens when a woman calls a man a sexist?

The answer is nothing. These insults anger me about as much as being called a nigger would anger a black.

There is no such thing as reverse discrimination, but there is such a thing as common courtesy. An insult is an insult.

Of course I have my biases, just as everybody does, but I am struggling within myself to change them. Every day I see things that nudge me away from those biases, things like the lack of blacks and hispanics in my classes; or the covers of toy boxes portraying only white children at play. Once in a while, a major event will occur that jolts a few more preconceptions from my mind. The New Africa House occupation forced me to take a hard look at my own opinions without anyone having to insult me.

I don't mind being educated about the problems blacks have had with whites, how they've been oppressed in this country since before the Revolutionary War. The same goes for women and homosexuals. All that information helps me to better understand the problems those groups are going through now. But don't tell me all the problems are my fault. My grandparents weren't even a lusty thought when all these problems were being set into the fondation of this country. Maybe I'm different, give me a chance to prove myself before I am condemned. That's all I ask.

I am changing at my own rate. To try to force me to change faster by insulting me just won't work. If anything, it will stunt my growth. A natural reaction to being attacked is to counterattack. Stuff awareness down my throat and chances are I'll vomit it right up. Let me nip at knowledge and complete digestion will occur.

I have one bit of advice to all those "Socially Aware" people out there — you have something to learn about being social. Your approach to -ism education is all wrong. Instead of being rude and insulting, you should point out aspects of racism, sexism or homophobia in a polite way. You'll be surprised at the results. Until you can do that, you shouldn't be trying to educate anybody. I think I could do a better job of it.

Anthony Padovano is a Collegian columnist.

Don't wait to show your feelings

This is an open letter to everyone fortunate to have one or both of their parents alive today. Although the recent death of my father has been extremely difficult for my family and I, the good Lord has indeed blessed me with a "gift" that I will cherish forever. This "gift" was the chance for me to tell my father, one last time, on the eve of his death, "I love you."

My appeal is very simple: Please write a note, send a card or tell your parents how much you love them — TODAY. Sometimes we get so caught up in our daily routine that we forget to take a step back and reflect upon those who mean the most to us. We think that there is time to mend old wounds, to improve relationships in the future, or to say I love you another day. However, who knows what tomorrow may bring?

I urge you to learn a lesson from me. I thank God everyday for letting me tell my dad how much he meant to me, and I ask you to do the same. You won't regret it, it may even be that special "gift" you will cherish forever too!

John Hennessey
Amherst

Journalists: media wrong on USSR

By ERIN ABBEY
Collegian Staff

The American media has on occasion portrayed the Soviet Union's steps toward openness as taking strides toward capitalism, according to a Moscow correspondent for an American left-wing newspaper.

But this image is false, Carl Bloice, an African-American who has lived in the Soviet Union for two years while working for the People's Daily World, said last night.

"A formerly backward nation has become an industrial giant. There came a point when the old way of doing things hung around longer than they should have. Thus there is perestroika [restructuring]," he said.

They are restructuring politically, socially, and economically to include more democratic means, he said.

"Democracy is constant," Bloice said. "People ought to be able to decide what happens to them."

Democracy and communism can co-exist, he said. Most Soviets cringe at the thought of capitalism, viewing it as undemocratic because the Federal Reserve Board, which regulates our production, is not elected.

Soviets do not want their business production to be privately owned, but they do want a say in who controls their production through such democratic practices as elections.

Soviets in March will elect a large body of representatives, and then those representatives will elect the leaders in the country, Bloice said. Formerly, the larger body did not exist and the Soviet leaders ran uncontested, he said.

"What's changed the most is the change in the political atmosphere. What's the most important is not the volume of debate but the depth of debate," said Bloice, being careful to note that the change has affected every aspect of Soviet life from women's rights to ecology.

For Your Information

For Your Information is a service of the Collegian to its readers. Because of a lack of space, not all press releases can be included in FYI. For more information, contact David at the Collegian, at 545-3500.

Meeting

Representatives of the Legal Services Center and the University Internship Program will speak about the legal assistant internships offered at LSC and how to apply for them. The meeting is scheduled for today at 3:30 p.m. in room 901 in the Campus Center. For more information, contact the Legal Services Center at 545-1995.

Lecture

"New Thinking for Socialism and the World," is a lecture to be delivered by Carl Bloice, associate editor of the People's Daily World. The lecture is scheduled for today at 7:00 p.m. in room 101 of the Campus Center. For more information, contact the UMass Young Communist League.

GE exec. gives students hints for success

A General Electric executive told about 200 University of Massachusetts business and engineering students and faculty yesterday that there are many lessons to be learned outside of the boardroom.

Speaking in Marcus Hall, Art Glenn, vice president and general manager of General Electric's Defense Systems Division, said after 34 years, one thing he has learned is that people are important.

"Different people have different needs, and they have to be treated differently" for a business to run efficiently, he said.

Glenn spoke in place of Jack Welch, a UMass alumnus and chairman of the board for General Electric. Welch could not appear at the forum because of inclimate weather, according to James John, dean of the College of Engineering.

Glenn offered students a list of keys to success including ideas about clear vision, hard work, service to the customer, broad perspective, high ethical standards and belief in self.

Following the address, engineering faculty received awards for outstanding teaching.

Robert Kirchhoff, professor of mechanical engineering, and James Male, professor of civil engineering, won the General Electric Outstanding Teaching Awards at the University.

Frank Yang, a senior computer systems engineering student, and Ellen Martin, a senior electrical engineering major, won Outstanding Senior Student Service Awards.

— E. TERESA TOUEY

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-RENT

AMHERST CINEMA
BIRD
Directed by Clint Eastwood
Held over 2nd week
1 showing every evening at 7:30
AMITY ST. 253-5426

The only way to go.
Peter Pan
Stratton
Express Package
A great day of skiing shouldn't have to end with a long and boring drive home. This year, once again Peter Pan is offering a Ski Express package to Stratton Mountain. Pack your skis safely in our spacious luggage compartments, board our Peter Pan motorcoach, sit back, relax and ride in confidence.
Then, enjoy a full day of great skiing at Stratton. You'll explore up to 90 exciting trails, and with the new Stratton Starship XII summit gondola, you'll spend more time skiing, less time waiting.
The Peter Pan/Stratton Mountain Ski Express a great package price, great skiing, and the comforts of a warm motorcoach. It's the only way to go. Agreed?
Package includes:
Round-trip transportation and a one day lift ticket for as little as $29.95
Advanced reservations only. For further information on pick up points, prices and schedules, contact
The People Professionals
NON-STOP SERVICE FROM GREENFIELD AVAILABLE THROUGH
Clarke Sporting Goods, 289 Main Street, Greenfield, MA Call [illegible] 98
79 South Pleasant Street, Amherst, MA, 256-0031
UMASS Campus Center, Amherst, MA Ticket Office 545-2006
Peter Pan Bus Terminal, 1776 Main Street, Springfield, MA
Call 1-800-332-4995 Ext 270
For group rate information, contact: Peter Pan Charter Department 781-2900

ARTHUR TREACHERS SEAFOOD
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
10%
Student Discount
With College ID
Phone In Order
585-0209
During this Lent Season
KEEP THE FAITH
with
ARTHUR TREACHER'S!

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd.
No. Amherst 549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

FILENE'S BASEMENT
ON MARCH 18th UMASS
TAKES OFF
7 NIGHTS HOTEL/AIR/TRANSFERS
NO HIDDEN COSTS!
FROM BOSTON/STAY AT THE BEST HOTELS
Buy with confidence. Buy your vacation from Filene's basement.
JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY or NEGRIL from $449 +12
Sat. night dep.
BAHAMAS
At Deluxe Beachfront Nassau Beach Hotel Fri. night dep. from $479 +10
PUERTO LA CRUZ
Suites at Beachfront Doral Beach Hotel Sunday dep. from $569 +17
CANCUN
Beachfront 1st Class Hotel Sat. night dep. from $449 +17
All prices are per person Quad occupancy and are plus $15-17 departure taxes. Hotel taxes and airport transfers in your destination are included. Cancellation penalties apply and all passengers must sign Tour Operator Participant Waivers. Subject to change, space is limited. Double occupancy slightly higher.
OPEN TODAY
10 Locations in New England
Guaranteed Reservations!
Guaranteed Low Prices!
THE VACATION OUTLET
FILENE'S BASEMENT
For information or to Book call
617 267-8100
FIRST CLASS VACATIONS AT BARGAIN BASEMENT PRICES!

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT Print Shop I
228 Triangle St., Amherst

For Healthier Skin
Facials
Deep Pore Cleansing Facials
Lash & Brow Tinting
Hair Removal with Warm Wax
Lip • Brow Shaping • Chin
Bikini Line • Legs
Gift Certificates Available
Licensed Aesthetician
AESTHETICS
EUROPEAN SKIN CARE for Men and Women
34 Main Street, Amherst
253-9879

RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

START YOUR CLIMB TO CAREER SUCCESS THIS SUMMER.
Apply now for six weeks of Army ROTC leadership training. With pay, without obligation. You'll develop the discipline, confidence, and decisiveness it takes to succeed in any career. And you'll qualify to earn Army officer credentials while you're completing your college studies.
ARMY ROTC
TWO-YEAR PROGRAM
THE SMARTEST COLLEGE COURSE YOU CAN TAKE.
Find out more. Contact Captain Jacobs
545-2321

WOMEN'S ISSUES

Local experts ponder Grimshaw conviction

By SHARON WILKEY
Collegian Staff
and The Associated Press

As Lisa Becker-Grimshaw awaits tomorrow's sentencing for the manslaughter charges against her, local experts working to stop violence against women are evaluating her case.

Brenda Lopez, Coordinator of the Abuse and Rape Crisis Hotline, a YWCA program for battered women in Springfield, said Becker-Grimshaw should have been acquitted.

"Battered women are not violent women," she said. "I don't advocate striking back. I don't believe in violence. But I understand the circumstances that led up to this violence."

Becker-Grimshaw was convicted for having her estranged husband killed by two men in 1985. Her defense maintains she was battered by Thomas Grimshaw and believed she could only escape if he was killed.

The first woman in Massachusetts to use the "battered woman's syndrome" as a defense against a murder charge, Becker-Grimshaw was convicted Friday in Hampden County Superior Court of manslaughter. The charge was lessened from first-degree murder after her two-week trial.

Mary Kociela, co-director of Greenfield's New England Learning Center for Women in Transition, a shelter for homeless or battered women and their children, said the syndrome is a type of stress disorder in which a person battered over time suffers extreme loss of self-esteem, feels helpless, and lives in constant fear of being harmed or killed.

"It's probably pretty common for most women to think about wanting to kill their batterer," she said. "Often, even when women try to leave, they are followed and tracked down, so I can understand battered women feeling that this is their only escape, their only option."

Lopez said the media has exploited Becker-Grimshaw: "We only hear about one of these cases when one of them is killed or one of them strikes back. There are thousands of others and we need to keep the issue of violence against women alive," she said.

Lopez, a representative to the Massachusetts Coalition of Battered Women Service Groups, said according to the coalition's statistics, one woman is murdered every 11 days in this state by the man she shares her life with.

"We don't know what happens to all of those women," she said. "Lisa Becker-Grimshaw is only one story."

Stacy Roth, coordinator of the Educator/Advocate Program at the Everywoman's Center, said, "Use of the battered woman's syndrome as a defense is a step in the right direction. The more this defense is used, the more people will learn to challenge situations where a woman is being battered.

"This allows people to hear a side of the story that they haven't heard before. People hear about abuse a lot, but they don't listen. This is an opportunity to have people listen for the first time."

Roth said Becker-Grimshaw may not have turned to the legal system for help because, she said, "the legal system we have created is unresponsive to the needs of those who need to take advantage of it. You can get all the restraining orders you want, but they're not always enforced. Virginia Ferrer had a restraining order, but she was still found and killed."

Ferrer, of Turners Falls, was fatally stabbed by the father of her children last September, even though she had had repeated restraining orders against him.

Edith Jennings, a coordinator of the volunteer and student intern program at Womanshelter/Companeras in Holyoke, said she hoped this case would alert women to the availability of area shelters for battered women and their children.

"A lot of women out there don't realize there are shelters all around, from Springfield to Pittsfield," she said.

Jennings also said she hoped persons would avoid stereotyping battered women based on observations of the Becker-Grimshaw case.

"It's a myth that all battered women have had a pattern of abuse. Women don't go out and look for people to abuse them. Many are shocked when abuse starts."

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman
Students and faculty discuss Jewish immigrants' assimilation into American society at an informal lunch in the Campus Center.

History taught at lunch

By ROB SIMPSON
Collegian Correspondent

Being absorbed into American society has been a complex and difficult process for immigrants in this country.

One way female Jewish immigrants adapted to American society was to assimilate through their clothing, Barbara Schreier, associate professor of Home Economics, said yesterday at a Brown Bag Lunch lecture series in the Campus Center.

Schreier lectured to about 50 women students and faculty on the recent study which she co-researched: "Becoming American Women: Clothing and Acculturation for Jewish Immigrant Women, 1880-1920."

Jewish immigrants found they could fit into American society by wearing American clothes whereas in Europe clothes were used as a way to distinguish social class, she said.

Jewish-American women felt pressured to "look American" opposed to "the pressure to conform to traditional values," she said.

These pressures, she said, crea?al tensions because a mother would feel her daughter was dissenting from the culture and the daughter would feel the mother was being stubborn.

Self-hatred and alienation from the Jewish orgin was another result of becoming Americanized, she said.

Schreier said she did her research in Jewish magazines, books, newspapers, and films at the Jewish Archives in Cincinnati, the Brandeis Center in Waltham, and the Boston Public Library, as well as many other centers of Jewish history.

Schreier said she sees her study as a "personal kind of research" and hopes to erase the many stereotypes, such as Jewish women being merchants.

New computer technique will help detect cervical cancer

By DANIELLE BIONDA
Collegian Staff

A new computer technique, recently developed in Boston, may save women's lives by detecting cervical cancer more quickly and accurately.

The technique interprets Pap smears, the primary test used to detect cervical cancer. Pap smears are samples of cells from the cervix and uterus which are are studied under a microscope for abnormalities.

HEALTHWATCH

Researchers at the Tufts-New England Medical Center Image Analysis Laboratory are combining two techniques to make reading of Pap smears more accurate.

The first technique analyzes individual cells, and the second technique, called contextual analysis, detects abnormalities in cell patterns or clumps, said Martha Hutchinson, MD, assistant professor of pathology at NEMC.

David Zahniser, MD, associate director of the lab, said, "This may be the key to having automated Pap smears."

Caren Ginsberg, PhD, an EIS officer at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta Ga., said Pap smears read by traditional methods may not always be effective in accurately determining abnormalities because the quality of the specimen may vary, the sample may not always be taken from a place on the cervix where the disease is, and lab interpretations may be incorrect.

Hutchinson, who is working with Zahniser, said, "Right now the tests are pretty subjective and subject to human error."

Zahniser said the new system would give automated Pap smear analysis the additional accuracy that is needed because it uses both techniques together.

Hutchinson said the overall aim of their project is "to improve Pap smear image analysis techniques, supplement human visual examination, and provide accurate, cost-effective prescreening capabilities."

There is no national standard for grading abnormalities discovered in Pap smear tests, she said, and the new technique may help in the development of such a standardized criteria.

"A national standard could even be the basis for better regulation," Hutchinson said.

The three-year government-funded project is unique to Boston and New England, Hutchinson said. Although other laboratories are working on similar projects, she said, "they probably aren't anywhere near the level of sophistication of this lab."

Hutchinson said she and Zahniser are using the technique not only on Pap smears, but on samples from breast and prostate cancer patients.

"I want to see if the technique can now accurately predict the outcome for breast cancer patients, or at least predict the aggressiveness of the disease," she said.

The technique could also aid pathologists in identifying and quantifying the degree of certian kinds of other diseases, researchers said.

Ginsberg said women should still trust the regular Pap smear test because it remains a very important screening device for cervical cancer.

"Overall [the Pap smear] is a really effective tool," she said.

Police car becomes escort car

By WENDY LEE
Collegian Staff

The Escort Service at the University of Massachusetts, for the first time since it began in 1983, has a car and a van to make the service faster.

The service, which provides escorts on campus from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. every night, received the refurbished police squad car Oct. 1, the executive director of Public Safety announced last week.

Arthur Hilson said when a police car needs to be replaced, the old one is usually given to the Physical Plant. This time, "I chose to put it into service for the students. I will do so again when I can," he said.

Carol Radzik, associate director of Public Safety, said the van is used as a back-up when the car is out of service. Only security officers who are not students drive the car.

Hilson said students who call for an escort may try to use the car as a taxi service, but it has not yet been abused. Hilson would not say how much the improvements cost.

According to Public Safety records, the service received 1,305 calls during the fall 1987 semester and the by the following fall, it had increased 28 percent to 1,922 calls.

Radzik said 40 students are now escorts. Anyone who completes the 40 hours of classroom training and field work can become an escort, but she said, "They need a high level of energy and cannot be afraid of the cold and rainy weather.

The service has a 100 percent success rate: all students who use the service have been escorted to their destination safely.

Women's Forum

Brown bag lunch

The Women's Studies department is offering a weekly get-together entitled "What is the world coming to?" from 12:15 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. each Wednesday.

On March 1 in room 904-908 of the Campus Center, Amy Hoffman, a graduate student in the English department, will read from her novel. Participants are encouraged to bring a lunch.

WAGES

Former undergraduate Women's Admissions and General Educational Support members are encouraged to attend a meeting at 6 p.m. March 5, to discuss attempts to reinstate the WAGES program. Call Nancy Rios at 549-4422 or Nancy Bishop at 256-0941.

Dinner & Dance

Valley Women's Martial Arts, Inc. is holding a benefit dinner and dance Thursday, March 9 at the Northeast Seafood Bar Restaurant in Northampton. The dinner is by reservation only, and open only to women. The dance, from 9:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., features D.J. Betsey and is open to the public.

The event is endorsed by the University of Massachusetts Everywoman's Center. For reservations, call 586-9409. For information about martial arts classes, call 527-0101.

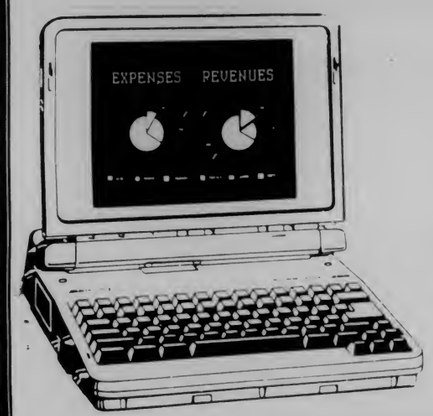
International Women's Day

The Women's Pentagon Action is sponsoring their annual International Women's Day celebration on March 10 at the Northampton Unitarian Society at 220 Main St., Northampton.

All women and children are welcome to the spaghetti dinner, followed by a short presentation. Proceeds will be donated to the Virginia Ferrer Memorial Fund.

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON



ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN–

The SUPERSPORT™ HR Returns with Two FREE Gifts!

Effective January 15, 1989 a good deal just got better. You need to check out the Most Complete Laptop being offered by any company—the Zenith SupersPort Se (Special Edition). Compare the following STANDARD FEATURES with the standard features of any other laptop and you will know why the SupersPort SE is the one to beat.

The two FREE gifts are the "nylon carrying case with shoulder strap" and the "Microsoft WORKS software"

* 640K RAM * one 20MB hard drive and one 3.5" floppy drive * parallel and serial ports * rechargeable battery and AC adapter/charger
* 1200 baud internal modem * MS-DOS 3.3 PLUS * 1 year parts and labor warranty

FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE CONTACT:
Steve Orlandi
ZDS Student Representative
256-1198

American Express, VISA, MasterCard Credit Cards Accepted.

ZENITH | data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

Microsoft WORKS is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corp.

Prices subject to change without notice.

UMass to reveal plans for Du Bois museum

By The Associated Press

The University of Massachusetts said it will unveil today, the 121st birthday of W.E.B. Du Bois, plans for a study on turning the childhood home of the late black pioneer into a memorial and tourist spot.

One Du Bois scholar, however, wondered about the chances of funding a memorial to the black intellectual who endured a half-century of surveillance by the government because of his radical politics.

"I think it challenges the American commitment to diversity and freedom of speech in the way that Du Bois's life presented challenges to what it means to be an American," said Robert Paynter, an archeologist who is excavating the Du Bois homestead in Great Barrington.

To mark the birthday of the social scientist who helped found the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and is revered in Africa as the father of black nations, the University is holding a luncheon celebration to which the Soviet Union and East Germany have already sent greetings.

State Secretary of Economic Affairs Grady Hedgespeth will announce an as-yet-undetermined grant for a study on ways to develop the homestead site as a memorial under the direction of the state Office of Tourism, officials said.

"We're very pleased the state is cooperating in a moment when money is tight," said Afro-American studies Professor William Strickland, who is organizing the event.

The ceremony will be attended by such foreign dignitaries as Victor Gbeho, Ghana's missionary to the United Nations, Strickland said. Du Bois spent his final years in Ghana, which has turned his bungalow into a national shrine.

The little plot of land near the New York border where Du Bois grew up, however, is overgrown with weeds and marked only by a small metal plaque that identifies it as listed with the National Register of Historic Places.

"It's a cellar hole in the woods," said Paynter. "It is in stark contrast to Paul Revere's house, Faneuil Hall in Boston and other places that are national landmarks."

Du Bois scholars have long lamented the lack of homage paid to the philosopher who laid the foundation for Pan-Africanism and planted the seeds for the independent African nations that sprang up in the 1960's.

"The irony is that he is better known internationally than in America," Strickland said.

Du Bois came to the house of his maternal relative Othello Burghardt soon after his birth in 1868 and lived there for four years before moving to another part of town. The house was purchased by friends as a 60th birthday gift to Du Bois in 1928, and he sued it as a summer retreat until 1954, when he was forced to sell it because of financial and political reverses.

He had been under government surveillance since 1919 for his writings on black rights and in the 1950s his passport was taken away because of his refusal to list his peace organization as an agent of a foreign principal. Embittered, he toured Easten Bloc capitals as soon as his passport was restored and 1961 he moved to Ghana and applied for membership in the Communist Party.

The University quietly arranged for the state to buy the Du Bois homestead last year from a group of admirers who had purchased it after the black leader's death in 1963 to preserve as a memorial.

Their efforts, however, were met with hostility. A 1968 memorial observation at the farmstead was opposed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in surrounding communities, the county's dozen American Legion posts and the Great Barrington Knights of Columbus because of Du Bois's communist past.

THE ALTERNATIVE SPRING BREAK '89
Killington VERMONT
CONDO LODGING & LIFTS
SKI and PARTY WEEK
MARCH 19-24
$259
LAGNAF
PROGRAM INCLUDES:
• 5 DAYS LIFTS TO SIX MOUNTAINS
• SPECIAL COLLEGE PARTIES
• 5 NITES CONDO LODGING AT PINNACLE
• FUN SHUTTLE
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437
NON-MEMBERS WELCOME
INCLUDES TAXES AND SERVICES
PARTIES PARTIES PARTIES

CORRECTION

A sculpture in a photo in Friday's paper was done by Elliot Offner and is called "The Great Blue Heron."

PLEASE NOTE:
Course Books Are Now Being Returned To Publishers.
Get Them Before It's Too Late.
Open till 8 p.m. Wed., Thurs. & Fri.
Sundays 12-5 p.m.
The Full Service Bookstore
Jeffery Amherst Bookshop

33 South Pleasant Street Amherst
Massachusetts 01002 253 7581

Scott's LIQUORS
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center
Amherst, MA
Open: Mon.-Sat. 8 a.m.-11 p.m. 549-2692
diagonally across from stadium, next to Louis Foods.

ABSOLUT Vodka 750 ml $10.99
It's Another Week Of
SCOTT'S SUPER SPECIALS!
SAVE MORE EVERYDAY...AT SCOTT'S

JACK DANIELS Bourbon 750 ml $9.49

PEACHTREE Schnapps 750 ml $5.99

MALIBU Rum 750 ml $7.99

MILLER LITE Suitcase Cans $10.99 plus dep.

BECKS BEER 24-12 oz bottles $15.99 plus dep.
We want to be your favorite liquor store.

James H. McManus eating place
OPEN 24 HOURS OPEN 24 HOURS
• BREAKFAST SERVED ANY TIME
• OPEN 6 A.M. - 3 A.M. SUNDAY - THURSDAY
• OPEN 24 HOURS FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
• BEER AND WINE SERVED 'TIL MIDNIGHT
• PLENTY OF PARKING
CAMPUS PLAZA
Route 9 next to Super Stop & Shop
HADLEY/AMHERST 256-6889
We now accept Mastercard and Visa
Employment Applications Being Taken

UTOPIA SPAS
Suntan Lounges
Float to Relax Tank
Private Hot Tub Rooms
Monday-Wednesday $7.50 per person/hour
Thursday-Sunday $7.50 half hour
$12.00 per person/hour
175 University Drive Amherst
Amherst, MA
413-253-7727
OPEN TILL 1:00 AM, 7 DAYS A WEEK

REGION

Writers protest removal of 'Satanic Verses'

BOSTON (AP) — Saying those who make money off the First Amendment should help defend it, Boston writers picketed yesterday outside bookstores that have removed Salman Rushdie's novel, "The Satanic Verses" from sale.

"If we let a fundamentalist mob in Iran decide what can or cannot be sold in the US, then any group could do the same thing — and that would be a kind of censorship that would be very dangerous," said author Barbara Beckwith, one of the rally's organizers, in an interview before the protest.

In other protests across the state, writers and literary critics planned a panel discussion to substitute for a cancelled appearance by Rushdie in Cambridge, and US Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., said he would read portions of the novel into the Congresssional Record to show support for the author.

"We can't allow this kind of crazy people to terrorize the world," Frank said at a Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting in North Attleboro.

Despite a cold drizzle, about 100 people picketed peacefully in front of the B. Dalton and Barnes & Noble bookstores in downtown Boston and then marched to the Boston Public Library to condemn Iranian leaders for threatening Rushdie's life.

"Clearly we're outraged by the death threats," said John Junkerman, a freelance magazine writer. "It puts all of us on notice essentially that our freedoms are under attack — our freedom of religion, our freedom of conscience, our freedom of imagination."

The picketers, carrying signs saying, "Rushdie Has The Right To Be Read," included members and employees of the National Writers' Union, the authors' PEN, the David R. Godine Inc. publishing house and The Atlantic Magazine.

Junkerman said the writers were appalled that major bookselling chains like B. Dalton, Waldenbooks and Barnes & Noble have caved in to Iranian pressure.

"They profit from the work of writers and the patronage of readers, and they are, I think, morally required to help defend the First Amendment right to freedom of expression," Junkerman said.

AP photo

Indian-born writer Salman Rushdie, author of "The Satanic Verses," in his London study Jan. 31.

The Spoke

It's RED HOT Week Again at the SPOKE!!

Drink of the Week
Red Hots $1.00

Beers of the Month
Bass Ale $1.75
and Grolsch $1.50

35 E. Pleasant St. • Proper ID required!

Introducing the
POT BELLY DELI
Route 9 • Hadley • 584-1603

Lunchtime, Dinnertime, anytime, you'll love our authentic New York style delicacies: Homemade Salads, Hot & Cold Subs and Sandwiches...to satify your appetite and budget.

50¢ OFF Any Sub
Free 1 oz. Bag of NY Style Delichips with every Sub Exp. 3/2/89

STILL* COMICS' #1 SWINGER!
the AMAZING SPIDER-MAN™

Available at:

Same Bat Channel
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
586-8775

Hundreds of 25¢ Comics
All back issues 15% off
(including wall comics)

Discount Games and Supplies

NOW... ON SATURDAY IN AMHERST!

FILM IN BY 11:00 am
PRINTS OUT BY 2:00 pm

1-HOUR SERVICE ALSO AVAILABLE

The Foto Factory
257 TRIANGLE ST. / AMHERST

WORLD & NATION

Bush embarks for Far East

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — President Bush yesterday launched a hectic five-day mission to the Far East, his first overseas trip as president. The White House said the journey might not generate quick headlines, but would demonstrate that "the United States is an Asian power."

Bush traded a pre-dawn Washington drizzle for a light snowfall here, stopping to refuel en route to Japan. He will also make a weekend visit to China and a 4 1/2-hour stop in South Korea.

Following the 7 1/2-hour flight from Washington the president spoke to members of the armed forces at an airplane hangar at Elmendorf Air Force Base.

It is unusual for an American president to travel overseas just 33 days after his inauguration, but Bush decided to go to Tokyo to represent the United States on Friday at the state funeral of Emperor Hirohito, who died of cancer at the age of 87 on Jan. 7.

In prepared remarks here Bush noted that Elmendorf was the first stop 18 years ago in a trip that made Hirohito the first emperor in Japanese history to set foot outside his homeland.

Bush said he would pay his respects in Tokyo, and added, "It is as well a measure of our respect for a valued ally and fellow democracy that I make this trip."

"At each stop," Bush said, "I aim to strengthen key relationships with our friends and partners in the Pacific region."

Meanwhile, however, the White House released a statement by Bush suggesting he was not interested in a US-Japanese free trade agreement modeled after a US-Canadian pact to eliminate all trade fees and import barriers.

Bush said that Tokyo and Washington agree on the need for multilateral and bilateral efforts to create a more open international trading system.

"We will stress the multilateral approach," Bush said. "We are always open to new ideas, but in our view the key now is to work hard for the success" of international trade talks known as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

His comment was made in a written response to questions submitted by the Kyodo news service. Typically, the responses are written by the National Security Council staff.

Asked if he agreed with Defense Secretary-designate John Tower's view that Japan should extend its sea land defense beyond the present 1,000-mile limit, Bush said, "We are fully satisfied with the mutually agreed division of defense roles and missions in our security arrangements ..."

AP photo

CONTRA LEADER AT TRIAL — Nicaraguan Contra leader Adolfo Cadero arrives at US District Court in Washington yesterday for the trial of former White House aide Oliver North on charges stemming from the Iran-Contra affair. Man at left is unidentified.

Energy secretary-designate wants changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Adm. James D. Watkins, the energy secretary-designate, said at his Senate confirmation hearing yesterday that his first priority would be to seek major changes in the way the government runs its troubled nuclear weapons complex.

Watkins said the Energy Department's defense program "has not brought itself into line with nearly all other public and private nuclear ventures that have now capitalized on lessons learned" since the 1979 reactor accident at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania.

"There is an urgent need to effect a significant change in its deeply embedded 35-year culture," Watkins told the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, adding that he would seek to make the department's nuclear operations better and more open.

ON CAMPUS

Meet Members of our Technical Staff

Recruiting Date: March 2

Lincoln Laboratory professionals are at the forefront of unique Research and Development efforts across a broad spectrum of advanced electronics technology in projects ranging from component development to the design and construction of complex prototype systems. Every year, many of the finest Ph.D. and M.S./B.S. level graduates add their expertise and energy to our international reputation for excellence. We invite you to join them in one of the following areas:

- Radar Measurements
- Communications
- Signal Processing
- Optics and Lasers
- Microelectronics
- Digital Signal Processing
- Machine Intelligence
- Image Processing
- VLSI

Located at the heart of New England's high technology belt, a career at Lincoln Laboratories also puts you within easy reach of the region's most beautiful beaches and mountains - and less than 15 miles from downtown Boston with its diverse cultural, educational and athletic events.

Contact your placement office to arrange interviews or send your resume to Mr. Chet Yablonski, MIT Lincoln Laboratory, 244 Wood Street, Lexington, MA 02173. (617)981-7050. U.S. Citizenship required.

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer

MIT LINCOLN LABORATORY

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

In honor of Black History Month the Bluewall Cafeteria will feature a specially prepared luncheon.

MENU
Chicken Gumbo Soup
BBQ Ribs
Chicken Fried Steak
Collard Greens
Black Eyed Peas
Candied Yams
Cole Slaw
Pecan Pie
Sweet Potato Pie

THURSDAY, FEB. 23
BLUEWALL CAFETERIA
11:30 am to 1:30 pm

TAKE ANOTHER

BRECKENRIDGE
GENUINE COLORADO
SKIUSA
THE PEAK

Breckenridge is three majestic, interconnected ski mountains, each with its own high-speed four-passenger SuperChair, as well as twelve other lifts. It all towers above a lovingly restored genuine Victorian town full of shops, restaurants, nightspots and enough lodging to entertain over 20,000 visitors at once. Isn't it time you took another peak? You may never look elsewhere.

$599

PRESENTED BY
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437

99.3 guaranteed
Miller Lite
Spring Break Express

Register to win a "MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK SURVIVAL KIT" Tomorrow night at Pearl Street. 5 winners will then be qualified to win the "MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK EXPRESS" grand prize.

Grand Prize winner will be selected from 20 qualifiers the week of March 10.

Miller Lite Spring Break Express Party
Will Be Held At:

Pearl Street
10 PEARL ST NORTHAMPTON, MA 413 584 7771

Friday, Feb. 24 10AM-1AM

MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK EXPRESS
GRAND PRIZE CONSISTS OF:

- Round Trip Air Transportation for Two (2) to Washington D.C.
- A Welcoming Reception at the Washington D.C. Train Station
- Round Trip Rail Transportation Aboard the Miller Lite Spring Break Express.
- Food, Beverage and Entertainment while on Board the Spring Break Express
- Five Nights Accommodations (Double Occupancy) at the Treasure Island Inn at Daytona Beach.
- $300 Spending Cash.
- Two (2) Miller Lite Sweatshirts.
- Chartered Transportation to and from the Train Station and Hotel.
- Additional Activities may be Scheduled as Available.

The Grand Prize can not be transferred. Winners who choose not to take the trip will forfeit airfare, train transportation, hotel accommodations but will still receive spending cash and sweatshirts.

INSTANT COLLEGE CREDIT WHEN YOU GET THESE GREAT HITS.

LP/CS $6.88; CD $12.88

LP/CS $6.88; CD $12.88

LP/CS $6.88; CD $12.88

LP/CS $6.88; CD $12.88

LP/CS $6.88; CD $12.88

That's Right! Your friends will give you credit for great musical taste when you buy any or all of these top college hits. It'll be the easiest credit you'll ever earn.

Record Town has the best selection of cassettes, LPs, and compact discs for every musical taste. Plus a wide variety of blank audio and video tapes as well as CD and tape storage cases.

Hurry in, the sale ends February 25th. Record Town—the only music and video store you'll ever need.

record town
MUSIC & VIDEO
Hadley, Hampshire Mall, 586-6351

VISA MasterCard DISCOVER

T0289-004

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

"I guess he made it. ... It's been more than a week since he went over the wall."

BLOOM COUNTY
By BERKE BREATHED

C'MON OUTTA THERE... ORDERS FROM MANAGEMENT.
BUT I'M NUDE AS A NIGHTINGALE!
MY BOY, EVERY MORNING FOR EIGHT YEARS NOW FIFTY MILLION READERS HAVE WATCHED YOU WITHOUT ANY CLOTHES ON NO.
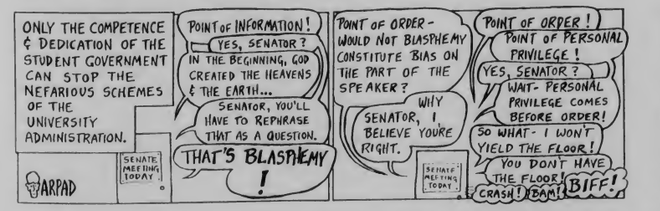
YES, USUALLY DOKING THEIR BREAKFAST.
NO WONDER AMERICA'S YOUTH IS GOING DOWN THE TOILET.
OFF WITH THE TIE

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

...AND THE CLUSTER OF PROBLEMS SURROUNDING JOHN TOWER THE SEEMINGLY ENDLESS STREAM OF ALLEGATIONS - NOW MAKES IT ALMOST UNTHINKABLE THAT THE SENATE WILL VOTE TO CONFIRM HIM AS SECRETARY OF DEFENSE!
WHAT IF IT DOES?
WHAT IF IT DOES, YOU ASK? WELL, BEFORE WE KNOW IT, WE COULD BE LOOKING AT SAM NUNN'S WORST NIGHTMARE!
SAM NUNN'S WORST NIGHTMARE
JOE'S PIZZA! HA, HA! OH, HI, GENERAL! JES' KIDDIN'! HA, HA! WHAZZUP!

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

BEACON HILL GANG
By AL ARPAD



ONLY THE COMPETENCE & DEDICATION OF THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT CAN STOP THE NEFARIOUS SCHEMES OF THE UNIVERSITY ADMINISTRATION.
ARPAD
SENATE MEETING TODAY
POINT OF INFORMATION!
YES, SENATOR?
IN THE BEGINNING, GOD CREATED THE HEAVENS & THE EARTH...
SENATOR, YOU'LL HAVE TO REPHRASE THAT AS A QUESTION.
THAT'S BLASPHEMY!
POINT OF ORDER - WOULD NOT BLASPHEMY CONSTITUTE BIAS ON THE PART OF THE SPEAKER?
WHY SENATOR, I BELIEVE YOURE RIGHT.
SENATE MEETING TODAY
POINT OF ORDER!
POINT OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE!
YES, SENATOR?
WAIT- PERSONAL PRIVILEGE COMES BEFORE ORDER!
SO WHAT- I WON'T YIELD THE FLOOR!
YOU DON'T HAVE THE FLOOR!
CRASH! BAM! BIFF!

YEASTHEAD
By JASON TALERMAN

DAY 45
Giant Sequoia farm dragon.
during enlargement his molecules grew 10 fold.
the break down of food was impossible!
Sequoia's system tore itself apart.

ETC.

"If Wade Boggs is to be believed, Wade Boggs has a disease. If The Mistress is to be believed, Wade Boggs is a disease."

–Globe Columnist Michael Madden

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

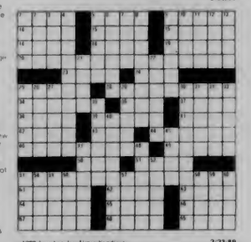
ACROSS
1 Cheeky chat
5 Actor Will of The Waltons
9 Mell's creator
14 Kansas city
15 Wagon part
16 Expert
17 Phenomenal business advance
18 Shade of blue
19 Corday's victim
20 Unyielding
23 Hops diner
24 Childrens game
25 Former Zionist group
28 ... play with fingers; his meal; slow
34 ... over
35 Not present
36 a Sine
37 Immobility
38 ... Lenape Indians
39 Ice sheet
40 Antarctic a
41 Mint coin
42 Neck and neck
43 Amass
44 Alice — Live Here Anymore 1974 film
46 Private
48 Indigent
49 mountain range
51 Former Dutch
53 ... nine
57 Utopia
61 Greek philosopher
62 It can't tell
63 College of New Rochelle, N.Y.
64 To one side
65 1480 caravel
66 The Bridge of ... Rey
67 Idiots
68 Exploit
69 Plan branch

DOWN
1 Layette items
2 Cheer
3 Baseball siblings name
4 Accompaniment for a gypsy dance
5 Tabbies, in Cadiz
6 Tries hard
7 Joie de vivre
8 Aunt, e.g.
9 Impair
10 Netherlands export
11 Woody fiber used in making rope
12 Grease
13 Ending with kitchen or luncheon
21 Sound sent one
22 Insinuated
25 Cover
26 Star of Superman II
27 Gvelt's relative
29 Penner, Claude
30 Earth strata below surface
31 Analyze sentences
32 Praying figure
33 Matting, in Bordeaux
35 Emulates
39 Cicero
40 An — an easy shoe
Carman
45 Swearword
47 FBI personnel
48 Plane part
52 In front
53 Early Irish script. Var.
54 Scrag
55 Pearl Buck heroine
56 Oat's cousin
57 Nastase
58 Wimanizer
59 Small piece
60 Bridge position

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S	L	A	P		D	R	U	B	S		C	O	L	D
N	A	I	R		R	A	N	E	E		O	V	E	R
A	C	R	I		I	N	D	E	C	I	S	I	V	E
M	E	S	S	E	N	G	E	R		N	I	N	E	S
			T	A	K	E	A		S	T	E	E	L
P	A	R	I	S		S	C	O	T	E	R
A	D	A	G	E	S		O	D	O	R		C	A	M
P	A	N	E		L	E	V	E	R		S	A	R	I
A	R	K		D	A	M	E		E	V	E	N	T	S
			M	A	T	U	R	E		A	M	A	S	S
A	N	G	E	L	S		A	N	I	S	E
L	O	R	R	E		A	G	G	R	E	S	S	O	R
B	L	U	E	S	T	R	E	A	K		A	P	A
U	T	E	S		B	I	N	G	E		E	V	E	N
M	E	L	T		S	A	T	E	D		R	E	N	T

2/23/89



1989 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 2/23/89

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): New faces and places attract you. Intellectual opportunities abound. You have a chance to lay the foundation for a lasting partnership. Good health is a great blessing; take care of yourself!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Shared spiritual values will make a relationship more satisfying. Do not let a domestic problem interfere with your performance at work or school. Play out a financial drama. You hold the cards.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You relieve an earlier experience at place of employment. Be ready for unexpected developments. Cash flow could be affected. Dramatic career shifts are unlikely. Keep up the good work. Seek the limelight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Try a new labor-saving device at home or in the office. A stitch in time could save you lots of money. Overtime pay lets you travel or splurge on a high-tech kitchen.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take a more realistic view of money matters. You will feel less pressured and enjoy life more once you have built up a cash reserve. Romance heats up. Travel is best postponed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your ideas are worth their weight in gold if you present them to an authority figure now. Do not vacillate. Act now! Those in service professions excel. Bolster a child's morale.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct.22): You are unsure whether or not you believe in the unknown. Deal with the realities of everyday life today and profits will rise. Make up your mind about mystical matters later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your natural shrewdness lets you make all the money you need without getting involved in any shady deals. Do not make a move just because you feel restless. Let romance simmer a while.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not give up on a financial or business deal until you have stretched your imagination to the limit. You win points with the boss when you are candid. Be tactful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Fretting about the past will not make the present or future better. Concentrate on your strengths. Your business allies are stronger and more influential than you think. Listen to someone with extensive experience.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A bold approach counts for a lot today. In order to make a humanitarian project succeed, you will have to be even more persuasive than usual. Improve a parent-child relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may find it tough to make decisions today. There will be too many things going on at one time! You will be eager to get right to the point when discussing a job.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Grilled cheese sandwich	Kielbasa grinder
American chop suey	Mandarin chicken
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Grilled cheese on wheatberry	Cheese nut loaf
Fettucine with sprouts	Mandarin chicken

Government members protest India's acceptance of money

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Members of every opposition party walked out of Parliament yesterday to protest the government's acceptance of $470 million form Union Carbide for the 1984 Bhopal gas leak, which killed 3,400 people.

The government had settled for the amount after suing the Danbury, Conn.-based corporation for $3 billion for the world's deadliest industrial disaster. Opposition legislators yelling "surrender to mulitinationals," left the Parliament after House Speaker Balram Jakhar refused to admit a censure motion against the government's acceptance of the Supreme Court's Feb. 14 order that instructed Union Carbide to pay the $470 million as full and final settlement.

About 300 legislators were in Parliament when the opposition walked out. The Congress Party holds 412 of the 544 seats.

About 2,500 surviving victims of the Dec. 3, 1984 disaster, when methyl isocyanate leaked from the pesticide plant of a Carbide subsidiary, came to the Indian capital Tuesday to protest the settlement, saying the sum was too low and demanding that Union Carbide officials be hanged.

More than 20,000 people are still listed as seriously affected by the gas, and deaths attributed to it continue at the rate of at least one a day.

AP photo

TIGHTENING THE STRAPS — Pete Tioton tightens the straps on his waders before getting into his boat to inspect his business in Lebanon Junction, Ky., yesterday morning. The flood waters of the Rolling Fork of the Salt River still surround many houses in the small town.

Learn German This Summer

June 25 - August 4, 1989

The Ninth Annual German Summer School of the Atlantic at the University of Rhode Island in co-operation with the Goethe Institute Boston.

German will be the sole language of communication, and German life and culture the heart of this six week residency program of intensive language study.

You may earn up to nine undergraduate or graduate credits while living in the beautiful surroundings of our country campus, just minutes away from Rhode Island's magnificent beaches and historic summer colonies.

This program is ideally suited for anyone wishing to enroll in beginning, intermediate or any level of advanced German. From business people and travelers, to students planning work or study abroad. Take advantage of this rare opportunity to participate in this total German Language experience.

For details: Dr. John Grandin, Dr. Otto Dornberg, Co-Directors, Department of Languages, University of Rhode Island, Kingston, RI 02881 (401) 792-5911

URI

586-6344

45 STATE STREET NORTHAMPTON, MA.

LUNCH: TUES.-SAT. 11:30-2:30, SUN 12:00-3:00
DINNER: TUES.-THURS. & SUN 5:00-9:30, FRI.-SAT. 5:00-10:30, CLOSED MONDAY

The INDIA HOUSE RESTAURANT

Where Indian Food Is Not Just Curry

- TRADITIONAL TANDORI INDIAN COOKING SEALS IN FRESH FOODS NATURAL FLAVORS
- COMPLETE VEGETARIAN MENU
- EXTENSIVE WINE LIST
- BEWITCHING BIRYANIS
- ENTICING CURRIES

"INDIAN RESTAURANT WITH EXCELLENT FOOD & SERVICE." THE NEW ENGLAND MONTHLY.

Q.T.B.

(Quitting Time Buffet)

Mon-Fri 4-7

Fitzwilly's restaurant bar

23 Main St. • Northampton 584-8666

1989/90 FINACIAL AID FORM DEADLINE—MARCH 1, 1989

To recieve priority consideratin for Financial Aid your Financial Aid Form (FAF) must be recieved by College Scholarship Service (CSS) by Wednesday, March 1, 1989.

You can obtain the FAF at Finacial Aid Services, 243 Whitmore Administration Building, Monday thru Friday from 8:30 AM to 5 PM. Also SAFA (Students Advocating Finacial Aid) members will be on the Campus Center Concourse on Tuesday Feb. 21, Wednesday Feb. 22, thursday Feb. 23 and Tuesday Feb. 28, 1989.

Don't risk the loss of your Finacial Aid Dollars, file on time!

1989/90 SOLICITUD DE ASISTENCIA ECONOMICA FECHA LIMITE—1 DE MARZO DE 1989

Para reciblr prioridad para assistencia económica su solicitud (Finacial Aid Form (FAF)) debe ser recibida por el College Schlarship Service (CSS) en o antes del i de marzo de 1989.

Usted puede obtener una copia en la oficina de assitencia económica: Finacial Aid Services, 243 Whitmore Administration Building, dé lunes a viernes, de 8:30 AM a 5:00 PM. También el 21, 22, 23 y el 28 de febrero, miembros de SAFA (Students Advocating Finacial Aid) estarán en el Campus Center Concourse.

No te arriesques a perder tu assistencia económica, llena tu solicitud a tiempo.

STUDENT AFFAIRS INFORMATION SERVICES

IDB/TIPS

CALL TIPS 545-1540 FOR HELP AND ADVICE
ask for these tapes by number :

1430 Center for Counseling and Academic Development
2492 Consumer Auto Repair Rights
2620 Employee Assistance Center
1410 Everywoman's Center
2215 If Your Vehicle has been Towed
2422 Legal Services Office
2691 Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Men's Counseling Collective 2490 Sexual Harassment
2671 Sexual Assault and Crisis Service
2637 Suicide Prevention

see page 17 of the Student Telephone Directory for a complete listing of TIPS tapes

IF YOU HAVE FURTHER QUESTIONS CALL IDB (545-1555)
Information Data Bank (IDB)
Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

■ men's basketball to play Penn State

continued from page 24

two games.

Rafer Giles was a starting guard before twisting an ankle a week ago. Giles' status remains questionable for tonight's game, and sophomore Ishmael Butler started in his place Saturday night.

"As of Tuesday, all jobs were open," Calipari said. "The last two weeks we've played poorly and let ourselves get beat badly."

The losses to the Mountaineers and Duquesne were preceeded by a victory over St. Joseph's. But before that, UMass lost three straight games, allowing 100 points or more in two of the games and 98 in the other.

"We're not defending so when we go on a run, its a 16-14 run," Calipari said. "When other teams go on a run, its 16-2 and then we're down by 10.

"We're not a good quarter-court team because of our size. We like to run but to do that you have to rebound.

"We buckled down after the Duquesne game, though. We practiced three times in a 24 hour period."

The Minutemen hope to polish things up before tonight, when they face a Nittany Lion team that is tied for third in the Atlantic 10 Conference.

Penn State, 10-5 in the conference and 15-9 overall, has won 11 of its last 15 games, and is coming off a 95-58 thrashing of St. Bonaventure.

Senior Tom Hovasse leads the Nittany Lions in scoring (18.0 ppg) and rebounding (8.0 rpg), and Bruce Blake is second in scoring (12.7 ppg).

The last time these teams met, on Jan. 5, Penn State dominated the Minutemen on the way to 107-79 win.

That loss occurred more than a month ago. But West Virginia and Duquesne have made sure defeat has remained fresh on the minds of the Minutemen.

■ Women's basketball to play West Virginia

continued from page 24

of the schedule, are still the priority.

The Minutewomen have already faced West Virginia once this year, dropping a tight 72-64 decision on Jan. 21 at the Cage in a game that they were never out of until the final buzzer. In that game, the visiting Mounties were without leading scorer Judy Eaton, who should be back in action today to make life a little more difficult for UMass.

"The last time Eaton was out, so this time it will be different," Hewelt said. "And we're without Zullo, which will be different for us, plus we'll be on the road."

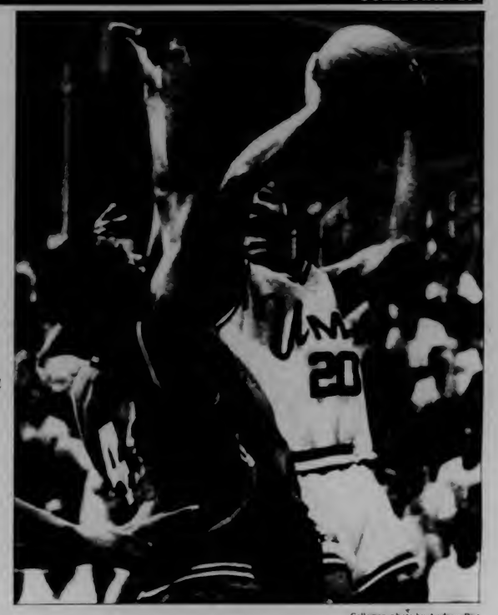
But winning in Morgantown will not be impossible. Last year UMass lost at home but came away from there with a 72-70 win.

"We still think that if we settle in and play good basketball that we can be competitive," Hewelt said. "If we can get the young people to believe that, we'll put ourselves in good shape. We've gotta believe that we can win every time we step on the floor. That gives us an extra edge."

Sports Notice

The University of Massachusetts football team is looking for managers.

Any interested work study students should see coach Jones in the football office in Boyden Building.



Collegian photo by Andrew Rist

Freshman forward Jim McCoy (20) will lead UMass against Penn State today at 7:30 p.m. in the Curry Hicks Cage.

CLASSIFIEDS

ACTIVITIES

WEDNESDAY MARCH 1st Mayor Flynn and Hez McCormick Irish Protestant Labor Leader to speaar on Northern Ireland 7:30 CCA

WIN A REAL PRIZE A trip for 2 to West Palm Beach! at the Florida Dash Dance Fri Feb 24 8:00pm SUB

VIETNAMESE STUDENTS ASSOCIATION meeting at 7pm in room 163C Campus Center Important!! Please Come

THE GREATFUL DEAD MOVIE!! is playing on Thurs 2/23 it's free! Another Southwest Area Gov. Production 2/23 at 9:00pm

INTERESTED IN VIDEO?

UNION VIDEO CENTER GENERAL MEETING Thursday, 7:00pm Come find out what we have to offer! Commuter Lounge by the Hatch

UNIVERSITY DEMOCRATS GENERAL MEETING Feb 23, 6pm Earth Foods Come Find out what it's all about

LEARN JEWELRY & SILKSCREEN 4 workshops meeting once a week at Student Union Craft Center

ANNOUNCING THE FINANCE AND INVESTMENT CLUB S inaugural gathering of 1989 featuring elections and social events planning New members graciously welcomed Thursday 6:30-7:30pm SOM lobby Don't let it be another extracurricularless semester!

SIGMA ALPHA MU RUSH!!! Feb 21 Sammy Feud 8pm Campus Center -101 Feb 22 Sammy Cinema 8pm Campus Center -182

ADD DROP A PAIN? Budget cuts got you down? Write a letter to your representative. Table outside the Ministore S.U.

STRONGEST MAN AND WOMAN COMPETITION Saturday, Feb. 25th at the Kennedy Bodyshop 12-4pm $2.00 fee and many great prizes

UMASS SKI CLUB runs the best spring breaks to Barbados, Bahamas, Bermuda, Kelington and Breckenridge 545-3437/430 SUB

SOUTHWEST AREA GOV. is looking for someone to coordinate our annual Spring Concert. Interested? Call 5-0960 for details

AMHERST FIRE DEPARTMENT

THE AMHERST FIRE DEPARTMENT is recruiting volunteers to worc as firefighter/EMTs. No experience necessary See our table on the concourse February 22-24

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE

SAPCIOUS 1,2, and 3 BEDROOM UNITS in Sunderland. Ample off street parking and free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Call 665-3856

ATTENTION ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUTO FOR SALE

79 FORD FUTURA 4 SPEED fun 131K miles Daytona special $400/B O 444-0231

84 ISUZU PUP WITH CAP 88K must sell $2500 days 545-0600 x39 Elaine

78 OLDSMOBILE CUTLESS STATION WAGON automatic powersteering Air condition runs great $600 or B O 665-8955

1983 FORD ESCORT WAGON- 50,000 miles Air roof rack - excellent condition $2500 Call 256-0933

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

"BOB BACKWARDS IS STILL BOB"

PATTI, DON'T EAT THE lemons Mr. Ice and Mr. Floor say "You're welcome" for being so cold! Love Your 4 very favorite people!

CAMP COUNSELORS

COME WORK FOR an accredited 3-camp organization in the Pocono Mountains of PA Positions are available in Tennis, Archery, Waterfront (W.S.I.), Gymnastics, Office Administration, Computers, Radio, Arts & Crafts, Nature, Athletics, Jewelry, Photography, Dance, Wrestling, Cooking, Adventure/Challenge Course, Film making Camp Drivers Season: 6/24-8/20 Call 800-533-CAMP (215-887-9700 in PA) or write 407 Benson East, Jenkintown PA 19046

COMPACT DISC MUSIC MACHINE

DISC JOCKEY SERVICE - quality tunes for all occasions 549-1421 or 253-7655

FLORIDA SPRING BREAKS

DAYTONA'S CASTAWAY BEACH RESORT - $139. Panama City Beach's Miracle Mile Resort - $119. roundtrip transportation add $80 Call Mark 549-2871

FREE WEST PALM TRIP

FRI FEB 24 8:00 SUB The Florida Dash Dance win a trip for 2 to west Palm Beach! Bring a suitcase The winner leaves straight from the Dance Sylvan Area Gov't Better programming for people who deserve it

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances 256-8526

FOR RENT

ONE BEDROOM IN A 3 bedroom apt. in Sunderland on bus route $200/ No last mo or sec dep. Call Jenny or stephen 665-8617

FRIDGE RENTALS WE DELIVER 253-9742

FOR SALE

AKAI STEREO INCLUDES amp/tuner equalizer, dual cassette, turntable, speakers and Pioneer CD Player 2 yrs old must sell $500 527-8408

1982 VW SCIRROCCO Great shape needs muffler $2000 Call 545-0046 ask for Jon

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES Amherst 2 yrs old income property positive cash flow (gross rents) 18,000/yr! Live rent free and make spending money too! Call Dale 253-9949

RUG-GREAT FOR DORM
Sky Blue
Excellent condition
$45 or best offer
Call Alisa 527-6505

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles Call 256-8369

FOUND

MICHAEL D. DEVANNEY I have found your wallet! I have not been able to contact you. So you can call me at 253-2107 Ask for Hong and leave a message

HELP WANTED

GOVERNMENT JOBS U.S. & Overseas $19-35,000 yr. for current/federal list Call (516)626-0037 Ext EU4 Weekdays 4-9pm Weekend 10am-5pm

CRUISE SHIP JOBS: Summer/ career. For information call (516)626-0037 Ext CU4 Weekdays 4pm-9pm Weekends 10am-5pm

EASY WORK! EXCELLENT PAY! Assemble products at home. Call for information 504-641-8003 Ext. 596

THIS PAST SUMMER 350 College Students took on a Management Position gaining exceptional managerial and business skills for their career Average net summer earnings $10,740 1-800-922-5579

$10,000 A MONTH  Marker product in untapped region. Drive and persistence pay off greatly. Dave 584-5757

SGA COMMUNICATIONS IS HIRING - Publicity/advertising consultant Applications at 304 SUB. NAEOE

SUMMER BUSINESS POSITION in your hometown. Earn avg $8,000. Excellent experience 665-2527

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on February 22 from 3:30-4:30 in room 901 Campus Center. (545-1995)

LOST

LOST! 4P-41CV Calc and a TI-55III calculator 2/17/89 Please call 6-4950

GOLD CHAIN LOST/STOLEN on 2/15

Webster Area Reward Call 665-4257

PERSONALS

JOHN I'D LIKE TO get to know you better off the VB court - Red

MVISL Then now always your lips is the tropic' Lara

CATHERINE RICH Happy Anniversary! It's been the best year of my life. Love Eric

RICH- THANKS FOR A wonderful time Saturday night! Seven times?! Wow!!! I'm still smiling!! Aimee

MIKE BASSICK, You better be studying! I'm keeping an eye on you because I'm not saying bye again for another semester! Always a friend! I love ya, Lars

ROSEANN BRIEN- HAPPY BIRTHDAY. Have a gre gay- ooops at that alcohol must have gone to my brain! Thanks Love Joey

CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR NEWEST PLEDGES: Jessica, Dena, Debbie, Shari, Kim, Judy, Jennifer, Jaime, Meredith, Tracy, Kristen, Michele, Sharon, Stacey, Marissa, Leslie, Ronni, Robin, Amy, and Jean again we love you all! The Sisters of Delta Zeta

STEVE ILMRUD FROM LXA You ve got a lot of nerve to say you are my friend! Positively Forth Street! -Dylan With friends like you who needs enemies

SNPS Lowest price on Campus. 5¢ per copy. Check up out. 401 Student Union Building

TO THE PRETTY BLONDE SENIOR who took a semester off in the coatcheck line at Pearl Street Saturday Nite, now does dinner this Friday at the Hilton Sound? John 545-0015

TO THE GIRLS OF 302 INCORPORATED Heather, Jen, Betty & Donna You guys are the greatest! Thanks! Love, Mikey

FOR MOONBEAM, MY FARAWAY LOVE. I miss you like crazy! Always, S.W.B.

WHITEY- Me you on the Hill Sunday Night Thought you were great and wondering if you're still into kinky sex and peppermint Schnapps. Meet me in the hatch 2/23 at 8:00. Love BKG

HAPPY 19th B-DAY PETER How about a drink tonight? Love Susan

CONGRATULATIONS TO CHI OMEGA'S awesome pledges! Get fired up! We love you! Love- The Sisters!

LESIE PAPA- You are the only Banana-Love -Foofy

Bon Jovi 4 tix Hart Mark 360 or BO 549-7878. Great seats!

JANI HOMOLA FROM RADFORD say hello to her cousin Davey Doodle

ATTENTION STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS! EXCELLENT FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES HELPING WITH AN ON-CAMPUS MARKETING PROJECT. CALL IMMEDIATELY. STUART 546-7812. LEAVE A MESSAGE.

NEED A HAIRCUT!? For the lowest rates call 253-9127. Leave message

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt. or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later

ROOMMATES WANTED

ROOM AVAILABLE IN HOUSE 3 min to bus. $225/month 1 yld. Call Peter after 7pm 253-2268

ONE ROOM IN APARTMENT 254 inclusive 1-2 people 256-0958 256-4270

1 or 2 PEOPLE FOR APARTMENT in Amherst Center call 253-7572

ONE LARGE ROOM in 3 bedroom 1st floor apt in Hadley Can ter Hardwood floors large kitchen and living room $233/mo includes heat 585-8627

SERVICES

AUTO REPAIRS very reasonable experienced mechanic. Work your place or mine. Messages for Mark 665-8467

PROFESSIONAL EDITING- Term papers Theses, Dissertations 1-467-3753 after 7pm

VIDEO RESUME TO GET THAT JOB! immediate professional, personalized service Appointments Video Image Productions (413) 863-8035

PROFESSIONAL RESUMES Laserprinting copies, typing 665-8873

RESUME TYPESETTING. Avoid the end-of-semester panic. Very experienced, inexpensive overnight laserwriter quality. Lisa 665-8969

SIGMA ALPHA MU RUSH!!!

RUSH SIGMA ALPHA MU! Feb 21 Sammy Feud 8pm Campus Center -101 Feb 22 Sammy Cinema 8pm Campus Center -182

SIGMA KAPPA OPEN RUSH

RUSH HAS JUST BEGUN! Come down and meet the awesome sisters if you're looking for a house of diversity, come tonight at 8. For more info Call 256-8867

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

CAMP YOUNG JUDEA, AMHERST, New Hampshire -Resident, Co-Ed, one hour from Boston- is in need of department directors and activity specialists for this summer in: Athletics, gymnastics, swim instruction, water skiing, sailing, arts and crafts, campcraft, Israeli dance, Drama, Israel, Pela song, riflery, tennis, Photography, office personnel and nurses R.N. Excellent salaries and fringe benefits Please contact Dr. Charles B. Rotman, Director 81 Kingsbury Street, Wellesley, MA 02181, (617)237-9410

SWING DANCE/JITTER BUG CLASSES

Just $7 each or $25 for all four. No partner necessary! Classes meet from 4 - 5pm Sunday, March 5 thru Sunday, March 26 at East Street Dance Studeio in Hadley -Just off Rt. 9 between Amherst and Northampton. Instructors: Lars Marshall and Janine Warner. For more info, Call 546-9309. No pre-registration necessary.

TRAVEL

HOT NIGHTS, COOL FROZEN DRINKS, reggae music, sandy beaches, and you. Affordable spring break trips to Jamaica, Cancun Acapulco, and Daytona. Call Karen or Shara at 546-6612, or Merideth at 549-8274 for details.

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT- COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW, OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TYPING

"WORDSMITH" PROFESSIONAL TYPING. Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck! 253-4564

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional, accurate 665-4501

WANTED

LOT 44 STICKER will swap for a 22. Perfect for someone who has moved to Sylvan or N. East. Jeff 6-9670

IRISH STEP DANCERS interested in dancing or meeting call Laurie 6-6925 Leave message

ACTS ACTS ACTS The 6th Annual Asian Night is coming soon! Talent show, arts, interested please call Connie 256-1190 or Mike 546-5820 Asian American Student Association

TUTOR WANTED FOR DBASE III Call Steve at 549-0133

SPORTS

Women gymnasts topple Springfield

Team's 179.8 establishes new school record

Collegian photo by Andrew Rist

The UMass women's gymnastics team topped its previous high score in a win over Springfield College last night at Boyden.

By GEORGE AUSTIN
Collegian Staff

The second time had to be even sweeter than the first for the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team.

Performing in front of a jam-packed, standing-room-only crowd at the Boyden Gymnastics Center, the Minutewomen easily somersaulted over Springfield College, 179.8-165.1, breaking the old school record of 178.25 set less than three weeks ago.

But that record was set at the University of New Hampshire. This time UMass did it in front of the home folks, breaking 44s in the first three events of the night before exhilarating the crowd with a spectacular performance in the floor exercise to cap off the night. UMass coach Alfie Mitchell summed it up in a few simple words.

"We looked awesome," Mitchell said. "Everything was above average. Everyone performed outstanding. Erika Baxter had an outstanding meet."

Baxter took first place in the floor exercise, scoring a 9.5, a personal best and also won the all-around competition, racking up a combined score of 36.8 in the four events.

"We had a good workout all week and we were really pumped for this meet," Baxter said.

Freshmen Erin Klier and Kim Grady also had outstanding meets, taking the next two places in the floor exercise, Klier, second with a 9.4 and Grady third with a 9.35.

Grady and Klier, as they have all season, also battled with Baxter for the top spot in the all-around. Grady finished second last night with 35.95, edging out Klier who was just a hair behind at 35.5.

Other highlights in the meet included a three-way tie between Baxter, Grady, and Elma Lagendyk in the vault, each of them receiving a 9.05 from the judges for their routines.

Debbie Schultz, with her 9.4 left everyone in the dust in the parallel bars. Baxter was the closest to Schultz at 9.15.

Lynne Morris tip-toed her way to a win in the balance beam, awarded a 9.0 from one judge and a 9.3 by the other for a total score of 9.15 to win the event.

ECAC meet starts today for women's swimming

By DEBORAH PICARDI
Collegian Correspondent

Twelve members of the University of Massachusetts women's swimming team will dive right back into the water after only three days rest at the three-day East Coast Athletic Conference Championships to be held at Penn State beginning today.

This will mark the first time in the team's history that it will compete in this prestigious event. It will include 20 to 30 teams from all over the East Coast. The competition will be much tougher than anything the Minutewomen have faced all season, according to coach Bob Newcomb.

"The qualifying times are much faster, so we will only be swimming our specialties," Newcomb said.

UMass will be well represented in the freestyle sprints by Keira Cruz, Kim Morin, Patty Pike, and Michele Leary. Leary will be trying to sweep the 50-, 100-, and 200-yard freestyle, as she did last weekend.

Sue Gorski and Jodi Schwartz will go after the butterfly championships, and Melissa Waller and Regina Jungbluth will finish their year in the breaststroke event.

Tracy Young will spend another grueling weekend competing in the long distance freestyle swims. She will be trying to top her outstanding performance at the New England Championships where she broke three UMass records in the 500-, 1000-, and 1650-yard swims.

This will be the last time that seniors Regina Jungbluth, Patty Pike, and Melissa Waller will be swimming for UMass. Senior Debbie Mullen will take her final dives as a Minutewoman in the one-meter and three-meter competition.

Men's track looks toward New Englands

By JOHN STEVEN MARPLE
Collegian Correspondent

Recently, after a somewhat less than satisfactory performance, University of Massachusetts men's track coach Ken O'Brien remarked that although he wasn't happy, he wasn't all that upset.

At the time, he said, "I can't be too upset, we gear our season toward the final two weeks of the year."

That was then, this is now. Now is what the Minutemen have been working for.

Tomorrow the team will compete in the New England meet at Boston University. The meet is scheduled to last two days. Forty schools from throughout New England will be present.

"This is the highlight of the year for most New England schools," said O'Brien.

Last year the meet was won by Northeastern, followed by Boston College, Boston University, the University of Connecticut and the University of Rhode Island.

"This is our toughest competition of the year for us," O'Brien said. "We finished seventh last year and I expect to do about the same this year. I'd be pleasantly surprised if we placed in the top five."

The Minutemen are coming off a third-place finish in last weekend's meet. The meet was won by Dartmouth (84 points), followed by New Hampshire (45), UMass (36) and Colgate (22).

UMass was led by Renaldo Flores (a personal best 8:24.4 in the 3000 meters), Jerome Bledsoe (first place in the long jump, 22.5 feet), Jeff White (first place in the hurdles, 7.9) and the two-mile relay team, which took first place.

B-ball to face southern foes

• Men host Penn State

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

It was certainly no time to become complacent, and maybe that's not what happened.

But the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team went on the road for two games and played far below its potential in losses to West Virginia and Duquesne.

And it was a horrible time for that to happen, with Penn State waiting to take on UMass at 7:30 tonight in the Curry Hicks Cage and the Atlantic 10 Tournament looming just over a week away.

No, the Minutemen weren't expected to beat West Virginia, the No. 11 team in the nation.

And yes, UMass has consistently been a poorer team on the road than it has a home.

But for the Minutemen to lose by 31 points to Duquesne just wasn't enough, at least not for UMass coach John Calipari.

"We need to shake things up," Calipari said. "We're not going to get beat so bad and not change things. I want to see improvement."

And that may lead to some new faces in the starting lineup tonight against Penn State.

Calipari would not say who would start, but it is safe to assume freshmen Jim McCoy and Anton Brown will be in their familiar positions at tip-off.

McCoy leads the team in scoring with a 19.6 points per game average, and his next point will give him the most points ever for a UMass freshman.

Brown is second in scoring at 12.4 points per game.

The other starters are John Tate and John Milum. Tate had 10 points against the Mountaineers before scoring just four against the Dukes, but Milum contributed just two points and four rebounds in the

continued on page 23

• Women at West Virginia

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

Last weekend, the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team took a long, grueling and unrewarding tour of Carnegie country, coming up empty in visits to Morgantown, W.Va. and Pittsburgh.

Starting today, the women's team embarks on the same circuit, hopeful that the results will be a little more pleasant. The Minutewomen are in Morgantown today for a 5 p.m. tipoff with the Lady Mountaineers of West Virginia.

UMass has been in a deep blue funk of late, suffering through a pair of tough Atlantic 10 conference losses and seeing its already thin cast of characters being depleted even further. The Minutewomen are down to just nine able bodies for the remainder of the season, with Christel Zullo, Michele Pytko and redshirt freshman Peg Ryan all out of the picture.

The adversities have been trying on the team, but coach Kathy Hewelt is hopeful that it will be able to pull through, and she assures that she and her team are not ready to drench the fire and break down camp just yet.

"Even though we're struggling, we're gaining," Hewelt said. "Our young people are getting the opportunity to play."

Not only are they playing, but they have been forced to play bigger roles than could have been expected, or even preferred. This has been a problem for the team of late, with the lack of depth and experience becoming glaring at the wrong times.

However, it should bode well for the future, with new players getting the kind of battle seasoning that they will need down the road. But UMass still isn't thinking about "down the road." Today's game, and the rest

continued on page 23

Traveler's advisory probable today, as New England prepares for up to 6 inches of snow.

Campus Center Auditorium buzzes with job-seekers and prospective employers. Page 4.

Home court advantage doesn't help ailing Minutemen; Penn. St. 90, UMass 71, Page 16.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1989

COLLEGIAN

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

John Hope Franklin

Professor discusses Du Bois' influence

By TOM CIAMPI
Collegian Correspondent

John Hope Franklin, Professor Emeritus at Duke University, said yesterday that W.E.B. Du Bois would be remembered for "forcing the world to think about the hard truths and the great issues that would not go away."

Franklin, 74, a self-proclaimed admirer of Du Bois, told a capacity crowd of about 200 at Memorial Hall that Du Bois "urged his fellow Americans to keep in touch with reality, to face the truth, and to react to it with maturity and responsibility."

Du Bois was born in Great Barrington 121 years ago today. In 1896 he became the first black to receive a Ph.D. from Harvard.

He was a co-founder of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), and served it from 1910 to 1934, when he resigned after advocating a black-nationalist strategy to create black-controlled institutions, Franklin said. Du Bois was also the founder and editor of the NAACP's monthly magazine, "The Crisis." He died in 1963, at the age of 95, in Accra, Ghana.

Du Bois devoted his life and work toward "gaining equal treatment for

continued on page 5

Duffey, Pouncey ban snowball fights

By RICK SANTOS
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts and Amherst College will not "tolerate" any more snowball fights, according to a statement jointly released by the heads of the schools yesterday.

The statement was issued about two months after an Amherst freshman, Gary E. Gonya, 19, of Toledo, Ohio, was nearly blinded when a snowball struck his left eye during a battle that ensued after about 1,500 UMass students marched to the Amherst campus Dec. 14.

"The student had to undergo emergency surgery to save the eye. In light of this incident it has become clear to us that we can no longer tolerate the continuation of this 'tradition,'" said UMass Chancellor Joseph Duffey and Amherst College President Peter Pouncey in the statement.

Pouncey estimated damage to the college at more than $10,000 in the last few years and said the school is suing UMass. The college is seeking thousands of dollars in compensation for medical costs and building damages, he said.

Duffey, who could not be reached for comment, has said in past weeks, "I don't think this University as an institution is liable for the behavior of its students once they leave campus."

During the next year, the University and the college will attempt to educate students about the dangers of snowball fights, according to the statement.

Pouncey would not specify how the schools would do this but said the college is seeking an injunction so Amherst town police can arrest anyone caught instigating a snowball fight.

"If a serious [snowball fight] were to happen again, I will consider calling in the state police," Pouncey said.

Rothman threatens suit

Conservative student says administration biased

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts student says he will file a civil lawsuit against school administrators unless privileges are returned to six conservative campus groups.

W. Greg Rothman, chairman of the Conservative Alliance, told University officials yesterday if the privileges taken away from the six groups were not restored by 5 p.m. today, the suit will be filed in Northampton District Court Monday morning. All six groups are in the alliance.

The six groups in involved: the UMass Republican Club, Students against any inefficient Government and Administration, Students for Life, Silent Majority, Organization for American Studies and Students for Bush.

The six conservative student organizations and the Friends of the Spartacus League, a Trotskyist organization, had their privileges to meeting areas and equipment rescinded by a letter to each group from campus administrators Wednesday.

The Student Activities Office, the Dean of Students Office and Building Services said they decided to strip privileges from the groups to prevent two of them — the Republican Club and The Friends of the Spartacus League, both Registered Student Organizations — from holding meetings in other organizations' rooms. The two student groups have lost their meeting spaces pending the outcome of an investigation into a Feb. 9 brawl both groups had ties to, according to the Dean of Students Office.

"It is ridiculous for the administration to punish all of the campus' conservative organizations for the actions of a few conservative people. This is a purely a partisan move," Rothman said, referring to five Republican Club members who were involved in the brawl with guests of the Spartacists two weeks ago.

Rothman said he plans to name Chancellor Joseph Duffey, Vice Chancellor

continued on page 6

Prisoners, professors learn from each other

Second in a two-part series

By RICK SASSON
Collegian Staff

LANCASTER — Jay Berman says that, in a sense, winding up in jail was the best thing that could have happened to him.

Once a cocaine trafficker, Berman, 40, said had he not been convicted, "I'd probably be dead."

But on a rainy morning this week, instead of worrying about a drug transaction, Berman is reading about American folklore, highlighting key sections in the book's introduction.

Berman is pursuing an undergraduate degree at the University of Massachusetts from the confines of Massachusetts Correctional Institution at Lancaster, a minimum-security prison/pre-release center for men and women.

He is one of approximately 30 inmates enrolled at UMass through the Prison Education Project, a program established in September of 1987 through the Division of Continuing Education. Walter Silva, project founder and director, said that because such a high percentage of inmates eventually return to society, it is important that they are prepared for re-entry. He called education an asset in that transition.

"Prison, under normal circumstances, does not make inmates more adaptable to the outside community," Silva said.

He cited recent studies from the University of British Columbia that show that although about 65 percent of inmates who return to society end up in jail again, prisoners who receive liberal educations during their incarceration recidivate at a much lower rate — between zero and 11 percent.

The UMass program serves inmate-students at Lancaster and North Central Correctional Institution at Gardner, a medium security facility. Funding for the project, which includes full scholarships for the inmates, books and professor's compensation, comes from federal Pell grants, the state Board of Regents part-time scholarships grants and a small contribution from the Massachusetts Department of Correction.

Students in the UMass program must have a high school diploma or a Graduate Equivalency Diploma, and must maintain a 2.5 Grade Point Average.

***

For Wilbert Brown, 33, the UMass program has created a line to the rest of society. "It will help me make a smooth transition," he said, "by bringing in people from the outside. We need much more of that. A lot of times it's real

continued on page 5

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

The Massachusetts Correctional Institution at Lancaster.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr. GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
ASSOCIATES	BETTY-ANN MURPHY YANA DLUGY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE GEORGE FRANCY TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	DAVID R.MARK
COPY EDITOR	KATHY LAMOTHE
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	MARC INFIELD
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	TERRY STARMER
PRODUCTION	WENDY RAE NUTTER LAURA ROBINSON CELIA CORNISH MIGUEL DE LOS REYES KEITH GAUMONT MICHELLE GEMME RORY EVANS

AP photo

GAY CENTER BURNS — Two young men stand close together as they listen to John Thomas, right, the executive director of the AIDS Resource Center, talk to the media after a six-alarm fire yesterday morning destroyed the Dallas Gay Alliance offices.

BUDGET TRAVEL CENTER
Cheapest Fares to
• EUROPE
• ASIA
• AUSTRALIA/NEW ZEALAND
LONDON FRANKFURT PARIS SYDNEY TOKYO AMSTERDAM AUCKLAND HONG KONG
Plus railpasses international student ID, tours and much more. Ask for our free travel catalog
COUNCIL TRAVEL
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

ARTHUR TREACHERS SEAFOOD
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
10%
Student Discount
With College ID
Phone In Order
585-0209
During this Lent Season
KEEP THE FAITH
with
ARTHUR TREACHER'S!

Copies Half Off After100
After your first 100 copies of a single sheet original, the rest are half price at Kinko's, the copy center.
kinko's
the copy center
220 N Pleasant St.
253-2543

AMHERST CINEMA
The Naked Gun
Two Shows 7 & 8:45

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-RENT

COLLEGIAN

ATTENTION SOPHOMORE/JUNIOR MARKETING MAJORS

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World.

THE COLLEGIAN is offering the opportunity to gain THE MOST VALUABLE BUSINESS EXPERIENCE on campus

Applications for position of MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER are now being accepted

This position requires Responsibility, Dedication and Time Commitment—the qualities that future employers are looking for.

Come down to the Collegian Business Office in the Campus Center (RM 113 - lower level, 545-3500) and pick up a job application and description and submit it no later than Wednesday, March 1.

M/F—EOE

amc THEATRES
$2.75 TWILITE SHOW
ST. FARIBS & MT. FARIBS MALL 584-9153
Dangerous Liaisons R
Fri & Sat @ 1:30 (4:30 @ 7:15) 7:15 9:45
Sun @ 1:30 (4:15 @ 7:15) 7:00 9:30
TOM HANKS in The 'BURBS PG
Fri & Sat @ 1:45 (4:45 @ 7:15) 7:30 10:00
Sun @ 1:45 (4:30 @ 7:15) 7:15 9:45
RAIN MAN R
Fri & Sat @ 1:15 (4:15 @ 7:15) 7:00 9:45
Sun @ 1:15 (4:00 @ 7:15) 7:00 9:30
GREGORY HINES TAP PG-13
Fri & Sat @ 1:30 (4:30 @ 7:15) 7:30 10:00
Sun @ 1:30 (4:30 @ 7:15) 7:15 9:45
HAMPSHIRE 8 HAMPSHIRE MALL 584-7550
Working Girl R
Fri & Sat @ 1:45 (4:30 @ 7:15) 7:00 10:00
Sun @ 1:30 (4:15 @ 7:15) 7:00 9:15
Bill & Ted's EXCELLENT adventure PG
Fri & Sat @ 2:00 (4:45 @ 7:15) 7:30 10:15
Sun @ 1:45 (4:30 @ 7:15) 7:15 9:30
BETTE MIDLER BARBARA HERSHEY BEACHES R
Fri & Sat @ 1:30 (4:15 @ 7:15) 7:00 9:45
Sun @ 1:15 (4:00 @ 7:15) 6:45 9:15
Nick Nolte Martin Short THREE FUGITIVES PG-13
Fri & Sat @ 2:00 (4:45 @ 7:15) 7:30 10:15
Sun @ 1:45 (4:30 @ 7:15) 7:15 9:30
TRUE BELIEVER R
Fri & Sat @ 1:45 (4:30 @ 7:15) 7:15 10:00
Sun @ 1:30 (4:15 @ 7:15) 7:00 9:30
MISSISSIPPI BURNING R
Fri & Sat @ 1:30 (4:15 @ 7:15) 7:15
Sun @ 1:15 (4:00 @ 7:15) 6:45
THE FLY II R
Fri & Sat @ 9:45
Sun @ 9:15

LOCAL

Author: Jewish moguls changed Hollywood

By STEPHEN PANGIONE
Collegian Correspondent

NORTHAMPTON — Movie critic Neal Gabler said yesterday during a forum at Smith College that Jews have had a major impact on today's film industry.

Speaking to about 30 people in Wright Hall Common Room at the college, Gabler, former host of "Sneak Previews," a movie review show on PBS, and author of An Empire of Their Own: How the Jews Invented Hollywood, talked about a group of Jewish men who created and formed the Hollywood of today.

Many of the founders of the modern film industry came from a common backround, Gabler said. "Most were Eastern European Jews, who came from families where the father couldn't adjust to the country so they had to assume a parental role," he said.

Many of these men, like Adolph Zukor, William Fox and Louis Mayer, were looking for an inlet to American society. "They wanted to be less Jewish and more American," Gabler said. "These were men who were on the outside fighting to get to the inside."

These men chose the movie industry to escape from what many people considered traditional Jewish occupations, such as the garment industry, he said.

A common misconception people have is that Jews were in movies to make money, Gabler said, adding that this isn't true because most of these men were already quite wealthy before they entered the industry.

Avenues to industry and education were closed off to Jews, Gabler said. By making movies, they gained access "to the genteel precincts of the American aristocracy," he said.

Gabler, born and raised in Chicago, spent five years researching the book before writing it, he said. The concept of the book came long before this, however. "I remember going to the movies with my family," he said.

"My father would sleep through the whole thing and my mother would nudge me and point out all the Jews in the movie," he said.

"Almost all film history is romantic," he said. "They're artists, wanting to do great things." However, many felt persecuted by executives keeping them from doing things, he said.

There has always been this image of tension between writers and executives, he said. "Many executives were perceived as vulgarians, with gold rings, cigars and casting couches."

Gabler said this image was not completely false. He told the story of a conversation between Jack Warner, of Warner Bros., and Albert Einstein. While talking, Warner said, "You know, professor Einstein, I have a theory of relatives too — don't hire them."

He said for the most part, though, these images are false. "This was an easy stereotype, to present them as villains," he said. These images were brought about by people jealous of the money-making aspect of the industry, he said.

But persecution came in other forms as well, Gabler said. Many organizations, such as the House on Un-American Activities Committee, accused Hollywood of being controlled by Communists, he said, adding that these were controlled attacks aimed at Jews in the industry.

"Another form of anti-Semitism came from fundamentalists," he said. "When they realized there was an alternative source of social values they have no control over, they claimed movies undermine American values," he said.

Jews have had a great influence on the shaping of today's film industry, he said. "They were a remarkably homogeneous group that wanted recognition for themselves, not their religion," he said.

Collegian correspondent C.C. Sandorfi contributed to this story

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

WHERE'S ED NORTON WHEN YOU NEED HIM? — Shara Goodmer looks at the tunnel at the Boyden playing fields from inside a sewer drainage area.

Speaker blasts conservative newspapers

By JULIET JORDAN
Collegian Correspondent

Reactionist conservative far-right wing campus newspapers have "no social constraints and no social decency," according to a guest speaker at a meeting last night sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Democrats.

Chip Berlet, of the Political Research Association, a non-profit think tank organization that monitors the American political right wing, said right-wing campus newspapers are arrogant because they are out of touch with the campus community.

"The newspapers have no connection to the campus life. They have no normative behavior," he said.

One such think tank, he said, is the Institution for Educational Affairs, which funds over 100 conservative campus newspapers. He said the conservative groups do not like liberal views, so they allow the newspapers to "bash" liberals.

Berlet, a lecturer at the University of Chicago and Florida State University, said reactionist conservative groups have a "paranoid, anti-communist view." They are afraid liberalism is a communist threat, he said.

Berlet said not all conservatives in America are reactionary. "Most conservatives want small, measured steps of change," said Berlet. "But reactionary conservative politics are against any change. It stamps out liberalism wherever it finds it."

According to Berlet, a new right wing started growing in the 1970s. He said the group decided to institutionalize their point of view, so they set up branches in Washington, and developed a network of campus newspapers. They also set up training centers for campus activists, he said.

Salvadorans blame US for havoc

By SARAH DEMASTER
Collegian Correspondent

U.S. intervention in El Salvador is destroying any chance of peace and interfering unnecessarily with the government there, according to two students from the University of El Salvador who spoke yesterday in the Campus Center.

Saloman Alfaro Estrada, a member of the Salvadoran Student Revolutionary Front (FERS), and Rene Hernandez, a member of the General Assembly of Salvadoran students (AGEUS), said American money in El Salvador is aiding the country's military, which in turn is used to suppress the actions of the people.

"Every day, the North American government spends $2 million in El Salvador," Estrada said. "Don't you see that the money could be used here instead of there? It should be your responsibility as a student to demand that money."

The El Salvadoran government used U.S. contributions to fund such activities as the military's takeover of the University of El Salvador on June 26, 1980, said Estrada, who spoke primarily for himself and Hernandez.

"The military occupation lasted for four years," he said. "In 1984, the University campus was taken back from the military, but when the campus was returned, it was completely destroyed. Large amounts of lab manuals, printed materials of the library, and books were destroyed. This is the reality we have to face as students."

Several students' groups, including FERS and AGEUS, responded by demanding the Salvadoran government replace the property the military destroyed, Estrada said.

Their demands were met with more violence, he said. Three students were murdered, and the biology lab and the house of the Dean of Humanities was bombed, he said.

But the repression imposed by the Salvadoran government extends beyond the walls of the University, he said.

"Since 1980, the Salvadoran government, with the support of the U.S., has developed a plan of reforms whose main goal is to modify the patterns of the economic and social problems that affect our population," said Estrada. "Five years later, there is 70 percent unemployment, the cost of basic consumer goods like beans, sugar and milk has increased 300 percent and the buying power of the worker's salary has decreased."

The forum was sponsored by the UMass Central American Solidarity Association.

Professor disputes climate theory

By JOHN SWANSON
Collegian Staff

Although the average global temperature in 1988 was the highest on record, the effects of human pollutants on the atmosphere will not be seen for several decades, according to a University of Massachusetts professor.

Raymond S. Bradley, who instructs climatology in the Geology Department, said the worldwide pattern of climate change is not consistent with the pattern of warming that climatologists would expect to accompany the greenhouse effect. Although the average temperature worldwide rose, some areas experienced a drop in temperature or no change at all, he said. Such changes are consistent with "normal climate variability," he said.

"It is projected that the impact [of the greenhouse effect] will become pronounced around 2010 or 2020," Bradley said.

"Greenhouse effect" is the term used to describe a rise in the overall temperature of the earth due to trapped pollutants in the atmosphere. Water and carbon dioxide in the atmosphere have a warming effect similar to that of the glass of a greenhouse. The burning of fossil fuels results in increased levels of carbon dioxide. This warming threatens to melt the polar ice caps and raise ocean levels worldwide.

Phil Jones, a British climatologist at the University of East Anglia's Climatic Research Unit, told the New York Times that 1988 brought the warmest average temperature, followed by 1987, 1983 and 1981, respectively. Global temperatures have risen an average of one degree Fahrenheit since 1900, Jones said.

The Pioneer Valley, however, did not reflect the global trend. Amherst College Professor Emeritus Philip Ives, who has been recording weather-related data locally for

continued on page 5

Co-op job fair attracts hopeful students, companies

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

The Campus Center Auditorium was buzzing yesterday, as some 2,500 job-seekers tried to sell themselves to prospective employers at the sixth annual co-op job fair.

Joanne Beck, assistant director of cooperative education at the University of Massachusetts and an organizer of the event, said the co-op program gives students a chance to gain valuable job experience in their fields.

"What [the students] get is career direction," she said. "They get to relate academics to the real world."

The program, started in 1982, has been very successful in placing students, said Joan Stoia, program director for the cooperative education office.

In the first year of the program, 88 students landed co-op positions, Stoia said. Last year 512 were placed, she said.

A co-op job differs from an internship, said Stoia, because a co-op job "is a major-related, pre-professional job that allows you to try out the career you [might] take when you graduate."

An internship, she said, is frequently unpaid and may involve some kind of special project not relating directly to a student's major.

In a co-op position "you get to learn exactly what it feels like" to work in a job that is related to what is taught in the classroom, she said.

Stoia said co-op students earn about 70 percent of a full-time graduate's pay in the same job.

Cooperative job experience is valued by employers, said Beck, because "[the students] are already at the second step. They're not a new hire anymore. They've already been through that process" and should have know what they want from a job.

A total of 69 companies were present yesterday, ranging from Uniroyal Chemical to Reebok shoes.

Sharon Bartels, a representative of Accord Engineering, said this was the first year her company has recruited at UMass and they have found many good candidates for jobs.

"We're looking for some good people," she said. "If we find someone we really want, we'll create a position for them."

Madeline Wallis, of the Boston Globe, said that hiring co-op students is a "cost-effective way of doing business" because students do quality work for less than full-time pay.

She said many companies hire co-op students for this reason.

Students find that having some many companies represented in one place gives them a good opportunity to nail down a job.

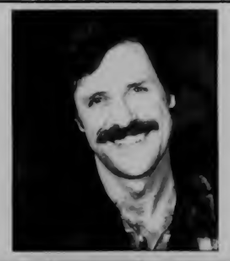
"[The co-op fair] holds a lot of good companies that you can look into," said Raphael Hildesheim, an electrical engineering major looking for a fall position.

Jennifer Mowry, a junior mechanical engineering major, likes the idea of a co-op fair because "we get to see a bunch of companies all at once and we get to compare them and make decisions."

Amherst College Presents

TOM CHAPIN with MARK RUST

"Tom Chapin has been carrying on his brother Harry's work with vigor and success"—Rolling Stone



SUNDAY, FEB. 26
8PM $6 Public
$1 Amherst College

SUNDAYS AT EIGHT
in the Campus Center
Info: (413) 542-5773

Coming:
Harvi Griffin–
March 5

HUNAN GOURMET
京 CHINESE RESTAURANT 湘
BEST* NEW RESTAURANT

ADVOCATE BEST OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1988 SECOND PLACE

Thanks to the Advocate Readers for voting for us in the Best of the Valley Poll. Even though we were only open for one month when the poll was taken, we are pleased we made such a great impression in such a short time span.

FULL LIQUOR LICENSE
261 King St., Northampton • 585-0202 • Ample Parking
Open 7 days a week • No MSG
TAKE OUT SERVICE AVAILABLE

TAKE ANOTHER

BRECKENRIDGE
GENUINE COLORADO
SKIUSA
THE PEAK

Breckenridge is three majestic, interconnected ski mountains, each with its own high-speed four-passenger SuperChair, as well as twelve other lifts. It all towers above a lovingly restored genuine Victorian town full of shops, restaurants, nightspots and enough lodging to entertain over 20,000 visitors at once. Isn't it time you took another peak? You may never look elsewhere.

$599

PRESENTED BY UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437

CASE SPECIALS

STROHS 30 PACK	10.99
COORS SUITCASE	10.99
PIELS	6.99
SCHMIDTS 16 oz.	8.99

ONES, SIXS AND TWELVES

BIG BECKS 1 pk.	1.59
KNICKERBOCKER 16 oz. 6 pk.	2.99
FOSTERS 12 oz. cans 6 pk.	3.99
SAM ADAMS 6 pk.	4.99
OLD MILWAUKEE 12 pk.	4.99
BUSCH 12 pk.	5.99

JOSE CUERVO GOLD 750 ml	9.99
J & B SCOTCH 1 ltr.	15.99
ROBERTO RUM 1.75L	11.99
FOUR SEASONS GIN 1.75L	8.99
FOUR SEASONS VODKA 1.75L	8.99

THERE'S NO REASON TO GO ANYWHERE ELSE

FOUR SEASONS

KEGS—ALL SHAPES & SIZES MC/VISA WE DELIVER
Located on Route 9, Hadley—Just beyond Burger King
OPEN MONDAY—SATURDAY 9 a.m. - 11 p.m.

584-8174

Student delegation to go to South Korea to celebrate peace

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

Student delegates from 150 countries around the world will journey to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea this summer to celebrate peace and the prevention of nuclear war.

Michael McGarry of the United States National Preparatory Committee said the search has begun for young Americans to attend the 13th World Festival of Youth and Students, an eight-day celebration beginning July 1 in the DPRK capital, Pyongyang.

The festival, which is held every four years, will draw more than 25,000 delegates and tourists to Korea for discussions on peace and international events, including the war between Israelis and Palestinians and the end of U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan contras, McGarry said.

"This is the single most important peace event that will happen this year," he said. Concerts, sports activities, arts and science exhibitions and parties are among the week's recreational events, he said.

Embattled nations such as Israel and the Palestinians, and South Korea's longtime war with the festival's host, the DPRK, will join together in the name of peace, McGarry said.

"Four years ago, you couldn't pull together Israel and the Palestinians," he said. "There's a changing sentiment taking place in the world — a sentiment for peace."

The festival is renowned for making significant progress in world peace, McGarry said. At the last festival in 1985, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev announced a test ban on chemical weapons in his country and encouraged other nations to follow suit, he said.

McGarry said 35 committees across the United States, including one in Amherst, will send 150 delegates and 100 tourists to the festival. The total cost is $1,000 per person, but he said financial aid and fundraising will help to alleviate the expense.

Students from the University of Massachusetts have attended the event, including SGA co-president-elect Jason Rabinowitz, McGarry said.

"It's not a tourist trip, it's popularizing peace," McGarry said.

For more information, contact the Organization for Marxist Studies, located on the first floor of the Student Union building.

FYI

For Your Information is a service of the Collegian to its readers. Because of a lack of space, not all press releases can be included in FYI. For more information, contact David at the Collegian, at 545-3500.

Discussion

"Implementing the Dream" is the title of a discussion to be led by author Nathan Rutstein, scheduled for tonight at 7:30 in room 168c of the Campus Center. For more information, contact Nader Pourrahimi at 546-1039.

Rush

A rush has been scheduled by Delta Zeta sorority for Monday, Feb. 27, at 5:45 p.m. For more information, contact Ellen LaChance at 253-9916.

Lecture

The first of three lectures to be delivered by Smith College professor Charles V. Hamilton, "Dual Agenda: Social Policies of Civil Rights Organizations, New Deal to the Present," is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 28 at 8 p.m. in Wright Hall at the college. For more information, contact Debra Bradley at 585-2190.

■ Franklin

continued from page 1

black people in a world dominated by whites and toward marshaling and presenting evidence to refute the myths of racial inferiority of Negroes," according to John Bracey, University of Massachusetts professor of Afro-American Studies.

Du Bois insisted that American Negro colleges and universities "should above all be founded on the knowledge of the history of black people in Africa and in the United States," Franklin said.

"Du Bois asked, 'How shall we young black people be trained so that we may earn a living, and live a life under the cirumstances in which we find ourselves? We can build a sort of university which would emancipate not simply black folk, but for emancipating those white folk, who in their effort to suppress black folk, have killed their own culture,'" Franklin said.

"Du Bois will be remembered by all of us who find in his own words a pattern of thinking, and an approach to our problems that will move us closer to their solution," he said.

■ Prison

continued from page 1

dead around here."

Brown, who was convicted of second degree murder and is eligible for parole in 1992, said he has established friendships with professors who commute from UMass to teach the inmates. He said the experience inspired him to help others inmates in transitions they face, either from one prison to another or to the outside world.

Both Brown and Berman, who is eligible for parole this summer, are running a series of workshops focusing on the transitions they will soon experience, including problem solving, job preparation and re-establishing family ties. The workshops are run by guest speakers as well as the two inmates.

Berman received a bachelor's degree in sociology from the University of Buffalo before his incarceration. But studying in prison, he said, has come infinitely more easily to him.

"The whole process of education helps you to heighten your self-esteem," said Berman. "Personally speaking, it was one of the best things that's happened in my life."

Inmate David Simon, 25, said prisoners are very receptive to material, be it from textbooks or from other prisoners.

"If they aren't learning something good, they're learning something bad," he said.

Two prisoners who started in the program, Roy Eddington and Raymond Jones, have matriculated into the University and are released from their facilities each morning to attend classes at the Amherst campus. Eddington, who will be inducted into the Alpha Sigma Lambda National Honor Society in April, is expected to graduate Cum Laude with a bachelor's degree in General Studies this May.

Both Eddington and Jones, a convicted felon pursuing his doctorate in education, are within 18 months of parole and thus allowed daytime furloughs.

A handful of University professors commute once a week to either Gardner or Lancaster to teach the inmates, as well as learn from them.

Communications Assistant Professor Sut Jhalli joined the prison program in the fall of 1986, motivated by the desire to perform community service.

"These are people I wouldn't have come in contact with otherwise," Jhalli said. The classes tend to be more discussion-oriented, he said. "The enthusiasm is very high."

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

Jay Berman, Wilbert Brown, Walter Silva and Lisa Odell study for classes. The four are part of the Prison Education Project, a part of the Department of Continuing Education.

■ Climate

continued from page 3

over 40 years, said 1988 was "not even one of the 10 warmest" years in that period. Ives said the average temperature in Amherst last year was 48.9 degrees Fahrenheit, while the 40-year average was 48.8 degrees.

Similarly, temperatures in the continental United States have not changed significantly since the turn of the century, according to a January study conducted by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Researchers at the administration said last year's global record was a result of natural fluctuations in the earth's climate.

Associate Professor Thomas Arny, who instructs "Weather and Our Atmosphere" at UMass, said these fluctuations have been apparent in just the last decade.

"Nineteen eighty-eight may have been the warmest" year on record, he said, "but 1978 was probably one of the three coldest in this century."

The British research findings came from thousands of land- and sea-based weather monitoring stations worldwide. These results were consistent with data recorded by NASA's Institute for Space Studies in Manhattan.

Glen's HAIR UM SALON

Now Open in Amherst!

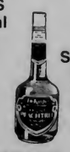
A Creative Hair Salon Specializing in:
Wave Nouveau • Leisure Curl
Care Free Curl • Weaves • Extensions
Braids • Color • Permanent Waves
Design Cuts
228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3999
Monday thru Saturday

Scott's LIQUORS
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center
Amherst, MA
Open: Mon.-Sat. 8 a.m.-11 p.m. 549-2692
diagonally across from stadium, next to Louis Foods.

ABSOLUT Vodka 750 ml $10.99

It's Another Week Of
SCOTT'S SUPER SPECIALS!
SAVE MORE EVERYDAY...AT SCOTT'S

JACK DANIELS Bourbon 750 ml $9.49



PEACHTREE Schnapps 750 ml $5.99

MALIBU Rum 750 ml $7.99

MILLER LITE Suitcase Cans $10.99 plus dep.

BECKS BEER 24-12 oz bottles $15.99 plus dep.

We want to be your favorite liquor store.

■ Lawsuit

continued from page 1

of Student Affairs Dennis Madson, Assistant Dean of Students Eileen Stewart, Director of Student Activities Irene Carew and Director of Building Services Dudley Bridges as defendants in the suit.

The Friends of the Spartacus League had invited their Cambridge-based parent organization, the Spartacist League, to a forum in the Campus Center, according to the Friends of the Spartacus League.

The nearly 20-person fight erupted when the Spartacist hosts thought members of the Republican Club were unruly during the forum and were asked to leave. The Republicans say they were being manhandled out of the room. Five Republicans later filed assault and battery charges against Spartacist members. A show cause hearing for those charges will be heard Feb. 28 in Northampton.

The Spartacists said they plan to file counter suits.

Police said they stopped a second confrontation from happening Tuesday night, when they were notified by Republicans that members of the Spartacus League were in the Student Union building.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

W. Greg Rothman

Note-taking service helps clarify lectures

By MARIANNE VOLPE
Collegian Correspondent

Students who can't keep up with their professors' rapid tongues, an answer to your problems is available.

The Student Notes and Printing Service consists of "students working for students," said Kathleen Horigan, co-manager of SNPS, a "business offering students lecture notes taken by hired notetakers."

According to Tom Reeko, assistant manager of SNPS, a lot of people are bad notetakers, and these bad notetakers can get more out of a class by listening to the professor and with the aid of clear and neatly typed notes.

The 25 notetakers for SNPS are teaching assistants or students who receive a B grade or better in a class and who receive permission from the class' instructor, Reeko said. Each lecture's notes are mailed to the professor and his comments are taken into consideration, he said.

"Most of the professors like it," said Horigan. "It gives the students a different point of view."

But the notetaking offered by SNPS is a supplement, not a substitute, for attending class, agree Reeko and Robert Conway, co-manager of SNPS. "The professors who turned us down never did business with us before," Conway said.

Conway said more students are going to class and using the notes as an aid. The argument that the notes are used primarily to blow off class is "invalid," he said.

According to Reeko, over 1,500 subscriptions were bought by students last semester at SNPS, located in room 403 of the Student Union Building.

SNPS, which receives no funding from the University, also offers a copying and printing service, Horigan said. "We do a lot of work with other student businesses and will do work for anyone, student or not," she said.

CORRECTION

In a story yesterday the Collegian incorrectly identified The Friends of the Spartacus League as a conservative organization.

THE ALTERNATIVE SPRING BREAK '89

Killington VERMONT

CONDO LODGING & LIFTS

SKI and PARTY WEEK

MARCH 19-24

$259

LAGNIAPPE

CONDO LODGING & LIFTS

PROGRAM INCLUDES:
• 5 DAYS LIFTS TO SIX MOUNTAINS
• SPECIAL COLLEGE PARTIES
• 5 NITES CONDO LODGING AT PINNACLE
• FUN SHUTTLE

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437

INCLUDES TAXES AND SERVICES

NON-MEMBERS WELCOME

PARTIES PARTIES PARTIES

STILL COMICS' #1 SWINGER!

the AMAZING SPIDER-MAN™

Available at:

Same Bat Channel
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
586-8775

Hundreds of 25¢ Comics
All back issues 15% off
(including wall comics)

Discount Games and Supplies

KAY JEWELERS

ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31

The diamond people

STUDENTS TAKE ADDITIONAL

10% OFF ALL SALE PRICED JEWELRY

With any valid student ID
INSTANT CREDIT AVAILABLE
Hampshire Mall, Hadley
MON-SAT: 10-9:30; SUN: 12-5

PARAMOUNT
Performing Arts Center
1700 Main Street, Springfield, MA 01103

MICHELLE SHOCKED
Saturday, March 18

SIS and Digital Equipment Corporation Present
Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble
Saturday, March 11
8 pm
on behalf of VNA, Foundation of Pioneer Valley and its affiliates

Clancy Brothers with Robbie O'Connell
with special guest
The Dustmen
Sunday, March 12, 7 pm

TICKETS ON SALE FEB. 27

THE FIXX
Sunday, April 2

"An Outspoken Evening with"
MORTON DOWNEY, JR.! May 6

Tickets available at the Paramount Box Office (413) 734-5874
All Ticketron Outlets and Teletron 1-800-382-8080.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Bookstores hypocritical

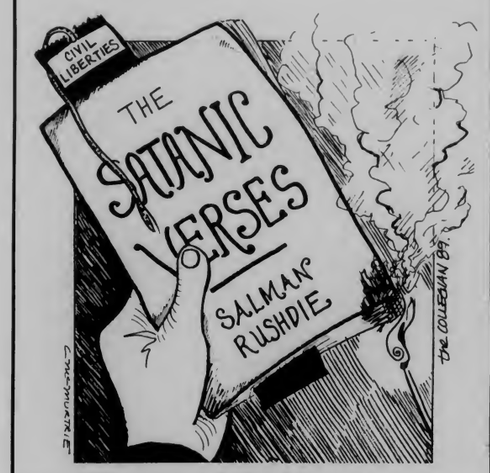
Recently, Salman Rushdie, an Indian-born author, wrote The Satanic Verses, a book that many fundamentalist Moslems found offensive. The Ayatollah Khomeini was so angered that he put a price on Rushdie's head.

Out of fear of retaliation from certain fundamentalist groups, several major bookstore chains have taken the book off of their shelves. Waldenbooks and Barnes and Noble are the same bookstores who profit off of our First Amendment rights. Yet because of fear of retaliation, they won't sell Rushdie's novel.

In the past, bookstores, writers and everyday citizens took risks to express and make available different views. It is indeed sad to see bookstores let a man who lives on another continent take away the rights this country has protected. This is a slap in the face to any self-respecting American and to the free-enterprise system in general. It is obvious that these bookstores, which so eagerly reaped the profits of the First Amendment, are now equally eager to take away the very thing that benefited them in the past.

Because our rights have been threatened, we must take a stand. We must write to or call the bookstores to express our outrage.

Unsigned editorials are the opinon of the majority of the Collegian Board of Editors.



Beer ad found offensive

Do we college students think of ourselves as genitalia? Do we think of ourselves as "babes?" Do we want to be scammed?

Last Tuesday's Miller Beer advertising supplement (Feb. 21) portrays us this way. The advertisement is targeted at white college men who have money to spend. It promotes sexism and alcoholism. This supplement is offensive to ALL students — male and female, objectifying women and shows men as walking hormones.

Shelagh Murray

On the front page are "Spring Training Tips." One of them is "Lose weight. Lots of it." This is accompanied by a cartoon of a pig in a bikini. With less than a month until Spring Break, how do we lose all of this weight safely? Women, start swallowing diet pills, stop eating and do endless aerobic. Men, start eating bananas and drinking protein shakes, cut classes and go pump some iron — Spring Break is coming. We are expected to market and display our bodies in bikinis and Jams. We are object-products, like a can of beer, to be consumed and disposed of.

The first page features the Van-go-go credo, "The Right to Be." (Which is invalidated by what's hot and what's not list and a pictoral of the right way and the wrong way to dress at the beach.) "The right to be anything. The freedom to do nothing or everything. The ability to make a statement without saying anything. The right to be truly decadent . . . or totally modular. The right to deny yourself nothing."

These are rights, freedoms and abilities? The right to deny yourself nothing? This translates: the right to take that "babe" in the white bikini by force. The right to rape. What is freedom to one party is rape to another. Who gets to exercise their "freedom" is an issue of power.

One in three women will be raped in her life. That means the woman who sits next to you in class, the woman next door in your dorm, the woman who drives the bus, your friends, your lover, your sister, your mother, your grandmother. The Collegian should be striving to break away from the rape culture, not supporting it.

Why was this advertisement in the Collegian? How long will we subscribe to Miller Beer, subscribing to the rape culture?

Underneath a picture of a woman lying on her stomach, wearing only a bikini bottom, Miller warns us, "Don't risk the social opportunity of your lifetime by dialing extra-crispy on the Tan-o-meter." The social opportunity that they are referring to is the opportunity to have sex with any babe or dude on the beach.

Men are given "sure fire ways to scam babes. To turn Spring Break into your personal Trout Farm." What is that supposed to mean — SPAWNING? It reeks of patriarchy to me. One of the methods suggested to scam a babe is to say to her, "Wanna get naked?"

Other than a gratuitous segment on "Dude-ettes finding their dude" ("If you're just looking for a fling, check our feet, fingers and nose. The bigger the better.") men are shown as having the power on Spring Break. Men are consumers and women are the objects consumption. Both sexes should find this offensive.

Women and men should stop purchasing products that portray us in a marketing ploy to demean us. Boycott Miller and Lite Beer. Collegian, I urge you to closely scrutinize the advertising material you supply in your newspaper.

I realize that this pamphlet is meant to be humorous, but humor is supposed to reflect culture. If this is collegiate culture, we must work to change it.

Shelagh Murray is a UMass student

From sports to politics, I'm a winner at picking losers

Losers.

All my life I've had a knack. Call it luck, a gift, anything you want, but since the beginning of time, or at least since I was six, I've loved nearly every professional loser in existence.

My all-time favorite losers are the Chicago Cubs, with whom I spent many a fearless night in extra innings, hoping for a victory, though in reality a typical game would see them go ahead in the top of the 15th inning, and then lose in the bottom half.

About five years ago, to my ecstasy, the ultimate league of losers, the United States Football League, was formed. My favorite team was the Los Angeles Express, who could not only not win, but worse, they could not draw fans. Imagine the shock and embarrassment of 2,200 fans in the Los Angeles Olympic Stadium, when there were seats for 50 times that number.

I loved it. I was rooting for the underdog, pulling for the upset. I wanted the USFL to win the ratings war, sign the top college athletes, and get the recognition the losers deserved.

In the same light, I was in rapture when Chaminade beat top-ranked Virginia in college basketball. More recently, I was exalted when Alaska-Anchorage upset Michigan, and intoxicated with Cal-Riverside after they knocked off Iowa.

Then along comes the Miami Heat, a team with a record, as of this writing, of 7-43. The record for the worst team in history is the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers, who finished 9-73.

David R. Mark

But going back to 1984-85, it was about this time that I realized my love of losers was deeper than just sports. I soon became a fan of every lousy TV show, every small-time politician, every up-and-coming loser who had a chance, however small, of upsetting the tide and making people look up and say, "Hey, we better watch out, 'cause if they can do that, then who knows what could happen."

Sure, it doesn't happen often. But the person with an acquired taste for spotting and loving a professional loser recognizes that certain something — that pure loser potential — immediately.

Among my most recent finds is the Fox network, which has put together some of the worst shows in the history of television; a network that will most likely follow the DuMont network into the great network in the sky.

But maybe, just maybe. . .

And you have to hand it to the guy who played Gopher on the Love Boat, and the guy who played Cooter on The Dukes of Hazzard, a couple of losers now in the House of Representatives.

Of course there's Dan Quayle. . .

On campus, we have our share of losers. There are the TAs who can't get their point across because of a language barrier or just a lack of social skills.

Let's not forget the SGA. . .

Nah, too easy a pot shot.

Actually, the Massachusetts Free Press is a good example of a campus loser. Here's a newspaper that desperately wants to compete with the Collegian. They put out a monthly consisting of one-time Collegian correspondents and has-been SGA members who like to see their name in print. Thus far they've made a living of knocking the Collegian and its staff, putting it with a five-college calendar, then making up their own personals and calling it a job well done.

They have about as good a chance as any other part-time newspaper, which is next to no chance at all. But, like all other losers, you always have to think: "What if?"

Maybe there are losers who have hope and others who don't. . .

David R. Mark is a Collegian columnist

SKI-TIME

Railroad SALVAGE Stores

SALE ENDS MARCH 2ND

RUBIE BOUGHT OVER 84,000 YARDS
TO SELL AT 40% TO 60% OFF AND MORE

ANSO X worry free FROM ALLIED FIBERS

Here's Just A Few Fabrics Included

DUPONT CERTIFIED STAINMASTER CARPET

BECAUSE OF OUR AGREEMENT WITH SHAW WE CAN'T ADVERTISE THE BRAND NAMES!

RUGS RUGS RUGS!

ALL FIRST QUALITY

VALUES $10.00 TO $40.00 SQUARE YARD

3500 ROLLS OF CARPET! That's what Rubie Bought! And it includes all the most wanted colors and fabrics. Shaw sells the Dealer what he needs AND WE GET THE REST!

GREAT SELECTIONS OF COLORS

NOW YOU PAY $6 TO $16 SQ. YD.

SIZES FROM 9'x12' TO 12'x28'

3000 KITCHEN CABINETS

29 SIZES
WESTERN OAK CABINETS
Bring in your measurements and we'll help design your New Kitchen Free.

Remodel your kitchen now with our beautiful new Whitegate Western Oak Kitchen Cabinets. Natural graining with a Melamine protective finish which stays beautiful and is so easy to keep clean. Just Use A Damp Cloth and Whitegate Melamine comes up Bright and Sparkling every time!

50% OFF SUGGESTED LIST PRICE
HERE'S JUST ONE EXAMPLE
30" RANGE/SINK BASE SUGGESTED LIST $179.95 NOW $89.99
IN STOCK AND FLAT PACKED

ONLY 50 OF EACH

COMPRESSORS & GENERATORS

3/4 HORSEPOWER Model #RA75
7½ Gallon Capacity Portable Electric Air Compressor
VAL $357 NOW $198

4000 WATT Gasoline Powered 8 Horsepower Engine
VALUE $797 NOW $398

MATTRESS AND FOUNDATION
THESE PRODUCTS ARE MANUFACTURED TO EXACT SPECIFICATIONS
PRODUCT FOR PRODUCT • ITEM FOR ITEM • SPECIFICATION FOR SPECIFICATION AS THAT OF MAJOR BRANDS... ALL ARE FIRST QUALITY

TWIN SIZE $49 EA PC | FULL SIZE $59 EA PC | QUEEN SIZE $79 EA PC
MUST BE BOUGHT AS MATCHED SETS

OUR ENTIRE STOCK 25% OFF OUR PRICES

EVERY COMFORTER SHAM & DUST RUFFLE
FOR EXAMPLE FULL SIZE COMFORTER Our Reg $26.99 NOW $20.24

SOFA & CHAIR Value $349 NOW $198
LOVESEAT $99

TOILET LID COVERS IF PERFECT $1.95 TO $2.95 NOW $1

BRACH'S CANDY Rubie bought over 300,000 bags
NORMALLY 59¢ to 79¢ EACH
3 BAGS $1

1131 CAMPBELL AVE EXIT 43 OFF I-95 WEST HAVEN CONNECTICUT MON-SAT 10-9 SUNDAY 10-6 933-5468

ROUTE 5 EAST WINDSOR CONNECTICUT MON-SAT 10-9 SUNDAY 10-6 623-3358

ROUTE 184 GROTON CONNECTICUT MON-SAT 10-9 SUNDAY 10-6 445-8581

HAMPSHIRE MALL ROUTE 9 HADLEY MASSACHUSETTS MON-SAT 10-9 SUNDAY 12-5 586-7248

1 CANAL STREET TURNERS FALLS MASSACHUSETTS MON-SAT 10-9 SUNDAY 10-6 863-4343

The business of music at Iron Horse

By DEREK LEIF
Collegian Staff

Iron Horse Cafe owner/operator Jordi Herold didn't start out with the ambition of running one of the smallest clubs in the United States to feature nationally renowned acts.

"I thought it would be a much more low-key operation," said Herold, 34. "I was teaching (high) school when I started this, and I thought I would probably still keep teaching school, come in a couple of nights, polish the bar and talk to the regulars who were coming in about what's going on with the scene and that it was going to be a very easy, quiet, low key kind of thing."

That quiet, low key sort of thing (seating capacity: 85) has blossomed into one of only six small clubs in the United States that features nationally renowned acts. Tonight the Iron Horse celebrates its 10th anniversary with a concert at Smith College's John M. Greene Hall that's been sold out for close to two months. Among the performers are Suzanne Vega, The Bobs, Casselberry Dupree and Eric Wood.

"When it first opened, we would have people sitting around, playing chess, or reading the newspaper for long hours," said Herold. "It was a big thing for many years — particularly for Smith students who didn't want to work in the library — to come down early and grab a booth and spread out all their research stuff ... In the 70's I think there was still a holdover from the 60's true coffeehouse scene."

A few students still come by, but over the years the Iron Horse's main appeal has shifted to its nightly musical acts. Starting with nationally known jazz artist Dave van Ronk, the Iron Horse has presented dozens of musicians, many of whom appeared there before hitting it big. Besides Vega, the club has hosted Tracy Chapman, The Feelies, Nancy Griffith, and many others.

> "I think everybody wants to be viewed a little more fondly than to be called a shrewd businessman, but I know what they're reacting to. I just prefer to think of myself as a pragmatist ... money doesn't grow on trees. The money that's generated is the money that goes back out."
>
> –Jordi Herold

Herold, who graduated from Hampshire College in 1975, talks about the Iron Horse with a mixture of musical fondness and business know-how. He sighs at reminders about the Iron Horse's occasionally high ticket prices (booking well known artists is a double edged sword), which discourage some of the college audience that used to make up the bulk of his business.

Herold offers two defenses: the advantage of seeing a major artist up close for about the same price as a concert arena, and his steadfast refusal to raise his two dollar minimum. In a recent interview with the Valley Advocate, Herold said that the meager minimum stems in part from his own experiences as a not-so-rich college student.

"I don't want to set up a situation here where someone feels that they can't come in because in order to come in you gotta leave 25 dollars behind that night," Herold said. "One part of me wants to do it (raise the minimum); I'd like to have more vacations with my girlfriend. But another part of me ..." Herold let his voice trail off, and added: "You gotta hope that most people spend money, and that the ten people in the room who can't afford it (paying any more than the minimum), at least they're getting introduced to the scene here."

Herold gets annoyed at critics who seem to forget that the Iron Horse needs to turn a profit. "I think everybody wants to be viewed a little more fondly than to be called a shrewed businessman," Herold said. "I just prefer to think of myself as a pragmatist... I keep a place where 360 nights a year people can play and if you want to keep that place here, you gotta approach it realistically. What am I gonna do, am I gonna say "I'm gonna take in only 500 dollars, but I'll pay you a thousand 'cause you're so good?' Money doesn't grow on trees. The money that's generated is the money that goes back out."

As the Iron Horse turns ten and Herold puts plans for expansion into action, he muses about where he'd like to be in ten years: retired, with the Iron Horse "in the hands of someone who will ably carry on the tradition."

"This is my busy charged up time, and there's got to be a low-key downside" Herold said. "It's stimulating and exciting, but I think there's another side to all of us that we all have to acknowledge."

ARTS & LIVING

True Believers convinces: *Lawrence*re-Tooled

By JIM COLE
Collegian Staff

I was starting to wonder why I didn't enjoy writing this column of late, but not until I saw a terrific film this last week that I realized why: "terrific" films have been nonexistent lately. This has been one of the worst winter seasons

THE SCREENING ROOM

I can remember, with simply dreadful films like Physical Evidence among others.

Along comes True Believer, a film I didn't know much about due to a vague ad campaign. When Pauline Kael (wicked witch of The New Yorker) gave it a good review, it sounded promising. What at first seems like another court room/mystery is much more.

The film starts off strong with not one but two murders (the first is a dream sequence in black and white, the second inside a prison). Cut to a burnt out lawyer Eddie Dodd (James Woods) wrapping up a case and dealing with the arrival of an idealistic new assistant (Robert Downey Jr.). These two seemingly unrelated events tie together as Dodd takes on the first "serious" case in years when he agrees to defend the Asian inmate accused of the prison murder. Dodd's challenge is instead reopening the original case that put the man in prison in the first place.

This is no easy task. The only alibi is a mental patient — a guy who also thinks that the phone company assasinated JFK. Besides him, Dodd finds no other support, evidence, any proof that his client is indeed innocent of the original crime. All would be lost except for how much we believe James Woods, the astonishing actor who has finally found a film to match his talents. Even when time runs out and victory seems impossible, Eddie needs to win this one, to renew his lost '60's idealism and believe in justice once again.

Director Joseph Ruben (Dreamscape, The Stepfather) has made a tense, visually striking, and most importantly, plausible film. Too many legal films are either unconvincing, or so simplistic that the audience is ahead of the characters. The script by Wesley Strick always stays one step ahead, then ties everything together superbly. And the supporting cast of Downey, and Kurtwood Smith (baaad guy Clarence Bodicker from Robocop), as Dodd's chief adversary, are all very good. But this is James Wood's film. With his unorthodox tactics and savage humor, he makes sure you don't forget it.

Don't miss this film, a flower in the desert of mindless comedies.

There's really nothing else in the mainstream theaters that I recommend, so it's best to stick with the local art houses. The Naked Gun, the riotous sendup of police movies by the Airplane team, is at the Amherst Cinema, and The Lair of the White Worm is playing at the Pleasant Street Theater in Noho. Another wierd one by Ken Rusell (Altered States), it's his look at the Vampire legend, with a twist. Feel free.

Unsubstantiated Rumours and Self-Indulgent Musings Department:

● One of the most unusual offerings of the near future is The Adventures of Baron Munchausen. A big budget (and I'm talking BIG, supposedly up to 45 million, quite overbudget) fantasy starring John Neville as the Baron, it's directed by Monty Pythoner Terry Gilliam (Time Bandits, Brazil). It also features cameos by fellow Pythoner Eric Idle and Robin Williams as the Moon King. I'll be first in line for this one. Looks great.

● More rough seas ahead for Star Trek V. The story now seems to involve the search for God at the "end of the universe." I'd heard rumours that later drafts toned down this too religious angle, but I'm not holding my breath. Then again, it could still be good. I felt the same way when I heard whales were the subject of Trek IV. We'll see.

continued on page 9

Photo courtesy of Ken Vaegel

MELVIN TAYLOR brings his string bending blues to the Universal Joint Sunday night.

Taylor made blues

By ARI VAIS
Collegian Staff

Chicago's current hottest blues guitarist, Melvin Taylor, is bringing his slack band to the U-Joint this Sunday night.

Born in Mississippi, Taylor was taught guitar by his uncle at the age of six. By the time he was fifteen, he was playing in a band, the Transistors, and two years later, Taylor was appearing with Lurrie Bell.

Although he is not on an American record label, Taylor has recorded two albums on the French, Isabel Records and has toured Europe twice, amassing a respectable following. A third trip to Europe is planned for this fall. When all the traveling is over, Taylor always returns to Chicago where he appears regularly at Rosa's Lounge.

Having already been labelled "the new Robert Cray" Taylor wants to avoid being typecast as strictly a blues guitarist: "I try to cover a wide variety of music - I play blues, soul, jazz and pop. I've never been the type of person you could put into a particular bag. I've always had the ear to play. Whatever I heard I could play it, Whatever I wanted to play I could play it."

Taylor's influences include George Benson, Jimi Hendrix and the blues Kings (Albert and B.B.). Fronting a tight, hard-driving rhythm sextion (Willie Love on bass, Curtis Laybun on drums), Melvin Taylor can be expected to cover such classics as "Peter Gunn," "Voodoo Chile" and "Black Magic Woman" as well as his funky originals. Taylor was recently featured in a special blues issue of "Guitar World" magazine, and has toured extensively for the past fifteen years, yet he has enjoyed fairly little commercial success in this country.

In 1981, following a European tour, Taylor released his first album, Blues on the Run. After a second tour (with the Youngblood Blues Band) in 1984, Melvin Taylor Plays the Blues For You was released. Taylor has also appeared on an Alligator Records compilation album of hot young Chicago blues guitarists, and his latest LP, The New Bluebloods, features his most advanced playing to date.

"I've been playing now for 24 years, I'm always playing the guitar. I really let my guitar know me, what I'm about. I know my guitar as well as I know my name. I've really paid my dues for a long time, I'm ready for something big."

If you can appreciate "burnin' blues" guitar, you may want to stop by the U-Joint this Sunday night and catch Melvin Taylor on stage, before he starts playing those "impersonal" arena dates.

...Get Involved! ... with campus health issues
SHAB*

- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health care concerns
- Review UHS budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT!

Date: Tuesday, February 28th
Where: Univ. Health Center Room 302
Time: 5:15 - 6:15 p.m.

OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS

* STUDENT HEALTH ADVISORY BOARD (est. 1971)
UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES

JB's Roast Beef
50 Main St., Amherst
(across from Police Station)
253-7018

HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES

WAIT ONE MINUTE! I'VE GOT A GREAT IDEA...

Josh: Forget studying! I need some brain food to fuel this head. I'm going to get me some JB's. First I'll have a veggie to get me going and then I'll feast! I'll have a super deluxe roast beef sandwich, chicken fingers, fries, onion rings and of course a shake. Later books—JB's here I come!!

(If this is you take this ad to JB's for a free order of chicken fingers.)

Spirit Haus

338 COLLEGE ST. (RT. 9) • AMHERST • 253-5384

SOUTHERN COMFORT	$6.99 750 ml
SEAGRAMS 7	$12.99 1.75 liter
BEERS
SAMUAL SMITH All Kinds	$7.99 per six-pack
GROLSCH	$3.99 six-pack or $13.75 case
ROLLING ROCK	$5.99 12-pack (bottles)
COORS All Kinds	$5.99 12-pack (bottles)
LABATTS	$5.99 12-pack (cans)
COORS WINTERFEST	$3.99 6-pack
WINE COOLERS	$3.29 4-pack
PEACHTREE SCHNAPPS	$12.99 1.75 liter
CAPTAIN MORGAN SPICED RUM	$6.39 750 ml

• MEGABUCKS •
• IMPORTED & DOMESTIC KEGS, BEER & WINE •
ALWAYS ON HAND

screen

continued from page 9

• If you can get to New York before March, you'll still have a chance to see the ultimate in film experiences: the newly restored print of Lawrence of Arabia, David Lean's masterpiece starring Peter O'Toole in his first role. Lengthened to its original 4 hour length, and shown in wide-screen format at the Ziegfeld Theater, this is a must see. Check it out.

Photo courtesy of Columbia Pictures

JACK WOODS stars as Eddie Dodd, in the courtroom drama True Believer

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

The Legal Services Center has positions available for full-time legal assistant interns for the Fall 1989 semester.

This is a challenging opportunity for students from a variety of majors and disciplines to gain valuable legal experience.

Responsibilities include:
Client interviewing
Attendance at hearings
Preparation of court forms
Maintenance of continuing caseload
investigations and research

Up to 15 credits may be earned.
CONTACT LEGAL SERVICES, ROOM 922 CAMPUS CENTER
(545-1995) BY MARCH 6, 1989.

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

WIN A FREE TRIP TO WEST PALM BEACH

FLORIDA
DASH
DANCE

TONIGHT 8:00 S.U.B.
$3 per person CASH BAR w/ I.D.

BRING A SUITCASE –
THE WINNER LEAVES
STRAIGHT FROM THE DANCE

A Sylvan Government Production

charlie's

1 Pray St., Amherst • 549-5403 • Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week • Call for Take Out
Kitchen Open 'till midnight

New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables
Sunday Night 4 Burger Platters for $5.00
(Fries included -Bring your friends!)
6:00-10:00 pm

Cuervo Tequilla Sunrise $1.50 Drink of the Week
Moosehead $1.75 Beer of the Month

FOOD dIVE-A-WAYS
Mon. 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks 9-12
Tues. 10¢ Buffalo Wings 9-12
Wed. Nacho & Cheese Platters 99¢ 9-12

S · U · N BARBADOS

for SPRING BREAK
THE PLACE TO BE

We have a brand new 7-bedroom mansion reserved for the UMASS spring break party of the year. Your party abode is located on the beach and includes a fully equipped kitchen, living room, 4 full bath rooms, and daily maid service. The Sandy Lane Golf Course and Sunset Crest Resort are both close neighbors. The 3 quads, 3 triples, and 1 double are given on a first come first serve basis so don't be late.

DATES:
JFK Departure: March 17, 18, 19
Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Departures
BOS Departure: March, Friday 17 - Friday 24

Quad, Triple, or Double Occupancy: $589
Occupancy is first come first serve
$559: VILLAS
$525: ON WATER LOCATION

$75 non-refundable for reservation
$25 security deposit required.
Full payment is need after February 9, 1989
Payments in guaranteed funds only!

$589

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union
545-3437
SEE US AT THE TABLE

Smith, Amherst Hillels offer an evening of Jewish music

Soprano, Paulina Stark, pianist Nadine Shank and guest artist cellist Leopold Terapulsky will be the featured artists in "An Evening of Jewish Music" on Sunday evening, Feb. 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College.

Sponsored by the Smith/Amherst/Hillel foundations and supported by a grant from the Northampton Center for the Arts, the performance is in celebration of Hillel's sixteenth annual Jewish Arts Festival.

Included in the evening's program will be a selection of Yiddish Art Songs by composer Lazar Weiner; "The Psalms" by Julius Chajes, one of the foremost composers of Israeli music, and a cello solo composed by Ernest Bloch.

Special highlights will be the New England premiere of "the Alphabet"by contemporary composer, Judith Lang Zaimont. the piece is the second principal song from a lengthy cycle for high voice on poems of Karl Shapiro, In the Theatre of Night; and the performance of two songs from the recently released American Jewish Art Songs. "Al Tif G'ibi (Entreat Me Not) and "Rad Halaila" (Night Falls) were composed especially for the album by University of Massachusetts professor composer Robert Stern.

Paulina Stark has been a featuered soloist with major international orchestras including the Houston symphony orchestra, and has also portrayed many leading roles in opera.

Leopold Terapulsky has won a position of prominence as a recitalist and concert soloist in many European and American cities. He was principal cellist of the Pittsburg Symphony under Fritz Reiner.

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS
MARCH 18-25

When you break away this year, do it with style.

SUN FUN!! round trip air
7 nights
great night life

Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB
547-3437
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.

$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP

THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION

A $75 Reservation Deposit Required
SAVE
LAGNAF
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

Eat, Drink & Be Merry!

It's Easy As:

ADVOCATE BEST OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1988

1. PEKING GARDEN ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET — Mon.-Thurs. 5-8 PM — $5.99
2. PEKING GARDEN ALL YOU CAN EAT SUNDAY BRUNCH — 11 AM-3 PM — $6.99
3. NEW!! THE COMEDY ZONE — The Best COMEDY from Boston and New York
Fri. 9:30 p.m. Sat. 8:30 & 11:00 p.m.
Dinner & Comedy Package Includes: Dinner and choice of 1 Beer with meal for $13.95
—2 for 1 admission Sat. 11 p.m. show

Friday & Saturday Evenings at the:
Perfect Party Banquet Room
PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
on Route 9, Hadley 北京 next to Hadley Subaru

COMING SOON
Murray D's

This Saturday!
FEBRUARY 25th 1989

Killington VERMONT

add $10 FOR NON-MEMBERS
$32 FOR MEMBERS

PRESENTED BY UMASS SKI CLUB
LAGNAF 430 STUDENT UNION BLDG. 545-3437
Tues. — Thurs.
Campus Concourse

Guard accidentally shoots himself

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — A Hampden County Jail guard died after accidently shot himself in the face while putting away a pistol, according to a preliminary investigation, a spokesman for the sheriff's office said yesterday.

Fellow officers of 22-year-old Anthony Acosta of Agawam, meanwhile were coping with his death the night before, said sheriff's spokesman Richard McCarthy.

"There's a tremendous feeling for the loss of a brother officer," McCarthy said. "It's a personal thing for a lot of people."

He added, "As with anything of this magnitude, there is an extensive internal investigation. Our preliminary investigation concludes that it was an accident."

McCarthy said several officers witnessed the accident at about 10 p.m. Wednesday when Acosta was returning a .38-caliber pistol to the controlled armory area for storage in a locker. The gun had been in another area during the inmate visitation period, which ended at 10 p.m.

Acosta was treated immediately by prison medical staff and then taken to Bay State Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Sheriff Michael Ashe said Acosta, who had been a correctional officer since October 1986, was "one of our best officers."

Acosta graduated in December from the Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Academy, Ashe said, where he was one of the top graduates in a six-week training program.

Springfield snakebitten

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Pressed to take action after a pet python disappeared in a residential neighborhood, Springfield City Councilors asked their law department for advice on how to go about banning snakes from this heavily Irish city.

The lawyers responded that they had taken the matter under advisement and proposed that a consultant might be in order, but the only one they could come up with was St. Patrick.

"Please be advised that the Law Department is very unfamiliar with the subject of herpetology and needs some direction on this matter," the lawyers said in an unsigned memorandum.

"We have thought of suggesting you hire a consultant but the only person we are aware of who successfully drove snakes out of an area apparently retired a long time ago," the lawyers said referring to the legend of St. Patrick driving the snakes from Ireland.

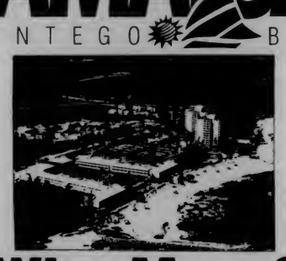
The memo went on to suggest that the councilors, subject to provisions of the open meeting law, might want to make an "on-site visit" to the St. Patrick's Day Parade in neighboring Holyoke. The march, which annually attracts more than 225,000 people, "is regarded as being most conducive to the thoughtful discussion and consideration of driving snakes from places," they asserted.

"Snakes?" asked City council President Vincent DiMonaco, who has been serving as acting mayor since Richard Neal assumed a congressional seat in January. "Do you mean the ones in city hall or the ones on the street?"

AP photo

WORMS AT WORK — Connie Leach, the chief of recycling and resource conservation for the State of Vermont, holds some of the worms that she uses to recycle the food scraps from her household. The worms process the scraps into rich fertilizer. Leach was named Recycler of the Year in 1987 by the National Recycling Coalition.

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY



Why More?

The UMASS Ski Club invites you to Montego Bay, Jamaica, West Indies. We will be staying in the Towers at the Seawinds Resort where all your Spring Break needs are directly below. We are next to the beach, pool, evening entertainment, tennis courts, and the hottest night club in the bay. Located five minutes from town, this resort has, at your disposal, water sports, sunbathing, and an array of restaurants and bars. Don't be lured by low-budget, problem-filled tear-offs that, in the end, turn to rip-offs. WE PROVIDE GUARANTEED RESERVED ACCOMMODATIONS AND FLIGHTS! Spend $9 a day more and step above the rest on your own vacation island!

A VACATION SHOULD BE A PLEASURE—NOT A HASSLE!

LAGNAF

BECAUSE IT'S WORTH IT

Mar. 18 - Mar. 25 • $569 per person from JFK
All Prices are Inclusive—No Hidden Extras
Double & Triple Occupancy Rates Available

Presented By
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

MasterCard VISA

CELEBRATE!

C&C LIQUORS
61 Main St., Amherst
Next to Town Hall
FOR FREE DELIVERY OF $20 MINIMUM ORDER.
(OFF UMASS CAMPUS)
Dial 253-3091
— All Prices In Store Cash Only —

BECKS 12pk.....$7.99
ROLLING ROCK 12pk.....$6.30
CAPTAIN MORGAN SPICED RUM 750ml.....$5.99
Rebate $1.50—Final Cost $4.49
OLIFANT DUTCH VODKA 1.75L.....$12.99
WOW!!
MILLER LITE SUITCASE.....$10.99
SANGRE DE TORO 750ml....$3.99
ANDRE.....$2.99

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

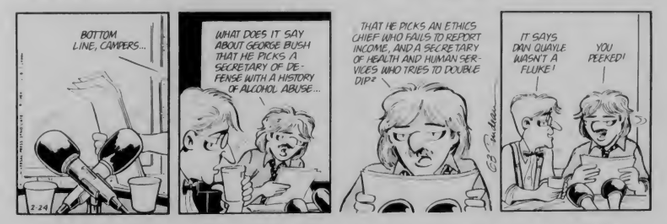
"One of the nicest evenings I've ever spent at the Wilsons ... and then you had to go and do that on the rug!"

BLOOM COUNTY By BERKE BREATHED

THEY WANT ME TO WHAT?
TAKE A FIELD TRIP TO THE ACME STEWARDESS SCHOOL.
DURING NUDENESS WEEK?
IT'S A SOLID RATINGS WINNER
HAVE THEY NO SHAME?!
OFF WITH THE TIE
I'M SO MORTIFIED

CALVIN AND HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

DOONESBURY By GARRY TRUDEAU



BOTTOM LINE, CAMPERS...
WHAT DOES IT SAY ABOUT GEORGE BUSH THAT HE PICKS A SECRETARY OF DEFENSE WITH A HISTORY OF ALCOHOL ABUSE...
THAT HE PICKS AN ETHICS CHIEF WHO FAILS TO REPORT INCOME, AND A SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES WHO TRIES TO DOUBLE DIP?
IT SAYS DAN QUAYLE WASN'T A FLUKE!
YOU PEEKED!

THE BEACON HILL GANG By AL ARPAD

THE FUTURE LOOKS BLEAK- MORE FEES, MORE RULES & MORE OF YOUR TAX DOLLARS DOWN THE TUBES AT WHITMORE.
SAY- ISN'T THAT THE CHANCELLOR SNEAKING INTO THAT PHONE BOOTH?
WHY IT'S CHANCELLORMAN!
TA-DA!
WHOOSH!
ZIP!
ONE
BARMP
PROTECTOR OF THE DOWNTRODDEN, COMFORTER OF THE OPPRESSED, DELIVERER OF FRUIT BASKETS & SPEAKER OF PLATITUDES! WHAT KIND OF STRANGE DOUBLE LIFE IS HE LEADING?
STAY TUNED

YEASTHEAD By JASON TALERMAN

PAY
Giant Sequoia, fam dragon.
Acids within destroyed Sequoia.
the ditch where he lies is a place where nothing is electric.

ETC.

"Danny has been a tremendous player for us, a real asset to the team."
—Celtics coach Jimmy Rodgers, on veteran guard Danny Ainge, who was traded last night, along with center Brad Lohaus, to the Sacramento Kings.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Former Turkish title
6 Doer
13 Weighted as a bet
14 Proclaimed
16 Show respect for
17 Famous French fortress
18 Havens for heifers
19 Sticky stuff
20 Mediterranean country
21 Unisex
22 Stranger
24 Commands a dog
25 Make lace
26 Bivalve mollusk
28 Way to go Abbr
29 Troublesome
31 Neckline style
33 Free from germs
34 River Styx transports
38 Chemical suffix
39 Pivot
40 Four-poster
43 Upstarts
45 Botanist Gray
46 As before: Lat
48 Andy's handle
49 Roamer
50 Small songbird
52 Sept. and Oct.
53 Mud
54 One who evokes
56 Carpenter's machine
57 Reduce in size
58 Successful people
59 Raged
60 Small food fish

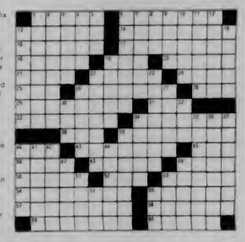
5 Use the plus sign
8 Erect anew
7 Type of paint
8 Certain: Abbr.
9 Baseball stats
10 Cuts off
11 Rich pastry
12 A survivor
13 Health family plant
15 Crowded together
19 Light reflection
22 Jellyfish
23 A new toy
26 Tell or Kiev
27 Salon specialties for short
30 Gold in Granada
32 Hesitating sounds
34 Vendettas
35 Made up or pretended
36 Legal right of way
37 Trappers
39 Given recognition
40 Two-legged animal
41 Roman magistrates
42 Represent
44 Branching
47 Small: Prefix
49 Having wings
51 Layer
53 — pickings
55 Baird's Scottish cousin
56 Pts. of gals

DOWN
1 Enjoyable
2 Feathered hair ornament
3 Bridges
4 Towel word

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

B	R	A	T		G	E	E	R		D	E	F	O	E
I	O	L	A		A	X	L	E		A	D	E	P	T
B	O	O	M		T	E	A		M	A	R	A	T
S	T	U	B	O	R	N		A	S	A	M	U	L	E
			O	A	S		T	A	G
I	R	G	U	N		S	M	I	L	E	U	P	O	N
N	E	E	R	D	O		D	O	T		N	A	R	A
L	E	N	I		R	O	N	N	I	E		D	R	A	T
E	V	E	N		A	P	E		D	O	E	S	N	T
			E	T	C		E	T	A		R	E	T	E
			G	E	N		A	T	S
O	N	O	N	E	S	H	I	G	H	M	O	R	S	E
G	A	L	E	N		A	L	I	E		I	O	N	A
A	P	A	R	T		N	I	N	A		L	U	I	S
M	E	N	D	S		D	E	E	D		S	E	P	T

2-24-89



TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A surge of enthusiasm invigorates a relationship, opening the door to a weekend of love and tranquility. Do not hesitate to spend money on an object of lasting value. Your taste is excellent.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your loyalty impresses prominent people. Your timing and sensitivity win you valuable allies. A strong desire to succeed will help you put over a bold, ambitious venture. Consult marketing experts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You cannot quite put your finger on a cash-flow problem. Conflicting information will be puzzling. Ask more questions. Trying harder to see partner's point of view will avert a confrontation. Avoid issuing ultimatums.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are eager to get yourself. The ideal job will provide monetary rewards for you efforts. Put your creative ideas down on paper. Someone at a distance wants to hear from you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Mate could be in a sulky mood. You may have to walk on eggs to keep the peace. At work, your energy and confidence soar; nothing can stop you! Contact influential friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is quite a difference between what a competitor tells you and what the facts show. Redouble your efforts to get ahead. Persistence pays big rewards. It may be time to expand your family.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Do not believe it when someone says nobody but you can handle a tricky situation. Devote more time to a relationship that shows signs of becoming serious. Double-check bills for possible errors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Try not to be so secretive. Keeping everything to yourself could hamper your efforts to build a lasting love relationship. Be realistic about the amount of money a project needs to succeed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Your marvelous sense of humor comes to the rescue when the chips are down. You must fish or cut bait on an important issue in money matters; do not be fooled by appearances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You cannot afford to hesitate or you will fall further behind financially. Be more aggressive about diversifying your efforts. Refuse to ever again put all of your eggs in one basket.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Family ties will be strengthened if you extend the olive branch to a sibling. Your chances for travel and literary success are stronger than ever. Pay more attention to your credit. Build savings.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You adjust to change easily, retaining your poise despite drama and trauma. Higher-ups take new notice of this valuable flexibility. Better work assignments will come your way. Share your expertise willingly.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Deli ham on water roll Quiche lorraine	Chopped beafsteak special Fisherman's plate
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Garden chili/piquante sauce Quiche lorraine	Potato mushroom delight Fisherman's plate

■ women's hoop

continued from page 16

Mounties were 11-of-19 from the stripe.

Freeman led the Minutewomen with 18 points, followed by Serafini's 15 and 11 from Wilbor. Those 11 points give her 960 for her career, leaving her 40 shy of the 1,000-point plateau. She has at least four games remaining to accomplish the feat.

UMass will now turn its attention to the Duchesses of Duquesne, whom they will visit tomorrow at 2 p.m. UMass has already faced Duquesne once this year, gaining an 88-74 win at Curry Hicks Cage on Jan. 19.

Last night's effort should give the Minutewomen a little more confidence than before. But be sure that a win over Duquesne won't be easy this time around. In the game at the Cage, the Duchesses were without leading scorer Amy Alger, who was nursing an ankle injury. Alger will be ready to play tomorrow.

But Christel Zullo, UMass' senior point guard will not. Zullo severely sprained her ankle last Thursday in a loss to Penn State and will be lost for the remainder of the season. Plus, the Minutewomen are on the road, as they visit the newly-built A.J. Palumbo Center for the first time.

One thing that doesn't set in well with Hewelt is the way that the Duchesses have been playing of late. They beat St. Bonaventure, a team that UMass lost to last Saturday at home, which has Hewelt a little on edge.

"I know it wasn't close, which doesn't make me feel good," Hewelt said. "Last time they had Alger out, but this time it will be different."

West Virginia 62-61

Massachusetts (61): Beth Wilbor 5-13 1-2 11; Keyburn McCusker 3-6 1-1 7; Helen Freeman 8-18 2-2 18; Dianne Burke 0-0 0-0 0; Trish Riley 3-8 0-0 6; Sue Serafini 5-10 0-0 15; Jenny Moran 1-2 2-2 4. Totals: 25-55 6-7 61

West Virginia (62): Rosemary Koscerek 5-13 3-4 16; Jo Zarr 1-1 0-0 2; Dionne Morris 1-8 0-2 2; Lisa Cisk 0-0 0-0 0; Jenny Hellen 3-7 2-2 8; Julie Fann 0-0 0-0 0; Judy Eaton 4-17 0-0 8; Tina Perry 0-0 0-0 0; Donna Abbott 8-17 4-7 20. Lori Wilson 2-7 2-4 6. Totals: 24-70 11-19 62

Three-point goals: Massachusetts 5-9 (Serafini 5-8, Freeman 0-1); West Virginia 3-10 (Koscerek 3-9, Eaton 0-2).

■ men's hoop

continued from page 16

McCoy scored 10 before the half was over, but, like his teammates, didn't turn in a consistent 20 minutes.

"At halftime," Calipari said, "I said to them 'Can you imagine we're only down by five points [42-37] after the half we played?' So I told them to just go out and try to win."

But the Nittany Lions used a 13-1 spurt to put the game out of reach while holding UMass, 4-12 in the conference and 9-16 overall, to just one field goal in the first 11:40 of the second half.

"We were sporadic," Penn State coach Bruce Parkhill said. "But we played very good defense at times."

Especially on McCoy. A big part of the Nittany Lions' success was that they held McCoy to just seven second-half points.

Blake was the man for Penn State at the beginning of the second half, scoring eight straight points on three short jumpers and a layup and with 16:34 left, the Nittany Lions led, 55-38.

Rafer Giles, who finished with 16 points for UMass, had put together a similar run in the first half.

With 12:23 left and his team trailing 11-7, Giles nailed a three-pointer from the left side. Less than a minute later, he hit another three pointer, was fouled, and converted on the free throw for a four-point play. Thirty seconds later, Giles made a layup, was fouled, and sank the free throw to give the Minutemen a 14-13 lead.

"Giles did a good job from the outside," Calipari said. "But you have to be able to go inside."

UMass couldn't, and that's why the pompons lay limp most of last night.

Collegian photo by Jason Taterman

UMass coach John Calipari saw very few happy momements in the Minutemen's loss to Penn State University at the Cage last night.

Penn State 90-71

Massachusetts (71): Jim McCoy 5-17 7-8 17; Michael Byrnes 2-2 0-0 5; John Milum 0-1 0-0 0; Chris Bailey 0-0 0-0 0; Anton Brown 3-10 2-2 8; John Tate 4-8 11-15 19; Rafer Giles 5-11 4-7 16; George Hardin 1-1 0-0 2; Cary Herer 0-0 0-1 0; Sean Nelon 0-1 0-1 0. Totals: 21-52 24-34 71

Penn State (90): Bruce Blake 8-12 1-2 17; Tom Hovasse 7-16 3-5 21; Ed Fogel 0-4 1-4 1; Monrow Brown 4-5 9-10 17; Freddie Barnes 2-3 7-8 12; James Barnes 4-5 1-2 9; Dave Degnitz 1-2 0-1 2; Christian Appleman 0-0 2-2 2; Darrell Ricks 1-1 0-0 2; Brian Allen 3-5 1-3 7; Lem Joyner 0-0 0-0 0; Rodney Henderson 0-0 0-0 0; C.J. Johnson 0-0 0-0 0. Totals: 30-53 24-38 90

Three-point goals: Massachusetts 5-11 (Giles 2-5, Brown 0-2, Byrnes 3-3); Penn State 6-7 (Hovasse 4-5, Brown 1-1, F. Barnes 1-1).

TIME OUT

WE HAVE BUSCH
PITCHERS $3.60
Best price in town!
Lunches served daily
You deserve some Time Out
37 N. Pleasant St • Mass ID required

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT
Print Shop
228 Triangle St., Amherst

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

Sports notice

The University of Massachusetts football team is looking for managers.

Any interested work study students should see coach Jones in the football office in Boyden Building.

RUSSELL'S
LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Featuring: Imported Beers at Domestic Pricing:
Starting NOW! Until??

Foster's
25 oz. "can".....$1.60 ea.; $14.99 cse. of 12 + dep.

Beck's Light or Dark
12 oz. Bottles.....$14.99 case + dep.

Moosehead 12 oz. Bottles $12.99 case + dep.

Chung Hua $3.95 6 + dep. $14.95 cse. + dep.

Chinese Beer—12 oz. Bottles
KEG BEER ALWAYS IN STOCK
WE DELIVER 253-5441
OFF CAMPUS

2-Liter Coke on Sale

2 liter Watney's Light
(5 oz. less than a 6-pack) was $4.49
Now $2.99 ea.
Case of 6 bottles $12.70 + dep.
While they last!

Super Liquor Buys:
Absolut Vodka 80°.....$10.99 750 ml
Bacardi Rum 80°.....$12.99 1.75 liter
Jim Beam Bourbon.....$8.99 liter
Bacardi Rum.....$6.99 750ml
J&B Scotch.....$11.99 750 ml

We have just about any wine you can imagine at Russell's low pricing.
Example: Glen-Ellen White Zinfandel 3 bots. $10.00
Quantity discounts always available

UPC PRESENTS
HUGO LARGO
SATURDAY MARCH 4
8:00 IN THE BLUE WALL CAFE UMASS
$6 UMASS STUDENT
$7 GENERAL PUBLIC
TICKETS ON SALE AT TIX UNLIMITED, FOR THE RECORD-FACES, & MAIN ST. RECORDS-NORTHAMPTON

■ men's gymnastics

continued from page 16

Turning to the other side, UMass is 5-2 on the year and 3-1 in the EIGL and in a battle with Syracuse for second place. The Minutemen are coming off an emotionally-draining win over Temple University in which the meet was pulled out in the last event.

With the showdown for second place with Syracuse coming next weekend, UMass can't afford to slip up now while it is just one meet in back of conference leading Navy, another military academy. UMass is hoping to pass the Midshipmen at the conference championship.

Army's high score this year is a 256.25 — the Minutemen are going to have to have a performance similar to the one they had last weekend to pull out a "W". UMass coach Roy Johnson is hoping to fine tune most of his gymnast's routines in this meet, which would set them up for a big score next weekend.

"We're looking to improve on the performance," Johnson said. "What we're looking for on floor exercise is to stick the landings."

One big move for the Minutemen this weekend could be the return of Jay Ronayne to the vaulting competition. Ronayne tore a muscle in his foot earlier in the season and had to sit out for a few weeks. But he has gradually been working his way back. In the last two meets, he has competed on the rings and the high bar but says that his best event is the vault which he has not been able to compete in.

"Hopefully, Jay Ronayne will be ready for vaulting," Ronayne said.

As a team the Minutemen will also try and improve their vaulting.

"We're trying to increase our difficulties," Johnson said. "The levels of our vaults should be a little higher.

Stutzes to handstands is what Johnson wants the Minutemen to work on in the parallel bars. And on the high bar, Johnson is not even looking for improvement after what happen on the high bar last weekend when the Minutemen pulled out the meet with a very big performance on the bar.

"We want to try and have a repeat performance," Johnson said.

The Minutemen will also be hoping for a repeat performance of the result from last weekend, an EIGL win.

Back-flips: If you were at the meet last weekend, the score of the meet was posted on the electronic scoreboard in the corner of the gym. That scoreboard only has three digits. Most of the scores in the meet are recorded to the nearest tenth or hundreth so the score on the scoreboard was the closest whole number. The crowd could not tell who was winning with the meet being so close throughout (UMass won by less than a point). In tomorrow's meet, an accurate score will be posted after the completion of each event on the big scoreboard which contains all the school records.

■ women's track

continued from page 16

been running all week, due to asthma and bronchitis-like problems. "The doctor said she should be cleared for the weekend, but we're still keeping our fingers crossed for Lee," LaFreniere said.

There will no trials, just finals, for Hill in the 3000 and the 5000. She, along with Ambrose, has been the most productive and consistent performers for UMass, but ran a slow time last week due to a cold.

"She's feeling better, but she's still a little tired. I think she is still recovering," said LaFreniere. "I think she'll be in the 9:50's (in the 3000) and all she's trying to do in the 5000 is to place."

Providence's Tina Maloney should win hands down in the event, according to LaFreniere, so she'll have Hill "run with the main group and then in the last three laps pull away."

Junior Shana Smith will be running the only event that will be in yards and not meters - the 1000. "She's going to have some tough competition, but she's also tough herself. She's been resting for two weeks (mainly due to fatigue), and I think she'll be ready to go," said LaFreniere.

Tina White, ranked 12th in New England, will be looking to rebound from last week's sub-par performance by her standards. The school record holder in the 20-pound weight (41 feet, 8 inches), White could not break the 40-feet barrier last week at Dartmouth. "Jim (Giroux, assistant coach) has been working with her all week," said LaFreniere. "She'll just try to forget last weekend. She knows what she has to do. A large percentage of athletes throw farther in practice, because they're more relaxed. They just have to learn to compete and throw the same way they do in practice. In practice, Jim says she's been throwing 43 feet. We're hoping if can put it together, she can go over that."

Freshman Simone Marisseau and senior Helen Balaouras are also in, proving just how much the throwers have become a strength rather than a weakness for UMass. According to Giroux, Marisseau could go over 40 feet in the shot and that she should make it to the finals, which are the top seven shot putters. As for Balaouras she threw her best in the weight last week (39-11 1/2), but if she can straighten out her throw, she could go also go over 40.

LaFreniere doesn't know what to expect from senior Kristin Peers. She qualified for the 5000 in January, but since has been sidelined with a stomach virus. "This week has been the first time that she's ran in a while. She's a gutsy runner, and I'm sure she'll give 110 percent," said LaFreniere.

Freshman half-mile qualifier Michelle St. Laurent will not run in the 800; instead she will run in the 4x800 relay with Ambrose, Smith, and either Hill or Cheryl LeClerc. LaFreniere said about her relay team, "We should definitely place; we won't win but we'll take anywhere from 2nd to 5th."

Sports at a glance

Today:

Men's swimming, New England's at Springfield
Women's swimming, Easterns at Penn State
Men's Track, New England's at Boston University

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON.-THURS. 8:30-3:30 FRI. 8:30-2:30 • DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION • CASH IN ADVANCE. 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS.

ACTIVITIES

BLACK HISTORY MONTH CELEBRATION. Tonight implementing the dream, tomorrow night Unity Dance. Both in Campus Center. Look on the Bulletin

UMASS MUSIC THEATRE GUILD is meeting Monday Feb. 27, 7:00, CC168. Come get involved with the group and this semester's production of West Side Story. All are welcome!

KOREAN STUDENTS ASSOC. meeting Monday at 6pm in Campus Center room 903

GRAYSON HOUSE COUNCIL invites Grayson residents to its regular weekly meetings. Sundays at 7:30pm in the Main Lounge

SPECIESISM: it concerns all of us. Animal Rights Coalition General Meeting. G-Film showing Sunday 7pm Dukes Room SUB

SIGMA DELTA TAU SISTERS invite University women to Open Rush Dinners Feb. 27 & 28 at 5:30. Hope to see you there.

YOU CAN'T JUGGLE?! Don't go through life without this marketable skill. UMass Juggling Club meets today, 3-6, in CC 165

LEARN JEWELRY & SILKSCREEN. 4 workshops meeting once a week at Student Union Craft Center

ANNOUNCING THE FINANCE AND INVESTMENT CLUB'S inaugural gathering of 1989 featuring elections and social events planning. New members graciously welcomed. Thursday 8:30-7:30pm SOM lobby. Don't let it be another extracurricularless semester.

ADD DROP A PAIN? Budget cuts got you down? Write a letter to your representative. Table outside the Ministore S.U.

STRONGEST MAN AND WOMAN COMPETITION Saturday Feb 25th at the Kennedy Bodyshop 12-4pm $2.00 fee and many great prizes

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE

SAPCIOUS 1, 2, and 3 BEDROOM UNITS in Sunderland. Ample off street parking and free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Call 665-3856

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUDIO

VCR WANTED OLDER MODEL or don't need to record. Amy 546-4364

AUTO FOR SALE

1977 JEEP CHEROKEE, 4x4, 360 V-8 engine, needs body work, reasonable parts included 1-774-5239 $850

1981 HONDA ACCORD LX HATCHBACK for parts or fix. New battery, clutch, alternator, body in gd shape. Must see $300 or BO 256-8132

79 FORD FUTURA 4 SPEED fun 131K miles Daytona special $400/B.O. 444-0231

84 ISUZU PUP WITH CAP 88K must sell! $2500 days 545-0600 x39 - Elaine

78 OLDSMOBILE CUTLESS STATION-WAGON automatic powersteering Air condition runs great $600 or B.O. 665-8955

1983 FORD ESCORT WAGON- 50,000 miles A/C, roof rack, excellent condition $2500. Call 256-0933

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CAMP COUNSELORS

COME WORK FOR an accredited 3-camp organization in the Pocono Mountains of PA. Positions are available in: Tennis, Archery, Waterfront (W.S.I.), Cramatics, Office Administration, Computers, Radio, Arts & Crafts, Nature, Athletics, Jewelry, Photocraphy, Dance, Wrestling, Cooking, Adventure/Challenge Course, Film making. Camp Drivers. Season: 6/24-8/20. Call 800-533-CAMP (215-887-9700 in PA) or write 407 Benson East, Jenkintown, PA 19046.

COMPACT DISC MUSIC MACHINE

DISC JOCKEY SERVICE - quality tunes for all occesions 549-1421 or 253-7655

FLORIDA SPRING BREAKS

DAYTONA'S CASTAWAY BEACH RESORT - $139. Panama City Beach's Miracle Mile Resort - $119. roundtrip transportation add $80 Call Mark 549-2871

FREE WEST PALM TRIP

FRI FEB 24 8:00 SUB The Florida Dash. Dance win a trip for 2 to West Palm Beach. Bring a suitcase. The winner leaves straight from the Dance. Sylvan Area Gov't Better programming for people who deserve it.

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances. 256-8526

FOR RENT

ROOM IN NICE FAMILY home for female graduate student. Private bath, fridge. Close to campus. $300 549-6504

ONE BEDROOM IN A 3 bedroom apt. in Sunderland on bus route $200/ No last mo. or sec dep. Call Jenny or stephen 665-8617

FRIDGE RENTALS WE DELIVER 253-9742

FOR SALE

GRATEFUL DEAD - Pittsburg 4/2-3 Have two tickets for each night $100. Gets them all. Call 967-7726

2 PARAKEETS WITH CAGE $20 293-2354

AKAI STEREO INCLUDES amp/tuner, equalizer, dual cassette, turntable, speakers and Pioneer CD Player 2 yrs old must sell $500 527-8408

1962 VW SCIRROCCO Great shape needs muffler $2000 Call 545-0046 ask for Jon

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES Amherst 2 yrs old income property positive cash flow (gross rental 18,000/yr) Live rent free and make spending money too! Call Dale 253-9949

RUG-GREAT FOR DORM
Sky Blue
Excellent condition
$45 or best offer
Call Alisa 527-6505

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles. Call 256-8369

FOUND

BRENDAN SALTER, PSYCH 241 NOTES. You can get them at the Collegian front desk

HAVING A PARTY?

HIRE "ONE EYED JAKE" A great rock & roll band call Steve 546-7517

HELP WANTED

THIS PAST SUMMER 350 College Students took on a Management Position gaining exceptional managerial and business skills for their career. Average net summer earnings $10,740
1-800-822-5578

$10,000 A MONTH  Market product in untapped region. Drive and persistence pay off greatly. Dave 584-5757

SGA COMMUNICATIONS IS HIRING - Publicity/advertising consultant. Applications at 304 SUB. AA/EOE

JIM XAVIER

X X
X X X
X X
X X
HAPPY BIRTHDAY X-MAN!

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands'on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on February 22 from 3:30-4:30 in room 901 Campus Center. (545-1995)

LOST

WOMAN'S WATCH- black leather band gold face Seiko Quartz please! call 546-7074 sentimental!

LOST! 4P-41CV Calc. and a TI-55III calculator. 2/17/89. Please call 6-4950

GOLD CHAIN LOST/STOLEN on 2/15 Webster Area. Reward. Call 665-4257

NEED CASH!

GET SOME SPRING BREAK money before it's too late!! Sell me your baseball cards. Call Todd anytime 549-6361

PERSONALS

DURFEE WINTER TRACK, I see you all over and I would like to meet you. Maybe we could meet over a sundae sometime. -Dokken

HAPPY BIRTHDAY Megan Thomas. Love Jim

AXE- You probably should get it done the "right" way, but we never listened to Jack before, so why start now? You're going to come out of this weekend with another hole in your head! Happy Birthday! -Poca and Krunchie

HEY! I told you before and I'll tell you again - you're going to merry him. Just hang in there, Kiddo.

KEN GREENWOOD It was your birthday yesterday. In case you forgot (we didn't) Happy birthday!! -Sean and Michelle

IF YOU SEE ANDY FORBES wish him a very happy 21st birthday one day early.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO THE BOOB in 303 Kennedy! We love you and we know who you love! You got "the look"! Love ya, Tona and Sharon.

KAREN UZDAVINIS Happy 21st Birthday from your 3 favorite roommates Barb, Cip and Jen!

ATTENTION ALL UMASS WOMEN. Peter Kadra must scoop this weekend. Look for him at a party near you. PS - please don't hurt us!

BON JOVI-- 4 tix for Prov. March 2. B/O 549-4597. Mike

MARTHA LITTLE happy birthday. We like middle aged women. Love your sex slaves at Hunk City.

KELLY, BUON 20 COMPLEANO!!! Buona Fortine con Math. Grazie amo il mio hamster! Scott 2/25/89

TOO MUCH FUN W/CRAIG TURNER
Winner of Battle of Bands
Friday Nite
at Landmark Lounge Rt. 9
Belchertown
Five minutes past Changes in Crystal Springs Plaza
No cover

FANBELT HAPPY 22nd BIRTHDAY! Margaritville is calling. Have a good one. Lisa, Cheryl, Monique, Jill

KAREN M here it is. These 10:10 classes are killing me, no time for coffee and toast and our chores. Keep smiling. Love, Pete

HEY GEEK in what shape or form do you want your four dollars? P.S. Have a crappy day.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE newly elected president of Orchard Hill - Howard Dryfus. You reminded the Radical Parisons of the United States Agenda that the students still have a voice.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MOBSTER. Dan, Tim, Paul

BETTY BOOP- Can you believe it's been 4 months? God, it seems more like 1½ or a year! All my love. Rumplestiskin

DAVID HAPPY 3 YEARS! They've been the best. Love forever, ever, and always, Kerry

RICH- THANKS FOR A wonderful time Saturday Night!! Seven times?! Wow!!! I'm still smiling!!! Aimee

TO THE PRETTY BLONDE SENIOR (who took a semester off) in the coatchex line at Pearl Street Saturday Nite. how does dinner this Friday at the Hilton Sound? John 545-0015

Bon Jovi 4 tix Hart Mar$ $60 or BO 549-7878. Great seats!

ATTENTION STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS! EXCELLENT FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES HELPING WITH AN ON-CAMPUS MARKETING PROJECT. CALL IMMEDIATELY. STUART 548-7612. LEAVE A MESSAGE.

NEED A HAIRCUT!? For the lowest rates call 253-9127. Leave message

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt. or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later

RIDE WANTED

RIDE NEEDED TO ITHACA,NY area/Spring Break/ call Caroline evenings 6-9771

TWO PEOPLE LOOKING for a ride to Florida call Kimberly 253-9301

ROOMMATES WANTED

SUNNY SPACIOUS WOODFLOOR BEDROOM available in furnished apartment in Hadley washer dryer microwave color television on bus route 15 minutes to UMass 10 minutes to Northampton Carbers right across the street parking available 225/ call evenings. 1 weekends women only please 586-4412

2 NEEDED TO SHARE ROOM IN Townhouse apt beginning fall semester. Contact as soon as possible 546-5025

ROOM AVAILABLE IN HOUSE. 3 min to bus. $225/month + util. Call Peter after 7pm. 253-2266

ONE ROOM IN APARTMENT 254 inclusive 1-2 people 256-0958 256-4270

1 or 2 PEOPLE FOR APARTMENT in Amherst Center call 253-7572

ONE LARGE ROOM in 3 bedroom, 1st floor apt in Hadley. Can be Hardwood floors, large kitchen and living room. $233/mo includes heat. 585-8627

SERVICES

RESUMES SAMPLES, VARIOUS STYLES, different formats. Actual successful examples. Interested? Send $3.00 Box 801 Bellmore New York 11710

AUTO REPAIRS: very reasonable, experienced mechanic. Work your place or mine. Messages for Marx 665-8467

PROFESSIONAL EDITING- Term papers, Theses, Dissertations. 1-467-3753 after 7pm.

VIDEO RESUME TO GET THAT JOB! Immediate, professional, personalized service. Appointments. Video Image Productions (413) 863-8035

PROFESSIONAL RESUMES, Laserprinting, copies, typing 665-8873

RESUME TYPESETTING. Avoid the end-of-semester panic. Very experienced, inexpensive, overnight laserwriter quality. Lisa 665-8969

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE ELECTIONS

NOMINATIONS ARE NOW AVAILABLE in SU 420 for SGA President, Student Trustee and any open senate seats. They are due back on March 2nd at 10:00am

SWING DANCE/JITTER BUG CLASSES

Just $7 each or $25 for all four, No partner necessary! Classes meet from 4 - 6pm Sunday. March 5 thru Sunday, March 26 at East Street Dance Studio's in Hadley -Just off Rt. 9 between Amherst and Northampton. Instructors: Lars Marshall and Janine Warner. For more info, Call 548-9309. No pre-registration necessary.

TRAVEL

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW, OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TYPING

"WORDSMITH" PROFESSIONAL TYPING. Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck. 253-4564

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional, accurate. 665-4501

WANTED

IRISH STEP DANCERS interested in dancing or meeting call Laurie 6-6925. Leave message

SPORTS

Minutemen lose big-time to Penn State, 90-71

Tate pours in 19, McCoy 17

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

George Hardin (35) and the rest of the Minutemen were pinned against the glass all night by Penn State University, being outrebounded 47-25 and losing their third straight game last night, 90-71.

The 2,853 fans who showed up at the Curry Hicks Cage last night received free maroon and white pompons on their way inside.

It's too bad they didn't get much of a chance to use them.

The Penn State University men's basketball team scored the first nine points of the game, and pulled away with a 13-1 run to start the second half, on the way to a 90-71 Atlantic 10 Conference victory over the University of Massachusetts.

"They're the third best team in the conference," UMass coach John Calipari said. "When we come to play, we can compete with a lot of teams. We didn't come to play tonight."

UMass will get one more chance at the Cage when it plays host to George Washington University tomorrow at 7 p.m.

But Penn State's Tom Hovasse made sure the crowd got a show last night. The senior forward burned the Minutemen for 21 points, including a four-for-five performance from three-point land.

"He was wide open the whole time," Calipari said. "We didn't guard him well."

Bruce Blake and Monroe Brown each added 17 points for the Nittany Lions, 11-5 in the Atlantic 10 and 16-9 overall.

John Tate led UMass with 19 points and seven rebounds. But the Minutemen's leading scorer coming into the game, freshman forward Jim McCoy, had a much tougher time.

McCoy went scoreless for the first 14:28 of the game, before hitting a pair of free throws with 5:29 left in the first half.

The points gave McCoy the UMass record for most points as a freshman. The old record, held by John Hempel, was 470.

continued on page 14

Women's hoop falls to West Virginia on the road, 62-61

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

Oh so close.

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team, despite a prolonged slump and some injuries that could have effectively ruined its season, proved that 1988-89 isn't over yet yesterday afternoon in Morgantown, W.Va.

The Minutewomen, playing the first game of a two-game trip against host West Virginia University, nearly pulled off an upset of big proportions, just falling to the Mountaineers, 62-61.

Freshman guard Rosemary Kosiorek hit the front end of a one-and-one with nine seconds left to give WV a 62-58 lead. UMass closed the gap to one on Sue Serafini's three-point basket with a second left, but that was about it.

The two teams battled to a 29-all tie at halftime, and then the Minutewomen put themselves in good shape by reeling off the first seven points of the second half. Keyburn McCusker started it off with a three-point play, and then Helen Freeman and Beth Wilbor each connected to stretch the lead to 36-29.

The Mountaineers battled back to tie twice, the last time at 48-all on Jenny Hillen's jumper with 7:40 left. A layup by Judy Eaton and a pair of Hillen free throws put the Mounties up for good.

They led by as much as six with 29 seconds left after freshman Donna Abbott's three-point play. Abbott led all scorers with 20 points for WV.

Serafini then connected on the first of her two final minute treys to cut the gap to three with 10 seconds left. In all, Serafini collected all 15 of her points from Three-pointville on 5-of-8 accuracy.

Kosiorek however went to the line a second later and hit the clinching FTs.

In the end, UMass coach Kathy Hewelt attributed the loss to a tight defense played by the Mountaineers.

"Their pressure defense really hurt us," Hewelt said. "I was pleased with the rebounding. But we needed more penetration in the middle and we would have gone to the line more."

UMass outrebounded WV 43-37, but took only seven free throws, hitting six. The

continued on page 14

The New Englands . . .

UMass' top runners will be competing at BU

By RICK SETO
Collegian Correspondent

This is what it all comes down to. This is what the University of Massachusetts women's indoor track team has been aiming for since the beginning of the season in December. The New England Championships, at Boston University, this weekend. This two-day affair will push athletes to the limit, to be the best.

"They've put all the work behind them, they just need to put it all together. They'll be banging heads with the best in New England."

–UMass coach Julie LaFreniere

Along with about 30 other schools, UMass will be competing against some of the top teams in the region, like Connecticut, Boston University, Vermont, and Providence.

The five runners and three throwers that UMass coach Julie LaFreniere will be sending to Boston represent the best that this University has to offer.

"They've put all the work behind them, they just need to put it all together. They'll be banging heads with the best in New England," said LaFreniere. She feels that sprinter Lee Ann Ambrose and middle distance runners Precious Hill and Shana Smith will have the best chances of advancing to the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Championships next weekend at Yale University. She adds that thrower Tina White also has a possibility of going. Ambrose, who has primarily run the 200 and 400 meters during the season, will compete in the 55 and 400 at the N.E. "She can't do the 200 because it's back-to-back with the 400, her strongest event," said LaFreniere. "There is a possibility that she can score a point in the 55. She does have the sixth-fastest time in New England. It'll give her good practice for her starts in the 400. It'll sharpen her up."

Ambrose's chances in the quarter-mile will depend on who will be running. "She's ranked third in New England, but two BU girls are in front of her and they're the type of runners who can go back-to-back. Lee will have someone to go after. She has a good chance of coming in third," said LaFreniere. The only problem that may affect her performance is that she has not

continued on page 15

Men's gymnastics hosts the academies tomorrow

By GEORGE AUSTIN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team will meet two teams tomorrow at the Boyden Gymnastics Center, both from the United States Military Academies.

But the Minutemen really will be fighting only one war tomorrow. Yes, both academies defend the same flag but they also play in different leagues. Army belongs to the same Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League that UMass does. Air Force does not. That's all you need to know.

Air Force will be their tomorrow and the Minutemen will compete against them but all eyes will be on the UMass/Army result at the end.

There is a good chance of the Minutemen coming out on top. Army started out the season by winning 10 meets in a row. However, they have dropped their last three and all three of those losses were to EIGL teams, the latest chapter being a 261-253.85 loss to Cortland State College, a team the Minutemen also were handed a loss by. The Cadets are bringing up the rear of the EIGL at 1-3 in the conference.

continued on page 15

Men's and women's ski teams head to Vt. for Championships

The University of Massachusetts men's and women's ski teams are heading to Middlebury, Vt. this weekend to compete in the Eastern Ski Intercollegiate Championships. Coach Bill MacConnell's team had a good regular season, with the men finishing 2nd and the women 3rd. Leading the men have been juniors John Roche and Rick D'elia. They have finished in the top 10 most every time during ski competition this season, and have the best chances to qualify for the NCAA's, which take place the following weekend.

The women have been hurt by the loss of sophomore co-captain Elise McDevitt, who suffered a knee injury last weekend at Berkshire East, and thus will not have a chance to qualify for the NCAA's. Marcy Blacker and Mary Sinton, who have skied very well this season, will try to make it to the Nationals as well, and will lead the women in place of McDevitt.

– ROBERT SIMPSON

Today, 40 percent chance of snow, high near 30. Tonight cloudy and cold.

Prof. Stephen Small's historical look at the black experience in Britain. Page 9.

Men's swimming wins a third consecutive New England championship. Page 16.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY MONDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1989

COLLEGIAN

Students spurn budget plan

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

An attempt to create unity against state budget cuts backfired Friday, as tempers flared over budget proposals while Gov. Michael Dukakis and students from state colleges and universities met behind closed doors.

More than 100 student representatives from six state colleges and universities and former Sen. Paul Tsongas, chairman-designate of the Massachusetts Board of Regents of Higher Education, attended the 40-minute meeting, which was closed to the general public.

Student Trustee Stephanie Orefice, a chief organizer of the event, said Dukakis expected a "pep rally" against the higher education budget approved last week by the House Ways and Means committee, which slashed his original proposal by $31 million, and became frustrated when students did not offer support.

"It was a very bad start. He's expecting us to come in and say we love his budget," Orefice said, adding neither proposal is sufficient for the growing needs of public higher education.

In a press conference immediately following the meeting, Dukakis said, "The budget that I proposed invests in public higher education. The House Ways and Means' budget obviously does something very different."

Tsongas, who Orefice said seemed "sincere" at the forum, said "this is political science 101, and what we're here to do is enlist this army.

"This is a very Darwinian system – you fight, you fight hard, you win," he said. "You don't fight – you lose.

"There are 180,000 students in this system. I presume that they know how to write," Tsongas said. "If there are anything less than 180,000 letters going to the legislature, then the message speaks for itself."

As the meeting progressed, students were able to discuss their concerns, including tuition hikes and retention and class cancellations, but Don Siriani, a student trustee at Salem State College, said there is definitely a need for a second meeting.

"He listened to us and heard what we were saying," Siriani said. But, he added, "There are a number of legitimate questions the students have and there was not enough time to get into them as we need to."

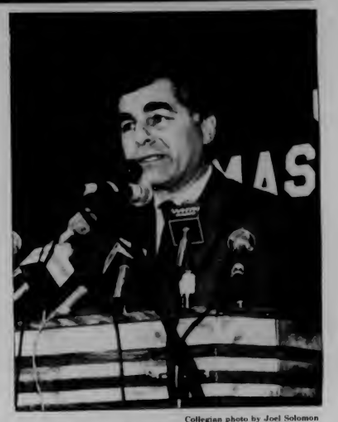
Siriani said the state budget formulation process has been accelerated, decreasing the length of time for student-organized protests and actions to prevent further cuts.

"We had a whole different time line and the governor feels very much under the gun," he said. "Time has run out and we've only got 10 days to get this together."

Statewide protests on college and universities have been rescheduled for March 2, and Siriani said student leaders are now scrambling to organize other events to be held this week.

At the University, letter-writing campaigns to state legislators are still underway and a protest at the Massachusetts State House in Boston involving students from colleges and universities across the state will be held in the next two weeks.

Several UMass students have also erected a "Cutback City" shantytown located west of the Student Union building to protest state budget cuts (see related story on page 3).



Collegian photo by Joel Solomon

Gov. Michael Dukakis speaks Friday at a press conference in the Campus Center.

Minutemen drafted

Smellie, Thomas picked high by CFL

Kevin Smellie

Andrew Thomas

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

In 1985, a pair of Canadians named Kevin Smellie and Andrew Thomas came to the United States to begin their college education at the University of Massachusetts.

Now, after four successful years on the UMass football team, and following their graduation in May, there is a good chance they will be returning home.

The Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League on Saturday made Smellie and Thomas the No. 2 and 3 selections in their draft of Canadian-born players.

"We're thankful," Smellie said yesterday in a phone interview from his home in Mississauga, Ontario. "And I'm glad we got picked by the same team."

The two were flown in Friday and were in attendance at the draft, which was held in Hamilton, Ontario. Thomas could not be reached for comment but as of yesterday, according to Smellie, neither he nor Thomas had signed.

"We could both sign today if we wanted," Smellie said. "We have about a month to respond. I've talked with my agent and I want to check out all my options.

"I've been getting a lot of mail from the NFL, and I think I'll get a couple of invites to camps," Smellie said. "I'd like to play in the NFL. And both leagues are paying good money, which is always a good incentive."

For Smellie, the surprise was not so much that he had been drafted, but how high he was drafted.

"I had been contacted by some teams," said Smellie, who was a tailback at UMass. "So I thought that the chance was pretty good. But to be picked so high was a shock."

continued on page 16

Duffey defends anthrax research at UMass

By NANCY KLINGENER
Collegian Staff

Chancellor Joseph Duffey defended anthrax research at the University of Massachusetts Friday, answering critics who have planned a protest this week against the research.

A group of students and the local chapter of the American Friends Service Committee wrote a letter to Duffey last month, asking him to halt the research, claiming it poses a health threat and could be used in biological warfare.

Duffey and other University officials maintain that the research into the virus, which is highly infectious in farm animals and can be deadly to humans, is safe and ethical.

"As a public institution we will respond to responsible questions or concerns, but we do not intend to modify policies in response to threats or demands," Duffey said according to the statement.

The AFSC and the students, a group called People for a Responsible University, appealed to the town's board of health earlier this month, asking the board to determine whether the research is a health threat.

The board voted to hold a public hearing on the issue, scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday.

John Bonifaz, a member of the AFSC, said his group is "disappointed" with the chancellor's statement.

"If anyone's using scare tactics, it's the U.S. Army," Bonifaz said. "We have put forward our concerns in a responsible, coherent manner."

The two groups have also planned a picket on campus at noon tomorrow. The picket is scheduled to begin at the Morrill Science Center, where the research is conducted in the microbiology department, and proceed to Whitmore Administration Building.

continued on page 4

Wife sentenced in murder trial

By SHARON WILKEY
Collegian Staff
and The Associated Press

Despite pleas for leniency from the community and the jury, a Hamden County Superior Court judge Friday sentenced Lisa Becker-Grimshaw to 15 to 20 years for manslaughter.

Becker-Grimshaw, the first woman allowed to use the battered woman's syndrome as a defense in Massachusetts, received the maximum sentence for her involvement in the 1985 murder of her estranged husband.

The battered woman's syndrome is a diagnosis of post-traumatic stress disorder developed by psychologist Lenore Walker of Denver Colo.

Stacy Roth, coordinator of the Educator/Advocate program at the University of Massachusetts Everywoman's Center, said, "In general I think this sentencing is appalling. Based on national statistics, a man who kills his wife serves, on the average, four to eight years."

According to the district attorney's office, Becker-Grimshaw must serve 10 years before being considered for parole. She has already served three years while waiting for her case to come to trial.

The 27-year-old former Springfield resident will begin serving her sentence in 10 days at the Massachusetts Correctiona' Institute in Framingham.

continued on page 4

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr. GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
ASSOCIATES	BETTY-ANN MURPHY YANA DLUGY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE GEORGE FRANCY TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	MATT GERKE
COPY EDITOR	THOMAS RODRIGUES
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	FLORENCIO TERRA
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	DONDI AHEARN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	ROB LEVINE
PRODUCTION	YANA DLUGY JULIA MILLMAN MIKE MAHER FREYA BATLLE NICOLE DEMARTINO

AP photo

GOING PUBLIC — Defense Secretary-designate John Tower is all smiles prior to the taping of ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley" in Washington yesterday morning. Tower is going public with his campaign to become defense secretary despite a vote by the Senate Armed Services Committee last week to reject the nomination. The full Senate is expected to vote on Tower's nomination this week.

Chances of gorillas mating look good

BOSTON (AP) — Vip and Gigi, the couple everyone's talking about at the Metropolitan District Commission's zoos, are getting along famously, and the gorillas' handlers are upbeat about the prospects of a fruitful relationship.

A computer-arranged tryst brought Vip, 9, from a Texas zoo last month to replace Gigi's old flame, Sam, after the spark went out of their lives and three years passed without any offspring.

Zoo officials hope Vip and Gigi, 16, will produce a family of lowland gorillas to inhabit a new $26 million facility at a revitalized Franklin Park Zoo, which once ranked among the 10 worst zoos in the nation.

Vip and Gigi make their first public appearance as a couple in their temporary digs at the Stone Zoo in Stoneham today, but the two have been warming up to each other during about a half-dozen introductory meetings during the last week.

"I don't think we could have found her a better mate, he's really a very gentle anmimal," said behaviorist Dr. Deborah Shildkraut who has been working with the gorillas.

Sam became harmfully aggressive toward Gigi in the last year so he was shipped off to Milwaukee County Zoo. But Vip's chest beating and growls are intended to gain Gigi's attention, not to menace, Shildkraut said.

"He's the proper combination of being assertive yet not overly aggressive to her, and I think she's responding to that. She's very calm,"Shildkraut said.

Both gorillas have spent their entire lives in captivity. They were matched by the species survival program of the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums which traced their family trees to make sure they were not closely related.

Shildkraut has worked with Gigi before, helping to teach the gorilla how to care for her young after Gigi rejected her first son, Quito, 7. When Gigi gave birth to Kubana three years ago, she raised him without assistance.

Shildkraut said animal handlers have learned the importance of allowing animals in captivity to socialize.

"In the first efforts of breeding, youngsters were often raised by humans. And if you're not reared by members of your own species, then you lack certain skills," she said. "Now it's a priority to keep gorillas in groups and to allow as much natural behavior as possible to take place without interference."

Vip was placed in a cage adjacent to Gigi where they could observe and touch each other through the bars after he was released from a routine, four-week quarantine.

After a few charges at the door that separated them, they calmed down and Vip spent a lot of time gazing at Gigi. On Wednesday, zoo workers decided it was time to bring the simians together.

The initial response was charging and a lot of posturing,"said Shildkraut. The gorillas ran and slid across their room, slamming walls with their fists.

But the intensity of the rowdy behavior dropped off quickly.

"Nobody got hurt, there weren't any fights," Shildkraut said. "You always have to anticipate some kind of fighting, but we haven't had any sign of trouble."

Then the two 250-pound gorillas began chasing each other in circles, and each chase ended with the two resting closer and closer together.

Zeta Psi Amherst Drop Zone

ARMY/NAVY SALE

Sponsored By: Zeta Psi

ZΨ

With: Amherst Drop Zone

Feb. 27 To March 2
9-5 p.m. 4 Days Only

Plus: 4 additional Vendors with...

VINTAGE CLOTHING
JEWELRY
MEXICAN BLANKETS
CHAMPION SWEATSHIRTS
LIVE CONCERT TAPES

And Surplus Surplus Surplus Surplus Surplus

LOCAL

Collegian photo by Joel Solomon

Students stand near a makeshift shack.

"City" protests cuts to education

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

Panic over state budget turmoil has thrust student activism to new heights in Massachusetts via massive letter writing campaigns, tuition bill burnings, and lobbying trips to the state house.

And now there's Cutback City.

About 10 students, calling themselves "Students for a Democratic University," have taken residence in two eight foot by eight foot shacks, which they call Cutback City, located west of the Student Union building, said group member and graduate student Pierre Laliberte.

They have been there since Gov. Michael Dukakis' Friday visit to the campus, said Laliberte.

The shacks, which are made out of wooden planks and plastic sheeting, symbolize the impoverished state of public higher education, Laliberte said.

"Public higher education is in danger," he said, pointing to a crudely built shanty. "This is what's happening right now."

"[Dukakis] has not made higher education an issue to rally around," Laliberte said. "This is something that benefits everyone in the state."

The makeshift campsite is strewn with sleeping bags, cooking materials and signs reading, "Students out in the cold."

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson expressed concern for the students sleeping out in the cold. He said they will not be removed unless they interfere with others' rights.

Laliberte said the city will remain "as long as it's necessary" to fight the budget cuts.

UMass selects new Dean of Students

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

Administrators are hailing the appointment of Dr. Jo-Anne Thomas Vanin to the position of dean of students, saying she is a first-rate choice and will be a boon to the University of Massachusetts.

Vanin, currently assistant dean for academic assistance programs at Pennsylvania State University, will fill the position vacated by Dr. William Field. Field had been dean for 37 years.

"I'm just really pleased with this appointment," said Dennis Madson, vice chancellor for student affairs. "She has a reputation for caring about student life and improving student life.

"Her grasp of what a dean of students office should be doing and her grasp of what student groups should be doing into the 90's is excellent," he said.

According to William Weitzer, associate dean of student affairs, Vanin's appointment "is going to prove to be a tremendous asset to the campus."

Vanin will begin work April 16, replacing interim dean Gladys Rodrigues.

Vanin is only the second dean of students in the history of the University because Field held the job from the time the position was created, according to the Office of Public Information.

Vanin was selected from a field of 80 candidates that was narrowed by a 10-member search committee made up of students, faculty and administrators, according to OPI.

As dean of students, Vanin will be the chief advocate of undergraduate students in the administration which she said is a position she likes.

"I'm in higher education because I like to work with college students," she said. "I'm certainly going to be an advocate.

"If asked to draw the line," she said, "and suit up on one side or the other" she will work from the students' perspective as much as she can.

But being a black woman, she said, does not mean she is going to have automatic partiality towards either blacks or women.

"I'm not coming to serve or be targeted to any one population" of students, she said. "My professional commitment is going to be much broader than that."

"First of all I have to learn [about UMass]" she said, "I would see my first few months as creating networks and touching base" with students.

Vanin will bring a diverse and extensive educational and employment background with her to the University, according to University officials.

She received her Ph.D in counseling and child development from Bryn Mawr (Pa.) College, an MAT in English from Harvard and an AB in Latin also from Bryn Mawr.

In addition to Latin, Vanin said she is fluent in Italian.

Prior to her duties at Penn State, Vanin was an assistant dean at Bryn Mawr from 1970-1982 and an associate dean of the college from 1982-83.

Dr. Jo-Annne Vanin

Experts: fury over book inflamed by media coverage

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

Islamic experts said Friday that fury over Salman Rushdie's novel The Satanic Verses has been largely overblown and has been further inflamed by media treatment of the book and its author.

During a two-hour roundtable discussion of the book, held in Herter Hall, talks centered on the impact the novel has had on the American perceptions of Islamic people and the international rift the book is causing.

The Satanic Verses, was called a blasphemous attack on "Islam, the Prophet and the Koran" by Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who then sentenced the author, and everyone involved in publishing the book, to death. Rushdie's life is worth over $5 million to his executioner, the threat stated.

The panel agreed the American public has vastly overburdened the book with discussions and writings and have given it more attention than it deserves.

Professor Richard Bulliet, director of the Middle East Institute at Columbia University, feels the real problem concerning the book is its intimidation factor which has forced major book stores like Waldenbooks, B. Dalton, and Barnes & Noble to pull the work from their shelves for fear of terrorist action.

"American bookstores are allowing their stocking policies to be determined by intimidation. I think the unanimous feeling is that that is terrible," Bulliet said.

He said the intimidation is brought on by American hysteria over largely imagined images of terrorism. "It's highly unlikely bookstores would be bombed," Bulliet said.

He added the book may not be being read objectively because of conceptions perpetuated by the media that it actually is an attack on Islam and not a legitimate literary

continued on page 6

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

Richard Bulliet, director of Middle East Institute at Columbia University, speaks Friday at UMass.

Changing Islam may affect West

By MANOS STEFANAKOS and MONICA ROBERTO
Collegian Correspondents

The new, more fundamentalist Islam in the Persian Gulf area may influence change in the West's relations with that region, said a Columbia University professor who spoke Friday at the University of Massachusetts.

Richard Bulliet, director of the Middle East Institute at Columbia University, told an audience of 100 the movement in Islam occurring since World War II, which has gained international attention since 1979, is "a resurgence of fundamental ideals."

The lecture, "Past and Future of Islamic Movements," was part of a conference on "The Gulf: Political, Social and Economic Trends." The conference was co-sponsored by the department of Near Eastern Area Studies and the Committee on Community Policy at Smith College.

Bulliet said the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's extreme form of Shiite doctrine, and his unfavorable image in the world community, make other Moslem leaders "not want [Khomeini] as their leader."

He said that when Khomeini seized power, it was not an isolated incident, but "a continuum for religious

continued on page 6

Author: Racism, a deep-rooted disease

By BETH GATELY
Collegian Staff

Racism is a disease deeply rooted in the heart of America, a noted author said in a lecture Friday night at the University of Massachusetts.

Nathan Rutstein, author of To Be One, a book about a man's battle against racial prejudice, compared racism to alcoholism. "A great majority of people don't understand racism is a disease. They don't realize they have been infected and affected by it," he told about 40 people in the Campus Center.

He said people are implanted with the idea that blacks are relegated to the lower strata of society. "When a child is born, the first breath inhaled is the disease of racism."

Rutstein's lecture was the first event in a four-part series commemorating Black History Month sponsored by the UMass Baha'i Club and the Five-College Baha'i Association.

Rustein said Martin Luther King's dream of peace will become reality when people discover they have been poisoned by racism. "What he saw was real. I feel

continued on page 9

■ Becker-Grimshaw

continued from page 1

As Becker-Grimshaw was led out of the courtroom, advocates against the battering of women who were present throughout the two-week trial sat silently in the courtroom for at least 10 minutes.

Becker-Grimshaw's attorney, Nancy Gertner of Boston, vowed to appeal the conviction and the sentence, and one of the three jurors on the panel that convicted Becker-Grimshaw called the sentence, "a miscarriage of justice."

Gertner has contended that her client had suffered physical, mental, and sexual abuse by her husband Thomas Grimshaw, and that Becker-Grimshaw "believed she was in fear for her life and had no alternative."

But Assistant District Attorney Francis W. Bloom, who prosecuted the case, said during sentencing arguments that he believed Becker-Grimshaw pulled a "con job" on the jury with her tearful testimony.

Bloom recommended an 18 to 20-year sentence, saying any less would be a travesty.

Jury foreman Robert Loughbauer, one of three jurors in court Friday for the sentencing, said he came to "show support for leniency."

Loughbauer, one of more than 100 individuals who wrote letters to Superior Court Judge John Murphy asking for a light sentence, called the sentence "pretty severe" and "excessive."

Roth said she also wrote a letter to the judge asking for leniency for Becker-Grimshaw.

"When we think about these kinds of sentences being handed down, this is clearly a much harsher sentence. We have to look at the reasons why, and not kid ourselves about the answer," she said.

Lisa Becker-Grimshaw AP photo

Becker-Grimshaw still faces charges of conspiracy to murder, a spokeswoman for the district attorney's office said.

Roth said support for Becker-Grimshaw did not die with the sentencing. "A lot more support can take place," she said.

■ Duffey defends anthrax research

continued from page 1

The research is part of the U.S. Army Biological Defense Research Program. According to University officials, it's aim is finding a vaccine for the disease.

"The anthrax research conducted at the University poses no danger to the health or safety of the researchers, the University, or the local community," Duffey said in his statement. "The strain of anthrax used in [Professor Curtis Thorne's] research is non-virulent and non-infectious."

Bonifaz said the chancellor is "uninformed" on a government report, which confirms the research could be dangerous.

"We feel overall the statement is really unfortunate," Bonifaz said. "The Army itself admits there is possibility of an accident."

ASK US

Question: I've heard that using Vaseline as a lubricant with a condom is not safe. Is this true?

Answer: Yes, this is true, it is not safe to use Vaseline or other petroleum-based products in conjunction with condoms, since studies have shown they break down the structure of the latex material. Lubricating products that are safe to use in conjunction with condoms are KY and H-R Jellys (both of which are water based) along with various spermicides. Spermicides are highly recommended with the use of condoms because they provide additional protection against pregnancy. Spermicides which include Nonoxynol-9 are highly effective in reducing the transmission of sexually transmitted diseases. Health Services carries a variety of these products, which are available without a prescription and at a reduced price to students.

Question: What are some other forms of barrier protection in addition to condoms?

Answer: There are several types of barrier methods available in addition to condoms with spermicide. The diaphram is a strong latex cup with a flexible rim that is inserted into the vagina to completely cover the cervix. It must be fitted by a clinician for sizing and used with a spermicide at all times. Also, it must be inserted before sexual intercourse and left in for six to eight hours after. The cervical cap is another method and is very similar to the diaphram. It too must be prescribed and used with a spermicide jelly or cream. Finally, there is the vaginal contraceptive sponge. It does not need a prescription from a clinician and can be purchased over the counter. It is a soft round sponge that is placed over the cervix and is filled with spermicide. Consult a clinician before using a form of birth control you are not sure about.

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT
Print Shop
228 Triangle St., Amherst

AMHERST CINEMA
The Naked Gun
Two Shows 7 & 8:45
DOWNTOWN AMHERST 253-5000

HERE'S ONE COLLEGE MEMORY WE'LL HELP YOU FORGET.

If you're like a lot of people, your longest-lasting memory of college is the student loan you're still paying back. The Army has a solution, though: quality, sign up with us, and we'll sign off on your loan.

Each year you serve as a soldier, the Army will reduce your college debt by 1/3 or $1,500, whichever amount is greater. So after serving just 3 years, your government loan could be completely paid off.

You're eligible for this program if you have a National Direct Student Loan, or a Guaranteed Student Loan, or a Federally Insured Student Loan made after October 1, 1975. The loan must not be in default.

Get a clean slate, by erasing your college debt. Take advantage of the Army's Loan Repayment Program. Your local Recruiter can tell you if you qualify.

Northampton Army Office
241 King Street • 586-9334

ARMY.
BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

S · U · N
BARBADOS
for SPRING BREAK
THE PLACE TO BE

We have a brand new 7-bedroom mansion reserved for the UMASS spring break party of the year. Your party abode is located on the beach and includes a fully equipped kitchen, living room, 4 full bath rooms, and daily maid service. The Sandy Lane Golf Course and Sunset Crest Resort are both close neighbors. The 3 quads, 3 triples, and 1 double are given on a first come first serve basis so don't be late.

DATES:
JFK Departure: March 17, 18, 19
Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Departures
BOS Departure: March, Friday 17 - Friday 24

Quad, Triple, or Double Occupancy: $589
Occupancy is first come first serve
$559: VILLAS
$525: ON WATER LOCATION
$75 non-refundable for reservation
$25 security deposit required.
Full payment is need after February 9, 1989
Payments in guaranteed funds only!

$589

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union
545-3437
SEE US AT THE TABLE

Protestors in Amherst fight for S. American rainforests

By PATRICIA REGO
Collegian Correspondent

More than 50 people gathered on the Amherst Common yesterday to protest the construction of five dams that would destroy 3,000 square miles of South American rainforests.

Leslie Griffin, a member of the Rainforest Action Group (RAG) which hosted the vigil, said, "We are here in solidarity for the Indians of Brazil."

B.J. Cummings, a member of RAG, spent last summer in Brazil with the Kayapo Indians, whose homes are in danger because of the dam.

"The Kayapo are becoming a real political force," Cummings said. "The are very aware of what's going on. They recognize that their survival depends on the rainforest.

The six proposed dams would be located on the Xingu River, an Amazon tributary that runs through Kayapo reserves. The World Bank offered $500 million in financing to the electricity sector in Brazil. The Bank has delayed permanently approving the loan until May. The planned dams are part of a proposed hydroelectric network in the Amazon that is eventually to include more than two dozen dams.

Cummings said two Indians, Paiakan and Kube-i, who spoke out against the government's construction of the dams without notifying the Indians were arrested last year. The two Indians have said the Brazilian government is carrying out huge projects in their territory without consulting Indians and without notifying them of construction plans.

Last July, an American anthropologist, Darrel Posey, who was living with the Kayapo was arrested for translating the words of the Kayapo Indians in Washington D.C. while they asked for help in stopping construction.

Posey was charged with interfering in Brazil's domestic affairs because he is a foreigner. The two Kayapo were also charged with the same crime, although they are Brazilians. Charges for the three have recently been dropped in appeals court.

Cummings said the Kayapo have asked for support in opposing the dam. "Recently Amazon Indians from different tribes have built a village on the dam site which 3,000 Indians will live," she said.

"The Kayapo feel successfully around this rallying point and have evacuated the village because of threats and because they have initiated a strong political stance against the government," Cummings said.

Bart Bouricious, a member of RAG, said rainforests covers six percent of the earth's land and two-thirds of all plants and animal species are in the rainforest.

"80,000 square miles of rainforest were destroyed this year. This year the rainforest cut and burned in Brazil has been about the size of Maine," Bouricious said.

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

People demonstrate in the center of Amherst yesterday to save the South American rainforests.

For Your Information

For Your Information is a service of the Collegian to its readers. Because of a lack of space, not all press releases can be included in FYI. For more information, contact David at the Collegian, at 545-3500.

Rush
A rush has been scheduled by Delta Zeta sorority for today at 5:45 p.m. For more information, contact Ellen LaChance at 253-9916.

Lecture
The first of three lectures to be delivered by Smith College professor Charles V. Hamilton, "Dual Agenda: Social Policies of Civil Rights Organizations, New Deal to the Present," is scheduled for tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Wright Hall at the college. For more information, contact Debra Bradley at 585-2190.

Support Group
A support therapy group for cancer patients, their family and friends is beginning in Amherst. The first of eight weekly sessions is scheduled for tomorrow. The sessions will be led by Margaret Gosselin, MPS, and Albey Reiner, Ph.D, of the Cancer Counseling Center of Amherst. For more information, call 549-7776 or 545-0087.

Support Group
For separated and divorced men. The group will be meeting in Northampton from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays, beginning this month. For more information, contact David Arbeitman at 527-5911.

Support Group
P-FLAG, Pioneer Valley Support Group for parents, families, friends of lesbians and gays, meets at 7:30 p.m. the second Tuesday of every month in the Grace Episcopal Church Parish Hall in Amherst. For more information, contact Jean M.B. Genasci at 532-4883.

Census Information
The annual town census is now underway by mail in Amherst. All forms must be returned by March 1. For more information, contact Cornelia Como at 253-9382.

Escort Service
The Department of Public Safety offers a nightly escort service to all points on campus. The service runs from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. For more information, call 545-2123.

Fax Service
The Campus Center Hotel now offers Fax service to the University community, as well as a Telex service. Documents to be faxed are to be brought to the Hotel Reservations office on the third floor of the Campus Center from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Payment may be made directly or by using departmental purchase orders. For more information, contact the service at 549-6000, ext. 7535.

Now get copies as colorful as your imagination.
COLOR!

- Create full 4-color, high-quality reproductions of color photos, 35mm film, or any color document.
- Change colors and create entirely new images.
- Reduce or enlarge images from 50% to 400%.
- Get customized, full-color copies for all your business needs, whether you're in real estate, advertising, or graphic design.
- Ideal for all your personal color copying needs.

AMHERST COPY CORNER
37 East Pleasant St. · Amherst · 549-2854

This Saturday!
FEBRUARY 25th 1989
Killington VERMONT

add $10 FOR NON-MEMBERS
$32 FOR MEMBERS

PRESENTED BY UMASS SKI CLUB
LAGNAF
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG
545-3437
Tues. — Thurs.
Campus Concourse

■ new Islam

continued from page 3

leaders who want to become players in the future of their country." Bulliet said he sees religion becoming an ever-present part of politics in the Gulf area, and warned that unless the West "changes its view on Islamic leaders," the West's influence in the region will be curtailed.

After Bulliet's lecture, Eric Hoogland, director of the Iran Revolution Documentation Project at the National Security Archives in Washington, said the Reagan administration's foreign policy concerning the gulf region has taken "seemingly contradictory stances during the Iran-Iraq War."

Hoogland, speaking on the "Past and Future of Islamic Movements," said the policy changes were a result of "ambiguous, vacillating policies set by the gulf nations."

■ Islamic expert criticizes media

continued from page 3

work depicting struggle between a man and his faith.

The death threat, Bulliet said, is not a realistic possibility when you consider the position it puts the assassin into.

He said the assassin would have to kill Rushdie, escape from the scene of the crime and the country into Iran, publically announce himself to be Rushdie's murderer, prove it and then agree never to leave that country again for the rest of your life, or else be arrested anywhere else in the world.

The threat, he said, makes headlines and they in turn cause fear in the world outside of Islam. Fear of Khomeini.

"This issue is an offshoot of the incredible demonization that has taken place of the person of Ayatollah Khomeini in the American popular mind," Bulliet said.

Director of the Southwest Asia and Islamic Civilization program at Tufts University, Andrew Hess, said the fallout from the hyped-up media attention is probably causing greater division between Iran and the Western world.

"It [the book] has been treated in the media as inflaming the whole Islamic world, which has affected diplomatic difficulties," Hess said.

Hess said reaction to the book in places like Egypt has been muted.

Afsaneh Najmabadi, a lecturer at Harvard Divinity School, said the threat is meant as a long-term message to Islamic people that they should not speculate or contemplate about writing critically about the Islamic aspect of their own culture," Najmabadi said.

"It will probably be decades before anyone else would dare to write about one's own Islamic heritage," she said.

BUDGET TRAVEL CENTER

Cheapest Fares to
• EUROPE
• ASIA
• AUSTRALIA
• NEW ZEALAND

LONDON FRANKFURT PARIS ZYRICH TOKYO AMSTERDAM AUCKLAND HONG KONG

Plus railpasses international student ID tours and much more Ask for our free travel catalog

COUNCIL TRAVEL
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

Copies Half Off After 100

After your first 100 copies of a single sheet original, the rest are half price at Kinko's the copy center

kinko's the copy center

220 N Pleasant St.
253-2543

Auto Glass Center
SAME DAY SERVICE
BILLED DIRECTLY TO INSURANCE CO.
WINDSHIELDS REPLACED
North Amherst Motors
79 Old Sunderland Rd. • 549-2980
No. Amherst
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

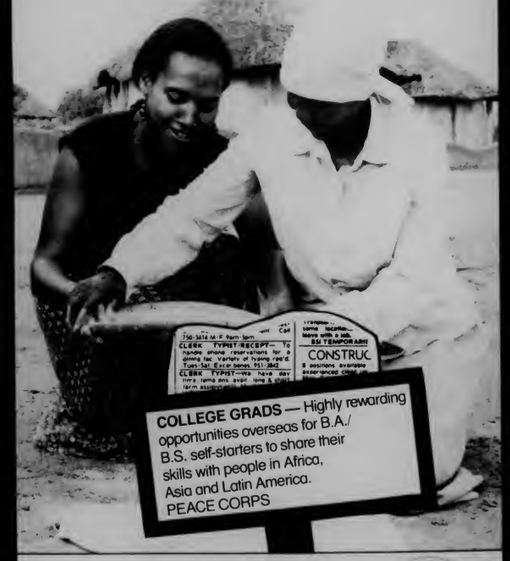
La Cucina di PINOCCHIO
PIZZA & SUBS
FREE DELIVERY
(limited delivery area)
1177 N. Pleasant St.
N. Amherst
Coupons valid for delivery or pick up only
549-3669

Monday, Tuesday & Wednesday Night Special Coupon
LARGE CHEESE PIZZA
$5.50 plus tax
Not Valid with any other special • Valid only on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday • Valid in Amherst location • Valid only by phone

Shhh...
it's a secret.
ENJOY UNCROWDED SKIING AND GREAT SAVINGS
Present this coupon and take $6.00 off the price of an all day adult mid-week ticket at Maple Valley Ski Area. Valid any Tues.-Fri. except 2/18 – 2/26/89. Not good with any other offer. 1 coupon per person required.
"Best Kept Secret in Vermont"
MAPLE VALLEY SKI AREA
802-254-6083
P.O. BOX 5 • WEST DUMMERSTON, VT • 05357
0651

DOVE Business Associates, Inc.
Dove Business Associates, Inc.
• FAST ACCURATE WORD PROCESSING
• RESUMES
• LETTERS
• THESIS
• DISSERTATIONS
• TERM PAPERS
• TEMPORARY OFFICE PERSONNEL
• COMPLETE LINE OF SECRETARIAL SERVICES
• BOOKKEEPING
• MAILINGS
Dove Business Management Services
• Complete Services for Small Businesses
79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
256-1335 • 253-7480
Also New Offices at
90 Conz St. Northampton, MA
585-5127

PEACE CORPS SERVICE:
A Good Career Move



COLLEGE GRADS — Highly rewarding opportunities overseas for B.A./B.S. self-starters to share their skills with people in Africa, Asia and Latin America.
PEACE CORPS

TONIGHT
Film & Information Session
7:30 Stockbridge 114
PEACE CORPS
9C3

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

What's the secret behind mail-order get rich schemes?

I'm going to be rich soon. Or, at least, so says Mr. John Wright.

I have seen this guy's advertisement in numerous magazines with this headline: "You can make up to ONE MILLION DOLLARS IN 9 MONTHS GUARANTEED!" For only $12.95 he will let you and I in on a marvelous money making secret which he has discovered.

Bob Bobala

Mr. Wright's advertisement is a letter to all of us in need of money. He begins by saying how not long ago he was $31,000 in debt, evicted from his apartment, and staying at his cousin's house. But now, things have changed for him. He owns four homes in Southern California. He has a brand new Mercedes and a Cadillac, and a million dollar credit line. In short, he has "made one million dollars in 9 months."

And how has he done this? Well, that's what he wants us to send him $12.95 for. He has discovered a great secret about making money which he documents in his Royal Road to Riches. He'll send us this wonderful secret purely out of the goodness of his own heart. "I already have all the money and possessions I'll ever need. . . . [Nothing is more satisfying to me than sharing my secret only with those who realize a golden opportunity and get on it quickly," he writes. Of course, one must wonder, if this man is so generous that he wants to share this great secret with us, why is he charging us $12.95 for the information?

Does he give us a hint of what this great secret might be? No. But he tells us what it's not. "This has nothing to do with door-to-door selling, telephone solicitation, real estate or anything else that involves personal contact." I'll never have to talk to anyone again and I can still become rich. A dream come true.

Furthermore, "you can do it at home in your spare time. . . . You can use this secret to make money if you live in a big city or on a farm or anywhere in between." Well, personally, I would like to become rich while living an isolated life in a log cabin, hidden deep in the Rocky Mountains.

"This secret will change your life . . . It will give you everything you need and will solve all your money problems." I'm dropping out of school after this semester. What do I need a degree for?

The ad ends with a money back guarantee (plus he'll send you $20.00 free) for those who, by freak chance, do not "solve all your money problems with this secret (in just 30 days)." We have nothing to lose. Thanks to this man we can wipe out poverty. John Wright is America's savior.

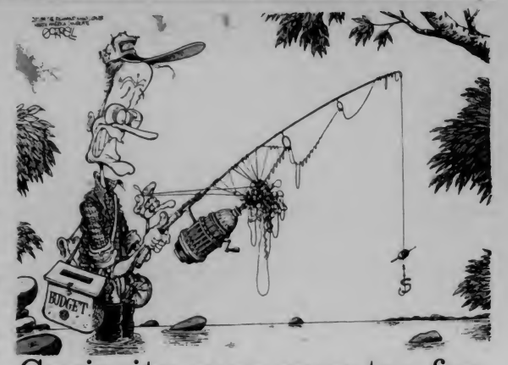
Every time I see this ad I get bent out of shape. Just the fact that the ad still runs all the time must mean that people actually send him money. So I've sent him my $12.95. I can't stand it anymore. I have to find out what he's trying to pull. I'm going to nail him for mail fraud, or whatever other scam he's running.

Mr. Wright is trying to rope us in by saying he can offer us the American Dream: something for nothing. He offers us everything we want so badly in this world. "You will be master of your own time and fate and nobody can boss you around. . . . You will have more time to spend with loved ones and you will be able to take care of them in emergencies. . . . Most of all, you will finally have PEACE OF MIND."

And he backs it all up with several statements from "people who have put this amazing secret into use and gotten all the money they ever desired." Of course, their "initials have been used in order to protect their privacy," but he has "full information and the actual proof of their success in [his] files."

Well, Mr. Wright, I've sent you my $12.95. Please send me your wonderful secret and my peace of mind. And I'll be in touch. I guarantee it.

Bob Bobala is a Collegian columnist



Curiosity gone way too far

An attractive woman in Costa Mesa California contemplates life as a mortgage broker. She is single. Lonely. Maybe she even likes baseball. She decides there's a distinct void in her life — so she settles on having an affair with a married father of two, one of America's most successful and popular baseball players.

Alise Harfield

This broker is no fool. Not only is she less lonely for 4 years (forget the fact she only sees him when he's playing on the road, she does get to travel to lots of cities), she realizes this red-headed Red Sock is quite wealthy.

She decides that as his mistress, his provider of diversion on those tough, long and lonely road trips away from his wife and kids; she too deserves to be rich. So she "comes clean" of the affair, suing him for a cool million, defaming him, his team, his wife, his kids.

but then, this broker decides a pending 6 million is not enough to heal her wounds. He isn't embarrassed enough. The public hasn't been fully satiated of quips from his private life, his sexual appetite, his unfaithfulness.

Money, apparently, begets money.

So, respectable woman as she is, she decides to sell to yet an even more respectable magazine racist and sexually offensive tales for $100,000 to hold her over 'til the big bucks roll in. Now with an overzealous curiousity, th epublic gets to hear what Wade Boggs says to his respectable, discreet broker about his teammates, their sexual appetites (his wasn't enough for us), their morals, their being caught in a hotel rom with a stripper. Interesting stuff, huh?

Oh, and if the hundred grand weren't enough, she settles on selling the same magazine "sensational nude pictures" of herself and more "sizzling locker-room intrigue". Pin money.

This broker will now walk happily away from Wade Boggs, her new fortune will erase her "anger" at being his second fiddle. The teammates will think twice about who to trust there in the dugout, what to say and how to act. The wives, for sure, will have a lot to say. And, perhaps Wade will have learned his lesson.

That leaves the rest of us who just got to read about it.

We the public got yet another window through which to scrutinize, and judge , a man's private life just because he happens to be a public figure. A respected athlete who became an adulterer, and an alleged racist. But an athlete just the same.

An athlete. Not a preacher, not a politician. He is a man we watch after a long day of work or on a lazy Sunday for entertainmennt (baseball — the American sport). Not for religion. Not for politics. For leisure. He does not preach morals, then spend a surruptitious evening in a hotel with a prostitute. He does not seek a Democratic nomination, then sail away with a model. All he ever does is provide us with the most bat-and-ball contact this city, this country, has seen in a long time.

And we fans love that, don't we?

But still we have to judge. Forget his awesome batting average, his defensive play at third base. Who cares about that now? NOW there's better stuff to say about Wade. Don't get me wrong — judging is often necessary. We should take into consideration the morals of those we vote for, those who preach to us. Politicians and evangelists are not players of games we watch on TV for entertainment.

But baseball is. Sporting events are. And an athlete's personal life should have no bearing on one of the few institutions we Americans have, until now, thought of as pure fun.

Alise Harfield is a Collegian columnist

Bookstores' right to choose

On Friday, February 24th, the Collegian Board of Editor's editorial informed us that the unwillingness of bookstores to sell Salman Rushdie's "The Satanic Verses" was an infringement of our First Amendment rights. The editors said; "...these bookstores, which so eagerly reaped the profits of the First Amendment, are now equally eager to take away the very thing that benefited them in the past."

What the editors are implying is that bookstores, must sell books of a specific type, especially those which are controversial. This public mandating on how businesses should dispose of their funds, is a violation of Constitutional private property rights.

In addition, the First Amendment does not require for those who want to speak, the means to speak. If I wanted to express my views on a speaker system accross UMass, would my First Amendment rights be violated if the speaker system was not paid for by UMass? No. Also, are we to feel violated that the "Food For Thought Bookstore" probably doesn't carry William F. Buckley? No.

Kirk Merrow
Gorman, UMass

Adapting to this weather takes more than a minute

There is an old saying that goes "If you don't like the weather in New England, wait a minute and it will change."

Well, I've been waiting, and so far I haven't seen any change. Just when I thought I had this whole weather bit figured out, this happens.

They give us a winter without snow.

How can this be? Just about every place in the entire northern hemisphere has been hit by the wonderful, white wet stuff this year except the Pioneer Valley. Well, you can't count that one snowfall about a month ago that disappeared the next day when it was 60 degrees. Or the occasional flurries that have similarly gone by the wayside as fast as they came in.

And there was that snowstorm that nailed the rest of the east coast on Friday. Twenty inches in New Jersey, 10 on Cape Cod, six in Boston — but none here in balmy Amherst.

No snow. New England. Strange stuff.

Of course, everyone has a theory as to what's going on. Scientists blame the greenhouse effect, brought to you by America's factories which have clouded the atmosphere. Thus comes a gradual warming trend which will someday give New York City a climate similar to Fort Lauderdale (but I still couldn't imagine anyone wanting to vacation in the Big Apple — sorry, folks).

Of course, this doesn't take into account the fact that it was in the 30s in Florida on Friday. Still, it's a viable theory. Surely those in the know have done their homework, but it seems that the change is a little drastic for that particular belief to hold much water. Plus, it's been pretty damn cold at times this year, so signs don't point to us whipping out the Bermuda shorts and Vuarnets at Christmas time in the immediate future.

Jim Clark

Cold. As usual. But no snow.

Weird.

So if it's not the greenhouse effect, then what is going on?

Maybe it's just a freak of nature. Or maybe history was just a freak of nature, all two billion years of it, and this is the way things are supposed to be.

Nah, that seems a little silly. There's got to be some sort of explanation. Something simple.

How about the new Presidential administration? Dan Quayle — everyone loves to blame everything on him. Gotta be his fault. Ever since he was elected, no snow. Dan Quayle, everyone's favorite scapegoat. Gotta be.

Or how about Salman Rushdie? He's the hot commodity now, but he's got enough problems. We won't pin this on him, too.

Margo Adams. Since she's been in the news since last July, maybe Mother Nature thought that it was still baseball season, and just skipped right over winter.

Whatever you might think, all I know is that we as Americans have been deprived of the joys of the winter months — skating, sledding, skiing on real snow, throwing it down each others' backs, skidding off the road into trees, all those things we cherish.

Sorry, but I don't miss the stuff one bit.

Jim Clark is a Collegian columnist who went outdoors last night to find his car covered. Oh well, I guess I should have known.

Townspeople band together against hunters

MONTEREY (AP) — Whoever gave Sophie, a Belgian draft horse, a rear end full of buckshot inadvertently triggered the sort of town-wide protest that has spread throughout western Massachusetts.

Sophie's shooting in 1985, possibly by a hunter that her owner had shooed off the horse's backyard pasture, has caused townspeople to rally against a rash of violations by out-of-town nimrods.

"At the time I was too busy making sure my horse survived to think much about it," said Ellen Pearson, Sophie's owner. "But then several people in town called and said, 'This is it, and since it was your horse that was shot, you head the committee.'"

Since Sophie's recovery, a handful of other small towns have banded together against careless and sometimes hostile hunters to remind them of the laws concerning trespassing. The townspeople have formed associations to post no-trespassing signs and demand that hunters obtain written permission before setting foot on their land.

The Monterey association was not the first in western Massachusetts, but it has become one of the strongest because of animal injuries.

"Another woman there had her dog killed because she refused a hunter permission to hunt on her land," said Tyringham selectman Mary Hale.

The Monterey group, in fact, borrowed its bylaws from the Tyringham association, which Hale helped organize 14 years ago after seeing one too many strangers show up on her property, gun in hand.

"We've had some people come on our land and tell us to get off the land," Hale said. "They've pointed guns at us. One man we found in a stand on a tree. He was from out of town, so we asked him to come down and identify himself. When he came down, the safety went off and the gun went off, almost killing someone."

Hale estimated that 95 percent of the 380 people who live in the town belong to the association.

"They don't mind people hunting. Most of our members enjoy hunting themselves. They just wanted to know who was wandering around their land, whether they were sober or drunk."

Under the Tyringham rules, members may hunt on one another's land. All others must get written permits from landowners that they are required to post on their windshields and carry on them while hunting.

"You know it's successful because we're not having fences cut, animals hurt, the number of people who used to invade the town," Hale said.

Townspeople in Sandisfield, New Marlboro, Hancock, and Alford also have joined the movement with their own bylaws.

Among other recent incidents, Hale said two people riding horseback in Sandisfield were shot at last fall, possibly by a hunter, and a truck owned by a Dover man was hit with bullets in Great Barrington last year.

And in the most tragic case, a 71-year-old Wibrahim grocer was killed in his backyard in 1986 by a stray shot from a hunter. An inquest into the death determined it was an accident and no criminal negligence was involved.

Alcohol-related accidents and problems involving inexperienced hunters are not as common as many believe, officials from the state Department of Wildlife and Fisheries contend. "There are some bad apples. But on the whole, the hunters we see are sober and careful," one official told The Berkshire Eagle.

Steve Williams, a deer biologist with the department, noted that hunting restrictions may result in an increase of the deer population, rising deer diseases, and many more nuisance reports.

charlie's

1 Pray St., Amherst--549-5403 • Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week • Cal. for Take Out
Kitchen Open till midnight

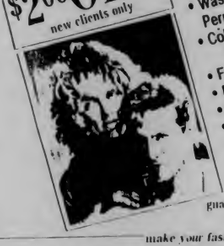
New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables

Tonight 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
9:00 PM - 12:00 AM

Jameson Irish Coffee $1.75 Drink of the Week
Moosehead $1.75 Beer of the Month

FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Tues. 10¢ Buffalo Wings 9-12
Wed. 99¢ Nacho & Cheese Platters 9-12
Sunday 4 Burger Platters for $5.00 6-10

$2.00 OFF new clients only



Chic Cuts
• Wash + Wear
• Perms, Body Waves
• Coloring and Dimensional Highlighting
• Facial Waxing
• Manicure
• Facials
• Body Wraps
• "Wolff" Tanning
Expires 2/28/89

We offer a 100% money back guarantee on all of our hair care products
•Redken •Nexus •Paul Mitchell

make your fashion statement
Styles By Deborah
65 University Dr., Amherst
549-5610

COMING SOON
Murray D's

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY

Why More?

The UMASS Ski Club invites you to Montego Bay, Jamaica, West Indies. We will be staying in the Towers at the Seawinds Resort where all your Spring Break needs are directly below. We are next to the beach, pool, evening entertainment, tennis courts, and the hottest night club in the bay. Located five minutes from town, this resort has, at your disposal, water sports, sunbathing, and an array of restaurants and bars. Don't be lured by low-budget, problem-filled tear-offs that, in the end, turn to rip-offs. WE PROVIDE GUARANTEED RESERVED ACCOMMODATIONS AND FLIGHTS! Spend $9 a day more and step above the rest on your own vacation island!

A VACATION SHOULD BE A PLEASURE—NOT A HASSLE!
LAGNAF
BECAUSE IT'S WORTH IT

Mar. 18 - Mar. 25 • $569 per person from JFK
All Prices are Inclusive—No Hidden Extras
Double & Triple Occupancy Rates Available

Presented By UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

BLACK AFFAIRS

The black experience in Britain:

The historical dimension

Collegian file photo
Prof. Stephen Small

By Stephen Small
Special to the Collegian

The following is the third in a series of articles to provide a historical analysis of blacks in Britain and their relationship to blacks America.

It doesn't make much sense to attempt an understanding of the black experience in this country without some knowledge of slavery, Jim Crow segregation and the ,migration from the south.

Similarly, it makes little sense to look at blacks in England without some knowledge of their past. And over there, black history is shaped as much by the British Empire, as it is by our presence in England itself.

Slavery in England did not occur on plantations; it happened in the manors and mansions of the aristocracy.

The most distinctive aspect of this history is the unity we created in England, and with blacks in America and Africa, to achieve our common goals. Regardless of the personal threats to themselves, blacks came together and joined their brothers and sisters throughout the diaspora to demand freedom. In this respect, the history of blacks in England and America is inextricably entwined.

Blacks have been in England since Roman times but little is known about their activities except that they commanded soldiers and often held high positions. From the 1550s, blacks became more widely reported in England and by 1596 had even caught the attention of Queen Elizabeth I. She issued a proclamation demanding their extradition because they were "infidels" and the country was facing economic pressures. Blacks probably watched Shakespeare's plays, and who knows how much the character of Othello was shaped by their presence!

Blacks ended up in Britain as slaves, and they went as sailors. They went direct from Africa, but others first experienced the atrocities of slavery in the sugar colonies And many went on the losing side of the British after the American Revolution. The black community had many dimensions. Paupers and beggars, servants and domestics, students and scholars, and even the companions and escorts of royalty. Yet all suffered the adversities of racial hostility.

The black contribution to the wealth of the British Empire has been well documented. The city of Liverpool consisted of a few huts until its involvement in slavery made it the biggest port in the country. But black influence on English life and political culture is less well known.

Most blacks in England were free. At their peak in 1715 the black population was estimated to number 15,000. Most of the slaves were personal servants and status symbols to the nobility. There were no plantations and most of the agricultural work was done by poor whites.

Though their numbers were never large, their presence gave rise to considerable controversy. James Somersett was brought to England as a slave. He escaped and upon being recaptured his master tried to return him to the West Indies. The noted abolitionist, Granville Sharp, got involved in the case and in 1772 Lord High Chief Justice Mansfield returned a decision that no person could forcibly be removed from English soil. It was interpreted as the abolition of slavery, but in fact many blacks continued to be held in bondage until the institution was abolished throughout the British Empire in 1838.

Blacks had been an active influence on the Mansfield decision. They continually offered resistance and fled their masters, seeking refuge in the small but cohesive communities of blacks in England's ports. Together they helped each other, offered mutual comfort and support, and struggled to end slavery everywhere.

Blacks were also found in the highest courts of the land. Olaudah Equiano, Ottobah Cuguano, Ignatius Sancho and Job Ben Soloman were highly educated blacks that moved in high circles Though they frequented the courts of

> A people without a knowledge of their history and culture is like a tree without roots.
> – Marcus Garvey

the aristocracy they never lost sight of their brothers and sisters. All active campaigners against slavery, speaking at meetings, writing books and inspiring others. Their fight did not end with abolition; they campaigned for racial equality in America and against the double injustices black women faced and became a heroine as a nurse in the Crimean war. Other blacks, too, were part of the English working class struggle in the Chartist movement, and in the formation of trade unions.

As blacks united, a network was extended across the Atlantic and a warm welcome offered. Phyllis Wheatly, Frederick Douglass and Booker T. Washington all visited England. In the 1890's the indefatigable W.E.B. Du Bois went to England. At the turn of the century Marcus Garvey found his way way there too. And in the 1930s Jomo Kenyatta, Kwame Nkrumah and Julius Nyerere - each of whom later became the leader of an African nation - came together in the Pan-African Congress for African liberation.

Although few people know much about it, blacks in England began a tradition of sustained resistance to injustice. From those in the most abject poverty to the richest and educated, blacks came together in common purpose and with united spirit. Through political activity they forged international links that reverberated throughout the British Empire. Though spread throughout the diaspora they used innovation and ingenuity to stay alive and to sustain our community.

In contemporary America, as well as in England, we would do well to learn from the heroism and solidarity of our forebears. Those who went beyond our differences to demand and defend the interests of black people as a community.

Next week we look at the trials and tribulations of blacks as post-war immigrants.

The author is a member of the sociology department. He teaches courses on comparative class and racial inequality.

■ lecture

continued from page 3

there will come a day when his dream will be realized," he said.

Rutstein said we try to create peace, but do not promote unity.

Rutstein said laws are passed to eradicate discrimination and segregation, symptoms of racism, but these laws can be circumvented.

"The greatest stumbling block is racism in society," he said. "If Dr. King were alive today, his heart would ache.'

Rutstein said the first step in overcoming racism, like alcoholism, is discovering the infection and the need for help. "It's a painful process, ridding oneself of this disease, but it must be done, and not alone."

He said it will be a tough journey, but "the truth shall make you free. There's no growth without pain."

Rutstein suggested UMass try a racism anonymous program similar to the program Williams College has set up on a trial basis. The program at Williams is designed similar to the 12-step Alcoholics Anonymous.

Rutstein compared the uniqueness of human beings to the individuality of each grain of sand on a beach. "No two people are alike, yet we're all members of the human family."

He said people must also realize we are all related. "We are all at least 50th cousins. Scientists and cultural anthropologists only now are realizing this." This "unification of humankind" is also essential for peace, he said.

"As the poison disappears," he said, "we will see things not seen before, hear things not heard before and feel things not felt before. A black man and a white man will make eye contact and the oneness of humankind will be realized."

Franklin pays tribute to Du Bois

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman
John Hope Franklin relaxes before delivering a lecture here Thursday.

By Paulette Person
Collegian Correspondent

Last Thursday, Feb. 23 approximately 200 people gathered in Memorial Hall to hear a lecture entitled "W.E.B. Du Bois: A personal memoir," presented by John Hope Franklin.

The lecturer began his lecture by saying, "the few number of people who can say that they know W.E.B. Du Bois is becoming fewer." Franklin, an admirer of Du Bois focused his lecture on his interpretation of Du Bois as a person and his relationship with Du Bois.

According to Franklin, Du Bois devoted his his life to improving the quality of life for blacks. Du Bois spoke at many colleges and often analyzed the education of black students in conjunction with Negro institutions.

Franklin quoted Du Bois as saying "all [Negro] colleges and universities should, above all, be founded on the knowledge of black people in Africa and America."

Franklin concluded his lecture by saying "There will come a time when people will ask who Du Bois is, [and] they will know." Chancellor Joseph Duffey and Director of the State office of Tourism Deborah First had earlier announced plans to turn his [Du Bois] Great Barrington homesite into a memorial and tourist site.

A reception was held after the lecture and guests had the opportunity to admirer the archives written by Du Bois that were on display.

Amherst hosts black business conference

By THOMAS MAMBANDE
Collegian Staff

Saturday the Black Business Association of Amherst College (BBAAC) held a leadership seminar, entitled "Living Beyond The Dream ".

Angela Reddock, who acted as a coordinator of the event, said that "The purpose of this seminar is to provide a forum in which Black students can come together and discuss challenges and issues we must face in our career choices."

The seminar consisted of workshops on topics of education, politics,business and economics and medicine. Workshops were hosted by prominent Black educators including Professor Rhonda Cobham-Sander, Dr. Richard Sims, and Mulazzimuddin Rasool. Featured as the keynote speaker was Walter Fauntroy, Chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and democratic congressional representative from Washington D.C.

The day began with an arrival/registration session which took place from 9-10 a.m. From 10 a.m. until 10:30 a Briefing session took place, followed by a film "Beyond The Dream". Between 11:30 and 12:45 , Professor Cobham, who teaches English at Amherst College, lectured on "Living Beyond The Dream In Education". Also during the same time period Dr. Richard Simms, who is an Alumnus of Amherst College and who is now a professor at the University of Pennsylvania specializing in Geriatrics, lectured on "Living Beyond The Dream in the Medical Field".

Between 1:00 and 2:00 there was a luncheon, and then afterwards Mulazzimuddin Rasool facilitated a workshop entitled "Living Beyond The Dream in Politics". He is a graduate student at UMass specializing in Instructional Leadership and Staff Development. Culminating the day's events, Walter Fauntroy spoke on the challenges facing Blacks in the world market. Fauntroy is the fourth ranking member of the House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee. Urban issues and the impact of foreign investors on U.S. businesses were the key areas focused on in his talk.

WRITE FOR BLACK AFFAIRS

Come down to 113 Campus Center and talk to Joe Hill or Thomas Mambande, or call 545-3500.

ARTS & LIVING

Dusk brings a new dimension to dance theatre

By ANDREA HARTMAN
Collegian Correspondent

Last Friday and Saturday night, two fascinating dance theatre works under the title "Dusk" were performed at the East Street Theatre in Northampton. These shows were startling, unique and made the viewer feel uncomfortable and intrigued at the same time.

The show was not the typical kind of dance or theatre that most people are used to, but it was movement theatre which has its origins in all areas of human nature. The scenery, costumes and music held as much importance as the movement of the dancers in conveying moods and themes. The actions of the dancers were a combination of gestures and mimes that were both agile and purposefully awkward. Most of the actions and materials appeared very symbolic and their meanings were at times mysteriously secret and obscure.

The show's director, Paula Josa-Jones from Boston, also performed in the first work; a fact which is unusual in itself. Her sources of influence have included methods of German Expressionism and Asian dance and drama.

When developing a new work Josa-Jones takes an idea and "nourishes it through a long process of exploration, reading, digging deeplt into personal history, and finally risk-taking vocal and movement improvisation with the company.

The first performance was "Anima Motrix" which means "moving spirit." The sparse set by Meredith Davis contained only long, hanging strips of material. The music, written by Glenn Branca and the scenery both created an eerie, unsettling feeling.

Josa-Jones and Elizabeth Witham were the two dancers who entranced the viewer through their jerky, primitive convulsions and swayings . Josa-Jones in a patterned robe, weaved slowly through the grove of material while Witham with painted skin and a mask, rose and fell from a pile of fabric on the floor. All at once the figures started to move together, and the drum beats in the background, combined with their movements, resembled an ancient tribal dance.

The second and longer piece, "At the Edge of the Garden" was performed by four dancers: Scott deLahunta, Pamela Newell, Mark O. Pugh and Elizabeth Witham. Josa-Jones described this work as "a surreal excursion back and forth across the boundary between wilderness and civilisation." The set contained bare trees, piles of dead leaves, four wood chairs draped with clothing and a cabbage.

The actions of the figures were at times blunt and near-violent. Bodies slammed to the floor, struggled, groped and pushed the others about. The dancers' aggressiveness contrasted with the loose and playful qualities of their actions at other points. the audience was charmed and amused by the antics of the two figures as they struggled over strips of colored rags.

The costumes of the dancers constantly changed, and for some time they wore no costumes at all. The nudity might have shocked or even horrified some viewers, but somehow it was relative to the context of the work.

The background sounds for this piece included voices chanting, bells gonging, and birds chirping, and were provided by Michael William Gilbert, Uatki, Gabrielle Roth and Harry Parch.

The two works were not narratives, but patterns of images moving together.

My intent is to make performance works which challenge assumptions . . . the performer becomes part of the continuum of the dance, not its sole focus," said Josa-Jones.

The final impression of the visual strangeness of the works probably differed among viewers, but a sense of questioning was most likely a common element.

Galaxie are more than shooting stars

By JASON TALERMAN
Collegian Staff

The Buffalo Tom exodus took me to Boston on Saturday for a show at the Rat with Galaxy 500 and BALL. Yes, I expand my radius to the swamp that is the Back Bay to enjoy one of the finer things in life, a good Boston rock show. At the risk of sounding like one of those heinous WBCN inspired fanzines, there is no doubt in my mind that Boston is running neck and neck with Seattle down the road to Egypt-like status. Pyramids will be constructed. Giant stone monuments constructed for the celebration of rock. The sweat of 100,000 slaves. You get the picture. This stuff is important to me. It must be, because I missed LSU bury UNLV at the buzzer just to breathe carbon monoxide on the Mass Pike in a mutant '75 Chevy Impala for two hours. I hate UNLV. Any team that would fire up around a coach that releases his bad mental energy by ripping apart towels with his 65 year old teeth just does not indicate good things about America's selection process for role models.

At any rate I got home just in time to see Sherman Douglas go nine for fourteen on alley oops against the largely disoriented Kentucky Wildcats. A lot prettier site than watching Boston rock guru Billy Ruaine nearly choke himself with his own tie while exulting the praises of Buffalo Tom (see photo), but no less exciting. The former gets the blood flowing while the latter curdles it. No matter, I'll take my kicks wherever I can. One of those places is at any Buffalo Tom show, anywhere. So as I don't dish out the praise too freely, I'll try to be a little bit practical. They played a short set, and still went away with a lot of crowd support. They have definitely got their feet under them and are on the way to bigger, more national appeal. Now, if those freaks out in Lawndale would only put out that record. They played for only about 40 minutes and preempted many songs from the album in favor of new material. Rock success is definitely parabolic in growth. Good people can definitely smell a good thing coming down the road. Buffalo Tom could do no wrong, even for a mainly Galaxie 500, mainly mellow crowd.

Galaxie 500 signifies good things for me. they are the first good band to come out of Harvard since the Modern Lovers. It's about time Harvard gives us something in return for making them the pillars of society. I don't care about all that science crap that flows out of that place, I care about two things: hard rock and college basketball. They play like you'd expect a Harvard band to play. Good, heady, rootsy post punk. It might not be fair to call them a combination of the Cowboy Junkies and the Velvet Underground but I've got this wierd honest streak in me. I just can't shield my thoughts. Their set showed a lot more maturity than their recent debut album. The record, Today on Aurora seems a little hurried but it definitely has the skeleton of a real good record.

I didn't want to have anything to do with BALL but a bitter ex-girlfriend of mine showed up and I was able to mask my indifference toward her by feigning interest in BALL. They exemplify everything that is bad with New York rock. Just a good lot of pretensious mofos wearing sunglasses and leather overcoats,ignoring sensibility in favor of noise. Luckily Galaxie bailed them out by joining in on a pretty solid cover of "Rain", a Beatles song that I'm always afraid will get bastardized when another band attempts it. Once again, a tiny Boston band teaches the hot shots from the big city how a real rock band earns their draw.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

BILLY RUAINE - Boston rock guru hits the floor

What's New At ...

HAMPDEN
SNACK BAR
... Something For Everyone!

GRILL
Open 7:30 am until 10:45 pm
(Weekends - open 8:30 am)
Breakfast specials until 11:00 am
Everything cooked to order

SNACK BAR
Salads - Sandwiches
Fresh Fruit & More

PIZZA PARLOR
Whole pizzas made to order
Pizza by the slice

CREAMERY
Ice cream - Sundaes - Cookies
Cakes - Cocoas - Coffees
11:30 am to 11:30 pm

Counseling Psychology

Boston-Bouvé College of Human Development Professions at Northeastern University offers part-time and full-time graduate degree programs in the areas of Counseling Psychology. Students may work toward a Master's degree, a Certificate of Advanced Graduate Study, or a Doctoral degree.

All counseling courses are taught by licensed psychologists. Class size is limited to encourage individual participation. The curriculum includes analytical and theoretical courses as well as practice-oriented courses. In addition to classroom work, all programs include applied experience in a supervised clinical environment.

For more information and a free brochure on the Graduate Programs in Counseling Psychology call (617) 437-2708. Or write to Graduate School, Boston-Bouvé College of Human Development Professions, 107 Dockser Hall, Northeastern University, Boston, MA 02115.

Northeastern University

An equal opportunity/ affirmative action educational institution and employer

A touch of classical

The Essex String Quartet, one of this country's most successful young string quartets, will be performing on Wednesday, March 8 at 8:15 p.m. in Benzanson Recital Hall. The concert is open to the public and is free of charge.

The program will open with Beethoven's "Quartet Opus 18 –2," followed by "Ainsi la Nuit" by Duttileux. To conclude the evening, the quartet will play Schubert's "Quartetssatz in C Minor and Dvorak's "Quartet in F Major, Opus 96."

The Essex String Quartet are Zoran Jakovcic, violin; Jonathan Dubay, violin; Amy Dulsky Little, viola; and Yuhsik Andrew Kim, cello.

Music of Handel and Telemann will be presented at the Forbes Library, Northampton on Thursday, March 9, at 8 p.m. Performers will include Michele Eaton, soprano; Laurie Castellano, violin; Roy Rudolph on viola de gamba; and Mathew Cron, harpsichord. Admission is free.

Soprano, Michele Eaton is currently enrolled in the Master's porogram at UMass, where she studies with John Humphrey. Laurie Castellano performs throughout the area and has appeared with the Amherst Early Music Workshop and other ensembles. Gambist Roy Rudolph received his undergraduate degree from Amherst College and is currently working toward a Master's in music from Smith. Harpsichordist Matthew Cron, a graduate of UMass also has a Master's in music from Smith.

Professor Eric dalheim of the University of Illinois will give a recital on Monday, March 13 at 8 p.m. in Benzanson Recital Hall. The public is invited to attend free of charge.

Mr. Dalheim has held the position of vocal coach and accompanist at the University of Illinois since 1961. He has concertised with many notable singers and instrumentalists and is in frequent demand as official accompanist and guest clinician for the National Association of Teachers of Singing. He has participated in numerous summer festivals.

Photo by Phil Nichols courtesy of Warner Bros Records

HUGO LARGO - acclaimed New York avant-garde combo, showing their "Mettle" at the Blue Wall Cafe this coming Saturday. Supporting them will be Galaxie 500, who seem to be poppin' up everywhere these days.

ACCIDENT VICTIMS
Know Your Legal Rights
Call us for FREE answers
Concentration in injuries from: • Auto Accidents • Slips and Falls • Workers Compensation • Dog Bites • And All Other Accidents • No legal fee unless successful; costs payable at conclusion in most cases • FREE Consultation
SOFORENKO & GOGEL, P.C.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
586-6700 • 1-800-245-5678
see us in the Nynex yellow pages

TIME OUT

WE HAVE BUSCH
PITCHERS $3.60
Best price in town!
Lunches served daily
You deserve some Time Out
37 N. Pleasant St • Mass ID required

UPC PRESENTS

HUGO LARGO

SATURDAY MARCH 4

8:00 IN THE BLUE WALL CAFE UMASS

$6 UMASS STUDENT
$7 GENERAL PUBLIC

TICKETS ON SALE AT TIX UNLIMITED, FOR THE RECORD-FACES, & MAIN ST. RECORDS-NORTHAMPTON

Ski UTAH

UMass Ski Club has received lodging in Salt Lake City for Spring Break
Price includes lodging, rental car, & air fare. Lift ticket packages are available.
$450—Contact UMass Ski Club

UMASS SKI CLUB

Oil Can apologizes to Boggs for remarks

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) – Controversial pitcher Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd of the Boston Red Sox apologized yesterday to Wade Boggs for suggesting the All-Star third basemen is a sex addict and should see a psychiatrist.

A few hours later Boyd went into a rage, shouting obscenities, when confronted by writers in the clubhouse.

However, Red Sox General Manager Lou Gorman and Manager Joe Morgan said that Boyd had apologized to Boggs for his derogatory remarks regarding his teammate's four-year affair with Margo Adams.

"he told Wade he didn't mean anything by it," Gorman said. "He said he didn't say things that way, the way it came out in the paper.

Boyd became the first Boston player to criticize Boggs publicly since Adams detailed her affair and named other Red Sox players in the first of a steamy two-part series in Penthouse magazine earlier this week.

Boyd, who was not named in the first article, recalled Friday he was suspended for three days for a temperamental outburst after not being named to the American League All-Star team in 1986. He apologized to teammates and was about to rejoin the team when he had a confrontation with police near his home.

Boyd then entered the University of Massachusetts Medical Center for about a week, and came back to help the Red Sox win the American League pennant.

The skinny right-hander, plagued by arm problems since he won a career high 16 games in 1986, talked about the Boggs affair with a couple of New England writers Monday after a team workout.

"They were talking about banning me out of baseball because I've got a temper," he told the Boston Herald. "I got to go to a psychiatrist because I got mad. Here's a guy says he's a sex fiend. Now who needs the psychiatrist?"

Boyd also said that after his tantrum in 1986 "I had to come in and apologize to the team."

"He has apologized, too," the pitcher said. "It seemed like mine was harder to do. I didn't want to apologize. It seems like it should be a little different. It doesn't seem to bother the young man."

"We got a guy running around doing crazy stuff like that and everyone acts like nothing happened. He gets a pat on the back."

Morgan said he talked to Boyd yesterday morning and "he said he talked with Wade and there seems to be no problem."

"He told me he didn't think he said anything personal against Wade," Morgan said. "Sex fiend? I'm only saying what he told me."

...Get Involved! ... with campus health issues

SHAB*

- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health care concerns
- Review UHS budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT!

Date: Tuesday, February 28th
Where: Univ. Health Center Room 302
Time: 5:15 - 6:15 p.m.

OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS

* STUDENT HEALTH ADVISORY BOARD (est. 1971)
UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES

KODO
ONE EARTH TOUR

"Electrifying Drums!"
"...a miracle of music"
"...a global phenomenon"

Friday, March 3. 8 p.m.
F.A.C. Concert Hall
Students $9-$11
Call 545-2511

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

Munchy Sale

ON SALE NOW THROUGH MARCH 10

Wheat Wafer 1 ¼ oz.....Sale 5/$1.00
Friut & Fiber Cereal 12 oz.....Sale $2.00
Poptarts.....Sale $1.19
Maxwell House Coffee.....Sale $2.99
Drip or Reg. Grind
Very Fine Juices 10 oz.....Sale 2/$1.00
Chips Ahoy.....Sale $1.69
Teddy Grahams.....Sale $1.29
M & M's 1.69 oz.....Sale 3/$1.00
Plain or Peanut

STOCK UP NOW!

AVAILABLE IN THESE MUNCHYS
HAMPDEN WORCESTER FRANKLIN

COLLEGIAN

ATTENTION
SOPHOMORE/JUNIOR
MARKETING MAJORS

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World.

THE COLLEGIAN is offering the opportunity to gain THE MOST VALUABLE BUSINESS EXPERIENCE on campus

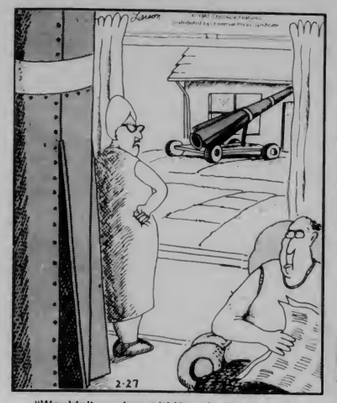
Applications for position of
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER
are now being accepted

This position requires Responsibility, Dedication and Time Commitment—the qualities that future employers are looking for

Come down to the Collegian Business Office in the Campus Center (RM 113 - lower level, 545-3500) and pick up a job application and description and submit it no later than Wednesday, March 1.

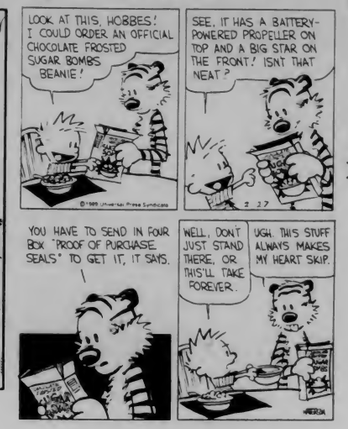
M/F—EOE

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



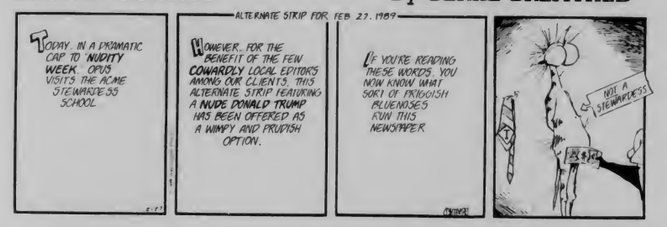
"Wouldn't you know it! Now the Hendersons have the bomb."

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON



LOOK AT THIS, HOBBES! I COULD ORDER AN OFFICIAL CHOCOLATE FROSTED SUGAR BOMBS BEANIE!
SEE, IT HAS A BATTERY-POWERED PROPELLER ON TOP AND A BIG STAR ON THE FRONT! ISN'T THAT NEAT?
YOU HAVE TO SEND IN FOUR BOX TOPS "PROOF OF PURCHASE SEALS" TO GET IT, IT SAYS.
WELL, DON'T JUST STAND THERE. OR THIS'LL TAKE FOREVER.
UGH. THIS STUFF ALWAYS MAKES MY HEART SKIP.

BLOOM COUNTY
By BERKE BREATHED

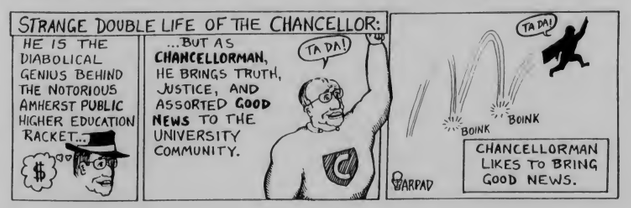


TODAY, IN A DRAMATIC CAP TO "NUDITY WEEK," OPUS VISITS THE ACME STEWARDESS SCHOOL
ALTERNATE STRIP FOR FEB. 27, 1989
HOWEVER, FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE FEW COWARDLY LOCAL EDITORS AMONG OUR CLIENTS, THIS ALTERNATE STRIP FEATURING A NUDE DONALD TRUMP HAS BEEN OFFERED AS A WIMPY AND PRUDISH OPTION.
IF YOU'RE READING THESE WORDS, YOU NOW KNOW WHAT SORT OF PRUDISH BLUENOSES RUN THIS NEWSPAPER
NOT A STEWARDESS

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

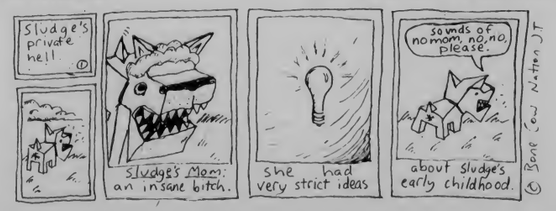
THINGS JUST COULDN'T BE BETTER, JOANIE. WE FOUND SOMEONE PERFECT TO HELP TAKE CARE OF THE BABY— ZONKER!
ZONKER? MY ONLY GRANDCHILD IS BEING LOOKED AFTER BY ZONKER?
RELAX, HE'S WORKING OUT GREAT! ZONK'S MY BEST FRIEND IN THE WORLD. IF WE CAN'T TRUST HIM, WHO CAN WE TRUST?
GOTTA RUN, GUY! THE KID SHOULD BE WAKING UP...
HEY, WHAT KINDA DOUGH DOES A NANNY PULL DOWN, ANYWAY?

CHANCELLORMAN
By AL ARPAD



STRANGE DOUBLE LIFE OF THE CHANCELLOR:
HE IS THE DIABOLICAL GENIUS BEHIND THE NOTORIOUS AMHERST PUBLIC HIGHER EDUCATION RACKET...
...BUT AS CHANCELLORMAN, HE BRINGS TRUTH, JUSTICE, AND ASSORTED GOOD NEWS TO THE UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY.
TA DA!
BOINK
BOINK
TA DA!
CHANCELLORMAN LIKES TO BRING GOOD NEWS.
ARPAD

YEASTHEAD
By JASON TALERMAN



Sludge's private hell.
Sludge's Mom: an insane bitch.
she had very strict ideas
sounds of no mom, no, no, please.
about Sludge's early childhood.
Bone Cow Nation JT

ETC.

"It doesn't matter what you do in the bedroom as long as you don't do it in the street and frighten the horses."

–Mrs. Patrick Campbell

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

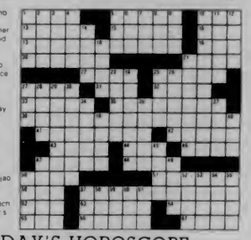
ACROSS
1 City on the Tevere
5 A goddess of the arts
10 Poke
13 Christmas cookie flavoring
15 Governed
16 Land of Liberty Abbr
17 Bridal car sign
19 Be wicked
20 Set upon
21 Party extra
22 Motorist's expense
25 Indian, for one
27 Suva is its capital
31 Also
32 Large amount
33 Give form
35 Weapon of old
36 Rude awakening
41 Perfume dispenser, Brit style
42 Moon: Comb form
43 Bit of gossip
44 Ultimate degree
46 Seattle —
47 Dream: Comb form
48 Shea's partner
50 Childrens' aid org
51 Annoy
56 Kind of soup
57 Comeuppance
62 Repay: Abbr
63 Willow
64 Navigators Islands today
65 Heem letters
66 Feminist Friedan
67 Former late show host

DOWN
1 Princely Punjab title
2 Burden
3 Piggy or Peach
4 Travel agent's org
5 Go astray
6 Capek's robot play
7 Gaby today
8 Golf gizmo
9 Unusual
10 Words of resignation
11 Person from Pakistan
12 Big — theory
14 Give form
18 Thanks —
21 Edible seeds
23 Fruit of forgetfulness
24 Unties
25 Hawaiian thrush
26 Songwriter Sammy et al
27 Fueled
28 Corn lily
29 Precautionary comment
30 Downright stupid
34 Gantry
36 Merriment
37 Greasy joint
39 Motorcade vehicle, for short
40 Missile of a sort, for short
45 Plate, for Strawberry
47 Golfing events
49 Turn's partner
50 Saratoga and Warm Springs
52 Jump
53 Bombeck, the columnist
54 Greek portico
55 Ivan or Nicholas
57 Work
58 Consume
59 Pose
60 Asian holiday
61 Unimaginative

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	R	A	M		T	E	L	L		P	E	T	A	L
B	E	M	A		E	R	N	I	E		A	A	R	O	N
E	D	E	N		R	I	G	A		T	R	U	N	K
D	O	N	N	A	R	E	E	D	S		E	D	S	E	L
				M	O	S			P	O	P
R	O	S	I	E		S	C	A	N		D	A	B
A	R	T	I	E		A	M	U	R		S	A	R	A
J	O	A	N	R	I	V	E	R	S		R	I	V	E	R
A	N	K	A		D	E	A	L		E	L	I	T	E
H	O	L		H	E	R		O	A	T		D	E	R
		L	E	A			C	O	T
M	A	R	Y	A	S	T	O	R	S	A	S	T	E	R
O	N	A	I	R		A	B	E	T		W	A	V	E
S	T	I	N	T		L	I	D	O		A	X	I	S
S	I	N	G	S		L	E	O	N		G	I	L	T

2/27/89



TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Look forward to memorable social events as the month winds sown. You can improve your financial and career status by being aggressive in business. Resolve a family dispute as quickly as possible.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could receive the surprise of your life today. It will give sparkle to your social life and make your career grow, too. Financial matters are easier to arrange. Romance is fawned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Good fortune and fringe benefits come from expanding your circle of friends. Focus on building stronger business alliances. Guard against traffic accidents by driving defensively. You react quickly to the unexpected.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Relationships are not made overnight. Do not push so hard and everything will come together for you. Buying something just because it is on sale is a mistake. You need to build savings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make your own decisions and assume a leadership role if others are wishy-washy. The flames of romance will be fanned by a night on the town or an intimate dinner. Avoid shortcuts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to avoid confrontations, but if things do come to a head, take a firm stand. You are in the mood to make changes. Do not be impulsive in employment matters. Go slow!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Business and pleasure will mix surprisingly well if you are discreet. Guard against overconfidence. A financial situation should start to improve today or tomorrow. Concentrate on the job at hand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Find a way to spend time outdoors and you will return energized. Productivity rises. Be sure you understand what you are being asked to do before making a commitment. Relationships have a happy turn.

SAGITARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Haste will make waste if you try to complete a project too quickly. You need to slow your pace. Traffic court could be in your future unless you ease up on the gas pedal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Meet challenges the only way you know how – head on right is on your side. Avoid giving angry responses in public. Although your finances improve, you still have to do some juggling.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your self-reliance emerges, thanks to a maturing relationship. Bankers are in the mood to be helpful if your are totally truthful about any credit problems. Do not underestimate your needs.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Put your ideas into action. Economic shifts will help or inhibit your progress, depending on your flexibility. Make overdue changes. Use new technology instead of letting it use you. Write a special computer program.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Barbecued pork on bun Macaroni and cheese	Roast turkey, gravy Fish fry/tartar sauce
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Humus vegetable pocket sandwich Macaroni and cheese	Garden medley casserole Roast turkey, gravy

Sports Notice

The University of Massachusetts football team is looking for managers.

Any interested work study students should see coach Jones in the football office in Boyden Building.

FEELING GREAT LOOKING GOOD
Students, we've taken away all the excuses— only $99 for the entire semester
Aerobics Asylum
Denise Johnson
CALL NOW 586-7503 HAMP PLAZA NORTHAMPTON

BOARD OF GOVERNOR'S PROGRAM COUNCIL
PRESENTS A

TWO HOUR COMEDY SHOW

ANY PERSON WITH NO SENSE OF HUMOR ...
ANYONE WITH A WEAK KIDNEY ...

We Can Make You Laugh

WE WILL PAY $25 In Cash
PLUS A "MAKE ME LAUGH" T-SHIRT

If ...
YOU CAN SURVIVE AS A CONTESTANT ON OUR SHOW!!

Sign up one hour before the show.

Wednesday March 1, 1989

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

■ men's swimming

continued from page 16

On the final day of the meet the Minutemen showed no signs of letting up. Ehle took second in the 200-yard back with a time of 1:57.18 followed by a one-two sweep of the 100-yard freestyle by McIver and Ladd. In that race McIver set a New England and UMass record with a time of 45.28 followed by Ladd's 46.49.

The Minutemen were shut out in the 200-yard breaststroke, as Frank Sampson managed a fifth spot for UMass in 2:14.36, but came back with a first in the 200-yard butterfly. Roger Kennedy touched first in 1:56.28.

In the three-meter diving competition, Chesnicka again fought to a second-place finish behind Roth. To round out their championship the Minutemen decided to set a New England and school record in the 400-yard freestyle relay. The team of Ladd, Robertson, Kennedy and McIver swam an impressive 3:04.95 to get the first-place finish.

Yarworth will send a number of swimmers to the Easterns next weekend but he will be happiest knowing that out of all the swimmers he sent to the New Englands this year not a single one will be leaving via graduation. He can relax and think of next season and working for four in a row.

■ men's gymnastics

continued from page 16

Myers said. "There were a lot of teams (three instead of the usual two) out there so we didn't have much time to warm up. But in the meet, everything fell into place."

Things were falling into place for the rest of the Minutemen as well. For one, freshman Cal Booker who took first in the floor exercise out of 18 gymnasts with a 9.4. UMass jumped out to an early lead in the floor exercise, never to look back as their team scores bested Air Force and Army in each event.

The judges were very generous in their scoring on the pommel horse. UMass easily had its best performance of the year on the horse as Myers hit a 9.1 and co-captain John Eggers a 9.0. Joe Fitzgerald, the Minutemen's pommel horse specialist, was in an unfamiliar position as he was third on the list for the Minutemen at 8.9.

The vault brought a pleasant surprise for the Minutemen as senior Jay Ronayne, who has been one of their top vaulters returned for the first time in almost a month since injuring his foot. Ronayne showed no signs of rustiness, taking second place with a 9.25 behind Air Force's Scott Hamilton (9.3).

"It felt good to be back in the vault," Ronayne said. "It hurt a lo but I'm back."

But still UMass, which was less than three points off the school record of 267.75, was not at full strength. Eggers was not able to compete in two of his strong events, the still rings and the high bar, because of a sore that has been opening up on his arm since mid December. But UMass coach Roy Johnson is hoping that Eggers will return for next weekend's crucial meet.

"With the addition of John and another good performance, the Syracuse meet will be great one to attend," Johnson said.

Carl Russ and Ronayne made up for Eggers' absence in the ring competition. Russ won second place overall with a 9.15 trailing only Sven Brown of Air Force who hit a 9.6. Ronayne scored a 9.05.

UMass struggled a little bit on the high bar without Eggers, scoring just a 43.3 which was well below its performance of last weekend against Temple when the Minutemen broke 45. The return of Eggers next weekend, coupled with another good all-around performance could mean a school record for UMass.

"We're definitely capable of going 270 this year," Balocki said.

Next weekend would be a good time for that.

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS
MARCH 18-25

When you break away this year, do it with style.

SUN FUN!! round trip air 7 nights great night life

Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB 547-3437
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.

$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP

THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION

A $75 Reservation Deposit Required

SAVE UMASS SKI CLUB

LAGNAF 430 Student Union • 545-3437

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

Anton Brown's 25 points led UMass to an 87-67 win over George Washington Saturday at the Cage.

■ men's hoop

continued from page 16

"I was unhappy Thursday because of a lack of effort," Calipari said. "But when we play hard, we have a chance. Tate and Milum were the difference tonight. Without any post players, you can't compete."

John Milum, playing in front of the Curry Hicks Cage crowd for the last time, scored the first six points to get UMass started in the second half. He and Tate each finished with nine points.

"Coach took it to us hard the last few days," Tate said. "We knew no matter who was in our way, we were gonna win tonight."

The Minutemen eliminated any question of that with an 8-0 run late in the second half that boosted the score to 80-54 with 4:45 left.

With 4:04 left, Calipari emptied the bench, but the highlights weren't over.

The most exciting play of the night came with 27 seconds left. Chris Bailey dribbled down the the left side of the court and lofted a pass toward the hoop. George Hardin soared in from the right baseline and, in one motion, caught the ball and slammed it through the hoop, giving the crowd a nice final memory.

"We needed to get some momentum," Brown said. "We needed to get a solid win before St. Joe's (Wednesday night)."

The Minutemen figured they had one final chance. And they made the most of it.

Minutemen, 87-67

UMass (87): Jim Mc ey 7 1 1 6 5 29, John Tate 3 4 3 1 4 9, John Milum 3 5 1 3 8, Ralee Giles 4 1 1 4 1 13, Anton Brown 9 4 7 2 2 25, Michael Byrnes 2 4 0 0 4, George Hardin 1 3 0 0 2, Chris Bailey 0 0 0 0 0, Cary Herer 0 1 1 3 1, Ben Grodski 0 1 2 3 2, Sean Nolen 1 2 0 0 2. Totals: 31 19 8 17 25 87.

George Washington (67): Peter Young 1 3 0 0 3, J.J. Hudock 4 9 0 0 12, Clint Holtz 5 9 0 0 10, Rodney Patterson 5 1 0 0 11, Glen Sitney 5 12 0 0 12, Mike Jones 3 9 4 6 12, Max Blank 3 5 1 2 7, Mike Neff 0 1 0 0 0, Andrew Dixon 1 2 0 0 2. Totals: 27 61 5 8 67.

Three-point goals: UMass 8 23 (Brown 5 7, Giles 2 10, McCoy 1 2, Byrnes 0 2, Herer 0 1, Nolen 0 1); George Washington 8 18 (Hudock 4 7, Sitney 2 6, Young 1 1, Patterson 1 3, Dixon 0 1).

■ women's hoop

continued from page 16

"We played as hard as we could. We battled back and threw everything we had at them, but came up short," UMass coach Kathy Hewelt said.

After a fairly efficient first half that saw Duquesne hold a slim 38-34 edge at intermission, both teams were plagued in the second half by a case of the clanks, a disease that won't rival the measles that have been sweeping colleges in the Northeast, but nonetheless deadly to the hopes of any basketball team.

UMass shot just 26 percent (9-for-34), a sizzler compared to Duquesne's 21 percent misfiring (7-for-34).

The Minutewomen trailed 58-47 with 8:50 to play but narrowed the gap steadily into the final minute. Down just 61-60 with a minute to go, UMass fouled Melanie Bach, who hit the front end of the one-and-one for a two point edge. After a UM turnover, Amy Alger (a team-high 17 points) hit a clinching pair of free throws to seal it with 10 seconds left.

Helen Freeman led all scorers with 19 points and Sue Serafini had 13 for UMass. Beth Wilbor added nine and needs 31 in at least three games to crack the 1,000-point plateau for her career.

UMass finishes the regular season this week, hosting Rutgers Thursday and St. Joseph's on Saturday.

Duchesses, 64-62

UMass (62): Beth Wilbor 3 9 3 4 9, Reyburn McCusker 2 0 4 4 8, Helen Freeman 8 18 3 3 19, Trish Riley 4 9 1 2 9, Dianne Burke 1 2 0 0 2, Sue Serafini 5 13 2 3 13, Jenny Moran 1 2 0 0 2, Lisa Hair 0 2 0 0 0. Totals: 24 68 8 13 15 62

Duquesne (64): Amy Alger 5 11 7 9 17, Carina Hoffman 2 9 3 4 7, Kathy Rohlfs 5 14 5 6 15, Katie Collins 5 16 0 4 11, Darcie Vincent 2 10 0 0 4, Melanie Bach 3 7 2 4 8, Jackie Fleischer 0 2 0 0 0, Terri Mitchell 1 4 0 0 2. Totals: 23 73 17 29 64

Three-point goals: UMass 1 5 (Serafini 1 4, Riley 0 1); Duquesne 1 4 (Collins 1 2, Vincent 0 2).

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE –CC 113 MON - THURS: 8:30–5:30 FRI 8:30–3:30 •DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION•CASH IN ADVANCE 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

HELP PROMOTE PEACE AND freedom in Central America! Join Central American Solidarity Association. Meetings at 5pm, Monday. Check CC schedule.

DELTA ZETA OPEN RUSH TONITE! 5:45 111 Phillips St. All secondsemestar Freshman and older Questions? 253-9916.

AEPi PRESENTS LITTLE SISTER RUSH All University Women invited Tuesday February 28 7:00pm at AEPi House 382 North Pleasant St.

MANDATORY MEETING FOR COMMUNICATIONS majors tonight at 7pm in Machmer E37 Sign ups for Career seminars in New York! if unable to attend call Jackie at 253-5781.

TRI SIGMA OPEN RUSH, Tues. Feb 28, 8:30-9:30, and Wed., Thurs. March 1 & 2, 6:30-7:30. For more info call 545-1224.

TONIGHT! KOREAN STUDENTS Association meeting. All are invited to come 6pm in Campus Center 903.

CHEN STYLE TAICHI CLASS begins Feb 28. 6:30pm, Jackson Street School Northampton. Call 585-8931.

ATTENTION PRE-MEDS, NURSING, AND ALL STUDENTS INTERESTED IN STUDENT HEALTH: Student Health Advisory Board (SHAB) meeting welcomes all new members - Tues. Feb 28, 5:15-6:15 rm -302 Univ. Health Center.

UMASS MUSIC THEATRE GUILD is meeting Monday Feb. 27, 7:00, CC168. Come get involved with the group and this semester's production of West Side Story. All are welcome!

SIGMA DELTA TAU SISTERS invite University women to Open Rush Dinners Feb. 27 & 28 at 5:30. Hope to see you there.

LEARN JEWELRY & SILKSCREEN 4 workshops meeting once a week at Student Union Craft Center.

ANNOUNCING THE FINANCE AND INVESTMENT CLUB'S inaugural gathering of 1989 featuring: elections and social events planning. New members graciously welcomed Thursday 8:30-7:30pm SOM lobby. Don't let it be another extracurricularless semester.

ADD DROP A PAIN? Budget cuts got you down? Write a letter to your rapresentative. Table outside the Minister's S.U.

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE

SAPCIOUS 1,2, and 3 BEDROOM UNITS in Sunderland. Ample off street parking and free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Call 665-3658.

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500.

AUDIO

MARANTZ SPEAKERS 60 watts 6 mos old 150 or BO Cal for more info 546-6524 Leave message

VCR WANTED OLDER MODEL or don't need to record Amy 546-4384

AUTO FOR SALE

1977 JEEP CHEROKEE, 4x4, 360 V-8 engine needs body work, resotration parts included 1-774-5239. $850.

1981 HONDA ACCORD LX HATCHBACK for parts or fix. New battery, clutch, alternator, body in gd. shape. Must see $300 or BO 256-8132.

78 OLDSMOBILE CUTLESS STATION-WAGON automatic powersteering Air condition runs great $600 or B.O. 665-8955.

1983 FORD ESCORT WAGON- 50,000 miles A/C roof rack - excellent condition $2500. Call 256-0933.

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032.

CAMP COUNSELORS

COME WORK FOR an accredited 3-camp organization in the Pocono Mountains of PA. Positions are available in: Tennis, Archery, Waterfront (W.S.I.), Dramatics, Office Administration, Computers, Radio, Arts & Crafts, Nature, Athletics, Jewelry, Photoography, Dance, Wrestling, Cooking Adventure/Challenge Course, Film making. Camp Drivers. Season: 6/24-8/20. Call 800-533-CAMP (215-887-9700 in PA) or write: 407 Benson East, Jenkintown, PA 19048.

COMPACT DISC MUSIC MACHINE

DISC JOCKEY SERVICE - quality tunes for all occasions 549-1421 or 253-7655.

ENTERTAINMENT

THIS WEEK ON DAMAGE INCORPORATED Meet Ozzy Osborne's new guitarist, Zakk Wylde. Wednesday Night at 9:30 on 91.1 FM WMUA.

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances. 256-8526.

FOR RENT

ROOM IN NICE FAMILY home for female graduate student. Private bath, fridge. Close to campus. $300 549-6504.

FRIDGE RENTALS WE DELIVER 253-9742

FOR SALE

ROLAND D-50 KEYBOARD/SYNTHESIZER Excellent cond. Must see! Call Chris after 7pm 548-6701.

MACINTOSH PLUS w/40MB Hard disk, and turbo mouse $1800 or B/O Call 549-4135.

TWIN MATTRESS W/BOX SPRING, some bedding very good condition $125 or B/O Call 549-4047 days eves til 9.

LASER FX MACHINE Plug into your stereo and have your own multi-colored light show $225 or B.O. Call Joe 256-4964.

GUITAR WASHBURN ACCOUSTIC w/case $200 Call 253-7387.

GRATEFUL DEAD - Pittsburg 4/2-3 Have two tickets for each night $100. Gets them all. Call 967-7726.

1982 VW SCIRROCCO Great shape needs muffler. $2000 Call 545-0046 ask for Jon.

RUG-GREAT FOR DORM
Sky Blue
Excellent condition
$45 or best offer
Call Alisa 527-6505

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles. Call 256-8389.

FOUND

FOUND A PAIR OR HEAVY RED MITTENS WITH RED FURRY LINING about two weeks ago and just want forgetting to put in a classified about it. If yours, just call 549-6658 and ask for "M" or leave a message.

AXCESS WATCH IN BOWL. If yours, call Chris 546-6847.

BRENDAN SALTER, PSYCH 241 NOTES. You can get them at the Collegian front desk.

HELP WANTED

ENGINEERS WANTED. Interested in Tech sales or Project Management? Summer positions available. Resume experience, school credits. $4000-5000 call 253-2321 Lve. Msg.

THIS PAST SUMMER 350 College Students took on a Management Position gaining exceptional managerial and business skills for their career. Average net summer earnings $10,740. 1-800-922-5579.

IN SEARCH OF "MISS MASSACHUSETTS"

I AM IN SEARCH OF A GIRL. A gorgeous blonde I saw over X-Mas break in Mazatlan in a burgendy UMass sweatshirt. First at a dumpy little Italian restaurant the evening of Dec. 25th, then the 26th and 27th in front of the Playa Mazatlan, where I was staying. If you are that girl, I'm the semi-blonde guy in the black shorts that could not take his eyes off you but didn't have the nerve to talk to you. Though I did try to get your attention by waving a red beach towel at you from my balcony - pretty smooth huh? I've never seen a girl that has set me back like you or been so infatuated before and would be honored if you would write me back so that I could at least know your name. If you describe your bathing suit then I'll know it's you- Believe me I'll know. I'll even pay for the stamp—Matt Seyre. 2714 College St. S.E., Lacey, Washington, 98503.

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands'on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on February 22 from 3:30-4:30 in room 901 Campus Center. (545-1995)

LOST

GOLD RING WITH RUBY LOST 2/22, huge sentimental value, if found please call Jeanne - Reward - 546-7691.

LOST GREY WALLET CONTAINING 2 ID's and money. Possibly lost near Kinkos or the Career Center. Keep money and call 253-0706.

MOTORCYCLES

WANT TO BUY A MOTORCYCLE 84'-87', 600-750cc. Finn 549-4793.

NEED CASH!

GET SOME SPRING BREAK money before it's too late! Sell me your baseball cards. Call Todd anytime 549-6361.

PERSONALS

KYLE K. I know you and you know me. I like you, do you like me? Love the Best. "Funky Chickener" across the border. Respond yes or no here.

TO MY FAVORITE FRAT- I lied. Ha! Joke's on you! Love, Lara.

JOSH GORDON you have our support for SGA President. Judy, Leslie, Carla, Janine, Ilyse.

—THANK YOU— For returning my expnd pocketbook to SBA lost & found last wednesday.

TO THE WOMAN IN THE BLUE SHIRT IN section one row A at Ziggy Marley, the security man who didn't dance would like to. Marc 6-8115.

CROCKER- WHERE ARE YOU? I have not seen you. Meet me at the Hatch on 2/29 between 12 and 2. From B.A.

ROB SKELTON: Trustee!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY BILLYBEAR! Love you, your little Tiger.

HAPPY BELATED BIRTHDAY AMY! Now your age matches your GPA 20 Just kidding. Love T & A.

DARREN STONE Happy birthday I remembered yours do you remember mine? Kelly

GABERONI- Hey you're legal! Happy 18th and don't do anything we would do! Love you, The Crew (Joyce, Kristen, Heather, & Laura.)

IGGY
Even though you left us, we still love you!! Happy birthday!! Love tha Cymbal Wenches.

DEAR JAMIE HAPPY 20th. Sorry it's a day late. Hpe your hangover is gone! Love Dror and Linda.

Bon Jovi 4 tix Hart Marc $60 or BO 549-7878. Great seats!

ATTENTION STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS! EXCELLENT FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES HELPING WITH AN ON-CAMPUS MARKETING PROJECT. CALL IMMEDIATELY. STUART 546-7612. LEAVE A MESSAGE.

NEED A HAIRCUT!? For the lowest rates call 253-9127. Leave message.

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt. or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later.

RC GORMAN

AND OTHER SOUTHWESTERN images for the best prices call 546-5260. Ask for Frane.

RIDE WANTED

RIDE WANTED TO BON JOVI CONCERT Worc. Sunday March 12 Call Kellie 6-8477.

RIDE NEEDED TO ITHACA NY area/Spring Break/ call Caroline evenings 8-9771.

TWO PEOPLE LOOKING for a ride to Florida call Kimberly 253-9301.

ROOMMATES WANTED

COOL FEMALE ROOMATE NEEDED to share 3 bdrm Twnhse Apt 185/mth 549-6448.

SUNNY SPACIOUS WOODFLOOR BEDROOM available in furnished apartment in Hadley washer dryer microwave color television on bus route 15 minutes to UMass 10 minutes to Northampton Carbers right across the street parking available 225/ call evenings & weekends women only please 586-4412.

- 2 NEEDED TO SHARE ROOM IN Townhouse apt beginning fall semester. Contact as soon as possible 546-5025.

ROOM AVAILABLE IN HOUSE. 3 min to bus. $725/month + util. Call Peter after 7pm 253-2268.

ONE LARGE ROOM in 3 bedroom, 1st floor apt in Hadley. Can ter. Hardwood floors, large kitchen and living room. $233/mo includes heat. 585-8627.

SERVICES

TUTOR**
COINS ECE MATH
"BY EXPERIENCED GRAD 256-8121"

RESUMES SAMPLES, VARIOUS STYLES, different formats. Actual successful examples. Interested? Send $3.00 Box 801 Bellmore, New York 11710.

AUTO REPAIRS very reasonable, experienced mechanic. Worx your place or mine. Message for Mark 665-8467.

PROFESSIONAL EDITING- Term papers, Theses, Dissertations 1-467-3753 after 7pm.

VIDEO RESUME TO GET THAT JOB! Immediate, professional, personalized service. Appointments. Video Image Productions (413) 863-8035.

PROFESSIONAL RESUMES, Laserprinting, copies, typing 665-8873.

RESUME TYPESETTING. Avoid the end-of-semester panic. Very experienced, inexpensive, overnight laserwriter quality. Lisa 665-8969.

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE ELECTIONS

NOMINATIONS ARE NOW AVAILABLE in SU 420 for SGA President, Student Trustee and any open senate seats. They are due back on March 2nd at 10:00am.

SWING DANCE/JITTER BUG CLASSES

Just $7 each or $25 for all four, No partner necessary! Classes meet from 4 - 6pm Sunday, March 5 thru Sunday, March 26 at East Street Dance Studeto in Hadley. Just off Rt. 9 between Amherst and Northampton. Instructors: Lars Marshall and Janina Warner. For more Info, Call 546-9309. No pre-registration necessary.

TRAVEL

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $228 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW, OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TYPING

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional, accurate 665-4501.

WANTED

APARTMENT WANTED: We want to take over/buy your tree bedroom apartment, call 6-7624, or 6-7673.

IF YOU HAVE A LEASE FOR A HOUSE (beg. 6/89 or later) that you would like to surrender to a responsible group of people, please call Susan 546-9084. Leave a message will respond.

Prisoner of The Classifieds

SPORTS

Good things come in threes

Men's swim team takes 3rd straight NE title

By DENNIS MADSEN
Collegian Staff

To say the University of Massachusetts men's swimming team swam well at the New England championships over the weekend might be a bit of an understatement.

"We blew them out of the water," said UMass coach Russ Yarworth, referring to the competition at Springfield College. "We expected Boston College to be tougher."

The Eagles, who were seen as the Minutemen's toughest challenger in the meet, lost by more than 300 points as UMass broke the 1000-point barrier by scoring 1057 points on the way to winning their third straight New England title.

Collegian photo by David Higashiguchi

Diver Dave Wells and the Minutemen won the New England championship for the third straight year.

The Minutemen, who had lost at BC to a shaved and rested Eagle team to open their season, were shaved and rested themselves and on even terms BC was no match for Yarworth's team.

On Thursday, the first day of competition, UMass gave an indication of just how tough it would be to beat when Minutemen Brian McIver and G.T. Ladd took first and second in the opening event, the 50-yard freestyle. McIver burned through the water, finishing in 20.95 seconds with Ladd right on his heels at 21.48.

In the next event, the 200-yard individual medley, UMass grabbed second and third. Roger Kennedy latched onto the number two spot in 1:56.87 and Frank Sampson came in third in 1:57.53.

In the 200 medley relay, the UMass team of Dave Ehle, Pete Koback, Sean Rutherford and Ladd took first with the time of 1:36.80. In the following 500-yard freestyle Jim Robertson came in third for UMass in 4:43.61, followed by the 800-yard freestyle relay, where the team of Robertson, Kennedy, Mike Yunker and McIver took the top spot for the Minutemen in 6:56.88.

To finish off the first day of the meet UMass diver Dan Chesnicka took second in the one-meter diving after dueling with Springfield College's David Roth, who was competing on his home board.

At the end of the first round, UMass was in front 377 to Boston College's 306 and the University of Rhode Island's 247.5. This lead would not be threatened for the rest of the weekend.

The Minutemen quickly started the ball rolling again the following day with a one-two finish in the 100-yard backstroke. Dave Ehle took the top spot with a time of 53.70 seconds and teammate Ed Anthos followed in second in 55.82.

The 100-yard breaststroke was one of the few events in which UMass didn't finish in the top three but they got back on track in the 100-yard butterfly as Ladd notched a first place finish in 51.30 seconds. McIver promptly followed with a first of his own, capturing the 200-yard freestyle in 1:40.24 and, with Ladd, Robertson and Pete Reich, grabbed the blue ribbon in the 200-yard freestyle relay with a time of 1:25.03.

The Minutemen took second and third in the 400-yard individual medley as Kennedy logged in at number two in 4:08.63 and Sampson followed in 4:12.56.

Though they ended Friday's competition on a low note by not breaking the top three in the 400-yard medley relay, UMass had increased its lead to 616.5-405.5 over second-place Boston College.

continued on page 14

Men's hoop storms past GWU, 87-67

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

The way the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team looked at it, the Minutemen had one more chance.

They had one more chance in front of the home crowd this season, one more chance to erase the memories of Thursday night's 19-point loss to Penn State.

And one more chance to try and put things in order before this week's trip to Philadelphia and the Atlantic 10 playoffs.

UMass took advantage of its opportunity Saturday night, scoring the first seven points of the game and coasting to an 87-67 win over George Washington University in an Atlantic 10 Conference game at the Curry Hicks Cage.

"We needed to shake things up," sophomore forward John Tate said. "We had no emotion Thursday night and we had to change that."

One thing that may have helped the Minutemen was the knowledge that the 1-25 Colonials posted their only win of the year over guess who? UMass, in the team's first meeting this season.

But UMass coach John Calipari took a different motivational approach before Saturday night's game.

"I didn't even talk about George Washington and we didn't look at any of their films," Calipari said. "I showed them films of the first half against St. Bonaventure and the second half against Rutgers. I wanted to show how well we can play."

Apparently, it worked. Freshman guard Anton Brown scored 25 points, including 19 in the first half, as the Minutemen improved to 5-12 in the A-10 and 10-16 overall.

During one stretch in the opening half, Brown scored 16 staright points for UMass.

"I had a good shooting hand," Brown said. "And they kept getting me the ball."

A three-pointer by Brown gave the Minutemen a 37-26 lead with 4:46 left, and it never got any closer than that.

Freshman forward Jim McCoy finished with 20 points for UMass, and Rafer Giles added 13.

continued on page 15

CFL nabs Smellie, Thomas

continued from page 1

Especially considering the inconsistent junior year Smellie had.

"It was a great turnaround," UMass head football coach Jim Reid said. "Kevin had to deal with a lot of personal problems in 1987, and we actually had to bench him. But last season, he dedicated himself to academics and the team, and was one of the factors in our season."

Smellie rushed for 807 yards during the regular season for the Minutemen, who went 8-3 and tied for the Yankee Conference championship before losing to Eastern Kentucky in the first round of the NCAA Division 1-AA playoffs.

But the CFL is a different game, with a longer, wider field, longer end zones, and only three downs per series. This lends itself to more passing, which doesn't bother Smellie.

"I'll probably only get 11 carries a game, but I'm used to that," Smellie said. "In the CFL, you definitely need to work on your hands and your catching."

Thomas will fit right into the passing game. He made an impact as the fifth defensive back, first off the bench.

"There is a lot of throwing in that league," Reid said. "They usually dip into American players for defensive backs but now they've got a good one who is a Canadian citizen."

Thomas, a native of Toronto, finished with 34 tackles and two interceptions.

"Thomas has great courage," Reid said. "He's a nice guy but he's not afraid to rip someone's face off."

If Smellie and Thomas sign, they will be off to Regina, to play for an up-and-coming team that made the playoffs last season for the first time since 1976.

"I'm used to being in a city," Smellie said. "And I've never been to Regina, but from what I hear it's the Canadian equivalent of a Nebraska or an Iowa. It's pretty flat but I guess they're high on football out there."

And if Smellie and Thomas sign, Regina will be getting two more people who are high on football.

"You couldn't order a better personality than they both have," Reid said. "You want your son to grow up to be like them."

Men's gymnastics team captures Army, Air Force

By GEORGE AUSTIN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team picked up two wins on Saturday, one over the United States Air Force Academy and the other a big win over the United States Military Academy.

With the two wins the Minutemen improved to 7-2 overall on the season, but more importantly with the win over Army, UMass raised its record in the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League to 4-1, setting up a showdown for sole possession of second place with Syracuse University next weekend at the Boyden Gymnastics Center.

The Minutemen as a team combined for their highest output of the season, scoring a 265.1 led by senior Tim Myers who won the all-around competition with a 53.7, a high on the year for him as well.

"My warmups were were a little shaky,"

continued on page 14

Collegian photo by Andrew Ritt

Cal Booker and the gymnastics team defeated Army and Air Force Saturday at the Boyden Gymnastics Center.

Women's hoop edged again, 64-62

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

The difference between a perfectly successful and perfectly heartbreaking trip turned out to be three lousy points.

After the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team dropped the first game of their two-game road trip, a 62-61 loss at West Virginia on Thursday, the Minutewomen rolled an oh-fer by the narrowest of margins, coming up short Saturday against Duquesne, 64-62 at the A.J. Palumbo Center in Pittsburgh.

With the loss, UMass is now 10-15 overall and 4-12 in the Atlantic 10 conference. The team is pretty much solidly planted for an eighth seed in the conference tourney which starts next Monday, possibly at the Curry Hicks Cage.

In this one, the Minutewomen trailed for most of the game, but battled from behind on several occasions only to be turned away time and again by the host Duchesses.

continued on page 15

WEATHER | NEWS | SPORTS

Morning sun and afternoon clouds today, 80 percent chance of snow tomorrow

Leading black sociologist awarded honorary degree at convocation. Page 3.

The Celtics play 'Let's Make A Deal' and win - George Austin on the Ainge trade. Page 20.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1989

COLLEGIAN

VOLUME CXXII LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY IN NEW ENGLAND ISSUE 21

Republican Club threatens suit

School fails to restore meeting privileges

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

The Republican Club intends to sue University of Massachusetts administrators by Friday, because Campus Center privileges were not restored to the club, members said yesterday.

Meeting area and equipment privileges were taken away from the Republican Club and from Friends of the Spartacus League last week.

The sanctions followed a Feb. 9 brawl between members of the Republican Club and the Spartacus League, during a forum in the Campus Center. The Cambridge-based Spartacus League was invited to campus by The Friends of Spartacus League, a UMass student organization.

Administrators also rescinded the privileges of five other conservative organizations to prevent the Republican Club from meeting in the other groups' meeting spaces, said Assistant Dean of Students Eileen Stewart. The other groups are: Students for Bush, Students for Life, Students against any inefficient Government and Administration, Silent Majority (publishers of the Minuteman), and the Organization for American Studies.

W. Greg Rothman, chairman of the Conservative Alliance, which comprises all conservative campus groups, issued an ultimatum to administrators last Thursday, saying he would file the suit in Northampton District Court Monday morning if privileges are not restored to the groups by 5 p.m. Friday.

Rothman said he planned to name Chancellor Joseph Duffey, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson, Student Activities director Irene Carew, director of Building Services Dudley Bridges and Assistant Dean of Students Eileen Stewart as defendants in the suit.

But, Republican Club member Paul McGonnigal said yesterday, although Building Services agreed to restore privileges to the other five conservative

continued on page 6

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

John Farmer and Suzanne Palmer are living in shanties near the Student Union to protest budget cuts.

Shantytown protest weathers the cold

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

Residents of "Cutback City" withstood light snowfall and bitter cold yesterday, as they spent their fourth night in their mock shantytown protesting state budget cuts.

Three small wooden huts sealed with plastic sheeting and one green pup tent dot the lawn west of the Student Union building. The mock shantytown is intended to symbolize the impoverished state of public higher education, according to members of Students for a Democratic University.

Senior Sean Munzert, a member of the group, said the students built the shacks to force state legislators to take notice of the situation.

"We just felt that something had to be done," he said. "It's a significant statement rather than something temporal like a rally, which they can ignore more easily."

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson said the group will not be removed and encouraged the students to attend a public meeting Thursday in the Campus Center to discuss the budget cutbacks.

The group is also protesting attempts to run the University "like a business" under former Sen. Paul Tsongas, chairman-designate of the state Board of Regents of Higher Education, Munzert said.

"It's going to skew all the funding toward science and engineering, instead of human and social sciences," he said. "The diversity of the University will disappear."

Munzert said the group is collecting scrap lumber to expand the "city" and encouraged all University students to join their cause.

"We're giving the students a vehicle to mobilize around the cuts," he said. "The more people who join, the more of a statement we make."

"It's very comfortable in the shanties," Munzert said. "The plastic keeps the weather out."

The group has no intentions of removing the huts until their message denouncing budget cuts is heard by state legislators and action is taken, he said.

"We're not going to give up," Munzert said. "The quality of public higher education is going to sink."

Store to host April bunny

By SHARON WILKEY
Collegian Staff

A Playboy "bunny" is coming to Amherst.

Allison Decker, a University of Connecticut freshman, is scheduled to sign autographs Thursday at the Amherst Newsroom to promote the magazine's "Girls of the Big East" April issue.

The downtown store, a distributor of Playboy, has been the site of recent protests by local activists who maintain the store sells pornography, and that "pornography is the malicious destruction of women and children."

Decker's appearance is part of a promotional campaign organized by Playboy each year, a Playboy spokeswoman said.

Karen Ring, a publicist for the magazine, said the owners of the Amherst Newsroom, the Holyoke News Company, requested the autograph session. The Newsroom is the only store in Massachusetts to be visited by a Playboy model as part of this campaign, Ring said.

Decker, 18, said she is "thrilled" to be one of three UConn women in the magazine. "Playboy is respectable," she said. "They are discreet and they aren't trying to make women look bad."

Decker, a nursing student from Somers, Conn., said she was not aware that the Amherst store had been picketed in the past. "I don't consider nude modeling to be pornography," she said.

But, she said "I wouldn't pose for Hustler or magazines like that."

In January, Sandra Goodman of Northampton was arrested and charged with destroying property at the Amherst Newsroom. She is accused of pouring glue on magazines in the "adult only" section of the local store. Goodman's trial has been set for April 27.

Donna Rose, manager of the store, said she did not know if any protests are planned for Thursday. "But I wouldn't be at all surprised," if protesters appeared, she said.

UMass employees play the dating game

By ANN WHITEHEAD
Collegian Correspondent

Ask graduate students and younger faculty and staff members about their ability to find relationships, and you may find that they need a shoulder to cry on.

"There are thousands of people who have no unified, consistent way of meeting people on a regular basis," said Anna Tolentino Voegeli, a member of The Social Network.

The Social Network is a newly-formed organization made up of University faculty and staff members, graduate students, and non-traditional students, according to Susan Kahn, a staff assistant in the Office of Human Relations and coordinator of a steering committee for the organization.

Kahn said 30 people attended The Social Network's meeting earlier this month, which she said suggests the organization is necessary at the University of Massachusetts.

Kahn said she received several calls from Mental Health and Residence Hall staff. She said those callers expressed concern over complaints of isolation and disconnectedness made by graduate students and young, single University employees.

She said that this isolation leads in greater problems. "A sense of isolation weighs heavily on staff morale and possibly on staff productivity," Kahn said. "The University risks losing good people, because they come here and they hate it."

Members of the Social Network discussed last week, over drinks, what lead them to the organization. They asked that their named not be used.

One of the men, a single faculty member, has been in the area for a little over four years. Most of the other faculty members in his department are married, he said, which excludes him form their family and couple-oriented social life.

"They're all x's and I'm an o," he joked. "And you don't want to have social contacts with students."

He said he doesn't know where to find other single people his age. "The social life of the community revolves around undergraduates. Businesses in this region need to extend their horizons to older people and make more of an effort to appeal to more than just the hard-rock crowd.

"They tell single people to join clubs, so I thought I'd join the UMass ski club, but that's all undergraduates," he said, adding that after such futile efforts, "You end up reading the [Valley Advocate] personals seriously and not just as a joke. You join dating services and end up feel-

continued on page 6

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper Daily circulation 21,000 Founded in 1870 Published every weekday during the semester calendar The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts 113 Campus Center Amherst MA 01003 For more information call (413) 545-3500

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
AD MANAGER	BETTY-ANN MURPHY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE GEORGE FRANCY TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	NANCY KLINGENER
COPY EDITOR	SAM SILVERSTEIN
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	FLORENCIO TERRA
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	FLORENCIO TERRA
PRODUCTION	WENDY RAE NUTTER CHRISTINE JOYCE THOM DEVITA BRITT WINER PAUL SPECHT JOE KEENAN

AP photo

NEW NAMES — Twin hippos born at the Memphis Zoo two months ago are no longer nameless. A name-the-hippos contest drew 2,300 entries, including a dozen for "Splish & Splash," the winner. Officials say mother hippo, Julie, hasn't allowed them to get close enough to determine the babies' sex.

Learn Bartending during Spring Break... call today
New England Bartenders School (617) 247-1600
811 Boylston Street
Boston, MA 02116
Lic. by Comm. of Mass. Department of Education
Member - Mass. Assoc. of Private Career Schools

EVERYBODY SAY, "HAPPY BIRTHDAY" TO GAIL GUIDARA TODAY!

Fancy Fingers
NAIL & SKIN CARE SALON
The ultimate in nail fashion and skin beauty
For Appointment call 549-4979
February Special
Complimentary Eyelash Tint with Every Facial
Manicures • Waxing
And Much More!
228 Triangle St., Amherst

ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31
KAY JEWELERS
The diamond people
STUDENTS TAKE ADDITIONAL
10% OFF ALL SALE PRICED JEWELRY
With any valid student ID
INSTANT CREDIT AVAILABLE
Hampshire Mall, Hadley
MON-SAT: 10-9:30; SUN: 12-5
ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31

BACK SCHOOL 101
Prerequisite:
Back pain & a referral from your UHS provider
This 4 session program
(classes one week apart)
includes information on exercise, some anatomy, massage, treatment options, posture tips, pain relief methods and relaxation
DATES & TIME: Monday, April 3, 10, & 14 at 7:00-9:00 pm
Tuesday, April 18 at 6:00-8:00 pm
PLACE:
University Health Center
• Please advise your UHS provider for the proper referral
Call UHS Health Education for information and Registration: 549-2671, ext. 181

The only way to go.
Peter Pan
Stratton
Express Package
A great day of skiing shouldn't have to end with a long and boring drive home. This year, once again Peter Pan is offering a Ski Express package to Stratton Mountain. Pack your skis safely in our spacious luggage compartments, board our Peter Pan motorcoach, sit back, relax and ride in confidence.
Then enjoy a full day of great skiing at Stratton. You'll explore up to 90 exciting trails, and with the new Stratton Starship XII summit gondola, you'll spend more time skiing, less time waiting.
The Peter Pan/Stratton Mountain Ski Express ... a great package price, great skiing, and the comforts of a warm motorcoach. It's the only way to go. Agreed?
Package includes:
Round-trip transportation and a one day lift ticket for as little as $29.95.
Advanced reservations only. For further information on pick up points, prices and schedules, contact:
The People Professionals
NON-STOP SERVICE FROM GREENFIELD AVAILABLE THROUGH
Clarke Sporting Goods, 289 Main Street, Greenfield, MA Call [illegible]98
79 South Pleasant Street, Amherst, MA, 256-0431
UMASS Campus Center, Amherst, MA Ticket Office 545-2006
Peter Pan Bus Terminal, 1776 Main Street, Springfield, MA
Call 1-800-332-4095 Ext 270
For group rate information, contact Peter Pan Charter Department 781-2900

LOCAL

Students rush budget response

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

The release of a proposed budget that would mean severe cuts for higher education has sent student government officials at colleges and universities scrambling to organize protests, claiming time is running out.

"It's critical that students mobilize," said Student Trustee Stephanie Orefice. "We don't have the time we used to."

The state House Ways and Means committee approved the 1990 higher education budget two weeks early last Wednesday, Orefice said. The budget was approved at $638.4 million. $31 million less than Gov. Michael Dukakis' original proposal.

"I think it was done to put people off guard," she said. The legislature will review the budget next week, which Orefice said "is really soon. It's going to mean a lot of work."

On Thursday, students across the state will hold rallies at their respective colleges and universities to protest the budget cuts, Orefice said. The University of Massachusetts rally will be held at noon on the steps of the Student Union building.

"If we don't have our voice heard and heard loudly, we're going to have to go through another year of revisions and add/drop lines," she said.

More than 1,000 students are expected to journey to Boston to demonstrate on the steps of the State House March 7, but the last-minute event may make it difficult to lobby state representatives, Orefice said.

The letter-writing campaigns to state representatives in Boston have spread to residential areas in an effort to accelerate the lobbying process, she said.

Northeast Area president John Dunlap is offering a $100 prize to the residence hall in his area that produces the most letters and the Greek Area is collecting letters from house to house, Orefice said.

The Orchard Hill area government has established "action committees" for letter writing and tables have been erected in the dining commons in the Southwest Residential Area and residence halls in Sylvan, she said.

Administrators at Whitmore Administration building will also contribute to the effort this week by allowing students and faculty to use their telephone lines to contact parents and alumni to encourage them to lobby state legislators, Orefice said.

The telephones will be available starting tomorrow from 6 to 9 p.m. on weekdays and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. during the weekend, she said.

"They can call parents, relatives, and neighbors and get them to write letters," she said. "Students carry a lot of weight, but we don't carry as much as the people who aren't here."

A meeting will be held today at noon at the Massachusetts Society of Professors in Hampshire house to prepare faculty, staff and students for the week ahead, Orefice said.

An organizational meeting for students will also be held tonight at 8 p.m. in room 168 in the Campus Center, she said.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

JUST A LITTLE BIT COUNTRY — Will Janowhite has his morning coffee outside the Country Store in Easthampton.

Car fire draws police to Dallas Mall

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts police reported yesterday they found a 1984 Dodge fully engulfed in flames Sunday morning on the campus.

The owner said he was operating the vehicle on University Drive when he observed smoke coming from the engine compartment. Upon pulling the car into the Dallas Mall flames enveloped the vehicle. Damage was estimated to be about $3,000, police said.

In other police reports:

- Amherst police said they arrested a 19-year-old Worcester man Sunday night after he allegedly smashed in the glass door at Barselotti's tavern on North Pleasant Street. The man was arrested on charges of malicious destruction of property, police said.
- A 21-year-old Boston man was arrested Friday on charges of trespassing at Whitmore Administration Building after being given notice, police said.
- A 19 -year-old Holyoke man was arrested Friday at Coolidge Residence Hall on charges of being a minor in possession of alcohol, police said.
- A student reported being assaulted in the basement of Van Meter Residence Hall while he was working there Friday, police said. The man was advised by officers on how to pursue a complaint in court, police said.
- A 19-year-old Coolidge Resident was arrested Friday on charges of being a minor in possession of alcohol, police said.
- A 25-year-old Van Meter Resident was arrested Saturday on charges of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol, police said.
- A $2,500 Buick was reported stolen from Lot 50 Saturday, police said.
- A 25-year-old New Hampshire man was arrested Saturday on charges of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol, police said.
- A license plate was reported stolen Saturday from a vehicle parked in Stadium Lot E, police said.

A student reported Saturday cash and jewelry worth $250 had been stolen from her room in Emerson Residence Hall, police said.

- A chair was reported stolen Saturday from Gorman Residence Hall. The chair was worth $100, police said
- A student reported Saturday a license plate had been stolen from his car parked in Lot 32, police said.
- Police said they responded to a medical emergency in Brown Residence Hall Sunday when a young man received a severe cut on his arm from a broken window. An Amherst Fire Department ambulance transported the man to Cooley Dickinson Hospital, police said.
- A security officer reported a smashed window on the west side of Melville Residence Hall Sunday. A man was seen running from the area, police said.
- Police said they found a male student with head injuries who had been assaulted on the third floor of Mackimmie Residence Hall Sunday. The man was transported by an Amherst Fire Ambulance to Cooley Dickenson Hospital. Police said they identified the responsible second party and will seek a show cause hearing in court.

Collegian photo by Joel Solomon

Social theorist Stuart Hall spoke on "Race, Culture and the Media" at a special convocation yesterday.

Sociologist discusses education and racism

By ANN WHITEHEAD
Collegian Correspondent

The principal function of a university is to address the most disturbing questions of a society in the most rigorous way possible, black social theorist Stuart Hall said yesterday.

"No university [that] wants to hold its head up in the 20th century can afford to cast a dispassionate eye on the problems of racism and ethnicity which have beset our world," Hall said, at a special convocation in Bowker Auditorium.

University of Massachusetts President David Knapp and Provost Richard O'Brien presented Hall with an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters for "the contribution he has made to the issue of race, culture, and politics within the university community," O'Brien said.

Hall, professor of sociology at the Open University in England, told the audience of about 450 that examining the representation of blacks in the media is an important part of examining society's racist structures. "The reality of a society is media-mediated," he said.

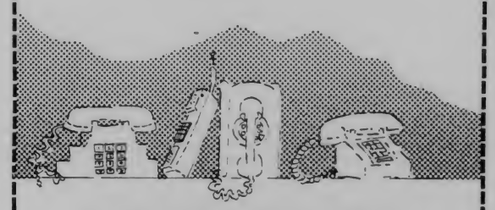
Hall said it is important to examine what is left out of media portraits of blacks since they are often "simplified and truncated ways of representing their history and culture."

At the heart of racism lies "a deep system of defense" stemming from a denial of "how necessary the other is to our identity," he said.

"People don't know how to deal with the dangerous threat that differences reflect," he said, adding people "suppress the differences to contain and expel them."

Hall, a native of Kingston, Jamaica, attended Merton College in England, where he was a Rhodes Scholar. He has been a leader in the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament as well as in various movements to combat racism in England, and he has emerged in the 1980s as one of the movement's most articulate spokespersons.

1988-89 STUDENT TELEPHONE DIRECTORY SPRING SUPPLEMENT



AVAILABLE: WEDNESDAY
LOCATION: CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE

The Spring Supplement of the Student Telephone Directory is a limited printing of 5,000 copies. Distribution priority is given to students. There is no direct distribution to residence halls, administrative, or faculty offices. Please take one copy only. Thank you for your cooperation.

STUDENT AFFAIRS INFORMATION SERVICES

COMING SOON

Murray D's

COLLEGIAN

ATTENTION SOPHOMORE/JUNIOR MARKETING MAJORS

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World.

THE COLLEGIAN is offering the opportunity to gain THE MOST VALUABLE BUSINESS EXPERIENCE on campus

Applications for position of
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER
are now being accepted

This position requires Responsibility Dedication and Time Commitment—the qualities that future employers are looking for.

Come down to the Collegian Business Office in the Campus Center (RM 113 - lower level, 545-3500) and pick up a job application and description and submit it no later than Wednesday, March 1

M/F—EOE

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS
MARCH 18-25

When you break away this year, do it with style

SUN FUN!! round trip air
7 nights
great night life

Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB
547-3437
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.

$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP

THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION

A $75 Reservation Deposit Required

SAVE UMASS SKI CLUB

LAGNAF 430 Student Union • 545-3437

Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Forum

The LBG forum is a service of the Collegian to the University and area gay, lesbian and bisexual communities. For more information on how to get your press release or public service announcement in the LBG forum, contact Sharon at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Planning committee
The LBGA Awareness Week planning committee will meet from noon to 1:30 p.m. today in the Campus Center. Call 545-4824.

Meeting
All are welcome to the Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Alliance business meeting at 6:30 p.m. today in Student Union Room 413. Call 545-0154 for more information.

Rap group
The lesbian, bisexual, gay, counseling collective will sponsor an open discussion at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Student Union 413. Lesbians, gays, bisexuals and heterosexuals questioning their sexuality are welcome. For more information call 545-2645.

Social hour
The LBGA will sponsor a coffee social from 3-5:30 p.m. Friday, on the 8th floor of the Campus Center. All are welcome. Call 545-0154.

Dance
The LBGA is sponsoring a dance Saturday, March 4, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. on the 10th floor of the campus center. $3 donation.

Counseling
The lesbian, bisexual, gay counseling collective offers free confidential peer counseling in Room 406G Student Union. Office hours are Monday, Wednesday and Thursday 11a.m. to 7 p.m., Tuesday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Friday 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.. Call 545-2645 for more information.

League reclaims potatoes' past glory

By JENNIFER ROOKS
Collegian Correspondent

In France, it's "pomme de terre." In Germany, it's "Kartoffel." In southern Spain, they affectionately call it "papa." But here in the United States, we have turned him into a lazy, lounging lump.

Is the potato getting a bad rap? One group in Amherst thinks so. They have formed the "Potato Anti-Defamation League."

Spokesperson Kristine Suarez, a University of Massachusetts art history major, said the league formed in 1987, when her family moved to Amherst from Spain.

"When we saw what the Americans did to our friend the potato, we were horrified," she said.

The four-member league includes Suarez and her two sons, Nico, 12, and Andres, 7. Nico agreed with his mother, saying, "The Americans have taken the noble soul of the potato and degraded him. He deserves a better title." Andres said, "they made him into a fat slob."

The league was also formed as a response to "couch potato" label used to describe persons who watch a lot of television, Suarez said. The organization's advertisement says kids watch an average of 25 hours of television each week, as many hours as they spend in the classroom.

Suarez said the concept for the league began in 1984, while the family was living in Cadaques, near Barcelona.

"It started out as sort of a family joke," she said. "We started telling stories about the potato and drawing pictures of him on napkins in restaurants. It was all just for fun."

The potato has its own personality, as well, according to Ms. Suarez. The vegetable is stubborn, occasionally shy and likes fine cuisine, as long as he's not the entree, she said.

"You see, Americans have never really met the potato. We have," she said.

The family made up sayings or "peelings," as the kids called them. "You can lead a potato to water, but it won't float" and "She's a real hot potato." Of course, where would we be without potato jokes? "When does the potato grow up?" Nico asked. "It never grows up; it grows down."

Ms. Suarez decided to put all of these tales and trivia into a book titled The Secret Life of the Potato.

Weil said the league has sold buttons with the potato logo on the Campus Center concourse and plans to sell them to stores in Amherst. The buttons cost $1.50 each.

The Potato Anti-Defamation League, whose name is copyrighted, is open to anyone. For $2, members receive a "True Potato" button and a lifetime membership diploma, Ms. Suarez said.

The league hopes to fight the syndrome of television addiction and to earn a better name for potatoes, she said. "Real potatoes were meant for better things."

Council Travel

DON'T WAIT
BOOK NOW FOR SPRING BREAK!
SPRINGBREAK From BOSTO
4 NIGHTS NASSAU $379pp
7 NIGHTS CANCUN $479pp
7 NIGHTS PUERTO la CRUZ $599pp
VENEZUELA, the NEW EXOTIC DESTINATION!
Incl all hotel/room taxes & service charges
Departure taxes not included
BOOK NOW!
413-256-1261
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

NOW...
ON SATURDAY
IN AMHERST!

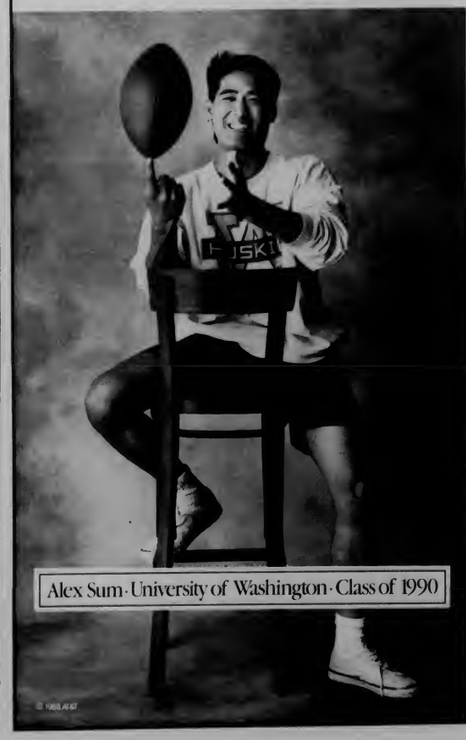
FILM IN BY 11:00 am
PRINTS OUT BY 2:00 pm

1-HOUR SERVICE ALSO AVAILABLE

The Foto Factory

257 TRIANGLE ST. / AMHERST

"I wasn't rubbing it in—I just wanted Eddie to know the score of last night's game."



Alex Sum · University of Washington · Class of 1990

Go ahead and gloat. You can rub it in all the way to Chicago with AT&T Long Distance Service. Besides, your best friend Eddie was the one who said your team could never win three straight.

So give him a call. It costs a lot less than you think to let him know who's headed for the Playoffs. Reach out and touch someone.®

If you'd like to know more about AT&T products and services, like International Calling and the AT&T Card, call us at 1 800 222-0300.

AT&T
The right choice.

■ lawsuit

continued from page 1

groups by the time specified, they did not give back privileges to his group. McGonnigal said the suit will proceed.

Director of Building Services Dudley Bridges said he lifted the restrictions on the five other groups because only the Republican Club was involved in the fight.

Less Black, attorney for the Republican Club, has agreed to take the case pro-bono, free of charge, because he said he feels it was unconstitutional for the administration to sanction an entire organization for the actions of individual members.

The Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs office refused to comment on the threatened suit — save that the Republicans may have a viable point to argue.

The investigation into responsibility for the fight, which holds the privileges for the Republican Club and the Friends of the Spartacus League in the balance, will soon be completed, Assistant Dean of Students Eileen Stewart said.

The Spartacus League members who fought with the Republicans will face seven counts of assault and battery in Northampton today.

■ Social Network

continued from page 1

ing ripped off. You just end up floundering like that. So you get discouraged and stay at home within your own environment."

A 24-year-old female residence director said it was frustrating not knowing what steps to take toward meeting people. "We're in a minority," she said. "I still look like a student, so you could be at a bar and not even know if there was another staff person there."

"It's not that I don't like students," she said, "but I want to meet people my own age."

She said the result is "you turn into your job, and you end up working too much."

A male Health Services employee, who moved from New York six years ago, said, "In a big city people walk by without even looking at each other. It's the same here; people say he's not in my department, so they don't bother."

He said he sees The Social Network as an opportunity to break out of department barriers. "There is such a wealth of interesting people here," he said. "Everyone is well educated. They should be able to get together."

FYI

For Your Information is a service of the Collegian to its readers. Because of a lack of space, not all press releases can be included in FYI. For more information, contact David at the Collegian, at 545-3500.

Meeting

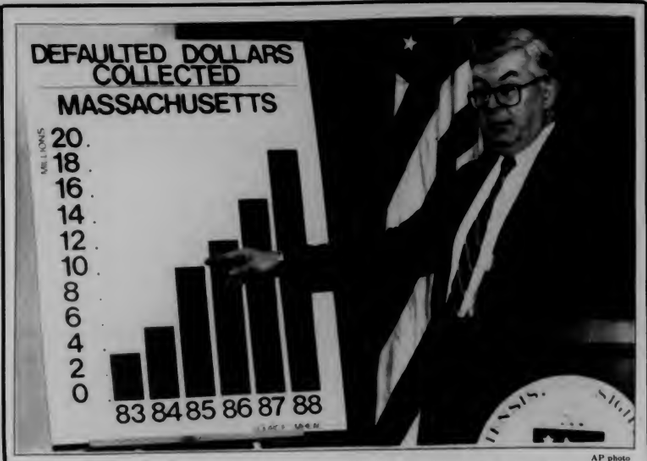
The UMass chapter of Amnesty International has scheduled a meeting for 7 p.m. today in room 811B of the Campus Center. For more information, contact Jennifer Ott at 253-7230.

Lecture

The first of three lectures to be delivered by Smith College professor Charles V. Hamilton, "Dual Agenda: Social Policies of Civil Rights Organizations, New Deal to the Present," is scheduled for 8 p.m. today in Wright Hall at the college. For more information, contact Debra Bradley at 585-2190.

Census Information

The annual town census is now underway by mail in Amherst. All forms must be returned by tomorrow. For more information, contact Cornelia Como at 253-9382.



AP photo

COLLECTING STUDENT LOANS — Joseph M. Cronin, president of the Massachusetts Higher Education Assistance Corporation, gestures yesterday to a chart diagraming the ammount of uncollected student loans since 1983 in Massachusetts during a news conference at the Statehouse in Boston, to announce a new state initiative to recover more than $175 million in unpaid federal education loans.

Work continues at registrar's office

By LARA DMYTRYSHYN
Collegian Correspondent

The end of the add/drop period is not a time of peace and relaxation — but the beginning of another hectic semester, according to employees in the registrar's office.

"The emphasis of work in the office shifts following add/drop from student contact to a massive dose of paper work, which is not always preferable," said Janet Bell, associate registrar.

Bell said she could not begin to estimate the number of students who passed through the office each day during "that dreaded period."

"It could be hundreds, even thousands," she said. "Some days it seems like more because certain students require more time for advice and consultation."

About 15,000 forms are returned within the final two days of the add/drop period, which ended Feb. 13, Bell said.

Marion Markwell, a 36-year employee in the Registrar's Office, now in her 73rd semester of registration, said, "This last day [Feb. 13] was the worst I have been through out of all my years here. The biggest percentage was returned on this day."

Revising all the students' schedules, organizing this semester's final exam times, and developing the fall 1989 schedule becomes the focus for the next several months until the cycle begins to circle around once again.

Spring semester seems to be a little less chaotic than the fall, said Bell. "There is even a time in mid to late March that allows free time to catch up and gear up for pre-registration."

The 35 women who staff the registrar's office are responsible for many activities, including the maintenance of academic records, as well as grade processing and official record keeping.

One way the employees make it through the day without tearing each others' hair out is by knowing how to laugh, they agree. Sandy Watkins, supervisor of records, attempted to keep things light in the office by constructing a sign, originating from Bobby McFerrin's award-winning song, "Don't Worry, Be Happy."

"If I ever get stressed, I walk by the sign and read it out loud. It definitely helps the atmosphere in the office," Markwell said. "You have to mix pleasure with work and the older I get, the more I see how true that statement is."

T.O.E.F.L.
Test of English as a Foreign Language preparation
CLASS
UMass/Amherst
April 3 to May 10
Monday and Wednesday
6:30 pm to 9:30 pm
Experienced Instructors
$150
to register call: 546-4576

Beat Cafe Presents
"Highly Recommended!" Critics Choice:
A J·A·Z·Z P·L·A·Y
KEROUAC
THE ESSENCE OF JACK

March 1, 8 P.M.
Hampden Theater
$5/$3 stu./s.c.
For Tickets call
545-2511
"Awww-some"
Sponsored by Residential Arts and the UMASS Arts Council
Hampden Theater is located in the Southeast residential area at the top of the horseshoe on University Drive between Fearing Street and Massachusetts Avenue

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-RENT

Beautiful Cliffs...
Endless Beaches...
Only In
JAMAICA!
Spring Break '89
Call Paul at 549-4289

AMHERST CINEMA
The Naked Gun
Two Shows 7 & 8:45

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT
Print Shop
226 Triangle St., Amherst

Short stories land prize for professor

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

The National Endowment of the Arts recently awarded a grant of $20,000 to Jay Neugeboren, professor of English and writer in residence at the University of Massachusetts, for five related short stories entitled "Sanguinary Tales."

"It's a lovely prize," said Neugeboren. "I'm just happy to get it. The nicest thing about it is the money. It gives me the freedom and feeling that I can write whatever I want."

The stories which won the award were created "leftovers" from other work and some of the ideas had been with Neugeboren for 20 years, he said.

"They were images that themselves had never become stories," he said.

The stories are called sanguinary "because they're kind of bloody," said Neugeboren. The stories are "coming from a part of myself that is more primitive and raw."

Neugeboren was especially pleased by the award because he was being recognized for a style of writing which he had never previously attempted.

"The judges are other writers and it's blind judging. Someone asked me if I liked that and my answer was yes because it means I'm being judged solely on the work" and not on reputation, he said.

The Brooklyn-born Neugeboren started writing early. His first work, a 70-page novel, was written at eight. His second was written in his sophomore year at Columbia University and his third in his senior year there, he said.

At 50, he has written ten novels, hundreds of short stories which have appeared in anthologies and magazines such as The Atlantic and Esquire, and a number of screenplays.

Writing hasn't come easy for Neugeboren. Much of the time filling pages is just plain hard work, he said.

"Sentences don't come easy to me," he said, "You just have to keep doing it until you do it right.

"I don't write to change the world. But I hope that in the privacy of my readers lives what I write will make a significant difference," he said.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman
Jay Neugeboren

The Spoke
Drink of the Week
White or Black Russians
$1.00
Beers of the Month
Bass Ale $1.75
and Grolsch $1.75
35 E. Pleasant St. • Proper ID required!

ACCIDENT VICTIMS
Know Your Legal Rights
Call us for FREE answers
Concentration in injuries from: • Auto Accidents • Slips and Falls • Workers Compensation • Dog Bites • And All Other Accidents • No legal fee unless successful; costs payable at conclusion in most cases • FREE Consultation
SOFORENKO & GOGEL, P.C.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
586-6700 • 1-800-245-5678
see us in the Nynex yellow pages

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY

Why More?
The UMASS Ski Club invites you to Montego Bay, Jamaica, West Indies. We will be staying in the Towers at the Seawinds Resort where all your Spring Break needs are directly below. We are next to the beach, pool, evening entertainment, tennis courts, and the hottest night club in the bay. Located five minutes from town, this resort has, at your disposal, water sports, sunbathing, and an array of restaurants and bars. Don't be lured by low-budget, problem-filled tear-offs that, in the end, turn to rip-offs. WE PROVIDE GUARANTEED RESERVED ACCOMMODATIONS AND FLIGHTS! Spend $9 a day more and step above the rest on your own vacation island!
A VACATION SHOULD BE A PLEASURE— NOT A HASSLE!
LAGNAF
BECAUSE IT'S WORTH IT
Mar. 18 - Mar. 25 • $569 per person from JFK
All Prices are Inclusive—No Hidden Extras
Double & Triple Occupancy Rates Available
Presented By
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437
MasterCard VISA

NORTHEAST AREA GOVERNMENT
&
Distinguished Visitors Program present
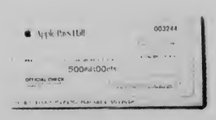
WED MARCH 1st
CCA 7:30

IRELAND: A TERRIBLE BEAUTY
Guest Speakers
MAYOR RAYMOND FLYNN
&
INEZ McCORMACK
Irish Protestant Labor Leader in England

How to get through college with money to spare:

1. Buy a Macintosh.

2. Add a peripheral.



3. Get a nice, fat check.

Now through March 31, when you buy selected Macintosh® SE or Macintosh II computers, you'll get a rebate for up to half the suggested retail price of the Apple® peripherals you add on—so you'll save up to $800. Ask for details today where computers are sold on campus.

Apple Pays Half

LOCATED IN THE CAMPUS CENTER

UNIVERSITY STORE

OPEN M—F 9-5 SAT 10-3

© 1989 Apple Computer, Inc. Apple, the Apple logo, and Macintosh are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Certain restrictions apply. All rebates subject to strict compliance with the Terms and Conditions of the "Apple Pays Half" Program Guidelines, available from your authorized Apple reseller. Offer void where prohibited by law.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Justice and reconciliation will end racism

(I had two errors in last week's column. UMass does not require teaching assistants to take a full load of courses. Also, recent reports say admissions here will be down by 400 next year, not the thousands reported earlier that I alluded to.)

Since this is the last day of Black History Month, I thought I'd air my thoughts about Minister Louis Farrakhan's visit. We all know he has tried to advance the cause of his own minority by slandering another — Jews. Nevertheless, he is a man of some influence; it is always wise to at least hear such a man out.

Rusty Denton

Among other things, Farrakhan told local Afro-Americans they have a natural dignity that transcends the oppressions of history. He told them not to feel sorry for themselves, that hard work and self-respect were the key to success. I think those things are true for all people, black or white, female or male, but I don't imagine I could say it with quite the impact that Farrakhan did. On this campus, it took a man of his background and abilities to drive home a message about dignity and hope.

Farrakhan also recited a history of Africa and Afro-Americans, expounding his theory that Islam is the heritage of Africans, while Christianity (the "white man's religion") is their oppressor. Obviously, he has a vested interest in his statements on religion, but I haven't seen a response to them in print.

If we want to talk about the "religious heritage" of Africans, strictly speaking it would have to be animism and local religions. Islam only came later.

Moreover, Islam itself is at least as open as Christianity to charges of racial iniquities by its adherents. Consider a few. There are accounts of involvement by Muslim Arabs in the African slave trade (more recently, the sale of young Arab girls persisted into the 1950's). The Black Muslim sect in America has teachers who say everything white is evil and everything black is good. Israel has many Islamic enemies whose chief gripe is an ethnic one. And in Uganda in the 1970's, Idi Amin tried to eradicate all tribes but his own in the name of Islam.

My point here is not to insult Muslims, among whom I count some friends, but to say that Farrakhan's criticisms and one-sided versions of history deserve to be exposed for what they are.

Contrary to Farrakhan's statements, many Christians fought oppression of blacks in the West. The celebrated Livingston ("Dr. Livingston, I presume") was a Christian missionary and noted geographer in Africa. His letters home about the atrocities of the slavers were famous in America, providing powerful fuel for the controversy that led to the Civil War.

In Britain, a born-again Christian named William Wilburforce campaigned in Parliament for 40 years to end slavery there. The bill he ultimately obtained has been called one of the two or three entirely righteous acts in history by a nation, since it freed and provided for all the nation's slaves, and reimbursed slaveowners for the financial loss that emancipation incurred. It was a solution calculated to defuse racial bitterness.

In America, by contrast, young and old died in a bitter war, racism festered, and what we paid in bonuses to Union veterans would have purchased the freedom of every slave in the country.

It seems to me that in his rhetoric, Farrakhan favors American forcefulness over the British sort of peaceful redemptive solution to end racial injustice. That is, Farrakhan hastens to declare racial war. He fosters division and enmity, thinking somehow that will bring parity between races. Think again, Minister. We need justice, I agree. But we also need reconciliation.

Rusty Denton is a Collegian columnist

Miller apologizes

Recently, we distributed in your newspaper a "Spring Break Guide," which outlined Miller Brewing Company's planned activities in Daytona Beach, Fla., and South Padre Island, Texas, during March.

Since its distribution, concerns have been voiced about the "tone" and content of the brochure.

Miller's intention was to create a humorous takeoff on Spring Break. We certainly did not intend to produce material which might be considered offensive or inappropriate. Consequently, we've stopped all further distribution of the guide.

Susan A. Henderson
Miller Brewing Company

David Duke: The Republican reject

"There is no place for racial, religious, or economic bigotry in a nation that is faithful to its founding principles of liberty and individual rights. Likewise, there is no place in either of America's major political parties — organizations which help govern this nation — for individuals who espouse bigotry as a way of life."

Lee Atwater
Chairman of the Republican National Committee

The Republican party does not want him. People in the Democratic party are appalled. The public in general is shocked. How could an ex-Ku Klux Klan grand wizard become an ELECTED official representing American constituents, constituents who supposedly believe in equality?

Meredith O'Brien

On February 22, David Duke was elected to the Louisiana Legislature.

I can not believe this, it makes me sick.

This man (aside from being the ex-head of the most racist and disturbed group in our country) established the National Association for the Advancement of White People. The ambition of the group was to form resettlement areas for blacks, Jewish people, and people with IQs below 100. Yes, in this country there are people who firmly believe that it is their right as American citizens to force other American citizens to live in dilapidated, isolated parts of the country.

David Duke was patriotic enough to explain to the people of Louisiana, that the Civil Rights legislation has gone too far. He blames all of the crime in New Orleans on the black population, who are also responsible for the exploitation of whites through Affirmative Action, and the rise of illegitimate births.

David Duke has successfully convinced the blatant racists and anti-semites of the South that HE will save them from the people who drag white America down. These stupid, ignorant Southerners voted for this man (and I use the term very loosely).

Once elected, he told the National Republican Party how he abhors racists and anti-semites. He is as pure as apple-pie. He desires "equality" for all. (Remember, this is coming from a man whose phone number is still the same as the Louisiana KKK headquarters.)

Then why does the Republican party reject him? Why does President Bush condemn him? The head of the Republican National Committee has called this man a "political fraud — a charlatan and a faker — looking for any mantle of legitimacy to hang his ridculous views of white supremacy, anti-semitism, ethnic purity and just plain hatred."

With our president calling for a "kinder and gentler nation," it is very difficult for me to comprehend how American citizens could, in their right minds, vote for this man. It is such obvious racism and anti-semitism. Aren't they ashamed of themselves?

It never ceases to amaze me how ignorant the citizens of this country can be, how selfish and egotistical. When people like David Duke are upheld to be model citizens elected to institutions where they are supposed to represent ALL of the citizens, I become embarrassed for America. Embarrassed for the people of this country who are NOT racist or anti-semetic. I wish strength to those who have the misfortune of having Duke as their link to justice.

But I have a solution! If these people are so bent on segregation, "resettlement" and white supremacy, then why don't we ship these people to a deserted island where they can exist all by themselves. Let them wallow in their supremacy.

We don't need these type of people in our country. And we especially don't want these people running our country.

Meredith O'Brien is a Collegian columnist

There are alternatives to having an abortion

I am dismayed at the prevalent attitude in America that the only life of value in considering abortion is that of the woman (who, incidentally, is seldom acknowledged as the mother). This attitude was espoused by Janine Warner ("Are anti-abortionists really on the side of life?", Feb. 16).

She mentioned the 100,000 women who died having illegal abortions before the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision, but she failed to consider the corresponding 1,000,000 defenseless infants who died, also illegally. Granted, many people don't believe that the "mass of flesh" carried in the womb during the first several weeks is actually human, but how can we say that? What if Warner's mother decided hat the "fetus" later to become Warner was inconvenient, and she decided to have an abortion? I assure you, it would have been Warner that would have died, not a sub-human or lifeless mass of flesh.

One of my friends was a candidate for abortion: his mother was advised by her doctor that her pregnancy was a risk to; her won life. She chose to continue the pregnancy, and 20 years later, she is still healthy, her son is healthy, she is a grandmother, and my friend is a father. Who knows how many leaders, how many great men and women, this and future generations have lost because of our decisions of convenience (read: infanticide)? The ramifications are staggering.

Do we have the right to decide who lives and who dies? What about those babies whose embryonic fluid shows the potential for birth defects? Should they be aborted? Are the handicapped unfit to live? What if they aren't really even handicapped? What if they aren't really even handicapped? Dare we decide who is fit to live? The logical extension of the "right" to make such decisions is not unlike Hitler's genocide and his idea of the "master race."

One could argue that an abortion in this case would spare the family and the child a lifetime of suffering. But is hardship such a bad thing? Life is hard. If you haven't learned that yet, you haven't lived long enough. No one is prepared to comfort one who is suffering as one who has suffered. Some of the strongest people I know are those who have endured extreme hardship, who have worked hard to survive and keep their heads above water. Usually, the more they suffered, the stronger they were. Conversely, many of the shallowest people I know are those whose lives are soft.

America needs an attitude transplant. I hope it has already begun, and I pray it is completed soon.

Fritzi Griffis
Amherst

REGION

Fund for victims of violent crime runs dry

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — For the second straight year, a special state fund established to help victims of violent crime pay medical expenses and other bills has run dry, leaving in the lurch about 170 people with approved claims totaling more than $1 million.

"We are telling people they have to be very patient," said Maria Pizzaro-Figueroa, chief of the attorney general's victim compensation division. "We have been telling them that since October, when we paid our last claim. We have just run out of money."

She said yesterday that about $700,000 of the $1.2 million budgeted for the fund this year was used to pay unpaid claims from the previous year and a request for $3.5 million in additional funding died in the Legislature.

The state program, established in 1968, provides reimbursement to victims of violent crimes and their families for medical, funeral and other services not covered by insurance. The maximum an individual can receive is $25,000.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis allocated $7 million for the program in his proposed budget for the coming year and the House Ways and Means Committee has included $6 million for the fund in its proposed 1990 budget, she said.

But for the past five months, her office has been able to do little for crime victims other than try to persuade bill collectors to give them more time, she said.

"It's frustrating. You feel terrible for these people and we try to do everything we can to help them out when they call," she said. She said workers in her office have helped desperate people still awaiting their checks get food and clothing. In one case, a staffer arranged for a non-profit agency to give a man, facing the loss of his home, a $5,000 no-interest loan so he could meet his mortgage payments.

The agency ran short of funds "essentially because we were doing our job," she said, pointing out that before the special division was created in 1987 and set about erasing the backlog, only about 120 to 200 cases were processed yearly.

Last year, about 900 claims were approved, totaling more than $3 million, and far exceeding the $2.4 million budgeted for the program.

charlie's

1 Pray St Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week • Call for Take Out
Kitchen Open 'till midnight

New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables

Tonight 10¢ Buffalo Wings
9:00 PM - 12:00 AM

Jameson Irish Coffee $1.75 Drink of the Week
Moosehead $1.75 Beer of the Month

FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Mon. Night 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks 9-12
Wed. 99¢ Nacho & Cheese Platters 9-12
Sunday 4 Burger Platters for $5.00 6-10

UMASS HILLEL'S 1989
JEWISH ARTS FESTIVAL

DAVID GROSSMAN
Israeli novelist, author of "The Yellow Wind," and recepient of numerous literary awards

To Speak On

"THE SURVIVOR'S PARADOX IN THE MIDDLE-EAST"
and his writing of
"THE YELLOW WIND"

Wednesday, March 1
7:30 PM
Memorial Hall

Ski UTAH

UMass Ski Club has received lodging in Salt Lake City for Spring Break

Price includes lodging, rental car, & air fare. Lift ticket packages are available.

$450—Contact UMass Ski Club

UMASS SKI CLUB

UPC PRESENTS

HUGO LARGO

SATURDAY
MARCH 4

8:00 IN THE BLUEWALL CAFE
UMASS

$6 UMASS STUDENT
$7 GENERAL PUBLIC

TICKETS ON SALE AT TIX UNLIMITED, FOR THE RECORD-FACES, & MAIN ST. RECORDS-NORTHAMPTON

WORLD & NATION

AP photo

FLAKY MONDAY — Eloise Jeffries takes a walk with her dog, Molly, among the snow-covered branches near her Nashville home yesterday morning. The several inches of snow received by the area closed schools but made for a beautiful scenic stroll.

Judge adjourns North trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The judge in Oliver L. North's Iran-Contra trial abruptly adjourned the proceedings yesterday during a dispute over the use of classified information during cross-examination of witness Robert W. Owen.

US District Court Judge Gerhard Gesell sent the jury home for the rest of the day and cleared the courtroom to hold a closed hearing on the classified information at issue.

The adjournment came after a heated bench conference during which the judge was overheard telling prosecutors, "my ruling is the name must come in," indicating the dispute involved disclosing the name of a secret source.

The dispute arose as Owen, who was North's courier to Central America, was being questioned about a 1985 trip he took to Costa Rica to view the site of an airfield for rebel re-supply operations.

"Ladies and gentlemen," a clearly angry Gesell told jurors, "I am going to excuse you for the day and try to get this roadblock straightened out."

The dispute arose before the noon lunch break when defense attorney Brendan V. Sullivan Jr. proposed introducing a document into evidence as part of his cross-examination of Owen.

The judge asked to see the document over the lunch hour. When the trial reconvened, Gesell apparently ruled during a bench conference that the information was relevant to the case, prompting a half-hour recess while prosecutors consulted with government security experts.

Another bench conference ensued when court reconvened after the recess. Gesell spoke to prosecutor John W. Keker so angrily that his voice could be heard at times in the rear of the courtroom.

"I have offered you an opportunity to withdraw the witness," the judge was overheard telling Keker.

Later he told Keker: "I am willing to try to help you get a stipulation" to facts that would be brought out in defense cross-examination.

Earlier in the day, Owen said that as Congress was cutting off aid to the Contras, North called himself the Reagan administration's "point man" for helping the Nicaraguan rebels and its "fall guy" if things went awry.

AP photo

Former White House aide Oliver North

S · U · N
BARBADOS

for SPRING BREAK
THE PLACE TO BE

We have a brand new 7-bedroom mansion reserved for the UMASS spring break party of the year. Your party abode is located on the beach and includes a fully equipped kitchen, living room, 4 full bath rooms, and daily maid service. The Sandy Lane Golf Course and Sunset Crest Resort are both close neighbors. The 3 quads, 3 triples, and 1 double are given on a first come first serve basis so don't be late.

DATES:
JFK Departure: March 17, 18, 19
Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Departures
BOS Departure: March, Friday 17 - Friday 24

Quad, Triple, or Double Occupancy: $589
Occupancy is first come first serve
$559: VILLAS
$525: ON WATER LOCATION
$75 non-refundable for reservation
$25 security deposit required.
Full payment is need after February 9, 1989
Payments in guaranteed funds only!

$589

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union
545-3437
SEE US AT THE TABLE

Champion

Double Reverse Weave

Photo by Buck Stewart

Monday-Friday 9-5
Saturday 10-3

UNIVERSITY STORE

Reagan memoirs editor also a Hollywood man

BOSTON (AP) — It's a likely combination for a book of memoirs. The editor, one of the most powerful in American publishing, also writes potboilers and has Hollywood connections. The author, former President Ronald Reagan, is a powerbroker with a "B" movie past.

Michael Korda, the son of film art director Vincent Korda, certainly knows about power. He is editor in chief at Simon & Schuster, has written best-selling tomes including the how-to "Power!" and "Queenie" and has been editor of presidents and brilliant novelists.

As Korda, 55, prepares to work on Reagan's memoirs, his own easy-to-digest novel "The Fortune," about the shenanigans of a powerful and rich family, is appearing in bookstores.

"It can be argued I like to write about subjects that are flashy and glamorous. ... So does Jackie Collins," said Korda during a recent stop here on a promotional tour.

"I guess I'm interested in the penalties that come with having too much," says Korda, who has always moved easily in conservative circles although he is a Democrat.

"I'm a Kennedy Democrat — an old Kennedy, not the new one," he said, distinguishing between the late president and his brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Korda has worked with a varied group of authors that includes Graham Greene, Harold Robbins, Anthony Burgess, Edward Koch, Charles DeGaulle, Richard Nixon, Henry Kissinger, Jimmy Carter, Tennessee Williams and the Collins sisters, Jackie and Joan.

AP photo

Michael Korda, editor of Reagan's memoirs

DELANO'S

Proper Identification A Must

57 NORTH PLEASANT ST • 253-5141

YOU ASKED FOR IT

YOU'RE GOING TO GET IT!

STAY TUNED—

Drink of the Week
Whisky Sour $1.00

Beer of the Month
Bud & Miller Lite $1.00

PITCHERS!!!

MILLER, MILLER LITE & ROLLING ROCK - $5.00

MEISTER BRAU $4.25

Hair By Harlow

Great Cuts & Perms
Creative styling

Cater to men & women

Low prices

Located on 239 Triangle Street
(right next to Dairymart)
549-4412

99.3 guaranteed

Miller Lite

Spring Break Express

Register to win a "MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK SURVIVAL KIT" Tomorrow night at Pearl Street. 5 winners will then be qualified to win the "MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK EXPRESS" grand prize.

Grand Prize winner will be selected from 20 qualifiers the week of March 10.

Miller Lite Spring Break Express Party
Will Be Held At:

DELANO'S

Wednesday, March 1 9:30-11:30

MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK EXPRESS
GRAND PRIZE CONSISTS OF:

- Round Trip Air Transportation for Two (2) to Washington D.C.
- A Welcoming Reception at the Washington D.C. Train Station
- Round Trip Rail Transportation Aboard the Miller Lite Spring Break Express.
- Food, Beverage and Entertainment while on Board the Spring Break Express
- Five Nights Accommodations (Double Occupancy) at the Treasure Island Inn at Daytona Beach.
- $300 Spending Cash.
- Two (2) Miller Lite Sweatshirts.
- Chartered Transportation to and from the Train Station and Hotel.
- Additional Activities may be Scheduled as Available.

The Grand Prize can not be transferred. Winners who choose not to take the trip will forfeit airfare, train transportation, hotel accommodations but will still receive spending cash and sweatshirts.

FRM the Facilities Resource Management co.

CAPITALIZE ON YOUR CAMPUS EXPERIENCE
DEMONSTRATE YOUR LEADERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT ABILITIES
ASSUME IMMEDIATE RESPONSIBILITY
EXPLORE CAMPUS MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES

The Facilities Resource Management Co. is a rapidly expanding facilities management group dedicated to addressing the vital facilities issues which face colleges, universities, hospitals and school systems.

- STRATEGIC AND FINANCIAL PLANNING
- MANAGEMENT OF CAMPUS FACILITIES
- TECHNICAL SERVICES/PROJECT MANAGEMENT

Whether you are majoring in liberal arts, science, or engineering, opportunities exist with our firm for motivated and ambitious candidates who have demonstrated leadership ability. Our rapid expansion, combined with the diversity of professional backgrounds and wide range of facilities management services we offer, requires a team approach to solving our clients' problems. As a result, we offer a unique program of training combined with immediate responsibility as a member of the FRM team.

EXPLORE THE CHALLENGE, OPPORTUNITY, AND CAREER ADVANCEMENT OPPORTUNITIES AVAILABLE

Please come and meet FRM Principals as well as members of the college class of '88 who are new with the firm for a presentation, informal discussion, and refreshments:

DATE/TIME: MARCH 1, 7 PM

LOCATION: MATHER CAREER CENTER

Meigswood Park • P.O. Box 1515, Madison, Connecticut 06443 • (203) 245-9600
Offices In: New York, Washington DC, Boston/Providence, Rochester NY, Sarasota FL

ARTS & LIVING

Lecture notes serve well when not misused

By KAREN WILLIAMS
Collegian Correspondent

In this age of budget cuts and 500 person lecture halls, it comes as no surprise to see the mass marketing of lecture notes at a large state university like UMass. This type of service, which appears on campuses across the country, reflects the increasing need for information efficiency in today's society. But recently, the ethical implications of such services has been questioned. Do note services fulfill a vital student need, or do they encourage students to miss class, knowing that they can purchase reliable notes as an alternative?

The Student Notes and Printing Service here at UMass pays $23 a week to students who, with the professor's permission, record the lecture notes. The student must have received at least a B in the given class prior to becoming a paid notetaker.

From Accounting 221 to Zoology 339 (28 classes in all), students may subscribe to a semester's supply of notes for $15, a half semester for $8, or a single lecture for $1.50. The notes are primarily offered for large lectures which fulfill general education requirements (FS&N 130, Psych 100 and Econ 103 and 104 among the most popular).

According to Jay Conway, manager of SNPS, more courses are offered this semester than in the past four years that he has worked there, largely because more professors are agreeing to it.

The students who purchase the notes appear to do so for a variety of reasons: as a dependable tool to supplement their regular studies, as a necessary aid for interpreting a professor who is difficult to comprehend, or simply to make up a missed class.

Conway estimates that only about 10 to 15 percent of those students rely on the note service as a substitute for regular attendance. It is partly due to this percentage that Albey Reiner, professor for the Biology of Cancer, no longer allows the notes to be offered for his lectures.

"I don't want to support something that will make people not go to class," Reiner said.

Because his course is frequently oversubscribed, he believes it is wrong to deprive some students who really want to attend the class of enrollment while others who are enrolled may not be attending his lectures regularly. Reiner generally feels that whether a student wants to pay tuition for an education and not go to class is his/her own prerogative.

"The notes are two dimensional and could never replace the lecture . . . it's like seeing a picture instead of the actual person," he said.

Professor Charles Stubbart, who teaches Management 301, doesn't feel that the service encourages students to skip class. All of his lectures are videotaped for students to view later anyway, and a workbook with lecture notes is also available.

"In a very large lecture like ours, the notes are only to the student's benefit . . . although there are certain things that the notes could never replace," Stubbart said.

That seems to be the general consensus for most of the professors who consent to the service; that it can only enhance the learning process. Professor David Van Blerkom sees no ethical problem in wholesale notes for his Astronomy 100 class.

"It is certainly a good thing, it fulfills a student need," and of students who choose to skip his class, "there will always be people who won't come - that's just the nature of the court," he said.

Dahlia Siff, an SOM honor student, has used the the student note service in the past as a supplement to her notes, though she doesn't advise it as a replacement for attending lectures.

"Sometimes you'll have a really bad professor - it won't matter whether you go to the class or not. Sometimes the notetaker can explain it better than if you went to the lecture (if the notetaker is good). But if you have a good professor, you're missing out - ultimately it's your choice of how you will get your education," Siff said.

There doesn't appear to be a question of decay in educational standards, but rather in who is ethically wrong: the people who are supplying the notes or the students who may be misusing the service in lieu of going to class.

For those students, "they are making the wrong choice," said Jay Conway, but he feels that the positives of SNPS far outweigh the negatives. "We are helping many more students than we are hindering."

Conway has seen a positive trend in students' use of the notes, and believes that the business he runs is completely legitimate for their purposes.

"Four years ago, a lot of these students weren't going to class - now it's different. People are doing more listening instead of writing . . . I know for a fact from talking to customers that many people's grades have improved as a consequence," he said.

With the declining budgets for professors at the University, and the increasing enrollment, Conway feels the note service will become even more valuable in the future.

House compilation samples the odd and bizarre

By JON DRUKMAN
Collegian Correspondent

Fear not, true believers. House music is not dead! It lives on in the feet and the minds of its devotees (Mostly ex-college students like your good self, zonked out on too much acieed - DJ), and in order to help out said crowd, BCM Records (West Germany) has created a two record/compact disc set called Blastmaster Radio (Keep This Frequency Clear), which should have all house-heads on cloud nine for a few thousand more BPM.

DISC JUNKIE

Clocking in at over 100 minutes, this compilation contains 17 boss tracks injected with more James Brown samples than you could shake a drum-machine at. There's also some sort of rough framing concept operating here, with the songs linked by snippets of American radio DJs, including a truly bizarre moment when the jock announces today's winner as being "the former president of the Tucker, Georgia Wife Swapping Club." Far from being a distraction it adds to the charm of this disarming passage.

Although house has drawn fire from the critics as being nothing more than a stale rehash of other people's work, there really are some clever ideas in here. Think of it as the musical equivalent of composting. The genre is, by nature highly collaborative, and once you've listened to enough of it, the in-jokes and snide references to other groups' hits become half the fun. Astute B-movie fanatics can have a blast playing "spot the sample" while musical aficionados can attempt to identify all the melodic rip-offs. Remember "Pump Up The Volume?" A band called Capella certainly did because they created a song which explicitly steals the already stolen M/A/R/R/S rhythm track.

But it's not all thievery and questionable copyright infringements here! There's some seriously good music as well. The groove power of Coldcut's "Beats and Pieces" or LA Mix's "Check This Out" is undeniable. Additionally anyone who can resist the HI-NRG little girl voices on Chilli and the Groove Gangsters' "Jump to the Beat" or the thoroughly ridiculous nursery rhyme rap Ronnette and Anquannette's "Disco Queen" should check into an emergency beatbox rehabilitation clinic.

Boogie on down to your nearest import dealer and lay your hands on this record before it becomes yesterday's news.

On the other hand maybe all the dancing has given you blisters and you just want to settle back and enjoy a little classical music? It isn't exactly Wagner or Holst, but In the Nursery's latest album, Koda takes classical music into the 1980s (or is that a contradiction in terms?) The band comprised of twin brothers nigel and Klive Humberstone, creates traditional and not so traditional orchestra arrangements via the Fairlight CMI, one of the most sophisticated samplers available. Listening to the startling opening strings and powerful horn section, it is hard to believe that these lush orchestrations were not performed by a full symphonic ensemble, but were generated by a keyboard in the confines of a recording studio.

Koda is an ambitious work. It attempts thematic unity while moving from standard orchestral configurations, to oriental styles, to completely choral/vocal pieces. While some movements such as "Kotow," seem like digressions into the sample library at first, they are usually integrated into the piece at a later point, so the structural integrity is preserved throughout.

This is a difficult album at first blush. Only through repeated listenings does the overarching framework of the compositiion become apparent. If you are willing to put the work into it, then Koda will be a rewarding venture. One caveat; although the music is a bit dense, in terms of sheer playing time, the album is a bit on the short side. The compact disc partly remedies this by including tracks from an earlier 12" single. Released on Sweatbox Records in the UK, it hjas been picked up and distributed stateside by Chicago independent label Wax Trax.

Uh oh, looks like it's time for another house fix. Until next time, keep this frequency clear.

AMHERST RACQUET & FITNESS CENTER

3-months' membership $64

Save $26!

Free aerobics, including nightly aerobics with licensed, expert, courteous nautilus and aerobic instructors.

New state of the art aerobics floor:
The Sentinal Floor - "very best aerobic mat on the market today" American Aerobic Assoc.

Monday through Friday
Open 7 a.m. - 10 p.m.
Sat. & Sun.
7 a.m. - 7 p.m.

549-4545 • Route 116 • Sunderland

Learn German This Summer

June 25 - August 4, 1989

The Ninth Annual German Summer School of the Atlantic at the University of Rhode Island in co-operation with the Goethe Institute Boston.

German will be the sole language of communication, and German life and culture the heart of this six week residency program of intensive language study.

You may earn up to nine undergraduate or graduate credits while living in the beautiful surroundings of our country campus, just minutes away from Rhode Island's magnificent beaches and historic summer colonies.

This program is ideally suited for anyone wishing to enroll in beginning, intermediate, or any level of advanced German. From business people and travelers to students planning work or study abroad. Take advantage of this rare opportunity to participate in this total German Language experience.

For details: Dr. John Grandin
Dr. Otto Dornberg, Co-Directors
Department of Languages
University of Rhode Island
Kingston, RI 02881 (401) 792-5911

ZENITH data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON

POWER- UP

SPECIAL UNIVERSITY PRICING!
40–50% OFF RETAIL PRICE
GREAT PERFORMANCE
GREAT PRICE

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN–

WITH THE NEW Z-248/12 WORKSTATION
TO GIVE YOU THE MAXIMUM IN 286 SPEED AND POWER!

Power-up your grades with the ultimate in 286 desktop performance.
Just get the lightning-fast, 12MHz Z-248/12 Workstation from Zenith Data Systems—
one of the leading suppliers of high-speed AT compatibles.

FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE CONTACT:
Steve Orlandi
ZDS Student Representative
549-1420

American Express VISA, MasterCard Credit Cards Accepted

MOUSE
AND MICROSOFT WINDOWS
INCLUDED FREE

Microsoft is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corp.
Prices subject to change without notice
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems

Daddy beatnik tribute at Cafe

By PAMELA J. MURPHY
Collegian Correspondent

Tommorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Hampden Theater, the Beat Cafe series features the improvisational jazz play Kerouac: The Essence of Jack.

The play is a one man theater piece created and performed by veteran actor Vincent Balestri, and is accompanied by saxophonist William Bateman who provides periodic, jazzy back-up to Balestri.

The Essence of Jack is based on the life and writings of Jack Kerouac, also remembered as the "Daddy of the Beat Generation". Kerouac inspired writers and poets to break free from the traditional bonds of literature.

After a successful run in Chicago, the play is making its Northeast debut. The Chicago Tribune gave the show critical acclaim and remarked: "Kerouac is neither conventional one man show nor traditional biography. It is more like one man impressionism.

Balestri, who has studied Kerouac intensely, performs the play in a spontaneous and improvisational manner. He works from eight hours of prepared material out of which he shapes a unique show every night.

Balestri is an alumnus of Chicago's Goodman School of Drama and has acted and dirtected numerous productions across North America. His roles have included: the lead in Ludlum's Bluebeard, at the Vancouver East Culture Center, Jake Lamotta at the Ivanhoe Theater in Chicago, and Peechum during a tour of the Three Penny Opera with Canada's Theatre Energy. His first one man play, Red Earth: A Western Myth was also a critical success.

In addition to appearing in various plays, Balestri was National Director of Robin Hood Children's Theater of New York. He has been a drama instructor on the faculties of Colombia College of Chicago and Malapina College of British Columbia, and is a popular clinician on college campuses.

Whether or not you are familiar with the writings and history of Jack Kerouac, the play is going to be creative, expressive and enjoyable.

Tickets for tommorrow night's production in the Hampden Theater are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office.

Price's boogie lights up Hatch

By DAN LEARY
and JIM COHEN
Collegian Correspondents

Sam Price
The Hatch
February 23

Thursday night, while Sam Price waited in the Hatch, tenor saxophonist Ray Clark milled around Amherst College asking where the campus hotel was. In spite of Clark's confusion and the minor delay, the "boogie woogie" show, which was the first in a weekend line-up of concerts and workshops, was top notch.

For four men Price described as "old as soap", their first set was smoking. Beginning the show with a caution, "If you have any songs to request," Price joked, "don't ask, we don't know them," the band launched into several jazz numbers ("Massachusetts Boogie" among them) and a classic 12 bar blues.

Guest vocalist Al Pittman joined Price for a Nat King Cole number, and among the incredible drumming of Wesley Landers, the band closed out the first set with "When the Saints Come Marching In".

Rescinding his earlier statements, Price opened the second set with an audience request for "St. Louis Blues". Pleased with his performance, he commented how he could "go back to New York, pay my rent and drive my Mercedes" with his earnings. The music was simple elegance, that didn't pretend to be anything it was not.

Learn to be Art-iculate.
Call Graeme or Cosmo 545-3500

Dance Concert gives butterflys to budding choreographers

By KRISTINE GUERTIN
Collegian Correspondent

The crackling p.a. system emitted its first sound, and the University of Massachusetts Student Dance Concert was underway. The concert, which was presented by Alive With Dance, opened Thursday night for the first of three performances.

The show consisted of nine separate segments which were choreographed and performed by UMass students. Each segment had an original theme, although at times these were difficult for the audience to decipher. These themes ranged from the terror of nightmares to the tragedy of alcoholism.

By far the most impressive of the arrangements was the section entitled "A World Unnoticed." This unique account of the insect world was created and choreographed by Ann Marie Partenheimer, a junior dance major and student director of the show. This piece was most memorable due to its fascinating portrayal of the metamorphosis of a catterpillar into a butterfly.

Another piece well worth mentioning was "Gold" which was choreographed by Kelly Pike. This segment was a fun, jazzy number which lightened things up a bit, and proved to be the break needed from the more intense portions of the show.

Although the show was fun for everyone involved, there was also a more serious side. For many of the student choreographers, this was to be one of the last steps before graduation in May. Partheimer explained that the senior choreographers would be graded on their partiipation in the annual event. "They have to write on paper, like a thesis, about their theme," Partheimer said.

Many of the choreographers did not perform in their segments, but this did not mean they were spared any of the emotion. Senior dance major, Heidi Sperounis described the nervousness she experienced while observing helplessly in the audience.

"I think it was harder sitting here than it would have been performing," Sperounis admitted.

The performances were backed up by an interesting diversity of music. These selections ranged from the eerie sounds of Ben Puoi Tu Lucidar, to the familiar vocals of the Beatles. The majority of the songs were perfectly coordinated to the theme of the segment, and successfully created the proper mood. This was especially evident in "Nocturnal Manifestation," which was choreographed by Maria Sasso, with music by Round Midnight and Kenny G.

Overall, the show was well-received, although Bowker Auditorium was less than half filled. Partheimer admitted that she was not concerned about the low turnout, and that larger crowds were expected for the weekend shows. "Thursday's are generally slow," she said.

STUDENT AFFAIRS INFORMATION SERVICES

IDB/TIPS

Questions concerning your money matters?
Call TIPS 545-1540 and ask for these tapes by number:

2405	Check Cashing
2410	Emergency Short Term Loans
2412	Financial Aid
1303	Graduate Tuition and Fees
2415	Perkins Loans and Stafford Student Loans
1304	Paying your Semester Bill and Lab Fees
2404	Pell Grants
2468	Student Federal Credit Union
1321	Undergraduate Fees
2440	Work Study Program

see page 17 of the Student Telephone Directory for a complete listing of TIPS tapes

IF YOU HAVE FURTHER QUESTIONS CALL IDB (545-1555)
Information Data Bank (IDB)
Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

HEY SENIORS:
Get Shot!

Senior Portrait Sittings
will be held from Feb. 27 - Mar. 17, 9-5 pm in Rms 177/178 of the Campus Center. Call 5-2874 for info & appointments.

ORDER your 1989 INDEX NOW!
It's a $25 investment in memories that last a lifetime!

Send coupon to address below.

Make your checks payable to: INDEX Yearbook

NAME _____
PERMANENT ADDRESS _____
_____
LOCAL PHONE NO. _____

INDEX 103 Campus Center/UMass, Amherst 545-0848

Comedian Doherty on the perils of men

By DANIELLE DOWLING
Collegian Correspondent

Dick Doherty
Peking Garden
February 24

COMEDY

Dick Doherty's stage presence is gritty. His voice is deep and smooth. He is heavy set. He seems to be a man who has seen a lot in his lifetime. On Friday night at the Peking Garden's Comedy Zone in Hadley, Doherty was dressed like a biker with the MC jacket, the boots and the Harley Davidson jersey, yet he claimed to be a yuppie.

Doherty's material included bits about Jimmy Swaggert, his own youth, his drug and alcohol problem and his Italian mother. His rapport with the audience was superb, as he playfully ribbed those seated in the front row.

The overall theme of the show was the "male victim". Making light of male-female relations, speaking of the women who had used him and made him feel cheap and warning the men in the audience to be wary of their dates, Doherty earned himself a warm response and maintained a steady level of laughter.

MC Doug James suffered under the odd nature of his material, and opener Barbara Swanson was hot and cold.

In a small, intimate atmosphere, the Peking Garden's Comedy Zone is now offering weekend shows on both Friday and Saturday nights, a good take-in if you're looking for something different.

...Get Involved! ...with campus health issues
SHAB*

- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health care concerns
- Review UHS budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT!

Date: Tuesday, February 28th
Where: Univ. Health Center Room 302
Time: 5:15 - 6:15 p.m.

OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS
* STUDENT HEALTH ADVISORY BOARD (est. 1971)
UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES

KODO
ONE EARTH TOUR

"Electrifying Drums!"
"...a miracle of music"
"...a global phenomenon"

Friday, March 3. 8 p.m.
F.A.C. Concert Hall
Students $9-$11
Call 545-2511

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

16 Piece Jazz and Swing Big Band
JAZZ ENSEMBLE #1
with
Jeff Holmes conducting Tuesday, Feb. 28th
9 pm to 12 mid.

The Second Annual Blues Jam
Thurs., Mar. 2nd
9:00 pm
Hosted by
Ed Vadas and the Fabulous Heavyweights

BOARD OF GOVERNOR'S PROGRAM COUNCIL PRESENTS A
TWO HOUR COMEDY SHOW
ANY PERSON WITH NO SENSE OF HUMOR ANYONE WITH A WEAK KIDNEY
We Can Make You Laugh
WE WILL PAY
$25
In Cash
PLUS A
"MAKE ME LAUGH" T-SHIRT
If ...
YOU CAN SURVIVE AS A CONTESTANT ON OUR SHOW!!
SIGN UP ONE HOUR BEFORE THE SHOW
Wednesday, March 1, 1989
9:00 p.m.

LATHER — RINSE — REPEAT
Friday, March 3rd at 9:00 PM
Rock & Roll

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

NO FAT. NO CHOLESTEROL.
Nothing But Delicious.

Try some Nonfat Frozen Yogurt the taste will leave you amazed!

Amherst
Boltwood Walk

Northampton
Main Street

Q.T.B.
(Quitting Time Buffet)
Mon-Fri
4-7
FitzWilly's restaurant bar
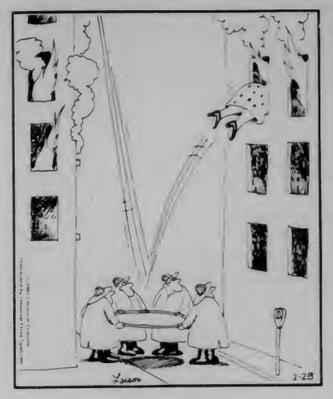
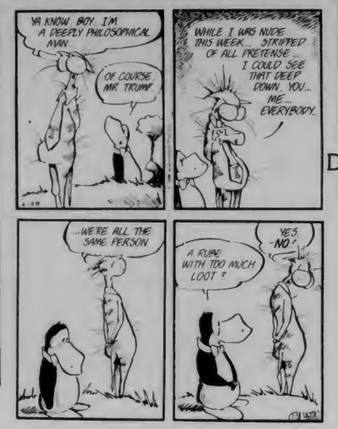
23 Main St. • Northampton 584-8666

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



BLOOM COUNTY
By BERKE BREATHED

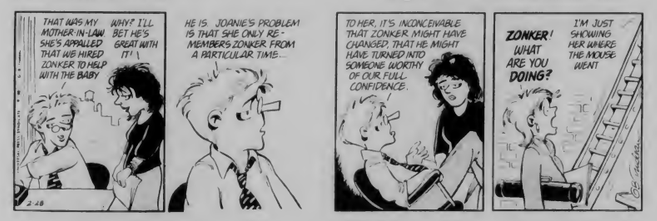


YA KNOW, BOY, I'M A DEEPLY PHILOSOPHICAL MAN.
OF COURSE MR. TRUMP.
WHILE I WAS NUDE THIS WEEK... STRIPPED OF ALL PRETENSE... I COULD SEE THAT DEEP DOWN, YOU... ME... EVERYBODY...
...WE'RE ALL THE SAME PERSON
A RUBE WITH TOO MUCH LOOT?
YES. -NO-

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

BLECCH. I FEEL SICK.
OH, C'MON, THAT'S ONLY YOUR SECOND BOWL OF CEREAL
THIS STUFF IS PURE SUGAR.
BUT IT'S FORTIFIED WITH EIGHT ESSENTIAL VITAMINS, SO IT'S GOOD FOR YOU.
GIVE ME A BREAK. THIS IS LIKE EATING A BOWL OF MILK DUDS.
LOOK, IT SAYS RIGHT ON THE BOX, "PART OF A WHOLESOME, NUTRITIOUS, BALANCED BREAKFAST."
AND THEY SHOW A GUY EATING FIVE GRAPEFRUITS, A DOZEN BRAN MUFFINS...
YOU KNOW WHY YOU SHAKE LIKE THAT? VITAMIN DEFICIENCY, I'LL BET.

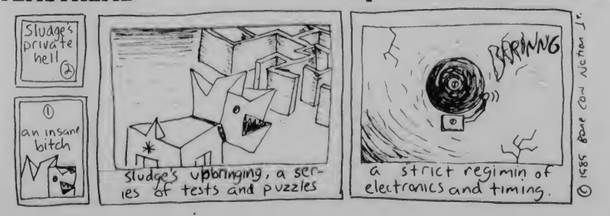
DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU



THAT WAS MY MOTHER-IN-LAW SHE'S APPALLED THAT WE HIRED ZONKER TO HELP WITH THE BABY
WHY? I'LL BET HE'S GREAT WITH IT!
HE IS. JOANIE'S PROBLEM IS THAT SHE ONLY REMEMBERS ZONKER FROM A PARTICULAR TIME...
TO HER, IT'S INCONCEIVABLE THAT ZONKER MIGHT HAVE CHANGED, THAT HE MIGHT HAVE TURNED INTO SOMEONE WORTHY OF OUR FULL CONFIDENCE.
ZONKER! WHAT ARE YOU DOING?
I'M JUST SHOWING HER WHERE THE MOUSE WENT.

CHANCELLORMAN
By AL ARPAD

YEASTHEAD
By JASON TALERMAN



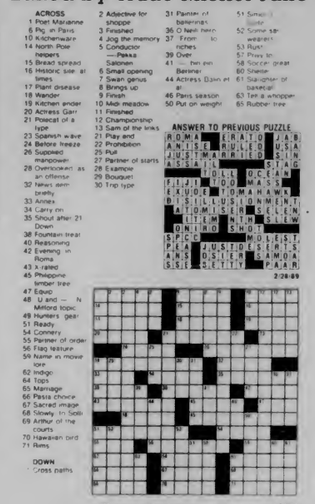
Sludge's private hell
an insane bitch
Sludge's upbringing, a series of tests and puzzles
BEEPING
a strict regimin of electronics and timing.

ETC.

"The test of a first-rate intelligence is the ability to hold two opposed ideas in the mind at the same time, and still retain the ability to function."

— F Scott Fitzgerald

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Forget any hard feelings and look to the future. It is important to put past anxieties behind you so you don't overlook certain golden opportunities. New alliances enjoy favorable influences.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You will be proven right but that alone will not open closed doors. Study ways to improve communication. You join the most when you work on your own. Close relationships grow more rewarding.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Patch up 3 lovers' quarrel before it ruins your whole day. You could make important points with the boss by compromising on a minor matter. You find new ways to increase your income.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not hesitate to isolate yourself if solitude will help you bring a project in on time. Your recent moodiness could cause trouble with a romantic relationship or sibling. Pace yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Money will be very much on your mind. Take the initiative in building a better relationship. An incoming message could have a positive impact on your career, family life or education perhaps all three!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 2) Your responsibilities to yourself are important, too. You are moving into a position where you can really stretch your talents. Big profits are possible. You are at your most persuasive today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You could find yourself on the outside looking in unless you act quickly on a college or career matter. Someone you meet by chance could play a big part in your future.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov. 21) Your charisma is at a peak. You can do almost anything you desire. Others begin to realize what a great communicator you are. Expand your sphere of influence. Smile a lot.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Being more indulgent is not the best answer to a recent child-parents problem. Talk things out. Those traveling or starting new jobs have good luck. Be persistent. Rewards are on the way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Remain flexible and a money situation will turn in your favor. You benefit from playing by the rules and observing protocol. Too much rich food could put you out of commission. Show restraint.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) A health upset could drain your energy. Follow the doctor's advice and you will snap back quickly. Take an honest look at your role in a relationship and you will gain valuable insights.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Carry through on your promises. Handle a headstrong young person gently but firmly. There are hidden aspects affecting a money situation. You know the right response to give in business negotiations.

MENU

LUNCH
Gyros – ham, turkey, hot corned beef
Lox and cream cheese with assorted breads

BASICS LUNCH
Eggplant cutlet, vegetable filling, turkey
Lox and cream cheese with assorted breads

DINNER
Stuffed shells, tomato sauce
Beef bourguignon, puff pastry

BASICS DINNER
Stuffed shells, tomato sauce
Creamed vegetable croquettes with sauce

Court move puts Boggs at ease

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Wade Boggs, almost as confident now in the judicial system as he is at the plate, said yesterday that "justice has paid off" in a decision throwing out a major portion of his former girlfriend's lawsuit.

"This is a landmark decision for me," Boggs said. "I'm in from the ocean and headed toward port. . .It was just a matter of time."

"I did it the right way. I went through the legal system. I've sid all along that it would come out in my favor."

Over the weekend, the 4th District Court of Appeals in California threw out a key portion of Margo Adams' $12 million lawsuit against Boggs, ruling she can't sue for emotional distress.

With the decision, Adams cannot seek $11.5 million for pain she contended Boggs caused her by allegedly accusing her of extortion in an FBI interview, Boggs' lawyer, Jennifer King, said.

"I'm very happy with the decision," Boggs said before joining teammates for the daily practice at Chain O'Lakes Park. "I'm pleased that there's justice, that the system works."

Adams filed the $12 million suit for breach of oral contract after her four-year relationship with Boggs. The All-Star third baseman, who is married with two children, has admitted the affair.

"We are extremely happy with this decision," King said. "The part of the lawsuit they had hoped to get the most amount of money for is now gone."

In its decision, made public Saturday, the appellate court ruled the emotional distress claim was groundless because Boggs' alleged statements to FBI agents constituted privileged information.

AP photo

COWBOY FAREWELL — Former Dallas Cowboys football team head coach Tom Landry, right, and quarterback Danny White, left, share a forlorn moment after Landry's farewell to the team yesterday morning at the training facility in Irving, Texas.

1989/90 FINACIAL AID FORM DEADLINE—MARCH 1, 1989

To receive priority consideration for financial aid, your Financial Aid Form (FAF) must be received by College Scholarship Services (CSS) by Wednesday, March 1, 1989

You can obtain the FAF at Financial Aid Services, 243 Whitmore Administration Building, Monday thru Friday from 8:30AM to 5:00PM. Also, SAFA (Students Advocating Financial Aid) members will be on the Campus Center Concourse on Tuesday, February 28, 1989.

Don't risk the loss of your Financial Aid Dollars: file on time!

1989/90 SOLICITUD DE ASISTENCIA ECONOMICA
FECHA LIMITE—1 DE MARZO DE 1989

Para recibir prioridad para asistencia economica su solicitud (Financial Aid Form (FAF)) debe ser recibida por el College Scholarship Services (CSS) en o antes del 1 de marzo de 1989.

Usted puede obtener una copia en la oficina de asistencia economica: Financial Aid Services, 243 Whitmore Administration Building, de lunes a viernes, de 8:30AM a 5:00PM. Tambien el martes 28 de febrero de 1989, miembros de SAFA (Students Advocating Financial Aid) estaran en el Campus Center Concourse.

No te arriesgues a perder tu asistencia economica, llena tu solicitud a tiempo!

LEGAL PROBLEMS?
Call LSC serving the students of UMass
Housing • Family • Student Rights • Civil Rights • Workers Rights • Criminal and Consumer Law •

(We regret that we can no longer offer legal representation to students following the Trustees' August 31, 1987 decision.)

call 545-1995

BRAND NAME SHIRTS
Factory Outlet Prices
247-9681
J• Shirts
Rt. 5 & 10
Hatfield
Next to Danco

Up, Up & Away
Balloon Bouquets For Any Occasion
An inexpensive way to say "Something Special"
Create Your Own Message
(413) 256-8557
FREE DELIVERY
COD • MasterCard • Visa

Zeta Psi Amherst Drop Zone
ARMY/NAVY SALE
Sponsored By: Zeta Psi
ZΨ
With: Amherst Drop Zone
Feb. 27 To March 2
9-5 p.m. 4 Days Only
Plus: 4 additional Vendors with...
VINTAGE CLOTHING
JEWELRY
MEXICAN BLANKETS
CHAMPION SWEATSHIRTS
LIVE CONCERT TAPES
And Surplus Surplus Surplus Surplus Surplus
Located in Student Union Ballroom

JB's Roast Beef
50 Main St., Amherst
(across from Police Station)
253-7018
HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES
YIPEE!
WE'RE GOING TO JB'S.

Chip & Jay: We're too excited! It's that time of the day--JB's time. We wait for this moment eagerly seven days a week; and when the clock strikes 5pm, we're out the door. Foreget the DC for dinner, We like JB's roast beef sandwiches and chicken fingers. JB's, here we come!
If this is you, bring this ad in for a free order of chicken fingers
GREAT FOOD • GREAT PRICES • OPEN TIL 2 AM

■ equestrian team

continued from page 20

competes differently," said Newton.

The Americans placed third, fourth and fifth in dressage and first, second and third in show jumping. The United States was the overall winner and also had the most individual winners.

For both competitions the riders were judged individually and as a team. Newton won first place in the dressage competition for her division and the team took third place. In the show jumping, she took second individually and her team took first. Becker's team placed third overall.

Last year was the first time this competition was held and approximately seven students participated.

"A year ago someone decided to bring the college students to go over and compete. It worked well and will become an annual event," Newton said. She also added that it may be held in Scotland or England next year.

Becker has been involved with horses for the past seven years. She has been competitively involved for two-and-a-half years, when she entered the University as a freshman. Newton has been riding for eight years, and for the past three has been serious about riding. It began as a hobby for her but then as she became more interested, "the more I rode, the more I enjoyed it and my trainer pushed me."

Both women have been members of the UMass equestrian team since their freshman year. When they came to the University they had to try out for the team.

"Tryouts are in the fall, the third week in September and they are open to all people," Becker said.

Said Newton, "UMass has a well-known riding team and it is a good program."

Sports Notice

Rugby:
The UMass rugby team has started training for its new season, veterans and newcomers are encouraged to play.
Practices are Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at 4 p.m. Anyone interested in playing for the team should meet in the Boyden men's locker room before the scheduled practices.

Football:
The University of Massachusetts football team is looking for managers.
Any interested work study students should see coach Jones in the football office in Boyden Building.

■ skiing teams

continued from page 20

of 59. Gilbert and Robin Harris of UMass skied 35th and 39th, respectively. For the men, Charlie Holcombe, one of UMass' many talented freshmen, skied to 28th place, as UMass finished 12th on Saturday.

"He (Holcombe) skied two good runs," said MacConnell. The men's leaders, Roche and D'elia, had good first runs in the slalom, but knowing that their second runs would be their last chance to qualify to the NCAA's, they went for all or nothing, and came up short, both falling on their runs.

No one for UMass qualified for the NCAA's, which take place next weekend in Wyoming. Qualifying meant an individual had to finish in the top 10 in at least one event, and the competition from other schools was too great for anybody from UMass to do.

■ men's track

continued from page 20

ed in by Stephen Brown (49.56 in the 400M, 5th place), Derek Moore (2:28.9 in the 1,000M, 5th place) and Artie Smith (8:15.97 in the 3,000M, 5th place). In addition to those individuals the two-mile relay team of Renaldo Flores, Herb Heffner and Fitz Hagan came in second with a time of 7:43.55. They had the lead until the final 30 yards, where they were taken over by BU who took first place.

A highlight for UMass was the performance of Moore. On Saturday, he broke the UMass freshman 1,000-meter record.

"The meet went well," O'Brien said. "With the exception of two hurdelers, everyone we brought achieved a personnal mark. That's treniendous."

■ women's track

continued from page 20

Helen Balaouras, who not only bested White, but broke her school record. Balaouras finished ninth with a distance of 41' 11 1/2', edging the previous mark by 3 inches. White finished 10th with a throw of 40' 5'. Both throwers just missed getting into the finals, which was the top 8.

The throwers experienced similar success in the shot, as Simone Marisseau finished fifth with a personal best of 39' 5 3/4' and Balaouras finished eighth with a season best of 37' 10 3/4'.

Kristin Peers finished fifth in the unseeded and non-scoring 5,000m race with a time of 18:54.

The 4x800 relay team finished fifth, with a surprise coming from Cheryl LeClerc, who set a personal record with a 2:19. Michelle St. Laurent led off with a 2:25, followed by LeClerc, Ambrose (2:24), and Smith (2:24). LaFreniere said, "We expected a little better. In the 4x8, Michelle could have run five seconds faster, Lee Ann four seconds, and Shana also a little quicker too."

CLASSIFIEDS

OFFICE—CC 113 MON.-THURS 8:30-3:30 FRI 8:30-2:00 • DEADLINE: 1 DAY PRIOR TO PUBLICATION • CASH IN ADVANCE

ACTIVITIES

WEDNESDAY MARCH 1st Mayor Flynn & Inez McCormick, leading woman tribe unionist in Europe to speak on Northern Ireland in the CCA at 7:30

NOT EVERYONE HAS WHAT IT TAKES to earn $3-5 thousand this next summer but Southwestern interviews 100,000 students each spring to hire its 4000 students. If you know how to work ambitiously and finish what you start in life then we might be interested in talking with you. Call Paul at 665-3247 or stop by the Employment office today

NEW CRAFT WORKSHOPS marbeling paper, airbrush, silkpainting & jewelry. Sign up now!

THE ARABIC CLUB coffee table, Herter 7th floor, 9am til noon, Mon to Fri Coffees, tea, homemade arabic pastries, yum!

UPC MEETING TODAY 8:30 Earthfoods announcing new shows, you'll gregret missing this one

AEPi PRESENTS LITTLE SISTER RUSH All University Women invited Tuesday February 28 7:00pm at AEPi House 382 North Pleasant St

TRI SIGMA OPEN RUSH, Tues. Feb 28, 8:30-9:30, and Wed., Thurs. March 1 & 2, 6:30-7:30. For more info call 545-1224

CHEN STYLE TAICHI CLASS begins Feb 28, 6:30pm, Jackson Street School Northampton, Call 585-8931

ATTENTION PRE-MEDS, NURSING, AND ALL STUDENTS INTERESTED IN STUDENT HEALTH: Student Health Advisory Board (SHAB) meeting welcomes all new members - Tues. Feb 28, 5:15-6:15 rm -302 Univ. Health Center

SIGMA DELTA TAU SISTERS invite University women to Open Rush Dinners Feb. 27 & 28 at 5:30. Hope to see you there

LEARN JEWELRY & SILKSCREEN 4 workshops meeting once a week at Student Union Craft Center

ANNOUNCING THE FINANCE AND INVESTMENT CLUB'S inaugural gathering of 1989 featuring elections and social events planning. New members graciously welcomed. Thursday 8:30-7:30pm SOM lobby. Don't let it be another extracurricularless semester.

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE

SAPCIOUS 1, 2, and 3 BEDROOM UNITS in Sunderland. Ample off street parking and free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Call 665-3856

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUDIO

MARANTZ SPEAKERS 60 watts 8 mos old 150 or BO Call for more info 546-6524 Leave message

VCR WANTED OLDER MODEL or don't need to record. Amy 546-4364

AUTO FOR SALE

1977 JEEP CHEROKEE, 4x4, 360 V-8 engine, needs body work, restoration parts included 1-774-5239 $850

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CAMP COUNSELORS

COME WORK FOR an accredited 3-camp organization in the Pocono Mountains of PA. Positions are available in: Tennis, Archery, Waterfront (W.S.I.), Gramatics, Office Administration, Computers, Radio, Arts & Crafts, Nature, Athletics, Jewelry, Photography, Dance, Wrestling, Cooking, Adventure/Challenge Course, Film making, Camp Drivers. Season: 6/24-8/20. Call 800-533-CAMP (215-887-9700 in PA) or write 407 Benson East, Jenkintown, PA 19046

COMPACT DISC MUSIC MACHINE

DISC JOCKEY SERVICE - quality tunes for all occasions 549-1421 or 253-7855

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances. 256-8526

FOR RENT

FRIDGE RENTALS WE DELIVER 253-9742

FOR SALE

OLIN SK * ...oom Hanson boots size 10 $100/BO 585-0604

WEIGHT BENCH - incline, leg extention, 150 lbs. Weights $75/BO 585-0604

APPLE MACINTOSH 512K memory Apple Image-Writer printer security system $1000 549-2781 Anne

ROLAND D-50 KEYBOARD/SYNTHESIZER Excellent cond. Must sell! Call Chris after 7pm 546-6701

MACINTOSH PLUS w/40MB Hard disk, and turbo mouse $1800 or B/O Call 549-4135

TWIN MATTRESS W/BOX SPRING, some bedding very good condition $125 or B/O Call 549-4047 days eves til 9

GUITAR WASHBURN ACCOUSTIC w/case $200 Call 253-7387

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles. Call 256-8369

FOUND

FOUND, MAN'S WATCH couple of weeks ago in front of Herter. Leather Band. Very valuable. If yours, please call Christine at 546-6947

FOUND A PAIR OF HEAVY RED MITTENS WITH RED FURRY LINING about two weeks ago and just kept forgiving to put in a classified about it. If yours, just call 549-6656 and ask for 'M' or leave a message

AXCESS WATCH IN BOWL. If yours, call Chris 546-6847

HELP WANTED

IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR EXPERIENCE that could land you a job upon graduation with a Fortune-500 company then call Paul today at 665-3247. We might be able to help you get prepared while there is still time. Don't wait call now!

THINK FUN AND SUN! Work now and make lots of money for Spring Break. Start part-time now and have a full-time job on the Cape this summer. This may be the most exciting job offer of the century! Clean Water Action is looking for motivated and spirited people to work on our political staff. Earn up to $10/hr. Call 549-7450

IN SEARCH OF "MISS MASSACHUSETTS"

I AM IN SEARCH OF A GIRL. A gorgeous blonde I saw over X-Mas break in Mazatlan in a burgundy UMass sweatshirt. First at a dumpy little Italian restaurant the evening of Dec. 25th then the 26th and 27th in front of the Playa Mazatlan, where I was staying. If you are that girl, I'm the semi-blonde guy in the black shorts that could not take his eyes off you but didn't have the nerve to talk to you. Though I did try to get your attention by waiving a red beach towel at you from my balcony...pretty smooth huh? I've never seen a girl that has set me back like you or been so infatuated before and would be honored if you would write me back so that I could at least know your name. If you describe your bathing suit then I'll know it's a you--Believe me I'll know. I'll even pay for the stamp--Matt Sayre, 2714 College St. S.E., Lacey, Washington, 98503

INSTRUCTION

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE intermediate course Tuesdays/Thursday 7-9pm, 3/28-5/4, $115 546-4576

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands'on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on February 22 from 3:30-4:30 in room 901 Campus Center. (545-1995)

LOST

REWARD; GRAY/PINK RAYON SCARF lost in area of Student Union, Campus Center or Marcus. Please call 546-4734.

GOLD RING WITH RUBY LOST 2/22, huge sentimental value, if found please call Jeanne - Reward - 546-7691

LOST GREY WALLET CONTAINING 2 ID's and money. Possibly lost near Knikos or the Career Center. Keep money and call 253-0706

MEN'S SOCCER

WOULD'U LIKE TO PLAY in the Intramurals? For information call 6-4877. Ask for Carmen

MOTORCYCLES

WANT TO BUY A MOTORCYCLE. 84-87 600-750cc. Finn 549-4793

NEED CASH!

GET SOME SPRING BREAK money before it's too late!! Sell me your baseball cards. Call Todd anytime 549-6361

NEED EXTRA CASH

WE ARE LOOKING FOR MOTIVATED individuals to fill the position of Campus Sales Representative. Earn hourly wage plus commission. 549-2871

LET US PREPARE YOUR 1988 TAX RETURN today...you'll have your refund in a month. Computerized returns professionally prepared for only $10. 549-2871

PERSONALS

ALL UMASS MEN!!
SIGMA PHI EPSILON
Open Rush Feb. 27, 28, March 1
If interested contact John at 549-6440.

LOST- one pair of skis

IF YOU'RE THE KIND OF PERSON who wants to work hard, be their own boss and be rewarded accordingly then Southwestern Co might be for you. Call Paul at 665-3247 so find out more about the summer work exchange

FOUND- One small Pierre Cardin belt and one pair of balck Thom McCann shoes

LOST- One turquoise Izod shirt. Give it back

JANINE- The hasty redhead! Have a nice day! Love Gail

TO THE PRETTY BLONDE SENIOR (coat check line, Pearl Street) Offer still open. John 545-0015. P.S. This time leave name and number!?!

TO THE UMASS GUY who was in Polisci at Amherst. I wish you hadn't dropped, I was really looking forward to getting to know you. Please respond if you would still like to. The Smirhw

191 COLONIAL VILLAGE SIG EP Had an awesome time!!! Trading pajamas next time could be interesting?!?

TO THE GIRL IN 34 TOWNEHOUSE- What did he do to you after three years?

FREYA, LARISSA, PIPE, VENY, ROBERTO, ITRIANANCE, HUMBERTO Beware-of-gauroo, the greenest of all

TO BARB (bob) you're old! HAPPY BIRTHDAY from Shmip, Shmene, Shmaren, Shmen and Shmasper!!

TIM FROM SIG EP: We've done the panis, let's do the rest!

SIG EP- Awesome exchange! So, do you want to trade shirts next time?! The sisters and ribbonettes of SDT

TO THE GUY I MET on the 5:00pm bus en route to Springfield 2/17 you were on your way to Worcester. I was going to Lee. Had a great conversation would like to ...ch again if interested. Respond here.

ROB SKELTON: Trustee!

ATTENTION STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS! EXCELLENT FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES HELPING WITH AN ON-CAMPUS MARKETING PROJECT. CALL IMMEDIATELY. STUART 546-7612. LEAVE A MESSAGE.

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt. or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later

RC GORMAN

AND OTHER SOUTHWESTERN images for the best prices call 546-5260. Ask for Frank

RIDE WANTED

RIDE WANTED TO BON JOVI CONCERT Worc Sunday March 12 Call Kelbe 6-8477

RIDE NEEDED TO ITHACA NY area/Spring Break/ call Caroline evenings 6-9771

TWO PEOPLE LOOKING for a ride to Florida call Kimberly 253-9301

ROOMMATES WANTED

NEW HOME no smoking on bus line $325 inc. 253-7948

LOOKING FOR A RESPONSIBLE NON-SMOKER to share 2bdrm apt. $150 negotiable. Call Kaz 549-6846

COOL REMALE ROOMATE NEEDED to share 3 bdrm Twnhse Apt 165/mnth 549-6448

SUNNY SPACIOUS WOODFLOOR BEDROOM available in furnished apartment in Hadley washer dryer microwave color television on bus route 15 minutes to UMass 10 minutes to Northampton Carbers right across the street parking available 2254 call evenings 8 weekends women only please 586-4412

2 NEEDED TO SHARE ROOM IN Townhouse apt beginning fall semester. Contact as soon as possible 546-3025.

ROOM AVAILABLE IN HOUSE. 3 min to bus. $225/month + util. Call Peter after 7pm 253-2268.

SERVICES

TUTOR**
COINS ECE MATH
BY EXPERIENCED GRAD 256-8121

AUTO REPAIRS: very reasonable, experienced mechanic. Work your place or mine. Messages for Mark 665-8467

PROFESSIONAL EDITING- Term papers, Theses, Dissertations. 1-467-3753 after 7pm.

VIDEO RESUME TO GET THAT JOB! immediate, professional, personalized service. Appointments. Video Image Productions (413) 863-8035

RESUME TYPESETTING. Avoid the end-of-semester panic. Very experienced, inexpensive, overnight laserwriter quality. Lisa 665-8969

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE ELECTIONS

NOMINATIONS ARE NOW AVAILABLE in SU 420 for SGA President, Student Trustee and any open senate seats. They are due back on March 2nd at 10:00am

SPRING BREAK- DAYTONA

IT'S NOT TOO LATE to reserve your spot at the Castaway Beach Resort- 7 nights only $139 w/transportation $219. Call Mark 549-2871

SWING DANCE/JITTER BUG CLASSES

Just $7 each or $25 for all four. No partner necessary! Classes meet from 4 - 6pm Sunday, March 5 thru Sunday, March 26 at East Street Dance Studio in Hadley -just off Rt. 9 between Amherst and Northampton. Instructors: Lars Marshall and Janine Warner. For more info, Call 546-9309. No pre-registration necessary.

TO THE PROUD OWNER OF DR LOVE

YOUR AWESOME! They'll never know what they're missing. Their loss is my gain I'm psyched! 1-4-3

TRAVEL

$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$
IF YOU'RE INTERESTED IN EARNING plenty of those and want to work outside of New England then Southwestern Has a very difficult high paying summerwork exchange. Apply now while there are still some positions left. Call Paul 665-3247

CANCUN $379/QUAD
Call 549-8239

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TYPING

"WORDSMITH" PROFESSIONAL TYPING. Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spelcheck. 253-4564

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional accurate 665-4501

WANTED

BIO 400: Genetics tutor: excellent pay please call Keran 6-9195

APARTMENT WANTED: We want to take over/buy your tree bedroom apartment, call 6-7824, or 6-7873

IF YOU HAVE A LEASE FOR A HOUSE (beg. 6/89 or later) that you would like to surrender to a responsible group of people-please call Susan 546-9084. Leave a message will respond

SPORTS

Track teams take 8th and 9th

• Women set UMass record, 5 'bests'

By JOHN STEVEN MARPLE
Collegian Correspondent

It isn't often that a coach can honestly say that he is happy with an eighth-place finish. But, University of Massachusetts men's track coach Ken O'Brien could make such a statement after last weekend's New England meet. He was honestly happy with his team's finish.

"We couldn't have competed any better," O'Brien said. "We got no breaks and caught no luck and we were only six points from sixth place."

The University of Rhode Island won the event with 94 points. Behind the Rams were: the University of Connecticut (69.3 points), Northeastern (58.4), Boston College (56.5), Boston University (55.6), Providence College (36.7), the University of New Hampshire (32.5). UMass was next with 30.9. Forty schools from New England competed.

Scoring points for the Minutemen were Jerry Squires, third in the 3,000-meters with a time of 14:31.9.

"He was outstanding," said O'Brien. "This was 31 seconds better than his best time."

Jerome Bledsoe placed fifth in the long jump with a distance of 22.9. This was his first action of the season after sustaining some injuries. "He came back very strong after a two-week layoff," O'Brien said.

Other strong performances were turn-

continued on page 19

• Coach O'Brien pleased with performance

By RICK SETO
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's indoor track team placed ninth in the New England Championships over this past weekend at Boston University. In the meet, five personal bests and a new school record were set.

Connecticut won the 25-school meet with 94 points, followed by Boston University (84) and Vermont (76).

From this meet, freshman Precious Hill ran fast enough in the 3,000 meter race to qualify for next weekend's Eastern Collegiate Athletic Championships at Yale University. The other super frosh, Lee Ann Ambrose, had broken the ECAC standard in the 400 earlier in the season.

Hill doubled in the 3,000 and 5,000, where she set two personal records with times of 9:52 and 17:45, respectively. Her third-place finishes earned almost half her team's points.

The 3,000M race was a spectacular race as far as the chase. Unfortunately, it was Hill who was doing the chasing. Coach Julie LaFreniere describes the roller coaster run. "She (Hill) was wavering and running in 4th, 5th, or 6th. There was a big battle between the three. She wasn't having the greatest race of her life, but with 2 laps to go, she blew by them. With just one lap to go, she blew by the third-place runner (Providence's Christine Crowley), who looked like she was never going to be caught. Precious was really moving now, she was just all out sprinting."

Ambrose was the center of controversy at the Commonwealth Armory, as she had to settle for second place. According to NCAA rules, she should have been placed in the fast heat of the 400m final, but instead was placed in the slower heat. This denied her a chance of running head-to-head against the eventual winner, BU's Semetra King. Basically, Ambrose did not have the benefit of chasing someone and instead had to run by herself.

LaFreniere, immediately protesting to the Games Committee, had the support of 13 other coaches on a petition, but was denied in her claim. She said "Lee Ann was really disappointed. She wanted to run against her (King), she wanted to have someone to chase. All she could so was run by herself and hope for the best."

Her time of 56.78 seconds was almost a full second behind King's (55.84), but it was her personal best.

After finishing second on her heat, Shana Smith finished fifth on the 1,000 yard final. According to LaFreniere, Smith had run the third-fastest time (2:40) and was relaxed. The day of the final, however, she was running tight and finished in the middle of a tight pack.

Most of the talk in the 20-pound indoor weight was about Tina White, but in the end, all eyes were focused on

continued on page 19

Future may be bright for Celts

Let's face it fellow Celtic fans. It breaks my heart to say this, but even with the addition of Joe Kleine and Ed Pinckney, the Celtics will not win the NBA Championship this year.

Don't jump off the bandwagon just yet though. Because I'm telling you if the Celtics return the same cast with a healthy Larry Bird next year, this team will be a major title contender.

And Pinckney and Kleine will be a big part of that. The impact of this trade is not going to be immediate. But it could pay big dividends next year and the year after.

George Austin

Robert Parish is not going to retire just yet. This is not the way for the Chief to cap off his career, not after the first down year in the Bird era.

Parish is having perhaps his best season as a Celtic and probably deserved a spot on the East's All-Star roster, yet was passed up for Pat Ewing and Brad Daugherty. I can see Ewing but Daugherty is not having a season comparable to Parish's. He can thank his lucky stars that Cleveland is having the year they are because that's the only reason he made the squad.

The addition of Kleine is going to prolong Parish's career a few more years. Jimmy Rodgers finally has a quality center to rely on so he can give Parish some rest. When was the last time the Celtics had a seven foot backup center, that could score some points?

Bill Walton was the last, but it seems like he's been injured forever. And with the addition of Kleine, Walton, (Is he still actually on the roster?) is expendable. Why should the Celtics pay Walton hundreds of thousands of dollars to lay on the beach in California?

Pinckney is the real interesting part of this deal. Since leading Villanova to the NCAA Championship in 1985, he has not blossomed into the player that NBA scouts felt he could become. The Celts are the third team he has been with, after Phoenix, and Sacramento.

Pinckney averaged just over 12 points a game for Sacramento. But he never really had a strong supporting cast with either the Suns or the Kings. He may have the cast in Boston with Dennis Johnson feeding him the ball and rookie Brian Shaw setting him up.

At a burly 6'9", and with his inside moves and rebounding, Pinckney could develop into the kind of player that Cedric Maxwell was in his heyday. And that would suit the Celtics just fine.

The Celts will have a bench next year and a good one. When Larry comes back, you're talking about a bench that will have a 20 points per game scorer in Reggie Lewis. If Bird is back in full health next year, Reg just might receive some serious consideration for the Sixth Man Award.

After Reg, the Celts will have Kleine in to back up Parish and Pinckney in for McHale. Leave Shaw in at the point guard spot and you've got a legitimate transition game. The Green team just might run the starters ragged in practice.

Giving up Lohaus was no big deal for the Celts. Lohaus was a seven footer who could only play small forward because he couldn't mix it up with the big guys. The one sore spot in this trade for the Celtics is the loss of Danny Ainge. The Celtics no longer have a guard that can stick the outside shot. DJ has not been the same since injuring his shoulder and Shaw has never been a long range sniper.

But I guess you have to give up something to get something and the Celts just might have got more than they gave up, a lot more.

Look for the Celtics to draft an outside shooting guard in this year's draft or to pick one up somewhere along the way over the summer, whether it be a free agent, a trade, or somebody from the CBA.

Equestrians ride home from Ireland

By MARION RILEY
Collegian Correspondent

Two members of the University of Massachusetts equestrian team recently spent 10 days in Ireland to compete and returned with a few ribbons and a great experience.

This past fall, Cara Becker and Amy Newton were attending an intercollegiate horse show and received an application to compete in Ireland. They both applied and a few months later received letters of acceptance. On Jan. 6 they left for Ireland.

"There were 20 of us from a variety of colleges," said Becker. "By the end of the week we were all best friends," Newton said. There were also 20 Irish, Scottish and British students chosen, against whom the Americans competed.

"It was my first international competition," said Newton, explaining why this trip was so special to her. "International competition at the college level started only a few years ago, before that it was only the country's best riders, so for me to compete means a lot."

For the competition, the 20 riders were broken up into five groups consisting of four riders each. "Two people from the higher group and two people from the lower group were picked for the teams on competition day," said Becker.

On the morning of the competition there was a dressage competition. Dressage is a type of riding in which judges look at the walk, trot and canter of the horse and how the rider executes the moves and how the horse obeys.

"I was really nervous until I went into the ring, and then I felt like I was at home," said Newton. "I am representing my country, I thought. About 300 colleges in America compete intercollegiately, I was one of 20 chosen out of all those people who competed, so I was representing all those people."

In the afternoon the show jumping competition took place. "I had never competed like that before. At the college level Ireland

continued on page 19

Ski teams close out season in Vermont

Finish 9th and 10th

By ROBERT SIMPSON
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's and women's ski teams capped off their seasons this past weekend at the Eastern Intercollegiate Ski Championships in Middlebury, Vt.

UMass skied against some ski powerhouses, including Dartmouth, Middlebury College, and the University of Vermont. It was UVM who came away king of the mountain, with both its men and women placing 1st in all races.

"Half their (UVM's) team is Europeans. They're the most powerful team in the East, if not in the nation," said UMass skiing coach Bill MacConnell.

The competition began Friday at the Middlebury Snow Bowl with the giant slalom. The injury ridden UMass women placed ninth out of a field of 17 teams. Dartmouth's Anouk Patty grabbed 1st place ahead of Middlebury's Erika Nourijan and UVM's Gabriela Hamburg. UMass' Marcy Blacker, who skied with her thumb in a cast, notched 35th place (out of 65 skiers), and was UMass' best finisher. Next for UMass was Mary Sinton (37th) and Marti Gilbert (47th).

In men's action, UMass finished 10th out of the 17 top three spots, with Dean Keller winning the race. John Donovan placed 36th for UMass. "He had a real good giant slalom race," said MacConnell. Also for UMass were Rick D'elia (37th) and John Roche (44th).

In the slalom on Saturday, the UMass women placed 11th out of 14.

Not surprisingly, a UVM skier, Hamburg, won the race. Blacker had an even better day than Friday, finishing 24th out

continued on page 19

Due to deadline restrictions, we are unable to give a complete account of the University of Massachusetts women's swimming results from the Eastern Championships at Penn State University.

The Minutewomen did, however, place 12th "out of 20-30 teams" with 102 overall points.

The top five spots went to:

1) Harvard University
2) Penn State University
3) Pittsburgh University
4) Brown University
5) Princeton University

WEATHER	EDITORIAL	SPORTS
March comes in like a lamb, not a lion. Today will be partly cloudy, high near 40.	Nancy Cohen reminds us the hardest thing to do is to find a friend or two. Page 9.	The women's track season hasn't been all up Hill, it has been "Precious". Page 20.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1989

COLLEGIAN

VOLUME CXXII LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY IN NEW ENGLAND ISSUE 22

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

Protestors from the American Friends Service Committee and the People for a Socially Responsible University picket Morrill Science Center over UMass' anthrax research.

Students protest anthrax research

By NANCY KLINGENER
Collegian Staff

About 25 people opposed to anthrax research at the University of Massachusetts marched across campus yesterday, trying to drum up support for a ban on the army-funded study.

"We have a right to question what's going on at the University," said John Bonifaz, a member of the American Friends Service Committee. "What is anthrax research? It's biological warfare research."

Carrying signs that read "Stop Anthrax Research" and shouting slogans, the protesters picketed in front of the Morrill Science Center, then marched to the Whitmore Administration Building.

The highly infectious anthrax virus is found most often in farm animals, and can be deadly to humans. The AFSC and a student group, People for a Socially Responsible

continued on page 5

Candidate disqualified from SGA's presidential race

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

The misuse of campaign literature this week in the race for president of the Student Government Association prompted the Government Affairs committee to disqualify one candidate and reduce the campaign budget of another.

Former student justice Tom Ralph, who is also a resident assistant in Mackimmie residence hall, was disqualified Monday night for sending 400 letters to area RAs announcing his bid for the presidency and urging them to encourage residents to vote in the election.

Ralph claimed the letter was not intended to be campaign literature but was instead an educational program as part of his duties as an RA.

"I've been disheartened that people don't vote," he said, adding he offered to pay for the material used. "Now they're calling it campaign literature and trying to throw me out."

"It's going to set a dangerous precedent," he said. "The Government Affairs committee now has the ultimate responsibility on deciding who the students get to vote for."

Ralph said he is planning to appeal the committee's decision to the student senate at tomorrow night's meeting. "They figured out a way to keep me from running but I'm not going to give up," he said.

Sen. W. Greg Rothman, a member of the committee, said Ralph's actions were a clear violation of Chapter 10 in the SGA bylaws, which prevents candidates from using personal funding in the race.

"We've never had a candidate so abuse the rules we've established before," he said. "We've only touched the tip of the violations of his campaign."

Rothman said SGA presidential candidate Sen. Tracy Davis and Ralph's former campaign manager, Sen. Matthew Happy are among the committee members but did not vote on the disqualification.

The second candidate, Sen. Josh Gordon, is also connected to a rules violation because several classified ads were printed in the Collegian supporting his bid for the presidency, Rothman said. The cost of the ads will be deducted from Gordon's campaign funds, which are alloted by the SGA, he said.

Mayor Flynn to speak tonight

Boston Mayor Ray Flynn and Irish-union leader Inez McCormack are scheduled to speak today at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium about Irish labor and social conditions, and their effect on Boston's work force.

The speech is being co-sponsored by the Northeast Area Government and the Distinguished Visitors Program.

Flynn has been mayor of Boston since 1983. He has also extensively visited Europe, including Ireland.

McCormack was director of the British government's Fair Employment Agency in Northern Ireland. She resigned in 1981 to protest the agency's ineffectiveness in fighting religious discrimination.

Currently the highest ranking female union official in Europe, McCormack has been an advocate for Irish Catholic rights and fair employment. Her work promoting the McBride Principles, which call for equal opportunity in American-owned businesses operating in Northern Ireland, earned her an award in 1985 by the Irish American Labor Coalition.

—KATHERINE T. LAMOTHE

Researchers at UMass design fire alarms for hearing-impaired

By JOHN SWANSON
Collegian Staff

A deaf woman lies asleep as the building she is in catches fire. Her chances of survival grow smaller as seconds elapse. A device on the wall suddenly emits a brilliant strobe of light which awakens her. She is among the first people out of the building.

This story is now a potential reality thanks to the efforts of a University of Massachusetts research team.

In a three-year project, now being conducted by the University's department of communication disorders, researchers have designed a more effective fire alarm for the deaf and hearing impaired.

Professor E. Harris Nober, an audiology professor who is conducting the project, said test results showed that a flashing strobe wakes deaf and hearing-impaired individuals as effectively as an audible alarm does for people with normal hearing.

"The visual modality of a deaf person can operate as efficiently as the auditory modality of hearing people, a very exciting revelation," he said.

Nober and a research team set off the alarms in the homes of deaf and hearing-impaired subjects with remote-control devices. (The subjects gave their permission for the researchers to wake them with the flashing-light signal in the early morning hours, Nober said.)

continued on page 5

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

Dr. Harris Nober and his new fire alarm for the hearing-impaired.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation: 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr. GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
AD MANAGER	BETTY-ANN MURPHY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ GEORGE FRANCY

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	RONN GARRY
COPY EDITOR	GEORGE AUSTIN
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	FLORENCIO TERRA
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISORS	CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ
PRODUCTION	TERRY STARMER MIKE WESTER CATHERINE GILBERT BRYAN LONG RICK SANTOS

AP photo

NEWSPAPER OFFICE HIT BY FIREBOMB — Police and fire personnel and Riverdale Press co-publisher Richard Stein, second from left, inspect the damage to the newspaper's offices in the Bronx section of New York after a firebomb was thrown through the front window early yesterday.

Officials say Bush likely to choose woman or black as US attorney

BOSTON (AP) — Top Massachusetts Republicans say President George Bush is likely to select either a black man or a woman as the next US attorney for Massachusetts.

The frontrunners for the job are Wayne Budd, a former president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, and Janis M. Berry, a former federal prosecutor, according to Peter Senopoulos, the New England head of a presidential committee to recruit women and minorities for the Bush Administration.

The appointment of either candidate would be a first for the state, Senopoulos said.

"They think it would send a signal that Bush is trying to push and that (GOP Chairman Lee) Atwater is trying to push that the Republican Party isn't the party of rich old white men anymore," a GOP source who asked not to be named said yesterday.

Several of the 25 people who applied for the job are scheduled to go through interviews at the Justice Department this week, but those interviews may be a little more than a formality.

"They're going through their interviews this week, the supposed four or five finalists, but in just about everybody's mind, it's been narrowed down to Janis and Wayne," the source said.

The Boston Herald, citing unidentified sources, reported yesterday that a third possibility is Robert Mueller, a former first assistant US attorney.

Senopoulos described all three as highly qualified, but said Ms. Berry and Budd, both of whom practice law in Boston and live in Saugus, bring something extra.

"It would sent a tremendous message to minorities if Wayne Budd is chosen and a powerful signal to women if it's Jane Berry," Senopoulos told the Herald.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY

SUMMER SESSIONS 1989

Programs at Georgetown
- Over 200 graduate and undergraduate courses
- Public Affairs Internships
- High School Programs
- Intercultural Training
- Interpretation and Translation Institute
- Language Courses
- Theology Conference
- Literary Criticism Conference
- Institute for ESL Teachers
- Sacred Scripture Institute
- Alumni College
- English as a Foreign Language

Programs abroad
- Antwerp, Belgium—Int'l Trade
- Tours, France—Language and Culture
- Leuvde, Italy—Italian
- Dillingen, Germany—Teachers
- Greece—Humanities
- Oxford, England—Comparative Business (undergraduate)
- Oxford, England—International Management (graduate)
- Quito, Ecuador—Spanish
- Trier, West Germany—German
- Middlebury—ESL Teachers

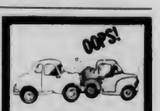
Sessions:
Pre—May 22-June 16
First—June 12-July 14
6-Week Core Session—June 12-August 4
Second—July 17-August 18

Call (202) 687-3782 (Admissions)
SSCE—Georgetown University
306 International Center
Washington, D.C. 20057

Send more information
Name
Address
Zip

Georgetown University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action institution and welcomes all applications.

OOPS!



Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd.
No. Amherst 549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

SHEEHAN'S CAFE
NORTHAMPTON
WEDNESDAY
THE BOWERY
(formerly Soul Kiss)
Outstanding Local Original R&B
THURSDAY
BAND OF CROWS
with local hero Joe Keenan
FRIDAY
THE Ululators
from Martha's Vineyard comes the original percussion-oriented reggae, funk, and R&B band. The jazz-tinged dance band combines African, Latin & even Celtic rhythms into a foot stomping, happy music.
SATURDAY
TREAT HER RIGHT
"I Think She Likes Me" is why the beginning by these guys. NATIONALLY RECOGNIZED
COMING UP
Thurs. 3/9 THE FAIRLANES
Fri. 3/10 PLASTIC "Z"
plus GIDGET GOES TO HELL
Preview
Sat. 3/11
Thurs. 3/16 COMPO LIMBO
Fri. 3/17 JACK SMITH
ROCKABILLY PLANET
Sat. 3/25 BLOOD ORANGES
20 PLEASANT N'HAMP 585-5149 21+

LOCAL

Rodrigues cautions of Spring trips

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

Spring Break is fast approaching and many students will be taking off for all parts of the globe on tours arranged through agencies which advertise at bus stops and on billboards.

Gladys Rodrigues, acting dean of students, is concerned that some of these tours are not reputable and she cautions students to be wary of hidden costs and devious practices that could cause a potentially good time to become a financial headache.

Although most companies that offer such package tours are on the up and up says Rodrigues "It's the one that [isn't] that concerns me."

"My intention is to tell people they should be concerned," she said, because "once they've departed from they're money and done business with [a company] there's nothing I can do."

The University is powerless to prosecute on behalf of students who have lost money to fly-by-night companies, she said.

Rodrigues' concern has been heightened this past year because more people than usual have fallen victim to companies that do not deliver on their promises, she said.

To avoid being caught in a situation that could ruin a vacation or cost more than was planned, Jason Lee, a campus contact for an established travel company offering package trips, suggests that students should:

- Make sure the company they are going through has a representative at the student's destination.
- Double check reservations personally with the hotel where they have been made.
- Ask friends about the legitimacy of the company.

Also, Lee pointed out that when companies say all gratuities are included, hotels and other places should not ask for money.

As an example — last year, Maria Macedo, a University of Massachusetts student, signed up for a weekend trip to Montreal, Canada that ended up costing about $40 more than she was led to expect.

Macedo said she had signed up for a bus trip that was to leave from Boston but when she and her boyfriend got there to get the bus, they had to wait over an hour for their transportation.

After boarding the bus, Macedo said, the company president came on to the bus and claimed to have sent all concerned a letter stating the trip was going to cost $10 dollars more than originally announced.

No one involved in Macedo's trip ever received the letter, she said.

If they did not pay, the president continued, the bus was not going anywhere, she said.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

HERE COMES THE SUN — Seniors C. Fingerwood and June Bancroft obviously don't mind Amherst's unpredictable weather as the spent their time outside the Student Union yesterday.

Spartacus hearing postponed yesterday

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

NORTHAMPTON — A show-cause hearing against members of the Spartacus League was postponed indefinitely yesterday because of counter charges made by the group, a court clerk said.

Several members of the Cambridge-based Spartacus League filed charges against members of the University of Massachusetts Republican Club, countering seven counts of assault and battery filed by the Republicans last week.

The Spartacus League filed 10 charges, nine of assault and battery and one charge of threatening to commit a crime, against four Republicans in Northampton District Court last Thursday.

All charges stem from a Feb. 9 brawl between the two groups.

The Republicans charged in the Spartacus counter charges are Paul McGonnigal, Doug Dratch, Brian Darling and W. Greg Rothman. Rothman is personally charged with three counts of assault and the charge of threatening to commit a crime. Rothman did not show up at the fight in the Campus Center meeting room until police arrived to break it up, he said.

The Cambridge-based Spartacus League had been invited, by its offshoot campus organization —the Friends of the Spartacus League— to speak at a forum in the Campus Center.

A fight erupted when Republican Club members who attended the meeting were being taken from the room for making too much noise, said the Spartacists.

Sanctions made against both the Republicans and the Friends of the Spartacus League, took away privileges to meeting areas and audio/visual equipment immediately after the fight.

Administrators and Building Services later stripped five conservative organizations of their privileges because they were suspected of renting rooms on behalf of the Republicans in defiance of the ban, University spokeswoman Jeanne Hopkins said.

Dudley Bridges director of Building Services said he lifted the ban on the five latter organizations because he felt the decision was unjust. He said only the Republicans could be blamed.

The original two groups involved will remain restricted until the investigation into the fight has been completed, said Assistant Dean of Students Eileen Stewart.

Visiting playmate gets few objections

Students reaction generally favorable toward Playboy 'bunny'

By SHARON WILKEY
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts students in the Campus Center yesterday said they did not object to the half-nude photograph of a University of Connecticut freshman featured in Playboy's April issue, or to her scheduled visit to Amherst tomorrow.

Allison Decker, an 18-year-old UConn nursing student, is one of three UConn women in the magazine's "Girls of the Big East" edition. She is scheduled to sign autographs at the Amherst Newsroom at 2 p.m. tomorrow to promote Playboy.

UMass senior John Cantarella said, "I don't think it's bad at all that she wants to come to Amherst. She looks nice."

"A lot of feminists will probably be at the store, protesting, but they shouldn't try to push their moral attitudes on another person. This is America. You can do what you want," Cantarella said.

About half of the 30 students questioned said they were not aware of Decker's photograph, or of her expected visit to Amherst. Men and women did not differ in their remarks.

One man, junior Vytas Gostautas, said, "It doesn't really bother me that she's coming to Amherst, but I wouldn't go running after her."

Ramani Sripada, a sophomore, said she does not understand the purpose of Decker's visit to Amherst. But, she said, "It's OK that she posed if she thinks it's OK."

Jim Thompson, a junior, said he did not see any controversy in her visit. "She's an 18-year-old girl, and everything is legal. I don't see any problem with that at all."

Some students said they were "morally opposed" to Playboy's portrayal of women, but did not object to Decker's choice to be photographed by the magazine.

Eileen Loh, a freshman, said she thinks Decker is too young to pose naked and that her appearance in Amherst is "a cheap ploy by Playboy to get people to buy more issues. If she's old enough to pose naked, why can't she have a beer?"

But, Loh added, "It's her body. She can do what she wants with it."

Students add a fourth hut to mock shantytown

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

"Cutback City" is expanding its realm of crudely-built huts along the banks of the campus pond in a continued protest against state budget cuts, but the mock shantytown is receiving mixed reviews from student onlookers.

About 12 students calling themselves the "Students for a Democratic University," have been living in the huts since Friday, and group members claim student support is increasing.

John Farrar, a member of the group, said several students yesterday helped in the construction of the fourth and largest shanty.

"It shows they believe in what we're doing," Farrar said. "By building another shanty, other people who want to crash here at night have room."

Farrar said various supporters have donated food to the students, including a $15-a-day food credit from the People's Market, a cafeteria in the Student Union building.

"I think it's a great idea," said first-year student Stephanie Steever. "I don't know if I'd have the willpower to stand out in the cold."

Junior Price Ray, an art major, said he may join the group because the budget cuts are severely affecting his department.

"I think it's good," Ray said. "It gets people's reactions and it helps."

But, several students were skeptical about the effects the mock shantytown will have on the budget cuts and said they disagreed with the group's tactics.

"I don't think it will help," said junior Mike Staras. "I don't know if this is the way to act."

Senior Susan Rando said "I think they're causing more of a disturbance now. It's just a little too much."

"I don't think it does much for the beauty of our campus," said graduate student David Naimark. But, he added "If it makes a point, they're doing a good job."

Farrar said the group refuses to leave until state legislators respond to the budget crisis in public higher education.

"We're planning on staying for a long time," he said. "We're drawing more people by the day."

SGA meeting expected to be more productive

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association meeting tonight promises to be less volatile and more productive than last week's forum, which was briefly overthrown by 30 banana-wielding students frustrated by the senate's antics in recent months.

Senate Speaker Robert Fadel said the protesters' message was badly timed because the senate meetings have improved significantly this month.

"The coup was mis-timed," Fadel said. "Hopefully it won't have to happen again. There are other ways for students to voice concerns."

Fadel said he is introducing many reforms for the SGA this semester, including the restructuring of voting districts, which will reduce the number of senate seats available.

Student senators are also required to produce a communicae, a newsletter to their constituents informing them of their representatives duties and accomplishments, he said.

If a senator fails to produce a communicae by noon today, Fadel said the student will be removed from the roll call and not allowed to participate in tonight's meeting.

"One of the most important things on the agenda is to reform the senate and make it a viable organ," he said. "The communicaes are a part of that."

Other business on tonight's agenda includes:

- A motion to approve the annual Rents and Fees review of University fees will be discussed.
- The senate may vote on whether to support University research into the anthrax bacteria (see related story on page 1).
- A move to place a referendum question on the Spring 1989 elections asking students if they favor a $4 waiveable fee to finace the MASSPIRG chapter at UMass.
- Student Trustee Stephanie Orefice has filed a plea to the senate for a search waiver to hire three assistants for her office.
- An attempt by Sen. W. Greg Rothman to pass a motion requiring the senate speaker to lead each meeting with brief, non-denominational prayer.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerico

Clarinda Case Turner and her bananna-totting protesters invaded the student senate last week.

What caused an 'underclass?'

Welfare act of 1935 may have played a part

By BETH GATELY
Collegian staff

NORTHAMPTON — The two-tiered welfare acts of 1935 might have been influential in creating what is known today as "the underclass of America", Charles V. Hamilton, the William Allan Neilson Chair of Research at Smith College said to an audience of about 50 last night in Wright Hall at Smith College.

In 1927 in honor of William Allan Neilson's 10th year as president of Smith, the Board of Trustees presented the college a gift which would sponsor a scholar to come to Smith for a semester to conduct timely research on the history of social policy in America.

Hamilton said the first tier of the 1935 welfare program was reserved for the prosperous working class. Both employees and employers contributed to this fund which provided "help to the old and unemployed" of this working class.

The second tier allowed for "public assistance for those not expected to work," Hamilton said. People in this category were black women with young children, agricultural and domestic workers.

"This was a serious concern. People were excluded from the first tier," Hamilton said. "The National Urban League and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People saw the socio-economic danger in this."

He said social-political problems should not relegate Afro-Americans to the second tier. "They wanted the first tier too, that's where the first class citizens were."

Hamilton said forcing blacks, the poor, agricultural and domestic workers into the second tier made them "wards of the state." Ultimately, these people were caught in the welfare cycle. He said the developement of slums might also be attributed to the system.

"The Social Policy Agenda concentrated on reaching full employment first, and then worried about discrimination on the job later," Hamilton said. "The NAACP supported this, but the Civil Rights Agenda put civil rights before the Social Policy Agenda."

Women's role in church discussed

Women face an uncertain role in the Catholic church, according to the chaplain of Smith College.

Elizabeth Carr, in a discussion with a small group at Amherst College's Chapin Hall Monday night, said, "The female voice in the church is needed, but at the same time we belong to a universal church." She said the church has chosen men as role models based on precedent.

Several students expressed concerns about women someday being ordained. According to Father Richard Bondi, an Amherst College priest in the group, the Vatican does not believe women should be ordained because Christ was a man, thus making men better able to be in the image of Christ.

Carr said, "Some argue feminist theorists should follow their own course and not follow the course of men. I'm not sure where this leads, it may lead some out of the church."

She said women find it hard to accept that changes in the church will be slow. "We have to believe women are very important gifts," she said. "The problem is our role won't change overnight."

Several members of the audience said women are the backbone of the church. They said most work done in the church is performed by women, but they are not recognized for their work.

Carr agreed, and said women are justified when they feel alienated by the church.

—BETH GATELY

UPC PRESENTS

HUGO LARGO

SATURDAY MARCH 4

8:00 IN THE BLUEWALL CAFE UMASS

$6 UMASS STUDENT
$7 GENERAL PUBLIC

TICKETS ON SALE AT TIX UNLIMITED, FOR THE RECORD-FACES, & MAIN ST. RECORDS-NORTHAMPTON

For Your Information

For Your Information is a service of the Collegian to its readers. Because of a lack of space, not all press releases can be included in FYI. For more information, contact David at the Collegian, at 545-3500.

Census Information
The annual town census is now underway by mail in Amherst. All forms must be returned by today. For more information, contact Cornelia Como at 253-9382.

Forum
"Managing Differences" is the subject of a Human Relations Forum to be presented by the Office of Human Relations at noon today in room 805 of the Campus Center. For more information, contact the Office of Human Relations at 545-0851.

Meeting
The Golden Key National Honor Society has scheduled a general meeting for 7 p.m. today in room 165 of the Campus Center. For more information, contact Chris Whaling at 546-5507.

Auditions
Auditions for "That's Entertainment: A Musical Extravaganza" are scheduled for at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow, Thursday and Friday in room 163 of the Campus Center. For more information, contact Bonnie Borromeo at 256-0569.

Concert
Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity will be sponsoring the band Too Much Fun, last year's winner of the Southwest Battle of the Bands. The concert is scheduled for 9 p.m. Saturday in the Campus Center Auditorium. For more information, contact Scott Idol at 549-2913 or 253-9032.

Vigil
A march and vigil to "pray for peace and the allowance of human rights in Tibet" is scheduled to be held at 7 p.m. on Sunday on the main lawn on Smith College, for more information, call 586-8875.

Meeting
The Legal Services Center has scheduled a meeting for students interested in internships. The meeting is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Monday, in room 917 of the Campus Center. For more information, contact the LSC at 545-1995.

Support Group
For separated and divorced men. The group will be meeting in Northampton from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays, beginning this month. For more information, contact David Arbeitman at 527-5911.

Meeting
The Third World Caucus is an "umbrella organization consisting of members from many historically oppressed and underrepresented communities." Meetings are held at 5:30 p.m. every Wednesday. Check the Campus Center schedule for location. For more information, contact Adam Stein at 546-9535.

Support Group
P-FLAG, Pioneer Valley Support Group for parents, families, friends of lesbians and gays, meets at 7:30 p.m. the second Tuesday of every month in the Grace Episcopal Church Parish Hall in Amherst. For more information, contact Jean M.B. Genasci at 532-4883.

Fax Service
The Campus Center Hotel now offers Fax service to the University community, as well as a Telex service. Documents to be faxed are to be brought to the Hotel Reservations office on the third floor of the Campus Center from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Payment may be made directly or by using departmental purchase orders. For more information, contact the service at 549-6000.

Seniors plan endowment as gift to UMass

By PETER LUCHT
Collegian Staff

This year's senior class wants to give a gift that keeps on giving, and they think they've come up with it, said Cheryl Carboneau, chairperson of this year's Senior Campaign.

The Senior Campaign committee, made up of about 15 seniors, plans to enlist the aid of seniors from April 2-15 to generate funds to form an endowment, the first ever by the senior class, said Carboneau.

An endowment is roughly similar to a bank account, where money is deposited and interest is earned.

The goal of this year's campaign, with the theme of "Footprints of 1989," is to raise $50,000, and the interest generated from that initial contribution to the endowment will be used for a senior class gift, Carboneau said.

"This will be something from just the senior class . . . a lasting gift," Carboneau said.

This year's gift of over $1,000 will go to the University's Mental Health Services, a department of the University Health Services, said Eric Snoek, director of annual giving from the University Development Office.

"In the past we have asked seniors to contribute, but this year we have such a great group of seniors they decided to get together and see if they could do something special," Snoek said. "This will be a lasting gift, it will have impact in future years."

The bulk of donations will be solicited by telephone through the University Telefund office. Various campus groups are recruiting volunteers to man the phones during the campaign's two-week push for donations, Carboneau said.

"We really wanted to give this gift to Mental Health Services," she said. "It's a mainstream type program that has affected lots of students all over the campus."

Carboneau said each future senior campaign will put money into the endowment and use the resulting increased annual interest for the senior class gift.

The first senior campaign was held in 1984. The money generated from it and other campaigns had in years past been combined with other donations, she said, with a committee from the alumni affairs office deciding where the money would go.

■ fire alarm for hearing-impaired

continued from page 1

Researchers evaluated the effectiveness of the signal by measuring the "household egress," or the time that elapses between the triggering of the alarm and the subject's departure from the house, he said. Data was gathered for persons with differing sleeping patterns, and different strobe colors and intensities were measured for effectiveness, he said.

"I wanted to get the same safety standard for the hearing-impaired as for the audible alarms," he said.

This is the second three-year research project related to fire safety that Nober has conducted. The first, which was sponsored by the National Bureau of Standards' Card for the effect of audible alarms on persons with normal hearing, he said.

"From the time the audible signal went off to the time the last person was out of the house, the average was about 48 seconds. That's good speed. That offers a lot of protection," he said.

Nober said the 48-second standard was made possible among the deaf and hearing-impaired subjects by using a strobe at 100 candelas.

The project, which is sponsored by a grant from the National Institute for Disability and Rehabilitation Research, will end June 30.

Nober said deaf and hearing-impaired people account for 15 to 20 percent of the world's population.

Professor Arnold Well said that he and professor Stanley Moss, both of the psychology department, assisted Nober in collecting and analyzing the data. Well said the residential data was collected about a year ago in Amherst, Hadley and Springfield. The research associates also helped create the questionaires that the subjects answered before and after the tests, he said.

Nober designed and built the first alarm, which is basically a standard smoke alarm with a strobe wired to its circuit. He cannot patent the device, he said, because it is such a simple design and all the parts are easily obtainable.

"When you're just changing technology around, you can't copyright that," he said. "We're using products that are out there. For instance, the flash is the same one used at airports. I didn't have to reinvent the wheel."

UMass is a 'test case' for germ-research battle

By NANCY KLINGENER
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts will be "an interesting test case" in the fight against army-funded biological research, a veteran activist said yesterday.

"I'm hoping that the chancellor, the faculty, and the student body at the University of Massachusetts will send a clear signal to the rest of the world that they will not tolerate this kind of research," said Jeremy Rifkin, president of the Foundation on Economic Trends.

Rifkin has been involved in two lawsuits against the government, both in opposition to military-funded biological research.

One of the lawsuits resulted in a permanent injunction against building an aerosol test center in Utah, and the other caused the printing of an environmental impact statement on all biological research projects, he said.

Local activists who are trying to ban anthrax research at UMass asked Rifkin to speak on campus, the day before a town Board of Health public hearing about the biological research at the University. (Related story, page 1.)

"I think the University of Massachusetts will be an interesting test case," Rifkin said. "The people up in that part of the country can hopefully be a note of inspiration for other communities."

Rifkin is scheduled to speak on campus at 8:15 p.m. today, in a forum sponsored by the groups opposed to the research.

Although 129 university, corporate, and military labs are funded by the US Army Biological Defense Research Program, "the University of Massachusetts work is one of the most dangerous ones, because it's anthrax," Rifkin said.

University officials maintain the research poses no danger to the community, because it uses a strain that is non-infectious — and because the study is aimed at finding a vaccine.

A 1972 international treaty bans all research on offensive biological weapons. Rifkin said the Reagan administration increased funding for biological warfare research 800 percent in the last three years, and UMass research contributes to the army's potentially-deadly information.

"You can't do offense, but you can do defensive research. It's a pretty big loophole, because the microorganism doesn't know whether it's offensive or defensive," Rifkin said. "There's no offense or defense when you're developing your data."

UMass Chancellor Joseph Duffey issued a statement last Friday defending the research, and accusing the AFSC of trying to frighten townspeople with the protests against the research.

"The chancellor of the University of Massachusetts either mis-spoke or was not properly briefed," Rifkin said. "Even though there's only a small risk of security breach or an accident, the potential environmental disruption and the potential tragic consequences to public health are enormous."

■ anthrax research

continued from page 1

University, have asked the University to halt the research.

The UMass study is part of the US Army Biological Defense Program, and receives $115,000 a year from the Department of Defense, said James Langley, associate vice chancellor for University Relations and Development.

Langley said the research is safe and ethical, because it's aim is finding a vaccine for anthrax, and it uses a non-infectious form of the virus.

"The people who work with it don't consider it enough of a threat to be inoculated against it," Langley said. "By every objective measure there is no threat to the University whatsoever."

The National Institute of Health rates the research as "low-risk," he said.

Langley said the protesters were using "scare tactics" to stir up public concern about the issue.

"As a University, we believe that knowledge will make the world safer than ignorance," Langley said. "We're troubled by the fact that so much public concern has been aroused. We think it's been aroused needlessly."

The Amherst Board of Health has scheduled a public hearing on the anthrax research issue for tomorrow. The AFSC has announced plans to ask the board for a ban on the research.

"It's almost become the military-industrial-education complex," said Libby Hubbard, a graduate student and protester. "We really need to re-think what the University is about."

Joe Rubin, a member of People for a Socially Responsible University, said the anthrax research is "just the tip of the iceberg" in military-funded research at the school.

The two groups opposed to the anthrax research are sponsoring a panel discussion on "Biological Warfare and the Militarism of the University," scheduled for 8:15 p.m. today, at Mahar Auditorium.

The Board of Health's public hearing is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, at the Bangs Community Center.

Beat Cafe Presents

"Highly Recommended!" Critics Choice:

A J·A·Z·Z P·L·A·Y

KEROUAC

THE ESSENCE OF JACK

March 1. 8 P.M.
Hampden Theater
$5/$3 stu./s.c.
For Tickets call
545-2511

"Awww-some"

PARAMOUNT
Performing Arts Center
1703 Main Street, Springfield, MA 01103

MICHELLE SHOCKED
Saturday, March 18

Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble
Saturday, March 11
8 pm
on behalf of YWA, Foundation of Pioneer Valley and its affiliates

Clancy Brothers with Robbie O'Connell
with special guest
The Dustmen

Sunday, March 12, 7 pm

TICKETS ON SALE FEB. 27

THE FIXX
Sunday, April 2

"An Outspoken Evening with"
MORTON DOWNEY, JR.! May 6

Tickets available at the Paramount Box Office (413) 734-5874
All Ticketron Outlets and Telecron 1-800-382-8080

Choose Excellence

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

COLLEGIAN

"It ain't perfect but it's the only game in town. And it's an important game for students who seek careers in journalism. Experience on the Collegian is increasingly valued by the editors throughout the northeast."

Howard Ziff, UMass Professor since 1971; Reporter & Asst. City Editor, Chicago Daily News

Come write for the Collegian
113 Campus Center

Opportunities in:

- News
- Arts
- Sports
- Editorial
- Black Affairs
- Women's Issues
- Photography

AMERICAN EXPRESS PRESENTS

THE HBO COMEDY CONCERT

JUDY TENUTA PERFORMING LIVE!

8:00 P.M.

MARCH 9, 1989

CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM University of Massachusetts

$3 ADMISSION
5 WINNERS RECEIVE $100 AMERICAN EXPRESS® GIFT CHEQUES*

TICKETS AND ENTRY FORMS AVAILABLE IN ADVANCE AT MANNED TABLES AT THE CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE AND THE TICKETS UNLIMITED BOX OFFICE (ROOM 317 STUDENT CENTER).

Come see the HBO Comedy Concert March 9th at the University of Massachusetts Campus Center Auditorium You'll laugh. You'll roar. You may even be one of five lucky university students to take home a $100 American Express Gift Cheque. Pick up your Ameri can Express application and enter the prize drawing today before it's too late!

* Winner need not be present, complete application, or purchase ticket to win an American Express Gift Cheque. Tickets and entry forms for the American Express® sponsored HBO Comedy Concert are now available at the Campus Center Concourse and the Tickets Unlimited Box Office in Room 317 of the Student Union.

STUDENT CARDMEMBERS FREE!

THE AMERICAN EXPRESS CARD DON'T LEAVE SCHOOL WITHOUT IT.℠
Start building your credit history now—before you graduate. It's going to be one of your most valuable tools for "the real world."

Take advantage of the American Express Card's Automatic Approval Offer. To apply by phone call: 1-800-942-AMEX. Apply today.

Board of Governor's Program Council

AMERICAN EXPRESS TRAVEL RELATED SERVICES

© 1989 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

Vehicles collide

An accident Monday, partially brought on by slick road conditions, left the three cars involved with a total of $2,000 in damages, police said.

The first car was turning onto University Drive near its intersection with Massachusetts Avenue when it was struck by a second vehicle skidding on the snow. The first vehicle then spun backwards and hit a third vehicle, police said.

In other police reports:

- A student in Baker Residence Hall reported Sunday that he was assaulted. Police advised him on how to seek a court complaint against the individual.
- A student in McNamara Residence Hall reported the lock to his room had been tampered with. The latch on the door had been pryed open. Damage to the door was estimated at $100, police said.

Festival will stress diversity of Asian people

By TERENCE EGAN
Collegian Correspondent

The fourth annual Amherst College Asian Heritage Festival, scheduled to begin tomorrow night, will focus on the diversity of Asian peoples, according to a member of the group sponsoring the festival.

"What our main focus is this year is Asian Heritage itself," said Elizabeth Arai, member of the Amherst College Asian Students' Association.

"When people think of Asia, they usually think of Japan and China," she said. "We are trying to present a greater variety of Asian heritage."

The festival, which will run until March 11, will begin with the presentation of the film "Who Killed Vincent Chin." The film is scheduled to be shown at 8 p.m. in the Amherst College Campus Center Theater.

"Unfortunately, a lot of people just don't come [to the festival]," Arai said. The ASA's financial trouble has been one of the reasons the festival have not been promoted as much as desired, she said.

The ASA has scheduled as their keynote speaker Fred Houn, founder of the East Coast Asian Students Union. Houn's address, on the roles and responsibilities of Asian students in the United States, is scheduled for Tuesday, March 7, at 7 p.m. in the Amherst College Front Room.

Arai said the Asian Heritage Festival was the culmination of the ASA's year-long efforts. "It's an organization where Asian students can get together," she said. "The Heritage Festival is where we share what our group does with the rest of the campus."

$99 roundtrip airfares on Northwest Airlines. A special offer for students, only for American Express Cardmembers.

If you want to go places, it's time for the American Express® Card.

Because now you can take advantage of new travel privileges on Northwest Airlines only for full-time students who carry the American Express Card.

Travel privileges that offer:

Two $99 roundtrip tickets—fly to any of the more than 180 cities served by Northwest in the contiguous 48 United States. Only one ticket may be used per six-month period.

Special Quarterly Northwest Destination Discounts throughout 1989—up to 25% off the lowest available fare.

5,000 bonus miles in Northwest's WORLDPERKS® free travel program—where only 20,000 miles gets you a free roundtrip ticket to anywhere Northwest flies in the contiguous 48 United States or Canada.

NORTHWEST AIRLINES LOOK TO US

And, of course, you'll enjoy all the exceptional benefits and personal service you would expect from American Express.

The only requirements for privileged travel: you must be a Cardmember, you must be a full-time student, and you must charge your Northwest Airlines tickets with the Card.*

Getting the Card is easier than ever because now you can apply by phone. Just call 1-800-942-AMEX. We'll take your application and begin to process it right away. What's more, with our Automatic Approval offers, you can qualify now while you're still in school.

Apply now. Fly later—for less.

Apply Now: 1-800-942-AMEX

AMERICAN EXPRESS TRAVEL RELATED SERVICES An American Express company

*Some restrictions may apply. For complete offer details, call 1-800-942-AMEX. Current student Cardmembers automatically receive two $99 vouchers in the mail.

© 1989 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

School board divided over integration plans

BOSTON (AP) — Fifteen years after the fierce battle began to desegregate Boston's schools, the city appears to be back at square one with school board members split along racial lines over plans to improve segregation.

Civil rights leaders said yesterday they're ready to go back to court unless charges are made to a plan that would end court-ordered busing by allowing parents to shop around for a school of their choice.

"It's a back door into segregation, an old tired rusty car with a new coat of paint," said Louis Elisa, president of the Boston branch of the NAACP. "If there isn't substantial change in this process, (which is a) resegregation of the public schools, the NAACP does not feel compelled to sit on the sidelines and let that happen."

Supporters of the school assignment plan say the competition would spur improvements, lure back whites to the system they fled during busing, and cut long bus rides.

Opponents say the plan could open the door to a further exodus of white students, and that it could not work without more money to improve the overall system.

Monday night, the nine white members of the School Committee voted for the plan. The four black members voted against it.

Ellen Guiney, education adviser to Mayor Raymond Flynn who is supporting the plan's foes, but are confident the assignment plan will withstand any legal challenge.

Under the assignment plan, the city would be divided into three geographical zones and parents would be allowed to choose within the zones, provide it did not upset racial balance and there is space. The plan is scheduled to be implemented this fall for students entering kindergarten, grades 1 through 6. Other grades would be assigned in September 1990.

Thomas Atkins, a Brooklin, N.Y.-lawyer who represented black parents in a 1972 suit demanding that Boston schools desegregate, said he's not surprised that the city still hasn't laid the desegregation issue to rest.

"Boston and the school committee has never been without those whose most fervent desire was to return the system to the mode it had before the federal court intervened," he siad.

Busing was imposed in Boston in 1974 by order of US District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., triggering rock throwung violence and white flight. Boston schools went from a 1972 population of 96,000 students, 60 percent of them white, to the current 59,000 students, 24 percent of them white.

The system is plagued by a perennial budget crunch and a 40 percent high school dropout rate.

Its reputation is known.

For example, Boston University basketball Coach Mike Jarvis said in a recent interview that some college recruiters on the East Coast told him they don't recruit players from Boston because they feel they are a poor bet to make the academic grade in college.

Guiney acknowledged the school system is in trouble, but said a plus for the assignment plan is that it has focused attention on those problems.

"We do know that the education in the Boston schools now is generally unsatisfactory to everybody," she said. "The problems are serious. There is consensus that it's a system very nearly in crisis."

Judge Garrity returned some control of the system to the School Committee in 1985. And in 1987, a federal appeals court ruled that Boston was complying with desegregation orders.

Zeta Psi — Amherst Drop Zone

ARMY/NAVY SALE

Sponsored By: Zeta Psi

ZΨ

With: Amherst Drop Zone

Feb. 27 To March 2
9-5 p.m. 4 Days Only

Plus: 4 additional Vendors with...

VINTAGE CLOTHING
JEWELRY
MEXICAN BLANKETS
CHAMPION SWEATSHIRTS
LIVE CONCERT TAPES

And Surplus Surplus Surplus Surplus Surplus

Located in Student Union Ballroom

NOW... ON SATURDAY IN AMHERST!

FILM IN BY 11:00 am
PRINTS OUT BY 2:00 pm

1-HOUR SERVICE ALSO AVAILABLE

The Foto Factory

257 TRIANGLE ST. / AMHERST

AIDS:

Support Group for Family, Friends and Lovers of people with AIDS

A support group is being sponsored by University Health Services to assist people who are coping with the fact that a family member, lover, or a friend has AIDS.

The first meeting will be on March 9, Thursday, 5:30-7:30 pm

For more information regarding the make-up of the group and the meeting place, please call the Health Education Office on Wednesdays and Thursdays and ask for Debbie (549-2671, ext. 181). Confidentiality is assured.

TWISTERS TAVERN

DRINK SPECIALS
Bombay & Tonic $1.75
Rolling Rock Bottles $1.50
Labatt's Bottles $1.50
Rolling Rock Drafts

TONIGHT—REGGAE
NEW HORIZONS

THURSDAY—RHYTHM & BLUES
BARBECUE BOB & THE RHYTHM ACES

FRIDAY—RHYTHM &BLUES
THE POOR BOYS

SATURDAY—RHYTHM & BLUES
SOUL JONES & THE CRUNCH

TRY OUR DELICOUS FULL MENU

96 GOLTWOOD WALK, DOWNSTAIRS, AMHERST 253-2663

Scott's LIQUORS

6 University Drive at Newmarket Center
Amherst, MA

Open: Mon.-Sat. 8 a.m.-11 p.m. 549-2692

diagonally across from stadium, next to Louis Foods.

It's Another Week Of SCOTT'S SUPER SPECIALS!

GUINNESS GOLD LAGER 24-12 0z. bottles
16.99
-8.00
$8.99 final cost

ROLLING ROCK 12 pack bottles
$5.99 plus deposit

CASTILLO RUM 1.75 White or Gold
$10.99 sale price
-3.00 mail in rebate
$7.99 final cost

STROH'S & STROH'S LIGHT 30 pack cans
$10.99
- 2.00
$8.99 final cost

KIMNOFF VODKA 1.75 ltr
$8.99

JAMESON IRISH WHISKEY
$10.99 sale price

We want to be your favorite liquor store.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily reflect the view of the Collegian or the University Administration.

Be proud to have friends

All day long we try. Try to get along with people. Try to deal with our classes, professors, basically life.

It's nice for a change to sit back and realize what we have as opposed to what we want.

Nancy Cohen

I fully realize that this sounds totally corny, sappy, almost slimy with sentiment, but it wouldn't be drippy and oozy if there wasn't some truth to it.

Friendship — it's such a bizarre term for the interaction of people. That's why I would like to thank all the people who have the courage to actually admit to being my friend. Because due to popular belief, it isn't easy being me and it is especially not easy being my friend.

Sometimes I believe my friends must have all gone to drill camp somewhere in Georgia trained and then come back saying "Okay, now I can be friends with her."

I'm talking about the friends who can deal with me on a day to day basis. These people are willing to be around me when the little stresses in life occur. Like when I get tense over studying for a practice test that doesn't even count toward my grade. Or when I freak out when I break a fingernail and they have the decency not to laugh, but have the insight to realize there may be something else going on.

These people who have the patience to let me sit there and scream for five or six hours then smile sweetly and ask "Are you finished?" I must say, these people not only have integrity but are also extremely — I'd like to say dumb, but they're my friends and I'm not complaining.

Besides, it's all due process. I put up with some really outrageous stuff also. Sometimes I feel like I went to that drill camp in Georgia. In the long run, it all gets evened out — at least that's what I would like to believe.

Because due to popular belief, it isn't always easy being friends with them. How would you like to be friends with people who firmly believe that it is against their religion to shut any cabinet or refrigerator doors in your house? Or has a great desire to watch MTV twenty-four hours a day, only to take a break and put on some lovely melodies by a band called "The Butthole Surfers?"

You would never guess that this group of people have the ability to get along. (In fact, sometimes we don't.)

Here I am with my penny-loafers and oxfords, while they dress in, uh, intriguing little ensembles. Two of my friends wear more schlack in their hair than Vidal Sasson is able to produce in a year. One proudly admits to looking like a cross between the "Stay Puff Marshmellow Man" and "The White Cloud cloud". Some of my friends try to dress Euro-trendy, but end up as American-trashy. Then there's one who looks oh-so-sweet and innocent one day, and becomes a leather-clad head banger the next.

Last but certainly not least, I have that special friend who I suppose we all need in life; that special someone who is simply too cool for his own good, therefore, kindly shares all your imperfections with you.

That's right, these are my friends. Besides the fact that we're all ashamed of each other, and prefer not to be seen in public with one another, we get along great.

Everybody complains about their friends at one time or another, but I just want people to realize that they should feel pretty happy they have someone to complain about. Let's face it, not every person in America can complain about your friends just the way you do. You should be honored to be ashamed of people who actually acknowledge you as a friend.

Just remember, friendship is not just a word, it's a priviledge.

Nancy Cohen is a Collegian columnist

Attack producers not vendors

Pornography and sexist advertising are deplorable, but so are the actions of misguided individuals who attack freedom rather than finding solutions to the problem.

Pedro Pereira

Such misguided attackers of First Amendment freedoms include the fifty so-called activists who protested the sale of pornography at the Amherst Newsroom last month and the people with nothing better to do than make a fuss about every ad in the Collegian they consider sexist.

Last week, the Collegian distributed an advertising insert for Miller beer, which among other offenses referred to women as "babes" and displayed photos of women in bikinis. The advertisement's theme was fun at the beach during spring break.

Miller obviously aimed the ad at men, by showing practically nude women in solicitous positions and calling them "babes." The ad was clearly distasteful.

But I don't need any self-righteous "activist" telling me that. And I certainly don't appreciate the same self-righteous "activist" telling me the ad is inciting men to take the "babe" by force to rape her. Shelagh Murray, who wrote a column in Friday's Collegian (Feb. 24, "Beer ad found offensive"), offered an indignant interpretation of the ad as advocating the "right to rape."

In all fairness to the people at Miller, I doubt they meant to tell every male reader of the Collegian they should exercise this "right." Besides, the last time I checked the Bill of Rights, I found no such right.

What I found, however, was what Murray and the fifty "activists" who picketed the Amherst Newsroom last month seem to know little about — free speech and free press.

The Bill of Rights guarantees the Collegian the right to carry sexist advertising and the Amherst Newsroom to carry pornographic magazines if they so wish.

During my two semesters as editor in chief of the Collegian, I rejected several ads that I and other decision makers agreed dehumanized women by portraying them as sex toys. But that by no means supports the view that some material is not publishable.

Likewise, were the Amherst Newsroom's management to remove Playboy, Hustler, or Penthouse from the shelves it would not mean the store has no right to sell them.

Of course the anti-pornography people have the right to protest, but they are aiming their criticism at the wrong target. Instead of prosecuting the messenger, in this case the Amherst Newsroom, why not seek out the originator? If the so-called activists want to end pornography, why not picket the studios? Or write to them? Should the Amherst Newsroom yield to your pressure, rest assured that pornography would not end.

The same goes for the sexist-ad police. Instead of condemning the Collegian for exercising its First Amendment rights, why not voice your concerns to Miller? After all, Miller is the true culprit.

Some people did just that. They contacted Miller, complained, and the company responded by stopping distribution of the advertisement and writing a letter of apology, which the Collegian printed yesterday.

The point that pornography and sexist advertising degrades women is well taken, but the assertion that violence toward women would decrease were pornography abolished or sexist ads banned is questionable at best.

Prove it.

Pedro Pereira is a Collegian columnist

People with AIDS are not victims

The article on the Visiting Nurse Association's AIDS support volunteer program (Feb. 8, "AIDS victims get buddies through program") was insightful and objective. However, there is one small, yet very important complaint I have, Danielle Bionda keeps referring to "AIDS patients" and "AIDS victims."

People with AIDS are only sometimes patients. Often they are able to get around just like any of the rest of us and lead very productive lives. The times they do require hospitalization, they try to get out and about as soon as possible (just like the rest of us).

People with AIDS almost never see themselves as victims. They may carry a terminal disease, but they are still most often in full control of their lives. Without knowing it, you may have passed a PWA (person with AIDS) downtown, sat next to a PWA at the movies or talked to one on the bus.

People with AIDS are not patients or victims, as little as they are lepers, perverts, or aliens. They are mainly people — just like you and I — with the same hopes, fears, and dreams that you and I have.

So do not look down at the "poor victims" but look up to fellow brothers and sisters who have much to teach us about grasping and enjoying each moment of this precious thing we call "life".

Mike Izdepski
Springfield

The Collegian accepts letters and columns from the Umass community and Five-College Area. ALL submissions MUST BE TYPED. Handwritten letters will not be printed.

Submissions become property of the Collegian and are thus subject to editing for grammar, clarity and space. Send or bring submissions to 113 Campus Center.

Pushing for efficient student government

Last Wednesday the People's Union for a Revolutionary Junta (PURJ) took over the Undergraduate Student Senate. As a co-leader, I'd like to tell you why we sponsored a coup. Our goal was not only to disrupt the senate, it was to deliver a serious message. We wanted them to know we are angry that the senate spends most of its time playing games with itself.

Governments have three responsibilities: to gather a little money from individuals and spend it on everyone, to figure out community policy, and to provide leadership in crisis situations. After that, they find things to keep themselves busy.

If you think that student government is a joke, then consider this — the senate has control of $2.5 million that it gets from you and me every year. This money goes into the Student Activities Trust Fund to pay for all sorts of things. It pays for the Five-College buses, as well as funding many of the Registered Student Organizations on campus. We contribute this money to Spring Concerts through the University Programming Council and sponsor part of the WMUA radio station.

This year the senate managed to pass a budget so that much of the above activities could continue to function. However, most of the work was done by a small group of individuals called the Budget Committee. All the Senate Body had to do was "ok" the proposal. So two weeks ago, everyone decided to be nice to each other and get something done.

Clarinda Rose-Turner

A government is supposed to speak to all the people that we don't have the time or connections to talk to, then make informed decisions about community policy. Our senate has had several things to say. It condemned the fee for the hockey rink, and then it endorsed it. It had no opinion about the police substation in a Southwest dormitory.

To be fair, a few senators recently pushed through a bill about lighting dangerous parts of campus. They spent the time to speak with the Director of Public Safety, Art Hilson. Most of them are a part of another hard-working committee called Public Policy.

Finally, a government tells its people what's going on and how we can make things better. It's supposed to lead us to do things for ourselves. But this year the senate can't even agree to choose a president.

Our trustee, Stephanie Orefice, tried to tell the senate months ago that the state was going to slash our budget. Did you hear anything about cuts in October? November? Ask your senators why you didn't. Ask them why you haven't seen them behind the "Write a Letter to Your State Rep." table in front of the Mini Store.

It's not too much to ask these things. For the past 11-1/2 months, the senate has not been doing its job. Other parts of the Student Government Association worked twice as hard to make up for the senate's irresponsibility. It's time to change that.

PURJ wants the students to voice their displeasure. We are passing around a petition that makes three demands: asking that the senate actively address the budget cuts, address the rising tide of crime on campus and finally, publish monthly compellations of their accomplishments. Please sign it if you see it.

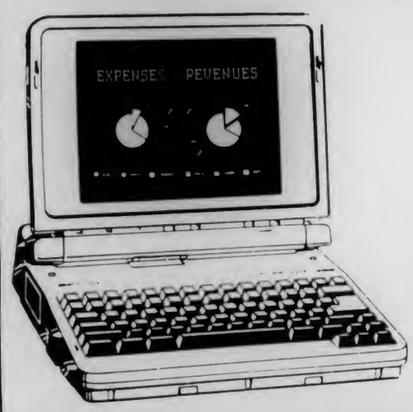
To symbolize our anger, we want the students to wear an armband on Wednesday. Tell your student representatives how you feel. They need to know.

Finally, nominations for student government are open. Consider running. Vote. This is your money, your campus, and your community. You deserve a chance to make it work for you.

Clarinda Rose-Turner is a UMass student

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON



ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN–

The SUPERSPORT™ HR Returns with Two FREE Gifts!

Effective January 15, 1989 a good deal just got better. You need to check out the Most Complete Laptop being offered by any company—the Zenith SupersPort Se (Special Edition). Compare the following STANDARD FEATURES with the standard features of any other laptop and you will know why the SupersPort SE is the one to beat.

The two FREE gifts are the "nylon carrying case with shoulder strap" and the "Microsoft WORKS software"

* 640K RAM * one 20MB hard drive and one 3.5" floppy drive * parallel and serial ports * rechargeable battery and AC adapter/charger
* 1200 baud internal modem * MS-DOS 3.3 PLUS * 1 year parts and labor warranty

FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE CONTACT:
Steve Orlandi
ZDS Student Representative
549-1420

American Express, VISA, MasterCard Credit Cards Accepted.

ZENITH | data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

Microsoft WORKS is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corp.

Prices subject to change without notice.

ARTS & LIVING

Braxton's sax leads a spate of Monk tributes

By BILL ROSENBLATT
Collegian Correspondent

Ever since the unfortunate death of pianist/composer Thelonius Monk in 1982, there has been a constant stream of Monk tribute albums that has yet to abate. there are three reasons for this: one, Monk was one of the great composers of jazz; two, many of his compositions are quite difficult to play yet wide open to interpretation, thus presenting an enduring challenge to would-be interpreters; three, the music industry knows all too well that the best thing that can happen to an artist's popularity (especially in the US) is his or her death.

Monk's tunes have been covered in every style this side of hardcore, with instrumentation ranging from string quartet to duck call, in addition to the usual traditional jazz styles. The three Monk tribute albums reviewed here, while not quite that extreme, are all by musicians who tend toward the experimental.

The most successful is Anthony Braxton's Six Monk's Compositions, on Soul Note (Italy). Braxton shocked jazz purists in the 1970's with the blasphemy of his "squeaks and squawks" on pieces with numerological titles. Yet this same man has written for multiple orchestras, and Max Roach has called him the most important voice on alto sax since Charlie Parker.

There are no squeaks or squawks on his new album, and the instrumentation is a standard quartet lineup of alto sax (Braxton), piano (Mal Waldron), bass (Buell Neidlinger) and drums (Bill Osborne). Instead, we get fluid, inventive interpretations of some of Monk's most difficult material, at breakneck speed.

Valley Jazz

Although the arrangements are standard, Braxton has clearly thought about the overall interpretation of each piece. This album bubbles over with his skill and inventiveness; even the "purist" skeptics will have to admit that he can play the saxophone.

The same rhythm section is present on Locomotive (also on Soul Note), which also includes a few Duke Ellington tunes. This date is under Neidlinger's leadership; he has been "bassist to iconoclasts", having played with Cecil Taylor and Frank Zappa. The instrumentation here is a bit less conventional, with mandolin (John Kurnick) replacing piano as the chordal instrument. Marty Krystall's pungent tenor sax provides the lead voice.

The group sounds as much like a progressive bluegrass band as it does a jazz group. Overall, the album emphasizes the fun, wacky aspect of Monk; quick, happy, uptempo readings eschew the long expositions of Braxton's album. But despite the flippant overtones, Monk's music provides impetus for lots of substance below the surface, and this album has plenty of it.

Paul Motian's Monk in Motian, on the West German JMT label, is good but not up to the level of the other two. Essentially a series of duets between Motian and electric guitarist Bill Frisell, the album's overall effect is sparse, spacey and detatched. Motian is indeed the star here, his drumming is highly sensitive, his time breathing in and out. The problem is that the essential earthy qualities of Monk's music just don't gibe with the effete sensibilities here.

Ohio Ballet's games delight Art Center crowd

By REBECCA MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

Ohio Ballet
Fine Arts Center
February 27

Monday night the Ohio Ballet performed before a good-sized crowd in the Fine Arts Center Auditorium. The show was part of Arts America '89, a "mini-festival" organized by the Center to honor the superb talents of American performing artists.

The program consisted of Concerto Barocco, Patterns of Change, and two pieces choreographed by the Ohio Ballet's Artistic Director, Heinz Poll, entitled Games and Pavane. Thomas R Skelton, Associate Director known for his skills as a lighting designer, devised the lighting for each of the four sets.

The evening opened with Concerto Barocco, a number which began with eight women dressed in simple, striking black and white costumes, their movements created a kaleidoscope effect. At one point, a man and a women were dancing together through the other women who sometimes moved, and at other times stood still like a forest of people.

Pavane was a duet in red costumes which, with occasional mechanical movents by the dancers, suggested that they might represent wind-up dolls. At first, the woman seemed in control and even indifferent towards the man, but the powerful musical score soon took on a more flowing tone as they danced on together. The man then became the indifferent one, and the music's return to the former, more powerful tones completed the role reversal that had taken place.

Patterns of Change began with a repetitive and rhythmic musical score and a dramatic large blue circle of light in the background which drew the audience's attention into the music and to the center of stage as well. For most of this piece, the dancers twirled and jumped across the stage in a series of pairs, and then singles, from right to left.

The dancers performed marvelously in each part of the program. The last piece, Games, was especially good and made for a bright finale with the flowing costumes of the women in blue, green, peach, and yellow. The choreography in this piece was exciting, including a lot of separation and interaction between the dancers and many jumps and lifts.

All in all, the Ohio Ballet provided the members of the audience with a splendid performance, regrettably though, not without a cost. One of the performers, a woman, seemed to have injured herself as she was exiting to one side of the stage. A call for a doctor in the house was sent out at the closing of the curtain.

UPC PRESENTS

THURSDAY
MARCH 2

ED VADAS

AN OPEN BLUES JAM!

FREE
IN THE HATCH

Sigma Phi Epsilon

ΣΦΕ

Open Rush

Virtue, Diligence, Brotherly Love

If you're planning to go Greek

- Largest National Fraternity
- No Hazing
- Academic Priority

Tonight 7:30 207 Sunset Ave. 549-6440

SMART COOKIES KNOW...

興旺樓

CHINESE KITCHEN

150 KING ST., NOHO • 586-8220
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 253-2571

COMING SOON

Murray D's

SPECIAL OFFER!

BUY ANY THREE AD MARKERS AND GET ONE AD MARKER OR BLENDER FREE!

200 COLORS PLUS THE ONLY MARKER WITH THE INTERCHANGEABLE NIB SYSTEM

Using a tissue remove old Wedge and Brush Nibs from marker barrel and dispose

Fine and Bullet Nibs may require the use of tweezers or pliers to remove

Place new nib into marker barrel. By inverting marker ink will saturate the nib within a few minutes

Offer Good until 3/15/89 Quantities Limited

Located In The Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 10-3

UNIVERSITY STORE

99.3 guaranteed Lite

Miller Lite Spring Break Express

Register to win a "MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK SURVIVAL KIT" tonight at Delano's. 5 winners will then be qualified to win the "MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK EXPRESS" grand prize.

Grand Prize winner will be selected from 20 qualifiers the week of March 10.

Miller Lite Spring Break Express Party Will Be Held At:

DELANO'S

Tonight March 1 9:30-11:30

MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK EXPRESS GRAND PRIZE CONSISTS OF:

- Round Trip Air Transportation for Two (2) to Washington D.C.
- A Welcoming Reception at the Washington D.C. Train Station
- Round Trip Rail Transportation Aboard the Miller Lite Spring Break Express.
- Food, Beverage and Entertainment while on Board the Spring Break Express

★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★

- Five Nights Accommodations (Double Occupancy) at the Treasure Island Inn at Daytona Beach.
- $300 Spending Cash.

★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★

- Two (2) Miller Lite Sweatshirts.
- Chartered Transportation to and from the Train Station and Hotel.
- Additional Activities may be Scheduled as Available.

The Grand Prize can not be transferred. Winners who choose not to take the trip will forfeit airfare, train transportation, hotel accommodations but will still receive spending cash and sweatshirts

Movie musicals come to stage

By MICHAEL T. PUOPOLO
Collegian Correspondent

The University Players, the University of Massachusetts theater and music student run organization, is producing a musical extravaganza. The brand new reorganized executive board will be performing a vaudeville type of musical called That's Entertainment!

That's Entertainment! is the conception of senior Bonnie Borromeo. Borromeo, the director and choreographer of the musical, says that the show will base its content on some of the classical MGM musicals of the 1930's and 1940's. Some of the movies of this era include Singin' in the Rain, Anything Goes, High Society, and Summer Stock. The cast will be performing musical and dance numbers originally performed by legends such as Fred Astaire, Judy Garland, Frank Sinatra, Bing Crosby, Ethel Merman, and Gene Kelley.

Entertainment of this kind has not been seen of the UMass campus for quite some time. There will be a variety of tap and jazz dances, songs, and even some humorous monologues. There is definitely something for everyone in this musical.

The musical extravaganza will run in Bowker Auditorium on April 25, 26, and 28. Auditions are open to all students in the Five College Area and the dates of the audition are March 2 and 3 beginning at 7:30. Be prepared for some great singing and dancing and fun during the auditions. The informational meeting for That's Entertainment is March 1. Be sure to check the information desk for the room numbers of the meeting and the rooms for the auditions. The University Players are still looking to fill the positions of Musical Director, Stage Manager, Technical Director, and the Orchestra. If there are any questions, contact Bonnie Borromeo at 256-0569.

Lock the doors, wake the kids, but if you're interested in big time musicals, audtion for That's Entertainment!

Vais to play Hatch acoustic show

Accoustic guitarist Ari Vais will perform his sixth gig at the Hatch on Thursday at 3:30.

Vais, who was one-half of a Boston duo called "Missing: CAT," lists Lou Reed, REM, and The Beatles as prime influences, but the show will consist mostly of original tunes.

He describes his style as "accoustic punk," and is currently sending his main studio opus, "KIMO KI PAPA TAI" to various radio stations and record companies. The title means "You have big tits" in Swahili.

Vais was born in Russia, and emigrated to Los Angeles in 1978. He quickly became a Beatles fan (the first rock and roll he ever heard) and started playing guitar. In 1980, he moved to Cambridge and studied classical guitar at the Langy School of Music.

Awright, enough of this blurb stuff. I know this guy. He lives in my dorm (Butterfield), and his guitar playing is hotter than a urinary tract infection.

Look, we gotta fill up space to finish this blurb, which is fine with me, because I can drill it into your head: there is no such thing as "having something better to do" on Thursday at 3:30.

Pearl Street 10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON, MA 413 584 7777

UNIVERSAL JOINT

and the IRON HORSE presents

THURSDAY, MARCH 2
ALL-AGES SHOW

JANE'S ADDICTION
plus GRAVE GOODS

Doors open at 7:00 p.m.; show at 8:00 sharp. Advance tickets $10 with $2.00 surcharge at door for under 21's.

Afterwards downstairs
THE BAGS

FRIDAY, MARCH 3

TOOTS AND THE MAYTALS

Doors open 7:00 p.m.; show at 8:00 sharp. Advance tickets $12.50. Must be 21.

Afterwards downstairs
NEW HORIZON
Tickets available at "For the Record" in Amherst & "Country Comfort" in N'Hamp.

4th SHY FIVE after comedy at 10:00
6th JEFF HOLMES BIG BAND
9th BARRENCE WHITFIELD and the Savages
10th BIG BANG THEORY
11th THE TOASTERS

UMASS HILLEL'S 1989 JEWISH ARTS FESTIVAL

DAVID GROSSMAN

Israeli novelist, author of "The Yellow Wind," and recepient of numerous literary awards

To Speak On

"THE SURVIVOR'S PARADOX IN THE MIDDLE-EAST"
and his writing of
"THE YELLOW WIND"

Wednesday, March 1
7:30 PM Memorial Hall

Sponsored by
UMass Hillel, UMass AFC's Council, Student Activities Support Fund, SPPSA: Institute of Advanced Study in the Humanities Jewish Education Graduate Student Senate Commuter Council Orchard Hill and Southwest Area Governments, Student Government Association, Jewish Student Projects of Greater Boston, 5 College Hillel Judaic Studies

BOARD OF GOVERNOR'S PROGRAM COUNCIL
PRESENTS A

TWO HOUR COMEDY SHOW

ANY PERSON WITH NO SENSE OF HUMOR ...
ANYONE WITH A WEAK KIDNEY ...

We Can Make You Laugh

WE WILL PAY
$25 In Cash
PLUS A
"MAKE ME LAUGH"
T-SHIRT

If ...
YOU CAN SURVIVE AS A CONTESTANT ON OUR SHOW!!

Sign up one hour before the show.

Wednesday March 1, 1989 9:00 p.m.

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

S·U·N BARBADOS

for SPRING BREAK

THE PLACE TO BE

We have a brand new 7-bedroom mansion reserved for the UMASS spring break party of the year. Your party abode is located on the beach and includes a fully equipped kitchen, living room, 4 full bath rooms, and daily maid service. The Sandy Lane Golf Course and Sunset Crest Resort are both close neighbors. The 3 quads, 3 triples, and 1 double are given on a first come first serve basis so don't be late.

DATES:
JFK Departure: March 17, 18, 19
Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Departures
BOS Departure: March, Friday 17 - Friday 24

Quad, Triple, or Double Occupancy: $589
Occupancy is first come first serve
$559: VILLAS
$525: ON WATER LOCATION

$75 non-refundable for reservation
$25 security deposit required.
Full payment is need after February 9, 1989
Payments in guaranteed funds only!

$589

UMASS SKI CLUB

430 Student Union
545-3437
SEE US AT THE TABLE

Heavyweights at Hatch

Ed Vadas and the Fabulous Heavyweights, over the past seven or so years, have toured the East coast from Florida to Maine, serving audiences their (if it's at all possible) "unique" form of rhythm and blues. Vadas and company revise and add to the various blues standards which make up the brunt of their show. While nodding to the traditional blues formats, they spice the arrangements with unusual harmonies, unique dynamics and their own original musical ideas.

Tommorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Hatch, The Fabulous Heavyweights will play an early set, and host a blues jam immediately following. Student singers, guitarists, bass players and drummers will be called on stage to perform Chicago blues style with the band.

Anyone interested in participating in this open blues forum should call 586-6712 to guarantee a spot in the lineup. All others will be taken on a first come first serve basis at showtime. Students should bring their instruments. A piano, amps and a drum set will be provided. The show and blues jam is sponsored by the Union Program Council.

Photo courtesy of Gold Castle Records

ROCK WITH A CONSCIENCE - Bruce Cockburn plays a show at John M. Greene Hall, Smith College this coming Sunday night, March 5. The show is a benefit for Physicians for Social Responsibility, and Cockburn will be previewing material from his new album, Big Circumstance.

charlie's

1 Pray St., Amherst 549-5403 • Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week • Call for Take Out
Kitchen Open till midnight

New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables

Tonight 99¢ Nacho & Cheese Platters
9:00 PM - 12:00 AM

Drink of the Week Jameson Irish Coffee $1.75
Beer of the Month Moosehead $1.75

FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Mon. 10c Mozzarella Sticks 9-12
Tues. 10c Buffalo Wings 9-12
Sunday 4 Burger Platters for $5.00 6-10

Ski Utah

UMass Ski Club has received lodging in Salt Lake City for Spring Break
Price includes lodging, rental car, & air fare. Lift ticket packages are available.
$450—Contact UMass Ski Club

UMASS SKI CLUB

NORTHEAST AREA GOVERNMENT
&
Distinguished Visitors Program
present

WED MARCH 1st
CCA 7:30

IRELAND: A TERRIBLE BEAUTY
Guest Speakers
MAYOR RAYMOND FLYNN
&
INEZ McCORMACK
Irish Protestant Labor Leader in England

AP photo

CABINET MEETING — President Bush and Defense Secretary-designate John Tower confer before a Cabinet meeting at the White House yesterday. The Senate is expected to consider Tower's nomination later this week.

Hockey star helps Suffolk gain respect

BOSTON (AP) — Suffolk University has never had as good a hockey season as it's having now. It's never had as great a player as Brian Horan, either.

He has 55 goals and single-season records for goals and points. His coach still hasn't seen the speedy, shifty skater get knocked off his feet.

And Suffolk, a commuter school that began playing hockey in 1980, is headed to the post-season playoffs for the first time.

"In some games in which we've had good-sized leads, he's almost embarrassed to score more, so he'll just dish (the puck) off," Rams' Coach Peter Saggese said.

"I try to set up more goals that I try to score because I think others teams are going to be gunning for me," said Horan, a sophomore center who played at Somerville (Mass.) High School.

Despite that added attention, Horan has 55 goals and 88 points this season. He has 81 goals and 131 points in his career. The previous school records were 26 goals in one season, shared by Greg Ames and Horan, 49 points in one season set by John Tringale and 58 goals and 120 points in a career by Mike Hamilton.

Suffolk, 19-6-1, is averaging nearly seven goals per game and finished sixth in the ECAC Division 3 North standings. It plays as St. Michael's, which came in second, in the first round of the North playoffs Wednesday night. The Rams' only other winning record was 15-10 in 1985.

"We got a couple of good defensemen this year," Horan said, "The attitude of the team has changed completely because we know we can win."

Horan has held his own against Division 1 and professional players in a summer league, but his small size (5-foot-9, 170 pounds) diminished his attractiveness to major hockey schools.

He started at Salem State in the fall of 1987, but appendicitis forced him to miss that semester. He transferred to Suffolk for the spring of 1988 semester and had 26 goals and 17 assists in 17 games last season.

"He has pro speed," Saggese said. "He doesn't have pro size. He can pass the puck as well as any Divison 1 player. He has all the moves of a Division 1 player. If he was three inches taller and 30 pounds heavier, I wouldn't have him."

Horan, one of eight Rams from Somerville, said he went to Suffolk because "my main objective was to get a good education and all my friends were here. I wanted to play hockey with them."

FILENE'S BASEMENT

ON MARCH 18th UMASS TAKES OFF
7 NIGHTS HOTEL/AIR/TRANSFERS
NO HIDDEN COSTS!
FROM BOSTON/STAY AT THE BEST HOTELS
Buy with confidence. Buy your vacation from Filene's basement.

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY or NEGRIL from $449 +12
Sat. night dep.

BAHAMAS
At Deluxe Beachfront Nassau Beach Hotel
Fri. night dep. from $479 +10

PUERTO LA CRUZ
Suites at Beachfront Doral Beach Hotel
Sunday dep. from $569 +17

CANCUN
Beachfront 1st Class Hotel
Sat. night dep. from $449 +17

All prices are per person, quad occupancy and are plus $10-17 misc. taxes, port charges, meals, taxes and airport transfers unless otherwise indicated. Limited availability. Some departures require Saturday night stay. Subject to change. Call for complete details and restrictions. Agencies. Subject to change. Call for complete details and restrictions.

OPEN TODAY
10 Locations in New England
Guaranteed Reservations!
Guaranteed Low Prices!
THE VACATION OUTLET
FILENE'S BASEMENT
For information or to Book call
617 267-8100
FIRST CLASS VACATIONS AT BARGAIN BASEMENT PRICES!

Golden Key National Honor Society
General Meeting
Wed., March 1, 7 PM
Campus Center
rooms 165-169

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
BLOCK GRANT PROPOSAL DEADLINE
The next deadline for submission of grant proposals for Block Grants
Thursday, March 30
Guidelines and application forms are available at the Arts Council office
UMass Arts Council 125 Herter
545-0202

ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31
KAY JEWELERS
ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31
The diamond people®
STUDENTS TAKE ADDITIONAL
10% OFF ALL SALE PRICED JEWELRY
With any valid student ID
INSTANT CREDIT AVAILABLE
Hampshire Mall, Hadley
MON-SAT: 10-9:30; SUN: 12-5

R-R-R-Ring
Hi! I'm Scott Webber, your AT&T student Campus Manager here at UMass.
I would like to tell you how AT&T can help answer any of your long distance questions. The best time to reach me is between 1:00pm and 3:00pm, but you can call anytime
546-4741

TOP of the CAMPUS LOUNGE
Weekly drink specials and never a line at the door!
Here's another TOC extra
Wing-Ding
Hot and spicy chicken wings FREE every Wed. night at 9:00
Lounge Hours
Mon-Fri: 11:30 am-12:30 am
Sat & Sun: 5:00 pm-12:30 am
11th Floor Campus Center • (413) 549-6000 ext. 7634
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

HEY SENIORS: Get Shot!

Senior Portrait Sittings will be held from Feb. 27 - Mar. 17, 9-5 pm in Rms 177/178 of the Campus Center. Call 5-2874 for info & appointments.

ORDER your 1989 INDEX NOW! It's a $25 investment in memories that last a lifetime!

Send coupon to address below.

Make your checks payable to: INDEX Yearbook

NAME _____

PERMANENT ADDRESS _____

_____

LOCAL PHONE NO. _____

INDEX 103 Campus Center/UMass, Amherst 545-0848

JAMAICA
MONTEGO BAY

Why More?

"The UMASS Ski Club invites you to Montego Bay, Jamaica, West Indies. We will be staying in the Towers at the Seawinds Resort where all your Spring Break needs are directly below. We are next to the beach, pool, evening entertainment, tennis courts, and the hottest night club in the bay. Located five minutes from town, this resort has, at your disposal, water sports, sunbathing, and an array of restaurants and bars. Don't be lured by low-budget, problem-filled tear-offs that, in the end, turn to rip-offs. WE PROVIDE GUARANTEED RESERVED ACCOMMODATIONS AND FLIGHTS! Spend $9 a day more and step above the rest on your own vacation island!

A VACATION SHOULD BE A PLEASURE— NOT A HASSLE!

LAGNAF

BECAUSE IT'S WORTH IT

Mar. 18 - Mar. 25 • $569 per person from JFK
All Prices are Inclusive—No Hidden Extras
Double & Triple Occupancy Rates Available

Presented By UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union • 545-3437

MasterCard VISA

COLLEGIAN

ATTENTION SOPHOMORE/JUNIOR MARKETING MAJORS

EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World.

THE COLLEGIAN is offering the opportunity to gain THE MOST VALUABLE BUSINESS EXPERIENCE on campus

Applications for position of MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER are now being accepted

This position requires Responsibility, Dedication and Time Commitment—the qualities that future employers are looking for.

Come down to the Collegian Business Office in the Campus Center (RM 113 - lower level, 545-3500) and pick up a job application and description and submit it no later than Wednesday, March 1.

M/F—EOE

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS
MARCH 18-25

When you break away this year, do it with style

SUN FUN!! round trip air, 7 nights, great night life

Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB 547-3437
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.

$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP

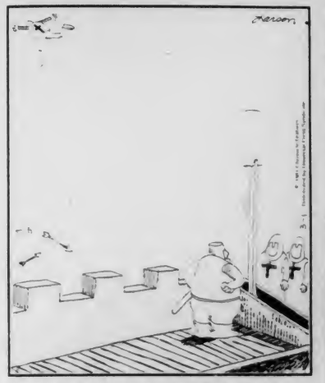
THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION

A $75 Reservation Deposit Required

SAVE UMASS SKI CLUB

LAGNAF 430 Student Union • 545-3437

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



"I told you guys to slow down and take it easy or something like this would happen."

BLOOM COUNTY
By BERKE BREATHED

AAIGH!
ARGH!
YEE! YEE! YEE!
SORRY, OL' BOY. WE WERE DOING A LITTLE PRIMAL-SCREAM THERAPY.
IF CATERWAULING COCKROACHES AREN'T ONE OF THE BIBLICAL SIGNS FOR THE END OF THE WORLD, THEY SHOULD BE.

ETC.

"I'm a lumberjack / And I'm OK / I sleep all night / And I work all day."

-Monty Python's Big Red Book

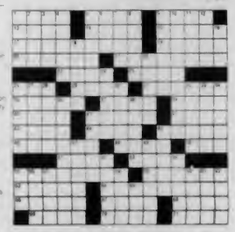
DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Facts
5 Church calendar
9 So be it
13 Knieve
14 Jug
15 Ogden's home
17 Many-legged creature
19 Love Story star
20 Gas pump word
21 Bloodhounds e.g.
23 Twenty quarters
25 Arms bra
26 Watch pocket
29 Walk wearily
31 Connect
33 Prominent
37 Sunday section for short
39 Concept
40 Rioter
41 Kind of shoe
42 Toppers
43 Jovce's land
44 Holy
45 Up — roommate(s)
46 African fly
48 Actor James — Jones
50 Driver's turn
51 Broadway beginning
53 Night rider
55 Cards or Pressor
59 Location
63 Pier
64 Sound (of mothers)
66 Creator of Roos
67 Urban State city
68 Elijah
69 Minus
70 Hebrew "it's measure"
71 Forecaster

DOWN
1 Amigo
2 Vein Ex
3 See 15 Across
4 June setting
5 Nullify
6 Run a tab
7 Danson and Williams
8 Beret poem
9 Immediately
10 Fortune-teller
11 Blunted blade
12 Pros-mass
16 Elevated railroads
18 Clumsy
22 Flynn of film
24 Aesop's point
26 Aspect
27 Redurations
28 Deity
30 Recipient
32 Hold high
33 Heads to Henri
34 Smoothly
36 Five-angled figures
38 Bush or Bernstein e.g.
41 Michelangelo work
45 Maui nowdy
47 Embarrassing moments
49 Clergyman
52 Emcee's bit
54 Bowman's nephews
55 Space the e-eum
56 Exorcist's target
57 Bug
58 Proliferate
60 Swan Lake bend
61 Rao's Rose
62 North Sea feeder
65 Wind dir

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

3/1/89



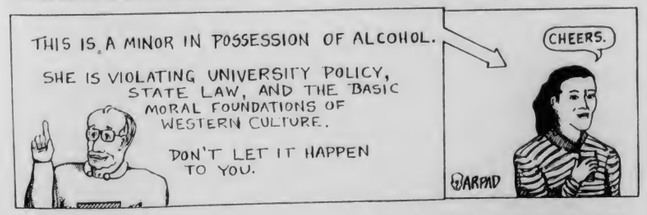
CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

MORNING, DAD! HOW'S YOUR BREAKFAST?
FINE
OATMEAL, HUH? A BOWL OF PASTY, BLAND, COLORLESS SLUDGE
YES. WHY DON'T YOU GO DESCRIBE YOUR OWN FOOD SOME WHERE ELSE?
I'LL BET YOU'D RATHER HAVE A BOWL OF TASTY, LIP-SMACKING, CRUNCHY ON THE OUTSIDE, CHEWY ON THE INSIDE, CHOCOLATE FROSTED SUGAR BOMBS! CAN I POUR YOU SOME?
NO, THANKS. I'M TRYING TO REACH MIDDLE AGE
WHAT ARE YOU HAVING, MOM? BORING OLD TOAST AND TEA?
YOU WANT THE BEANIE, YOU EAT THE CEREAL, CALVIN

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

SO HOW'D YOU TWO MAKE OUT TODAY?
GREAT! WE HAD A REAL INTEREST-ING DAY!
WE GOT IN A CAB TO GO SEE A MOVIE, BUT THE CABBIE DIDN'T SPEAK ENGLISH, SO WE ENDED UP LOST IN BROOKLYN. SO WE PUNTED THE MOVIE, AND TOOK THE SUBWAY TO CONEY ISLAND INSTEAD!
BUT IT WAS FREEZING ON THE BEACH, SO WE CAME HOME--JUST IN TIME TO SEE A WATER MAIN BURST ACROSS THE STREET! WE STAYED AND WATCHED UNTIL THE EMERGENCY VEHICLES ARRIVED!
WHAT HAPPENED TO LUNCH, NAP, DOCTOR'S APPOINT-MENT, PLAY DATE AND BATH?
UM... I FELT WE WERE IN A RUT

CHANCELLORMAN
By AL ARPAD



THIS IS A MINOR IN POSSESSION OF ALCOHOL.
SHE IS VIOLATING UNIVERSITY POLICY, STATE LAW, AND THE BASIC MORAL FOUNDATIONS OF WESTERN CULTURE.
DON'T LET IT HAPPEN TO YOU.
CHEERS.
ARPAD

YEASTHEAD
By JASON TALERMAN

sludge's private hell
his life: an experiment
he has been clinically diagnosed being as the victim of a mad genius HOME
© 1989 Jason Talerman

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Doors begin to open for those in search of employment. An already satisfying relationship warms up. Look forward to a romantic evening. Be patient with a child or parent who has questions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You discover something about yourself that could increase your bank balance substantially. Romance blooms. Travel both lifts your spirits and changes your career goals. Curb a tendency to be overly dramatic.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Having your car serviced now could save you time and trouble later. Increase your exercise and you will feel better almost immediately. A dormant relationship can be revived if you show true affection.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): More sleep gives you greater mental clarity. Leave any money worries behind you. You are about to come into your own work. You should not have nay trouble realizing your ambitions. Aim high!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A business setback will eventually prove to be a blessing if you refrain from reacting emotionally in public. Try not to have yourself so seriously. Have the courage of your convictions in romance.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept. 22): A close relationship becomes more intimate. Remain flexible about business and financial decisions. Concentrating on your area of expertise will bring the greatest rewards.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Something that has troubled you will not come to pass. Some in-depth soul-searching will make a love relationship much more fulfilling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You could be developing a strong interest in painting or sculpture. Others follow your lead. Make your influence felt at school or work by being meticulous and conscientious. Higher-ups applaud your high standards.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Today's events will make you smile. Do not reveal everything you know. You are able to make more money now and enjoy what you are doing. Stick to a prescribed health program.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do the best you can to resolve any conflicts between two contractual obligations. Although you are a dynamo of activity, you cannot continue to burn the candle at both ends. Rest up!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Call friends or family members you have not talked with for a while. Your conversations could prove very revealing. Teachers seeking new jobs have good luck. Polish any fuzzy skills before bragging about them.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Behind-the-scenes maneuvers help you resolve a professional mixup. You project a different image. Wrap up an old assignment so you can get in line for a profitable new one.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Hamburg on a roll	Fried chicken
Sausage Grinder	Pineapple ham steak
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Oatburgers	Fried chicken
Squash bake	Tofu pattie

New coach for Cowboys

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Jimmy Johnson took control of the Dallas Cowboys yesterday, saying success wouldn't come as easily in the NFL as it did when he coached for Oklahoma State and the University of Miami.

"I do believe that if commitment, enthusiasm and hard work is worth anything, we'll make progress in Dallas," Johnshon said at an afternoon press conference.

Johnson was named coach of the Cowboys Saturday by the team's new owner, Arkansas oilman Jerry Jones, who roomed with Johnson and played football with him at Arkansas in the 1960s.

Johnson replaced Tom Landry, whose 29-year career with the Cowboys included a league-record 20 consecutive winning seasons and two NFL championships.

Landry's replacement stunned Dallas fans and Johnson apologized for any hard feelings created by the sudden transition.

Murphy a 'horse' of a relief pitcher

Sox sign lefty to one-year pact; improvement expected in pen

AP file photo

The addition of lefty reliever Rob Murphy will be a key to the hopes of the Boston Red Sox for the 1989 season. Murphy was acquired from Cincinnati during the off-season.

By the Associated Press

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — As a professional baseball player, left-hander Rob Murphy is an established relief pitcher. As a horseman, Murphy is moving up as a breeder and owner of thoroughbreds, already eyeing the Kentucky Derby.

Acquired from the Cincinnati Reds last December, he received a big pay hike yesterday in agreeing to a one-year contract with the Boston Red Sox.

Murphy, accompanied by attorney and girl friend Kimarie Stratos of Miami, reached an agreement in a brief meeting with Red Sox General Manager Lou Gorman.

No terms were announced, but it was learned that Murphy signed for about $290,000 plus incentive bonus clauses. He received a reported $175,000 last year with Cincinnati, where he had an 0-6 record and three saves with a 3.08 earned run average in 76 games as the setup reliever for bullpen ace John Franco.

Murphy is concentrating on baseball these days as a new member of the Red Sox. "But there's still plenty of time away from the ballpark to handle my other business," he said.

Actually, Murphy's horses won more races last year than he did as a pitcher. But his 0-6 record was deceiving, as Franco set a Reds record with 39 saves and a 1.57 ERA along with a 6-6 record in 70 appearances.

"The trade to the Red Sox came at a good time in my career," Murphy, 28, said. "It was fun working in Cincinnati and pitching with Franco, but now I'm looking forward to more opportunities as a closer."

The Red Sox have turned to the National League for bullpen help two years in a row. After getting a total of 16 saves in 1987, they acquired right hander Lee Smith from the Chicago Cubs.

Smith responded with 29 saves in helping Boston to the American League East championship for the second time in three seasons.

Without a solid southpaw reliever since Joe Sambito filled the role in spots in 1986, the Red Sox acquired Murphy and first baseman Nick Esasky for Todd Benzinger, Jeff Sellers and a minor league prospect.

"Lee Smith is an established closer, but I'm sure we can work together," Murphy said. "The big thing is that we throw off a different side of the body. That's sure to help.

"Depending on how things go and how the manager wants to use us, we also could alternate as one of us rests a day. I can get right-handers out as well as left-handed hitters, so that wouldn't be any problem."

"Murphy looks pretty tough, even on the right-handers," Manager Joe Morgan said. "He's pretty sneaky with his fastball. And he has a good slider. He can be nasty."

Murphy enjoys talking baseball, but he beams when asked about his horses and Comfort Acres Farm in Ocala, about 100 miles north of the Red Sox camp.

"We now have 13 horses with a colt born last week," he said. "We'll soon have 14 because another is on the way.

"We race at Miami and at Tampa and we've been pretty successful. We have only top horses with good breeding lines. I guess I got into it as a hobby, but it's a business now.

"We bought our first colt for $30,000 and it's taken off from there. In our first year, we recommended eight horses and five became stake horses."

Murphy estimates the value of his stable at $2 to $3 million.

"We've accomplished some big things, but there's a long way to go."

His best horse? Right now probably Compuquine, a 3-year-old nominated for this year's Kentucky Derby.

Murphy is a friendly, outgoing personality, but teammates can forget about him joining them on long flights.

"I carry my computer with me and while guys are playing cards or whatever I'm busy cranking out my numbers, evaluating a yearling by his bloodlines and taking in other factors such as a sire's first win.

BUDGET TRAVEL CENTER

Cheapest Fares to
• EUROPE
• ASIA
• AUSTRALIA/ NEW ZEALAND

LONDON, FRANKFURT, PARIS, SYDNEY, TOKYO, AMSTERDAM, AUCKLAND, HONG KONG

Plus railpasses, international student ID, tours and much more. Ask for our free travel catalog.

COUNCIL TRAVEL
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT
Print Shop
228 Triangle St., Amherst

4TH WEEK
CINEMA
The Naked Gun
Two Shows 7 & 8:45

COMING SOON TO NORTHAMPTON
The World Famous DALE CARNEGIE COURSE

Some Of The Many Ways The Dale Carnegie Course Helps Men and Women

- Develop Greater Poise and Self Confidence
- Communicate more Effectively
- Be At Ease in Any Situation
- Discover and Develop Your Potential Abilities
- Become A More Effective Leader
- Be a Better Conversationalist
- Remember Names
- Control Tension and Anxiety
- Acquire a Better Understanding of Human Relations
- Be At Your Best with Any Group

COMPANY CLASSES AVAILABLE

ATTEND A FREE PREVIEW
TUESDAY, MARCH 7th 6:45pm
NORTHAMPTON HILTON
RT 5 & EXIT 18

IF YOU ARE UNABLE TO ATTEND CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION 781-1665 or 567-5065

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Wednesday Night is Mexican Night!
Free Nachos!
Corona $2.00
Jose Cuervo $1.75
Margaritas $2.00
T-Shirts & Prizes!

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
The Best Chinese Buffet
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet served 5-8 p.m., Mon.-Thurs. • Brunch served Sunday 11:30 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Children under 10 - $3.00
1) Hot and Sour Soup
2) Chicken fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Fried Wontons
5) Pan Fried Ravioli
6) Beef with Snow Peas
7) House Spiced Chicken
8) Sweet and Sour Chicken
9) Roast Pork Fried Rice
10) Vegetable Fried Noodles
11) Chinese BBQ Pork
12) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce
13) Shrimp and Cashew Nuts
256-0251
256-0252
TAKE-OUT SERVICE — FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd., at Rte. 9, Amherst 256-0252
Open Sun.-Thur. 11-10, Fri.-Sat. 11-11
LUNCHEON SPECIALS
Mon.-Sat. 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
We Deliver Every Day! 5-9:30 p.m.

 LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED ******

The Legal Services Center has positions available for full-time legal assistant interns for Fall 1989 semester.

This is a challenging opportunity for students from a variety of majors and disciplines to gain valuable legal experience.

Responsibilities include:

- client interviewing
- attendance at hearings
- preparation of court forms
- maintenance of continuing caseload
- investigations and research

Up to 15 credits may be earned.

CONTACT LEGAL SERVICES, ROOM 922 CAMPUS CENTER, 545-1995 BY MARCH 6, 1989

 LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED ******

Sports Information photo

Freshman Precious Hill, shown here during cross country season, has been a valuable addition to the women's track team.

■ Precious Hill

continued from page 20

"You accept Jesus into your life and my life revolves around him. I go by what it says in the Bible and I believe totally in the Bible. Religion comes into all aspects of my life.

"I pray before all my meets. God's the one who gave me this talent. Without God, I wouldn't be here. I was born with the natural talent to run because ever since I've been running, I was just good at it.

"Right before the [3000] race I went off to a little spot where nobody was at, like an old storage room. I just played my Christian music tapes and I just sang songs to the Lord and I just had a happy feeling inside of me. It was like a runner's high."

When asked about being a student-athlete on campus, Hill felt "you have to know how to budget your time. Most of my time is spent studying, doing track, and going to church. You have to understand the way I think to get through school is academics first, and everything else comes second and third."

Off the track, she is basically a self-described happy person and she thanks God for her success. "I'm just a normal person who is good at running. I'm just an average, normal student."

She makes an interesting analogy. "Math is hard for me. It's like if I go into a race, and in this race [the N.E. 3000], I probably won't beat Tina Maloney [the eventual winner]. But I wasn't psyched out and I ran with her in the beginning. It's the same thing going into a math test. I'm just going to do my best, I mean I can't do anything else. You can only do so much. If you're not happy with your best, you're not going to be happy with anything."

■ women's swimming

continued from page 20

ed up points in the 200-, 400- and 800-yard freestyle relays and the 200- and 400-yard medley relays.

"To score in the relay races was a big accomplishment. It was a nice team thing to do," said assistant coach Patty Sabo.

Newcomb was very happy to have the opportunity to participate in this kind of meet.

"This was an experimental year for this meet. We took as many people as we could so that they could get used to it," he said.

"Coaches from other schools sat up and took notice that there's a good swim team in Amherst. We will be a team to reckon with at this meet in the next few years," he said.

Sports Notices

The University of Massachusetts rugby club as started training for its new season. Veterans and newcomers are encouraged to play.

Practices are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 4 p.m. Players meet in the men's locker room in Boyden before practice.

The UMass football team is looking for managers. Any interested work-study students should see coach Jones in the football office, located in Boyden Building.

Also, the UMass intramural office has announced that entries for this spring's softball and soccer leagues are due on Mon. March 13 in Room 215 of Boyden.

CLASSIFIEDS

ACTIVITIES

PEOPLE TO PLAY strategy games/axis and allies. Call Kevin 584-7376

ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION is going clubbing Friday Night in Boston Interested call Tom 546-9518 General meeting next Tuesday

THE UNIVERSITY PLAYERS will hold a meeting Wednesday, March 1st at 7pm in CC room 804. Be there.

THRILL SEEKERS: Meeting Thursday Night in the Campus Center for those interested in skydiving. Check the directory for room #.

GOLDEN KEY NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY General meeting tonight Wednesday, March 1, 7pm Campus Center rooms 165-169

PHI MU DELTA OPEN RUSH All university men welcome Tues Feb 28 to Thurs Mar 2 from 7-9 or call 256-8028

WEDNESDAY MARCH 1st Mayor Flynn & Inez McCormick, leading woman tribe unionist in Europe to speak on Northern Ireland in the CCA at 7:30

NOT EVERYONE HAS WHAT IT TAKES to earn $3-5 thousand this next summer but Southwestern interviews 100,000 students each spring to hire its 4000 students. If you know how to work ambitiously and finish what you start in life then we might be interested in talking with you. Call Paul at 665-3247 or stop by the Employment office today.

NEW CRAFT WORKSHOPS marbeling paper, airbrush, sandpainting & jewelry. Sign up now!

TRI SIGMA OPEN RUSH, Tues Feb 28 @ 30-9:30 and Thurs March 1 & 2 @ 6:30-7:30. For more info call 545-1224

LEARN JEWELRY & SILKSCREEN 4 workshops starting once a week at Student Union Craft Center

ANNOUNCING THE FINANCE AND INVESTMENT CLUB'S inaugural gathering of 1989 treasuring elections and social events planning. New members graciously welcomed Thursday 6:30-7:30pm SOM lobby. Don't let it be another extracurricularless semester.

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUDIO

MARANTZ SPEAKERS 60 watts 6 mos old 150 or BO Cal for more info 546-8524 Leave message

AUTO FOR SALE

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CAMP COUNSELORS

COME WORK FOR an accredited 3-camp organization in the Pocono Mountains of PA. Positions are available in: Tennis, Archery, Waterfront (W.S.I.), Gramatics, Office Administration, Computers, Radio, Arts & Crafts, Nature, Athletics, Jewelry, Photography, Dance, Wrestling, Cooking, Adventure/Challenge Course, Film making, Camp Drivers Season: 6/24-8/20. Call 800-533-CAMP (215-887-9700 in PA) or write 407 Benson East, Jenkintown, PA 19046

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances. 256-8526

FOR RENT

IN SUNDERLAND, free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Secure and apartment for August and recieve August rent free. For more details call 665-3858. Sign up early.

FOR SALE

DISHES COMPLETE SET OF SIX $30 Dave aft 5 253-7454

EXPANDED MEMORY CHIPS - brand new, never used, only $9 /chip 3 sets for sale. Dave aft 5 253-7454

H.P. PLOTTER PENS - paper and transparencies, all colors, 36 pens $35 for all. Dave aft 5 253-7454.

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES Amherst two year old income property, positive cash flow (gross rental income 18,000/yr), live rent free and make spending money too! Call Dale 253-9949

TOURBIKE - hand made Panasonic Tour Dell' over $500 will sell for $200 "riden under 20 times" 546-1402

2 RNDTRIP TCKS LOGAN/MIAMI Leaves 3/17 return 3/25 $300/ 00 each 665-7836 or 665-4257

APPLE IIc COMPUTER, imagewriter, personal modem 1200 monitor, xtra drive, joystick, mouse, software $650 Call John 256-0893, message

OLIN SKIS 180cm Hanson boots size 10 $100/BO 585-0604

WEIGHT BENCH - incline, leg extension 150 lbs. Weights $75/BO 585-0604

APPLE MACINTOSH 512K memory Apple Image-Writer printer security system $1000 549-2781 Anne

MACINTOSH PLUS w/40MB Hard disk and turbo mouse $1800 or B/O Call 549-4135

TWIN MATTRESS W/BOX SPRING, some bedding very good condition $125 or B/O Call 549-4047 days eves til 9

GUITAR WASHBURN ACCOUSTIC w/case $200 Call 253-7387

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles Call 256-8369

FOUND

LOST KEYS FOUND on the 18th floor Coolidge Bar night Call 546-8197

FOUND, MAN'S WATCH couple of weeks ago in front of Herter. Leather Band. Very valuable. If yours, please call Christine at 546-6947

FOUND A PAIR OF HEAVY RED MITTENS WITH RED FURRY LINING about two weeks ago and just kept forgetting to put in a classified about it. If yours just call 549-6656 and ask for "M" or leave a message

GAILE KATINAS

HAPPY 21st BIRTHDAY! Even though you don't have a day to have it! I love you! Let's have a great time this weekend! Lots of love Suzanne

HIRE "ONE EYED JAKE". A great Rock and Roll band call steve 546-5106 Tom 253-7517

HELP WANTED

GOVERNMENT JOBS: U.S. and Overseas $18-39,000 yr for current federal list call 518-626-0037 extention EU4 weekdays 4-9pm weekend 10am-5pm

CRUISE SHIP JOBS. Summer and career. For information call 516-626-0037 Ext CU4 weekdays 4pm - 9pm Weekends 10am-5pm

COUSELORS WANTED. Trim downfitness, co-ed, NYS Campus 100 positions sports, crafts, many others Camp Shane, Ferndale NY 12734 914-292-4045

MIKE'S WESTVIEW HIRING - $6/hour Cleaning person to work mornings. 2-3 hours per day, 4 days per week. Call Tom 253-9202

THINK FUNA ND SUN. Clean Water Action is now hiring part-time and training for our full-time campaign positions. Be the first to line up a summer job on the Cape! WE pay $6.50/hr. Call 548-7450

ENTREPRENEURS LIVING on campus can earn thousands of dollars in the music business. For information, call The Musical Gift. (518)491-6947

IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR EXPERIENCE that could land you a job upon graduation with a Fortune 500 company then call Paul today at 665-3247. We might be able to help you get prepared while there is still time. Don't wait call now!

HEY NINETEEN!

JOSH KRANCER- Happy birthday bro! Just think, this is the last B-Day we'll spend in school together. Have fun & don't eat too much cake (I know you won't drink too much.) -Jen

IN SEARCH OF "MISS MASSACHUSETTS"

I AM IN SEARCH OF A GIRL. A gorgeous blonde I saw over X-Mas break in Mazatlan. I'm a burgundy UMass sweatshirt. First at a dumpy little Italian restaurant the evening of Dec. 25th, then the 26th and 27th in front of the Playa Mazatlan where I was staying. If you are that girl, I'm the semi-blonde guy in the black shorts that could not take his eyes off you but didn't have the nerve to talk to you. Though I did try to get your attention by waving a red beach towel at you from my balcony - pretty smooth huh? I've never seen a girl that has set me back like you or been so infatuated before and would be honored if you would write me back so that I could at least know your name. If you describe your bathing suit then I'll know it's you - Believe me I'll know. I'll even pay for the stamp- Matt Sayre: 2714 College St S.E. Lacey, Washington, 98503

INSTRUCTION

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE intermediate course Tuesday-Thursday 7-9pm 3/28-5/4 $115 546-4576

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on March 6 from 3:30-4:30 in room 917 Campus Center. (545-1995)

LOST

LOST AT 2E BRANDYWINE a royal blue Patagonia. It has my housekeys and car keys in the pocket. Please call 549-9925 with any info. Ask for Monique

BLACK COAT CONTAINS WALLET & leather gloves- lost at a party Sat. Nite on 304 N. Pleasant St. Please Return it to me I love that coat. Call 546-8973 & ask for Jen

ORIENTAL IN SMALL CAR: You picked up two blondes late Saturday night. We left a beige Liz Claiborne purse with keys, two steak knives, and an egg beater in your car. "Reward." call 546-9651

REWARD, GRAY/PINK RAYON SCARF lost in area of Student Union, Campus Center or Marcus. Please call 546-4734

GOLD RING WITH RUBY LOST 2/22, huge sentimental value, if found please call Jeanne - Reward - 546-7691

MOTORCYCLES

WANT TO BUY A MOTORCYCLE. 84-87, 600-750cc. Finn 549-4793

MOUNTAIN JOBS

SUMMER WORK IN THE WHITE MOUNTAINS, Berkshires, and Catskills Trail crew, backcountry caretakers, volunteer crew leader, cook, coordinator. Interviews at U. Ma. Campus Center, 8am-5pm Sat. March 4. Walk-ons welcome. Appalachian Mountain Club Trails Program 603-466-2721

NEED CASH!

GET SOME SPRING BREAK money before it's too late!! Sell me your baseball cards. Call Todd anytime 549-6361

NEED EXTRA CASH

WE ARE LOOKING FOR MOTIVATED individuals to fill the position of Campus Sales Representative. Earn hourly wage plus commission. 549-2871

LET US PREPARE YOUR 1988 TAX RETURN today - you'll have your refund in a month. Computerized returns professionally prepared for only $10. 549-2871

PERSONALS

SENIORS! The Senior Campaign is coming. Get ready for our up and coming kick-off bash for "footprints of '89"!

RICK: I HAVEN'T FORGOTTEN about your birthday- you'll have to wait for it in person. I'll bring the honey. See you in April, love Carrie

G.G. Have the best b-day ever! Love your roomie

JILEE!! We were gonna send ya roses but there were no plaid ones! Happy b-day Love the Wellness Crew and Lara Too

PATRICK J. MCGINTY- I'm so glad I don't have to sleep on the windowsill! Thanks a lot! Love your favorite late-night visitor the stamp- Matt Sayre: 2714 College St S.E. Lacey, Washington, 98503

MK, absence does make the heart grow fonder, ditto, DC

HAPPY 21st BIRTHDAY Terry D. Try to stay out of jail this time. Love B.D.

TERRY DADARIO, happy 21st birthday! Drink till you puke! Love, Kim, Maura and Kerri.

BILL SANTAMARIA (Campitan Stress) Happy 23rd birthday, night? Watch out for those memo boards (Bah-bum) Love, the Women of the 4th floor.

DUKEY- Have a great b-day. Love JCK

WEDNESDAY NIGHT COME TO CHANGES for drinks and dancing. Doors open at 9:00pm. Come early and stay late!

LISA, JOE, MIKE, WENDY, BETH, ALYCIA, SUE — Thanks so much for your concern and support during such a tough time. Mike - My great friends.

CHI OMEGA LOVES its newest pledges Tessa, Jacqueline, Katie, Leila, Sue, Mandy, Jennie, Allyson, Carolyn, Jen K., Julie, Eileen, Jen G., Elena, Sharon, Catherine, and Dorothy. Congratulations and get psyched for an amazing semester. Love, The Sisters of Chi O

ROBYN AND LISA. Countdown to Cancun...only 17 days till we hit the beach! Get psyched! Love, Lee Ann

LOT 22 STICKER for sale $35. Call 546-8217

GAILE KATINAS Happy 21st! Shots on us tomorrow night bok! bok! Love Dianne, Hope, and Kelly

DU- Many appy-Polly-Loggies. Perhaps you know what I mean. Right Right Right? Me

HEY "EXPERT". Don't know but I'm into gambling -- I bet you have the winning technique

CHRISTINE I'm still waiting How about that visit PFBJ

HAPPY BIRTHDAY - Anna McCaffrey. How's your loo-ton-wash it!

BON JOVI--4 TIX for Prov. March 2 B/O 549-4597, Mike.

SEXY GREEN EYES- Sudney was incredible! Waiting for handcuffs and ice. Love, your Sex Kitten

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE NEW PLEDGES of Sigma Delta Tau !!! Love the Sisters

ORLANDO D. Where are U? If you are here, call Heather R. 6-6378.

"THUMPER" Hey babe. We're stylin'! Last weekend was great, but this weekend was the best! Never 4-get: Sat. nite jacuzzi, the backrubs, and "They're doing it again!" Love, Your dumb, ditzy, drunk blondie

JILEE HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Get ready to party this weekend with your toxic waste love the kennedy crew

REMEMBER 89 YELLOW JEEP Friends are everywhere I know who you are Need $400 for deductable or I will prosecute send money to 344 Dance Not much time left

ALL UMASS MEN!!

SIGMA PHI EPSILON
Open Rush Feb. 27, 28, March 1
If interested contact John at 549-6440

IF YOU RE THE KIND OF PERSON who wants to work hard, be their own boss and be rewarded accordingly then Southwestern Co might be for you. Call Paul at 665-3247 to find out more about the summer work exchange

TO THE PRETTY BLONDE SENIOR (coatchers line- Pearl Street). Offer still open. John 545-0015 P.S. This time leave name and number!!!

ROB SKELTON: Trustee!

ATTENTION STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS! EXCELLENT FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES HELPING WITH AN ON-CAMPUS MARKETING PROJECT. CALL IMMEDIATELY. STUART 546-7612 LEAVE A MESSAGE

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt. or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later

RIDE WANTED

TWO PEOPLE LOOKING for a ride to Florida call Kimberly 253-9301

ROOMMATES WANTED

ROOMMATE WANTED to share 2 bedroom apt. with 3 guys 253-9206

LINGUISTICS, worked Sunday 2/26. Buy you a beer? Call 549-1660 George

NEW HOME no smoking on bus line $325 inc. 253-7948

LOOKING FOR A RESPONSIBLE NON-SMOKER to share 2bdrm apt. $150 negotiable. Call Kaz 549-6846

SUNNY SPACIOUS WOODFLOOR BEDROOM available in furnished apartment in Hadley washer dryer microwave cable television on bus route. 15 minutes to UMass. 10 minutes to Northampton Carbers right across the street parking available 2251 call evenings + weekends women only please 586-4412

2 NEEDED TO SHARE ROOM in Townhouse apt beginning last semester. Contact as soon as possible 546-5025

ROOM AVAILABLE IN HOUSE. 3 mi to bus $225/month + util. Call Peter after 7pm 253-2268

SERVICES

"TUTOR"
COINS ECE MATH
"BY EXPERIENCED GRAD 256-8121"

AUTO REPAIRS: very reasonable, experienced mechanic. Work your place or mine. Messages for Mark 665-8467

PROFESSIONAL EDITING- Term papers, Theses, Dissertations 1-467-3753 after 7pm

VIDEO RESUME TO GET THAT JOB! Immediate, professional, personalized service. Appointments. Video Image Productions (413) 863-8035.

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUCTEE ELECTIONS

NOMINATIONS ARE NOW AVAILABLE in SU 420 for SGA President, Student Trustee and any open senate seats. They are due back on March 3rd at 10:00am

SPRING BREAK- DAYTONA

IT'S NOT TOO LATE to reserve your spot at the Castaway Beach Resort - 7 nights only $139 w/transportation $219. Call Mark 549-2871.

SWING DANCE/JITTER BUG CLASSES

Just $7 each or $25 for all four. No partner necessary! Classes meet from 4 - 6pm Sunday, March 5 thru Sunday, March 26 at East Street Dance Studio in Hadley -Just off Rt. 9 between Amherst and Northampton. Instructors: Lars Marshall and Janine Warner. For more info, Call 546-9309. No pre-registration necessary.

TO THE PROUD OWNER OF DR LOVE

YOUR AWESOME!! They'll never know what they're missing. Their loss is my gain. Im psyched! 1-4-3

TRAVEL

ROUND TRIP TICKET TO PHEONIX From March 17-26 a $250 dollar value for $250 or best offer. Call Julie 6-6793 anytime after 8

**$$$

SPORTS

Men's hoop visits St. Joe's

Minutemen prepare for final game before Atlantic 10 tourney

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

Senior John Milum will play his final regular season game tonight against St. Joseph's in Philadelphia.

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team's regular season, which began almost four months ago in Amherst, will come to an end tonight in Philadelphia.

Today at 7:30 p.m., the Minutemen will meet St. Joseph's University for the second of two, and possibly three, times this season.

It will be the second time because the teams already met this month. And there could be the third meeting because right now, it looks as if UMass will meet the Hawks in the first round of the Atlantic 10 Tournament.

UMass will probably wind up as the eighth seed in the tourney and will play the ninth seed, St. Joe's, in the first round of the tournament.

But first things first.

"We're going to have to go right at them [Wednesday night]," UMass forward John Tate said. "And we have to try and get their number in case we play them in the first round of the tournament."

UMass had the Hawks' number the first time the teams met this season. Two weeks ago, Tate scored 17 points and pulled down 12 rebounds to lead the Minutemen to a 72-68 victory over St. Joe's at the Curry Hicks Cage.

UMass, 5-12 in the conference and 10-16 overall, is led by freshman forward Jim McCoy, who averages 19.5 points per game and 3.4 rebounds.

Freshman guard Anton Brown is second, averaging 12.7 points per game.

The Hawks, 3-14 in the conference and 6-20 overall, are led by senior guard Brian Leahy, who averages 16.4 points and 5.0 rebounds per game.

Random thoughts on college hoops

It started a couple of years ago. I get a lot of phone calls concerning the wonderful institution that we call Yeasthead. At first I was enthralled so I abandoned all my Husker Du records so I could hear that sweet ringing. Picture a warm foggy evening in March, past midnight. I'm on the phone with some near suicidal revivalist waterhead who is actually concerned with the real life implications of my comic strip meanderings. A real dupe. The remote control is an arm's length away. Whaddaya know, it's tournament time. Seventy-two hours of taped coverage later, I am facing actual physical addiction to college hoop.

Jason Talerman

Things have changed. The phone jack has been ripped from the plaster. I have just taken away my girlfriend's right to watch Growing Pains reruns. Syracuse is gonna rip the heart out of UConn in about twenty minutes. I phone the sports editor demanding at least 40 lines for my thoughts on the matter. He loathes Syracuse and okays the space only if I mention North Carolina somewhere, and in a positive light. He dangles the space over my head. I agree. I am shameless.

First things first, Arizona is not number one. Sean Elliott is not even the best player in the PAC-10, Gary Payton is. Jesus, Michigan would be 27-0 if they had the luxury of playing the likes of Cal-Berkeley night in and out. It is possible, however, that Michigan does not possess that type of mental fortitude. They are all horses, with nobody yielding the whip. I group them with Iowa, UNLV, and Syracuse. This is not to say that any of these three couldn't explode at any time and make a run for the title through the fog in Seattle. In fact, it is my opinion that Syracuse will end Georgetown's hopes when the long arm of Derrick Coleman shatters the forearms of rejection row against the back of the rim Sunday at noon in the dome.

I wish nothing good for G-town. Coach Thompson cost us the gold medal and Charles Smith reminds of that cockroach that I buried with a skip pass at the Y last week. Oklahoma? All I know is that Webster's isn't going to be abridged until they add "Mookie" I honestly think that Duke has a shot. Danny Ferry nuthin. I have visions of Robert Brickey leaping through my second story window, shards of glass meeting soft skin.

Oh yeah, I almost forgot, the Tarheels have a shot at it too, if the Wolfpack don't come over for some grub.

Swimmers finish 12th at Easterns

Leary sixth in 100 free

By DEBORAH PICARDI
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's swimming team surpassed its highest goals and expectations with a 12th place finish in the Eastern Women's Swimming League Championships this past weekend at Penn State University.

The Minutewomen competed against 20 to 30 of the best swims teams on the East coast with only three days rest after a very successful trip to the New England championships the preceding weekend. The Minutewomen placed third in the New England meet at the University of Rhode Island, overcoming rival University of Maine for the third spot.

In this meet, a strong Harvard University team took first place, with Penn State, Pitt, Brown and Princeton rounding out the top five.

UMass was able to score 102 points in this highly-competitive meet.

"Our goal at the beginning of the year was to score just one point, but we got 102," UMass coach Bob Newcomb said. "I was very pleased with the way we performed. Our times were slower than earlier in the season, but it's very tough to come back after only three days rest in a meet with such difficult and high caliber competition."

Michele Leary, the team's outstanding freestyle sprinter, placed sixth in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 52.07. She also scored in the 50- and 200-yard freestyle swims.

Melissa Waller was the only other swimmer to score individually. She took a 12th place finish in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:08.09).

The remainder of the scoring came from a total team effort in five of the relay races. The Minutewomen rack-

continued on page 19

Hill a Precious addition for UMass

Freshman runner an instant standout for women's track team

By RICK SETO
Collegian Correspondent

The first thing that probably strikes someone about Precious Hill is the name.

So what's with the name? She answers, "I was born in Pittsburgh, Penn. without a name. Everybody came into the hospital room saying, 'Oh, what a precious baby.'" There marks the beginnings of one of the stars for the University of Massachusetts women's indoor track team.

Hill is one of the two Minutewomen, along with Lee Ann Ambrose, who have advanced into the ECAC's this weekend. Both just so happen to be freshmen. Hill qualified for the ECAC 3000 during her third-place run at the New England Championships.

Hill described her roller coaster race with the same enthusiasm that she carries over onto the track. "I went out and I was with the first and second runners," she said. "Then two laps later, they took off and I was in third-fourth-fifth position. A lap later, I was in fourth-fifth-sixth position. I would catch up with them, then they would pass me, then I would run, run, run with them, then I would drop off."

She proceeds to do a screaming and panicking imitation of coach Julie LaFreniere. "What are you doing? You've got to move up, you've got to move up," Hill said of LaFreniere's instructions.

Hill said she felt tired and also had developed a stitch, an air pocket between the organs. Then on the 13th lap, she took off. "With two laps to go, I just blazed by them. I'm almost sprinting at that point. In the last lap, I was going pretty quick. At that point, I was just trying to get as many people as I could," said Hill. She ended up passing Providence's Christine Crowley and finished third.

On the track, Hill describes herself as "very competitive. I just like to go out there and it doesn't matter if I win, but I just want to finish a race knowing I've done the best I could. I can also be laid-back and easy-going, like the 200 over at Smith.

She's referring to the Smith Invitational, the first meet of the year in December. Smith was definitely Hill's type of meet — really laid-back, relaxed, and fun. She was hopping into events left and right, eventually beating an opponent in her specialty — the 200. You have to remember that Hill is a distance runner, not a sprinter. That's pretty indicative of her athletic ability.

"Running is about 80-90 percent positive thinking and it's hard," says Hill. "I'm not used to doing the longer distances. It's a lot of concentration, especially in the longer distances. It's much easier to 'fall asleep' and weave in and out of your lane."

Hill is also a born-again Christian and she explains,

continued on page 19

Sports Information photo

Precious Hill

WEATHER	NEWS	SPORTS
Today: Sunny, 30-35 with flurries after midnight. Cloudy tomorrow, in the mid 30's.	Staff salary restrictions at UMass under fire once again by PAUMA. Page 3.	UMass loses 83-81 in heart-wrenching final regular season game. Page 24.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1989

COLLEGIAN

VOLUME CXXII LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY IN NEW ENGLAND ISSUE 23

Panel: 5 state universities should unite

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff
and the Associated Press

The state's five public universities would be consolidated under recommendations from a commission assigned to consider the future of the University of Massachusetts, the panel's chairman said yesterday.

None of the schools would be eliminated, but all would be brought under the University of Massachusetts with just one president and one board of trustees.

The 19-member panel disbanded Tuesday but its formal report is to be released next week and presented to the UMass Board of Trustees. The trustees appointed the panel eight months ago to examine the future role of the University of Massachusetts.

"It's a good idea to pull away from the Board of Regents, who really have impeded the University's growth. Not just at this University but at Southeastern Massachusetts and the University of Lowell," Student Trustee Stephanie Orefice said yesterday.

Orefice said the universities would fare better financially if they were allowed to collectively bargain.

"The Board of Regents is not the strongest lobbying voice for this campus," Orefice said. "This really is a much better idea."

UMass President David Knapp, who has not yet read the report, told the Boston Globe Tuesday that he has learned of some of the recommendations and regards them favorably.

"I think in terms of direction and vision, the report is pointing us in the right direction," he said. "I do think all five of the university campuses need to be strengthened and that we need to have a strong leadership base for the welfare of the state."

University Provost Richard O'Brien said yesterday he felt the plan was basically well thought out, considering the current system by which the University receives its money.

"In the current system, we [UMass] are funded as one of 29 schools, which includes all state universities, colleges, and community colleges, and the special expenses of a university often get neglected," O'Brien said.

Commission chairman David Saxon, chairman of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said the commission decided to make bold strides.

"My hope is that the [UMass] trustees will marshal their forces to try to move this forward. I'm perfectly prepared to be an advocate for it," Saxon said. "Massachusetts has a tradition of excellence in higher education, which adds to the likelihood that it can happen."

The panel's report said the five public universities — the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, Boston and Worcester; the University of Lowell, and Southeastern Massachusetts University in North Dartmouth — cannot meet the state's need for broadly educated workers.

It concludes that Massachusetts colleges and universities are not adequately serving the state's growing number of minority students. Another of its recommendations is for a concerted effort to recruit and retain minority and low-income students.

"In visiting the campuses, talking with public officials and education leaders, and travelling around the state, we have heard time and again the complaint that Massachusetts is not 'committed' to excellence in its public university," the report said.

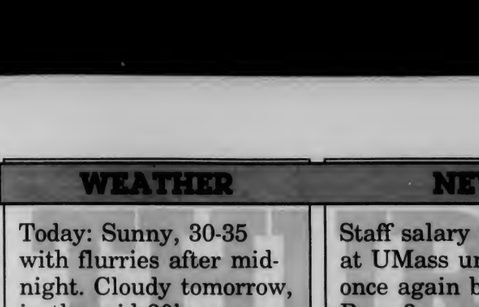
The commission said the public higher education system would work more efficiently under a strong board of trustees and strong president and reduced input from the state Board of Regents.

"In terms of the budget process, a request is more likely to receive serious consideration if it has the support of five campuses and the advocacy of a committed sector board," the report said.

No costs were figured into the report.

"Our position was that the problem at this particular moment was not dollars but matters of structure and commitment," Saxon said. "Think of the University of California and the University of Michigan. [They're] examples of the kind of thing we're talking about. Quality."

The final report is tentatively set for release March 8 in Boston.



Collegian photo by Jason Danziger

WHERE'S JUNIOR!? — Three empty baby carriages void of passengers on the porch of Smith's Fort Hill Elementary school recently.

Students urged to put their two cents into higher ed.

By JEANNE BOLDUC
Collegian Staff

Putting your two cents into public higher education could make the difference in stopping future budget cuts, a University of Massachusetts official said yesterday.

In an effort to prevent legislators from stripping more funding from the UMass budget this year, the director of University Relations is launching a penny-mail campaign to tell legislators about "our concern for the future of public higher education."

Relations director Daniel Melley is asking students to send two pennies taped to a piece of paper to their legislators with the slogan "Put in your two cents to support public higher education," he said.

To launch the campaign, members of the Student Government Association, University officials and any interested students will meet today at 4 p.m. in room 901 of the Campus Center.

"We will be meeting to get a run down on the budget issue and on what UMass organizations are doing to help get more funding," said Student Trustee Stephanie Orefice.

The House of Representatives in Boston will begin debate of the UMass budget on Monday. On Tuesday, students are expected to be at the State House, lobbying legislators to "push for more funding for public higher education," Orefice said.

Sharon Kennaugh, head of University-State relations, said the three separate cuts

continued on page 6

Mayor a no-show; Ireland still discussed

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

Boston's Mayor Ray Flynn gave no reason why he could not make it to last night's discussion in the Campus Center Auditorium about Irish labor and social conditions, but did send an underling.

Frank Costello, deputy director of economic affairs under the mayor, read Flynn's written regrets to the audience of 150 who had turned out to listen to him and Irish-union leader Inez McCormack speak on Catholic oppression in Northern Ireland. Flynn promised to visit the campus at a later, unspecified date.

McCormack, the highest ranking female union official in Europe, has spent her lifetime pursuing non-violent political reform for Ireland and drawing attention to the discrimination and national struggle there.

"What we need is a decent law, some enforcement and a little money," McCormack said, calling for legislation from the British government which will lift economic and social injustice from shunned Irish Catholics.

She said it has taken years of protesting to even get the British government to recognize the discriminatory practices on the island torn civilly in two.

McCormack worked to promote the McBride Principles which call for equal opportunity in American-owned businesses operating in Northern Ireland. In 1985, she won an award for her service.

McCormack said she has worked within the system which perpetuates the oppression — the existing legislature itself — and has been called "nasty, evil, sectarian and divisive" by the British government for doing so. But, she said what she has been able to do from within has worked.

She said she feels the government should be able to recognize the system needs changing and then be able to change it, if she herself can make a fraction of a difference."I don't want to see my words on a shiny piece of blue paper with no substance or concessions to uphold them," McCormack said.

Tower admits infidelity

Bush continues to push for his nominee

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — John Tower, his nomination as defense secretary in grave trouble, made an extraordinary public admission of marital infidelity yesterday but vowed to keep fighting for Senate confirmation. His prospects dimmed further, however, by the Senate majority leader's opposition.

President Bush continued to court Democrats in a last-ditch effort to save the appointment, and spokesman Marlin Fitzwater asserted, "We'll just keep up the good fight."

But Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell further dampened Tower's chances by declaring his opposition, even as Vice President Dan Quayle conceded the administration still lacks the votes needed for Senate approval.

The president said his appeal to senators has been, "Look, do what you've got to do, but remember fair play, remember decency and honor and then remember also historically the concept of advise and consent where reasonable doubt is given historically to the president of the United States who after all is responsible for the executive branch

continued on page 4

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation: 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr. GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
AD MANAGER	BETTY-ANN MURPHY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ GEORGE FRANCY

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	RICK SASSON
COPY EDITOR	BETH GATELY
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	GEORGE FRANCY
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	GEORGE FRANCY
PRODUCTION	JOYCE COHEN MIRIAM PIERCE DANIELLE PETRELLA TRICIA HANLEY KIM FRISINO JOE KEENAN

AP photo

NOT A FAN — San Francisco Giants baseball great Willie Mays seems not to have made a fan of an unidentified little boy during his first day at their spring training camp Tuesday. Mays, now a coach and good will ambassador, signed autographs and had talks with all of the new Giants players.

Harvard gives poetry award to controversial composer

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Composer John Cage was reading his computer-generated lecture recently at Harvard University when a young woman wearing a leather jacket and a saucy smile strode onto the stage and drank the glass of water that had been placed at the speaker's side.

Cage ignored her. Some in the startled audience of about 400 people decided it was part of the act. It wasn't. Later, the mysterious interloper, Tami Lum, a student at Simon's Rock College who made the 2½ trip from Great Barrington for this moment, said she was thirsty and didn't think Cage would mind.

The audacious John Cage has that effect on people.

Cage at 76 ranks among the most controversial composers of the 20 century and anarchist king of the avant-garde. This school year, Harvard University is honoring him with the post of Charles Eliot Norton Professor of Poetry. His syllabus consists of a series of six lectures and six corresponding seminars.

The Norton chair honors contributors to poetry, broadly defined, and since 1926 has provided its occupants with the salary and rank of full professor for one academic year. Cage's predecessors in the Norton pantheon include Leonard Bernstein, Igor Stravinsky, Frank Stella, Lionel Trilling and Thorton Wilder.

Harvard isn't alone here in celebrating Cage. There will be other Cage concerts around Boston and the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Boston Musica Viva have commissioned works by Cage to be performed this year.

Last year he was elected to the 50-member American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Such are the crowning honors of a long career spent rattling people out of the ruts of convention.

Best known for his experiments with random or chance music, the multifaceted Los Angeles-born artist and only child of an inventor was introduced to music at age 8 when his aunt began teaching him the piano.

By 18 he was composing music and went on to study with another musical revolutionary, Arnold Schoenberg. In 1949 he won the first of many such accolades when the National Academy of Arts and Letters honored him with an award for extending the boundaries of music.

A theatrical event he organized in 1952, during which various artists simultaneously performed independently, is considered the model for the unstructured happenings of the 1960's. Cage has produced works in Europe and Japan, written for films, and he is the author of 12 books as well as published collections of his etchings and drawings. A series of 52 Cage watercolors is scheduled for an exhibition next year in Washington, D.C.

"In what he does there is no ranking. He's the one," said Professor Pia Gilbert a composer who teachers aesthetics at the Juliard School in New York.

"He really has been the pioneer, and has been consistent with what he had pursued, with an amazing youthful approach, always discovering, always continuing."

While she prefers more control in her own composition, Ms. Gilbert said she has been touched by the artist she has known for three decades. "He has influence everyone who has been around him," she said. "He has influenced me in freeing my thinking... What he does is liberate people."

At the start of one of his recent Norton lectures at Harvard, Cage explained his lecture and himself with a four-page exposition. The document had a run-on title of 16 words not separated by spaces and starting with "Method" and ending with "Performance." In the written explanation, he said his purpose in life, discovered nearly 40 years ago, was "the exploration of non-intention,'

Furthermore, he added, "I did not know immediately what I was doing, nor, after all these years, have I found much out."

The raw clay of the lectures are 487 quotations from such assorted sources as British philosopher Ludwig Wittgenstein, Henry David Thoreau, James Joyce, The Wall Street Journal and The Christian Science Monitor.

He concludes, elliptically, "All six lectures have been planned in detail but I don't know what they'll be. I'll find that out by writing them."

Sitting through one hour and 40 minutes of the excercise required a certain devotion.

The slender professor, dressed in blue workshirt, dungarees and black leather running shoes, sat immobile as he intoned his piece. For 71 pages he leaned into a microphone across a long, low table and out of his mouth, in a reedy, soothing voice pured a string of words and phrases at random.

Cage has been up to this sort of this for a long time.

In 1951 in "Imaginary Landscape" Cage wrote a piece for 12 radios and 24 musicians. During the piece, each radio is tuned to different station, making the outcome unpredictable and each performance unique.

"You have to just let it wash over you," Liz Lee advised as she was leaving after one hour. The 20-year-old biology major came over from nearby Massachusetts Institute of Technology to hear and experience Cage. "It's kind of interesting. The point I get out of it is all words have their own connotations,"

Less enthralled was her companion, Ray Parke, 24, a jazz musician in this academic enclave across the Charles River from Boston. "I see this as more of an experiment. I'm not really a big fan of this kind of stuff. Art without form is nothing."

LOCAL

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

LOST LUV — A missing kitty is the solitary message on the walls of the Student Union Building yesterday.

UMass salary plan draws criticism

By ALETHEA O'DONNELL
Collegian Correspondent

A controversial 3-year-old salary plan that imposes maximum salary levels for professional staff at the University of Massachusetts is under fire again.

The Professional Staff Salary Administration Program, or "Olney Plan," states job qualifications and sets minimum and maximum salary levels. Before the Olney Plan, no set salary levels existed.

Gerald Quarles, head of the Professional Association Senate (PAUMA) said that the Olney Plan has many problems, some of which will soon be realized.

"The problem is that it arbitrarily assigned certain limits to what people's pay expectations might be," Quarles said. "[It] seemed to have, in my opinion, no rational basis."

Quarles said he believes the plan will eventually force out the best employees. "I think that the Olney Plan was a mistake. What happens to the person who's been an outstanding achiever? Pretty soon you wind up at the end [of the salary range], and when you wind up at the end you're not allowed to get the same kind of salary increase," he said.

"It's a disincentive, and it's a message that we might as well get a little mediocre here," Quarles said.

Angela Riel, manager of Classification and Compensation in the Whitmore Administrative Building, said because UMass is large, it needs a structured salary plan. "Before the plan, each decision was made on its individual merits without looking at the overall picture," she said. "Now, you come in here knowing what the position pays, you know what the range is. I think you can make a more informed decision."

She said there is an ultimate worth to every job, and it would be "ridiculous" for salaries to increase without a ceiling.

But Elisa Campbell, a staff assistant at the University Computer Center, said the University will suffer in the long run because it won't be able to compete for the best employees.

"Olney's a relatively new thing, so there aren't that many people that have been affected," she said. "However, the newer people haven't built up much loyalty. They probably don't have many personal ties to the area. I think [the inability to compete] will start showing up."

A non-partisan enters SGA race

Adam R. Novitt announced his candidacy for Student Government Association president yesterday, and said he would send a positive message about the University of Massachusetts to legislators to help combat budget cuts.

"[Legislators] have to understand we are an investment in the future," he said.

Novitt, a 22 year-old English major, said he plans to organize day-long open-microphone rallies to help achieve this end.

"We have to get together a unified statement," he said, "Once we have that done we will have re-legitimized ourselves in our own eyes" and the eyes of the state, he said.

Novitt stressed that he is a non-partisan candidate, and since he is not involved in the SGA he would not be biased entering office, he said.

— ALLEN BERNARD

Festa's resignation stuns SGA

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

Claiming his involvement with the Student Government Association has "shattered" his life, embattled Commuter Area Government President Jay Festa has resigned his post.

The surprise announcement came at last night's Senate meeting, prompting the body to approve an immediate shutdown of funding for commuter area payroll and office supplies. Festa, who denies recent allegations that he misused student funds, said last night he plans to withdraw from the University.

"I'm tired of putting my life's energies into something that can't work," said Festa, who is also a senator. "I've wasted a year and a half of my life."

"I wanted to get something done," he said. "[The SGA] is a game. It's not public administration, which is what it should be."

Festa's status as a student came into question in recent months because he withdrew temporarily from the University in December because of financial difficulties. He was reinstated this semester as a continuing education student, but add-drop problems left him three credits shy of the 12-credit minimum for SGA officials. "[I withdrew] because of the fees and the cost of attending the University," he said. "It's much cheaper in Continuing Ed."

SGA Treasurer Laura Filkins and Student Speaker Robert Fadel sent Festa a letter Monday night informing him of his failure to meet the academic requirements to remain a student official.

Filkins said the Dean of Students office is investigating the situation and is reviewing claims of financial improprieties alleged to have occurred during Festa's term.

The proposal to freeze commuter area funds was drawn by Sen. W. Greg Rothman, himself a commuter area representative.

The freeze will be lifted at the discretion of Treasurer Filkins but she said it will remain in effect until all investigations into the commuter area are completed.

The senate also passed an amendment to the motion requiring the SGA to impound all capital equipment, most notably a Gestetner poster-making machine and a Macintosh computer.

Robb Smith, acting commuter area government co-president, has declared the office a "government-in-exile," claiming the senate has "crippled the government per order of Greg Rothman."

"Jay is gone but they still want to kick him around," he said. "He didn't do anything malicious — he wanted to do good things with the government."

Smith issued a statement late last night claiming the now "barren" office is completely shut down, suspending both Spring 1989 elections and the government's constitution, which is not available at this time for reasons now under investigation.

"We will not allow political terrorists to destroy the largest area government at this university," Smith wrote.

University Dems. plan to expand membership

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

The newly-elected officers of the University Democrats said this week plans are in action to make the registered student orgaization as well known as their Republican counterparts.

Elected last Thursday were Bob Johnston and Mary-Jo Bazarian, co-presidents, Valerie Vigoda and Allison Perkins, co-vice presidents, Treasurer Drew O'Brien, Secretary Allison Bennett, and Public Affairs officer Sandy Edwards.

Johnston said he hopes to continue increasing club membership, which exceeded 300 last year because of Gov. Michael Dukakis' bid for the presidency.

"We definitely need more active members," he said. "We should be as well known as the conservative group on campus."

"The [democrats] on this campus are vocal, but they're out-spoken [by conservativesl," Johnston said. "We will turn that around."

Johnston, who will work with Congressman Gerry Studds this summer and completed an internship at the State House in Boston last summer, said the club offers students great experience for political careers.

Besides membership expansion, the club is planning several events, including the March 30 appearance of Congressman Barney Frank in the Campus Center.

The club is also sponsoring a Massachusetts Collegiate Democrats conference this semester, Johnston said. The conference is expected to draw more than 30 colleges and possibly former presidential candidate Jesse Jackson to the University, he said.

Edwards said the club represents "mainstream democratic ideals," and is open to democrats on all levels of political spectrum.

Other club activities include t-shirt and poster production, monthly meetings, and working with local government officials or political campaigns.

The club is also planning to produce a newsletter to inform area democrats about the party's involvements and current issues at hand, Johnston said.

Racial gap is widening

Health dean to address issue in lecture

By JOHN SWANSON
Collegian Staff

The difference in the status of black and white Americans is becoming more pronounced, according to Dr. William A. Darity.

Darity, the first dean of the University of Massachusetts school of health sciences, will speak today at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium about this topic, one to which he has devoted a lifetime of study. This is third lecture in the 1988-1989 Distinguished Faculty Lecture Series.

This racial gap can be evaluated with the differential deficit ratio (DDR), Darity's measurement of differences in the health status between racial or ethnic groups.

"The DDR is the percent deficit between between two groups, even if there are increases or decreases over time," he said. Darity said this ratio is determined by various aspects of the group's health: infant mortality, maternal health, neonatal births, suicide, homocide and AIDS are chief health

continued on page 5

Dean William A. Darity

AP photo

Embattled Defense Secretary-designee John Tower

■ Tower admission

continued from page 1

of this government."

Bush dispatched Quayle to Capitol Hill to lobby for the nomination.

"We hope the prospects improve. We don't have 50 votes yet. But we're moving in that direction," Quayle told a White House photo session.

Tower showed flashes of grit and humor as he fielded questions at the National Press Club about allegations concerning excessive drinking, womanizing and lucrative consulting fees he received from defense contractors.

Asked whether he would ask that his name be withdrawn, he replied by quoting from the last letter written by Col. William Barrett Travis, the leader of the Texans who fought and died at the Alamo: "I shall never surrender or retreat."

Republicans were trying to decide whether to seek a delay in the beginning of the debate on the nomination, which has drawn widespread opposition from Democrats.

The administration is trying to hold all 45 Republicans and sway five of the Senate's 55 Democrats to get a tie vote that Quayle could break in favor of Tower.

An Associated Press survey of the Senate found 36 Republicans supporting the nomination, 32 Democrats opposed and 29 undecided or undeclared. Two senators were unavailable for comment.

Mitchell, D-Maine, the Democratic leader, announced his opposition to the nomination in a mid-day speech on the Senate Floor, citing Tower's ties to defense consultants and his drinking.

> "As a matter of fact, I have broken wedding vows. I think I am probably not alone in that connection."

The former Texas senator paused briefly and said, "I am a little sorry I brought up the Alamo analogy. It just occurred to me what happened at the Alamo just 10 days after Travis wrote that letter." Texas defenders were wiped out by the Mexicans.

Tower said he regards his weekend vow to quit drinking if he wins confirmation as "sacred... and I can assure you I will abide by it."

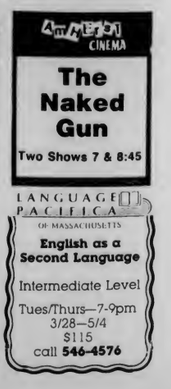
Asked whether he had ever broken his wedding vows, the twice-divorced Tower said, "As a matter of fact, I have broken wedding vows. I think I am probably not alone in that connection."

Tower's second wife, Lilla Burt Cummings, alleged "marital misconduct" in court papers in the couple's divorce case.

There was no letup, meanwhile, in the political storm surrounding the nomination.

"It is only after careful study of this record that I have concluded that John Tower is not the man to provide leadership by example to the military and civilian employees of the Department of Defense, especially in the difficult job of reforming the Pentagon's administration and procurement practices in a period of budget stringency," Mitchell said.

Tower lashed out at what he said was the absence of clearly defined standards against which he was being judged. He noted that several senators have said that the secretary of defense, as the commander of US military forces behind only the president, must adhere to a higher standard. "I accept that... but my question is how much," he said.



Collegian photo by Joel Solomon

PLAYING A LITTLE HOOP — Ross Pytko, nephew of women's basketball player Michelle Pytko takes a shot during half-time of a recent game against Harvard.

Video cassette recorder stolen from Orchard Hill

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

A video cassette recorder worth $300 was reported stolen from Orchard Hill Government Office in Field Residence Hall Tuesday, police said.

In other police reports:

- A student reported his pickup truck was struck on its right side by another vehicle while parked in Lot 41 Tuesday, police said.
- A backpack with a wallet containing $50 was reported stolen from outside the weight room in Boyden Gymnasium Tuesday, police said.
- License plates were reported stolen from a car parked in Lot 49 Tuesday, police said.
- Police said they stopped a car for impeded operation Wednesday and confiscated a driver's license and liquor identification card from the vehicle's operator. The two pieces of identification belonged to another family member and were turned over to the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

Black History balloons out

A group of resident assistants have scheduled a balloon launch for 5 p.m. today in the Southwest Residential Area to note the end of Black History Month at the University of Massachusetts.

Each of the 200 balloons has a tag with the message: "Washington Tower joins the fight against racism at UMass. If you find this balloon, please write [to the Washington cluster office]."

Susan MacArthur, a junior hotel, restaurant and travel administration major and R.A. on the 22nd floor of Washington Tower, said the launch was her idea. She said a 6-member Black History Month committee formed from among the R.A. staff of Washington Tower collaborated on the launch. Funds are being provided by the dorm's House Council.

"We didn't want to do something run of the mill, and we hope this will be educational," MacArthur said. "We think this will be a very visual way to get a small message across."

She said speakers, films and other events had exhausted the possibilities of events during February's Black History Month, but the launch is an original idea.

GEORGE FRANCY

■ new dean

continued from page 3

issues in any culture, he said.

Dean Darity received his B.S. at Shaw University, his M.S. at North Carolina Central University and his Ph.D. at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. In 1953, he joined the United Nations World Health Organization, where he helped establish health programs in the Middle East and Africa.

In 1965, he came to the University of Massachusetts as an associate professor of health sciences. He became a full professor in 1968.

With a recent grant of $3.2 million from the National Cancer Institute, Darity is the principal investigator of a research project that is "studying smoking patterns and practices in the black community and analyzing data with which we can come up with programs" related to this issue, he said. The research is being conducted at sites in Springfield, Hartford, Durham, N.C., and Columbia, S.C.

He is a visiting professor at UNC-Chapel Hill and the University of South Carolina, Columbia. His essays have been published in the American Journal of Public Health, Advances in Planned Parenthood and the Journal of Black Health Perspectives.

For Your Information

For Your Information is a service of the Collegian to its readers. Because of a lack of space, not all press releases can be included in FYI. For more information, contact David at the Collegian, at 545-3500.

Auditions

Auditions for "That's Entertainment: A Musical Extravaganza" are scheduled for at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow and Friday in room 163 of the Campus Center. For more information, contact Bonnie Borromeo at 256-0569.

Concert

Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity will be sponsoring the band Too Much Fun, last year's winner of the Southwest Battle of the Bands. The concert is scheduled for 9 p.m. Saturday in the Campus Center Auditorium. For more information, contact Scott Idol at 549-2913 or 253-9032.

Escort Service

The Department of Public Safety offers a nightly escort service to all points on campus. The service runs from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. For more information, call 545-2123.

Fax Service

The Campus Center Hotel now offers Fax service to the University community, as well as a Telex service. Documents to be faxed are to be brought to the Hotel Reservations office on the third floor of the Campus Center from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Payment may be made directly or by using departmental purchase orders. For more information, contact the service at 549-6000, ext. 7535.

NOW... ON SATURDAY IN AMHERST!

FILM IN BY 11:00 am
PRINTS OUT BY 2:00 pm

1-HOUR SERVICE ALSO AVAILABLE

The Foto Factory

257 TRIANGLE ST. / AMHERST

Come In & See All Our
SUPER REBATE SPECIALS
SAVE MORE EVERYDAY...AT SCOTT'S LIQUORS!

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN
MON-SAT 8 AM-11 PM
Tel: 549-2692
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center
Amherst, MA

STROH'S & STROH'S LIGHT
SALE PRICE $10.99
Mail in Rebate -2.00
YOUR COST $8.99
30 Pack Cans

KIMNOFF VODKA
$8.99
1.75 ltr

JAMESONS IRISH WHISKEY
SALE PRICE $10.99
Mail in Rebate -3.00
YOUR COST $7.99
750 ml

ROLLING ROCK
12 pack bottles
$5.99
plus deposit

GUINNESS GOLD LAGER
SALE PRICE $16.99
Mail in Rebate -$8.00
YOUR COST $8.99
24-12 oz bottles

CASTILLO RUM WHITE OR GOLD
SALE PRICE $10.99
Mail in Rebate -$3.00
YOUR COST $7.99
1.75 ltr

VISA/MASTERCARD
Accepted, also Local Personal Checks

WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE

■ penny mailing

continued from page 1

made in the last 18 months have forced UMass to pinch pennies. "It doesn't take many calls or letters from tax payers to get legislators interested in an issue," she said.

Law makers tend to pay attention to tax-paying parents, she said, since they hold fate of a legislator's job.

"They are crucial to our campaign and they shouldn't sit idly by and watch public higher education suffer," she said.

"We won't be able to patch [the budget] anymore. We'll have to make some drastic decisions concerning the number of students at the university and the number of classes we're offering," she said.

Kennaugh said that over the past two years the UMass budget has dropped about $23 million. "Things are getting worse instead of better," she said.

She said students are paying more and getting less. Absorbing the difference in funding means fewer available classes, less equipment for students, and fewer books for the library.

"We've got to take action and demonstrate loudly and quickly," said Kennaugh. She said she urges letters to be written to state legislators.

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
BLOCK GRANT PROPOSAL DEADLINE
The next deadline for submission of grant proposals for Block Grants
Thursday, March 30
Guidelines and application forms are available at the Arts Council office
UMass Arts Council 125 Herter 545-0202

YVONNE'S CARIBBEANA
Now Open For Lunch
Tues.-Fri. 11:00a.m. - 3 p.m.
All you can eat multi-cultural cuisine buffet $4.95—Homemade soups, salads, etc.
Also Sunday Brunch 11-3
And a New West Indian Bakery and Pastry Shop
Wedding and Birthday Cakes
All Occasions—cakes made to order
Open 10 a.m.-3 p.m.
Dinner 5-10 p.m. Tues.-Sun.
Authentic Caribbean Catering—All Events
206 Russell St., Hadley,
on the bus route—586-4389

Zeta Psi Amherst Drop Zone
ARMY/NAVY
LAST DAY SALE TODAY
Sponsored By: Zeta Psi
ΖΨ
With: Amherst Drop Zone
Feb. 27 To March 2
9-5 p.m. 4 Days Only
Plus: 4 additional Vendors with...
VINTAGE CLOTHING
JEWELRY
MEXICAN BLANKETS
CHAMPION SWEATSHIRTS
LIVE CONCERT TAPES
And Surplus Surplus Surplus Surplus Surplus
Locafed in Student Union Ballroom

Q. What's missing in this picture?

Your Partners In Travel
Maplewood Shops
Northampton, MA
586-8953
A. We don't see you in it!
Did you Call 586-8953 to book your Spring Break Vacation?

UTOPIA SPAS
Suntan Lounges
Float to Relax Tank
Private Hot Tub Rooms
Monday-Wednesday $7.50 per person/hour
Thursday-Sunday $7.50 half hour
$12.00 per person/hour
175 University Drive Amherst
Amherst, MA
413-253-7727
OPEN TILL 1:00 AM.
7 DAYS A WEEK

UPC PRESENTS
THURSDAY
MARCH 2
ED VADAS
AN OPEN BLUES JAM!
FREE
IN THE HATCH

AUCTION!
SATURDAY, MARCH 4 12:00 - 3:00 PM

When the going gets tough...
The tough go to Europe!
Keith Giffen
J.M. DeMatteis
Bart Sears
Joe Rubinstein
JUSTICE LEAGUE Europe
A new ongoing series in DC's Standard Format. Beginning in March.
Preview of items on auction on Friday
AVAILABLE AT
SAME BAT CHANNEL and Address
AT THE HAMPSHIRE MALL
COMICS, BASEBALL CARDS & GAMES
NO MINIMUM BID!

UMass prof. urges Harvard to divest

By SARAH DEMASTER
Collegian Correspondent

Harvard University must join universities across the nation in divesting from South Africa, a University of Massachusetts professor said recently.

UMass professor of philosophy Robert Wolff, a 1953 graduate of Harvard and executive director of Harvard Alumnae Against Apartheid, said the organization's goal is for the private university to divest from South Africa.

"Harvard is a little out of step with the rest of the world," he said. "The situation in South Africa is very bad."

Wolff said one obstacle to divestment is reaching alumnae, who are all over the country.

"There is no central meeting place, so we mostly reach out to them by mail," he said.

Wolff has arranged for the appearance of Prem Singh, a visiting Indian scholar at Harvard this year, to speak at UMass. Singh, a political science professor at Durban/Westville in Natal Province in South Africa, is scheduled to talk about black political movements when he visits the University May 5.

Harvard Alumnae Against Apartheid is one of several anti-apartheid groups across the nation. People interested in working toward divestment on a broader scale can contact the Fund for a Free South Africa. The group, located in Boston, is not associated with any one university, Wolff said.

"I think we're on a winning track here," he said of the possibility of Harvard divesting soon. "there has been a tremendous amount of positive response."

Media biased on Israel, speaker says

By MARION RILEY
Collegian Correspondent

What you see in the television media is not necessarily what occurs in Israel, according to an official who spoke recently at Amherst College.

Justus Weiner, director of the Division of American Law and External Relations in Israel, said the country believes in human rights, and has attempted to implement them in dealing with the Palestinian uprising, or Intifada.

"For something to be on the evening news it has to be visual," he said. "If it is regular, not dramatic, it won't appear."

"The spoken word is prone to exaggeration," he said, "but the written word is regarded as a life or death matter."

Weiner said the Israeli government responds to allegations of violations of human rights by responding to all letters sent by Amnesty International, by protecting the rights of criminals and by allowing the International Committee of Red Cross to have access to prisoners.

"If in the process of investigation we find a violation of local law, we get the Attorney General to intervene," Weiner said.

Weiner said Israeli soldiers are attempting to reduce the frequency of riots in the occupied territories, site of the Palestinian uprising. "Soldiers are told to use live ammunition as a last resort and only if their life is in danger," he said.

If a soldier's life is in danger, they are told to shoot in the air first, he said. "Never into a crowd or at children," Weiner said, adding that soldiers never want to injure innocent bystanders, although there have been "graphic violations to this code."

Weiner, who has been travelling throughout the United States for the past three weeks giving lectures, said he hoped things in Israel would change for the better. "I would hope that somehow out of all this ignorance, somehow in the end, goodness will come," he said.

Surprised? Just another week of savings at Liquors 44
KIRIN BEER $15.99 + DEP case of 24 12 oz bottles
SUN COUNTRY COOLER $2.59 All Flavors two liter bottles
Seagram's V.O. $16.99 1.75L
BUSCH $8.69 + DEP case of 24 12 oz cans
BEAULIEU BEAU TOUR CABERNET SAUVIGNON $4.29 750 ML
POPOV VODKA $8.99
BECK'S BEER $14.59 + DEP case of 24 12 oz bottles
ANDRE CHAMPAGNE — white — pink — cold duck $2.25 750 ML
BEEFEATER IMPORTED ENGLISH GIN $19.99 1.75L
SEBASTIANI PROPRIETOR'S white, red, chenin blanc, french columbard, gamay beaujolais 1.5L $3.79
FLEISCHMANN'S $10.99 PREFERRED 1.75L WHISKEY DeKuyper's Original
SCHLITZ $8.79 + DEP case of 24 12 oz cans
GALLO PREMIUM $4.99 All varieties, 3 liter
PEACHTREE SCHNAPPS $4.99 750 ML
SALE PRICES THRU 3/7/89
VISA

Board of Governor's Program Council
Presents...
"WE SCORE MORE"
A Free Lecture on success in and after college by Jon Katzman
founder of the
THE PRINCETON REVIEW™

LEARN HOW TO:
*Score high on the LSAT, GMAT, GRE and MCAT
*Master your class work and decrease test anxiety
*Use credit and sweat to start a business
*Find out what businesses are looking for in campus interviews

* Students who attend and submit a completed Master Card application, will receive a $75-discount coupon for the Princeton Review Course.

A Benefit for naca Education Foundation
Produced by BWI
Wednesday, March 8th
8:00 pm, Campus Center Auditorium
In Cooperation with BayBank
Presented by MasterCard

REGION

Rapist may return to constable job

CARVER (AP) — August Barros pleaded guilty to two counts of child rape in 1987 and now he's a candidate to return to his job as town constable, while still on probation.

Barros' candidacy has created a stir in this suburb of 10,300, even though a constable has no police powers and spends his days delivering court summons and serving complaints.

Nothing in state law prevents Barros from taking office if he is elected on April 8. Local residents learned of his background by accident because the state's controversial Criminal Offender Record Information (CORI) law so protects the privacy of criminals that law enforcement officials are prohibited from even discussing his case.

Telephone calls by the Associated Press to Barros' home on Tuesday went unanswered. On Wednesday, a woman who answered the phone and said she was his wife said Barros planned to withdraw his candidacy for constable.

"Look, just take my word for it," said the woman, who would not give her name. "The papers will be in very shortly. I don't want to be in the news."

The papers had not been filed when the town clerk's office closed Wednesday at 4 p.m., said the clerk, Bernadette Hemingway.

The 66-year-old Barros pleaded guilty in Plymouth Superior Court in September 1987 to two counts of raping a child. He was sentenced to 20 years at the state prison in Concord on the first count, with one year to be served and the remainder of the time suspended. On the second count, he was given a three-to-five year suspended sentence.

The details of his crimes wee reported in local newspapers at the time of his conviction, and were reprinted after he became a candidate on Feb. 9. But a state law prohibits Carver police, or the Plymouth County district attorney's office, which police say prosecuted the case, from commenting.

Joseph P. Gaughan, first assistant district attorney, said he could not make public the facts of the case even though Barros became a candidate for public office on Feb. 9.

"The CORI law is very strict on that," Gaughan said. "I can't discuss the fact that someone committed a crime or was convicted of a crime."

Gaughan said he could also not confirm that his office prosecuted Barros.

"I cannot even say that," he said. "That is my telling you that he was in fact charged with a crime and prosecuted."

continued on page 18

AP photo

CHRIST CHILD WINNER — Nine-month-old Brian Muldoon of Boston is held by his father Kevin Muldoon Tuesday at St. Kevin Rectory in Boston after Brian was announced as the annual Christ Child Winner of 1989 to play the part of the Christ child in the annual Passion Play, The Christus, in March.

STUDENTS

LESSON NO. 1 — NEVER CONSIDER DOING BUSINESS WITH SOMEONE WHO IS NOT WILLING TO WORK FOR IT!

LESSON NO. 2 — ONE DEALERSHIP IN YOUR AREA IS WILLING TO HELP AND WORK FOR YOUR BUSINESS!

WE WILL PAY YOUR FIRST 4 PAYMENTS*

Bring your student ID. Must be shown upon entering.

Previously owned cars starting under $2500 Available

For people who won't consider compromise...for people like you!! See Lesson No. 3 next week.

NORTHAMPTON HONDA

Excludes all other promotions.

586-8626 171 KING STREET, NORTHAMPTON, MASS 586-8626

*1000 total maximum payments

Come Clean With Us!

Open 7 days a week 7 a.m.-10 p.m.

Campus Coin Op 107 Sunderland Rd North Amherst

Speedwash, 11 Pray St., Amherst

South Towne Commons Laundromat 479 West St., South Amherst

What's New At ...

HAMPDEN SNACK BAR

... Something For Everyone!

GRILL

Open 7:30 am until 10:45 pm (Weekends - open 8:30 am)
Breakfast specials until 11:00 am
Everything cooked to order

SNACK BAR

Salads - Sandwiches
Fresh Fruit & More

PIZZA PARLOR

Whole pizzas made to order
Pizza by the slice

CREAMERY

Ice cream - Sundaes - Cookies
Cakes - Cocoas - Coffees
11:30 am to 11:30 pm

CHOOSE EXCELLENCE

LARGEST COLLEGE PAPER IN NEW ENGLAND

The Massachusetts Daily COLLEGIAN

DAILY HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1988

Loyal group accompanies spiritual leader

Edger July 25, 1988 / West E

Historic clu will rebuild from ashes

By Richard Sasson
The Patriot Ledger

WESTWOOD — Dominic Marinelli of Walpole, president of the 92-year-old Norfolk Golf Club on East Street, vowed yesterday to rebuild the clubhouse that was destroyed in a $100,000, three-alarm fire over the weekend.

Marinelli said the golf course will reopen in a couple of days and the clubhouse will be rebuilt.

"It's a disappointment," he said. "The building has been there a lot of years and there's a lot of history to it. The club will come out of it. The club will survive like it has in the past."

But we'll come out of it. The club's

No members were in the club during the club's function roo near the fire which starte a.m. yesterday, leaving o shop and a section of locker room standing John J. Sheehy said.

The private club

PBA tries to leave airport

Fee hikes at Logan blamed for move

By Pedro Pereira
Standard-Times staff writer

NEW BEDFORD — The only airline that runs regular flights from the city to and from Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket plans to withdraw its service in September, but federal law says another airline has to take o before the pullout.

Eastern Express/Provincetown-Boston Air owned by Bar Harbor Airways Inc., will at New Bedford Municipal Airport.

senger demand, higher landin tional in Boston and Lar York and the need announced Thurs

But the F may

2 Congressmen Deny Speech Fees Spurred

By GREGORY GORDON and RICK SANTOS
UPI WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George Hochbruecker, D-N.Y., and Ed Hutto, D-Fla., deny a conspiracy to boost honorarium check to Hochbruecker, Evergreen President Robert Brooks, a former congressman, also personally donat-

Shop owners face disaster in slump from beach closing

By DAVID R. MARK
Press Staff Writer

THE BRENNANS have been doing wondering lately.

Gloucester Daily Times, Friday, June 24, 1988

Fitchburg firefighter charged in loc

Judge denies injunction in Sakowicz suit

By JENNIFER DEMPSEY
Times staff

Why join the Collegian?

Students serious about getting their foot in the door of the journalism field join the Collegian. Last summer several Collegian editors and staff members worked in professional newspapers and news organizations across the country.

Among newspapers that have hired Collegian reporters as interns or permanent staff members are the Boston Globe, Quincy Patriot Ledger, Standard-Times in New Bedford, Arlington Advocate, Daily Hampshire Gazette, Cape Cod Times, Gloucester Times, and many more.

Journalism is a competitive field and it pays to get experience early. So, what are you waiting for? Come down to 113 Campus Center today.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Fight the budget cuts

To protest the state cutbacks for public higher education, students built "Cutback City," a shantytown that is supposed to symbolize the deterioration of higher education. Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs Dennis Madson said the students would be allowed to demonstrate and suggested they attend tonight's public meeting to discuss the budget cuts.

As another sign of help, the administration has opened Whitmore's phone lines to the students so they can call parents and alumni and persuade them to lobby for for funding for higher education.

The students' letter-writing campaign, the rally scheduled for noon today, and the Statehouse protest planned for March 7 are all encouraging signs of the students and administration working to save higher education. The students and administration of the University should be praised for their efforts.

However, we must not stop. Go to any meetings about the budget cuts. Attend today's rally, and the protest at the Statehouse. Take advantage of Whitmore's open phone lines, and encourage people to lobby in favor of public higher education. Write to your representative and the Board of Regents at these addresses:

The Statehouse
Beacon Street
Boston, MA 02133

Board of Regents
Room 1401 McCormack Bldg.
1 Ashburn Place
Boston, MA 02108-1696

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinon of the Collegian board of editors

Soviet Union further ahead in the race than we think

Have you ever looked back on all those James Bond movies and wondered if that spy stuff is real? Are the Soviets always trying to steal our new high-tech microchip or the blueprints of our latest military weapon? And, as evidence of their technological inferiority, do they attempt to aquire our secrets at any cost?

While it is true that the Soviets have a large and concentrated clandestine effort in place to steal the West's industrial and military secrets, stealing secrets is hardly a Soviet monopoly.

Scott Green

The myth of Soviet technological inferiority needs to be examined. Theft is undoubtedly one strategy for catching up in key areas, but it is also testimony to Soviet technological sophistication. To use advanced technology, especially if it's stolen, the thief must be quite knowledgeable himself. In fact, the history of technological progress is largely the history of buying, copying, and stealing successful solutions from others. But in the long run, stealing generation after generation of technology can only lead to technological dependence and stagnation of creativity.

When the Soviets buy, rather than steal technology, it is also viewed as evidence of their backwardness. In fact, they are only making the same buy-make decision that any manufacturing enterprise must face when confronted with a new requirement or a need to upgrade a technology. The issue here isn't one of Soviet brain power but of time. An example: When the USSR has been confronted with a technical embargo, it has developed its own technology, in some cases equal or superior to that of the West. The US embargoed synthetic diamonds and the technology for making them after World War II. Synthetic diamonds are now a major export for the Soviets. They came up with a way to make them that is superior to ours. Its applications are also used in aerospace and armor plating.

Necessity is the mother of invention. In a Soviet system lacking the competitive stimulus of the market to drive new technology, Western embargoes and technology transfer controls act as useful, though often resented, stimuli to the Soviet's internal technological progress.

Reagan's defense buildup has especially provided a challenge to Soviet development. Contrary to popular Western belief, the Soviet defense sector is not an economic "black hole" that absorbs resources and gives nothing back to the rest of the economy. Higher quality materials and capital goods, of course, are used for the defense sector, but these benefits are transferable to the civilian and industrial sectors. Technological spinoffs are created, product quality is enhanced, and the transfer of defense management and successful management practices to other sectors occurs, which helps the economy as a whole.

Through military competition and technology transfer controls, we are spurring Soviet advancement. How many of those who think the Soviets are behind in technology are aware that for years, IBM used a Soviet textbook, Semiconductor Physics at its technical training center?

Mikhail Agursky, an engineer formerly employed in the Soviet military-industrial complex has written, "The Communist economy's pace is set not by internal but by international competition, spurred by the urge for survival and expansion. Were it not for this competition, the Communist economies would be doomed to stagnate completely."

The message here is clear. We cannot assume away Soviet technology. There may be a gap between East and West technology, be with our military competition, tech transfer controls and ignorance, we may be helping to close that gap, while our aim is to achieve the opposite.

Scott Green is a Collegian columnist

Stolen banner symbol of gay pride

A new chapter has been added to the rapidly growing tale of homophobia at UMass. The last chapter entitled "Reprehensible Ravings of a Rediculous Republican Rag" hasn't even come to a close and already this new chapter has begun. The Lesbian, Bisexual, and Gay Alliance banner has been stolen from the Student Union.

So what?

It is an unfortunate incident, this is true, worthy of a footnote or a paragraph perhaps, but a whole chapter? Isn't that blowing things out of proportion just a little bit?

I understand this reaction and agree in part. It certainly isn't a blatent, violent attack on the gay, lesbian, and bisexual community as were the articles and "parodies" that appeared in the last two issues of "The Minute Man." However, it has more impact on the community than one might imagine.

The banner that was hanging in the Student Union was made last semester to replace one that was stolen in the spring of '88. A lot of work went into it, hand-sewn and hand-painted it proudly displayed the new national symbol of the fight for civil rights and civil treatment of gay, lesbian, and bisexual peoples: the rhinocerous. The rhinocerous was chosen for two reasons; it is an animal which has physical equality between the sexes; both female and male are of similar size and both have horns. Also it is a very gentle, peaceful animal... unless provoked.

The banner had a quiet but powerful effect on the communuity. It gave the gay, lesbian, and bisexual students who saw it every day a feeling of empowerment and was a symbol of the diversity on our campus. To the thousands of visitors that pass through our university it was a catalyst for education. A friend of mine, a tour guide, told me his favorite part of the tour was when someone would ask — as someone invariably did — what L.B.G.A. stands for. Most importantly it's prominent place in the heart of campus suggested to many that the University of Massachusetts at Amherst was a safe place to deal with issues of sexuality and to be comfortable no matter what one's sexuality was.

Of course the banner will be replaced — as was every banner before it and as will be every banner after it. Perhaps someday the forces that find it necessary to defame and harrass the gay, lesbian, and bisexual population will realize that no matter how many banners they steal, no matter how many effigies they burn, insults they hurl, or people they threaten, their barbaric tactics will not be successful.

Benjamin R. Eder
Orchard Hill

Contract proposal criticized

Last Thursday's article on the possible effect of Dean O'Brien's proposal to cut expenses ("Contract plan draws conflicting reactions," Feb. 28) omitted the impact on students. Reducing staff members to 43-week contracts would make it more difficult for the remaining staff, already shorthanded from the hiring freeze and covering each other's jobs during vacations, to do the vital summer work of wrapping up paperwork from the last academic year and setting up for the fall. The less efficiently this is done, the more annoying delays will confront students during the busiest weeks of the year.

However, I was impressed by your quote from the Associate Dean of the School of Education: that the short work year might appeal to "women who have young children, or men who might want to use that period to travel." It's heartening to note that the school is holding the line against some of the faddish notions of the past thirty years, such as fathers spending time with their children, or women wanting to travel, or non-sexist speech. I was, in fact, planning my dream trip to London when I read Dr. Urch's comments, but now that I've been reminded of my biological destiny, I'll cancel my reservation and make the ticket available to some man who can appreciate it.

Julie Alger
Amherst

Portrayal of Roger Libby unfair

I applaud Anthony Padovano's self-revelations of gradual human liberation printed in the Collegian on February 23. I am glad he is changing at his own rate to be free of racism, sexism, and homophobia.

His zeal to disassociate from those who "disgust" him (the KKK, neo-nazi party, Roger Libby, and Paul Cameron), however, leads him to violate his own advice about people not being rude and insulting.

As a long-time friend and colleague of Roger Libby, I am pained to see him so callously abused by the "guilt-by-association" tactic of Padovano. Libby is a civil libertarian and sexologist of integrity and scholarly repute who takes controversial stands. What happens when a neophyte journalist smears the character of another man who is a public figure? Nothing. Is this another cheap shot of the distinctively unliberated male?

Ron Mazur
Northampton

There's no excuse for SGA inefficiency

Democracy is a foolish idea.

I'm serious, democracy is inefficient. It's a bunch of self-important people in suits blowing hot air. After my third semester of watching the Student Government Association fail miserably at getting anything done, I have decided that a dictatorship might be better. At least in dictatorships, you know what the score is. The system is bad, but you know it. In this place, the system is abused beyond all belief, and then we are told that we should be happy we have it. Supposedly, we have a say in student government, but I'll believe that when I see it. This has gone far enough. I'm tired of it. No matter what I do, or what I say, nothing gets through your thick skulls.

Pamela McCarthy

I try to ask, beg, cajole, and bully you into doing your job. I would just be happy if you recognized the fact that you do indeed have a job. A job, might I add, that you have been neglecting at my expense.

I ask you to resolve conflicts that are a year old, and you read the Bible, or squabble, or rehash points that have been made since last semester.

You divide yourselves up by political beliefs, something that really shouldn't affect what student policy is. Personal beliefs really can't affect that much at UMass. A communist couldn't control the University budget. A conservative couldn't do that much as far as things such as the draft, economics, and foreign policy go. The SGA's job is to take care of student concerns, not national or international worries. But of course, you forget that.

You wonder why you don't get any respect?

Oh, I just love the excuses you give us. Some people had the audacity to say that the people in "real" politics (i.e., Beacon Hill) are just as bad, so it's okay that nothing gets done in the senate. It's okay to waste the voters' time and money. It's okay to hold up the operations of the SGA because of a controversy over co-presidency. I'd be pretty mortified if Congress couldn't ratify an election within a year. But why am I complaining? It's expected of our "real" legislators to mess up, you folks are just taking the initiative and messing up in new and unusual ways. It's creativity in action. I'm just so impressed.

I've got news for these people. Whether we vote for State Representatives, US Senators, or the SGA, we never appreciate our time and money being wasted. We don't take kindly to inefficiency. We don't get a wild thrill of joy when our elected leaders stall on making choices about policies, laws, and any other type of decision. We put our trust in you. When you pull stunts like this, we feel as if we're being taken for a ride.

It gets me so angry, because I know student senators who try so hard to do a good job. They have their voters in mind when they go to SGA meetings. But whenever they bring up a motion, its debated to ridiculous lengths. Of course, it's a miracle if it even makes it to the floor, with the antics we have seen lately. I see these poor souls trudge back from senate meetings mumbling, "Why did I ever do this in the first place? I must be a masochist. That's it, I'm a closet masochist." I suppose they aren't good politicians, because they try to get things done.

It's not okay to screw things up just because "real" politicians do it. I don't buy it. Aren't we the college students who want to change the world? Shouldn't we try and work for change within our system? The first place to start is our own student government. Maybe you could take the good you did there out into the "real" world and show "real" politicians how it's done.

Pamela McCarthy is a Collegian columnist

A study in aerobic culture and life

In gym class it is easy to pick me out from my peers — I'm the one without the bobbing ponytail.

Of course, there are other physiological differences between us. As one of these token males in a female dominated aerobics class, I am struggling to adapt to a cardiovascular culture ridiculed by my barbell-toting friends.

Darren Garnick

My bulky 200-pound frame provides a striking contrast to the streamlined figures that surround me. But I feel no jealousy. I have no desire for an enhanced bustline or firm inner thighs. I seek only exercise and education.

Education? Is there an intellectual aspect to the leg-lift? I hope to answer that question this semester through participant observation. Inspired by anthropologist Diane Fossey and her research on mountain gorillas, I have immersed myself in the world of health-conscious women. Through a daily diary I have been documenting their interpersonal communication:

DAY ONE - The natives are friendly, but yet are reluctant to accept me as a full-fledged member of their group. The other two males are sticking together for security purposes. Reaffirming my independence, I make no effort to join them.

DAY TWO - The creature to my right seems to be running on nuclear power. With a smirk on her face, she energetically springs at twice my top speed . . .

Because of space limitations, my journal cannot be reprinted in its entirety. However, I have summarized my major observations below:

Our habitat is peacefully shared by and equal population of karate students with floorspace divided down the middle. There has yet to be any territorial disputes. But should one evolve, I fear the worst. We are trained to kick to high-pitched pop music; they are conditioned to kick on rigid commands. Our captain counts jumping jacks with the tone of a kindergarten teacher (1! 2! 3!). Their sargeants conduct war drills in a foreign tongue (ichi! ni! san!) Black belts versus black tights. We'd have no chance.

The aerobics civilization isn't militant, but it isn't soft either. My muscles have been shredded before, victims of mountain climbing, five-mile runs and lap swimming. But never has an endurance activity matched the mental toughness of aerobics.

Jogging the country back roads allows me to be out-of-breath in privacy. Aerobics forces me to evaluate my lung capacity. Nothing is more frustrating than straining while others are smiling.

Torture of male participants in aerobics class is unfortunately common practice by female instructors. Whenever a particular exercise seems painless, they are quick to remind me that my heel should be touching the floor or that my hips are not properly aligned. Additional emotional stress occurs when I am unable to learn the dance steps as quickly as the others.

International treaties outlawing aerobic abuse are not strictly enforced. To protect my sanity and self-esteem, I have redefined my definition of a successful class. As a football player in high school, I experienced the life of a tackling dummy. Drilled into the ground daily by defensive linemen, I had but one goal: at the end of each practice, I would still be standing. And that's my goal for each aerobics class — to walk away without crutches.

I will never be a Solid Gold dancer. I know I probably won't get the chance to audition. That is not my purpose. The sport of aerobics needs male role models. And if my presence in this field can inspire even one young boy in elementary school to chase after his dreams, then my work has been worthwhile.

Darren Garnick is a Collegian columnist.

A letter to a Playboy bunny

An Open Letter to Allison Decker:

I and several other women who have recently picketed the Newsroom have decided we would not picket while you were at the store. This is because you are a woman who is being used, first by the makers of Playboy, second by the owners of the Newsroom. If we were to be there, the media will produce a product (a news story) that will take the focus off the real issues. This product in turn will be used by the makers and distributors of pornography.

Constance Atteridge

One tactic the pornography industry and male-dominated society in general uses to sustain itself is to pit woman against woman — as if the real enemies to women's dignity and freedom are women themselves. I want you to know that I understand the position you are in and why, with the pervasive influence of pornography in this country, you believe what your are doing is harmless.

You are being used by Playboy because you are young and beautiful and a woman. Playboy has photographed you and will sell millions of pictures of your young, beautiful, nude body not because men want to admire it; but because they want to own it and use it. By owning it, they reduce you to property, a status women have always been relegated to. Your body has been photographed for sale and desecration, not for admiration.

You are being used by Playboy and the Amherst Newsroom by this "public relations" effort to have you come and sign autographs on the purchases of your body.

By this maneuver, there are several messages they are sending to the community. "See, pornography, especially Playboy, is not so bad. Allison proves it because she's so pretty, sweet, and young. Anyone who disagrees with what she's doing is against her prettiness, sweetness, and youth, and also against her freedom to express herself."

To the young macho university males they are saying, "See, you too can own this body. She wants you to. That's why she's here. That's what women are for."

To women they are saying, "See, even a college student, as long as she's female, is still nothing but a piece of meat. This is how women are supposed to look and act, so start doing it if you want men to like you."

However, the bottom line is geared toward all men: "Buy this magazine, because through it you will be comforted by the 'fact' that women are to be owned, submissive, and subordinate. That in turn makes you powerful and virile. You have power over women." As long as men believe this message which is continuously enforced through pornography on women, men will always have power over women. That's what this anti-pornography movement is all about.

It's no accident that Playboy selected you, a nursing student, to be in their magazine. I hope that someday you take the time to research back issues of Playboy and the pornography industry in general. You will find that they have always used nurses, college students, and women in the professions that push the sexual objectification and degradation of women. You might also research the sexual harassment of women on campuses, the serial rapes, assaults, and murders of women. You will unfortunately find your image in the "objects" of these crimes. There is a connection.

My aim in the anti-pornography movement is to expose what men in this society do to women through pornography. Allison, I am not fighting against your freedom to express yourself. I am fighting for our lives. Yours and mine.

Constance Atteridge is a UMass student

The* Collegian accepts letters and columns from the UMass community and Five-College area. Submissions automatically become the property of the Collegian *and are subject to editing for space, grammar, and clarity. Hand written submissions will not be published, so type them!!! Letters can be sent or dropped off at 113 Campus Center, UMass.

An internship that taught about life and the world

I spent this past fall on an internship at an arms control lobby group called Freeze Voter in Washington, D.C. As a senior BDIC major concentrating in International Relations, I thought it best to dip my feet into "the D.C. political pool" before I graduated. During my vigorous plan-making at the University Internship office, I never quite anticipated the remarkable realizations I had sentenced myself to struggle with for the next four months.

I ended up moving into a poor, high crime, drug permeated neighborhood across the street from a low-income housing project. For the first time in my life I was separtated from white, middle-class, suburban surroundings for an extended period of time. Most of the friends I made were folks who worked in a neighborhood soup kitchen, or at the local church. A bleeding-heart from liberal Massachusetts, my political views sensibilities violently inflicted with the reality of homelessness and poverty. In November, I was sent up to New Jersey to work on the Dukakis/Bentsen campaign and was afforded the educational opportunity of riding through Newark one of the most depressed, poverty-striken cities in the Union. Never before had I thought of trying to imagine myself in the position of a person trapped within the hopeless and debasing cycle of poverty.

Kimberly Betts

My point here is that I never would have experienced these things within the very secure and isolated boundaries of this university. Not assuming one's personal background, it is very difficult to recognize certain realities in our relatively affluent, college-oriented Amherst. An internship is an ideal way of breaking out of the cocoon for a short time; it is still within the insulation of UMass, but it is a step closer for those of us who choose to struggle in the real world for the rest of our lives.

I was lucky, I was able to get up and leave the desperation of the neighborhood I lived in the South East part of Washington, D.C. It was easy for me, I always knew I could leave; but the rest of those people are still there. By the rest, I mean those who haven't been murdered, or who haven't committed suicide in one way or another. They are still trapped. Although I still cannot know they feel, I am a hell of a lot closer than than I would be had I not spent time in their environment. Now I shall graduate with an insight and understanding that I never would have obtained had I confined my college career to traditional academics.

Kimberly J. Betts is a UMass student

This Friday OPENING at 9:30 p.m.

It's New

Murray D's

Jam with Rock-A-Disc on the highest dance floor in the Valley!

Hot Popcorn $1.00

Draft Beer $1.00

Murray D's CARE Baskets
Choice of Roast Beef, Ham, or Turkey Sandwich with French Fries and a Pickle ...
only $2.50

This Friday & Every Friday from 9:30 pm-12 am
—Eleventh Floor—
Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center

Proper ID Required

SUN

Is readin', writin' and 'rithmatic driving you

Crazee ?

FUN

SPRING

BREAK

'89

When U break, break with style;
do it with Vandy and Mike!

Utah $450 Bermuda $439
Killington $259 Barbados $525

New lodging now available

PARTY

UMASS SKI CLUB

SKI

ARTS & LIVING

Get addicted at Pearl Street, Hugo at Blue Wall

By JODY GABIN
Collegian Correspondent

This evening, start your week off with a bit of local talent, at the Iron Horse's monthly PVFS open stage. Those wishing to participate should show-up at 7:30 p.m. Be aware, however, that each set should run no more than 15 minutes; and should fall into the "folk or acoustic" category.

LIVEWIRE

Also this evening, Sheehan's Cafe welcomes local R&B band, The Bowery, while Barbecue Bob and the Aces play at Twister's Tavern in Amherst.

Tomorrow night, Pearl Street hosts current college-chart toppers Jane's Addiction, for an 8 p.m. all-ages show. Opening for the band will be Grave Goods; and following the show, The Bags will be appearing downstairs at the Universal Joint, for those 21 and over.

At the Iron Horse tomorrow, Irish singer/songwriters Andy Stewart and Manus Linny, will be performing their brand of Celtic folk for two shows at 7 and 10 p.m.; and Sheehan's will be hosting locals Band of Crows.

Over at Katina's, New Horizon will be appearing for a benefit for Jamaican Hurricane Relief.

At Twister's tommorrow, The Emery Smith Jazz Trio will play a dinner show, and at 9 p.m. R&B band The Poor Boys take the stage.

Also Friday, March 3rd, Pearl Street welcomes reggae stars, Toots and the Maytals. Showtime is 8 p.m. sharp, and following the Maytals will be local reggae favorites, New Horizon, downstairs at the Universal Joint.

Also Friday, the Iron Horse sponsors a Jamaican Hurricane Relief benefit with jazz artist, Archie Shepp at 8:30 p.m.

At Sheehan's, the percussion-oriented Ululators (hailing from Martha's Vineyard), will be appearing; and Farrenheit return once again to Katina's.

On Saturday, March 4th, head over to Smith College's John M. Greene Hall, for Jane Sapp and the Children of Selma (curtain - 7 p.m.); or over at UMass' Blue Wall Cafe, UPC hosts the acclaimed New York avante garde combo Hugo Largo, along with Galaxie 500. The show starts at 8 p.m.

Saturday at the Iron Horse, Jorma Kaukonen plays two shows at 7 and 10 p.m.; Boston-bred Treat Her Right appear at Sheehan's; NRBQ play Katina's; and its comedy night again from 8-10 at the Universal Joint, with the band Shy Five following.

At Twister's Saturday, Soul Jones Crunch plays at 9 p.m.

Also on Saturday, the recently opened all-ages club Gothic Street in Northampton, hosts The Demilios. Doors open at 8:30.

On Sunday, the 5th of March, political singer/songwriter Bruce Cockburn plays a benefit for the Physicians of Social Responsibility at Smith College's John M. Greene Hall. Curtain - 7 p.m.

Also on Sunday, harpist Harvi Griffin will be appearing at the Amherst College campus center; Man O' War and Plastic X appear at Katina's; and Jorma Kaukonen appears at the Iron Horse for two more shows at 7 and 10 p.m.

On Monday, March 6th, take a journey into the depths of the New York City underground, when writer and part-time singer, Jim Carroll, returns to the Iron Horse. Author of the critically-acclaimed Basketball Diaries and Forced Entries (as well as two books of poetry, Living at the Movies and The Book of Nods), Carroll will be reading twice Monday night, at 7 and 10 p.m.

Also Monday night, the 16-piece swing orchestra, The Jeff Holmes Big Band, will be appearing at the Universal Joint.

Finally, on Tuesday the 7th, the Iron Horse welcomes Indian sitar performer, Ashwin Batish for one show at 7 p.m.

photo by Eleanor Gorman

GRAVE GOODS opens for Jayne's Addiction tonight at Pearl Street.

Goods delivered from the Grave

By ERIC GOODMAN
Collegian Correspondent

If you haven't seen local band Grave Goods live, or if you've never heard them at all, you're missing something.

Grave Goods formed in the Spring of 1988. As an upbeat progressive rock band, they are slowly making a name for themselves in the music industry. Their first endeavor was released on Wishingwell Records, entitled "Narrow House"

Recently, the band just completed a full-length L.P. entitled "Elegy", that is full of energy and loaded with talent. They are currently negotiating with various record companies for a contract. The expexted release date is Fall 1989.

Three members of Grave Goods were students at one time or another. The group is composed of Paul Jenkins (lead vocals, guitar) formerly of Barking Spider U.K., Steve Wardlaw (lead guitar) a local studio musician, F.J. Ventre (bass) formerly of The Remnants and Colin Sears (drums) formerly of the well known D.C. band Dag Nasty.

Grave Goods open's the Jayne's Addiction show tonight at Pearl Street in Northampton. This all ages show begins at 8 p.m. sharp.

AMHERST RACQUET & FITNESS CENTER

3-months' membership $64
Save $26!

Free aerobics, including nightly aerobics with licensed, expert, courteous nautilus and aerobic instructors.

New state of the art aerobics floor:
The Sentinal Floor - "very best aerobic mat on the market today" American Aerobic Assoc.

Monday through Friday
Open 7 a.m. - 10 p.m.
Sat. & Sun.
7 a.m. - 7 p.m.

549-4545 • Route 116 • Sunderland

BLOW THE WHISTLE ON DATE RAPE

Speak Out!
March 9, 1989
Noontime — Student Union

Information table 10 a.m. -4 p.m. Student Union (outside Munchies)

Date rape informal discussions 1:30 and 3 p.m. Campus Center Rm 911

Facilitated by Counselor and Educator Advocates - Every Women's Center

Sponsored by Student Affairs Sexual Assault Education Committee

AIDS:

Support Group for Family, Friends and Lovers of people with AIDS

A support group is being sponsored by University Health Services to assist people who are coping with the fact that a family member, lover, or a friend has AIDS.

The first meeting will be on March 9, Thursday, 5:30-7:30 pm

For more information regarding the make-up of the group and the meeting place, please call the Health Education Office on Wednesdays and Thursdays and ask for Debbie (549-2671, ext. 181).
Confidentiality is assured.

photo courtesy of Warner Bros.

JAYNE'S ADDICTION . . . fashion victims treading a delicate line between Culture Club and Krokus, bring their "addictive" stage show to Pearl Street tonight for a kiddie/all ages show at 8 p.m. - 21 and over welcome.

The Best Way Off Campus

Peter Pan

Hourly Express Service, Daily to
New York City & Boston

Serving: Springfield • Worcester • Newton • Hartford • Albany

Bradley & Logan Airports

Service Throughout New England with Connecting Service Nationwide

Student Fares from Amherst to Boston $20.95 round-trip New York City $34.95 round-trip

The People Professionals

Tickets and Information available at: U-Mass Hotel Tel #1 or #2 545-2000 549-6000 | Amherst Center Bus Terminal 256-0431 | Hampshire College Book Store 549-4600 | Price Watch Pharmacy So. Hadley 533-7115 | Northampton Bus Terminal Roundhouse Pl. 586-1030

PLEASE NOTE:

Course Books Are Now Being Returned To Publishers. Get Them Before It's Too Late.

Open till 8 p.m. Wed., Thurs. & Fri.
Sundays 12-5 p.m.

The Full Service Bookstore

Jeffery Amherst Bookshop

55 South Pleasant Street Amherst Massachusetts 01002 256 3381

UPC PRESENTS

HUGO LARGO

SATURDAY MARCH 4

8:00 IN THE BLUEWALL CAFE UMASS

$6 UMASS STUDENT
$7 GENERAL PUBLIC

TICKETS ON SALE AT TIX UNLIMITED, FOR THE RECORD-FACES, & MAIN ST. RECORDS-NORTHAMPTON

STUDENT AFFAIRS INFORMATION SERVICES

IDB/TIPS

Call 545-1540 for TIPS about Student Organizations and Services.
Ask for these tapes by number:

2801	Campus Mail
2349	The Collegian
2450	Craft Shop
7002	Computer Services (New)
2700	Dyslexic Student Organization
2680	Hillel
2695	Newman Center
2670	Notary Services
2690	People's Gay Alliance
1977	SGA Communications
1607	Writing Center and Workshops

see page 17 of the Student Telephone Directory for a complete listing of TIPS tapes

IF YOU HAVE FURTHER QUESTIONS CALL IDB (545-1555)
Information Data Bank (IDB)
Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

Elvis drives Spike into the face of Fascism

By LINDA WOODS
Collegian Correspondent

Spike
Elvis Costello
Warner Bros.

Elvis Costello's latest album Spike is nothing less than pure artistry. It is the culmination of an interrogative and diverse twelve year career. Throughout this career, fans have come to expect perfection from Elvis.

Elvis emerged on the music scene in the late 70's (My Aim is True) and was regarded as spokesman for the more conservative side of the punk movement. But perhaps that was simply the role his publicists at CBS created for him. Because, in the years following Aim, Costello stayed true to his creative impulses, took chances and dashed any expectations critics had of him. Proof of this are albums like Almost Blue-consisting solely of country and western standards, Get Happy-sock hop tunes that leave a listener tasting saccharine and Trust-an album marked by eerie lyrics and unique recording techniques.

More than ten albums later, Elvis reached a point in his life where he was ready for some changes. He and his wife Cait O'Riordan (of The Pogues) left England, a country which Elvis has great animosity for, and moved to a home outside of Dublin. He left CBS Records and signed with Warner Bros. He sought out a new group of musicians and began songwriting with Paul McCartney. From these modifications, Spike emerges gleaming flawlessly.

The album took four months to record and includes the talents of McCartney, Chrissie Hynde, The Dirty Dozen Brass Band, Cait O'Riordan, Allen Toussaint, Roger McGuinn, Marc Ribot, Donal Lunny, Benmont Tench, Steve Wickham, Mitchell Froom and of course T-Bone Burnett.

Elvis has grown up. He is very comfortable with himself and his music. Spike reflects this. He has spent the past twelve years analyzing himself. On Spike he turns the mirror out to the world. He sings about hwhat he sees, such as people robbing coal trains in South Wales, ("Coal Train Robberies"), a young girl in an airport who seemingly has gum stuck in her ear ("Chewing Gum"), an old woman he remembers from his childhood ("Miss Macbeth") and his grandmother's impaired state of mind ("Veronica").

The vocals on Spike also reflect a more mature Costello. He isn't screaming anymore. His singing is more poppy and his words are ringing clear, a style which is evident on "Pads, Paws and Claws". With a rockabilly guitar line, Elvis spins the yarn of a drunkard who doesn't appreciate his good fortune.

In contrast, the tunes, "Any Kings Shilling" and "Tramp the Dirt Down", a bitter address to British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, seem to draw their roots from the Irish folk tradition. The effect of a harp solo in "Any King's Shilling" enhances the antiquity of the story he is telling.

Spike is representative of Elvis' musical career: varied and daring, always prolific. At a time when a sixteen-year-old girl can top the charts singing about her callow love problems, Elvis is still out there, staying true to himself while challenging his listener both intellectually and emotionally.

Tales from the Bookbinder

By RICHARD BOUCHER
Collegian Correspondent

About 70 people got a humorous look into memories of lesbian life and love, when they came to hear Amy Hoffman read from a novel in the works yesterday in the Campus Center.

Hoffman, a graduate student in the Master of Fine Arts program at the University of Massachusetts and a teacher assistant for the Introduction to Women's Studies program, spoke at the weekly Brown Bag lunch series, sponsored by the Women's Studies department.

Following announcements, Hoffman read the first two chapters of her novel, which is her thesis for her master's degree, tentatively titled, Over the Rainbow.

The first chapter, "The Story of Diana", is about a writer for a gay newspaper, "Daughters of Susan B." The writer, Sarah Bookbinder, finds herself falling in love with a transient but beautiful woman named Diana.

Bookbinder has doubts about her own sexuality, while at the same time falling in love with the prospect of being a lesbian.

The novel traces her adventures with companions in chapter two as she "comes out", reveals her homosexual preference, to her slightly conservative Jewish parents.

Also in the second chapter, she overcomes her heartbreak when she finds Diana not loving her as much as she had thought.

Hoffman writes in a narrative, remembering style, with frequent humorous interjections.

The book was not exclusively lesbian humor. Hoffman alludes to being bewildered by different cultures, such as the nature camps of the late 1970s.

Her book gave a sense that there were autobiographical elements in the story, especially since Hoffman once wrote for the Boston Gay Weekly, and as a final note it was good to hear about a different lifestyle from a different perspective than that of the heterosexual, with the more jarring elements softened by the humor.

It's Busch Weekend at TIME OUT

Busch Pitchers $3.60
Best price in town!

T-shirts & Prizes

Lunches served daily

You deserve some time out

37 N. Pleasant St • Mass ID required

Pearl Street NORTHAMPTON, MA 10 PEARL ST 413 584 7771

UNIVERSAL JOINT
and the IRON HORSE presents

THURSDAY, MARCH 2
ALL-AGES SHOW

JANE'S ADDICTION
plus GRAVE GOODS

Doors open at 7:00 p.m.; show at 8:00 sharp. Advance tickets $10 with $2.00 surcharge at door for under 21's.

Afterwards downstairs
THE BAGS

FRIDAY, MARCH 3

TOOTS AND THE MAYTALS

Doors open 7:00 p.m.; show at 8:00 sharp. Advance tickets $12.50. Must be 21.

Afterwards downstairs
NEW HORIZON
Tickets available at "For the Record" in Amherst & "Country Comfort" in N'Hamp.

4th SHY FIVE after comedy at 10:00
6th JEFF HOLMES BIG BAND
9th BARRENCE WHITFIELD and the Savages
10th BIG BANG THEORY
11th THE TOASTERS

Q.T.B.

(Quitting Time Buffet)

Mon-Fri
4-7

FitzWilly's restaurant bar

23 Main St. • Northampton 584-8666

Introducing the

POT BELLY DELI

ROUTE 9 • HADLEY • 584-1603

50¢ off Mug
Offer expires 3/9/89

Come in and try our delicious subs! While you're here buy our 32 oz. refill mug for just $1.95

(99¢ Refills thereafter)

Good Forever

Lunch Time, Dinner Time, Any Time...

NOW CARRYING COMICS

Main St RECORDS

USED

Records, Cassettes, and Compact Discs
JUST IN!
Hundreds of used folk albums

Monday-Wednesday 9:30-6:00 | Thursday-Saturday 9:30-9:00 | Sunday 12:00-5:00

213 Main Street, Northampton, Massachusetts 586-5726

Barros

continued on page 5

Carver police officer John Donahoe said police would also prohibited from telling any voter who called whether the man on the ballot was indeed the same man who had been sentenced for the rapes two years earlier.

"There's about 1,400 Barroses in town," Donahoe said. "As far as I understand the law, they just couldn't say (if the rapist was running)."

The CORI law was designed to protect the privacy of former criminals so they might re-enter society without the stigma of being ex-convicts. Privacy advocates have argued that without such protections even those who have paid their debt to society suffer life-long discrimination.

But others say the law denies the public the right to know what becomes of criminals even before they are rehabilitated, and Gov. Michael S. Dukakis has filed legislation to allow more public access to the records.

The current law allows only certain categories of people, including law enforcement officials and banks, to have access to criminal records. Others, including day care centers who wish to screen their employees, must apply to a special state board, which weighs the public's need to know against the rights of the criminal, according to Stanley E. Adelman, the attorney who oversaw the drafting of the governor's CORI reform bill.

Those who do get access to the records are forbidden to tell anyone else what they contain. violators are subject to a $5,000 fine or a year in jail, or both.

In practice, Carver's mayor would prbably be denied access to Barros' records, Adelman said. The police chief could get them, but would be barred from telling the town selectman that a candidate for town office was a convicted felon.

The governor's proposed bill would allow anyone to view a criminal's records from the time of sentencing until the criminal completed parole or probation, and for a one- to two-year period of good behavior thereafter, Adelman said.

Police have name of amnesiac

WESTFIELD (AP) — Police say they have learned his name, but little else about a man who abruptly moved on after being treated for amnesia at a local hospital for 25 days.

Lt. Michael Avonti said Wednesday that investigators determined that the man was a former British citizen named Peter Ian Rouse, who came to the United States about 16 years ago.

"We are satisfied of his identity, but his whereabouts during that time are still unknown," Avonti said.

Rouse was admitted to Noble Hospital apparently suffering from total loss of memory on Christmas Eve after being found wandering along a road in Huntington.

Following his release from the hospital on Jan. 17, Rouse stayed at the home of a man he had befriended, until he abruptly left on Friday, Avonti said. He declined to reveal the name of the man with whom rouse had stayed.

"He left as quickly as he came without taking his things and with no explanation to the people he was staying with except to tell them that he planned to take a walk around Westfield and say one last goodbye to the town," Avonti said.

Avonti said that investigators were looking into some materials and correspondence that Rouse left behind, but "we don't think that he was involved in anything criminal."

During his weeks in the city, Rouse was able to regain a bit of his memory, the detective said.

"He did remember part of his mother's name and some of the cities he had been in," Avonti said. "It really helped us out a lot in determining his identity."

Paula Ross, a spokeswoman for Noble Hospital, declined to release the total amount of Rouse's bill, but said it would be between $300 and $350 per night. She said the hospital has borne the cost and would not attempt to seek repayment if Rouse is found.

Thursday Night is Party Night at Mike's!

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Rolling Rock 99 ¢
Kamikazees $1.50

Free hors d'oeuvres every afternoon

☆ Don't forget Friday's Famous Buffet 4-8 pm ☆

the UNIVERSITY PLAYERS present

AUDITIONS

for

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT!

A Musical Extravaganza

March 2 and 3, at 7:30 p.m
in the Campus Center.
Wear hard-soled or tap shoes and dance clothes.
For more information, call 256-0569

SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW HOW TO HANDLE THE BUMPS?

PROVE IT!

At the annual Killington Mogul Challenge on Outer Limits, Saturday, April 1st. Come get an application from the UMass Ski Club, 430 Student Union ($15 application fee)* and join the competition.

OR JUST BE A SPECTATOR, and join us for the Saturday bus trip to Killington.

*Number of applications available are limited, so please hurry to be sure a space is reserved for you.

UMASS SKI CLUB

Get a grip on your future.

Getting your hands on an IBM* Personal System 2* is a good way to start facing your future. Especially when a great student discount saves you money.

The IBM PS 2* can help you organize your notes, write and revise papers, produce high-quality graphics to make all your work look sharper, and more. And there's a good chance that IBM will be the computer you'll work with on the job. The IBM PS 2 can help you get your future under control.

Demonstration on Concourse
MARCH 8 & 9, 10-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

WORLD & NATION

Johnson's coach says sprinter used steroids

TORONTO (AP) disqualified Olympic sprint champion Ben Johnson knowingly took banned steroids and has since 1981, his coach testified Wednesday at a federal inquiry into Canada's greatest sports scandal. The coach, Charlie Francis, said he helped set up a steroid program for Johnson and others.

Asked if he believed Johnson and other runners in his track club had followed through with the program, Francis replied:

"Yes, I believe they had taken them and taken them as directed."

Johnson, 27, has consistently denied that he knowingly took the steroids found in his urine sample after he won the 100-meter dash in Seoul.

Francis said five of his track stars, including Johnson and sprinter Angella Issajenko, used the banned substances. He also suggested-without naming her- that American Florence Griffith Joyner, a triple gold medalist in Seoul, has used the muscle-building drugs.

The other steroid users on his track team, Francis said, were Desai Williams, Tony Sharpe and Molly Killingbeck.

Francis, testifying on the second day of the inquiry, said he began working with Issajenko on a steroid program in 1979 after examining international competition.

"Every parameter indicated I couldn't find a single case where it appeared performance-enhancing drugs were not being used," he said.

Francis said the rate at which records fell would be unimaginable without steroids.

The gold medal Johnson won for the world-record, 9.79 second, 100-meter victory last Sept. 24 was awarded to his rival, American Carl Lewis.

Red Sox hold intrasquad game

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Nick Esasky and Sam Horn hit home runs and rookie Carlos Quintana had three singles yesterday as the Bumbrys beat the Beradinos 6-1 in the Boston Red Sox' only intrasquad game of the training season.

Steve Ellsworth blanked the Beradinos on three hits for three innings before John Trautwein followed with one-hit ball for the next three. Trautwein recorded seven groundouts and retired another batter on a foul pop.

Rob Woodward was the loser, giving up three runs in the second inning. Esasky, acquired from Cincinnati in December, hit the first pitch over the screen in left-center. Rich Gedman singled and Horn hit a towering fly off the screen in left-center for two more runs.

John Leister followed Woodward on the mound and gave up a run on the first of two singles by Ed Romero in the fourth. Mike Greenwell and Esasky each had RBI singles in the fifth.

Tom Bolton pitched the final three innings for the Bumbrys, losing the shutout bid on Jody Reed's sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Veteran Bill Laskey, recently signed to a minor league contract as a free agent, pitched the final three innings fro the Beradinos, allowing just two hits.

AP photo

Sears Merchandising Group Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Michael Bozic wields a pricing gun as he changes prices on merchandise at Chicago Sears store Tuesday.

Sears reopens after price cuts

Sears' 824 stores across the nation began reopening Wednesday after a 42-hour facelift to complete price reductions on 1.5 billion pieces of merchandise.

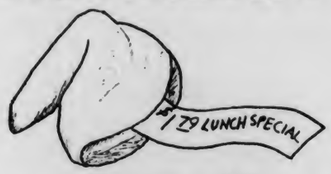
"People are backed up as far as we can see. It's wall-to-wall people," said Bob Dumas, manager of the Sears, Roebuck and Co. store at the Northland Mall in Columbus, Ohio.

"We have Christmas-quantity people, and we have better than Christmas traffic," said Dumas, who estimated more than 1,000 people waited outside for the doors to open.

Workers changed prices Tuesday on everything-including light bulbs, toasters and polished door knobs-as Sears prepared for a new retailing strategy it hopes will win customers.

Employees also had to change signs and displays, take inventory and clean up before the openings, which occurred at noon local time.

SMART COOKIES KNOW...



興旺樓
CHINESE KITCHEN

150 KING ST., NOHO • 586-8220
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 253-2571

The Spoke

Drink of the Week
White and Black Russians
$1.75

Beer of the Month
Foster's Cans
$1.50

35 E. Pleasant St. • Proper ID required!

DELANO'S

Proper Identification A Must
57 NORTH PLEASANT ST • 253-5141

HELD OVER BY POPULAR DEMAND
☆ BEERS OF THE MONTH ☆
once again
MILLER LITE & BUD BOTTLES $1.00
DRINK OF THE WEEK
WHISKY SOUR $1.00
Also featuring Foster's Beer $1.50

NO FAT. NO CHOLESTEROL.

Nothing But Delicious.

BANANARAMA fabulous frozen YOGURT

Try some Nonfat Frozen Yogurt the taste will leave you amazed!

Amherst Boltwood Walk
Northampton Main Street

Vt. woman leaves baby in care of homeless men

NEW YORK (AP)— Police said a 23-year-old Vermont woman was seen smoking crack cocaine on a Manhattan street while her 4-year-old son was left in the care of two homeless men in the Port Authority bus terminal.

Deborah Longueil of Brattleboro, Vt., was charged with endangering the welfare of a minor and abandonment after she showed up at the Midtown South Precinct at 5 p.m. Tuesday and reported her child missing.

Port Authority police had found the boy with the homeless men on the lower level of the bus terminal at 7 p.m. the previous day, and had been searching for the mother ever since.

Before Longueil was booked, she "said she was looking for the kid all night-in hotels, movie theaters and the Port Authority," Port Authority Sgt. Bernard Poggioli, of the youth services unit, told the Daily News.

"But she wasn't looking too hard," Poggioli said. "We have people on the street who say they saw her doing crack... After 26 hours and you're not looking for you kid, I'd say that's abandonment."

The Port Authority police patrol the massive mid-Manhattan terminal, where dozens of homeless people beg and sleep among thousands of commuters and long-distance travelers.

A uniformed officer saw the two men with the child Monday evening and became suspicious, said PA Juvenile Officer Manny Rivera.

The men said the boy's mother had left him with them while she, an alleged prostitute, went out to work, Rivera said.

"They didn't even know her name, or the child's," said Poggioli.

"They called her Sarah."

The two men, John Best, 39, of Yonkers, and Nicholas Villardi, 31, of Teaneck, N.J., were arrested for trespassing. Rivera said the area in which they were found is reserved for people with bus tickets.

Police said they also discovered that Best was wanted on drugs and weapons possession charges here.

The boy was handed over to the Bureau of Child Welfare.

Armando Arrastia, a spokesman for the Port Authority police, said the child's aunt and grandfather, who previously had custody of him, were in New York and planned to go to Family Court today to try to get the boy back.

Poggioli told the News that Longueil was wanted in Vermont on shoplifting charges and once "went through drug rehab."

AP photo

SHOT TO DEATH — An unidentified woman is lifted by two men during lootings in the Caracas neighborhood of San Agustin. The woman was shot in the abdomen and died afterwards while being taken to a hospital, witnesses said. Twenty-five people have died in Caracas and surrounding areas in riots against an economic adjustment plan.

HARVARD
Summer School '89
June 26-August 18

Harvard Summer School offers open enrollment in day and evening courses. The curriculum includes courses that fulfill college degree requirements and programs designed for personal and professional development.

Our international student body has access to Harvard's outstanding libraries, fine museums, well-equipped laboratories, and cultural activities.

We feature a college-level program for secondary school juniors and seniors,* as well as a Dance Center and special programs in Drama, Writing, Ukrainian Studies, and English as a Second Language.

For more information return the coupon below or call (617) 495-2494 (24-hour line). Please allow 3-4 weeks for delivery.

*(Admission required)

☐ YES, please send a 1989 Harvard Summer School CATALOGUE and/or specific information about the following programs:

☐ Secondary School Program ☐ English as a Second Language
☐ Dance Center ☐ Drama ☐ Writing

Name _____
Address _____
City, State, Zip _____

HARVARD UNIVERSITY SUMMER SCHOOL
Dept. 686, 20 Garden Street, Cambridge, MA 02138 USA

LAST CHANCE to apply for the
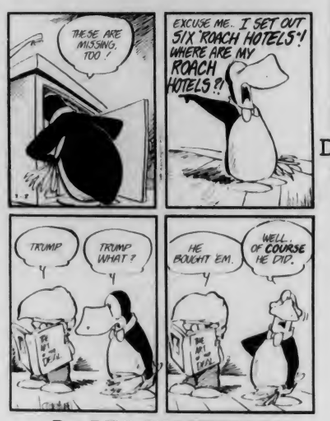
NATIONAL STUDENT EXCHANGE
Deadline extended to Friday, March 3.
Howard Exchange deadline has been extended to March 15
Located in E-26 Machmer

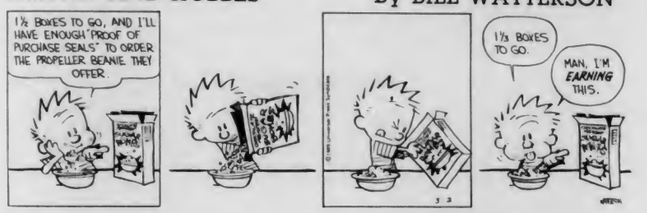
THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

BLOOM COUNTY
By BERKE BREATHED



THESE ARE MISSING, TOO!
EXCUSE ME. I SET OUT SIX ROACH HOTELS. WHERE ARE MY ROACH HOTELS?!
TRUMP.
TRUMP WHAT?
HE BOUGHT EM.
WELL, OF COURSE HE DID.

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON



1½ BOXES TO GO, AND I'LL HAVE ENOUGH PROOF OF PURCHASE SEALS TO ORDER THE PROPELLER BEANIE THEY OFFER.
1⅓ BOXES TO GO.
MAN, I'M EARNING THIS.

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

NIGHTY, NIGHT, PUMPKIN!
OH, I ALMOST FORGOT TO TELL YOU...
TODAY SHE CALLED ME "MAMA"! ISN'T THAT WILD? SHE CALLED THE BABY-SITTER "MAMA"!
ALWAYS A MOMENT EVERY MOTHER TREASURES, ZONK.
WELL, I THOUGHT SO, SO I VIDEO-TAPED IT.

THE BEACON HILL GANG
By AL ARPAD

GOVERNOR DUKAKIS INTERVIEWS CANDIDATES FOR THE BOARD OF REGENTS OF PUBLIC HIGHER EDUCATION:
WHAT DO YOU THINK OF WHEN I SAY PUBLIC HIGHER EDUCATION?
GRRR!
BASH!
NEXT!
I THINK OF EXCELLENCE & COOPERATION WITH BUSINESS & GOVERNMENT.
NEXT!
I THINK OF EXCELLENCE & COOPERATION WITH BUSINESS & GOVERNMENT, OR ELSE.
WHAT A REFRESHING APPROACH, MR. TSONGAS.
ARPAD

YEASTHEAD
By JASON TALERMAN

ETC.

"To learn from (Vietnam), we must reject the military's alibis and the politicians' lullabies. We must struggle with the oyster until we grasp the black pearl: We are what went wrong in Vietnam."

- Loren Baritz

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

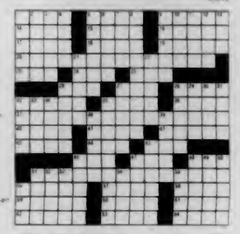
ACROSS
1 As well
5 Gossip habit
9 Lockups
14 Shine
15 Artist Joan
16 Fragrant oil
17 — boy!
18 Blueprint
19 Menu items
20 1981 Academy Award winner
23 Actor Howard
24 Drain org.
25 Course peg
26 Literary monogram
27 US money
28 Commercial capital
32 Progeny
35 Tap dancer Gores
36 Footnote abbr.
37 James Baldwin opus, 1963
40 Joseph's pride
41 Sea birds
42 Them: author
43 Columnist John
44 Grant opponent
45 Map abbreviations
46 Maureen's daughter
47 Summer in Monaco
48 Harem room
51 Die Walkure highlight
56 Beer garden quaff
57 Bono or Nicholas
58 Isolated rock
59 Actress Worth
60 Otherwise
61 Feature of 62 Across
62 Charger
63 Roger of the stage
64 War god

DOWN
1 Way to be taken
2 River of forgetfulness
3 Meohistophileles
4 General Bradley
5 Levy
6 Jousts
7 Periods
8 Chorus rejects
9 Ballerina Susan
10 Yours, in Tours
11 Take — leave it
12 Take on cargo
13 Campus VIPs
21 Japanese immigrant
22 Justice Frankfurter
26 Medford, Mass. campus
27 Death Be Not Proud poet
28 Hayworth and Moreno
29 Newspaper notice
30 Marceau's forte
31 Summer refreshers
32 "Trio Sesame Tree" —
33 Nursery-rhyme dwelling
34 Red and Black
35 Following this
38 Keepsake
39 — pole
45 Volume units
46 Stuck in a bog
47 Use whiteout
48 "Sesame Street" grouch
49 Actress Keaton
50 Ranch components
51 Trading center
52 1958 Pulitzer novelist
53 Actor Hackman
54 Weight: e.g.
55 West Point monogram
56 Fleur de —

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

D	A	T	A		P	O	T	A		M	E	N
E	V	E	L		E	W	E	R		T	E	P	E	E
C	E	N	T	I	P	E	D	E		O	N	E	A	L
O	C	E	A	N	I	C		S	C	I	E	N	T	S
		R	E	A	M		A	R	I	C	A
F	O	R		P	T		O	O		R	E	L	A	T	E
A	D	E	P	T		P	R	O	T	O		I	D	E	A
C	O	L	E		P	A	N	E	L		S	O	T	S
E	R	I	N		T	I	E		A		T	R	E	E
T	E	S	T		T	I	M	E		P	A	R	T	S
		A	C	T		N	E	O	N
S	E	R	G	E	A	N	T		C	H	O	P	P	Y
A	V	I	L	I	O	N		T	E	N	T	A	C	L	E
M	I	L	N	E		R	E	N	O		K	I	T	E
L	E	S	S		O	M	E	R		S	E	E	R

3/2/89



1989 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 3/2/89

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not pursue too many interests right now. Best results will come from focusing on one thing at a time. Work with a passion! You can bring a project in on time and under budget.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You know exactly where you are going and will not be taken in easily. Beware of attractive lures. Luxury purchases are best postponed. Wait until you have better financing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your new ideas are exciting. Do not let a jealous individual throw cold water on them. Changes in a relationship bring quick dividends. Be prepared to handle family upsets. Emphasize your objectivity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are in an affectionate mood. Get some expert advice before making an important move. Substantial financial backing could become available, allowing you to advance a cherished personal goal. Choose partners with care.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You start the day in a bouncy, energized mood. Make headway while others are asleep at the switch. Put your energy and enthusiasm to the best possible use. Your leadership qualities command respect.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Obtaining everyone's approval is impossible. Loosen your grip on the family purse strings and talk things over. A child will respond to new responsibilities better than to lectures-so will mate. Be tactful.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22) Creative endeavors are your best bet for raising extra cash. Travel can help cement a valuable relationship. Correspondence can be misleading. Read between the lines to avoid making a costly mistake.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21) You find yourself front and center at work today. Beware of someone who could be setting you up. Steer clear of a friend's shady financial scheme. Get receipts together and complete tax forms.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21) If you feel a relationship slipping away, sit down and put your cards on the table. Get partner to do the same. Your ambition rises to the surface. Find constructive ways to satisfy it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19) Resist the temptation to skip meals or sleep. You need to build up your strength. Consider buying property near the water. It is easier to turn a profit now. Investigate prospective partners.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You are in a more conservative mood and easier to deal with. Seize on opportunity to be part of an ambitious project. Someone will back you when the right time comes.

PISCES (Feb. 18-March 20) Secondary duties could become a top priority in your plan. Hang on to procedures that work well, but be open to new ideas. Do not dismiss high-tech advances out of hand.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Pizza Tuna a la king	Roast top round of beef Vegetable chow mein
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Pizza Potpourri	Ratatouille Vegetable chow mein

Boggs

continued from page 24

Margo could have pitched her sordid tale to some accredited journal, but instead took the wad of cash promised her by Bob Guccione and told all, every dirty detail. And if you think that's bad, next month Margo gets to reveal her unclad, putrid self to everyone, so America's eyes can see what a horrid mistake Boggs made.

Well, Margo's gotten her wish, a full-blown media fiasco that has defamed Boggs' character, as well as showered her with what she desires most, riches and fame.

The Sox could make this awful headache go away by shipping Boggs out, although if they trade he and his ego to Houston for Bob Knepper, they could have a whole new tangle between the chauvinistic Knepper and every women's lib group in New England.

But trading Boggs won't be sufficient. Nothing will at this point. America's favorite couple has succeeded in putting another thick black mark on the game.

women's hoop

continued from page 24

powerhouse like Rutgers.

"Rutgers is an outstanding ballclub. Player for player they are better athletes than we are," Hewelt said.

However, the ever-optimistic Hewelt says her team is not conceding a thing, and will do everything possible to get the win.

"We have to make some specific adjustments in our approach. We can't play them straight up, but it's a question if we can execute," Hewelt said.

And it appears that the best way to stop a high-powered offense is to s-t-a-l-l. Upperclassmen with good memories may recall a sleepfest of a men's game at the Cage two years ago, when St. Bonaventure perfected the patented Dean Smith four-corner offense and lulled UMass into a 43-39 upset.

Hoop-la: The way things stand right now, UMass is eighth in the conference. Unless it wins both remaining games and George Washington loses its last two (hosting Duquesne and West Virginia), it will be playing at the Cage in the first round of the A-10 tourney Monday night at 7:30.

Assuming the Minutewomen stay in their present eighth slot, they will host St. Bonanventure, a team to which they lost at the Cage two weeks ago. Were they to jump ahead of Duquesne to seventh, it will be the WRams of Rhode Island in town.

The Wilbor Watch: Senior forward Beth Wilbor has 969 career points heading into tonight's action. With the two regular season games and at least one tourney clash, the Flemington, NJ native will need to average just over 10 points a game (31 in three games) to reach the 1,000-point plateau. She is currently fourth on the all-time UMass scoring list.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

Trish Riley and the Minutewomen face Rutgers tonight at the Cage.

hoops

continued from page 24

dribbled down the right side and fired a pass to Henry Smith (25 points) under the basket. Without looking, Smith passed behind his back to Miller, who slammed the ball home to make it 35-24.

But the play fired the Minutemen up as well. UMass responded with a 9-0 run over the next two minutes to close to 35-33, before St. Joe's stretched it back to 43-38 at halftime.

El Greco Pizza
Isle of MYKONOS
Greek Restaurant
Whole Wheat Pizza
Our dough is made fresh daily on the premises
Authentic Greek Food
253-9239 256-4196
"Taste a bit of Athens right here in Amherst"
460 West St., S. Amherst
Monday-Saturday 11am-10pm
Sunday 4-10pm
Close to Brittany Manor, Southwood, & Riverglade
1 Mile south on Rt. 116 next to R&P Liquors
Delivery to S. Amherst 7 days a week from 5pm - 1am

R+P LIQUOR STORE
West St., RTE. 116
Amherst 253-9742
Close to Brittany & Riverglade
1 mi so on 116
Bring us your empties

Resume Service
• Quality Copies
• Fine Stationery
• Matching Envelopes
kinko's
the copy center
253-2543

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd.
No. Amherst 549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

IMMIGRATION PROBLEMS?
Law Offices of Henry Dickson
(413) 586-8005
41 Main Street
Florence, MA 01060
2 miles West of Northampton on Rt. 9

GNB
UPSTAIRS
114 MAIN ST.
NORTHAMPTON
586-0259
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
9 E. PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST
549-3507
HANDCRAFTED FUTONS and HARDWOOD FRAMES
FUTON • COVERS • DUVETS • PILLOWS • BLANKETS • QUILTS
The Students Choice
GOOD NIGHT BEDDING
DELIVERY AVAILABLE

GREAT MEXICAN FOOD!
in downtown Amherst
beer & wine served
TACO VILLA
Offering Quality Mexican Foods
NORTHAMPTON: 21 CENTER ST 584-0673 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine
AMHERST: 41 BOLTWOOD WALK 256 8217 Beer & Wine Served
SPRINGFIELD: 749 SUMNER AVE 788 0919 Bring Your Own Beer & Wine

NEWSDEALER & STATIONER
A. J. Hastings
INC.
253-2840
OFFICE SUPPLIES
STATIONERY
GREETING CARDS
UNIVERSITY SUPPLIES
45 SOUTH PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST

LOSE THE WINTER BLUES !
JAM TO THE CARRIBEAN SOUNDS OF:
ORQUESTA CHEVERE
and
STEEL WAVE
FRI., MARCH 3 9 p.m.
HAMPDEN THEATER
ADMISSION $5/3 STUDENTS
Hampden Theatre is located in the Southwest Residential Area at the top of the hill between the University of Massachusetts and Hampshire College. Directions: From Route 9 in Hadley take the Towering Oaks exit to the University of Massachusetts. Alongside it is a Residential Hall Program and is sponsored by the University Arts Council.
FLIMDOOZY

Sox meeting aims to quell turmoil

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — The turmoil-engulfed Boston Red Sox took gripes to management yesterday in a meeting designed to open a line of communication between players and the front office.

"It was brought on by all the stuff said during the off-season," player representative Rich Gedman said.

Gedman, a veteran catcher, and pitching ace Roger Clemens met behind closed doors for one hour with Red Sox co-owner Haywood Sullivan, General Manager Lou Gorman, public relations director Dick Bresciani and travelling secretary Jack Rogers.

Clemens, a two-time Cy Young Award winner with 62 victories the last three years, is awaiting a vote on his nomination as assistant player rep.

However, the big right-hander sharply criticized the club in a Boston television interview in December, complaining about ballpark seating for families, the players' wives' waiting room, parking, the lack of clubhouse phones and other things.

Sullivan said a wide variety of matters were discussed, but he declined to name them.

Bresciani said that Clemens' refusal to talk to the media in Florida since he signed a three-year contract worth $7.5 million also was discussed briefly.

"Roger said he is sticking to his decision not to talk during spring training," Bresciani said. "However he said that once the season starts he will talk after games he pitches."

"It was a very harmonious meeting," Sullivan said. "There was no shouting, no demands. It was more or less a discussion. They made some excellent points."

"There are some things we can do, some things we'll try to do and some things we can't do."

"It was a good exchange of ideas and we'll have another meeting before we leave Winter Haven. We feel that everybody will be better off if we talk things out instead of somebody popping off publicly."

"I think it was a very productive meeting," Gedman said. "We just talked over a lot of things. They said they would see what they can do on many of the issues we brought up.

"We agreed to meet again down here before the club goes north and then hold more meetings during the season. We feel it's a good idea."

"We're opening a line of communication. This should enable us to take care of many things internally."

Clemens' off-season gripes have only been part of the Red Sox' problems since they lost four games in a row to Oakland in the playoffs last October.

Wade Boggs' highly publicized affair with Margo Adams, detailed in her lawsuit and in Penthouse magazine, has topped the Boston soap opera and left many players edgy in the clubhouse.

Clemens, angered by reaction to his rambling statements on television, has refused to talk in training camp. And controversial pitcher Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd shouted obscenities at writers the other day after his criticism of Boggs was reported.

In an interview on Monday, Sullivan warned the players to clean up their act before the end of spring training or face drastic action, including a trade.

AP photo

Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens ironed out some of his differences with the team yesterday in Winter Haven, Fla.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE - 4C 113 MON - THURS 8:30 A.M. TO 5:00 P.M. FRI 8:30 A.M. TO 4:00 P.M. • DEADLINE 3 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION • CASH IN ADVANCE 20 WORDS OR LESS FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

BOARD OF GOVERNORS Elections taking place March 14 Nomination Papers available 817 Campus Center. Due March 9 Join us in working toward a better union

SHABBAT SERVICES ARE HELD every Friday Night at 8:00pm and Saturday Morning at 10:00am at Chabad House 549-4094

A CHRISTIAN PERSPECTIVE on Foreign Policy. Tonight, Campus Center, room number listed for Maranatha Ministries. Meeting starts at 7:30pm. Refreshments.

THE UNIVERSITY PLAYERS will hold auditions for 'That's Entertainment! A Musical Extravaganza' tonight at 7:30pm in CC room 163

PSYCHOLOGY MAJORS: Learn about summer and fall internship opportunities on Thursday March 2nd 4pm to 5pm Tobin 304

UMASS - UJAZZ Auditions Thursday March 2nd Hampden Dance Room at 5:00 It's a fun 1-credit course. Join us or call Susan 6-8109 or Lisa 6-1275.

PEOPLE TO PLAY strategy games/avis and allies. Call Kevin 584-7376

PHI MU DELTA OPEN RUSH All university men welcome Tues Feb 28 to Thurs Mar 2 from 7-9 or call 256-8028

NEW CRAFT WORKSHOPS marbeling paper, airbrush, sispainting & jewelry. Sign up now!

LEARN JEWELRY & SILKSCREEN 4 workshops meeting once a week at Student Union Craft Center

ANNOUNCING THE FINANCE AND INVESTMENT CLUB'S inaugural meeting for the 1989 teaturing elections and social events planning. New members graciously welcomed. Thursday 8:30-7:30pm SOM lobby. Don't let it be another extracurricullarless semester.

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUDIO

MARANTZ SPEAKERS 80 watts 6 mos old 150 or BO Cal for more info 546-6524 Leave message

AUTO FOR SALE

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CAL BEGS

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO MY DEAR FRIEND Carolyn Begley?! Roses are red, violets are blue, I am Bueno and so are you. Have a great brunch with Tom Joe and Ruth Justine! Love, Beth

CHILD CARE

FAMILY DAY OPENINGS: Warm, happy environment 665-4501

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances 256-8526.

FOR RENT

IN SUNDERLAND, tree bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Secure and apartment for August and receive August rent free. For more details call 665-3850 Sign up early

FOR SALE

SKI BOOTS MEN'S SIZE 9 Salamon SX91E $75 Call Shawn 549-6496.

ANSWER MACHINE EX CONDITION $40 and Sony 5" TV Call 546-5354

SI SWIMSUIT VIDEO $15 and Sony Walkman $25 546-5354

DISHES COMPLETE SET OF SIX $30 Dave aft 5 253-7454

EXPANDED MEMORY CHIPS - brand new, never used, only $9 /chip 3 sets for sale Dave aft 5 253-7454

H.P. PLOTTER PENS - paper and transparencies, all colors, 35 pens $35 for all Dave aft 5 253-7454.

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES Amherst two year old income property, positive cash flow (gross rental income 18,000/yr), live rent free and make spending money too! Call Dave 253-9949

TOURBIKE - hand made Panasonic "Tour De" over $500 will sell for $200 "riden under 20 times" 546-1402

2 RNOTRIP TCKS LOGAN/MIAMI Leaves 3/17 return 3/25 $300 00 each 665-7836 or 665-4257

APPLE IIc COMPUTER, imagewriter, personal modem 1200, monitor, stra drive, joystics, mouse, software $650 Call John 256-0863 message

APPLE MACINTOSH 512K memory Apple image-Writer printer security system $1000 549-2781 Anne

MACINTOSH PLUS w/40MB Hard disk and turbo mouse $1800 or B/O Call 549-4135

TWIN MATTRESS W/BOX SPRING, some padding very good condition $125 or B/O Call 549-4047 days eves til 9

GUITAR WASHBURN ACCOUSTIC w/case $200 Call 253-7387

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles. Call 256-8369

FOUND

LOST KEYS FOUND on the 18th floor Coolidge Sat night. Call 546-8197.

FOUND A PAIR OF HEAVY RED MITTENS WITH RED FURRY LINING about two weeks ago and just kept forgetting to put in a classified about it. If yours, just call 549-6856 and ask for "M" or leave a message

ENTERTAINMENT

HIRE "ONE EYED JAKE" - A great Rock and Roll band call steve 546-5106 Tom 253-7517

HEIR GEBURTSTAG!

IF YOU SEE JEFF W. Tell him to get well(s) He was more seriously injured in Ping Pong Class T A R A

HELP!!!

IN NEED OF EXPERIENCED Tutor in C Prog/Turbo C Please call ASAP!$$$/card 323-7801

HELP WANTED

BOARD OF GOVERNORS is hiring the following coordinator posetions. 2 assistant office 1 public relations, 1 finance, 1 special projects. Applications available 817 Campus Center

THIS PAST SUMMER 350 College Students took a Management position gaining exceptional business skills. Average summer earnings $10,740. 1-800-927-5579

EASY WORK! EXCELLENT PAY! Assemble products at home. Call for information 504-641-8003 ext 598

GRADUATING ENGINEERS: Learn about Fire Protection Engineering, a high paying field with more jobs than applicants. Starting salaries range from $35,000 to $45,000. Worcester Polytechnic Institute will be recruiting for graduate students during an information session on March 8, 1989 at 3:30pm and 7:00pm in Room 220 of the Career Center (Fraternity and Sorority Park on the Orchard Hill bus line). Fellowships and internships available.

COUSELORS WANTED. Trim downfitness, co-ed. NYS Campu 100 positions sports, crafts, many others. Camp Shaine, Ferndale NY 12734 914-292-4045

MIKE'S WESTVIEW HIRING - $6/hour Cleaning person to work mornings, 2-3 hours per day, 4 days per week. Call Tom 253-9202

THINK FUNA ND SUN. Clean Water Action is now hiring part-time and training for our full-time campaign positions. Be the first to line up a summer job on the Cape! WE pay $6.50/hr. Call 549-7450

HEY NINETEEN!

JOSH KRANCER- Happy birthday bro! Just think: this is the last B-Day we'll spend in school together. Have fun & don't eat too much cake (I know you won't drink too much.) -Jen

IN SEARCH OF MISS MASSACHUSETTS

I AM IN SEARCH OF A GIRL. A gorgeous blonde I saw over X-Mas break in Mazatlan in a burgandy UMass sweatshirt. First at a dumpy little Italian restaurant the evening of Dec. 25th then the 26th and 27th in front of the Playa Mazatlan, where I was staying. If you are that girl, I'm the semi-blonde guy in the black shorts that could not take his eyes off you but didn't have the nerve to talk to you. Though I did try to get your attention by waving a red beach towel at you from my balcony - pretty smooth huh? I've never seen a girl that has set me back like you or been so infatuated before and would be honored if you would write me back so that I could at least know your name. If you describe your bathing suit then I'll know it's you--Believe me I'll know. I'll even pay for the stamp--Matt Sayre, 2714 College St S.E., Lacey, Washington, 98503

INSTRUCTION

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE Intermediate course Tuesday/Thursday 7-9pm, 3/28-5/4, $115 546-4578

KAREN CHISHOLM

I HEARD DONALD TRUMP will be vacationing in Florida this Spring Break

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands'on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on March 8 from 3:30-4:30 in room 917 Campus Center (545-1995)

LOST

LOST PRESCRIPTION RAY--BAN Wayfarers in or near Hasbrook 2/27 Please call 253-9117

GOLD METAL RIMMED EYEGLASSES in black case Lost on 2/25 Please call 546-9485

NEED CASH!

GET SOME SPRING BREAK money before it's too late!! Sell me your baseball cards Call Todd anytime 549-6361

NEED EXTRA CASH

WE ARE LOOKING FOR MOTIVATED individuals to fill the position of Campus Sales Representative. Earn hourly wage plus commission. 549-2871

LET US PREPARE YOUR 1988 TAX RETURN today - you'll have your refund in a month. Computerized returns professionally prepared for only $10. 549-2871

PERSONALS

WENDY T. OF EMERSON Be careful of things you do when you're drunk! Sincerely, N&K

ISH- Car theft can get you to 5 watch out next time! Javier & Meredith

TO THE PERSON WHO made my dreams come true last Saturday night. There is more where that came from if you are interested

HAPPY BIRTHDAY HOLLYWOOD! Love always, Heath Tobin

WE LOVE YOU LISA GOODMAN! Stay well and happy!

TO MARC, the man who wouldn't dance with me at Ziggy. I'm too shy to call so call me! From Larisa: the woman in blue 6-6020

TO THE WOMAN IN GEOL 103 with long brown hair and a pink Chi-O shirt. You are beautiful. Be mine

TO JOHN FROM PUFFTON/SOMERSET We talked Friday at 2am. I'd love to talk to you again! If you're interested in continuing where we left off call Kelly 8-6632

MATTY HAPPY 21st. I'll take you Uptown tonight and tell you something about girls it'll be real! VAN

BRINKERHOFF- Happy birthday! How late can a person be? The party was a blast even though one of us fell asleep and the other hurt her chin. Thanks Robin, have a great year! Love Bonzie & Port

SIG-EP BROTHERS Thanks for the birds to you. Though I did try to get your attention by waving a red beach towel at you from my balcony - pretty smooth huh? I've never seen a girl that has set me back like you or been so infatuated before and would be honored if you would write me back so that I could at least know your name. If you describe your bathing suit then I'll know it's you--Believe me I'll know. I'll even pay for the stamp--Matt Sayre, 2714 College St S.E., Lacey, Washington, 98503

SIG-EP BROTHERS Thanks for the birds to you. Though I did try to get your attention by waving a red bedspread Buckle up - here we come!!! The pledges

TO THE GIRL WHO TAUGHT ME to fix cigs - janks for the hint - Da Steff

CURIOUS DICK, those 17 years of hell are over! I heal quick

TO THE BEAUTIFUL GIRL who helped me find my keys how about dinner?

BASS MASTER BABY

I hope the catfishing gets better. Lots of love! Billy Bob your Bait boy

KEVIN POWERS- You're an old man! Happy birthday! Can I buy you a shot of wild turkey? Love, Hol

JOHN, HAPPY 5 MONTHS!! It can only go up from here! I love you as much as there are OK's in the universe! LA, AALLONYL Kerryn

HELP! I need psych 355 notes! Call wendy asap 6-6182

PAUL P.- Happy 4 years!! They've been the best of my life! I'll love you always! Love, Kris

SUZANNE NAFTALIN Happy 21st Birthday finally we're legal. Live it up and have a great birthday love Gaile

YO YO YO Girlie Pop! Happy 21st!!! I love you very much

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MOONBABY you made the big 20! Get psyched 1 more year! Love Willard

TO THE GIRL AT THE SOUTHWEST BUS STOP on Monday, let's do lunch sometime. Call the guy on Crutches 6-1084

SENIORS! The Senior Campaign is coming Get ready for our up and coming kick-off bash for "footprints of '89"!

ORLANDO D. Where are U? If you are here, call Heather R 6-6378

"THUMPER" Hey babe. We're stylin' Last weekend was great, but this weekend was the best! Never 4-get. Sat nite jacuzzi, the backwubs, and They're doing it again!" Love Your dumb, ditzy, drunk blonde

JILEE HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Get ready to party this weekend with your toxic waste love the kennedy crew

REMEMBER 99 YELLOW JEEP Friends are everywhere I know who you are Need $400 for deductable or I will prosecute send money to 348 Cance Nor much time left.

ALL UMASS MEN!!

SIGMA PHI EPSILON
Open Rush Feb 27, 28, March 1
If interested, contact John at 549-6440

ROB SKELTON: Trustee!

ATTENTION STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS! EXCELLENT FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES HELPING WITH AN ON-CAMPUS MARKETING PROJECT. CALL IMMEDIATELY. STUART 546-7612. LEAVE A MESSAGE.

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later

RIDE WANTED

TWO PEOPLE LOOKING for a ride to Florida call Kimberly 253-9301

ROOMMATES WANTED

FEMALE WANTED FOR BRANDYWINE apt 180 mo includes Heat 256-8399 Beth

ROOMMATE WANTED to share 2 bedroom apt with 3 guys 253-9206

LINGUISTICS, worked Sunday 2/26. Buy you a beer? Call 549-1660 George

NEW HOME no smoking on bus line $325 inc. 253-7948

LOOKING FOR A RESPONSIBLE NON-SMOKER to share 2bdrm apt $150 negotiable. Call Kaz 549-6846

SUNNY SPACIOUS WOODFLOOR BEDROOM available in furnished apartment in Hadley washer dryer microwave cable television on bus route 15 minutes to UMass 10 minutes to Northampton Carpets right across the street parking available 2254 call evenings + weekends women only please 586-4412

2 NEEDED TO SHARE ROOM IN Townhouse apt beginning fall semester. Contact as soon as possible 546-5025

ROOM AVAILABLE IN HOUSE. 3 min to bus. $225/month + util. Call Peter after 7pm 253-2268.

SERVICES

DIRT CHEAP RESUMES very experienced Laserwriter overnight Counsaling/delivery Lisa 665-8969

"TUTOR"
COINS ECE MATH
"BY EXPERIENCED GRAD 256-8121"

AUTO REPAIRS. very reasonable, experienced mechanic. Work your place or mine. Messages for Mark 665-8467

PROFESSIONAL EDITING. Term papers, Theses, Dissertations. 1-467-3753 after 7pm

VIDEO RESUME TO GET THAT JOB! Immediate professional, personalized service. Appointments. Video Image Productions (413) 863-8035.

SGA ELECTIONS

"NOMINATION SHEETS FOR ANYONE" running for President, Student Trustee and any open senate seats are due back in S.U. 420 at 10:00am Today!!

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE ELECTIONS

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE debates! Come see what the candidates have to say! Thurs March 9th C.C. 101 at 7:00pm. Also broadcast on 91.1 WMUA! Sponsored by SGA Governmental Affairs

SKI TRIPS

TO MOUNT SNOW ON 3/11. $25 for S.W. Residents, $40 Non-S.W. Residents, $45 either with rental. Sign-up in Hampden Student Center, Southwest 3/1 from 5-7, 8:10pm and 3/2 3-5:30pm. Payment to be made in full at this time.

SPRING BREAK- DAYTONA

IT'S NOT TOO LATE to reserve your spot at the Castaway Beach Resort - 7 nights only $139 w/transportation $219. Call Mark 549-2871

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

CAMP YOUNG JUDEA, AMHERST, New Hampshire (resident, co-ed, 1 hr from Boston) is in need of Department Directors and Activity Specialists for this summer in Athletics, Gymnastics, Swim Instruction (WSI) Waterskiing, Sailing, Arts & Crafts, Camp Craft, Israeli Dance, Drama, Israeli Folk Song, Riflery, Tennis, Photography, Office Personnel and Nurses (R.N.) Excellent salaries, paid fringe benefits. Please contact Dr. Charles B. Roiman, Director, 81 Kingsbury Street, Wellesley, MA. 02181 (617)237-9410

SWING DANCE/JITTER BUG CLASSES

Just $7 each or $25 for all four. No partner necessary! Classes meet from 4 - 6pm Sunday, March 5 thru Sunday, March 26 at East Street Dance Studio in Hadley -Just off Rt. 9 between Amherst and Northampton. Instructors: Lars Marshall and Janine Warner. For more info, Call 546-9309. No pre-registration necessary.

TINK

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TRACY LYNN Hope you have a great day I love you Mark

TRAVEL

LEARN SPANISH IN GUATEMALA. Individualized instruction. CASA Box 11264 Milwaukee, WI 53211 (414)372-5570.

ROUND TRIP TICKET TO PHEONIX From March 17-26 a $260 dollar value for $250 or best offer Call Julie 6-6793 anytime after 8

CANCUN $379/QUAD
Call 549-8239

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TYPING

"WORDSMITH" Professional Typing Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck 253-4564

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional accurate. 665-4501

WANTED

BIG 400: Genetics tutor- excellent pay please call Karen 6-9195

APARTMENT WANTED: We want to take over/buy your three bedroom apartment lease, preferably Puffton, call 6-7624, or 6-7673

IF YOU HAVE A LEASE FOR A HOUSE (beg. 6/89 or later) that you would like to surrender to a responsible group of people please call Susan 546-9084. Leave a message-will respond

SPORTS

Minutemen edged by St. Joe's

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — Finally, in the last game of the regular season, Jim McCoy gave some sign that he is a freshman.

McCoy, who has been the top scorer and a leader for the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team all season, last night made two mistakes in the final minutes to help St. Joseph's University to post an 83-81 win over the Minutemen at the St. Joe's Field House.

The game was the regular season finale for both teams, and the Hawks finish at 4-14 in the Atlantic 10 conference and 7-20 overall, while UMass ends up 5-13 in the A-10 and 10-17 overall.

However, the two will meet again Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Palestra in the first round of the Atlantic 10 tournament.

"We were happy to win," St. Joe's head coach Jim Boyle said. "We felt if we kept McCoy quiet, we'd have a good chance."

McCoy scored 13 points, and the Minutemen turned to him in the closing minutes. But with 1:06 left and the score tied 81-81, McCoy brought the ball upcourt, but travelled and turned it over.

The Hawks' Marlon Miller was fouled taking the ball downcourt and made a pair of free throws to provide the winning points.

"I've thought about that situation before, and I've practiced it many times," Miller said, "so I felt pretty comfortable."

After a timeout, the Minutemen got the ball to McCoy, but with four seconds left he was blocked and lost the ball. St. Joe's recovered it and killed the clock.

"McCoy got banged around tonight and he doesn't play well in that kind of game," UMass head coach John Calipari said.

But McCoy's mistakes were just the final ones for UMass.

The Minutemen played a sloppy first half, but slowly climbed back into it in the final 20 minutes. UMass was down 43-38 at halftime, and trailed by nine, 60-51, with 15:05 left, before an 8-0 run pulled them back into it.

McCoy made a spinning jumper and three-point baskets by Rafer Giles (25 points) and Anton Brown (18 points) made it 60-59.

The Hawk lead was 80-76 with 3:10 left, but five straight points by Giles gave UMass an 81-80 lead with 2:16 to go. A free throw by Miller 45 seconds later tied the score and set up the tight finish.

"I was happy with our effort in the second half," Calipari said. "Usually when we're losing on the road, we fold, but that wasn't the case tonight."

In the first half, the dismal shooting performance by the Minutemen was saved only by a two-minute stretch late in the half in which St. Joe's shot even worse. UMass missed plenty of shots in the opening minutes, and the Hawks upped their lead to nine, when a lay-up by Mike Shaak gave them a 31-22 lead with 7:14 left.

Moments later, with 5:26 remaining, St. Joe's made its lead nine again on a play worthy of the highlight films. Brian Leahy

continued on page 22

Hawks, 83-81

Massachusetts (81): John Tate 6-10 4-4 16; Jim McCoy 4-13 5-6 13; John Milum 4-11 3-5 11; Rafer Giles 9-14 4-5 25; Anton Brown 5-8 4-4 16; Michael Byrnes 0-4 0-0 0; Ishmael Butler 0-1 0-0 0; Sean Nelen 0-0 0-0 0; Chris Bailey 0-0 0-0 0. Totals: 29-61 20-24 81

St. Joseph's (83): Henry Smith 10-18 5-7 25; James Owens 2-7 0-0 4; Ron Verregyssen 1-1 1-4 3; Brian Leahy 6-14 3-5 17; Ray Washington 0-3 2-2 2; Marlon Miller 7-15 4-5 18; Craig Amos 4-15 0-0 9; Mike Shaak 2-5 0-0 5; Brian Daly 0-1 0-0 0. Totals: 32-79 15-23 83

Three-point goals: UMass 5-13 (Giles 3-5, Brown 2-4, Byrnes 0-3, McCoy 0-1); St. Joseph's 4-15 (Leahy 2-7, Amos 1-4, Shaak 1-3, Daly 0-1).

Collegian photo by Jason Taterman

Freshman Jim McCoy couldn't come through in the clutch for the Minutemen in their 83-81 loss last night.

Wading through all of the muck

When Abner Doubleday sat down one day in Cooperstown, NY and modified the English game of rounders into what we now know and love as modern-day baseball, he was attempting to create nothing more than an enjoyable recreation for the people of the day.

Through the ages, baseball has curiously combined itself with the pleasures of the bedroom to give a whole new meaning to the words "national pastime."

The latest of these scandals proves that this disease is running rampant, more widespread than anyone would believe.

Jim Clark

Unless you've been stranded in a cave in Uganda for the last few months, you're surely aware of the strange and stormy relationship between Red Sox third baseman Wade Boggs and glamour girl Margo Adams. Boggs used Adams' companionship on the road for four years and allegedly agreed to compensate her for lost wages. Then when he called off the party and didn't pay up, Margo went into a tiff, took him to court, and built up a huge supply of mudballs to sling at everyone.

Now, we can all be relieved to know, out comes the real truth. Adams has taken her story to Penthouse magazine, and this month's issue reeks of the trials and tribulations of accompanying a baseball star on the road for four years and being showered with love, affection and all that fun stuff.

What catches my eye immediately is the part where she claims that she didn't know who Boggs was before she met him and "didn't know anything about the American League or batting champions."

Yeh, sure. This is the same Adams who many ballplayers have claimed to have serious relationships with. The same Adams who, it was just discovered, had a standing partnership with Mr. Clean himself, Steve Garvey.

Baseball has a term for this breed — groupies. Jim Bouton talked about them in his book, Ball Four. The immortal and outspoken Bill Lee described them in his book, The Wrong Stuff, as a "nation-wide chain, just like McDonald's." Jay Johnstone said in his book Over the Edge that they would hang around the bullpen area looking to pick up the players, and would often throw him their bras and panties to be autographed.

If this is the type of carousing behavior that young, unwed ballplayers want to engage in, that's fine. But it seems that Wade vs. Margo was in knee-deep since day one, when Margo tried to pick the Chicken Man up at a restaurant in Anaheim, fully aware that he was wearing a wedding ring.

Now if that isn't sleazy, I don't know what is. Even slimier was Wade's agreeing to go with her. Thus was born what has probably become the most disgusting sports sideshow in history.

On it went until last spring when Boggs, who claimed to have a sexual addiction, came to what little sense he had and dumped her.

Upset that Boggs decided not to play ball with her any longer, Adams cried wolf and conjured up a lawsuit. Although it has essentially been chucked out of court twice, she and lawyer James McGee have pressed on. Persistent, but not too bright.

Then there's the Penthouse story. Surely dearest

Rutgers at women's hoop tonight

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

Things just don't get any easier for the University of Massachusetts women's basketball.

After last weekend's heartbreaking tour of the Atlantic 10 conference's southern-most reaches, where the Minutewomen dropped back-to-back games to West Virginia and Duquesne by a collective three points, they will kick off the final leg of the regular season tonight by hosting Rutgers University at the Curry Hicks Cage (7:30 p.m.).

That, coupled with Saturday afternoon's regular season finale against St. Joseph's, gives UMass a large obstacle to have to contend with before the A-10 playoffs begin on Monday.

"We played well against West Virginia and Duquesne," said UMass coach Kathy Hewelt. "We were able to fight back and keep up with them the whole game, but it came down to the last minutes and we just didn't have it."

It's crystal clear that a lack of depth, aided in part by some ill-timed season-ending injuries, is the main reason why UMass can't cut it in crunch time. That should be an even bigger problem against the likes of Rutgers, a team capable of putting a game out of reach by the final minutes of the first half.

Take, for instance the teams' first meeting in January in New Brunswick, NJ. The Lady Knights — preaching speed, speed and more speed — darted out to a 21-3 lead and would indeed salt it by halftime, taking a 51-25 lead en route to a 96-57 rout.

This time, it will be home sweet home at Curry Hicks, but that may not be enough to stop a perennial

continued on page 22

Minutemen send nine to Harvard

By DENNIS MADSEN
Collegian staff

Now that the celebration of winning their third straight New England title has wound down, nine members of the University of Massachusetts men's swimming team are competing at Harvard University today through Saturday.

The Easterns cover a wider area of teams so the qualifications for an individual swimmer to attend are tougher. As a result, only eight swimmers and one diver from UMass are going.

Dave Ehle will swim backstroke for the Minutemen along with Roger Kennedy swimming the individual medley and the butterfly, Jim Robertson and Brian McIver in the freestyle events, G.T. Ladd in the 100-yard butterfly and freestyles, Frank Sampson doing the individual medley and the breaststroke, Pete Koback swimming breaststroke, Mike Yunker swimming relays and Dan Chesnicka in the one- and three-meter diving events.

"I was a little disappointed that a couple of kids didn't make it," said UMass coach Russ Yarworth, but the group he is sending this year is experienced. All except Yunker, Sampson and Robertson have swam in the Easterns before and this time they are looking to do more than just jump in the pool.

"I think Brian [McIver] is going to do well," Yarworth said. "People know who he is now." Overall, Yarworth is just looking for his swimmers to place, score some points and get some experience. The aren't sending enough people to the meet to place high as a team but the experience can help in future meets.

"They have the potential to do well," Yarworth said. "A lot of it is mental, being able to get psyched up."

The Easterns, which will attract some 43 teams from Maine to Virginia, feature some big names, like David Berkhoff. Berkhoff, who instituted the controversial underwater backstroke, is an Olympic silver medalist and world record-holder in the 100-yard backstroke and will be swimming in his home pool at Harvard.

The meet should also be exciting as Harvard is known in swimming circles as a "fast" pool, meaning it has better lane lines, gutters on the sides and greater depth, reducing the waves that can slow swimmers down.

The main goals of the team will be to swim as well as possible and to qualify whoever they can for the NCAA Championships coming up. No matter what, they will consider themselves successful just by doing the best that they can and getting experience for next year.

Track members to race in 'classic Eastern meet'

By JOHN STEVEN MARPLE
Collegian Correspondent

The season is over for the University of Massachusetts men's track team. The team that is. However there is still some running left for certain individuals on the team.

The Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America meet takes place this Saturday in Princeton, N.J. Schools from Division I through III all along the East coast will be in attendance.

"This is a classic Eastern meet," said UMass coach Ken O'Brien. "Schools from Maine to Virginia will be present." According to O'Brien there will be a few schools competing that are not located on the East coast. "Notre Dame is one school that falls in that category," said O'Brien.

UMass will be represented by a handful of individuals who have earned the right to participate based on qualifying scores. Kevin Walters (200-meters), Steven Brown (400, 500-meters), Gerry Squires (5,000-meters) and Art Smith (3,000-meters) will all be at the big show. In addition, O'Brien will also be joined by his distance medley team. Making up this team are Reinardo Flores, Herb Hephner, Brown and Fitz Hagan.

O'Brien summed up this weekends meet best when he stated simply that, "This is the big time. You've got to be on top of your game."

Let's hope the athletes representing the University of Massachusetts are.

Sports Notice

Rugby:

The University of Massachusetts rugby club as started training for its new season. Veterans and newcomers are encouraged to play.

Intramurals:

The UMass intramural office has announced that entries for this spring's softball and soccer leagues are due on Mon. March 13 in Room 215 of Boyden.

Weekend forecast: Chance of a dusting or occasional flurries, highs in the mid 30s.

Rick Santos notes this week's "White Lie Award," and our new sports arena. Page 9.

UMass hopes their stay in Philadelphia is long as the A-10 tournament begins. Page 20.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1989

COLLEGIAN

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

"Bunny" Allison Decker, 18, stands behind copies of Playboy magazine, for which she modeled. Decker was in Amherst yesterday signing autographs as part of a promotional tour for the magazine.

Playboy model's visit brings fans, foes

Over 200 people gather at area bookstore

By SHARON WILKEY
Collegian Staff

Over 200 men and boys and about five women waited in line yesterday afternoon at an Amherst newspaper and magazine store for an autograph and Polaroid picture of a Playboy model.

Allison Decker, an 18-year-old University of Connecticut freshman featured in the magazine's "Girls of the Big East" issue, was at the Amherst Newsroom for over two hours as part of the magazine's promotional campaign.

Dennis O'Connor, a 19-year-old University of Massachusetts student in line, said, "[Decker] can do what she wants. She has a really nice body and people want to look at beautiful things."

About 15 men and women picketed the store, which has been a recent site of anti-pornography demonstrations. Three men also were there to counter-demonstrate.

The anti-pornography activists chanted, "Your mothers, your lovers and what about your sisters," while some men waiting to see Decker responded with "Borrr-ing."

About 100 people were still waiting to see Decker when she left, according to Tanya Dzioba, a saleswoman at the store. Dzioba said the store sold about 250 Playboy magazines yesterday.

Donna Rose, the downtown store's manager, said Decker's appearance was not a reaction to the recent demonstrations.

"Having Allison here was a business decision, for promotional purposes," she said, comparing Decker's presence to a book-signing.

But one of the protesters, Heather Horak of Northampton, said Decker's invitation from the Newsroom was an "aggressive tactic that shows we have obviously had some effect."

Helen Harrison, a 22-year-old UMass student also protesting, said some of the organizers of previous pickets were not at the store yesterday because they did not want the public to perceive them as protesting Decker's presence.

"We are not women protesting another

continued on page 6

North planned Contra meeting, witness says

By PETE YOST
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A Miami man yesterday described how Oliver North ran a 1985 meeting that focused on the Contra rebels opening a southern front in their war against the leftist government of Nicaragua.

Rafael Quintero, a Cuban-American who helped coordinate the Contra arms supply effort, testified at the trial of the former White House aide that "basically Mr. North" was in charge of the June 28, 1985 meeting at Miami International Airport.

Also attending the meeting, he said, were Contra leaders Adolfo Calero and Enrique Bermudez as well as retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord and his associate Thomas Clines, an ex-CIA official, who were involved in obtaining arms and shipping them to the Contras.

At the meeting, it was North's suggestion "to open a southern front," Quintero told a jury in US District Court.

He added that North also discussed the possibility of sinking a barge to obstruct the Rama River in order to cut off a military supply line that Nicaragua's Sandinista government was using. Eighty percent of the supplies passed across the river, Quintero said.

Quintero said that earlier in 1985 he returned from an inspection tour of Contra operations in Central America. While in Vienna, Va., offices of Secord, the retired general telephoned North, telling him "the little man from the South just came back" with a report, Quintero testified.

Quintero, a veteran of the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, said Secord had enlisted his help in assisting the Contras and that he was to be paid $4,000 a month plus a bonus for each shipment of arms he successfully brought through to the Contras.

UMass radon levels low, prof. says

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

Initial surveys at the University of Massachusetts indicate the campus has "exceptionally low" levels of potentially deadly radon gas, according to the survey's director.

Linda Nolan, a university professor in the Division of Public Health, said the levels of the radioactive gas suspected to increase the risk of lung cancer are well below the Environmental Protection Agency's set minimum.

The readings, the first ever to be conducted at the University, were taken from 200 sampling containers strategically placed in 62 buildings on the main campus, Nolan said. The surveys show levels of the gas that are nothing to worry about, she said.

Radon is a naturally occurring gas produced by decay of radium and uranium. It seeps from the ground and can reach unsafe levels in basements and other inclosed areas.

Testing included Skinner Hall and Farley Lodge where child day-care rooms are in basement areas.

Following EPA guidelines, Nolan and her graduate student assistant Cynthia Bialecki started work last October with the department of Environmental Health and Safety (EH&S) on one of the only campus-wide radon testing programs ever done by a university, Nolan said.

"The results are very encouraging and no mitigation measures appear necessary," said Environmental Health and Safety Director Don Robinson, whose office directed the analysis of the samples.

Bialecki, who is to deliver a thesis in New Mexico based on the results of the project, placed the tuna-can sized canisters of activated charcoal three feet above the floor in each area for a three-day period.

Radon gas is absorbed into the charcoal and decays to radioactive "daughters," which emit gamma rays. These rays can be counted by a gamma detector coupled to a multichannel analyzer to reveal radon levels.

Bialecki analyzed the samples using EH&S photon counting equipment under the guidance of Robinson and EH&S radiation safety officer Jim Tocci.

Radon levels are measured in picocuries per liter of air (pCi/l) and according to EPA standards any reading of 4 pCi/l is cause for concern.

According to Nolan only 17 of 200 containers had readings above 1 pCi/l and the highest reading was 2.46 pCi/l.

A rating of 2 pCi/l is 10 times the average outdoor exposure level to radon and of comparable risk to a non-smoker's risk of dying from lung cancer. By contrast 200

continued on page 6

Photo courtesy of the Office of Public Information

UMass professor Linda Nolan (far right) overlooks equipment used to test radon levels.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation: 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA. 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
AD MANAGER	BETTY-ANN MURPHY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ GEORGE FRANCY

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	DAVID R. MARK
COPY EDITOR	NANCY LA MOTHE
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	MARK INFIELD
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	TERRY STARMER
PRODUCTION	LAURA ROBINSON MIGUEL DE LOS REYES KEITH GAUMONT CELIA CORNISH MICHELLE GEMME RORY EVANS

AP photo

MOTHER'S GRIEF – A woman is comforted by her daughter after identifying the body of her son at the Bello Monte morgue in Caracas, Venezuela yesterday. Shooting between snipers and the National Guard after three days of civil unrest has left over 200 dead. The government has suspended civil rights in an attempt to control the rioting.

amc THEATRES
$2.75 TWILITE SHOW
NT PARIS 6 — 584-9153
Dangerous LIAISONS
Fri. at (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:15, 9:45
Sat at 1:30 (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:15 9:45
Sun at 1:30 (4:15 @ 2:75) 7:00, 9:30
TOM HANKS in The BURBS
Fri at (4:45 @ 2:75) 10:00
Sat at 1:45 (4:45 @ 2:75) 10:00
Sun at 1:45 (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:15, 9:45
FAREWELL TO THE KING
Fri at (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:30, 10:00
Sat at 1:30 (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:30, 10:00
Sun at 1:30 (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:15, 9:45
RAINMAN — Chances Are Special
Fri at (4:15 @ 2:75) 7:00, 9:45
Sat at 1:15 (4:15 @ 2:75) 7:00, 9:45
Sun at 1:15 (4:00 @ 2:75) 7:00, 9:30
Sneak Preview Fri at 7:30, Sat at 7:30
Stay over and see the Bullpen at 10:00
HAMPSHIRE 8 — 584-7550
Working Girl
Fri at (4:15 @ 2:75) 7:00, 9:45
Sat at 1:30 (4:15 @ 2:75) 7:00, 9:45
Sun at 1:15 (4:00 @ 2:75) 6:45, 9:15
Bill & Ted's EXCELLENT adventure
Sat at 2:00 (4:45 @ 2:75) 7:30, 10:15
Sun at 1:45 (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:15, 9:30
BEACHES
Fri at (4:15 @ 2:75) 7:00, 9:45
Sat at 1:15 (4:15 @ 2:75) 7:00, 9:45
Sun at 1:15 (4:00 @ 2:75) 6:45, 9:15
THREE FUGITIVES
Fri at (4:45 @ 2:75) 7:30, 10:15
Sat at 2:00 (4:45 @ 2:75) 7:30, 10:15
Sun at 1:45 (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:15, 9:30
TRUE BELIEVER
Fri at (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:15, 10:00
Sat at 1:45 (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:15, 10:00
Sun at 1:30 (4:15 @ 2:75) 7:00, 9:15
LEAN ON ME
A real hero...
Fri at (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:15, 10:00
Sat at 1:45 (4:30 @ 2:75) 7:15, 10:00
Sun at 1:30 (4:15 @ 2:75) 7:00, 9:30

AMHERST CINEMA
MISSISSIPPI BURNING
Monday-Thursday 7:30 only
Fri., Sat. & Sun. 2 shows 7:00&9:15
AMITY ST. 253-5426

Université de Montréal
Learn French where French is at Home
L'École française d'été welcomes you to its 1989 French Summer edition
Sessions internationales
3 week sessions of total French immersion for people from all over the world
June 5 - July 21
July 24 - August 11
Didactique
3 week sessions for teachers of French as a second language
June 5 - July 21
July 24 - August 11
Français écrit
Grammaire et rédaction françaises
3 week sessions for written French for advanced learners
June 5 - July 21
Please send me your brochure
Name
Surname
Street
City
State
Zip Code
The Collegian
École française d'été
Université de Montréal
C.P. 6128, succursale A
Montréal (Québec)
H3C 3J7
Tel.: (514) 343-6990

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-RENT

Council Travel
from New York — Round Trip starting at LONDON 358
PARIS 458
GUATEMALA City 340
CARACAS 320
HONGKONG 769
TOKYO 679
SYDNEY 1128
Restrictions apply. Taxes not included
Check our low teacher fares
EURAIL PASSES
ISSUED ON THE SPOT!
Call for FREE Student Travel Catalog
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

LOCAL

Students rally on SU steps against cuts

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

About 300 students rallied on the Student Union steps yesterday to protest budget cuts and draw attention to the need for increased state higher education spending.

Numerous speakers said students need to show support for the University by writing letters to their representatives at the state house in Boston.

"We can have the kind of University we know we deserve," said Gerald Quarles, head of the Professional Association Senate, but "If we can't show them [legislators] that we give a damn, why should they."

"This is the education state and we don't act like it," he said.

Protestors, carrying signs that read "Save UMass" and "No to Blind Budget Slashing – UMass has Taken Enough", chanted and applauded enthusiastically at every criticism of the budget cuts, some $12 million in the past year.

Michael Greiner, Student Government Association public policy committee chairman, said "The budget cuts have made this University turn its back on its mission" of accessible, quality higher education to the people of Massachusetts.

Greiner said the the budget cuts have caused the University's goal of becoming a first-rate public institution to be undercut.

Jane Kiser, political organizer for the Graduate Student Senate, said the budget cuts have burdened graduate students with heavier teaching schedules and "rock bottom" stipends.

Kiser also voiced concern that professors will leave UMass in search of better opportunities at other institutions.

"In the long run this University is at stake," she said.

Student Trustee Stephanie Orefice stated that the current higher education budget being debated by the senate falls far short of the University's needs.

"This place needs more money, period, end of conversation," she said.

As of yesterday, the letter writing campaign sponsored by Orefice's office had generated 1,500 letters to be sent to legislators expressing student's concerns, she said.

Orefice stressed the need for such campaigns because the administration's efforts to fight for the University's future often falls on deaf ears at the statehouse.

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

SO SHOCKED HIS HAIR STANDS ON END – Peter Dinardi of Northampton stares out at downtown Amherst recently.

Soviet students, officials to visit UMass

By SARAH DEMASTER
Collegian Correspondent

Eddie Murphy is not involved, but University of Massachusetts is hosting its own version of "Coming to America."

11 students and three administrators from Leningrad Polytechnic Institute, the Soviet equivalent of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, are participating in the second annual exchange with UMass, said Barbara Burn, director of International Programs at UMass.

"It's a great opportunity," said Burn. "It's unique in that it is a direct exchange."

The program, which began two years ago with a letter to UMass from Yuri Vasiliev, a Leningrad clergyman, has received "huge enthusiasm [from American students]," said Burn, adding, "As far as I know, the Soviet students have had a positive response as well."

One enthusiastic student is Joshua Moore, who went to Leningrad this past summer, and is currently hosting a Soviet student.

"The Soviets are a particularly friendly and outgoing kind of people," said Moore. "If they want to give you something, no matter how many times you say no, they give it to you anyway, and they won't accept anything in return."

He added, "As a greedy American, that was hard to get used to."

Moore went to the Soviet Union six years ago, and he said that things have changed since he was last there.

"As far as glasnost goes, most changes have been political, not economical," he said. "However, the Soviets have introduced private markets, where they can get a whole slew of fresh food that wasn't available before."

Burn agreed with Moore that "the Soviet Union is changing radically. There is freedom of speech such as the Soviets have not seen in decades, and the Soviets are reforming education so that students are taught to be more creative and innovative."

However, she added, "The Soviet Union is not a country with a tradition of democracy. They will not change overnight."

Professor of political science Karl Ryavec, who led the trip to Leningrad this past summer, said he also noticed a change in the Soviet Union.

"The atmosphere has lightened up a lot," he said. "The Soviets are not afraid to be with Americans anymore."

The Soviet group, accompanied by their leader Alexander Kobyshev, and their interpreter Tanya Ivanova, will arrive today for their three-week stay. They plan to sit in on computer, English and engineering classes, as well as visit Deerfield, Boston and New York, and attend UMass sports events, dances and shows at the Fine Arts Center, Burn said.

Dean: U.S. health care discriminatory

By JOHN SWANSON
Collegian Staff

Health care in the United States will not operate for the good of both blacks and whites until it works for public, rather than private interests, according to the dean of the University of Massachusetts School of Health Sciences.

"Our so-called present system of health care," Dr. William A. Darity said, "allows racism and socio-economic inequities to flourish in such a way that the health care professional is not a human-care professional, but an entrepreneur who operates in favor of the rich and profits at the expense of the poor, the ignorant and the economically unprivileged."

Darity, who addressed an audience of 100 in Bowker Auditorium last night, gave the fourth presentation in the 1988-1989 Distinguished Faculty Lecture Series.

In the course of the hour lecture, Darity used statistics, graphs and charts to show the widening gap in health care quality between blacks and whites. The quality of health care in any group is determined by rates of infant mortality, maternal health, neonatal birth, suicide, homicide and disease, he said. Although conditions have improved for blacks in many of these categories, the difference in the quality of health care has increased between blacks and whites over the last 30 years, he said.

Darity, who himself is black, proposed a six-point reorganization of the U.S. health care system. This proposal included a national health insurance program, a comprehensive health education program, research focusing specifically on problems in black health care and increased supervision of quality control in health care.

"We must consolidate all the socio-economic resources with health resources and focus special attention on those groups that are particularly neglected," he said.

Darity said the World Health Organization, whom he worked for from 1953 to 1963, defined the term health as "a state of complete physical, mental and social well being, and not merely the absence of disease or infirmity."

Darity earned his B.S. at Shaw University, his M.S. at North Carolina Central University and his Ph.D. at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Darity came to the University of Massachusetts as an associate professor in 1965, was promoted to professor in 1968 and became the University's first dean of health sciences in 1973.

Provost Richard O'Brien presented Darity with the Chancellor's Distinguished Faculty medal after his lecture.

"The problem with us health technocrats is that we look only inside our professions, and not at the social, economic, emotional, psycho-social and political ethic as related to the total individual, the total family and the total community."

SGA candidate promises productivity

Morgan Hugo formally announced his candidacy for president of the Student Government Association today, joining five others in the quest for the leading student position at the University.

Hugo, a junior computer information and science major (COINS), said this is his first attempt at running for public office and if elected, he would rid the SGA of its lack of productivity in recent months.

"I don't see the general population of UMass being represented by the [SGA]," Hugo said. "I think the students need someone who feels more in contact with them."

"I'm not a politician, I'm a person," he said. "I think [the SGA] is just wasting everybody's time."

Hugo said his campaign focus includes fighting state budget cuts, the high cost of books at the Textbook Annex and the small refunds students receive when they return used books.

"I've heard a lot of complaints about it," he said. "The people who return a book that is still in pristine condition should get more money back. All used books aren't created equal."

–MARIA SACCHETTI

Balloon launch ends Black History Month

By GEORGE FRANCY
Collegian Staff

A small crowd did not diminish uplifted spirits yesterday as several resident assistants from Washington Residence Hall sponsored a balloon launch to mark the end of Black History Month.

Slightly less than 200 balloons were released by about 30 students standing on the pyramid closest to Washington Tower as others looked on from the ground and from windows in the towers.

Tied to each balloon was a tag with the message: "Washington Tower joins the fight against racism." The tag urged anyone finding the balloon to write to the Washington cluster office.

"I think it was a good thing even though there weren't a whole lot of people on the pyramids," said Susan MacArthur, one of the organizers.

Organizers said they saw only two black students at the launch. MacArthur said she was disappointed about this. "I was hoping to get more of a reaction. But black students don't really need to be educated about black history."

One of the onlookers, Kerri Phillips, said the event should have been done on a larger scope. "I think it would have been more significant if they had everyone do it," she said.

MacArthur and Deborah Bouffard, also an organizer, said if they were to do it again they would involve more cluster offices.

But MacArthur and Bouffard agreed with fellow R.A. Jonathan Renes, who said the event symbolized "that people, that college-age students care. It also helps to promote awareness, it makes people think," Renes said.

The event was organized by the Black History Month Committee, composed of six R.A.s from Washington Tower. MacArthur said they began planning the launch two weeks ago, and started blowing up balloons at 3:30 yesterday, almost two hours before the launch.

Financial aid group to go to Washington to lobby Congress

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

In Washington, the only way to get a congressman's attention is to either park in his space or make an appointment — a group of University of Massachusetts students has opted for the latter.

Every year around this time SAFA, or Students Advocating Financial Aid, storm the sacred halls of congressional office buildings on behalf of students nationwide.

The main objective of the group, is increasing, or at least maintaining, federal support for financial aid programs, said SAFA president Michael Cromwell.

"In real terms, you've actually seen a decrease [of financial aid] in the past few years," he said. "We'd like to see it increase faster than the cost of education."

About 40 members of SAFA will travel to Washington this weekend and spend Monday through Wednesday lobbying congressmen and senators from all over the country on financial aid issues.

SAFA has been well received in Washington since beginning the trips nine years ago, said Gerry Grady, coordinator of alumni relations and founder of SAFA.

"These [legislators] have been visited eight or nine times and they recognize this as a pretty professional group," he said.

Grady, who has worked on Capitol Hill, has been told by many representatives that SAFA is effective because congressmen like to have contact with people who are directly affected by what they lobby for, he said.

Former Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill has referred to SAFA as "the most effective group of its kind" in the country, Grady said.

One issue that will be high on SAFA's agenda will be a move in congress to cut financial aid to schools which have a high default rate, Cromwell said.

"Our position is rather than cutting financial aid to these schools and students with high default rates, is to educate on how to repay their loans," he said.

UMass has a default rate of about three percent and Cromwell suggested that they could offer advice to representatives on why UMass does so well when other schools across the country have rates of as high as 10 percent.

Israeli author discusses Jewish survival

By C.C. SANDORFI
Collegian Correspondent

Jews are survivors who must overcome their perceptions of themselves as victims, David Grossman told a Memorial Hall audience of 175 Wednesday night.

Grossman, the Israeli author of See Under: Love and The Yellow Wind, said, "Somehow, I believe we are all survivors or sons of survivors. I don't believe any of us can be born without being survivors of the Holocaust," he said.

But being a survivor is not always a positive thing, he said. "We have the feeling we are the eternal victims . . . because of what we've gone through," he said, referring to Hitler's atrocities against Jews during World War II.

"I think . . . we do misjudge things," Grossman said. "We prefer to think we're always in existential danger."

The major reaction of Jews to the Holocaust is "the syndrome of life as a latent death," he said.

Living in constant fear and suspicion drains people of the "delicate traits like affection and sympathy for others," Grossman said.

"They lose these capacities," he said. The paradox is that once the capacities are lost they cannot be restored, he said.

These people live defensively and in suspicion and cannot truly experience the joys and pleasures of life, Grossman said. "Those who survived to live may find they are just living to survive."

Grossman, sponsored in part by Five-College Hillel, said the Israelis must dare to stop perceiving themselves as victims and must rid themselves of the "nation of doom" mentality.

"We must be courageous enough to start to believe we can redefine ourselves," he said, adding that another lesson of the Holocaust was the lesson of choice. "People chose not to go like sheep to the slaughter . . . they created a bubble of freedom in the midst of arbitrariness and cruelty."

He said Israelis must work to create their own bubbles of freedom before they will cease to perceive themselves as victims. "You cannot be a victim if you decide something for yourself," he said.

Palestinians are also survivors, he said. "In a sense, they are like the children of the world," he said.

Grossman compared Palestinians to children, used as bargaining chips between two divorced parents (the countries of the world).

Israelis are very similar to Palestinians in some ways, he said. "We have much in common — our vitality, our sense for self-destruction, our pragmatic approach to life . . . but we dare not acknowledge it in fear we will endanger our identities."

He said many Israelis fear that a move toward understanding Palestinians would be a move away from their own identities, but contrasted this perception with his own experiences.

"I don't feel my love for Israel is weakening," he said. "On the contrary, by not relating to Palestinians, I lost much of my self-image as a Jew." By attempting to understand Palestinians, Grossman said he became more aware of his own heritage.

"We share the same wounds," he said of the two countries. "It is a tragedy that two survivors like Israelis and Palestinians [fight] each other — they are either the oppressed or the oppressor, the conquered or the conqueror. There is no middle ground."

Although Israel must never forget the lessons of the Holocaust, Grossman said it must overcome its self-defeating victim mentality.

"I think Israel must always be very strong and [should] not trust the Arabs," he said. "But we must transcend our fears. We must offer our neighbors liberty and peace in defiance of what was done to us."

"It will be a very courageous answer to the lessons of the Holocaust," he said.

Photo courtesy of Five-College Hillel

David Grossman

This Saturday!

MARCH 4th

MOUNT SNOW VERMONT

$29 FOR MEMBERS

add $10 FOR NON-MEMBERS

LAGUAF

PRESENTED BY UMASS SKI CLUB

430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.
545-3437

Spirit Haus

338 COLLEGE ST. (RT. 9) • AMHERST • 253-5384

ABSOLUT VODKA	$19.99 1.75L
STOLICHNAYA VODKA	$19.99 1.75L
	$11.99 750Ml
SOUTHERN COMFORT	$6.99 750Ml
JACK DANIELS	$19.99 1.75L
CORONA	$4.99 6Pk
COOPER & RESCHS,AUSTRALIAN LAGER	$1.55 Each
	$2.90 For Two
COORS & ROLLING ROCK 12 Pk Bottles	$5.99
BECKS & HEINEKEN 12 Pk Bottles	$7.99

• MEGABUCKS •
• IMPORTED & DOMESTIC KEGS, BEER & WINE •
ALWAYS ON HAND

REGRESSION NIGHT
Regress to your childhood with

Sunday, March 5
The Fox and the Hound
Campus Center Auditorium
Chitty Chitty Bang Bang
Showings 5pm & 9pm
Showings 6:30pm & 10:30pm
PRICE
5pm & 6:30pm shows $1.50 (Hillel members $1.00*)
9pm & 10:30pm shows $2.50 (Hillel members $2.00*)

Hampshire students receive aid for projects

"Threshold Grants" give the creative final push toward their graduation

By C.C. SANDORFI
Collegian Correspondent

Hampshire College recently gave eight February graduates a post-graduation boost by awarding them grants to aid them in independent study.

The "Threshold Grants," ranging in amount from $500 to $1,500, were given to students who were unable to complete their Division III (thesis) projects prior to graduation, said Lee Wicks, director of public information for Hampshire.

"These projects are the massive culminations of all [the students'] studies," she said.

The projects are undertaken during the independent study of Division III phase of the Hampshire curriculum, said Clay Hubbs, director of the international studies office.

"Usually, the projects are fairly ambitious," he said. "They can range from writing a novel to putting on a photographic show about Guatemala, for example."

However, "graduation often comes before the project can be completed," he said.

This is where the Threshold Grants come in, said Wicks. "The grants are aptly named because the students receiving them are on the threshold of another phase of life and on the threshold of new works," she said.

The grants are designed to help a student complete his independent study project, she said. They are awarded twice yearly, in February and May, she said. Hampshire students are graduated in both months.

Photo courtesy of Hampshire College

Hampshire College

"We look at the originality, the creativity and the innovation involved in the project-the kinds of things that Hampshire College is supposed to represent."

--Clay Hubbs

Students applying for Threshold Grants must submit written proposals and plans for the completion of their projects, Wicks said.

In addition, they submit extensive evaluations of the work in progress from their Division III advisory committees and letters of recommendation, Hubbs said. The committees are made up of three faculty members.

Applications are judged by the grant committee — consisting of faculty, staff and students — according to the student's commitment to continuing the project, the likelihood of the project being published and the quality of the student's work, he said.

"We look at the originality, the creativity and the innovation involved in the project — the kinds of things that Hampshire College is supposed to represent," he said.

There is no fixed number of grants to be awarded yearly, Wicks said. "It depends on how much money the students apply for."

"Usually, we award between eight and twelve for each graduation," she said.

The grants are funded by an anonymous donor, Hubbs said. "She's a parent of a former Hampshire student. That's all I can really say," he said.

The following students wee awarded Threshold Grants: Yogesh Chandrani, for a monograph on the political economy of India's military-industrial complex; Susan J. DuMars for her one-act stage play "The Thaw;" Leah Melnick for a photo documentary of the Cambodian refugee communities in the Bronx and in Amherst and Margaret Pearce for the publication of her work, "The Atlas of Sacred Lands."

Also receiving Threshold Grants are Bruce Quaglia, for his musical composition for a string quartet in four movements; David Sherman, for creating a soundtrack for his multi-media performance piece "Rose and rose Elsine;" Victoria Tillotson, for the translation of Georges Bataille's work "L'Impossible" and Paul vrana, for research analysis of Canis mitochondrial DNA in dogs and wolves.

None of the recipients were available for comment.

Eat, Drink & Be Merry!

It's Easy As:

ADVOCATE BEST OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1988

1. PEKING GARDEN ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET — Mon.-Thurs. 5-8 PM — $5.99
2. PEKING GARDEN ALL YOU CAN EAT SUNDAY BRUNCH — 11 AM-3 PM — $6.99
3. COMEDY ZONE — FRIDAYS 9:30 SATURDAYS 8:30 & 11:00 PM

COMEDY ZONE SPECIAL
2 FOR 1
ADMISSION SAT 11 PM SHOW REGULARLY $6.00
ALL AGES WELCOME—DINNERS SERVED TIL 1 AM

Fri-Sat 1st shows check these Comedy and Drink Packages

"PEOPLES' CHOICE" - For 2 -
APPETIZER PLATTER (CHICKEN FINGERS, RIBS, EGG ROLL, FRIED RICE)
1 COCKTAIL AND COMEDY SHOW

"ORIENT EXPRESS" - For 1 -
COMPLETE PU-PU PLATTER
1 COCKTAIL EACH
COMEDY SHOW

Comedy or Dinner Reservations 586-1202
PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
on Route 9, Hadley 北京園 next to Hadley Subaru

Want to move up quickly?

- Earning $100 a month during the school year
- As a freshman or sophomore you could complete your basic training during two six week summer sessions and earn more than $1200 during each session
- Juniors earn more than $2100 during one ten week summer session
- Seniors and graduates can be commissioned through the Officer Candidate Class Program
- You can take free civilian flying lessons
- You're commissioned upon graduation

If you're looking to move up quickly, look into the Marine Corps commissioning programs. You could start off making more than $18,000 a year.

We're looking for a few good men.

Marines

See Captain Chapla
University Career Center
Tuesday, Feb. 7, 1989 • 10 a.m.—2 p.m.
or call 1-800-255-8762

'Cutback city' to expand

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

"Cutback City" is scheduled for a dramatic expansion late today as members of two University of Massachusetts clubs plan to add nearly 20 tents to the crudely-built huts that now blanket the area west of the campus pond.

Officials from the UMass Outing Club and UMass Ski Club estimate that 15-30 members from each club will join "city" residents' efforts to protest state budget cuts against public higher education.

"I think the entire university should get involved," said David Harris, equipment manager for the Outing Club. "This is something that affects each and every one of us."

Harris said the group is planning to stay "indefinitely," and offered to assist non-club members in assembling their own tents.

"I'm not a radical person, but I pay for a large part of my bill," he said. "If I'm going to be paying more tuition because of the University, it's not fair."

Ski Club member Jim Metzger said, "I totally believe in what they're doing. The legislators are hiking up tuition and they're not giving anything back."

"Students for a Democratic University," who founded the "city" last Friday during Gov. Michael Dukakis' visit to the University, began construction yesterday on a fifth addition to the mock shantytown.

While hammering on the rooftop of one shanty yesterday, group member Pierre Laliberte said the organization has grown to about 16 people and is increasing.

"At first, people didn't know what to make of it," Laliberte said. "There's a great number of students . . . now joining us."

James Langley, associate vice chancellor for University Relations and Development, said the administration has voiced concerns about the students' health but has no plans to block their efforts as long as the shantytown doesn't interfere with University policies.

■ Radon

continued from page 1

pCi/l is equivalent to smoking more than four packs of cigarettes a day or 60 times the non-smoker's risk, according to the EPA.

Nolan has begun the second phase of the study, to be completed by the end of March, which involves the same process.

But radon levels are normally higher in the wintertime, Nolan said, so "We will repeat the study when the doors and windows [of the buildings] are shut and the heat is on because it creates an upward current from the basement carrying the radon along."

So far, Nolan said, preliminary reports indicate the readings are consistent with the earlier findings.

Nolan purchased the canisters, which cost $2.60 each, with overhead monies from her own grant and the additional testing equipment was already "in-house" she said.

Racism, sexism discussed at forum

Women and minorities are susceptible to discrimination in the workplace, according to a University of Massachusetts official who recently led a discussion on "Managing Differences."

Martha Wharton, staff associate in the University Affirmative Action and Equal Opportunity Office, said the goal of the forum "is to get people thinking about how these issues come into their work lives." The discussion, which was attended by about 25 people from various University offices, was the first of three sponsored by the Office of Human Relations.

A half-hour video was shown at the forum, and according to Wharton, the goal of the film was to educate management personnel on the benefits and necessities of recognizing the importance of women and minorities in the job market.

The video presented different scenarios showing discrimination in the workplace, and tried to emphasize that a worker's competence is not based on gender or race.

Grant Ingle, acting director of the Office of Human Relations, said that the idea for the forum grew out of experiences students had during Civility Week.

"Several of us thought it was important also to explore staff and faculty experiences with racism," he said.

—SCOTT ROE

■ Playboy model

continued from page 1

woman. We are men and women protesting Playboy," she said.

The activists who said they were protesting "Playboy's portrayal of women as sexual objects," carried hand-painted signs reading, "Why doesn't Hugh Hefner wear a bunny suit?" and "Porn: Women's bodies for men's profit." Some of the protesters ripped up what they consider pornographic magazines as they stood outside the Newsroom.

Three male counter-protesters carried signs with such slogans as "Protect freedom, stop censorship." Roger Libby, a local "sexologist" who stood in front of the store with his life-sized "horny toad," Roxanne Ribbit, said, "I am here today to say that being explicit about sex does not lead to violence."

Most of the men who lined up to see Decker are college students, but some high school boys were also present.

Steven Lawler, a 14-year-old Amherst Regional Senior High School student, said, "I want her picture just to have it."

Lawler, who said he has autographed photographs of two other Playboy models, said, "It's up to the models to do whatever they want to do."

Minors, however, were allowed only to receive Decker's autograph, and not her picture, said the assistant manager of the store, who refused to give his name. Persons under 18 are prohibited by law from buying "adult" magazines.

YOUR COMPUTER APPLICATION PAPER COULD BE WORTH $5,000.

Enter Zenith's Masters Of Innovation Competition while there's still time! Maybe you've written a class paper on an original personal computer application that addresses an issue within your field of study. Or perhaps you're planning to write one soon. If so, here's your chance to make those ideas pay off.

Just enter your paper in Zenith Data Systems' Masters Of Innovation Competition, and win a $5,000 Zenith Computer System.* You don't even have to be a computer wiz to do it!

So dig up one of your computer application papers right now. Or write one from scratch. Then enter our Masters Of Innovation Competition today. After all, you could be sitting on $5,000 and not even know it!

For your free entry packet,
Call 1-800-553-0301

ZENITH data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON

Time Is Running Out... Enter Today! Extended Through March 15, 1989!

*Price values based on current Zenith Data Systems standard educational pricing
Void where prohibited
Albert Einstein licensed to The Roger Richman Agency, Inc. —Beverly Hills CA
© 1989 Zenith Data Systems

elen's HAIR UM SALON

Now Open in Amherst!

A Creative Hair Salon Specializing in:
Wave Nouveau • Leisure Curl
Care Free Curl • Weaves • Extensions
Braids • Color • Permanent Waves
Design Cuts
228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3999
139 Dwight Street • Springfield • 734-4234
Monday thru Saturday

TOP of the CAMPUS LOUNGE

Had a long week?
Finish Up Friday at the Top!
FREE MUNCHIES 4-6 PM

Weekly drink specials and never a line at the door!

Lounge Hours:
Mon-Fri 11:30 am-12:30 am
Sat-Sun 5:00 pm-12:30 am

11th Floor Campus Center • (413) 549-6000 ext. 7634
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

AP photo

STRAWBERRY WALKS — New York Mets outfielder Darryl Strawberry leaves the Mets training facility in Port St. Lucie, Fla. yesterday. He held to his statement that he would leave training camp unless the Mets renegotiated and extended his contract.

Choose Excellence

COLLEGIAN

"It ain't perfect but it's the only game in town. And it's an important game for students who seek careers in journalism. Experience on the Collegian is increasingly valued by the editors throughout the northeast."

Howard Ziff, UMass Professor since 1971; Reporter & Asst. City Editor, Chicago Daily News

Come write for the Collegian
113 Campus Center

These are the people who didn't come to the Jordan Marsh Info Session.

March 6, 7pm
Career Center

Don't follow in their footsteps! Instead, bring your ambition and strong work ethic to The Jordan Marsh Info Session and find out if you have what it takes to build a terrific future in retailing.

At the Info Session, you'll learn about The Jordan Marsh Executive Training Program, a company-paid 12 week program that highlights a combination of on the job training and classroom seminars. Recognized as one of the top three retailing training programs in the country, this session is just the beginning of the resources and support available to you as a member of one of the most prestigious names in retailing. And if you still wish to further your education, you can take advantage of our tuition reimbursement program.

So mark the date on your calendar, and make sure you go to the JM Info Session!

JM is an equal opportunity employer

Living the good life.
jordan marsh
EST 1851
MASSACHUSETTS • CONNECTICUT • RHODE ISLAND
NEW HAMPSHIRE • MAINE • NEW YORK

Tested on the toughest courses.

The IBM Personal System/2. In the least amount of time that helps you turn your toughest assignments into sharp, shining winners. And if you buy one now, you'll get a great student discount.

Stop in to see us. We'll show you how the IBM PS/2 can help you better organize your notes, write and revise all your papers, produce high quality graphics to make all your work look sharper, and more.

With the IBM PS/2, you'll always finish first.

Demonstration on the Concourse
MARCH 8&9 10-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

AP photo

TURTLE TOUCH UP — Peter Brady, of Reading, an artist with the graphic design department of the New England Aquarium in Boston, does some touch-up work on a giant sculpture of a Hawksbill Turtle yesterday in Boston.

SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW HOW TO HANDLE THE BUMPS?

PROVE IT!

At the annual Killington Mogul Challenge on Outer Limits, Saturday, April 1st. Come get an application from the UMass Ski Club, 430 Student Union ($15 application fee)* and join the competition.

OR JUST BE A SPECTATOR, and join us for the Saturday bus trip to Killington.

*Number of applications available are limited, so please hurry to be sure a space is reserved for you.

UMASS SKI CLUB

CASE SPECIALS

Moosehead	13.99
COORS	10.99
CARLING BLACK LABEL	6.99
PIELS	6.99

12 PACK SPECIALS

MOLSON GOLDEN 12 oz. bottles	6.99
HEINEKEN 12 oz. cans	7.99
FOSTERS OIL CANS	2 for 2.99
GRIZZLY 6 pk.	3.69
DOS EQUIS 6 pk.	4.49
CATAMOUNT 6 pk.	5.49

TAYLOR CALIFORNIA CELLARS

WHITE ZINFANDEL 1.5L	4.99
ABSOLUT VODKA 1.75L	19.99
CAPTAIN MORGAN 750ML	5.99
FOUR SEASONS VODKA 1.75L	8.99
FOUR SEASONS GIN 1.75L	8.99

1.75 Liter

THERE'S NO REASON TO GO ANYWHERE ELSE

FOUR SEASONS

KEGS—ALL SHAPES & SIZES MC/VISA WE DELIVER

Located on Route 9, Hadley—Just beyond Burger King
OPEN MONDAY—SATURDAY 9 a.m. - 11 p.m.

584-8174

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Senator, suppose as Defense Secretary, you discovered a defense contractor was charging $500.00 for a screwdriver...
I'd order a gin and tonic instead...
Mike Luckovich Times-Picayune

The most important lesson

On the eve of graduation, I'd like to offer my sincerest congratulations to my friends and fellow students for having the courage and commitment to make the dream of a college education a reality. For some, the future is as uncertain as the first day of your college experience. For others, new jobs and lives are secured, but for all the future presents itself as a challenge to be accepted. Over the course of the last four years, the road to a college education has been strewn with sacrifice, self-doubt, hard work and now, satisfaction.

Dino Privitera

The diploma you will receive in May is a culmination of all your efforts. In May, you will celebrate the proudest moment in your lives thus far. It will be a moment frozen in time. A moment reserved especially for you. It will be a moment that can never be taken from any of you. Your diploma is more than a scrap of tree bark. It is a remembrance of all the fiends you've made and all of the experiences, good and bad, that you've been through. It will represent a period of your life of growth, but most important, it will represent what you've learned over the course of four years, and how you will apply it in a world that is becoming more and more lonely to live in everyday. The time has come upon you to reflect on what you consider to be important and how you will evaluate these priorities in the future.

The shaping of America's future lies within the souls and minds of America's youth. We are the modern-day sculptors and it is we who will ultimately create and shape the type of society we will live in. This presents itself as a pretty imposing task, but all it takes to become an innovator and a creator in the world today is the courage and commitment to believe that you can make a difference. Each one of us doing his/her little part to make things right. For those out there who ask where to find this courage and commitment, I urge you not to look any farther than the corners and closets of your own soul and conscience.

What have you learned over the course of the last four years? Have you learned only what professors and books have taught you? Did you learn how to manage people and turn a profit at the expense of someone else's well-being? Did you learn how to "just say no to drugs?" Did you learn how to be callous and uncaring? Did you learn how not to rock the political, economic and social boat? Did you learn how to maintain the status quo? Did you learn how not to question orders? Did you learn how not to get involved? Did you learn to be a "good" American?

Or, did you learn how to think and reason? Did you learn how to know the rightness and wrongness of an action? Did you learn that apartheid is an inherently immoral system because it violates human dignity and rights? Did you learn that all people are entitled to the right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness regardless of color, creed, religion, sexual preference, gender and race? Did you learn that hungry people, homeless people and hopeless people are all our brothers and sisters and their continued suffering is unacceptable? Did you learn that the chain of society can only be as strong as its weakest citizen? Did you learn to respect and appreciate people and things that you don't understand? Did you learn how to care? Did you learn what it means to be a human being?

It takes no courage to hate and be indifferent. It's a road full of cowards who refuse to confront the fears and insecurities that live within them. It's a road that offers no challenge. It's a road that does not require a rational choice between good and evil. All you need to hate and destroy is a target and no reasoning. To actively care about people and the future means that you've matured as a person. If you care, you are ready to tackle the future with an unbridled zest. To actively care means that you are worthy of a college education and you really have learned.

Dino Privitera is a UMass student

Campus Center Notes

And this week's "White Lie Award" goes to the University of Massachusetts athletic department. Any UMass student, or anyone familiar with the campus, who happens upon a card sent to recruits for the men's basketball team would probably find it quite interesting.

Rick Santos

Pictured on the back side of the card is a detailed sketch of what the outside of the William D. Mullins Convocation Center may look like when the structure is complete. Unfortunately, construtions of the building, where the basketball team is to play home games, has not even begun.

This is not mentioned in the recruiting brochure, although the center's proposed seating capacity (10,630) is included. This number stands tall next to the number or seats (4,024) in the Curry Hicks Cage, where the team currently plays home games.

There's something else in the drawing of the building that catches the eye — in the background, way back, way, way back, there's what appears to be a beautiful, blue, wide-streatching lake. Other than the muck filled pond, there are no lake-like bodies of water on campus.

★★★

I applaud The Minuteman, a conservative, student-run newspaper at UMass, and the Massachusetts Free Press, a paper run by students with more liberal intentions, because the staffs of both publications managed to put out issues last week. This is a great accomplishment since neither paper is published very often.

But at the same time I encourage the publications to instill some consistency into their products, especially titles of various editors. From issue to issue I see names and titles jumping aroung the editorial boxes like electrons. Publishers, editors-in-chief, senior editors, managing editors, contributing editors... oh, what's the difference.

★★★

A friend of mine can't throw a party. At approximately 10 p.m. last Friday, a large beam that used to support his living room floor cracked.

When I arrived at his house at 11, most of his guests had departed. In his sadness he told me this affair wasn't as depressing as his last party he threw — it flopped after someone tracked dog feces into the house.

★★★

This message is on behalf of a guy named Joe. He is a friend of a friend of mine.

The poor guy had to go through the embarassment of being pictured in a JB's advertisement in The Collegian. The photo in the ad was a candid shot of him with his right fist clenched, head tilted back, and eyes shut.

In exchange for this misery he was to receive a free roast beef sandwich from JB's. So not all was lost since the poor, hungry, humiliated college student was to be compensated somewhat for his troubles.

But poor Joe never ate his sandwich because it was unjustly claimed by some common criminal. I hope the vagrant never eats a decent meal again.

Rick Santos is a Collegian columnist

Network provides opportunity

Thank-you for your article about the newly formed group — The Social Network. We are glad to have this exposure as we are a new group on campus and feel that we can fill an important need for many people.

I would like to clarify the basic mission of this new group, as I am concerned that the headline and certain points in your article may be misleading. The main goal of The Social Network is to provide a resource for all staff, faculty, older graduate students and older non-traditional students in the five-college area. The group is not mainly for single people, as the article implies.

The Social Network will provide opportunities for networking and for making friends across the campus for all faculty, staff and older students.

Susan Kahn
Office of Human Relations

Trial verdict questioned

The verdict and sentence of the Becker-Grimshaw trial raise more issues than were discussed in you February 27 article ("Wife sentenced in murder trial") Contrary to what some angry citizens say, the 15 to 20 year sentence does not condones the heinious abuse Becker-Grimshaw faced her entire life. No one deserves to be threatened with razor blades or to be sexually abused, but neither does one have the right to premeditate another's murder.

Remember that Becker-Grimshaw's crime was not commited in the heat of the moment, but calculated, and that pre-mediated murder is usually punished with death or life imprisionment. What critics of Becker-Grimshaw' sentence fail to consider is that she was not only a victim, but an aggressor as well. The 15 to 20 years is fair in that it recognized Becker-Grimshaw in both positions.

The other thing these critics fail to realize is the dangerous precedent an acquittal might have brought. Had Becker-Grimshaw been acquitted, how long would it have taken until other killers, or wife or child abusers, were acquitted due to histories of traumatic abuse? Had Becker-Grimshaw been acquitted, that precedent might have hurt those it intended to protect — women.

Dan Goodin
Northampton

Seeds of racism are planted in childrens' minds

When Allison was a wee five, her mommy gave her a Barbie doll.

It was not just any Barbie doll. Sure, there were 499,999,999 other Barbie dolls like it in the world, but Allison's Barbie doll was special.

"It's mine," she said. "It's my very, very own Barbie."

It was easy for Allison to admire, to even love her Barbie doll, with its long blond hair and its wonderful assortment of high-fashion styles, each fitting her curvacious self perfectly.

What a great girl Barbie is, she thought. What a great girl.

Meanwhile, a few blocks away, unbeknownst to Allison, Susie sat with her Barbie doll.

Susie was black as was her Barbie. But Susie was confused.

"Mommy," she asked, "why doesn't Barbie look like me?"

Her mommy was quiet. It was easy to see that the doll's thin features and straight hair made her a black doll in a white doll's body. The only difference between Susie's Barbie and any other color doll was just that, the color changed. The look was the same.

Therein lies the tale of what, in some circles, could be called a controversy. Many people feel that black Barbies, and many other similar dolls, are created in a "white person's image."

Niobe Marshall, public policy analyst for the National Black Child Development Institute, said if black children believe white dolls and dolls in a white person's image are attractive, then they may see themselves as unattractive.

David R. Mark

"They may grow up without a true appreciation for their own beauty," she said.

There you have it, innocent flights of fantasy among six and seven-year-olds across the land are, in actuality, planting the seeds that lead to racial tension in the minds of American adults.

But beyond that one product, the overall lack of thought displayed by many of America's advertisers, both television and print, have lead to many misunderstandings, misconceptions and plain ol' ordinary mistakes in the way minorities are thought of in the growing white child's American mind.

With commercials that portray blacks as stereotypes, such as the Western Union commercial that has them singing and talking in slang, no wonder children have a hard time growing up to be anything but slightly racist, even if it's an unconscious effort.

Newspapers don't help either, with the majority of photos and positive stories never touching the surface of black America. But newspapers are not in the business to advocate for minorities or teaching children the morals and ethics they need to be responsible adults; they are only asked to present all sides fairly.

Barbie turned 30 last month, and yes, her existence, and her black counterpart's existence, may be one of many reasons for racial problems in the United States.

Maybe not. But given the vast number of objects, images and ideas a child comes in contact with in a day, and the lack within that number of positive black portrayals, are we as a nation really fighting racism, or are we fostering it?

David R. Mark is a Collegian columnist

ARTS & LIVING

Electric eclectic sounds hit 'MUA 'round midnight

By JOHN PURIN
Collegian Correspondent

True hepcats know that certain things have always been true of the best rock'n'roll. They know that it somehow sounds best late at night. And that the most exciting music tends to be at least a little strange. This being the case it should come as no surprise that the Pioneer Valley's most creative broadcasting can be heard on WMUA's "eclectic block," from midnight to 3 a.m.

FM radio was originally viewed as an alternative to the more commercial AM band. As rock became big business, even most FM stations began letting record companies dictate their playlists. So college radio became the last bastion of of adventurous programming. Now that bands like REM and 10,000 Maniacs have achieved mainstream success, and with Rolling Stone publishing its college top ten, college radio has itself come in danger of becoming just another marketing category. "It has really become homogenized," says Will Pile, who hosts Highway to Hojo's on Monday nights.

Music Director Tony Procaccino sees such pigeonholing as something to be avoided at all costs. "Things that are tabelled "College Music" just aren't worth my time . . . if someone calls and asks us to play the Cult, we just sorta ask them to please take a walk." Procaccino believes that as an educational institution, college radio appeals to people who want to be informed as well as entertained by the music they hear, rather than those "who want to use music as aural wallpaper."

So what exactly is the eclectic block? Each night a different DJ is free to play whatever he or she chooses, regardless of style or popular tastes. The most innovative bands are heard from, as well as acts from the past that never got the attention they deserved.

Pile claims that "the people who listen to us are people who are looking for the extremes." On every program, it is possible to hear everything from hardcore punk to trad. jazz , often within a single song. Anne Bidner's program proves that even within the trendy jangly pop idiom, hot tunes are still being created. A typical playlist from Rambling Anne's show might include a song from Love Tractor followed by Savage Republic or Mission of Burma.

Between all the programs, Procaccino finds a common denominator in the fact that the songs chosen are played "for the spirit of the music, for the art."

Mark Sturm hosts a program of Fridays. Sturm, who previously has had a show on Smith College radio, claims that the music he plays now is probably "weirder than OZQ." On Mark's show it is not unusual to hear things like a cover of the Sesame Street theme, right before a prison ballad by Charles Manson.

Mark believes part of college radio's mission is to insure exposure to independent new bands. He has great hopes in particular for the Reverb Motherfuckers and Halo of Flies. "I think there's a lotta new, extremely angry Psychedelia out there," says Sturm, sizing up the current sounds. One psychedelic band Mark says he won't play is The Grateful Dead.

"The Dead are basically a lost cause. . . . it's like 'Hey, we could make a lotta money by playing these same old songs with none of the original feeling.'"

The program names are as creative as the music. Sturm's show is called Stygian Shore Outposts, a name he came up with while thumbing through a thesaurus. "I just figured it was kinda ambiguous and it sounded cool," Sturm said.

Ambiguous, but cool; that's WMUA after midnight.

Don't Gogh see Vincent unless you're a Van fan

By ADAM CAMPBELL
Collegian Correspondent

I know I was supposed to like this film. Vincent boasts a pristine pedigree: heavy theme, light budget and the distinguished presence of arthouse favorite Paul Cox (director of such mid- to high-brow classics as Lonely Hearts and Man of Flowers). And all the right papers liked it.

Well, I didn't like it.

Vincent is part of a new genre of film, one which lies somewhere between the borders of documentary and narrative (last year's controversial The Thin Blue Line began the cycle).

Cox uses some interesting techniques to draw the viewer in, only some of which succeed. Vincent is narrated throughout by an off-screen Vincent Van Gogh (John Hurt), whose real-life letters to brother Theo serve as the film's primary means of exposition. This epistolary form, however, is limiting. We have only Vincent's narrow point of view through which to see his world and are not allowed the objectivity of conventional documentary film. This in itself might not be a problem if it weren't for the unreliability of Van Gogh's own words as narrative vehicles. The film can only serve as a supplement to one's previous knowledge of the artist. (For example, we are told that Vincent is losing his mind, but we are never told why. We see that Vincent has lost an ear, but never see how.)

I do recommend Vincent for diehard Paul Cox (or Van Gogh) fans, but, frankly, I had trouble keeping my eyes open.

Last week at the same theatre (Pleasant Street), I saw Ken Russell's Lair of the White Worm. I know it's gone now, but I just wanted to mention it in case it should come around again.

White Worm is a pleasant surprise that will undoubtedly please both dedicated Russell afficianados and people like me (Russell lost me with Gothic). The secret of this film's success is in its tone of self-parody. Ken Russell has finally lightened up.

Unsubstantiated Rumors and Self-indulgent Musings:

● Word has it that Back to the Future parts II and III are currently being simultaneously filmed. This was done before with The Three Musketeers and its sequel, The Four Musketeers. Future II is to be released next winter, III is due in theatres the following summer.

● Anyone curious about Batman screenwriter Sam Hamm's treatment of the Dark Knight should check out the current fiftieth anniversary issue of Detective Comics. It features the first episode of a three-part Batman story written by Hamm.

● Next week we will be presenting the first part of our interview with Disco II Gaffer, Arlyn Jacobs.

It's Her Treat at Sheehan's

By ARI VAIS
Collegian Staff

Treat Her Right has been described by some as rock's best kept secret. A favorite at last year's spring concert, these rock and roll maddogs hit Sheehan's Cafe tommorrow night.

Though THR appeared on the scene less than four years ago, all four members are rock and roll veterans combinng styles such as country, rockabilly, a dash of rock and R&B. They are best known for redefining classic rock styles and covering everything from Iggy Pop to Kingston Trio.

These self proclaimed cynics offer a bizarre array of instruments in their act. Jim Fitting blows the harp and baritone sax, Billy Conway is a percussionist who's kit often includes merely two or three

continued on page 12

Photo courtesy of Pretty Polly Productions

Treat Her Right, at Sheehan's tomorrow

Discover March's Birthstone In Beautiful Ways

Aquamarine

By David Yurman. Filigree rings $90 pan in 14kt gold, with Aquamarines

silverscape designs

264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-3324
3 Pleasant St., Northampton 584-3324

GOLDSMITHS • GEM GALLERY

Resume Service

• Quality Copies
• Fine Stationery
• Matching Envelopes

kinko's the copy center
253-2543

BRAND NAME SHIRTS
Factory Outlet Prices

247-9681 Shirts
Rt. 5 & 10
Hatfield
Next to Danco

charlie's

1 Pray St., Amherst 549-5403 • Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week • Call for Take Out
Kitchen Open till midnight

New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables
Sunday Night 4 Burger Platters for $5.00
(Fries included -Bring your friends!)
6:00-10:00 pm

Jameson Irish Coffee $1.75 Drink of the Week
Moosehead $1.75 Beer of the Month

FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Mon. 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks 9-12
Tues. 10¢ Buffalo Wings 9-12
Wed. Nacho & Cheese Platters 99¢ 9-12

REGION

Bomb threat arrest may be mistake

BOSTON (AP) — A prominent Lowell businessman arrested in connection with bomb threats made to two airlines may have been mistakenly charged, prosecutors said yesterday.

Investigators are checking on reports that an inmate at the state prison in Concord made the calls, said Dave Rodman, a spokesman for Suffolk County District Attorney Newman Flanagan. He declined to elaborate on the tip.

In light of that development, Suffolk Superior Court Jedge John Irwin agreed to reduce bail to personal recognizance for Robert Costello. The 54-year-old WCAP-AM sales manager was arraigned earlier this week in East Boston District Court on a charge of making a false report on the location of a bomb. He pleaded innocent and bail was then set at $100,000 surety or $10,000 cash.

In asking that bail be reduced, defense attorney Joseph Tosney of Lowell said he had information that would exonerate his client.

Tosney told Irwin he had seen a Lowell Police Department report "that sets forth the time those calls were made." He said that evidence would clear Costello of the charges, but he did not say how.

Costello, who lives in Blandford, is a Marine veteran who serves in the Massachusetts National Guard and chairman of the Downtown Lowell Business Association.

Assistant District Attorney Robert Totchka has said a fellow employee of Costello's overheard him make a threatening call through the station's switchboard.

It was reported that the caller allegedly made the threats in protest against Salman Rushdie's controversial novel, "The Satanic Verses." Rodman said he did not know if the threats centered on the book.

Before the hearing, Costello declined comment on the matter.

Tosney's law partner, Gerald Moore, said the firm believes they know the worker who alleged hearing Costello make one of the threatening calls. He said the district attorney's office had yet to produce a police report on the alleged threats but believed the calls wee placed between 7 pm and 9 pm February 23. Costello was arrested the following day.

AP photo

ESCAPEE JUMP THREAT — George Cahoon, 28, of Quincy, warns state police Jon J. Mahoney to stay back as Cahoon threatens to jump from an overpass yesterday along Route 3, after he escaped from a Norfolk Sheriff Dept. van taking him to Quincy District Court. Cahoon was in hiding for four hours after his escape. Mahoney talked to Cahoon until other officers moved in to grab Cahoon from the overpass.

This Friday OPENING at 9:30 p.m.

It's New Murray D's

Jam with Rack-A-Disc on the highest dance floor in the Valley!

Hot Popcorn $1.00
Draft Beer $1.00

Murray D's CARE Baskets
Choice of Roast Beef, Ham, or Turkey Sandwich with French Fries and a Pickle ...
only $2.50

This Friday & Every Friday from 9:30 pm-12 am
—Eleventh Floor—
Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center

Proper ID Required

■ Treat Her Right

continued from page 11

pieces, David Champagne sings and plays a nasty slide guitar and Mark Sandman, also a vocalist, plays a "low" guitar – a regular six-string that he uses as a bass. Sound interesting?

"I was sick of playing loud," Champagne said. "We decided the only stuff we really liked, and would be worth playing, is the stuff nobody plays anymore — the Chess style, quieter stuff with lots of holes in it." On why Treat her Right don't use a bass guitar, Champagne explains: "A new Fender bass sounds too pushy, too up-front. Whereas on those records (Bo Diddley, Muddy Waters, Slim Harpo, etc). You just hear bass tones and the drums sound far away: it really breathes a lot. By the sixties, it was so formulaic, every song was a 12 bar da-doomp, da-doomp. The kind of record we liked were before the amps got too big."

Balestri on the road to success with Jack

By KARI BODNARCHUK
and PAMELA J. MURPHY
Collegian Correspondents

Kerouac: The Essence of Jack
Hampden Theater
March 1

Twenty years after Jack Kerouac entered the "sea of eternity", he's been brought back to life in the play Kerouac: The Essence of Jack. Wednesday night in the Hampden Theater, the Beat Cafe presented the one man improvisational jazz play performed by veteran actor Vincent Balestri (accompanied on saxophone by Jim Christopher).

Balestri entertained the audience for nearly three hours with his mixture of narration and playacting. His hauntingly realistic portrayal of Kerouac is the product of years of obsessive study.

With frequent readings from Kerouac's works and the use of Kerouac's only published autobiography - on a single sheet of paper - Balestri was able to depict the incidents and hardships of Jack's life from his childhood to his death. Balestri dealt with the trauma and impact of the death of Kerouac's brother and father, his lifelong bout with alcoholism, his struggles as writer, his travels, his three wives and his relationship with his daughter.

Balestri feeds off of his audience and his enthusiasm makes the audience very receptive. At one point, he had the audience call out page numbers, which he used to read from Kerouac's Mexico City Blues. Ther were also instances throughout the play when Balestri stepped out of his character to relate to and directly address his audience. Near the end of the performance, he sat on stage, fielding questions from the audience concerning both Kerouac and himself.

Balestri's infinite knowledge of Kerouac's history and prose are what makes the character so real. His humor and thoughtful analogies added light to the many tragic stories he told.

Using a simple and uncluttered set, Balestri performed in plain street clothes.

At ease, confident and in control of his subject, Balestri is a fascinating actor who portrays the "Daddy of Beat" flawlessly.

See Bruce say no to nukes

By GRAEME THOMSON
Collegian Staff

For the second consecutive year, Physicians for Social Responsibility (PSR) of Pioneer Valley in conjunction with the Iron Horse will produce a concert to benefit PSR. Physicians for Social Responsibility, as U.S. affiliate of International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, was co-recipient of the 1985 Nobel Peace Prize.

PSR's proceeds from the show will be used in an ongoing local campaign to educate the public regarding the futility as well as the unacceptable costs and dangers of the arms race. P.S.R's work has, among other things, been responsible for uncovering links between nuclear arms testing and increased cancer rates.

Recent steps by the U.S. government to escalate the arms race by taking it into space with the Strategic Defense Initiative, (SDI) or "Star Wars," at inestimable cost to the economy, has been a primary focus of PSR Pioneer Valley's work.

***

Bruce Cockburn is an internationally renowned musician and the recipient of 12 Juno Awards, Canada's top award for popular music. Bruce is a master musician. Her demonstrates incredible facility in all styles of the Pop Rock genre. The New York Times called his music "... passionate and textually dazzling."

Cockburn is also one of the most politically active and aware artists on the current scene. The subjects of his songs range from the troubles in the Middle East ("If I Had A Rocket Launcher") to American intervention in Central America. ("Nicaragua"), so it's not surprising that he's now lending his support to such a worthy and politically progressive organisation as P.S.R.

Cockburn's new album, Big Circumstance on Gold Castle Records, has already garnered impressive reviews from the music press.

A $30 tax deductable donation to PSR will place one name on the PSR guest list, including preferred seating and a back stage reception after the show with the Bruce Cockburn band. To be placed on the PSR guest list, call (413) 533-7550, all calls will be returned. General admission tickets are available now at the Iron Horse Cafe. Call (413) 584-0610 to charge general admission tickets by phone.

Some cheap thrills for tight budgets

There's lots of cheap goings on at the colleges this weekend, so if you're short on dough itchin' to get out of your dorm, here's a quick guide.

For starters, Mt. Holyoke's theater department will present Noises Off, which was hailed as one of the best new comedies when it opened on Broadway a few years back. It's at the Rooke Laboratory Theater, and the curtain goes up at 8 tonight, tomorrow, and Sunday. Call for ticket info.

If you're into film, the colleges are also there to deliver. Holyoke's got A Shot in the Dark tonight at 7 and 9 in the Gamble Auditorium. Tomorrow they're showing Five Easy Pieces at the same time in the same place. Call for admission.

Amherst, meanwhile, is showing Dial "M" For Murder tonight and tomorrow at 8 and 10 in their Campus Center Auditorium. Call for admission.

Have a nice weekend!

Photo by George Dubose courtesy of Island Records

READY FOR ACTION-Popular reggae combo Toots and the Maytals go way back, but they're still delighting audiences everywhere. Go see'em live when they hit Pearl St. tonight (upstairs). The show begins at 8 p.m. and will be followed downstirs by a performance by local reggae band, New Horizon.

JB's Roast Beef
50 Main St., Amherst
(across from Police Station)
253-7018
HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES

SOME PEOPLE JUST CAN'T GET ENOUGH....

Dan: I'm one of those people. You see this JB's Super Deluxe Roast Beef Sandwich? Well, in two bites you won't. My buddies call me a JB's addict. Sometimes I try to save them a sandwich, fries or mozzarella sticks, but I never can. Just knowing it's sitting there in the refrigerator drives me mad and I eat it. Oh well! See Ya Later—I'm on my way to JB's for another few Super Deluxe Roast Beef Sandwiches.

(If this is you, take this ad to JB's for a free roast beef sandwich)

KODO
ONE EARTH TOUR
"Electrifying Drums!"
"...a miracle of music"
"...a global phenomenon"
Friday, March 3. 8 p.m.
F.A.C. Concert Hall
Students $9-$11
Call 545-2511
THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

WORLD & NATION

Senate begins Tower debate

AP photo

Defense Secretary-designate John Tower meets with the transition team during a Pentagon luncheon yesterday. Seated at table, counterclockwise, from right are acting Air Force Secretary James McGovern, Deputy Defense Secretary Donald Atwood, Tower, Rhett Dawson, Navy Secretary William Ball, Will Hadley and Paul Stevens.

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Senate began its formal debate on John Tower's troubled nomination as defense secretary yesterday as two additional Democrats joined the ranks of the opposition and a key Republican insisted that confirmation is still "winnable."

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater conceded that despite two days of personal lobbying, President Bush had "not yet" been able to persuade any Democrats to line up in favor of confirmation.

Sen. Sam Nunn led off the long-awaited floor debate on the nomination, and the Georgia Democrat who chairs the Armed Services Committee said he was acting with a "sense of sorrow" in leading the opposition to his former colleague in the Senate.

Nunn said that when the committee began its hearings into Tower's nomination he expected that he would in "good faith support the nominee. My mind was changed by the facts presented to the committee."

Nunn predicted some "vigorous debate" over the next several days a forecast almost certainly to be accurate with Republicans trying to spend time marshaling public support on behalf of the nomination.

No Senate vote is expected until next week.

Tower has been battling questions of drinking habits, allegations of womanizing and questions over possible conflicts of interest stemming from his work as a defense industry consultant.

The debate began as aides to Sens. Alan Cranston of California and Terry Sanford of North Carolina said both men would vote against the nomination - bringing the number of Democrats in opposition to 38.

Appearing on ABC's "Good Morning America" several hours earlier, Sen. John Warner, R-Va., said, "I think it's winnable in the sense that we get the American public involved in this."

"And as soon as this debate starts I'm confident that they'll communicate with the members of the Senate. It's important that we not have a soap opera or a civil war in the Senate but a fair and factual debate," said Warner, the ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee.

Cranston, the Senate Democratic whip, said through an aide that he would vote against the nomination.

An aide to Sanford, Rafe Greenlee, said his boss had come to the same conclusion after "closely following the hearings and reading the FBI report" on Tower's background check.

An Associated Press tally at midday yesterday showed 43 Democrats and Republican Larry Pressler of South Dakota either solidly opposed or leaning in opposition, and 40 Republicans either solidly or leaning in favor.

Fitzwater said bush still believes all allegations against Tower are unfounded.

He praised the nominee's combative appearance on Wednesday at a question-and-answe session at the National Press Club.

Amherst College Presents
HARVI GRIFFIN
Harpist Extraordinaire!

SUNDAY, MARCH 5
8PM $5 Public
$1 Amherst College

SUNDAYS AT EIGHT
in the Campus Center
Info: (413) 542-5773

Coming:
Mark Cross
March 12

This week in Umass Sports
Each Sunday 12:30-1pm
Hosted by Marty Tirrell
on WHAI radio AM 1240 FM 98.3
This week's guest:
Wrap up of UMass Basketball with Coach John Calipari and Umass Baseball Coach Mike Stone

J.Calipari

M.Stone

The UNIVERSITY PLAYERS present
AUDITIONS
for
THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT!
A Musical Extravaganza
March 2 and 3, at 7:30 p.m
in the Campus Center.
Wear hard-soled or tap shoes and dance clothes.
For more information, call 256-0569

HUNAN GOURMET
京 CHINESE RESTAURANT 湘
ADVOCATE BEST OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1988
SECOND PLACE
BEST NEW RESTAURANT
Thanks to the Advocate Readers for voting for us in the Best of the Valley Poll. Even though we were only open for one month when the poll was taken, we are pleased we made such a great impression in such a short time span.
FULL LIQUOR LICENSE
261 King St., Northampton•585-0202•Ample Parking
Open 7 days a week•No MSG
TAKE OUT SERVICE AVAILABLE

Railroad Stores
SALE ENDS MARCH 9TH
RUBIE BOUGHT OVER 84,000 YARDS
TO SELL AT 40% TO 60% OFF AND MORE
ANSO X worry free FROM ALLIED FIBERS
Here's Just A Few Fabrics Included
DUPONT CORFAM STAINMASTER CARPET
BECAUSE OF OUR AGREEMENT WITH SHAW WE CAN'T ADVERTISE THE BRAND NAMES!
RUGS RUGS RUGS!
ALL FIRST QUALITY
VALUES $10.00 TO $40.00 SQUARE YARD
3500 ROLLS OF CARPET! That's what Rubie Bought!
And it includes all the most wanted colors and fabrics Shaw sells the Dealer what he needs AND WE GET THE REST!
GREAT SELECTIONS OF COLORS
NOW YOU PAY $6 TO $16 SQ. YD.
SIZES FROM 9'x12' TO 12'x28'
SOFA LOVESEAT AND CHAIR
3 PC LIVINGROOM Value $595 NOW $288.88
NEW SPRING FASHION PLUS SIZE
LADIES SPLIT SKIRT
Solids • Stripes Poly Rayon Sizes 32-40 Machine Washable
Value $15 NOW $8
RELATED SEPARATES
Values $20 to $30 NOW $14
POLY COTTON BLEND
Red • Black • White and Prints • All Mix & Match
Sizes 32-40 36-44
LADIES DANSKIN SPRING SKIRT
ONE SIZE FITS ALL NOW $3.00 EACH
MATTRESS AND FOUNDATION
TWIN SIZE $49 EA. FULL SIZE $59 EA.
MUST BE BOUGHT AS MATCHED SETS
5 PC PINE DINETTE SETS $148
FINAL CLEARANCE VALUE $30-$40
WINTER SWEATERS $4.88
25% OFF OUR PRICES
EVERY COMFORTER SHAM & DUST RUFFLE
FOR EXAMPLE FULL SIZE COMFORTER Our Reg. $26.99 NOW $20.24
27" WIDE VINYL RUNNER WORKS GREAT ON CARPET WITH GRIPPER BACKING Value $1.69/FT NOW 89¢ FT
SPECIAL PURCHASE
ELEGANT JACQUARD DRAPERIES
Seamist • Tearose • Lt Blue
48"x63" Value $19.95-$22.95
48"x72" NOW $11.88 PAIR
48"x84"
MATCHING 96"x84" Value $49.95 NOW $32.99
E-Z FIT LINEN LITE WINDOW SHADES
TRANSLUCENT HEAVY GAUGE WASHABLE VINYL FILTERS OUT LIGHT
Cloud White or Amber Color inside
White Outside
TRIM AT HOME 37¼"x6'
Value $4.95 NOW $2.50 EACH
1131 CAMPBELL AVE EXIT 43 OFF I-95 WEST HAVEN CONNECTICUT MON-SAT 10-9 SUNDAY 10-6 933-5468
ROUTE 5 EAST WINDSOR CONNECTICUT MON-SAT 10-9 SUNDAY 10-6 623-3358
ROUTE 184 GROTON CONNECTICUT MON-SAT 10-9 SUNDAY 10-6 445-8581
HAMPSHIRE MALL ROUTE 9 HADLEY MASSACHUSETTS MON-SAT 10-9 SUNDAY 12-5 586-7248
1 CANAL STREET TURNERS FALLS MASSACHUSETTS MON-SAT 10-9 SUNDAY 10-6 863-4343

Britain rejects Iran proposal for discussion

LONDON (AP)— The government today rejected an Iranian proposal to discuss the controversy over "The Satanic Verses," saying there is nothing to talk about until Iran renounces violence.

News reports said a television newsman was being guarded after threats from an anonymous caller who accused him of insulting Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

An Iranian newspaper called for a worldwide "day of disgust" so Moslems can demonstrate their "hatred against the enemies of Islam."

An Arab writer who last year won the Nobel Prize for literature urged Moslem countries to condemn Khomeini's death sentence against author Salman Rushdie but also proposed publishers of "The Satanic Verses" be boycotted.

The Soviet news agency Tass suggested Khomeini may have had no choice under the law of Islam but to denounce Rushdie.

A spokesman for Britain's Foreign Office said there were telephon calls "at an official level" Wednesday and again today proposing a meeting in Geneva.

The Foreign Office did not identify its Iranian contact, but BBC television said it understood the contact was Mohammad Mehdi Akhoond Zadeh Basti, who until this week was Iran's top-ranking diplomat in London.

"We saw no merit to a meeting at this stage," said the Foreign Office spokesman, who demanded anonymity. "The first step must be for Iran to renounce violence."

Khomeini sentenced Rushdie to death Feb. 14 for his novel, which some say insults Islam. Rushdie, a Briton who was born into a Moslem family in India, apologized for distress the book caused, but Khomeini rejected the apology.

Iranian leaders have offered a $5.2 million bounty for Rushdie, who since Feb. 14 has been in hiding and reportedly under police guard.

News reports said Channel Four newsman Peter Sissons was also under guard after a man claiming to represent a pro-Iranian group, Guardians of the Islamic Revolution, threatened him.

The anonymous caller telephoned news agencies in London last week claiming Sissons insulted Khomeini in a program Friday. "Peter Sissons of Channel Four will pay the price of insulting the Imam Khomeini," the caller said.

During the propgram, Sissons interviewed Basti and asked, "Do you understand that we don't regard it as civilized to kill people for their opinions? Do you understand that people in this country fought a world war to protect themselves and others from being murdered for their beliefs?"

Soviets form fourth group to investigate massacre

BYKOVNIA, U.S.S.R (AP)— The Soviet Union has formed another commission to determine whether thousands of bodies found in a mass grave outside this Ukrainian village were killed by the Nazis or Josef Stalin's secret police.

Three previous Soviet investigations have blamed German forces who occupied the area from 1941-43, but elderly residents of this village near Kiev recently broke 50 years of silence on the matter. They blamed their government for the bodies-up to 300,00 by one unofficial estimate-buried in the forest.

One witness, Petro Z. Kukovenko, 74, says he summoned the courge to speak after a Soviet commission reburied the bones and erected a memorial in May blaming the Nazis for the killing.

"My father may be buried there," said Kukoivenko's wife, Halyna. "My father was a collective farmer, and they killed him for nothing," she sobbed.

Western historian estimate 20 million Soviets were killed under Stalin, particularly during the Great Purge of the late 1930's.

But it was only in 1987 the Soviet government, as part of the reforms instituted under President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, began to admit that Stalin was responsible for even thousands of deaths.

Mikola G. Lysenko, a retired economist, is crusading to end what he considers a conspiracy of lies. In December, he succeeded in forcing the government to form a fourth commission to find the murderers.

Lysenko said that 50 villagers say the bodies were killed before the German occupation.

All four commissions have involved officials with connections to the secret police, Lysenko said.

Kukovenko lived through that terrible time from 1936 to 1941, when canvas-covered trucks hauled their mysterious cargo to the green-fenced compound in the Darnitsia Forest. Excavation has found the remains of thousands of Soviets in the pits.

Government estimates range from 6,000 to 68,000 bodies, but Lysenko estimates 200,000 to 300,000.

■ men's hoop

continued from page 20

But Smith isn't concerning himself with rankings.

"I was reading the paper the other day," Smith said, "and they were talking about teams' chances in the tournament. They basically said we had none. But I'm not going to think of it as playing Temple or even Oklahoma. We're just going to take on the players who are out there against us."

Tomorrow, Smith and his teammates will face a team that has gone 4-20 in its playoff history.

The Minutemen have been led this year by freshman forward Jim McCoy, who averages 19.3 points per game. But two nights ago, the Pittsburgh native had an uncharacteristically ordinary night, scoring just 13.

"I think you'll see a different Jim McCoy in the tournament," Calipari said. "He's going to want to show the people in Philly that he can play."

One UMass player who already did that is sophomore guard rafer Giles, who scored 25 Wednesday night. Giles has averaged 18 pppg in his last three games.

His backcourt partner, freshman Anton Brown, averages 12.9 ppg.

John Tate and John Milum join McCoy in the frontcourt.

The Hawks are led by senior guard Brian Leahy, who averages 16.4 points per game and Smith, who averages 13.8.

Smith led St. Joe's with 19 points in a losing effort when these teams first met Feb. 13 in Amherst.

Tate had 17 points in that game, as the Minutemen fought off a second-half Hawk comeback for a 72-68 win.

So this will be the rubber game between UMass and St. Joe's.

Both teams will be trying to prolong their seasons. And the Minutemen will be trying to make this stay here longer than the last one.

Collegian photo by Jason Talierman

The UMass men's hoop team takes on St. Joe's tomorrow in first-round A-10 tourney action.

■ Richards

continued from page 20

With one of the biggest wins in school history under its belt, UMass breezes past Penn State, 92-83, and into the conference final against Temple.

McCoy pours in 32 points and fellow freshman guard Anton Brown nets 24, as the Minutemen stun John Chaney's Owls with a 89-68 victory. The University of Massachusetts is headed to its first NCAA men's basketball tournament in 27 years. Says Chaney after the game: "If they play like that, they can play with anyone."

. . . and bigger . . .

Instantly, UMass is the subject of much attention — all bad. As Brent Musburger points to the East region pairings on that huge, wonderful chart of his, he says, "And Georgetown, the top seed in the East, has the luxury of playing Massachusetts in its first game." Billy Packer chuckles.

What Packer, the Hoyas and the rest of the country don't realize is that the Basketball God is keeping an eye out for the Minutemen. John Milum, playing as if he has sold his soul to the devil, scores 28 points and pulls down 21 rebounds. Brown makes a tournament-record 19 steals. Georgetown is still Georgetown, though, and leads, 67-66, with time running out.

The inbounds pass goes to little-used center Ben Grodski, who is playing only because Milum and John Tate have fouled out. Hoya Jaren Jackson inexplicably fouls Grodski, who heads to the line with one second left. The Big Guy's first shot rattles off the front of the rim, takes a crazy bounce, rolls around, around, around and down. Grodski then cooly hits the second, sending John Thompson to the showers and the Pioneer Valley into a delirious frenzy.

. . . and bigger . . .

The Minutemen are now regulars on ESPN and become overnight heroes. Says Chris Berman: "Jimmy 'Bones' McCoy scored 26 as Cinderella UMass beat Iowa, 89-82." In the next round, Dick Vitale declares, "UMass gets another big game out of Big John Tate. He's on my all-Ugly Duckling team. Started out slow, but now he is a PTP all the way, baby." UMass beats N.C. State, 101-84.

Syracuse in the regional final? No problem. George Hardin comes off the bench to score 27, including the game-winner with :10 to play. Minutemen dump Orangemen, 87-85.

The national media flock to Amherst wanting to know more about this team and its school. They ask about Duane and Beetle, they ask about race riots, they ask about bricks falling off the library, but mostly they ask about basketball — UMass basketball.

. . . until it cannot be stopped.

UMass is thrown into a frenzy. Channel 22 decides to originate its newscasts for Final Four week from the Cage. Dave Madsen is here. Beth Carroll. Yes, even Sy Becker. Amherst youth are turning in their skateboards for basketballs. Classes are cancelled for the whole week.

Brent Musburger: "We are LIVE from Seattle where the UMass Minutemen will play Stacey King, Mookie Blaylock and Oklahoma for the NCAA title. By rights, the Sooners should be a 35-to-40-point favorite, but who can pick against the Minutemen, the darlings of the basketball, indeed, the entire sports world."

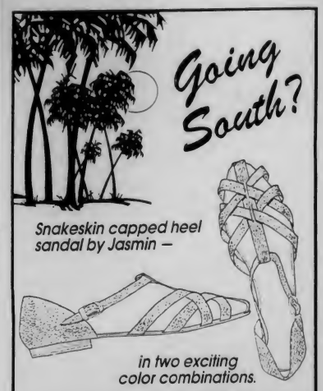
It could happen. Couldn't it?

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring: Imported Beers at Domestic Pricing:
Starting NOW! Until??
Foster's 12 oz. Bottles.....$14.95 case +dep.
Beck's Light or Dark
12 oz. Bottles.....$14.99 case +dep.
Moosehead 12 oz. Bottles $12.99 case +dep.
YES! We have all your Favorite Domestics
Example: BUSCH 12-Pack cans $5.40 $ dep.
KEG BEER ALWAYS IN STOCK
WE DELIVER 253-5441
OFF CAMPUS
2 liter Watney's Light
(5 oz. less than a 6-pack) was $4.49
Now $2.99 ea.
Case of 6 bottles $12.70 $ dep.
While they last!
Super Liquor Buys:
Captain Morgan "Spiced Rum".....$6.99 750 ml
Smirnoff Vodka 80°.....$6.99 750 ml.
Absolute Vodka 80°.....$10.99 750 ml.
Peach Schnapps.....$3.99 750 ml.
Russell's Has Your Favorite Wines & Coolers
Glen-Ellen White Zinfandels.....3 bots. $10.00
Sun Country wine coolers.....$2.99 2 Liter bot.
MANY, MANY MORE — AND ALL COLD!!
Quantity discounts always available

ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31
KAY JEWELERS
ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31
The diamond people
STUDENTS TAKE ADDITIONAL
10% OFF ALL SALE PRICED JEWELRY
With any valid student ID
INSTANT CREDIT AVAILABLE
Hampshire Mall, Hadley
MON-SAT: 10-9:30; SUN: 12-5

SALE • SALE

SPRING BREAK SALE
10%-60% OFF
SATURDAY CLOTHES
197 N.PLEASANT ST
Dowtown Amherst
OPEN 7 DAYS



north pleasant street, amherst 253-2563 daily 10-6 sunday 12-5 parking in rear - open friday eves

BUDGET TRAVEL CENTER
Cheapest Fares to
• EUROPE
• ASIA
• AUSTRALIA/ NEW ZEALAND
LONDON FRANKFURT PARIS SYDNEY TOKYO AMSTERDAM AUCKLAND HONG KONG
Plus railpasses, international student ID tours and much more. Ask for our free travel catalog
COUNCIL TRAVEL
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002

SUN FUN

Is readin', writin' and 'rithmatic driving you

Crazee ?

SPRING BREAK

'89

When U break, break with style;
do it with Vandy and Mike!

Utah	$450	Bermuda	$439
Killington	$259	Barbados	$525

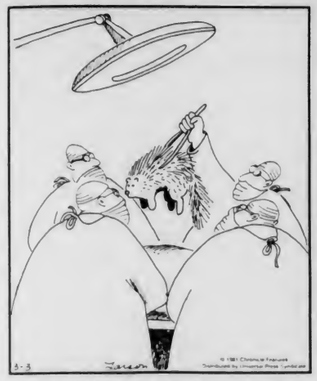
New lodging now available

PARTY

UMASS SKI CLUB

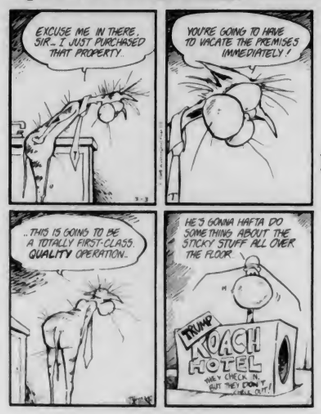
SKI

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



"Well, I guess this explains the abdominal pains."

BLOOM COUNTY
By BERKE BREATHED



EXCUSE ME, IN THERE, SIR... I JUST PURCHASED THAT PROPERTY
YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE TO VACATE THE PREMISES IMMEDIATELY!
..THIS IS GOING TO BE A TOTALLY FIRST-CLASS, QUALITY OPERATION.
HE'S GONNA HAFTA DO SOMETHING ABOUT THE STICKY STUFF ALL OVER THE FLOOR.
TRUMP TOUCH HOTEL

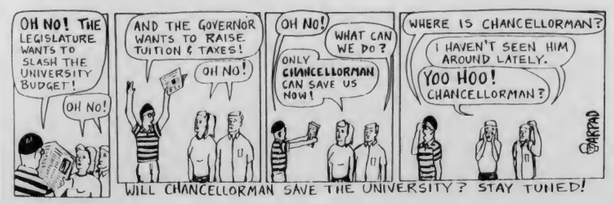
CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

HOBBES, I DID IT! I ATE ENOUGH BOXES OF CEREAL TO GET ALL THE PROOF OF PURCHASE SEALS I NEED!
NOW I CAN ORDER MY BEANIE! OH, BOY! I CAN'T WAIT TO GET IT! I'LL BE SO COOL!
NOT FOR OVER A MONTH. IT SAYS TO ALLOW SIX WEEKS FOR DELIVERY!
SIX WEEKS ?!?
I'LL BE OLD THEN!
AND I'M SURE YOUR BEANIE WILL BE THE TALK OF THE REST HOME

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

YOUR MOTHER CALLED TODAY. SHE WAS WORRIED ABOUT OUR CHILD CARE SITUATION.
WHAT DID YOU TELL HER?
BUZZZ!
I'LL GET IT.
I TOLD HER ABOUT ZONKER.
OH, MICHAEL, YOU DIDN'T!
UH... WHY? SHOULDN'T I HAVE?
I'VE COME FOR MY GRANDCHILD
MOTHER, IT'S UNDER CONTROL. GO HOME.

CHANCELLORMAN
By AL ARPAD



OH NO! THE LEGISLATURE WANTS TO SLASH THE UNIVERSITY BUDGET!
OH NO!
AND THE GOVERNOR WANTS TO RAISE TUITION & TAXES!
OH NO!
OH NO!
ONLY CHANCELLORMAN CAN SAVE US NOW!
WHAT CAN WE DO?
WHERE IS CHANCELLORMAN?
I HAVEN'T SEEN HIM AROUND LATELY.
YOO HOO! CHANCELLORMAN?
WILL CHANCELLORMAN SAVE THE UNIVERSITY? STAY TUNED!

YEASTHEAD
By JASON TALERMAN

Sludge's private hell.
a lifetime of maladjustment,
SOME NOISE LIKE: IN THE LAND OF THE BLIND THE ONE EYED MAN IS KING
but even in a failed experiment lies knowledge.
yeh.
the settlement
END

ETC.

"Historians are like deaf people who go on answering questions that no one has asked them."

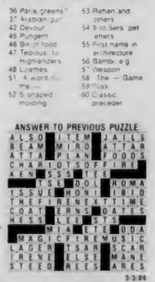
-- Leo Tolstoy

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

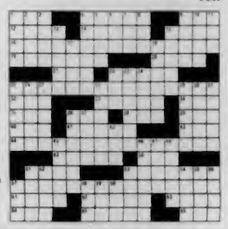
ACROSS
1 Beaut
4 Speechify
9 Smee gal
12 Oop's mate
14 Summer TV fare
15 To the — (fully)
16 Actress Gudrun and trumpeter Rumpeter
19 Pass by a grader
20 Sitora sign
21 Cow of long
22 Phone feeder
25 Two singers and an actress
32 DOE's command
33 To tail — rabbit
Umamuno
34 Snip's diary
35 Convene
36 Goin' to a brake
38 Beard of grain
39 Fighter Leif —
40 Me —
41 Mosiem prince
43 Fabray to friends
44 Two actresses and a letter
49 Art joke?
50 Author Levin
51 Webster entry
53 Encouraged
57 Actress Marshall and a Rock group member
61 Second hand
62 Epsilome
63 Beget
64 Formerly (salad)
65 Lasso part
66 In place of

DOWN
1 It is, once
2 New Rochelle school
3 Map
4 Overly adorned
5 Genuine
6 Parsenghian of football
7 Cask
8 Lineman
9 Splendid
10 An Alda
11 Utmost
13 Omnivore, e.g.
15 Wished
17 Exam
18 River to the Dead Sea
22 Actor Richardson
23 Ribbed woolen cloth
24 Sufficient to means
25 Seed coat
26 Part forlower
27 — your title!
28 David of films and sin
29 A Masses
30 — -is an inland Donna
31 Capital of Guam
36 Paris greens
37 Arabian gulf
42 Devour
45 Pungent
46 Bit of food
47 Tedious to highlanders
48 Loathes
51 A word to the —
52 S-shaped molding
53 Rehan and others
54 9-to-5ers, pet peeves
55 First name in architecture
56 Bambi, e.g.
57 Weapon
58 The — Game
59 Floss
60 Classic preceder

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE



3-3-89



TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friendship may turn to love. New career opportunities arise. You discover something about a relationship that makes you appreciate it even more. Travel proves highly productive. You make valuable new contacts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spike an annoying individual's guns by ignoring him. You will have to make the next move if you want to get a relationship rolling again. Family ties become even stronger in times of crisis.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may receive more mail than you know what to do with. You will feel as if you have the key to the universe after talking to a family member at a distance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Helping a partner feel more self-sufficient will improve your relationship. Romance is happier and more exciting. Your work hours grow, but so does your job satisfaction. Focus on long-range goals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Clean off your desk, return phone calls and pay bills. You feel as if a giant load has been lifted from your shoulders. Do whatever you can to reduce office tensions. Follow up on important leads.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get rid of worn-out ideas and negative companions. You are in a marvelous position to advance your family goals. Resolve a financial dispute before someone takes legal action. Show a willingness to compromise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get all the facts straight before making a decision that involves money or time. Your creative efforts will be rewarded in ways you never dreamed possible. Partner wants to help.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Caring and sharing will bring you new options. Your ambitions are fired by great creative ideas. Give free reign to your imagination. Keep your work timetable in mind. Tune out distractions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are in a generous, helpful mood. Considerate gestures endear you to family and business associates alike. No daydreaming on the job, though. It is time to get down to brass tacks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do what you can to help a friend become self-sufficient. Focus on long-term goals. Financial security is the key to less strain and struggle. Today's events give you a brilliant idea.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Taking a serious new step puts you ahead of the crowd. Avoid romantic games. Partner plays a vital role in your happiness now. Wear your heart on your sleeve.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your intuition is on target where finances are concerned, but it could put you on the wrong track when it comes to romance. Recycle old projects for new profits. Cut daily expenses.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Clam roll B.L.T. sandwich	Spagetti & meatballs Baked haddock
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Cheese sandwich Clam roll	Baked haddock Hi-pro spagetti & tofu balls

Ambrose

continued from page 20

goofing off or sleeping at home, Ambrose and her teammates were working hard on campus and also developing the camaraderie that is the earmark of this team. She says, "Intersession turned out to be a lot of fun. It was a lot of hard work. Usually the mornings were our hardest workouts and we would lift and do some distance work in the afternoons. It paid off so much. We were working so hard every week and we were working through meets. She kept on telling us, 'It will pay off in February and March,' and it did.

"It was a chance to get to know everyone that you knew the face to, but not the name. At first, it was a little hard breaking the ice. But the track team is so friendly, so supportive. They are just the nicest group of girls I've ever known. It's so great to go to a meet, and they're cheering you on and they always have a nice word to say."

The word that first comes to mind when talking about Lee Ann Ambrose is competitive. LaFreniere, who coached Ambrose for three years at Gardner High before being reunited, says, "She is very competitive and she does not like to have anyone in front of her. She's not afraid of the competition."

In fact, Ambrose called her matchup against Brown University's Terri Smith (a 53-second quartermiler who was invited to the Olympic trials) "a privilege. I was so excited because I finally had somebody who would push me and make me go." According to LaFreniere, it was Lee Ann's best race, and according to herself, it was her favorite race of the year.

"In the race, I stayed behind [Smith] and I kept up with her, but in the last 100 yards, she just took off." That race seems to capture Ambrose's spirit and enthusiasm for track.

She jokes, "If I wasn't running, I'd be sleeping in the afternoon, watching soaps, and getting fat. It's just a great way to stay in shape. I'm really competitive and I just love to compete. Running just makes college that much more fun."

Ambrose fell in love with UMass when she visited during her senior year and she hasn't regretted it once. "Julie was a big factor in coming here. She just said, 'I think you should run here.' So I came up here for a visit and I just loved it. I already knew the coach, I knew what was expected of me as a runner, and I liked the team when I came up here."

When the questions start turning back to track and more specifically to her specialty — the 400 meters, Ambrose's light and happy mood turned a bit more serious.

"I honestly think I've never been in better shape than I'm in right now. I'm running 56 quarters now and I know I have it in me to do a 54. I just know inside, I can do it. A lot of running is mental; if you think can then you will be able to."

Lee changes back to a more relaxed mood. She laughs, "My goal is to break 54 and not get moved to the half mile. I figure if I run fast enough in the quarter, then Julie won't move me there."

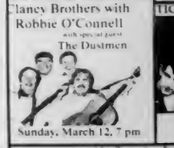
When asked about what keeps her going in the 400, one can just see the sudden change of tone in her voice and also in the intensity of her eyes. She says, "I used to hate it, I used to love the 200. But now I just love the quarter and I really want to work on it to get my times down.

"It's because I haven't hit that 'wall' yet, that certain point in a race when you can't do any better and there's no way you can lower your time anymore. I just feel that in the quarter, I haven't hit that wall yet and I'm just waiting to. It's going to take some time, take some more practice, take a lot of work, but I know I'm going to be able to break it someday. I think that's why I like it so much because every meet, I've been getting a little better and a little better. Inside I just know I haven't hit that wall yet."

PARAMOUNT
Performing Arts Center
17 Main Street, Springfield, MA 01103

SIS and Digital Equipment Corporation Present
Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble
Saturday, March 11
8 pm
on behalf of YMA Foundation of Pioneer Valley and its affiliates

Clancy Brothers with Robbie O'Connell
with special guest
The Dustmen



Sunday, March 12, 7 pm

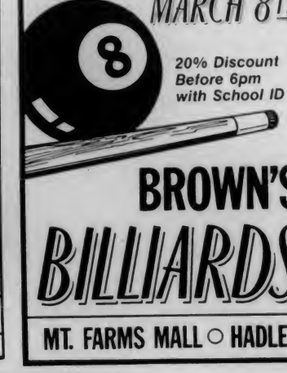
TICKETS ON SALE FEB. 2

THE FIXX
Sunday, April 2

An Outspoken Evening with
MORTON DOWNEY, JR.! May 6

Tickets available at the Paramount Box Office (413) 734-5874
All Ticketron Outlets and Television 1-800-382-8080

OPENING MARCH 8TH



20% Discount Before 6pm with School ID

BROWN'S BILLIARDS
MT. FARMS MALL ○ HADLEY

R-R-R-Ring

Hi! I'm Scott Webber, your AT&T student Campus Manager here at UMass.

I would like to tell you how AT&T can help answer any of your long distance questions. The best time to reach me is between 1:00pm and 3:00pm, but you can call anytime
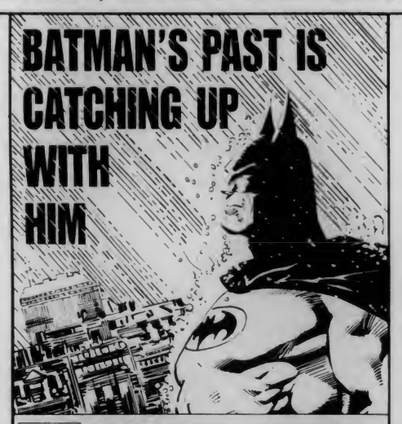
546-4741

AUCTION!
SATURDAY, MARCH 4 12:00 - 3:00 PM

BATMAN'S PAST IS CATCHING UP WITH HIM



Commemorating fifty years of The Batman in print

DETECTIVE BATMAN
"BLIND JUSTICE"
By Sam Hamm (screenwriter of the Batman movie)
Bruce Wayne is charged with treason in Detective Comics #598 (on sale the 50th Anniversary issue #603)
Detective #598 ships in February

BATMAN
"THE MANY DEATHS OF THE BATMAN"
By John Byrne
Batman's teachers are murdered—one by one
In Batman #433, 434 and 435
Batman #433 ships on March

AVAILABLE AT
SAME BAT CHANNEL
AT THE HAMPSHIRE MALL
COMICS, BASEBALL CARDS & GAMES
Preview of items on auction on Friday
NO MINIMUM BID!

All titles characters, related indicia and DC Super are trademarks of DC Comics Inc. 1989

THE LAUNDRY CLUB

Are you a designated Dorm?
Watch for our DORM DAY DEAL!
...and catch our SPECIAL PRICES on pick-up & Delivery Service!
Look for our Flyers in your Dorm!

6 UNIVERSITY DRIVE/NEWMARKET CENTER/AMHERST/(413) 549-2640

men's gymnastics

continued from page 20

"This meet will go down as the most important meet of the season at this point in the season," Johnson said.

Both teams have lost to Navy. But UMass is ranked No. 3 in the Eastern region as well as No. 17 in the nation while Syracuse is the No. 6 team in the East and 26th in the country. Add to that the home gym advantage for UMass and the Minutemen should be labeled as the favorite in tomorrow's meet.

But the favorite does not always win. The last thing the Minutemen need right now is an upset by Syracuse. A loss would virtually erase any hopes the Minutemen have of winning the league championship. UMass is not taking Syracuse lightly. Business has to be taken care of.

"I think we can win the EIGL Championship," Johnson said. "I think we have to pull the whole team together after the Syracuse meet. We'll have to look at where we are and pull the team together to do it. But right now, we're focusing on the Syracuse meet. We're not looking ahead. Syracuse is the next goal."

The Minutemen should have no problem focusing on this meet, not after what happened last year up in New York. The Orangemen beat UMass by less than a point last year. The Minutemen actually led going into the horizontal bar which was the last event of the afternoon. So the revenge factor should also come into play.

The Orangemen have been led by Craig Scholnick who is averaging 52.7 in the all-around competition and are coming off a loss last weekend to Navy. The Minutemen on the other hand have beaten their last five opponents, their last loss being almost a month ago.

During that streak though, the Minutemen were never really at full strength. Injuries to Jay Ronayne and John Eggers left the team a little shorthanded but tomorrow both of them will be back.

UMass racked up its highest score of the year last week as they combined for a 265.1, less than three points off the school record of 267.75.

But that was without Eggers, who had to sit out the still ring and horizontal bar competition because of a sore that opened up on his arm. Eggers is one of UMass' top performers in each of those events.

"He's all set," Johnson said. "He swung yesterday and he looked real good."

Eggers confirmed that.

"It's feeling good," Eggers said. "It's healed. I did sets yesterday (Wednesday) on rings for the first time in a week and a half."

It will probably feel even better for Eggers and the rest of the Minutemen if they beat Syracuse tomorrow.

women's hoop

continued from page 20

Of course, Grentz has never been known around the league for her congeniality, and didn't make much of an effort to win over any friends this year either.

Still, UMass can look to the fact that it played a national power to a 33-all draw in the second half.

"What we ran out there, if we ran it right for two halves, we would have been in the ballgame," Hewelt said.

UMass could also say this game was a lot less embarassing than the teams' first encounter in January, a 96-57 humiliation on Rutgers' part.

"The bottom line is that we can look at it as a moral victory, because we cut into the point spread," Hewelt said.

But if point spreads were the only factor, a lot of teams would be much better than they are. The scoreboard still remains the one that tells the tale. And last night, for the 12th straight game, Rutgers was on the heavy side.

UMass will now face St. Joseph's tomorrow in the final regular season game (2 p.m. at the Cage), and then will host St. Bonaventure Monday night in the first round of the Atlantic 10 tournament.

women's gymnastics

continued from page 20

regional meet dimmed a bit.

UMass huddled, and re-emerged last Saturday against Springfield, breaking the all time school scoring record in front of a large home crowd. "We just turned it on," said coach Alfie Mitchell, "we were great.

"We could still improve, but I honestly believe we're at the right point of the season to do what we have to do. It could have come a little sooner, but better late than never."

The Minutewomen are currently the 10th ranked team in the Northeast region, according to the National Association of Collegiate Gymnastics Coaches for Women. UMass needs to leap up to at least the seventh slot — currently reserved for Northeastern University — to qualify for the regional meet.

Rutgers comes to town as the 15th ranked team in the Northeast.

The Minutewomen have been boosted of late by the resurgence of all-arounder Erika Baxter, and the efforts of freshman Debbie Schultz on the uneven bars. Baxter is on track to qualify individually for the Regional meet, while Schultz has gradually fought to make a name for herself amidst the crowded crop of high-scoring freshmen.

"She could go even higher," said Mitchell of Schultz, who registered a 9.4 on bars against Springfield.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN BUSINESS OFFICE, 113 CAMPUS CENTER, TO PLACE A CLASSIFIED. CASH ONLY. 20 WORDS/DAY $2.00 PREPAID.

ACTIVITIES

NXA FRIDAY NIGHT VIDEO 3/3 Harold and Maude In front Lounge of Newman Center. All welcome FREE

LEARN TO JUGGLE! We can teach you to juggle within ½ hour! Juggling Club meets today, 3-6, in CC 165.

FIGHTING FOR THOSE WHO CANNOT. Find out how you can help. Animal Rights Coalition meeting Mar 5 7pm ARC Room SUB

ATTENTION NURSING STUDENTS come to an informal discussion on Womens Health issues March 3 1pm-4pm CC803.

GRAYSON HOUSE COUNCIL is on the move! Stop by our regular weekly meetings Sundays 7:30pm Main Lounge Join the Action

ATTENTION UMASS PAGANS, witches, etc. Weekly meeting Sunday 7pm CC165 UMass Pagan students.org. Info? Call Cady 66293 or Alyxs 1-669-3153.

THE UNIVERSITY PLAYERS will hold auditions for 'That's Entertainment! A Musical Extravaganza' tonight at 7:30pm in CC Room 101

BOARD OF GOVERNORS Elections taking place March 14 Nomination Papers available 817 Campus Center - Due March 9 Join us in working toward a better union

A CHRISTIAN PERSPECTIVE on Foreign Policy Tonight, Campus Center room number listed for Maranatha Ministries Meeting starts at 7:30pm Refreshments

PEOPLE TO PLAY strategy games/wars and allies Call Kevin 584-7376

ANNOUNCING THE FINANCE AND INVESTMENT CLUB'S inaugural gathering of 1989 featuring elections and social events planning New members graciously welcomed Thursday @ 30-7:30pm SOM lobby Don't let it be another extracurricular/less semester.

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUDIO

MARANTZ SPEAKERS 60 watts 6 mos old 150 or BO Cal for more info 546-6524 Leave message

AUTO FOR SALE

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500 00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CAL BEGS

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO MY DEAR FRIEND Carolyn Begley?! Roses are red, violets are blue, I am Bueno and so are you! Have a great brunch with Tom Joe and Ruth Justine! Love, Beth

CHILD CARE

FAMILY DAY OPENINGS: Warm, happy environment 665-4501

FELICE INDINDOLI

HAPPY 20th BIRTHDAY! Here's to popcorn, late-night-giggles, crushes, and roxy music

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances 256-8526

FOR RENT

IN SUNDERLAND, free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Secure and apartment for August and receive August rent free. For more details call 665-3856. Sign up early.

FOR SALE

SHARP PC 5000 with modem, manuals, completely portable perfect condition $400 323-7147

ANSWER MACHINE EX CONDITION $40 and Sony 5" TV Call 546-5354

SI SWIMSUIT VIDEO $15 and Sony Walkman $25 546-5354

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES Amherst two year old income property, positive cash flow (gross rental income 18,000/yr). live rent free and make spending money too! Call Dale 253-9949

2 RNDTRIP TCKS LOGAN/MIAMI Leaves 3/17 return 3/25 $300 00 each 665-7836 or 665-4257

APPLE IIc COMPUTER, imagewriter, personal modem 1200, monitor, xtra drive, joystick, mouse, software $650 Call John 256-0893, message

TWIN MATTRESS W/BOX SPRING, some bedding very good condition $125 or B/O Call 549-4047 days eves ask 9

GUITAR WASHBURN ACCOUSTIC w/case $200 Call 253-7387

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles. Call 256-8369

FOUND

FOUND A PAIR OF HEAVY RED MITTENS WITH RED FURRY LINING about two weeks ago and just kept forgetting to put in a classified about it. If yours, just call 549-6656 and ask for "M" or leave a message

ENTERTAINMENT

HIRE "ONE EYED JAKE" A great Rock and Roll band call steve 546-5106 Tom 253-7517

GET OUTTA' HERE

ROBERTA It's been a blast (hardly)! Happy 28th! Shots and yahtzee at the TOC next semester? OOPS...not us! Good luck You're an FB! Love Pat and Scott!

HELP!!!

IN NEED OF EXPERIENCED Tutor in C Prog/Turbo C Please call ASAP!!$$$paid 323-7801

HELP WANTED

FOREIGN AREA SPECIALISTS!!! Several multi-national corporations currently seeking foreign graduate students/researchers as associate advocate/researchers on scientific, economic, and political developments in their home countries. To be considered, send cover letter/resume to International Investment Analysis Group, 40 Wall Street, Suite 2124, New York, NY 10005

BOARD OF GOVERNORS is hiring the following coordinator positions: 2 assistant office, 1 public relations, 1 finance, 1 special projects Applications available 817 Campus Center

THIS PAST SUMMER 350 College Students took a Management position gaining exceptional business skills. Average summer earnings $10,740 1-800-922-5579

MIKE'S WESTVIEW HIRING - 56 hour Cleaning person to work mornings, 2-3 hours per day, 4 days per week Call Tom 253-9202

HEY MINETEEN!

JOSH KRANCER- Happy birthday bro! Just think, this is the last B-Day we'll spend in school together. Have fun & don't eat too much cake (I know you won't drink too much.) -Jen

INSTRUCTION

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE Intermediate course Tuesday/Thursday 7-9pm. 3/28-5/4, $115 546-4576

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on March 6 from 3:30-4:30 in room 917 Campus Center. (545-1995)

LOST

PINK MONOPOLY WATCH lost Feb 23 in Bartlett Aud. If found please call Maura at 256-0263

I LOST MY BLUE PADAGONIA AT 2E Brandywine Wednday Night. It has my keys in the pocket and I need them. Any info, please call 549-9925. No questions asked Ask for Mo

LOST EYEGLASSES in black case on 2-28-89 If found please call Renita 546-4219

GREY SUIT JACKET AT CHANGES Night of Su Club Party 2/19/89 If found call 6-8162 or 6-6971 Reward

A BROWN LEATHER JACKET with wallet and all of my ID's in it. No questions asked Just please return wallet, ID's are hard to recover Bill Chandler 217 Washington 546-8943

LOST STERLING ID BRACELET $25 Reward 586-2573 Please call

GOLD METAL RIMMED EYEGLASSES in black case Lost on 2/25 Please call 546-9485

MUSICIANS

MUSICIANS INTERESTED in doing something different 546-6665 (Brian)

NEED CASH!

GET SOME SPRING BREAK money before it's too late!! Sell me your baseball cards Call Todd anytime 549-6361

NEED EXTRA CASH

WE ARE LOOKING FOR MOTIVATED individuals to fill the position of Campus Sales Representative. Earn hourly wage plus commission. 549-2871

LET US PREPARE YOUR 1988 TAX RETURN today - you'll have your refund in a month. Computerized returns, professionally prepared for only $10. 549-2871

PERSONALS

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE NEWEST PLEDGES OF ALPHA CHI OMEGA:
Kathy, Julie, Julie, Christine, Tracey, Kim, Laura, Debbie, Kim, Ellen, Laura, Jill, Amy, Erin, Holly, Jordan, Courtney, and Andrea. We love you all and are so lucky to have you. Stay tuned for an incredible semester.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY LARA DMYTRYSHYN (Whew!!) Your sisters love you very much. Oh, and don't forget to return the telephone messages you got from Ethel, Amy, Nellie, and the rest of the girls.

SCOTT SOLOMON
Happy birthday from you old dinner companions but present friends. Psyched to party with you. Karen, Josephine and Michal

DAVE HAF- I can't keep this secret! I have to let everyone know that today is your last birthday at UMass. Happy 22nd! Have a good one! Love, Carole

DRUFEE WINTER TRACK--I see you all over campus and I'd like to meet you. I eat at Worcester--come by and say hi. -Dorken

HAPPY BIRTHDAY JOHNSON HOUSE- To Russ the Bus, Jim, JC, Kim, Dave, and all Pseado B-Days From Satan and the Prez

KELLIE MACHAMARA- Happy 21st Baby! Florida look out! Love, Jam

HEY LUMBERJACK! Even if you wear women's clothing you'r ok Happy birthday! From Too Long Thoreau

THE CHILD OF LOVE!!! Two more weeks until we'll be seeing flamingos! Get psych-ed!!! Aimer

BIFF — Thanks for a great weekend I had an awesome time - as far as you know

JIZZY! (AKA THE COACH) Happy 21st love, Caryn & Jarv

CHRISTINE, it has been a while since your name has been in print, so here you go beaner. I love you - DC

CATHI Kelly or is it SYBIL

TOPPER: Using my undergarments as part of your decor? I should have taken your keys, not just hidden them.

SCOTT SOLOMON - You can't pick on me because now we're the same age. Happy birthday and 5 and 1. Love Stefanie

SCOTT SOLOMON- RELAX! Act your age, not your apt. - Happy 21st Love Jen, Julie, Suzanne, and Stef

SPITFIRE- Lets have a great weekend in Montreal and make the work pay off!

SUZANNE NAFTALIN- At the end of the day you're another year older...you're 21 Happy Birthday! Love Jule Stef and Jen

CELEBRATE BILL DAMONS B-day at T O Fri

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO M—Thighs-squal Mich-old lady! Watch out for Nutting Ave Madness

WATCH OUT THE DOG IS LEGAL! Happy 21st Sarah-have some parm with that fry ing crust don't bother with the doggas! Lets continue to bash at Nutting

ETHAN sometimes it feels like the weekends will never get here. But we made it through another week-it's Friday! I love you- Sue

TO THE UMASS GUY WHO WAS in Polaroid at Amherst I wish you hadn't dropped. I was really looking forward to getting to know you. Please respond if you would still like to. -The Smithie

KATE'S TURNING 20 on Sunday. Everyone call up and wish her a Happy Birthday! 6-4811 Jen

CONGRATULATIONS TO TRI-SIGMAS new pledges- Mina, Laura, Julie, Lisa, Aivorea, April and Alisa. Get psyched for an awesome semester!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY SHANA, How about a game of Thumper! 2nd floor Pierpont can't wait to see your next age! HAPPY 20th Love, 2nd floor Pierpont and PAT

SHANA SALKOWITZ, Have an awesome time on your birthday! We'll pound tons love, Kathy and Beth

BETH JOHNSON, I told Shana we'd pound tons friday nite. Ok? Kath

"BETH MEYERS"
Happy 20th
Hope you ahve a wonderful birthday! You are awesome and I'm lucky to have you as a friend! Keep smiling! Love Wandy

RUTH SMILE! Its your birthday weekend Jill

HEY MARROWBONE MATT you can't even get 5 personal on you birthday due to the disease! IOU Dinner and drinks. Happy Birthday Elyse

PETER K. I hope we can work things out! You mean so much to me. Will your heart come back to mine? ILYK.

IF YOU SEE RHONDA KAVER, follow her to the nearest bar, because Saturday she is 21 and she's buying! Happy birthday Rhonda! Tracy

MARCIA (SASHA) Espinoza is 21!!! Don't forget to wish her a happy birthday. I hope you have a terrific day!! Love, Irish

JOHN, I NEVER DID get to send you a Valentine a day personal (so it is a little late) I love you, honey! Love always, and always Love, W P

DENISE CARINI- Sunday's the big day Happy 21st birthday Love Tim

TRACY COYNE: Congratulations to my devil! Get psyched for an amazing semester at Alpha Chi! Get ready for Rhode Island! Love, ya, Your Angel

HELP! I need psych 355 notes! Call wendy asap 6-8162

SUZANNE NAFTALIN Happy 21st Birthday finally we is legal! Live it up and have a great birthday love Gaile

YO YO YO Girlie Pop! Happy 21st!!! I love you very much

SENIORS! The Senior Campaign is coming! Get ready for our up and coming kick-off bash for "footprints of '89"!

"THUMPER" Hey babe-We're stylin' Last weekend was great, but this weekend was the best! Never 4-get Sat nite jacuzzi the backrubs and They're doing it again!" Love, Your dumb, ditzy, drunk blonde

ROB SKELTON: Trustee!

ATTENTION STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS! EXCELLENT FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES HELPING WITH AN ON-CAMPUS MARKETING PROJECT. CALL IMMEDIATELY. STUART 548-7612. LEAVE A MESSAGE.

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later

RHONDA KAVER

RHONDA KAVER Happy 21st b-day. Have fun Saturday night! Love Amy Sarah & Lynne

ROOMMATES WANTED

FEMALE WANTED FOR BRANDYWINE apt 180 mo includes Heat 256-8399 Beth

LINGUISTICS, worked Sunday 2/26 Buy you a beer? Call 549-1660 George

NEW HOME no smoking on bus line $325 inc 253-7948

LOOKING FOR A RESPONSIBLE NON-SMOKER to share 2bdrm apt $150 negotiable Call Kaz 549-6846

2 NEEDED TO SHARE ROOM IN Townhouse apt beginning fall semester. Contact as soon as possible 546-5025

ROOM AVAILABLE IN HOUSE 3 min to bus $225/month + util. Call Peter after 7pm 253-2268

SERVICES

COMPUTER SERVICES: Data entry, database development, custom programming Beichertown 283-3140 Jim.

DIRT CHEAP RESUMES Very experienced Laserwriter overnight Counseling/delivery Lsa 665-8969

TUTOR
CONN ECE MATH
BY EXPERIENCED GRAD 256-8121

AUTO REPAIRS: very reasonable, experienced mechanic. Work your place or mine. Messages for Mark 665-8467

PROFESSIONAL EDITING- Term papers, Theses, Dissertations 1-467-3753 after 7pm

VIDEO RESUME TO GET THAT JOB! Immediate, professional, personalized service. Appointments. Video Image Productions (413) 863-8035

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE ELECTIONS

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE debates!!! Come see what the candidates have to say! Thurs. March 9th C.C. 101 at 7:00pm. Also broadcast on 91.1 WMUA!! Sponsored by SGA Governmental Affairs

SPRING BREAK- DAYTONA

IT'S NOT TOO LATE to reserve your spot at the Castaway Beach Resort. 7 nights only $139 w/transportation $219 Call Mark 549-2871

SWING DANCE/JITTER BUG CLASSES

JUST $7 EACH OR $25 FOR ALL FOUR, No partner necessary! Classes meet from 4 - 6pm Sunday, March 5 thru Sunday, March 26 at East Street Dance Studios in Hadley--Just off Rt. 9 between Amherst and Northampton. Instructors: Lars Marshall and Janine Warner. For more info, Call 548-9309. No pre-registration necessary

TRAVEL

3 AIRFARE TIX TO DENVER, CO - $270 rdtrp 3/20 - 3/27 Call Heather 549-9925

IT'S NOT TOO LATE TO SIGN UP! Party at tropical Panama City Beach! Only $229! Call Maureen 549-0840

ROUND TRIP TICKET TO PHEONIX From March 17-28 a $260 dollar value for $250 or best offer. Call Julie 6-8793 anytime after 8

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW. OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TYPING

CASES. PAPERS. THESIS, on-campus, affordable grammar reviewed, dependable. 584-7924 Nancy

"WORDSMITH" Professional Typing Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck 253-4564

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional, accurate 665-4501

WANTED

TUTOR WANTED FOR DBASE III. Call Steve at 549-0133

LEAVING YOUR AMHERST HOUSE IN JUNE? Get rid of lease early. Call 546-9485

APARTMENT WANTED: We want to take over/buy your three bedroom apartment lease, preferably Puffton, call 6-7624. or 6-7673

IF YOU HAVE A LEASE FOR A HOUSE (beg. 6/89 or later) that you would like to surrender to a responsible group of people-please call Susan 546-9084. Leave a message-will respond.

WANTED TO RENT

MOVING OUT OF YOUR BIG HOUSE NEXT SEMESTER? A lot of chick wanna move in! Call 6-8233 ask 4 Danielle. Thanx for hookin' us up!!

SPORTS

Collegian photo by Joel Solomon

The UMass women's hoop team dropped a tough one to Rutgers, 72-47 last night at the Cage.

Rutgers rolls over UMass

First-half performance a killer as Minutewomen fall, 72-47

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

So often has this happened to the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team.

On more than a few occasions this season, the team has adopted a Jeckyl and Hyde approach to a game, looking totally out of it for one half while playing decently in the other. Last night's effort against Rutgers University was an example of just that. Rutgers rattled the Minutewomen for a 39-14 halftime lead and held that up in a 72-47 rout.

The Minutewomen, now 10-16 overall and 4-13 in the Atlantic 10 conference, handed the game to the Lady Knights in the first half by fumbling the ball over 16 times and turning in a sub-freezing 5-for-24 (20.8 percent) shooting effort in the first 20 minutes.

"We have to play with intensity and guts every time we step on the floor," said UMass coach Kathy Hewelt. "Every team in the conference has more athletic ability than we do, but nothing upsets me more than a lack of effort."

It may not have been a total lack of effort on their parts, but the Minutewomen were indeed flustered – yes, intimidated, by the visitors in the first half.

Coming into the game, UMass was going to look to keep the high-flying Lady Knights from running right out of the gym. It worked to an extent, as Rutgers was able to produce only a Vicky Picott three-point play and a Lynn Ust breakaway lay-up in the first six minutes.

However, the scoreboard on the UMass side showed the real story. A big fat '0' – not the type of offensive performance Hewelt would have liked to balance off the defensive work.

UMass never got into a flow in the first half. Rutgers scrapping and hawking and running away with it.

Things turned a little brighter in the second half, as UMass came out with a little more sparkle in its eyes than it had shown on the earlier trip out of the locker room. Bolstered by the inside play of sophomore Keyburn McCusker (a game-high 19 points) and freshman Lisa Hair (15 points), the Minutewomen made every effort to cut into the powerful Rutgers unit.

Nonetheless, it was just too much to overcome, especially with coach Theresa Grentz leaving a large chunk of her starting lineup on the floor until the final two minutes.

continued on page 19

Lady Knights, 72-47

Massachusetts (47): Beth Wilbur 1 0-0 2; Keyburn McCusker 6-12 7-9 19; Helen Freeman 0-5 0-0 0; Trish Riley 3-10 0-1 6; Sue Serafino 1 0-0 0; Dianne Burke 0-0 0-0 0; Jenny Moran 0-1 0-0 0; Lisa Hair 5-7 5-9 15; Colleen Hopkins 0-3 0-0 0. Totals: 16-41 17-24 47.

Rutgers (72): Lynn Ust 5-9 1-6 11; Vicky Picott 1-8 1-4 4; Missy Linder 0-1 2-2 2; Janet Maisel 5-16 2-6 13; Eleicher Austin 7-16 2-2 16; Anna Rodgers 1-2 0-0 2; Brenda Steward 0-0 0-0 0; Anne Lemmer 0-1 0-0 0; Suzanne Cooper 1-2 0-0 2; Tanya Hansen 3-4 1-2 7; Mandy Valentine 1-2 0-0 2; LaTonia Johnson 1-2 1-1 3; Wendy Porter 1-2 0-0 2. Totals: 29-59 13-29 72.

Three-point shooting: Rutgers 1-4 (Maisel 1-3).

A-10 tournament gets underway tomorrow

UMass set to square off with St. Joseph's in first round

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA – The last time they were here, it was just a quick mission. This time, they will be here for the duration of their season.

Two days ago, the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team darted in and out of town, spending just enough time to lose an 83-81 heartbreaker to St. Joseph's University in the last game of the regular season.

Today, the Minutemen, 5-13 in the Atlantic 10 conference and 10-17 overall, fly back here to participate in the A-10 tournament at the Palestra.

Eighth-seeded UMass will meet a familiar opponent, ninth-ranked St. Joe's, in a first-round game tomorrow at 1 p.m. And you can bet that was on the minds of both teams when they played Wednesday night.

"In a way, it was like a scrimmage," St. Joe's head coach Jim Boyle said after his team improved to 4-14 in the conference and 7-20 overall.

"We were looking more to Saturday. We knew it was the first of a two-game set. But both teams wanted to win, and by the breaks, we happened to win this one," Boyle said.

But it was more than just breaks. It was a sloppy first half by the Minutemen and a couple of key errors they made in the closing minutes.

UMass fought back from a 10-point second half deficit, and actually took the lead with 2:17 left before giving it away down the stretch.

The loss continued the road woes of the Minutemen, who are 2-14 away from the Curry Hicks Cage. That, along with the fact that St. Joe's will not have to travel, will work to the Hawks' advantage.

"We won't have to worry about flying somewhere and staying in an unfamiliar place," said Hawk senior Henry Smith, who scored 25 points Wednesday night as his team broke a five-game losing streak. "We'll let Massachusetts worry about that."

The other team that won't have to concern itself with travel is Temple University, which comes in as one of the favorites with a 15-3 conference record.

West Virginia University won the A-10 regular season with a 17-1 record, and will face the winner of the UMass-St. Joe's game Sunday at 7 p.m.

And UMass head coach John Calipari said he feels Rutgers and Penn State also have a good chance for the title.

continued on page 15

And in the finals, it's . . . UMass?

It all starts off easy enough . . .

Playing at the Palestra in Philadelphia, eighth-seeded UMass cruises to a 98-76 win in the preliminary round of the Atlantic 10 men's basketball tournament, its first post-season win in five years. After his team plays its best all-around game of the season, coach John Calipari says, "I've said all along, if we play up to our capabilities, we can play with anyone."

Steve Richards

. . . and like the proverbial snowball rolling down the proverbial hill, once it gets going, it gets bigger . . .

Riding the wave of confidence from their opening-round win, the Minutemen meet top-seeded and nationally-ranked West Virginia. The heavy underdog hangs tough and shockingly, UMass is within two, 68-66, with :07 to play. Freshman Jim McCoy brings the ball downcourt, fires a pass to an open Rafer Giles, who launches a desperation three-pointer with time running out.

Swish. The college basketball community raises its collective eyebrow.

continued on page 15

UMass' Ambrose is no average freshman

By RICK SETO
Collegian Staff

Lee Ann Ambrose is good. Not just good, and not just good for a freshman, but really good. In fact, she is so good that she was the runner-up in the 400-meters at the New England Championships. She has earned her place with the best at the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Championships this weekend at Yale University.

But the route she ended up getting there was not exactly a smooth one. In the finals of the New Englands, Ambrose was not seeded in the fast heat with the eventual winner, Semetra King, although according to NCAA rules, she should have been. "I was hoping that King would push me and make me run a faster time, because it's easier to chase someone," said Ambrose.

She did win the unseeded heat with a time of 56.78 seconds, but that was almost a full second behind King's winning time of 55.84. "I was really frustrated and when I came off the track," said Ambrose. "I just started to cry. These are the meets that I'm working hard for and being shafted like that just stinks."

UMass coach Julie LaFreniere has felt that Lee Ann (or just Lee) has gotten the shaft all season long when it comes down to the seedings in the finals. "Basically in all the meets we went to, we came up against a pretty high caliber of competition. What happened when it came down to seedings, we would be honest in sending our times while other coaches would put down a faster time. She and I know that she belonged into the seeded heats, and I think that other coaches now know that too."

Ambrose feels that has made her first season very frustrating, but it hasn't spoiled her fun or her success. "My season has been frustrating but pretty good," says Ambrose. "I would be in the unseeded heats but I would be winning them. But I always felt really frustrated, because I wanted to be with those really good runners. I guess it's probably because I'm a freshman."

During a time when most kids were

continued on page 18

UM gymnastics teams in action this weekend

• Minutemen face Syracuse in EIGL clash

By GEORGE AUSTIN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team has almost entered the home stretch of its season.

And UMass is trailing, but it is looking to put itself into position to nip the United States Naval Academy at the wire at the EIGL Championships over Spring Break.

The Minutemen can do that by knocking off Syracuse University tomorrow at the Boyden Gymnastics Center (1 p.m.) to grab sole possession of second place in the EIGL.

"Our average (262) is five points better than theirs (257) and I think that tells it," UMass coach Roy Johnson said.

At 5-1 in the EIGL, the Orangemen are a half meet ahead of the Minutemen, who are 4-1 with one EIGL meet remaining at Springfield College next weekend.

continued on page 19

• Minutewomen prepare to host Rutgers

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Suddenly, a bid to the bonus round is back in the picture. The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team enters Saturday's meet with A-10 rival Rutgers (4pm) a little more than two points back of where they'll need to be to qualify for the post season regional meet.

While seeking another top score for their post-season resume, the Minutewomen will also be showing off a bit for the home folks in their final appearance under the Boyden bigtop this winter.

"Everybody will at least get a chance to do one event (some will be exhibition only)," explained coach Alfie Mitchell." Two weeks back, the Minutewomen (6-1) turned in a sluggish performance at the University of Southern Connecticut, posting 175.40 points in victory. All hopes of securing an invitation to the post season

continued on page 19

Cloudy and cold today, chance of flurries, high in the mid 20s. More clouds tomorrow, 30s.

Expert discusses the movement of indigenous people throughout the world. Page 5.

Men's gymnastics team wins New England Championship yesterday. Page 20.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY MONDAY, MARCH 6, 1989

COLLEGIAN

St. Joseph's ends UMass' season, 87-83

Late rally knocks Minutemen from tourney

By RONN GARRY
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. – Question: Coach Boyle [St. Joseph's men's basketball coach], did your team steal this victory away from the University of Massachusetts basketball team or did UMass give it away?

"Both, we scored more points than they did. That means we won and they lost," the cheerful St. Joe's coach said just minutes after his team came back from a seven-point deficit with four minutes left in the game to beat UMass in the first round of the Atlantic 10 tournament Saturday, 87-83.

A knack for the obvious, but it was far more than just more or less points for either team. For the Minutemen it was the second time in four days that they lost to the same team, in the same city, and, frustratingly, in the same way.

4:06 left in the game: UMass freshman Jim McCoy makes two free throws, putting UMass up by seven points in the waning minutes, 77-70.

After that the eighth-seeded Minutemen tumbled like a just-bombed building. The Hawks went on a 10-0 run in just 2:20 to take the lead from UMass 80-77. St. Joe's senior Brian Leahy led the charge for the Hawks by knocking in five points, including a very big three-pointer to start the rally (Leahy tied a conference tournament record for 3's with five).

"When we were down by seven, that represented a 14 point swing. I thought we needed to improve in a hurry," Boyle said.

UMass did pull within one at 1:34 on a McCoy pull-up jumper in the lane (McCoy put on a show for the Palestra crowd with a career-high 35 points). But, with the exception of two last-minute desperation layups, that was it for the Minutemen. They failed to stop the ninth-seeded Hawks on their next posession and then watched helplessly as St. Joe's nailed home 6-of-8 free throws after intentional UMass fouls

continued on page 20

Collegian photo by Joel Solomon

UP, UP AND AWAY – Approximately 200 balloons were released Thursday afternoon at the pyramids in front of Washington Residence Hall to mark the end of Black History Month.

Rosenberg to offer budget changes

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

Rep. Stan Rosenberg said he plans to offer two amendments to the state House Ways and Means committee's budget for 1990 today in an effort to ease the budget cutbacks threatening public higher education.

"These are the closest amendments that will give us a chance of winning and at that, it will be difficult," Rosenberg said Friday, after meeting with several University administrators to finalize his proposals.

The House Ways and Means budget for higher education, which was released two weeks ago, has drawn fire from students and faculty statewide for its drastic reduction of $31 million from Gov. Michael Dukakis' original proposal of $669.4 million.

continued on page 4

Judge delays sentencing of UMass student

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

The sentencing of a University of Massachusetts junior charged with cocaine trafficking has been postponed, a judge ruled last Tuesday.

The defense lawyer for Terry Murphy, 20, of Franklin, asked Hampshire Superior Court Judge Raymond R. Cross to give his client a second chance as he pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

Murphy, originally charged last April with trafficking cocaine to UMass students, was arrested by Amherst Police at Beta Kappa Phi fraternity house during a raid at which police said they confiscated numerous kegs, empty and full, and illegal narcotics.

continued on page 4

Collegian style changed

The Collegian has amended its style guide. From now on, the words black and white will be capitalized when referring to people. The words will remain in the lower case when used as adjectives.

Support shown for Tibetan cause

By C.C. SANDORFI
Collegian Correspondent

A Tibetan monk and three area Buddhists led about 40 people in a candlelight march last night in Northampton.

The march, which began at Smith College and ended in Pulaski Park in Northampton, was held to draw attention to the political situation in Tibet, said Nancy Braxton, a member of the Pioneer Valley Friends of Tibet.

On March 10, 1959, the Chinese invaded Tibet and forced the Dalai Lama, spiritual and secular leader of the country, to flee in disguise, Braxton said.

In his absence, the Chinese destroyed much of the culture of Tibet, decimating monasteries, denying Tibetans the right to study their own language, and razing the ground by mining and planting crops that drained the soil, she said.

"Tibet was forced to go through thought reform in which they confessed their 'sins' and gave up Buddhism," she said.

Braxton, an Amherst lawyer, said the march was held to alert the people in the Pioneer Valley to the continuing human rights violations in Tibet.

Since 1959, more than one million Tibetans have been killed and severe penalties, including life in prison and death, face Tibetans who protest the conditions, Braxton said.

"The Dalai Lama has appealed to the United Nations to recognize the [human rights] violations and to condemn the actions of China, but this has yet to happen," she said.

Ty Unno, professor of religion at Smith College and a member of the Friends of Tibet, said Tibetans were upset by President Bush's refusal to address the issue during his recent visit to China.

"The question always comes up, but China's sovereignty in Tibet is always accepted," Unno said.

"The only way to help is to apply international pressure," Unno said. "As the People's Republic of China grows increasingly important in the geopolitical context, Tibet is perishing."

"The United States has been very cowardly about coming forth and speaking against China's actions," Braxton said. "It wasn't until last year that Congress acknowledged the situation and passed a resolution condemning it."

Tsundup Tsering, a Tibetan graduate student at UMass, agreed the United States should address the Tibetan problem and recognize the Tibetan government, currently in exile in northern India.

Tsering said he was happy with the turnout for the event. "I am glad to find Americans interested in our problems," he said.

The march, sponsored by the Friends of Tibet, ended with a short prayer from Tibetan monk Geshe Lobzang Tsetan.

Unno thanked the crowd for their support as they began to blow out their candles and disperse.

"One candle lit for justice is a candle that will illuminate justice wherever it occurs," he said.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation: 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA. 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr. GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
ASSOCIATES	BETTY-ANN MURPHY YANA DLUGY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE GEORGE FRANCY TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	MATT GERKE
COPY EDITOR	THOMAS RODRIGUES
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	FLORENCIO TERRA
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	DONDI AHEARN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	ROB LEVINE
PRODUCTION	YANA DLUGY JULIA MILLMAN MIKE MAHER FREYA BATLLE NICOLE DEMARTINO

AP photo

TIME INC. TO BUY WARNER COMMUNICATIONS – Time Inc. will buy Warner Communications Inc. in a stock deal that both companies value at $18 billion, creating one of the world's largest media and entertainment empires, the companies announced Saturday. Warner Communications' based, pictured, is at 75 Rockefeller Center in New York.

Rookie cop tries to adjust to system after going through Agawam tragedy

SOUTH HADLEY (AP) – Her main worries now are those of any rookie cop – getting radio protocol straight and learning the routine on the overnight desk – and that's just fine with South Hadley Officer Vicki O'Donnell after the tumult and tragedy of her training class at the Agawam police academy.

The death of one recruit and the hospitalization of more than a dozen others in O'Donnell's class following rigorous forced exercise sparked an overhaul of the state training of its municipal police officers. But for the cadets it was weeks of balancing classwork with testimony before investigatory agencies.

"I'm just happy to be finally getting to do the work that I want to do and was trained for," said the 5-3, 118-pound O'Donnell, one of two women graduates and the class treasurer. A third woman recruit was hospitalized and unable to finish the course. Despite some fears by state officials that recruits from the troubled September class would have difficulty being accepted by previous graduates, O'Donnell, said she has encountered no difficulties.

"It's different having a woman around," said one of her fellow officers. "But Vicki is all right."

"We couldn't be prouder of her," said Chief Henry A. Decker. "We think she is going to be a very close."

"To this day we still wonder what happened. There could have been so many contributing factors," she said. "My brother went through the academy at a very hot time of the year and his class didn't have the types of problems we did. I only grabbed an extra handful of water from the bathroom and I was OK, but some who drank a lot became sick. You wonder about physical conditioning. But one of the only two people in the class that was able to complete the run the first day got sick."

State public health officials initially suspected contaminated tap water, but later concluded the recruits had not been given sufficient water during the heavy exercise.

"It wasn't a formal type of workout where you start out slowly and get into it. It was just a bomb of all different types of exercises, including some stuff that was not in any kind of regular exercise regimen I ever had," O'Donnell recalled.

O'Donnell said she had worked out every day for weeks prior to the class and her brother, who had gone through the previous class, had warned her what to expect during the first days of confusion drills and physical discipline under the academy's now-banned stress training program.

"But nothing could really prepare you," she said. "At times you thought, 'Oh my God, when are they ever going to stop. I'm so tired. How am I ever going to get through this.'"

"No matter what you did they'd find something to get you for," she said. "By the end of the day we couldn't even do anything as simple as count off down the line. It took us a half-hour to get it right."

"It was nothing really personal, just a little game they played and it was sometimes hard not to laugh at the things they said to us during inspection. Trooper (John) Richardson was really humorous when he got on us," she recalled.

LOCAL

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

People march through Northampton last night in a candlight vigil to show support for Tibet.

College files suit against UMass

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff
and the Associated Press

Amherst College filed suit last Tuesday against the University of Massachusetts for damages suffered during a December snowball fight between the two schools.

College officials contend the annual snowball fight, heralding the first significant snowfall of winter, has become increasingly dangerous and costly to the school and that UMass should be held accountable.

An Amherst student had to undergo emergency surgery on his eye when it was lacerated by a rock-laden snowball thrown during the last snowfight.

The suit, filed in Hampshire District Court, explains the college's security force of 10 cannot effectively deal with "2,000 rioters from another institution."

The college claims to have suffered a total of $9,352 in property damage from the fights over the last three years.

UMass Chancellor Joseph Duffey and Amherst President Peter Pouncey issued a joint statement condemning the snowball fights as intolerable events two weeks ago.

Duffey has also stated that he does not feel the University as an institution should be held responsible for the actions of its students once they leave the campus.

Pouncey said he will not hesitate to call state police in to help protect his campus in the event of another snowball fight. He said he is also seeking an injunction from the town which will allow Amherst Police to arrest anyone caught on the campus instigating a fight.

Cold students learn how to keep warm

By JULIET JORDAN
Collegian Correspondent

Imagine yourself spending three nights and four days in the wilderness of northern Maine with no heat, no electricity or modern appliances, and temperatures falling to 67 below zero.

A group of 17 University of Massachusetts students and faculty in the Department of Military Science learned to survive under these conditions as part of the US Naval Cold Weather Survival Training Center held annually in Rangely, Maine.

At a recent display of cold weather survival equipment and clothing at the campus pond, sophomore Jim Loughlin, one of the students who attended the survival training, said the program was worthwhile.

"I learned a lot about myself and how to deal with my problems better," said Loughlin, a student in the Army Reserve Officer Training Corps.

The voluntary survival program, is all about "leadership and survival," according to Master Sergeant Steven Burgess, one of three UMass professors who went through the training with the cadets.

"The school teaches the cadets how to survive in the cold," Burgess said. "It shows a lot about yourself. It builds character and gives the cadets some responsibility."

Loughlin said a typical day in the survival program involves learning to hunt, trap and cook small game, start a fire without a match, and identify foods that are safe to eat.

The cadets also learned how to use a parachute as a tent, build shacks in the woods, and dress for cold weather," he said.

Bob Lundberg, a junior ROTC student, said he learned how to skin a rabbit. "[It was] the most valuable skill I learned for survival," he said.

Lundberg said he would recommend the cold weather survival training school, or anything like it, to anyone. He said it was great "for the experience."

The Cold Weather Survival Training Center is open to any school that has an ROTC program, said Burgess. It is also available to boy scouts and high schools, he said.

Mock candidates launch campaign

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

"Take the politics out of government," is the slogan for a rather lighthearted campaign for Student Government Association president and trustee launched this week.

Presidential candidate Tom Darling, a senior political science major, and trustee candidate, sophomore Rich Barry, vowed to update equipment in the dining commons, expressing particular concern for the regular overflow of hot chocolate that is unable to fit into the mugs provided.

"It get's sticky and it's really annoying," said Darling, adding that he is of "absolutely" no relation to SGA senator Brian Darling.

Darling said the facetious campaign is intended to satirize the current SGA's lack of progress, often marked by filibustering senators or overzealous campaigners.

"Their life is this politics stuff," he said. "In America, they don't have as many partisan issues as they do in the SGA.

"We want to win because we want to have a whole year of fun," Darling said. "People are taking it way too seriously."

Barry said the pair "want some people to vote for them," and and will use the $125 campaign fund

continued on page 5

SAFA hoping teamwork pays-off

By ERIN ABBEY
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON – The 46 members of Students Advocating Financial Aid, who arrived in the nation's capital yesterday, said they are starting to feel like a team. SAFA students will begin meeting with senators and representatives today.

SAFA Treasurer Maria Parks said, "Even though we were pretty sleepy on the bus, I feel a lot of enthusiasm [here]."

Michael Smith, a SAFA executive committee member, said, "I got a sense that people were a little hesitant to mingle. We've got to work together. If we don't work together we won't be as successful as we'd like to be. By [Monday], everything will gel."

The SAFA students, of which only 17 are

continued on page 5

'City' wants reform, vows to stay

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

Residents of "Cutback City" said yesterday they will stay in their mock shantytown "as long as it takes" to fight state budget cuts, even if it means remaining until the semester's end.

The shantytown has expanded in 10 days from two crudely-built shacks constructed from scraps of wood and cardboard sealed with plastic sheeting, to a miniature village of four huts, two more huts under construction, and two pup tents.

John Farrar, a member of the Students for a Democratic University, who founded the shantytown, said the huts are bringing attention to the plight of public higher education.

"There are a lot of people on campus who don't really know about the budget," he said. "It brings publicity to the issue."

Farrar said he is willing to spend the entire summer in the huts if maintaining the tiny village will bolster their cause.

"I don't think people expected us to last through the first rain," he said.

The volume of student support for "Cutback City" is increasing every day, said Diana Ditmore, a student in continuing education. Sleeping bags are made available for those who decide to actively join the cause and spend the night, she said.

"At least 50 people have stayed here for at least one night," said Ditmore, who said she may sacrifice her Spring Break "road trip" to remain in the huts.

First-year student Carolyn Conrad said the residents have plenty of leftover food, including rice and tabooli, a Lebanese dish, donated daily by the People's Market, and return home during the day to shower or use the facilities at Boyden Gym.

"I'm planning to stay for a long time," Conrad said. "We have sub-zero sleeping bags so we're totally warm."

"The students I've talked to say they really appreciate what we're doing," she said, urging students to attend the rally against budget cuts tomorrow at the Massachusetts State House in Boston.

Farrar said each hut is equipped with miniature fire extinguishers and smoke alarms, courtesy of the University of Massachusetts Public Safety Department.

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

Shacks and tents near the Student Union represent "Cutback City," a protest to budget cuts to higher education.

Arpad announces student trustee candidancy

Junior Al Arpad has announced his candidacy for Student Trustee and said he plans to make information accessible to all students at the University of Massachusetts.

"I plan to speak out for more than just two weeks a year during the election period," Arpad said. "Trustees just sort of vanish after election day."

Arpad said, if elected, he intends to maintain a high profile throughout his term and keep attention focused on some of the issues the SGA has ignored, including state budget cutbacks.

"[SGA officials] don't come back to students and communicate the information," he said. "These budget cuts have been going on for two years.

"All of a sudden, there are all these big rallies and letter writing campaigns. Why haven't we been writing letters for two solid years?"

Arpad said he will also work to restore the now-defunct Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy office. (SCERA), which he said was abandoned by the senate.

"Information is something the SGA has very little of," he said. "I want to start that up again."

—MARIA SACCHETTI

Scholars meet, discuss Rushdie and his novel

By LISA SHAPIRO
Collegian Correspondent

Area scholars met recently to discuss "The Attack on Salman Rushdie and The Satanic Verses; The Cultural Crisis and its Implications."

"Irony is abound in the publication of the book. The situation goes beyond literary criticism and tests the limits of freedom of speech," said Robert Bagg, UMass English department chairman and moderator of the panel. Bagg said it is important to discuss the events that have occurred in response to the publication of Rushdie's book and to share different perspectives.

The book had been denounced by Moslem communities worldwide as blasphemous. As a result of the $5.2 million price put on his life by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Rushdie cancelled his U.S. promotional book tour and has been forced into hiding in Great Britian.

English professor John Wideman put the novel into political context. "It is all well and good we raise issues of freedom of the press, but to protect his rights without examining our own house is not to consider the ever present dangers of freedom of expression," he said.

The book cannot be looked at in exclusive terms; it is a discourse on Islam in the west, said Abubaker Alshingiety, a Ph.D student in the department of Communications. He quoted from the Koran and discussed representation of Moslems in the media.

"Representation touches upon the basic sake for which a Moslem lives," Alshingiety said. "The book was written for Western audiences. In the West, it makes Westerners feel that their values are superior and that it creates an environment in which the 'other' is objectified, dehumanized and denaturalized. The book is fiction, but fiction is an element in the ongoing reconstruction of image; we perceive others through images."

Professor Ketu Katrak said she examined the novel as a political tool. "There is a political agenda underneath what's passed off a religious sentiment," she said.

Although Rushdie has picked up on the negative Western statements surrounding the issue, there are certain things the novel does that are important, she said.

"Rushdie is exploring threats of identity and what happens to immigrants when they are transplanted to 'alien' environments," Katrak said.

■ Rosenberg

continued from page 1

"The success of these amendments is not in my hands," Rosenberg said. "If faculty, staff and students do not call their legislators and demand that they vote for the amendments, then the chances for their being passed is significantly weakened."

The first amendment allots $15.7 million to increase the number of faculty members in the public higher education system and to provide a cost of living increase for graduate students who are teaching assistants, Rosenberg said.

"Students are not getting classes they need because there aren't enough faculty members in the system because of budget cuts," he said. "Graduate students, who are also part of the teaching process, are woefully underpaid. They need help."

An attempt to increase the amount of money for equipment and material for science laboratories and other departments of the University is also included in the amendment, Rosenberg said.

"You can't run an institution without books, without telephones, and without paper and materials, and that's exactly what's happening," he said.

The amendment also calls for several revisions including, a two percent reduction in administrators and staff through attrition, a two-percent reduction in campus energy consumption, and mandatory recycling on all state college campuses, Rosenberg said.

Collegian photo by Dondi Abears

Rep. Stan Rosenberg says he will amend the state House Ways and Means Committee budget for 1990 to help ease the recent budget cuts to higher education.

■ sentencing delayed

continued from page 1

Cross heard differing sentence recommendations from defense attorney Robert Santaniello of Springfield and Assistant Northwestern District Attorney Howard Safford before postponing Murphy's sentencing until March 24.

Safford recommended a 2 1/2-year jail sentence, while Santaniello offered a suspended state prison term of three to five years.

If Cross decides to impose a sentence which exceeds Safford's recommendations, Murphy can withdraw his guilty plea and be tried on the charge.

Safford said Murphy and another student were "essentially parteners in the sale of cocaine" and had more than 30 customers.

The other student, Andrew Jacobsen, will also face charges pending against him in Superior Court.

Police said they confiscated three plastic bags filled with white powder, which had been parcelled in magazine clippings, from a ceiling tile in Murphy's room. They also said they found $800 in cash in Murphy's room.

If Murphy is sentenced with Safford's recommended 2½ year stay in the Hampshire County House of Correction, which Safford calls "very reasonable," he would be eligible for parole after little more than a year.

Under the trafficking charge, if sentenced, Murphy would have faced a mandatory minimum sentence of three years. The maximum sentence on trafficking charges is 10 years in state prison, Safford said.

Santaniello strongly recommended Murphy not be incarcerated and said he should be put on probation with a suspended sentence.

Murphy had been a substance abuser, of both alcohol and cocaine, and it was this abuse that led him into this indictment, Santaniello said.

Murphy was readmitted to UMass in the fall under conditions that he live off-campus and seek counseling, which his attorney said Murphy has been receiving over the past year.

How to get through college with money to spare:

1. Buy a Macintosh. 2. Add a peripheral. 3. Get a nice, fat check.

Now through March 31, when you buy selected Macintosh® SE or Macintosh II computers, you'll get a rebate for up to half the suggested retail price of the Apple® peripherals you add on—so you'll save up to $800. Ask for details today where computers are sold on campus.

Apple Pays Half

LOCATED IN THE CAMPUS CENTER

UNIVERSITY STORE

OPEN M—F 9-5 SAT 10-3

© 1989 Apple Computer, Inc. Apple, the Apple logo, and Macintosh are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Certain restrictions apply. All rebates subject to strict compliance with the Terms and Conditions of the 'Apple Pays Half' Program Guidelines, available from your authorized Apple reseller. Offer void where prohibited by law.

Expert tracks movement of world's native people

By PAUL MORRIS
Collegian Correspondent

An expert on indigenous people said recently that during the past year, two million native people around the world were displaced and 200,000 more were killed by greedy governments and corporations.

Jason W. Clay, anthropologist and director of research at Cultural Survival Inc., said that indigenous people account for 10 percent of the world's population, but occupy 25 to 30 percent of the earth's surface. The states push the people from the land, which is mostly undeveloped, extract lumber and minerals from it, and sell the land for cattle pasture, he said.

"If the groups refuse to move, the natives are killed or forced out," he said. "In the past groups moved to more remote areas, but today there is nowhere left to go."

Clay, who has done thousands of interviews with native people around the world, said natives move three or four times a year.

"It is hard to maintain a culture, to educate your children or get any of the benefits of the society that is trying to forcibly adopt them," he said.

He said as people are displaced they have to depend on aid agencies because most governments cannot afford to feed them. The governments run up huge debts to finance wars against the natives and create famines when they take their land, he said.

States feel the natives are getting in the way of national goal, he said. "They [states] are preventing the country from reaching its development potential."

Clay said that about 80 percent of the 120 shooting wars are between states and "nations," a word he used for groups of natives. Five million natives have died in the low-intensity shooting wars, he said.

Indirectly many more have died, he said. "They are mostly women, the elderly and children — the ones who can't run as fast and get caught in the crossfire."

"Most groups are about 10,000 people," Clay said. "But some are [much smaller] and can be wiped out by cattle ranchers or lumbermen."

He said most nations realize that they cannot defeat a state military and have formed political organizations. Two Indians from a tribe in Brazil recently went to Washington to ask the World Bank to deny a $100 million loan to Brazil. The loan is to be used to finance a dam that would force their tribe to move, he said.

In Latin America native groups that had been fighting have put their differences aside to bind together to preserve their land, Clay said. Internationally, businesses and individuals can help the world's indigenous peoples by finding the value in the people and the land the way they are, he said.

"The people have been living in the forests for years," he said. "How do they do it? Thousands of dollars are spent so scientists can do research in the forests, but nobody ever talks to the people. Nobody has bothered to learn their languages."

He said that Ben and Jerry's, a Vermont ice cream maker, is interested in making rainforest ice cream using Brazil nuts and rainforest fruit.

"They can then write on the package the story of the destruction of the rainforests and what people can do to help stop it," he said.

Collegian photo by Dondi Abears

IN THE FLOWER PATCH — Max (front) and Clay take a stroll through the Smith College Bulb Show on Saturday.

■ SAFA arrives in Washington

continued from page 3

SAFA veterans, have been given briefings on such topics as the history and types of financial aid.

"I hope we can present it in a professional way," said SAFA member John Melley. "We want to come off well so we are as effective as possible."

Dick Conner, assistant director of state relations, said students who benefit from financial aid, as opposed to lobbyists who hire people to represent those interests, will be the key to SAFA's success. Their extensive knowledge will also be impressive to the legislators.

Melley said getting a question he can't answer is his "biggest concern."

"We're all anxious," said SAFA member Joshua Uafoley. "I think after the first day we'll be more relaxed."

Smith, a veteran of previous SAFA lobbying efforts, said realizing that the congressmen are normal people will help ease student nervousness.

■ mock campaign

continued from page 3

allotted by the SGA to "make their position known."

"No cartoon characters, no Underdog, no Life in Hell," Barry said, referring to some of the campaign materials used by other SGA candidates. "We could nail them for copyright infringement."

If elected, Darling said his first action will be to "tear down all the dumb posters in the SGA office. These people live in that office — there's even places for them to sleep in there. It's really disgusting."

Some issues the pair will focus on include allotting "severance pay" to students who are thrown out of the University for any reason and making illegal the "selling, purchase, and wearing of corduroy hats."

AMERICAN EXPRESS PRESENTS THE HBO COMEDY CONCERT

JUDY TENUTA PERFORMING LIVE!

8:00 P.M.

MARCH 9, 1989

CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM University of Massachusetts

$3 ADMISSION
5 WINNERS RECEIVE $100 AMERICAN EXPRESS® GIFT CHEQUES*

TICKETS AND ENTRY FORMS AVAILABLE IN ADVANCE AT MANNED TABLES AT THE CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE AND THE TICKETS UNLIMITED BOX OFFICE (ROOM 317 STUDENT CENTER).

Come see the HBO Comedy Concert March 9th at the University of Massachusetts Campus Center Auditorium You'll laugh. You'll roar. You may even be one of five lucky university students to take home a $100 American Express Gift Cheque. Pick up your American Express application and enter the prize drawing today before it's too late!

* Winner need not be present, complete application, or purchase ticket to win an American Express Gift Cheque. Tickets and entry forms for the American Express® sponsored HBO Comedy Concert are now available at the Campus Center Concourse and the Tickets Unlimited Box Office in Room 317 of the Student Union.

STUDENT CARDMEMBERS FREE!

THE AMERICAN EXPRESS® CARD DON'T LEAVE SCHOOL WITHOUT IT.℠
Start building your credit history now—before you graduate. It's going to be one of your most valuable tools for "the real world."

Take advantage of the American Express Card's Automatic Approval Offer. To apply by phone call: 1-800-942-AMEX. Apply today.

Board of Governor's Program Council

AMERICAN EXPRESS TRAVEL RELATED SERVICES An American Express Company

© 1989 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

These are the people who didn't come to the Jordan Marsh Info Session.

March 6, 7pm Career Center

Don't follow in their footsteps! Instead, bring your ambition and strong work ethic to The Jordan Marsh Info Session and find out if you have what it takes to build a terrific future in retailing.

At the Info Session, you'll learn about The Jordan Marsh Executive Training Program, a company-paid 12 week program that highlights a combination of on-the-job training and classroom seminars. Recognized as one of the top three retailing training programs in the country, this session is just the beginning of the resources and support available to you as a member of one of the most prestigious names in retailing. And if you still wish to further your education, you can take advantage of our tuition reimbursement program.

So mark the date on your calendar, and make sure you go to the JM Info Session!

JM is an equal opportunity employer

Living the good life.

jordan marsh

EST 1851

MASSACHUSETTS • CONNECTICUT • RHODE ISLAND
NEW HAMPSHIRE • MAINE • NEW YORK

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individuals whose signatures appear with each piece. They do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the Collegian or its staff.

Playboy protesters fall prey to ignorant hecklers

Thursday I went to a small demonstration outside the Amherst Newsroom protesting the pornography industry's degrading and violent use of women, and the visit to the Newsroom that day by a Playboy model designed to promote it. I went despite the fact that I had heard that the organizers of the two previous protests at the Newsroom had decided not to picket, fearing that their presence would be misconstrued as objecting to Allison Decker (the model) herself, rather than as protesting Playboy, the pornography sold by the Newsroom, and the men seeking Decker's autograph.

Helen Harrison

I expected five or ten others at the protest and a trickle of men darting in and out of the store. What I found was at most about a dozen protesters, two thirds of them women, and at least two hundred men arriving four-to-a-van, lining up outside the Newsroom for an autograph.

The media was right in there from the beginning, asking me and others for a "statement." I hadn't prepared any. We had about ten signs. We walked around in a circle (so we wouldn't get arrested), chanting slogans we made up on the spot.

The heckling was constant and unoriginal. We were dyke-baited. The men in our group were advised to "get a haircut." (I don't think they were talking to me.) They flashed porn mags in from of us. (Why?) They counter-chanted: "Let's go porn-o." One Playboy fan came up to a man in our group, proffered a centerfold, and said, "If you weren't so ugly, you could have this."

They invaded our circle and had their pictures taken, triumphant. (A symbolic rape?) Men cruised by in cars, waving porn mags our the windows, hooting — one drawing cheers from the waiting-line when he shouted, "All you need is a good hard c—k." A young man emerging from the Newsroom symbolically zipping up his pants was loudly congratulated by his fellows.

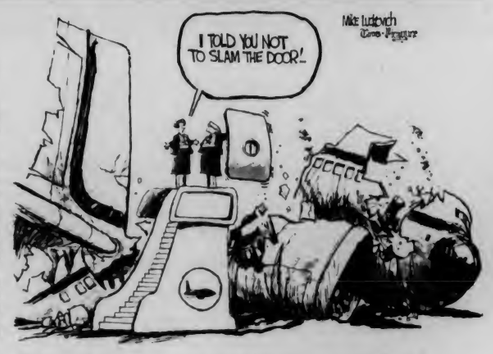
Meanwhile, several passers-by on the sidewalk expressed to us their disgust at the behavior of the Playboy fans. Some women came up to me to thank me for being there, saying, "Keep it up"... "Good job,"..."I'm glad you're here."

The heckling continued. One man in our group was called a "bigot." I'm not sure what that was supposed to mean. We were told we were "just jealous." They laughed when we chanted, "Pornography leads to violence," and, "Stop sexual exploitation." (One heckler countered, "Start sexual exploitation.") When we chanted, "Women are not playthings," they answered, "Like hell."

Roger Libby, "sexologist" and "horny toad," was there with his sex frog. I guess that's normal then. He squeezed its boob a few times to prove himself a healthy heterosexual male. Libby & Co. held anti-censorship signs. Our protest said nothing about censorship. Our message was simply, "Playboy degrades women."

What do you think?

Helen Harrison is a UMass student



Student activism needed to fight the budget cuts

Hopefully, the Statehouse isn't laughing. Last Thursday at noon, there was a rally against the budget cuts that have been crippling our university. Out of 18,500 undergraduates, 6000 grad students and countless faculty and staff, approximately 200 people came to show their support. Sure it was during class time and sure it was freezing, but those aren't valid excuses anymore. If we don't come together to fight these cuts, students may not have any more classes to go to.

Jason Kofman

More than any other issue facing our campus today, the budget cuts have the greatest disabling capability. Most likely, you are one of the 16,386 undergraduates who didn't get their first choice of classes. You were definitely affected by this year's eight percent rise in tuition. If you're coming back next semester, expect to see another seven to nine percent rise in your bill. Maybe your department was forced to cancel some required class sections, or maybe your job on campus was cut out due to university-wide budget reductions. Most tragically, maybe you are one of those students who can't afford to come back next semester.

It is not just students who are affected. There has been a hiring freeze on all vacant professional and staff positions since July. Every department on campus is getting less money to provide the same services. Don't be surprised if your offices loses some of its phone lines or if photocopying privileges are drastically reduced. From Whitmore down, everybody will be feeling its crunch sooner than may be expected.

My point is that as a matter of the UMass community, this directly involves you. If you didn't attend the rally, write to your state representative, take part in the phone banking available in Whitmore, or if you're not going to lobby the Statehouse, you are only digging our fiscal grave deeper. The only means we have to make Beacon Hill listen to us is if they hear and see us. They must realize we can't afford to accept these across the board cuts. If they see that only a fraction of the students are taking these cuts seriously, why should they bother listening? Instead of 200 people, there should have been 1000 at the rally. Instead of 1500 letters, the Statehouse should receive 20,000. We can't sit by and complain and let the usual student activists do all the yelling and screaming this time.

Total campus-wide action is necessary, like no other time in the past. You claim you're too busy? Well, when you don't get any classes next semester, what will you do with your free time? UMass is the flagship university in Massachusetts, the model on which great universities should be built. We have a reputation out here for being activists and a general nuisance to the Boston elitists. It's time we really lived up to that reputation and made the state legislature hear our demands. If we sit by idly this time, there may not be a next time.

Jason Kofman is a UMass student

Give help — and socks — to Cutback City

I was walking through the Hatch on Saturday morning when a haggard-looking man tapped me on the shoulder. "Excuse me," he said, "can I have your socks?"

"Pardon me?"

"They need your socks."

"Huh? Who?"

"The Shanties."

"The Whatzees?"

"The people living in Shantytown — Cutback City — need your socks. Their feet are cold."

I took a step back and looked at this guy who was eyeballing my socks. His hair was all messed up, his shirt was untucked, and, of course, he was wearing a pair of loafers without socks.

"Look, buddy," I said, "I'm not going to give you my socks. This is my favorite pair and nobody wears them except me. Who do you think you are?"

"My name is Roland Idunohoo," he said and he began to tell me his story. Apparently, he was from out of town. He had come up to visit a friend at UMass for the weekend, but his buddy (for some reason I didn't quite understand) had blown him off and left him all alone, walking aimlessly around campus Friday night.

"I was walking by the campus pond," he said, "when I noticed a group of loosely constructed shacks made mostly of cardboard and wrapped with plastic. At first I was appalled. I had heard that many UMass students were poor, but I would never have imagined that they were this bad off.

"I was kind of hesitant as I approached them because I thought they were going to ask me for money or something. But as I was walking by they said, 'Welcome. Come in and take a load off.'

Bob Bobala

"Well, I had no place else to go, so I walked into a shack that had a musty blanket for a door and, as I tripped on a sleeping bag, I was greeted by a barrage of 'hi's' and 'hello's.' The first thing I said to them was: 'I'm sorry. I wish I had some money to give you, but I don't. I had no idea the state was so unwilling to provide for the students at its own University.'

"'Oh, we're not here to collect money,' they said. 'We're here to let the state know that the budget cuts of the past two years are really diminishing the quality of education at UMass. We want the legislators to make funding for public higher education one of their top priorities.'

"'That sounds reasonable to me,' I said. Even though Massachusetts is in a fiscal crisis, I can't see what could be more important than education. How long have you been out here?'

"'It's been a week now. And we're gonna stay here for as long as it takes — through the spring, the summer. You're welcome to spend the night with us — or the week, or the month,' they said.

"So, I took them up on their offer," Idunohoo told me, as he glanced down at my socks again, "and I spent the night. They were very nice people and I was all choked up about having to leave this morning. 'Is there anything you need?' I asked them.

"'Yes,' they said. 'We need food and we need wood to build more shacks. But most of all we need more students, and we need more socks because our feet get really cold at night.'

"They went on to say how sad it was that 2000 people protested the alcohol ban last year, but only a handful have been protesting the budget cuts. 'A lot of people walk by and stare,' they said. 'If only more would stop and say hello. Please, go out and tell people to join us. Even if they can't camp out, tell them to just come and hang out for a while. Tell them to let their state reps know that UMass should get the funding that it needs and deserves. And don't forget to tell them to bring socks!'

"'I'll do my best,' I told them as I walked away. And now," he said to me, "if you're not going to give me your socks, which I would bring to them, I'll be on my way."

"Okay, okay!" I said. I slipped off my socks and handed them to him.

"Thank you," he said. "And now go and tell all your friends to give a little bit of support to Cutback City, otherwise known as Shantytown."

Bob Bobala is a Collegian columnist

Murder charge dropped because of faulty warrant

BOSTON (AP) — The man that Boston detectives most want to bring to trial today is 33-year-old Albert Lewin, who allegedly killed one of their colleagues during a drug raid last year.

But because police played fast and loose in getting the search warrant that led to the raid, Lewin is free — and three detectives are likely to be charged with perjury, prosecutors said.

The case has focused attention on how easy, and tempting, it is for police officers to obtain search warrants by citing fictitious informants.

Defense lawyers say the practice, though illegal, is routine in Boston and many other cities across the nation. But prosecutors and police say that if the use of confidential informants is curbed, they will lose a key weapon in the war against drugs.

Judge Jack B. Weinstein, who has spent 22 years on the federal District Court bench in New York City, said judges have little choice but to trust police when they say they have an informant.

"Assuming that they were trying to trick me, how would I know it?" Weinstein said. "The informant isn't subject to cross examination, I don't even see the informant. I have to rely on the US attorney and the law enforcement agencies. If they wanted to deceive me, it would be easy to do so."

In the Boston case, a Superior Court judge dismissed all charges against Lewin two weeks ago after police failed to produce a mysterious informant — identified only as "John" — who supposedly tipped them off to a cocaine dealer in the city's Dorchester section.

On Feb. 17, 1988, as four detectives prepared to break into the dealer's apartment, two shots rang out. One pierced the door and felled 36-year-old Detective Sherman Griffiths, a veteran member of the elite anti-drug task force.

When the detectives finally knocked down the steel-reinforced door, the apartment was empty. They rushed down a back staircase and arrested Lewin and three other people on a lower floor.

Prosecutors later dropped charges against all the other suspects in return for damaging testimony against Lewin, who maintains he is innocent.

From the outset, a weakness in the prosecution's case was that Lewin did not match the informant's description of the crack dealer who occupied the apartment and presumably fired the fatal shot.

According to the sworn affidavit the police submitted to obtain the search warrant, "John" said the dealer was Hispanic and about 5 feet, 6 inches tall. Lewin is a 6-foot Jamaican.

In pre-trial hearings last month, Lewin's attorney said "John" was a vital defense witness, and Judge Charles M. Grabau ordered detectives Carlos Luna, Hugo R. Amate and Paul G. Schroeder to bring him into court.

When the detectives said they were unable to find the informant, Grabau not only threw out the charges but also lambasted the detectives, saying he believed they had willfully disobeyed his orders.

Last week, Assistant District Attorney Francis O'Meara went back into court to make an extraordinary accusation: he said the detectives had lied to him and the court about the informant, either to strengthen the case against Lewin or to protect the search warrant.

O'Meara contended, however, that the charges against Lewin should not be dropped. He said the actual informant was not "John" — who may or may not exist — but another man, identified as "Y."

$2.00 OFF* new clients only

Hair Cuts

Expires 3/28/89

make your fashion statement

Styles By Deborah

65 University Dr., Amherst — 549-5610

AIM HIGH

EXPERIENCE

AIR FORCE NURSING.

Experience—the opportunity for advanced education, specialization and flight nursing. Experience—the opportunity to develop management and leadership skills as an Air Force officer. Experience—excellent starting pay, complete medical and dental care and 30 days of vacation with pay each year. Plus, many other benefits unique to the Air Force life-style. And the opportunity to serve your country. Experience—being part of a highly professional health care team. Find out what your experience can be. Call

USAF NURSE RECRUITING
603-433-1886/7 COLLECT

AIR FORCE

TOP of the CAMPUS LOUNGE

Another TOC Extra ...

Complimentary Hot Dogs Tonight at 8

Weekly drink specials and the Best Sports Programming!

Lounge Hours:
Mon-Fri 11:30 am-12:30 am
Sat-Sun 5:00 pm-12:30 am

11th Floor Campus Center • (413) 549-6000 ext. 7634
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Tested on the toughest courses.

The IBM® Personal System/2® is the lean, mean study machine that helps you turn your toughest assignments into sharp looking winners. And if you buy one now, you'll get a great student discount.

So stop in to see us. We'll show you how the IBM PS/2® can help you better organize your notes, write and revise all your papers, produce high-quality graphics to make all your work look sharper, and more.

With the IBM PS/2, you'll always finish first.

Demonstration on Concourse March 8,9 10-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Ski UTAH

UMass Ski Club has received lodging in Salt Lake City for Spring Break

Price includes lodging, rental car, & air fare. Lift ticket packages are available.

$450—Contact UMass Ski Club

UMASS SKI CLUB

CHOOSE EXCELLENCE

LARGEST COLLEGE PAPER IN NEW ENGLAND

The Massachusetts Daily COLLEGIAN

'Edger' — July 25, 1988 / West E... — DAILY HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

Loyal group accomp... spiritual leader

Historic clu... will rebuild from ashes

By Richard Sasson
The Patriot Ledger

WESTWOOD — Dominic Marinelli of Walpole, president of the 92-year-old Norfolk Golf Club on East Street, vowed yesterday to rebuild the clubhouse that was destroyed in a $100,000, three-alarm fire over the weekend.

Marinelli said the golf course will reopen in a couple of days and the clubhouse will be rebuilt.

"It's a disappointment," he said. "The building has been there a lot of years and there's a lot of history to it. But we'll come out of it. The club will survive like it has in the past."

No members were in the club during the fire which started near the club's function room yesterday, leaving only a section of the shop and a section of the locker room standing, John J. Sheehy said.

"The private club took questions and dispensed advice and looking reactions from laughter to tears.

This is Salsang, a gathering Cohen led five times a week at his home while in town for the Jewish holidays.

Cohen, a self-styled spiritual leader, left for Boston recently after spending 20 and 30 hours a week for months in the area, pulled up stakes and moved to Boulder, Colo.

By NANCY KLINGENER
Specials Writer

EVERETT — Andrew Cohen was in town for long, but he made his presence felt.

PBA tries to leave airport

Fee hikes at Logan blamed for move

By Pedro Pereira
Standard-Times staff writer

NEW BEDFORD — The only airline that runs regular flights from the city to and from Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket plans to withdraw its service in September, but federal law says another airline has to take over before the pullout.

Eastern Express/Provincetown-Boston Airlines, owned by Bar Harbor Airways Inc., will withdraw at New Bedford Municipal Airport because of low passenger demand, higher landing fees and the need for additional in Boston and LaGuardia in New York and the need for ... announced Thursday.

But the Federal Aviation Administration may not approve the ... tial ...

2 Congressmen Deny Speech Fees Spurred Fitchburg firefighter charged in loc...

By GREGORY GORDON
UPI

BLACK MOUNTAINS, Nev. — Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., and Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., appeared separately at small luncheons at the Democratic Club in the spring of 1987, Hochbruecker and aides to Hutto acknowledge.

Two days before delivering an honorarium check to Hochbruecker, Evergreen President Robert Brooks, a former congressional ... also personally donated ...

Shop owners face disaster in slump from beach closing

By DAVID R. MARK
Press Staff Writer

THE BRENNANS have been doing ... wondering lately.

Their ... Park, ... to wond... will ma... next ye...

Gloucester Daily Times, Friday, June 24, 1988

Judge denies injunction in Sakowicz suit

By JENNIFER DEMPSEY
Times staff

come. I was pleased that the court agreed with us. As far as I'm concerned the matter is finished. Over ...

Why join the Collegian?

Students serious about getting their foot in the door of the journalism field join the Collegian. Last summer several Collegian editors and staff members worked in professional newspapers and news organizations across the country.

Among newspapers that have hired Collegian reporters as interns or permanent staff members are the Boston Globe, Quincy Patriot Ledger, Standard-Times in New Bedford, Arlington Advocate, Daily Hampshire Gazette, Cape Cod Times, Gloucester Times, and many more.

Journalism is a competitive field and it pays to get experience early. So, what are you waiting for? Come down to 113 Campus Center today.

Doctor quits after patients claim sexual abuse

BOSTON (AP) — A Boston practitioner of holistic medicine and psychology accused of sexually abusing a number of women he was counseling has surrendered his license to the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Medicine, according to a published report.

Dr. Richard Ingrasci, of Newton, was asked by his colleagues at the Watertown Turning Point Family Wellness Center to stop practicing pending an investigation by the state into the allegations.

"After we learned of these complaints, we felt we had a legal and moral obligation to report him to the board," Dr. Edward Chapman told the Boston Globe. Chapman, a family physician at the Watertwon center, said Ingrasci "has a big problem," adding and "he shouldn't" be working in psychotherapy.

Ingrasci, who left the facility in November, recently settled a malpractice suit in which a 37-year-old woman charged him with sexually assaulting her during several counseling sessions over a four-month period in 1980.

The woman said she had gone to Ingrasci for treatment after being diagnosed with cancer. She said the doctor told her that sexual contact was necessary to cure her cancer.

The woman, who wished to remain anonymous, said Ingrasci fondled her sexually and gave her deep-muscle massages that several Boston therapists said were not part of any recognized Rolfing procedure.

Two other former patients said Ingrasci sexually abused them after giving them mind-altering drugs, including Ecstasy, now outlawed by the US Food and Drug Administration.

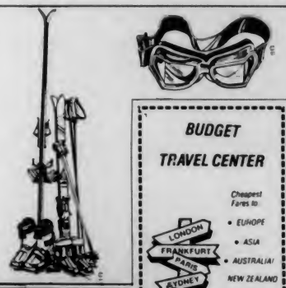
Any sexual activity with patients is considered unethical by the American Psychiatric Association, the American Psychological Asociation and other professional organizations. Some states have made such behavior punishable by jail or fines, but Massachusetts has no law.

A 38-year-old woman who also asked to remain unnamed said she went to Ingrasci for therapy in 1981. She went to his Watertown practice, in a place then called Whole Health Associates.

"It started out very subtly," she said, "like he would put his hand on my arm when we were talking. At first, I thought he was just a warm person."

Ingrasci's treatment of the woman progressed to Rolfing sessions in which she was nude and he he would place his hand up her vagina. He gave her ketamine hydrochloride, an anesthetic that immobilized her physically. As the drug wore off, she said, she performed oral sex on Ingrasci.

"I felt very drowsy and spacey, and I didn't care what was happening," she said.



AMHERST CINEMA
MISSISSIPPI BURNING
Monday-Thursday 7:30 only
Fri., Sat. & Sun. 2 shows 7:00&9:15
AMITY ST. 253-5426

BUDGET TRAVEL CENTER
Cheapest Fares to:
LONDON, FRANKFURT, PARIS, SYDNEY, TOKYO, AMSTERDAM, AUCKLAND, HONG KONG
• EUROPE • ASIA • AUSTRALIA/NEW ZEALAND
Plus railpasses, international student ID, tours and much more. Ask for our free travel catalog.
COUNCIL TRAVEL
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002

GUADALAJARA SUMMER SCHOOL
University of Arizona offers more than 40 courses: anthropology, art, bilingual education, folk music and folk dance, history, phonetics, political science, Spanish language and literature and intensive Spanish. Six-week session. July 3-August 11, 1989. Fully accredited program. M.A. degree in Spanish offered. Tuition $510. Room and board in Mexican home $540. EEO/AA
Write
Guadalajara Summer School
Education Bldg., Room 225
University of Arizona
Tucson, AZ 85721
(602) 621-4729 or 621-4720

Two for one
"Your Choice" Coupon Specials
Buy One Get One Free
Coupon valid Monday thru Friday only.
BREAKFAST
#4 Country Special Reg. $4.75
Chilled juice, hot coffee, two large eggs, two pancakes with bacon, sausage or ham, home fries and toast.
LUNCH
The New Englander Reg. $3.75
An oversized sandwich on a toasted steak roll with ham, turkey, bacon, cheddar, lettuce and tomato. Served with fries, rice or cole slaw.
DINNER
Our Entree Specialties Reg. $5.35/$5.95
Chicken or Veal Parmigiana and choice of: steak fries, baked potato, rice pilaf, cottage cheese or cole slaw. Served with tossed salad.
Coupon Expires 3/10/89
OPEN SUN-THURS 6 A.M.-3 A.M. 24 HOURS FRIDAY & SATURDAY
James H. McManus eating place
NEXT TO SUPER STOP & SHOP RTE. 9 HADLEY/AMHERST 256-6389
SENIOR CITIZEN DISCOUNT 10% ANYTIME not with coupon

SPECIAL OFFER!
BUY ANY THREE AD MARKERS AND GET ONE AD MARKER OR BLENDER FREE!
Offer Good until 3/15/89 Quantities Limited
chartpak AD MARKER
200 COLORS PLUS THE ONLY MARKER WITH THE INTERCHANGEABLE NIB SYSTEM
Using a tissue remove old Wedge and Brush Nibs from marker barrel and dispose
Fine and Bullet Nibs may require the use of tweezers or pliers to remove Place new nib into marker barrel. By inverting marker ink will saturate the nib within a few minutes
Located In The Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 10-3
UNIVERSITY STORE

University of Massachusetts
CAMP DAY "1989"
Summer Employment
TUESDAY, MARCH 7
10 a.m.—5 p.m.
Student Union Ballroom
Featuring:
60 Camps from the Northeast
Massachusetts • New York • Maine
Connecticut • New Hampshire
New Jersey • Boston • Pennsylvania
WILL BE INTERVIEWING FOR SUMMER EMPLOYMENT
Further Information Contact:
The Student Employment Office
239-A Whitmore - Walk-ins Welcome

Calypso's flop as dancing Russians steal show

By AL KAUFMAN
Collegian Correspondent

Steel Wave and Orquestra Chevere
Hampden Theater
March 3

It looked like it was going to be a long night. Steel Wave, a Trinidian steel band playing calypso music was on stage at the Hampden Theater Friday night as part of the Residential Arts' Flimdoozy series. The band looked as if they would have preferred staying home in bed. The fifteen or so people that comprised the audience looked like they were in bed.

Twenty minutes into the set, about ten Soviet students and their American hosts walked in and started dancing. If you ever thought Soviets couldn't dance, think again.

While the original lethargic audience of fifteen lazily looked on, the Soviets brought the energy level of the room up to a new high. Steel Wave soon realized their spotlight had been stolen, and increased their intensity a few notches in an attempt to regain it.

But this was a night that belonged to the audience. When Orquestra Chevere, a ten member Latin salsa band, took the stage, the Soviets took over the dance floor again.

The band, singing most of their songs in Spanish (save for a fun salsa version of Stevie Wonder's sickingly sweet "I Just Called to Say I Love You") seemed to enjoy the exchange students more than the audience enjoyed the band. Although there is humor in watching a bunch of fairly old, fat men who dress alike move in synch onstage, their music, like that of Steel Wave, was often flat.

Midway through Orquestra Chevere's set, the exhausted Soviets, who will be here for three weeks as part of a direct student exchange program, left. I immediately followed. As far as I was concerned, the show was over.

THE ALTERNATIVE SPRING BREAK 89
Killington VERMONT
CONDO LODGING & LIFTS
SKI and PARTY WEEK
MARCH 19-24
$259
LODGING
INCLUDES TAXES AND SERVICES
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437
NON-MEMBERS WELCOME
PROGRAM INCLUDES:
• 3 DAYS LIFTS TO SIX MOUNTAINS
• SPECIAL COLLEGE PARTIES
• 6 NITES CONDO LODGING AT PINNACLE
• FUN SHUTTLE
PARTIES PARTIES PARTIES

charlie's
1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week • Cal. for Take Out
Kitchen Open 'till midnight
New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables
Tonight 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks
9:00 PM - 12:00 AM
Seven & Seven $1.50 Drink of the Week
Moosehead $1.75 Beer of the Month
FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Tues 10¢ Buffalo Wings 9-12
Wed 99¢ Nacho & Cheese Platters 9-12
Sunday 4 Burger Platters for $5.00 6-10

Are you concerned about Eating Problems?
Drop-in for information session
No Charge • No Registration
Tuesdays, 4-5 pm
Nov. 15, 22, 28; Dec. 6 & 12
Univ. Health Services RM 304
UHS Nutritionist and Mental Health Therapist will answer questions, show a film and provide general information.

We Harbor the Best Careers
Thompson's Clam Bar, the largest seasonal restaurant on the East Coast, has immediate openings (now through September 10) for the following experienced individuals:
PORTERS
BUS PERSONS
DINING ROOM WAITSTAFF
COCKTAIL WAITSTAFF
We also have the following kitchen positions available:
DISHWASHERS
PREP COOKS
COOKS
SALAD DEPARTMENT
We offer an excellent working environment and competitive compensation. Apply now. Call Sue at (508) 432-1000, or apply in person.
THOMPSON'S CLAM BAR
23 Snow Inn Road
Harwichport, MA 02646
An Equal Opportunity Employer

STUDENTS
LESSON NO. 1 NEVER CONSIDER DOING BUSINESS WITH SOMEONE WHO IS NOT WILLING TO WORK FOR IT!
LESSON NO. 2 ONE DEALERSHIP IN YOUR AREA IS WILLING TO HELP AND WORK FOR YOUR BUSINESS!
See Lesson No. 3 next week
WE WILL PAY YOUR FIRST 4 PAYMENTS*
Bring your student ID. Must be shown upon entering
For people who won t consider compromise....for people like you!!
Previously owned cars starting under $2500 Available
NORTHAMPTON HONDA
Excludes all other promotions.
586-8626 171 KING STREET, NORTHAMPTON, MASS 586-8626
1000 total maximum payments

ARTS & LIVING

The view from the Mount on the Five College scene

By KRISTINA DENIUS
Collegian Correspondent

While stereotypes are generally considered injurious to the fabric of moral society, it's often difficult to avoid classifying people under a blanket category when your sole basis for judgement is the people and/or the institutions they are associated with. Here in the Five College Area, assumptions of character are routinely made based on the stereotypes associated with each school. Although restricted to the viewpoints of only one group of students, recent interviews with women at Mount Holyoke College revealed some interesting attitudes toward neighboring colleges and their make-up of students.

Despite the lack of contact between Smith and Mount Holyoke, the women questioned seemed to identify most closely with Smith students. Senior Danielle Dawson commented, "I could stereotype them as all being rich with nice clothes, but they are basically a lot like us." Lona Miller, a Mount Holyoke sophomore, said, "They're more pushy and outspoken than us, especially if you're in Northampton, where they act like they own the place." Most who were questined agreed that the social life at Smith is probably very similar to the social life at Holyoke - rather pathetic.

"I've heard that Amherst guys go to their (Smith) parties, which for me is a good reason to steer clear of the place," said Merry Buckolt, a Mount Holyoke senior.

Holyoke students seem to agree that Hampshire students are very unique. They are generally viewed as being "artsy types who eat granola and smoke pot." One woman said that it seems like the most important admission requirement at Hampshire is to have a cause. She then added, "what I want to know is, if they're all so individualistic, why do they all dress alike?"

Piikea Miller noted that most Hampshire students wear, "birkenstocks and rag wool socks with clothing that is predominantly ethnic." Asked about the Hampshire social scene, Miller said, "I imagine they do drugs, drink, attend lectures, go to the movies and play strange sports."

Few of the women interviewed had anything particularly pleasant to say about Amherst students or the Amherst social life. The typical Amherst student is looked upon as being conservative, preppy, clean-cut, extremely uptight and snobby. The men were described as being "very immature".

Sabrina Maurer remarked, "Quite frankly, I have a pretty awful impression of the place (Amherst College)." One freshman student stated, "It's a nice place to drink, but you wouldn't want to talk to anyone there."

". . . their parties are filled with people who are completely unfriendly and boring, and the men are simply not attractive," Merry Buckolt added. "It's basically a bunch of not-so-good-looking guys sitting around waiting for beautiful girls to fall all over them."

The Mount Holyoke students tended to perceive UMass in a very favorable and positive light. Saskia Aalders said, "They are nice down to earth, laid back, fun and relaxed."

One woman noted that the attire of choice amongst UMass men was the casual look, "unlaced Reeboks, jeans, big CB jackets and the token baseball cap." "Everyone seems to be from Massachusetts, and their is a great deal of hairspray," another woman said.

"As far as the social life goes," Aalders observed, ". . . UMass students seem to be natural partiers." "They're friendly, positive people," Sabrina Maurer summed up UMass students, "and they're just as motivated as anybody."

Hot Jane hooks P St. crowd

By JASON TALERMAN
Collegian Staff

Predominantly a young crowd. The coolest watched Grave Goods from the couches at the back of the ballroom. The most idiotic went full tilt the whole way. Pearl St. definitely has Club MTV potential, only this crowd would've stomped the insides right out of Judie Brown. I had the flu last week and I could have sworn I had a million little MTV veejays coursing through my veins. It's parasites like that that are destroying cattle all over the world; now they're in the picture tube.

BONES

Jane's Addiction is going to be infecting the tube too, in a big way, real soon. We will be a metal nation. I don't necessarily condone this but if Jane's Addiction represents the next wave of metal then at least I won't be clawing my own eyes out everytime the remote control rings up ol' number 34.

The L.A. rock scene has definitely gone sour. Lots of long hairs pretending to live in two worlds. If they could just separate the music from appearence. In a sense, though, I think this is good for music. Even if bands turn out to be pretentious assholes they still might retain some of that good skatepunk childhood. Jane's Addiction plays just enough dirge to keep me happy. I missed the world premier of Madonna's new Pepsi ad to see Jane's Addiction play to an angst ridden all ages crowd at the giant upstairs ballroom at Pearl Street. I was kind of curious to see what kind of make up they would employ to hide Sean Penn's handiwork but I got more than my share of assault and battery in the pit at the show.

I felt that Jane's Addiction were pretty solid though they leaned a little bit too much on sound board. They were loud and tight but after an hour of straight digital delay I felt like I had been split, Sybil-like, into 24 different personalities. They could have benefitted from a shorter, louder set with about a twenty minute version of the "Mountain Song" but I have a lot of personal problems that force me to work in short, intense spurts

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman
JANE'S ADDICTION played a packed Pearl Street Thursday night.

Kaplan LSAT prep- We plead guilty!

The first, the biggest, the best. We plead guilty on all counts to giving LSAT candidates like you the finest test preparation possible.

Every year, Stanley H. Kaplan preps more men and women for the LSAT than anyone else. Why? . . . It's simple! Our teachers are LSAT specialists who know what it takes to score. Our research staff keeps you on top of the latest test changes. Our home study pack and audio study lab lets you get as much LSAT practice as you need.

Want proof! Call or visit any of our over 130 nationwide locations. Ask about our free repeat policy and our scholarship programs. You'll find the professionalism your future deserves. Beyond the shadow of a doubt.

KAPLAN
STANLEY H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD.

COMPLETELY UPDATED COURSE FOR JUNE, 1987, EXAM

Classes Begin:
March 28th
April 20th

358 No. Pleasant Street • 549-5780

We Harbor the Best Careers

Wychmere Harbor Hotel and Beach Club, the finest seaside resort on Cape Cod, currently offers the following positions available immediately through October 23, 1989.

• WAITSTAFF • NIGHT AUDITOR
• HOUSEMEN • GIFTSHOP
• PORTERS • BEACH ATTENDANTS
• SECURITY • LAUNDRY
• COMMISSARY

Full and part-time positions available; flexible hours. We also have the following kitchen positions available:

• BREAKFAST-LUNCH COOK
• BAKERY ASSISTANT
• LINE COOKS • DISHWASHERS

We offer an excellent working atmosphere and competitive compensation. Housing is available from September to October. Apply today! Call Sue at (508) 432-1000 or apply in person.

WYCHMERE HARBOR
Hotel and Beach Club

23 Snow Inn Road, Harwichport, MA 02646
An Equal Opportunity Employer

Largo provide key to the Galaxy at Blue Wall

By GRAEME THOMSON
Collegian Staff
Hugo Largo/Galaxy 500
Blue Wall Cafe
March 3

The first thing I notice as I step inside the Blue Wall and assess the situation with my albeit limited powers of vision is that, apart from a small contingent of Hampshire College types dressed like silhouettes (or is it the other way round - I can never tell.), the cafe seems to be packed to the gunnels with large regions of empty space. I suppose this is a good cue for a joke - but hey! I'm not one for rubbing it in. Besides, I didn't come here to watch the crowd.

As I down another coffee to regain caffeine equilibrium, I'm getting a mite pissed off at the P.A., pumping out some vacuous chart rock bilge at completely ridiculous volume. I wait impatiently for Galaxy 500, tonight's support act.

Three sorry looking figures finally appear on stage, and announce themselves as Wild Stallion, but it's a joke that backfires, because initially they seem to live down to the pop/metal crappiness the name implies, especially with the "slow, with feeling ("Every Rose has it's Thorn")" G to C strum of the opening number. But soon enough they're recognizably Galaxy 500 again, and their finest moments have the plaintive, clumsy, out-of-tune desperation of the best dream teen-angst jangle pop. They finish off the set with a cover of New Order's "Ceremony" that is almost religious in it's reverence. I like Galaxy 500. They remind me of all the reasons we formed bands in high school.

Hugo Largo are a different kettle of fish. From the moment they occupy the stage, I find myself struck by their otherness, which is made even more striking by the completely unpretentious between-song banter. Singer Mimi Goese, looking like she's modeling the spring collection from the Fashion House of Utopia, has obviously been attending the David Byrne school of head-movements, while New Zealand bassist Tim Sommer is the embodiment of every Flying Nun record you've ever heard. But the band's seeming incongruity is part of their appeal. Over the persistent, yet mesmeric drone of two counterpointing bass guitars, Mimi's voice soars with Hahn Rowe's spine-scratching electric violin, the two instruments weaving effortlessly in and out of one another like invisible birds, momentarily coming into perfect union.

And you just can't get away from that voice, a strange, beautiful moan, which wraps you in its intoxicating velvet darkness and then screams like shattering glass, all in one breath. Hugo Largo perform some balancing act; Listening to them is like lying on your back in deep water, constantly feeling that you're about to go under, yet somehow kept afloat on an impossible wave of uncertainty.

This sense of the unpredictable is reflected when Rowe swaps his magic violin for what sounds like Robin Guthrie's guitar, and the Largo sound which you thought you could pin down - something like Black Sun Ensemble meets Mimi Goese (because there is no analogy you can make for Mimi Goese) - takes on a completely new and liberatingly breezy dimension.

The members of the band seem pretty much unconcerned by the poor turnout, although Mimi makes a few jokes about the excessive security. "Can't somebody start a fight or something?" she suggests, although this seems pretty unlikely, judging from the morons adorning the front row. As the next number starts up they begin gyrating like Bobo dolls, and Hugo Largo suddenly seem to me like fish in a bowl, looking out on an unfamiliar world, and no-doubt noticing how bloody silly it all looks. But these fish are rapidly ascending the phylogenetic scale. Watch them evolve!

"HOW I MADE $18,000 FOR COLLEGE BY WORKING WEEKENDS."

When my friends and I graduated from high school, we all took part-time jobs to pay for college.

They ended up in car washes and hamburger joints, putting in long hours for little pay.

Not me. My job takes just one weekend a month and two weeks a year. Yet, I'm earning $18,000 for college.

Because I joined my local Army National Guard.

They're the people who help our state during emergencies like hurricanes and floods. They're also an important part of our country's military defense.

So, since I'm helping them do such an important job, they're helping me make it through school.

As soon as I finished Advanced Training, the Guard gave me a cash bonus of $2,000. I'm also getting another $5,000 for tuition and books, thanks to the New GI Bill.

Not to mention my monthly Army Guard paychecks. They'll add up to more than $11,000 over the six years I'm in the Guard.

And if I take out a college loan, the Guard will help me pay it back—up to $1,500 a year, plus interest.

It all adds up to $18,000—or more—for college for just a little of my time. And that's a heck of a better deal than any car wash will give you.

THE GUARD CAN HELP PUT YOU THROUGH COLLEGE, TOO. SEE YOUR LOCAL RECRUITER FOR DETAILS, CALL TOLL-FREE 800-638-7600,* OR MAIL THIS COUPON.

*In Hawaii: 737-5255; Puerto Rico: 721-4550; Guam: 477-9957; Virgin Islands (St. Croix): 773-6438; New Jersey: 800-452-5794. In Alaska, consult your local phone directory.

© 1985 United States Government as represented by the Secretary of Defense. All rights reserved.

MAIL TO: Army National Guard, P.O. Box 6000, Clifton, NJ 07015
☐M ☐F
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY/STATE/ZIP
AREA CODE PHONE ☐US CITIZEN ☐YES ☐NO
SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER BIRTH DATE OCCUPATION
STUDENT ☐HIGH SCHOOL ☐COLLEGE
PRIOR MILITARY SERVICE ☐YES ☐NO
BRANCH RANK AFM/MOS

ARMY National Guard
A1CWJC0603NP

Army National Guard
Americans At Their Best.

Then get in on the ground floor in our Platoon Leaders Class program for college freshmen, sophomores and juniors. You could start planning on a career like the men in this ad have. And also have some great advantages like:

- Earning $100 a month during the school year
- As a freshman or sophomore, you could complete your basic training during two six-week summer sessions and earn more than $1200 during each session.
- Juniors earn more than $2100 during one ten-week summer session.
- Seniors and graduates can be commissioned through the Officer Candidate Class Program.
- You can take free civilian flying lessons.
- You're commissioned upon graduation.

If you're looking to move up quickly, look into the Marine Corps commissioning programs. You could start off making more than $18,000 a year.

Want to move up quickly?

We're looking for a few good men.

Marines

See Captain Chapla
University Career Center
Today, March 6, 1989 10a.m. - 2 p.m.
or call 1-800-255-8762

Exhaustive rhythms from KODO drummers

By JOHN O'LEARY
Collegian Correspondent

KODO
Fine Arts Center
March 3

The Fine Arts Center resounded with the rhythm of Japanese drumming Friday evening as the touring group KODO treated a near capacity audience to an inspiring performance.

With a musical presentation centered on the taiko, a traditional Japanese drum, KODO explored the most basic form of musical expression and created a powerful and unique sound. Often employing an ensemble of strictly percussion instruments, this eleven man company created a wall of sound which enthralled the crowd.

The main creative inspiration for KODO is the harmony and balance within nature, and the primal rhythms of their music capture this inspiration magically. The story behind KODO is important in appreciating their musical message.

Based on an island in the Sea of Japan, the members of KODO live communally in a setting of great natural beauty, as they have since 1971. Their days are spent practicing the various instruments employed in their show and maintaining the physical conditioning required in their performances. The term "KODO" means both "heartbeat" and "children of the drum", and this choice of name expresses their desire to play the drums purely, within the heart of a child.

The simple joy the performers experienced while playing was evident throughout the performance, as was the concentration and effort required in playing at the level of skill which the compositions demanded. Friday's program consisted of twelve compositions and was played through without intermission. The energy and stamina of the players was impressive, as many pieces called for the sustained beating of enormous barrel drums.

Most impressive of all, however, was the variety of textures produced by the complex combination of simple instruments. One piece featured two sets of cymbals playing off one another with the accompaniment of two sets of drums. The coordination of the instrumentation resulted in a sound that was full and lyrical.

Several instruments required some teamwork. The massive Odaiko, a two headed drum weighing over 200 pounds, produced its cadence by the drummer on one side beating out a basic rhythm while the main player freely improvised. A duet featuring two stringed instruments also featured the coordinated effort of the players as they strummed an Oriental version of dueling banjos (a comparison which really does the piece no justice).

The evening ended with an audience demand for three encores, the troop finally capping the night off with a song of appreciation sung to the rhythmic hand clapping of the entire auditorium, a samall payback for their remarkable display of percussive excellence in a wonderful and uplifting performance.

THE
EDWIN M. ROSSMAN
ALUMNI CAREER FORUMS

BDIC

DATE: TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1989
TIME: 8:00 PM
LOCATION: CAMPUS CENTER 101

SPONSORED BY:
UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT SERVICE
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
BACHELOR'S DEGREE WITH INDIVIDUAL CONCENTRATION

This is an opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this important panel discussion!

ALUMNI PANELISTS:

Frank Leon McCoy '74 "African Politics"	Consultant Synergos Institute New York, NY
Patricia Hayes '75 "Graphic Communications"	Freelance Graphic & Textile Designer P. Hayes Designs Northampton, MA
Sanford M. Matathia '78 "Land Planning & Development"	Attorney Rackemann, Sawyer and Brewster Boston, MA
James F. Kane '83 "Broadcast Reporting with Specialization in Government"	News Anchor/Reporter WTAG Radio Worcester, MA

For more information, please contact:
University Placement Service, University Career Center
545-2224

S · U · N
BARBADOS
for SPRING BREAK
THE PLACE TO BE

We have a brand new 7-bedroom mansion reserved for the UMASS spring break party of the year. Your party abode is located on the beach and includes a fully equipped kitchen, living room, 4 full bath rooms, and daily maid service. The Sandy Lane Golf Course and Sunset Crest Resort are both close neighbors. The 3 quads, 3 triples, and 1 double are given on a first come first serve basis so don't be late.

DATES:
JFK Departure: March 17, 18, 19
Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Departures
BOS Departure: March, Friday 17 - Friday 24

Quad, Triple, or Double Occupancy: $589
Occupancy is first come first serve
$559: VILLAS
$525: ON WATER LOCATION
$75 non-refundable for reservation
$25 security deposit required.
Full payment is need after February 9, 1989
Payments in guaranteed funds only!

$589

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union
545-3437
SEE US AT THE TABLE

A-10 tournament

continued from page 18

One of those teams was UMass, and the win at the Cage was a big one for St. Bonaventure.

"I think the game at UMass was one of our best all year," Telford said. "We jumped out early and there was no stretch of five or six minutes where we got out of synch. That was the difference in the ballgame."

That, along with the play of freshman forward Sue Shay, who has been a stalwart all season for the Bonnies. Shay, who has a 40-point effort included in her season's resume, chucked in 31 in that game to lead her team.

As the second leading scorer in conference games and third best scoring overall (21.2 points per game, along with 7.4 rebounds), there's not much doubt that she will be the player UMass will have to keep a sharp eye on.

"We will have to figure out a way to stop Sue Shay," Hewelt said. "We thought we had a good set-up last time, but that didn't work. And now we have to play her inside and outside."

However, as any coach knows, they will be in a world of hurt if they focus on just Shay and let the rest of the brown uniforms have their way. The Bonnies feature an able support cast of sophomore guard Roni Hergenroeder, sophomore forward Leslie McGhee and senior guard Lisa Marquis, among others. Any one player is capable of having a night to write home about.

"We've been fortunate to have other players do damage for us," said Telford. "We'll just have to play our ballgame."

The strategy isn't much different for UMass.

"We have to come out and play with intensity. After that, anything can happen," Hewelt said.

Hoop-la: Each team has won one game this year, but this one is the one that means the most. The winner will keep on going, with a trip to Philadelphia to face St. Joseph's in the offing for Wednesday night . . . St. Joe's won a coin flip Saturday night to take the top spot in the tourney, the first time ever that it has gained the top seed.

All eyes may be on senior forward Beth Wilbor, who needs 16 points to reach 1,000 for her career . . . if there is anything going against St. Bonaventure, it's the fact that the Bonnies haven't played since Feb. 25. For a team that's been on a roll, a layoff like that could be deadly.

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT
Print Shop
226 Triangle St., Amherst

Auto Glass Center
SAME DAY SERVICE
BILLED DIRECTLY TO INSURANCE CO.
WINDSHIELDS REPLACED
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd. • 549-2980
Rte. Amherst

ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31
KAY JEWELERS
The diamond people
ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31
STUDENTS TAKE ADDITIONAL
10% OFF ALL SALE PRICED JEWELRY
With any valid student ID
INSTANT CREDIT AVAILABLE
Hampshire Mall, Hadley
MON-SAT: 10-9:30; SUN: 12-5

SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW HOW TO HANDLE THE BUMPS?
PROVE IT!
At the annual Killington Mogul Challenge on Outer Limits, Saturday, April 1st. Come get an application from the UMass Ski Club, 430 Student Union ($15 application fee)* and join the competition.
OR JUST BE A SPECTATOR, and join us for the Saturday bus trip to Killington.
*Number of applications available are limited, so please hurry to be sure a space is reserved for you.
UMASS SKI CLUB

Council Travel
From New York — Round Trip Starting at LONDON 358
PARIS 458
GUATEMALA City 340
CARACAS 320
HONGKONG 769
TOKYO 679
SYDNEY 1128
Restrictions apply taxes not included
Check our low teacher fares
FURAIL PASSES ISSUED ON THE SPOT!
Call for FREE Student Travel Catalog
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002

Resume Service
• Quality Copies
• Fine Stationery
• Matching Envelopes
kinko's
the copy center
253-2543

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
BLOCK GRANT PROPOSAL DEADLINE
The next deadline for submission of grant proposals for Block Grants
Thursday, March 30
Guidelines and application forms are available at the Arts Council office
UMass Arts Council 125 Herter
545-0202

Champion
Double Reverse Weave

Photo by Buck Stewart
Monday-Friday 9-5
Saturday 10-3
UNIVERSITY STORE

UPC PRODUCTIONS PRESENT
THAT PETROL EMOTION
& VOICE OF THE BEEHIVE
FRIDAY
MARCH 31
8:00pm STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
UMASS-AMHERST
$5 UMASS STUDENT
$7 GENERAL PUBLIC
CASH BAR w/ PROPER I.D.
TICKETS ON SALE MARCH 7 AT TIX UNLIMITED, FOR THE RECORD-FACES, AND MAIN ST. RECORDS.

■ men's swimming

continued from page 20

standings were not released in time for printing but Yarworth expects that the the Minutemen finished 15th or 16th out of an approximated 45-team field. As expected, Olympian David Berkhoff of Harvard swam well in his home pool, while Princeton took the team title.

Brian McIver had a good meet for the Minutemen but the lack of time off had obvious effects. McIver's best finish was in the 50-yard freestyle where he took sixth place. He finished with a time of 20.81 seconds, a new UMass and New England record. He also grabbed a ninth-place spot in the 100-yard freestyle in 45.06 seconds and 16th in the 200-yard freestyle.

The UMass team of Dave Ehle, Pete Koback, G.T. Ladd and McIver got 16th in the 400-yard medley relay and the Minutemen also grabbed 13th in the 200-yard medley relay, setting a school and New England record with a time of 1:34.08.

Koback put in a good performance in the 100-yard breaststroke, setting a UMass record with a time of 59.06 seconds.

"We did all right," said Yarworth. "We were just a little bit off. I think [making up last week's] schoolwork got to them."

Despite the finish at the Easterns, Yarworth still has plenty of reason to smile. His team will be returning intact next season, a fact which should have the rest of the New England swimming coaches shaking their heads in frustration.

"I'm sure they'll be looking forward to [next year's] senior class graduating," said Yarworth.

The coach was also happy with the results of the year overall.

"We did what we planned on doing. We set our goal, to win the New England Championships again, and we did it," Yarworth said. "Now we will just start getting ready for next year."

BERMUDA
COLLEGE WEEKS
MARCH 18-25
When you break away this year, do it with style

SUN FUN!! round trip air
7 nights
great night life

Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB
547-3437
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.

$429 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP

THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION
SAVE A $75 Reservation Deposit Required
UMASS SKI CLUB
LAGNAF 430 Student Union • 545-3437

Discover
March's Birthstone
In Beautiful
Ways

Aquamarine
By David Virtue
Filigree rings 50 pm in 14kt gold, with Aquamarines

silverscape designs
264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-3324
3 Pleasant St., Northampton 584-3324
GOLDSMITHS • GEM GALLERY

This Saturday!

MARCH 11th
Killington
VERMONT
$32 FOR MEMBERS
add $10 FOR NON-MEMBERS
LAGNAF
PRESENTED BY UMASS SKI CLUB
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.
545-3437

THE LAUNDRY CLUB
What's your Dorm Day?
CLIP & SAVE SCHEDULE:

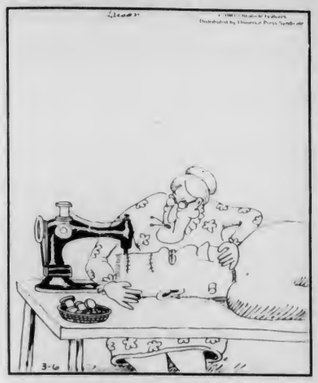
DAY	DORM	PICK-UP	DELIVERY
Mon.	COOLIDGE	9-9:30 AM	6 PM
	CRAMPTON	9-9:25 AM	6 PM
Tues.	MACKIMMIE	9:35-10 AM	6:30 PM
	PATTERSON	9-9:25 AM	6 PM
Wed.	MOORE	9:35-10 AM	6:30 PM
Thurs.	J.Q.A.	9-9:25 AM	6 PM

Watch for our Flyer for details!
SPECIAL LOW PRICES!
DORM DAY DEAL!
6 UNIVERSITY DRIVE/NEWMARKET CENTER/AMHERST/(413) 549-2640

GEAR FOR SPORTS

Photo by Buck Stewart
OPEN M-F 9-5
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



BLOOM COUNTY
By BERKE BREATHED

I SAW YOUR LETTER IN THE PICAYUNE.
WHICH ONE?
"DEAR EDITOR. I THINK WOMEN WHO WEAR TOO MUCH MAKEUP LOOK ABSOLUTELY UNGODLY. -P. OPUS"
THAT MAY NOT HAVE COME OVER TOO WELL WITH SOME FOLKS.
WHO?
BLASPHEMER!
Mary Kay
CONTINUED!

ETC.

"I couldn't spend that much unless I wore sable underware."

–Jacqueline Kennedy

asked in 1962 if she spent $30,000 a year on clothes

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

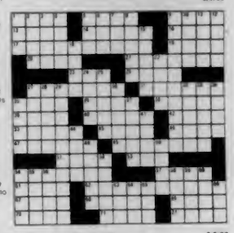
GOSH, I CAN'T WAIT TO GET MY BEANIE! I HOPE IT COMES SOON. DO YOU THINK IT WILL? IT'S PROBABLY BEEN ALMOST SIX WEEKS BY NOW, DON'T YOU THINK?
I ORDERED THE RED BEANIE BUT WHAT IF IT'S NOT IN STOCK? SHOULD I TAKE THE BLUE ONE, OR WAIT FOR THEM TO REORDER? A BLUE ONE WOULD BE OK, I GUESS, BUT I SURE HOPE THEY HAVE A RED ONE.
I'VE ALWAYS WANTED A BEANIE LIKE THIS, WITH A PROPELLER. BOY, IT'LL BE SO COOL WHEN I HAVE IT. I CAN'T WAIT. WOW! A RED BEANIE!...OR A BLUE ONE. DO YOU THINK IT WILL COME TOMORROW? DO YOU?
IT HAD SURE BETTER.
YEAH, THAT'S HOW I FEEL, TOO.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Agreement
5 Mimic
9 Command to Gabriel
13 Repeat
14 Sweetie
16 Byway
17 Symbol of drudgery
19 Dog star
20 Sword
21 Farmer's need
23 First mother
26 Grump
27 Ert in cards
31 Like some tapes
35 Superficial brilliance
36 — on it!
38 Old hat
39 Hodgepodge
40 What it means
42 Midcast sustenance
43 Antelope
45 Winning margin
46 Tennis needs
47 Savage
49 Remote region informally
51 Large amount
53 Wind dr.
54 Back up
57 Barges into
61 The last word
62 Dissimulate
67 Sound the bell
68 Heaping vessels
69 Persia, today
70 Hann ending
71 Urges
72 Picnic bullfinishs

DOWN
1 Colchesp.n in Britain
2 Land measure
3 Power or potato
4 Pitch
5 Silly one
6 Place
7 Spit
8 Carries on
9 English jurist Sir William
10 Endure
11 In the know
12 Don
15 Summer TV fare
18 Legal document
22 Pub orders
24 Waistcoat
25 One at home
27 Thousand, F.
28 Moment, ma'am
29 English megalithic monument
30 Shade of yellow
32 More domesticated
33 Gradien
34 Lairs
35 Traverser
37 Mexican coins
41 Bastes
44 Venison source
48 Bikinis shot
50 Musician Alpert
52 Narrow-minded
54 Sciatica
55 Give form
56 Opening
58 Musical moment
59 Daybreak
60 Card game
63 Unit
64 Fairday 10 friends
65 Tee lead-in
66 Printer's measures

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE



3/6/89

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

GOOD EVENING FROM TEHERAN, WHERE ASSEMBLED REPORTERS AND PUBLISHERS ARE ANXIOUSLY AWAITING THE LATEST REVIEWS FROM THE ISLAMIC CRITICS CIRCLE!
ROLAND? PETER JENNINGS! WE HEAR THE MULLAHS WILL BE RULING ON SOME BIG NAMES TONIGHT!
CORRECT, PETER! A LOT OF HOT AUTHORS HAVE TO BE EATING THEIR NAILS... AND I THINK WE'RE READY TO START!
GREETINGS! ON BEHALF OF THE ISLAMIC REVOLUTIONARY CRITICS CIRCLE, THE FOLLOWING JUDGMENTS ARE RENDERED...
TO SIDNEY SHELDON, FOR "THE SANDS OF TIME," A SENTENCE OF DEATH!
OOH! A PAN! THAT'S GOT TO HURT, PETER!

ZIPPY THE CHANCELLOR
By AL ARPAD

YEASTHEAD
By JASON TALERMAN

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Good financial news gets your week off to a happy start. Trot out your most imaginative ideas. Authority figure makes the right decision. Trust a higher power to help you lick a problem.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your workload increases. Focus your energies on projects that will eventually put more cash in your pocket. You are eager to pursue the object of your affections. Put your best foot forward.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your efforts are beginning to attract the attention of those who count. Lower your expectations, or you could be disappointed. Your feelings could be at odds with your ambition. Set priorities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A tremendous period of achievement is coming. Put your worries in mothballs for a while and work hard. Romance has a new glow. You think about making major changes in you lifestyle.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do favors for others - and get those important IOUs for the future. A fact-finding tour gives you the time of your life. Hold your ground on a financial matter. A compramise is unthinkable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You receive some excellent business or financial advice. Listen carefully. Surprises greet you when you return home. Consult partner before accepting or rejecting an invitation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct.22): If uncertain about your career, now is the time to sort things out. The conservative corporate look is best for you. A relationship receives a blessing from on high: invest your earnings wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You will be in an expansive mood this evening. A blond date could open the door to fun and fortune. Concentrate on business earlier in the day. Dot all the I's and cross those T's!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A change of residence or employment could be right around the corner. Find out more about the people making an offer before you commit yourself. Travel proves invigorating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.19): Although close business advisers may give you poor advice, you can trust outside counsel. Travel is best postponed, especially a visit to another country. The financial picture brightens.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Refuse to go into a tailspin just because you have had a disappointment. It could turn out to be a blessing a disguise! A sibling is in a competitive mood today. Be tolerant.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Rethink an idea that has real possibilities if you can find a practical application. Do not capitulate to opposition until you have exhausted all your options. Seek more authority at place of employment.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Chicken cutlet sandwich Bacon-onion quiche	Roast top round of beef Breaded veal pattie
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Boursin and sprout sandwich Chicken cutlet sandwich	Eggplant rolatini Vegetable hot pot

■ women's hoop

continued from page 20

Taking a gamble, UMass decided to go inside and the move paid off in the early going. Junior center Helen Freeman (14 points) found her game after some rocky play of late and sparked the Minutewomen to a quick lead. In stark contrast to Thursday night's loss to Rutgers, the Minutewomen were not flustered at all by the quality of the opponents.

"We came out loose and ready to play," Hewelt said. "Helen finally got untracked and got us started."

UMass was also getting a good game from sophomore forward Keyburn McCusker (team-high 15 points) to stay within reach.

But with the middle clogged, it was all fun and games for point guard Ellen Shields, who nailed down a triplet from Threepointville in a matter of five minutes to send the Hawks off and running. The streak-shooting guests answered every UMass challenge and pushed the lead to 13 at halftime, 45-32.

All things considered, it was a decent first half for UMass, and with the exception of an unconscious 64 percent display by the Hawks in the first 20 minutes, it could have been anyone's game at that point.

However, as the news was arriving from Philly about the disappointing men's score, the Hawks blew it open for a clean Saturday matinee sweep. The inside play of seniors Dale Hodges and Kim Foley (18 points apiece) and Shields' long-range tactics (14 points) kept the Hawks rolling. Within the first seven minutes of the second half, St. Joe's flashed out with a 19-6 run to rid all doubt, making it 64-38 with 12:49 left.

All that was left at that point was personal matters. With time winding down, Hewelt decided to give senior forward Beth Wilbor a shot at reaching the milestone 1,000-point plateau. Wilbor, who along with seniors Christel Zullo and Dianne Burke was honored before the game, came into Saturday needing 29 points to reach the four-digit mark. She finished with 13, and will have a chance to top that mark tonight in the first round of the Atlantic 10 tourney against St. Bonaventure at the Cage (7:30).

St. Joseph's, 82-60

Massachusetts (60): Beth Wilbor 5 4-7 13 14; Keyburn McCusker 8 11 1 4 25; Helen Freeman 4 9 0 0 8 14; Trish Riley 5 1 2 1 2 11; Dianne Burke 0 1 0 0 0; Sue Serafin 1 3 0 0 1; Jenny Moran 0 0 0 0 0; Lisa Haer 1 2 2 2 4; Colleen Hoskins 0 0 0 0 0. Totals: 22 55 15 19 60

St. Joseph's (82): Kim Foley 5 9 8 8 18; Jeanine Reynolds 3 8 0 0 6; Dale Hodges 8 11 2 3 18; Rita Balaban 1 1 0 0 2; Ellen Shields 4 6 2 2 14; Liz Burns 0 0 0 0 0; Susie Dean 1 1 0 0 2; Margaret Beer 6 7 0 0 13; Maureen Dougherty 0 1 0 0 0; Beth Sapensky 2 4 0 0 4; Alix Burns 0 1 0 1 0; Wendy Brink 2 4 0 0 4. Totals: 32 55 12 14 82

Women's hoop to host Bonnies in first round

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

The second season starts tonight for the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team.

After turning in a 10-17 overall performance and a 4-14 record in the Atlantic 10 conference, the Minutewomen will play host to St. Bonaventure University in the first round of the A-10 tournament at the Curry Hicks Cage (7:30 p.m.).

The Minutewomen have been struggling of late, dropping their last six games. But in all fairness, they have been undermanned for that whole stretch, having to dress no more than nine players at any one time. If anything the lack of depth, never a luxury at any point in the season, has been the biggest detriment during the stretch run.

Included in that six-pack of setbacks was one to tonight's opponent, St. Bonaventure, a 75-69 loss at the Cage on Feb. 18. With that in mind, the Minutewomen are going to be hard pressed to come up with a win tonight and keep this season alive.

But one thing this team has never been short on is confidence. UMass coach Kathy Hewelt thinks that Saturday's loss to St. Joseph's at the Cage was actually a plus at this stage in the game.

"I think we'd much rather play them at home after a loss than a win," Hewelt said. "Still, we're going to have our hands full."

Indeed, the Bonnies (3-15 in the A-10, 10-17 overall) are a team that hasn't been lacking in confidence itself. What at one time looked like a lost season that started with 14 consecutive conference losses took an abrupt about-face as it reeled off successive league wins over Rhode Island, UMass and George Washington before a final loss to Temple.

"I think that we've played well in February," said Bonnie coach Mary Jane Telford. "Earlier we were playing well against the higher echelon teams in the league like Rutgers, St. Joe's and West Virginia. Finally in the last few, we've still been playing well, but we've been playing teams more on our level."

continued on page 15

Admission charged tonight

Tonight's women's basketball game is an Atlantic 10 conference tournament game, and is not a normal UMass event. So all spectators will be charged admission.

Costs for UMass students will be $1 with a student ID. Non-students and students without IDs will be charged $2.

DOVE. Business Associates, Inc.

Dove Business Associates, Inc.

- FAST ACCURATE WORD PROCESSING
  - RESUMES
  - LETTERS
  - THESIS
  - DISSERTATIONS
  - TERM PAPERS
- TEMPORARY OFFICE PERSONNEL
- COMPLETE LINE OF SECRETARIAL SERVICES
  - BOOKKEEPING
  - MAILINGS

Dove Business Management Services
- Complete Services for Small Businesses

79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
256-1335 • 253-7480
Also New Offices at
90 Conz St., Northampton, MA
585-5127

BACK SCHOOL 101
Prerequisite:
Back pain & a referral from your UHS provider
This 4 session program (classes one week apart) includes information on exercise, some anatomy, massage, treatment options, posture tips, pain relief methods and relaxation
DATES & TIME: Mondays, April 3,10 & 24 at 6:00-8:00 pm and Tuesday, April 18 at 6:00-8:00 pm
PLACE: University Health Center
• Please advise your UHS provider for the proper referral
Call UHS Health Education for information and Registration. 549-2671, ext. 181

LOSE 4" TO 14" IN ONE HOUR STYLES BY DEBORAH'S
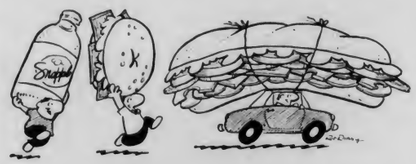
complete inch loss program

Our Unique Program Helps:
- Restores elasticity to loose flabby skin • Not a water loss
- Inches off in first wrap • Lose unsightly cellulite
- Contour your body — lose from problem areas

BRING A FRIEND(s) SPECIAL
$30 each Two or more people (reg. $40 ea.)
Includes Body Wrap, Facial & Foot Massage
Only at STYLES BY DEBORAH
65 University Dr., Amherst
Call 549-5610 for appointment

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
Now accepting application for June, July, August, and September occupancy.
*Sign up now and be assured of having an apartment next semester.
Brandywine Office
Open Monday to Friday 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.
549-0600
*Restrictions apply

AMHERST DELICATESSEN



10% All Off-Campus Deliveries
MON.-WED. 4 TO 8 — DELIVERS 549-6314 — THURS.-SAT. 4 TO 10
233 NORTH PLEASANT STREET — AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS 545-6314

La Cucina di PINOCCHIO
PIZZA & SUBS
FREE DELIVERY
(limited delivery area)
1177 N. Pleasant St.
N. Amherst
Coupons valid for delivery or pick up only
549-3669

Monday, Tuesday & Wednesday Night Special Coupon
LARGE CHEESE PIZZA
$5.50 plus tax
Not Valid with any other special • Valid only on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday • Valid in Amherst location • Valid only by phone

■ women's gymnastics

continued from page 20

"After a slow start, things are finally all coming together," said Ditunno.

"It was the best one she's done this year," agreed Mitchell.

Classmate Kaufman earned similar raves for her rousing exhibition performance in the floor exercise, and Keefe chipped in a similarly fond farewell effort on the balance beam.

Junior Erika Baxter captured the all around top spot with a solid 36.2. Erin Klier (35.95) and Kim Grady (35.75) finished second and third on the afternoon. Debbie Schultz, meanwhile, continued her ascent on the uneven bars, following last week's 9.4 with a 9.5. "She can keep getting higher and higher," promised Mitchell.

On the downside of the emotional scale, Michelle Antonelli twisted her knee dismounting from the balance beam, and had to be helped to her feet. It's uncertain whether she'll be able to rebound in time for this Saturday's meet at the University of Vermont.

■ men's gymnastics

continued from page 20

EIGL Championship, though they did not get away injury free.

The Minutemen went into the last event of the evening, the high bar with a slim 221.35-220.65 lead. But after the high bar, the Minutemen had themselves a 268.05-264.3 victory which gave them sole possession of second place in the EIGL and a new school record breaking the old record of 267.25 set a couple of years ago.

It was the second meet in a row that UMass needed a strong performance on high bar to pull out the meet. Last week, the Minutemen were trailing to Temple University going into the H-bar before coming up with their best effort of the year as a team.

Saturday, the Minutemen were not trailing but they were holding on by the skins of their teeth. But once again, they responded and this time with even a better score than last week.

Powered by Jay Ronayne's 9.6, Myers' 9.4, Eggers' 9.3, Cal Booker's 9.25, and Bart Balocki's 9.15 (which was a season high for Balocki) the Minutemen combined for a 46.7.

"We had a real good week in practice so I felt pretty confident," Johnson said.

Balocki turned in his best effort of the season, despite injuring his ankle in warmups. He was unable to compete at the New Englands yesterday and is questionable for next weekend's meet with Springfield at the Boyden Gymnastics Center.

UMass jumped out to an early lead (45.5-44.7) in the floor exercise on the strength of Booker's 9.3, Myers' 9.2, and the 9.15 from Eggers. That lead was extended to 88.95-86.75 as Fitzgerald finished second in the pommel horse with an 8.9.

The Orangemen took the lead away from the Minutemen with a very strong performance on the still rings. Steve Radt led Syracuse on the rings with a 9.5 to give the Orangemen a 132.9-132.6 lead.

But UMass regained the lead for good in the vault competition, 177.30-176.3 led by Ronayne's 9.4. Balocki's 9.15 and Myers' 9.1 on the parallel bars kept UMass where it wanted to be going into the last event.

Collegian photo by David Higashiguchi

The women's gymnastics team won its final home meet Saturday against Rutgers University.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON—TH 9:5 8:30 FRI 8:30-2:30 • DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION • CASH IN ADVANCE. 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

UMOC GENERAL MEETING Tonight at 7pm. Come and hear about upcoming trips. Slideshow on dolomites. Rm posted on bulletin board

CLUB COMMUNICATION WILL be holding a resume and interview workshop tonight at 7pm in Machmer W26. Non members welcome dues will be collected. See you there!

STOP BLOODSHED caused by US Military aid to El Salvador. CASA meets in Campus Corner. 5pm Monday. Check CC schedule

BOARD OF GOVERNORS Elections taking place March 14. Nominations Papers available 817 Campus Center. Due March 9. Join us in working toward a better union

PEOPLE TO PLAY strategy games/axis and allies Call Kevin 584-7376

ATTENTION ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUDIO

MARANTZ SPEAKERS 60 watts 8 mos old 150 or BO Call for more info 546-6524 Leave message

AUTO FOR SALE

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

BEAR-KNAPPED

DARE TO SING WADDLEACHA in the DC or else the Bearknappers.

CHILD CARE

FAMILY DAY OPENINGS. Warm, happy environment 665-4501

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances 256-8526

FOR RENT

IN SUNDERLAND, free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Secure and apartment for August and receive August rent free. For more details call 665-3606 Sign up early

FOR SALE

IBM PC COMPATIBLE 256K, 11 drive, monitor $875 with 10meg hard drive, $699 536-5006

HERSE FOR SALE I'm dead serious about selling it $2500 or BO, Chris 734-4544/546-4218

EXERCISE BIKE like brand new! Only $35 call 549-5771 Leave message

20" SYLVANIA COLOR TV, like new $100 549-4234 Hugh

6' GRAPHICS $20 Call 549-4234 Hugh Lots of fun

ANSWER MACHINE EX CONDITION $40 and Sony 5" TV Call 546-5354

SI SWIMSUIT VIDEO $15 and Sony Walkman $25 546-5354

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES Amherst two year old income property, positive cash flow (gross rental income 18,000/yr), live rent free and make spending money too! Call Dale 253-9949

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles. Call 256-8369.

FOUND

TO THE PERSON WHO LEFT THEIR tape recorder at the Wednesday Night speech given in the Campus Center Auditorium. I found it and have it in my room at 311 Dwight. Identify it and it's yours. John Noe Room 311 Dwight.

ENTERTAINMENT

HIRE "ONE EYED JAKE" A great Rock and Roll band call steve 546-5106 Tom 253-7517

HELP!!!

IN NEED OF EXPERIENCED Tutor in C Progg Turbo C. Please call ASAP!!$$$paid 323-7801

HELP WANTED

GRADUATING ENGINEERS: Learn about Fira protection Engineering, a high paying field with more jobs that applicants. Starting salaries range from $35,000 to $45,000. Worcester Polytechnic Institute will be recruiting four graduate students during an informations session on March 8,1989 at 3:30pm and 7:00pm in room 220 of the Career Center (Fraternity and Sorority Park on the Orchard Hill bus line. Fellowships and internships available

SUMMER DAY CAMP POSITIONS AVAILABLE. Grossman Camp Jewish Community Center of Greater Boston, Westwood. General counselors, music, nature, waterfront, special needs. Ed Pleiman, Director at the Camp Day, March 7, Student Union Ballroom or at 617-965-7410

EARN MONEY! HAVE FUN! Male and female counselors needed this summer for girl's camp in Maine. Interviews at Camp Day in STudent Union Ballroom on Tuesday, March 7. Camp Pinecliffe.

FOREIGN AREA SPECIALISTS!!! Several multi-national corporations currently seeking foreign graduate students/researchers as associate advisors/researchers on scientific, economic, and political developments in their home countries. To be considered, send cover letter/resume to International Investment Analysis Group, 40 Wall Stree, Suite 2124, New York, NY 10005

BOARD OF GOVERNORS is hiring the following coordinator positions: 2 assistant office, 1 public relations, 1 finance, 1 special projects. Applications available 817 Campus Center

THIS PAST SUMMER 350 College Students took a Management position gaining exceptional business skills. Average summer earnings $10,740. 1-800-922-5579

MIKE'S WESTVIEW HIRING - $6/hour Cleaning person to work mornings, 2-3 hours per day, 4 days per week. Call Tom 253-9202

HEY NINETEEN!

JOSH KRANCER- Happy birthday bro! Just think, this is the last B-Day we'll spend in school together. Have fun & don't eat too much cake (I know you won't drink too much.) -Jen

INSTRUCTION

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE Intermediate course. Tuesday/Thursday 7-9pm, 3/28-5/4, $115 546-4576

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. An information session will be held on March 8, from 3:30-4:30 in room 917 Campus Center (545-1995)

LOST

DRAWING PAD - Penny Price and board, please! If found call 549-0009

LOST PRESCRIPTION RAY—BAN WAYFARERS in or near Hasbrook 2/27. Please call 253-9117

BROWN LEATHER FUR-LINED GLOVE between people's market and lower ramp 3/2/89. Please return 586-5218. Kris

PINK MONOPOLY WATCH lost Feb 23 in Bartlett Aud. If found please call Maura at 256-0263

I LOST MY BLUE PADAGONIA AT 7E Brandywine Wednday Night. It has my keys in the pocket and I need them. Any info, please call 549-9925. No questions asked. Ask for Mo

LOST EYEGLASSES in black case on 2-28-89. If found please call Renita 546-4219

LOST STERLING ID BRACELET $25 Reward 586-2573 Please call

GOLD METAL RIMMED EYEGLASSES in black case. Lost on 2/25. Please call 546-9485

MUSICIANS

MUSICIANS INTERESTED in doing something different 546-6665 (Brian)

NEED CASH!

GET SOME SPRING BREAK money before it's too late! Sell me your baseball cards Call Todd anytime 549-6361

PERSONALS

IN JUST 11 SHORT DAYS, WE ARE ACAPULCO BOUND!!! Get ready to wax and base Josephine, Karen, Staci, Paige, Elisa, Sue, Peggy, Ellen, Stacey, and Wendy. Love, Michal

JIZZEE HAPPY BELATED B—DAY! The party has just begun. Love 7-West

JACK— Whether you need cheering up or not, I wanted to give you a personal. You're a very special person. Peace

THE SISTERS OF SIGMA DELTA TAU would like to introduce their awesome Gamma Delta Pledge Class: Aurora, Angela, Joanne, Maria, Lauren, Patti, Dawn, Martine, Marcy, Gail, Nikki, Pam, Jen M, Nadine, Jill, Robbi, Lisa, Alison, Cyndie, Maren, Rosanne, Janet, Jen R., Tiffany, Sue, Krista, Marissa, Julie, and Elaine. We love you!!!

KAREN - I know he's an unbelievabuit piece of meat, and I've had him for 3 yrs strong. Tase your heart out!

!!!FOR LADIES ONLY!!!

Attractive male will perform for female functions 546-9922

BRENDAN CASE! Happy Birthday $22 it's all downhill from here! (Just kidding) Love ya' Horgan

WE WANT TO TAKE OVER YOUR LEASE for Puffton WILL PAY CASH! Sally 549-4886

WENDY, JEN, SAM- The fun has just begun! We are watching every move you make. Sincerely, N&K

KAREN SKIPPER- Never had it, never will, give it up. -JT

FELICE, Happy birthday! Thought I'd forget the big 2-0? Never. Let's get together sometime. -Phil

HAPPY BIRTHDAY RICH! It's time to celebrate. Dress your best cuz we've got a date. I love you!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY ERICA. Through it all will love you forever. 2nd Justin

ROBERT WHO WAS OUR WAITER Tuesday night 2/28 at Fitzwilies! You made my birthday one of the best! Maybe we can see each other again? Jill 546-7710

TO THE UMASS GUY who was in Polisci at Amherst I wish you hadn't dropped, I was really looking forward to getting to know you. Please respond if you would still like to. -The Smithie

HAPPY BIRTHDAY JULES! Thanx for showing me what love is (and many other things) Trust me and you won't regret it. Love me forever -Andrew

CHERRY OH BABY! Keep working for that Jeep - we know you can do it! Love, Michele, Carrie, Margo, Julie, and Marc

RATED FOR PG
Kiss warmed
In the dark
Jo your left

THANKS TO THE BROTHERS OF AEPi you gave us the bid, now it is time to prove our worthiness. The Pledges Andy, Ron, Will, Jason, Joe, Noah, Brian, Mel

SQUID, SUL, BEAR, K, MESS, CHUCKBO AND KENDOG
You guys are the best! Have a great day today. XOXOXOX

Clueless and mouse What's your favorite flavor ice cream? Love, Carrots

HAL ZAWACKI - Are you still a UMass student? I'd like to see you again. Please contact me. Anna at 6-8966

LOOKING TO TAKE OVER A LEASE for next year so people please call 548-4051

BIG BILLY I'm sorry about everything I'll do what I can. Let's start over. I love you. Sweet Meat

MY CHAMPION, seems our party's an duson? I'll always remember you. Your prima-ballerina. OK?

PATTY-RICIA Happy birthday! Wish we could celebrate with you, never the less celebrate (while you're legal)! I miss you immigrant! P.T. Come home! Love Linda-Pie-dy. Love, Michal ATTENTION UMASS MEN: Cristina Kenefick can now do things legally she couldn't before! Happy b-day Tina! From Sue and Harry.

SHARON D. Happy birthday, even if it is a day late from too long Thoreau

PATRICIA. Happy 20th Baby! I know you're already legal! I love and miss you. Come home soon. Lisa

PATRICIA happy birthday. Italian love goddess. I miffas you. Andrea

HI FROM DENMARK! A happy early birthday to Ame, Babigian, Marca P. and my beautiful cousin Anne love especially to all at 630 West St Elizabeth, Kat Hall-Sta and Mark Hennate- Congrats with BC Law with love, Julie P

SGA PRESIDENT
ELECT JOSH
GORDON
MARCH 14

CINDY SNELL Do you have a boyfriend answer here Ravor X.

DRUFEE WINTER TRACK—I see you all over campus and I'd like to meet you. I sat at Worcester--come by and say hi --Dokken

TO THE UMASS GUY WHO WAS in Polisci at Amherst I wish you hadn't dropped, I was really looking forward to getting to know you. Please respond if you would still like to. -The Smithie

SENIORS! The Senior Campaign is coming. Get ready for our up and coming kick-off bash for "footprints of '89"!

"THUMPER" Hey babe- We're stylin'! Last weekend was great, but this weekend was the best! Never 4-get. Sat. nite jacuzzi... the backrubs, and "They're doing it again!" Love, Your dumb, ditzy, drunk blonde

LINGUISTICS, worked Sunday 2/28. Buy you a beer? Call 549-1660 George

ATTENTION STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS! EXCELLENT FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES HELPING WITH AN ON-CAMPUS MARKETING PROJECT. CALL IMMEDIATELY. STUART 546-7812. LEAVE A MESSAGE.

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt. or house please call Denise 256-0996 4pm or later

PERULLO WOMEN

ENJOY YOUR VACA in the triangle you lucky stiffs. -From a Non-Mitlonite

RIDE WANTED

WE NEED A RIDE TO FLORIDA for Spring Break. Please call Annmarie 549-6892 or Andrea 256-6458.

ROOMMATES WANTED

NEW HOME no smoking on bus line $325 inc. 253-7948

LOOKING FOR A RESPONSIBLE NON-SMOKER to share 2bdrm apt. $150 negotiable. Call Kaz 549-6846

SERVICES

LONG LUSHIOUS NAILS! Can be yours of fordable price. Experienced. Call Robin 549-6941, 585-5190

STRESSED OUT? Massage therapy Student offering professional full body massages. Give a gift to yourself or a friend! Call 256-6398

DIRT CHEAP RESUMES
Very experienced. Laserwriter overnight. Counseling/delivery. Lisa 665-8969

COMPUTER SERVICES: Data entry, database development, custom programming. Belchertown 283-3140 Jim

PROFESSIONAL EDITING. Term papers, Theses, Dissertations. 1-467-3753 after 7pm

VIDEO RESUME TO GET THAT JOB! Immediate, professional, personalized service. Appointments. Video Image Productions (413) 863-8035

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE ELECTIONS

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE debates!! Come see what the candidates have to say! Thurs. March 9th C.C. 101 at 7:00pm. Also broadcast on 91.1 WMUA!! Sponsored by SGA Governmental Affairs

SWING DANCE/JITTER BUG CLASSES

JUST $7 EACH OR $25 FOR ALL FOUR. No partner necessary! Classes meet from 4 - 6pm Sunday, March 5 thru Sunday, March 26 at East Street Dance Studeio in Hadley. Just off Rt. 9 between Amherst and Northampton. Instructors Lars Marshall and Janine Warner. For more info, Call 546-9309. No pre-registration necessary.

TRAVEL

3 AIRFARE TIX TO DENVER, CO - $270 o/bo 3/20 - 3/27 Call Heather 549-9925

ROUND TRIP TICKET TO PHEONIX From March 17-28 a $260 dollar value for $250 or best offer. Call Julie 6-5793 anytime after 8

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW, OR CALL OEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TYPING

CASES, PAPERS, THESIS, on-campus, affordable, grammar reviewed, dependable, 584-7924, Nancy

"WORDSMITH" Professional Typing. Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck. 253-4564

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional, accurate. 665-4501.

WANTED

LOOKING TO TAKE OVER LEASE. Group of four, responsible, women (starting 6/1/89) Please call Linda or Lisa at 546-9162.

THREE GIRLS DESIRE TO TAKE OVER LEASE on apartment or house. Need for Fall semester. Call soon 546-8342

TUTOR WANTED FOR DBASE III. Call Steve at 549-0133

LEAVING YOUR AMHERST HOUSE IN JUNE? Get rid of lease early. Call 546-9485.

APARTMENT WANTED. We want to take over/buy your three bedroom apartment lease, preferably Puffton, call 6-7624, or 6-7573.

WANTED TO RENT

MOVING OUT OF YOUR BIG HOUSE NEXT SEMESTER? A lot of chics wanna move in! Call 6-8233 ask 4 Danielle. Thanx for hookin us up!

SPORTS

St. Joseph's deals UMass a fatal blow

Seven-point lead erased in final minutes

continued from page 1

to clinch the victory.

"It wasn't one thing that cost us this game. We had a couple of plays at the end that were freshman mistakes. A couple of passes that shouldn't have been made, a couple of baskets that should have been made," UMass coach John Calipari said.

For UMass, it was the fifth straight year the Minutemen have been dumped in the first round of this prestigious tourney.

"I thought there were three or four times that we gave it to them," UMass forward John Tate (14 pts, 11 rbs) said.

In the team's previous meeting on Wednesday, UMass again had a lead late in the game but failed to capitalize on it. In that game, the Minutemen led by only one with 2:16 to go in the game and the Hawks prevailed for a regular-season finale victory.

"Give them credit, they're a senior oriented team," Calipari said.

The win may have saved Boyle's job. The beleaguered St. Joe's coach has been targeted for termination by the Philly fans and he was certainly not a popular man after UMass erased a nine-point halftime deficit and took its seven-point lead.

The Minuteman comeback was squarely the responsibility of super-freshman McCoy, who poured in 20 second-half points on an array of jumpers, leaning one-handers, and brand new twisting shots in the paint.

"I would have rather scored 10 points and win the game," McCoy said.

"I went out and tried to play a lot stronger."

As for any fatigue factor, Calipari said playing St. Joe's in back-to-back games in Philadelphia actually helped the Minutemen.

"It helped us. We talked about what we can't give up offensively . . . we had some bad decisions," Calipari said.

The Hawks placed four players in double figures including Leahy, who scored a team high 27 points.

For UMass, besides McCoy's windfall, it had three players with 14 points (Tate, Rafer Giles, and Anton Brown). And, other than those four players, the rest of UMass' squad chipped in a total of six points.

In the first half, McCoy scored eight of UMass' first 12 points as the two teams exchanged leads 10 times in the first 11 minutes. Not until 8:13 of the half did either team manage a lead of more than four. Unfortunately it was the Hawks, running off 10 straight points, who took control of the game, 36-26.

UMass trailed by nine at the half, 43-34.

Hoop-la: The most impressive stat for UMass was that the Minutemen went an incredible 22 for 23 from the free throw line . . . the least impressive stat for UMass was, again, its shooting percentage. The Minutemen shot a woeful 36 percent from the floor while the Hawks shot 50 percent.

St. Joseph's, 87-83

Massachusetts (83): Jim McCoy 14-27 7-7 35, John Tate 6-13 2-2 14, John Milum 0-5 4-4 4, Rafer Giles 4-13 3-4 14, Anton Brown 4-17 4-4 14, Michael Byrnes 0-2 2-2 2, Sean Nolen 0-0 0-0 0. Totals: 28-77 22-23 83

St. Joseph's (87): Henry Smith 7-11 3-5 17, James Owens 1-4 2-2 4, Ron Verrruymen 2-3 1-2 5, Ray Washington 2-5 2-4 6, Brian Leahy 9-18 4-6 27, Marlon Miller 4-9 2-3 10, Craig Amos 5-10 1-4 12, Mike Shaak 2-4 2-2 6. Totals: 32-64 17-28 87

Three-point shooting: Massachusetts 5-15 (Giles 3-4, Brown 2-7, McCoy 0-3, Byrnes 0-1; St. Joseph's 6-12 (Leahy 5-8, Amos 1-3, Washington 0-1)

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

Jim McCoy's 35 points were not enough to keep the Minutemen's season alive, as they fell to St. Joe's, 87-83 in the first round of the A-10 tourney in Philadelphia.

Minutewomen fall to St. Joe's, 82-60

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

In all, it wasn't a good weekend for any University of Massachusetts team that found itself playing St. Joseph's University.

While the men's hoop team was seeing its season end with a loss in Philadelphia, the women concluded the regular season schedule on a sour note with a tough 82-60 loss to the Lady Hawks Saturday afternoon at the Curry Hicks Cage.

From the start it looked like it would be a good day for the Bay State entries. As the Minutemen were slowly taking a seven-point lead over their opponents, the women were jumping out of the blocks with fire in their eyes against the top team in the conference.

But UMass would soon find out that it is hard to derail a team that is white hot from the floor. The Lady Hawks were connecting about as often as their avian mascot flaps its wings — which is non-stop from start to finish. The visitors were draining their shots to the tune of 58 percent efficiency from the floor.

"They're a good team," UMass coach Kathy Hewelt said matter-of-factly. "They have ballplayers at every position, and they moved the ball well."

Couple that fact with the lack of depth on UMass' part and things weren't too bright. It clearly couldn't focus its attention on any one part of the St. Joe's squad without opening the door for someone else to have a career.

continued on page 18

UMass set to take on St. Bonaventure in the first round of the Atlantic 10 tournament tonight. Page 18.

Swim team ends season at Easterns

By DENNIS MADSEN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's swimming team finished up its season this past weekend at the Eastern Championships at Harvard. The Minutemen, who were competing in their second meet in four days, showed signs of a lack of rest as they all swam well but slightly below expectations.

"I thought the kids swam well but we were just a little tired," said UMass coach Russ Yarworth. The final

continued on page 16

Men's gymnastics has record-setting weekend

By GEORGE AUSTIN
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD — It was a very busy weekend for the University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team.

Two days, two meets, one EIGL win, one New England Championship, and a school record, all accomplished in a period of about 24 hours.

So let's start things off with yesterday. After a crucial win over eastern rival Syracuse University, one that senior Tim Myers described as "nerve-racking"on Saturday, the Minutemen woke up bright and early the next morning to catch a ride to Springfield College for the New England Championships.

Five teams showed up at Springfield, but the battle for first place would really only be fought between two clubs, UMass and Southern Connecticut State University. The Massachusetts Intstitute of Technology, host Springfield or the University of Vermont had no say in the matter.

And the final tally was UM 262.40 and SCSU 258.95, the second time this season that the Owls (who were the defending N.E. Champions) have gone down at the expense of the Minutemen.

UMass, 8-2, 5-1 in the EIGL, took home a lot of trophies in this meet, the most notable one being senior co-captain John Eggers' first place finish in the still ring competition. The 9.6 Eggers received from the judges was his season high.

Myers finished third in the all-around, his total for the six events a 52.9, which trailed only Southern Connecticut's Pat Rashed (54.05) and Carlton Noble (55.7).

Senior Joe Fitzgerald's routine on the pommel horse earned him an 8.9 which was good enough for second place behind Noble.

The Minutemen didn't receive any trophies the day before at the Boyden Gymnastics Center against Syracuse (now 5-2 in the EIGL) but that meet held much more weight in the eyes of UMass coach Roy Johnson than the New Englands. The Minutemen have bigger goals on their mind.

"The thing is it was back-to-back days with the Syracuse meet, so it would have been too much to ask them to win the meet," Johnson said. "I told the guys to do the best they could, injury free. They could make the routines easy if they wanted. Our real objective is the Eastern title."

The Minutemen did do the best they could on Saturday also, and in doing so took one step in the right direction toward the

continued on page 19

Collegian photo by Andrew Rist

The men's gymnastics team set a school record for points in Saturday's win over Syracuse, and then captured the New England championship yesterday in Springfield.

Women's gymnastics rolls past Lady Knights

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team took a full house of supporters on an emotional farewell tour of Boyden Gym on Saturday afternoon.

In the last home meet of the winter, the program showed off its graduating seniors: Kim Keefe, Anne Ditunno, Lou Kaufman, Deb Schiller, Audry Roughgarden and Lisa Takorek. They and departing assistant coach Alisa Spector all received a handful of flowers, words of thanks from head coach Alfie Mitchell, and a warm hand from the large crowd.

And in beating the visiting Lady Knights of Rutgers 179.55 to 171.50, the Minutewomen took another step in the direction of landing an invitation to the post-season regional meet at Penn State.

"It was all I could have asked for," said Mitchell. "We were a little up and down, but overall it was a good meet."

Ditunno shook off a touch of the flu to unleash her strongest performance on the uneven bars to date, earning an 8.8 from the judges and a swarm of hugs and high fives from her coaches and teammates.

continued on page 19

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1989

WEATHER	NEWS	SPORTS
Breeze and cloudy today, temps near 20. Dropping to 10 tonight. Ouch!!	Psychologist speaks at Herter, calls mid-life crisis is a media myth. Page 3.	Women's basketball beats St. Bonaventure 76-62 in A-10 tournie. Page 24.

COLLEGIAN

VOLUME CXCII LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY IN NEW ENGLAND ISSUE 26

Racist notes stir Gorman, spark search

By RICK SASSON
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts police say they are close to catching a suspect accused of passing racially derogatory notes under two doorways in Gorman Residence Hall Friday.

"We've got some good leads," said Arthur Hilson, executive director of public safety. "We should have someone within the next 48 hours."

Hilson, who would not divulge what was written on the folded sheets of paper, said the messages were directed at Black students.

Dennis Madson, vice chancellor for student affairs, said the school will take disciplinary measures against the author of the notes. "At this point, we don't know who the culprits are," Madson said. "But we always take these things seriously on this campus."

Meanwhile, students in Gorman responded last night by holding floor meetings to discuss the harassment. Roberto Christian, an assistant residential director for Gorman and Wheeler Residence Hall, said UMass must confront this incident head-on to show that racism will not be tolerated.

"People still think that racial incidents aren't happening," Christian said. "They are, it's just not often that they are reported."

For Christian, a 27-year-old graduate student, the harassment brought back memories of February of 1988, when nearly 200 minority students took over New Africa House for five days in resonse to what they called repeated expressions of racism on campus.

Christian, who was active in the takeover, said much work has to be done for the University to achieve an atmosphere free of bigotry. One method that should be pursued, he said, is increased cultural education in the residence halls.

"I get the feeling that people harass each other because they are afraid; they see other people as a threat," Christian said. "People need to celebrate other cultures so they are not afraid."

John Luippold, deputy chief of public safety at UMass, said Friday's note passing is the first incident handled by the UMass Community Disorders Unit, established two weeks ago to deal specifically with civil rights infringements, rape, and narcotics cases. He said the detectives working on the case counseled the victims in Gorman.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

AIM . . . FIRE — John Burke, a junior at the University of Massachusetts, shoots some pool yesterday in the Campus Center.

Aid plea reaches Capitol

UMass students lobby lawmakers for federal financial aid

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON — During a reception for Students Advocating Financial Aid last night, professional lobbyist Dallas Martin outlined basic financial aid dilemmas facing lawmakers this year.

The reception marked the beginning of an intensive, 3-day financial aid lobby by 46 University of Massachusetts students. The students, who arrived in the capital Sunday morning, have petitioned congress annually since 1980 for increased federal support of higher education.

Martin, president of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, said the two major financial aid issues facing congress are national service program initiatives — in which recipients of financial aid would have to perform either military or community service to receive aid — and student loan default rates.

The basic idea behind the four national service proposals before congress is to take graduating high school students who need financial aid to attend college and have them perform community or military service in return for credit vouchers good toward a college education, according to Martin.

The details of the bills vary, as do the number of years of service required and the value of the vouchers, but all are intended to faze out many current financial aid services, according to information released by the American Council of Education.

Karl Knapp, assistant for research and policy analysis for NASFAA, said the feeling on Capitol Hill is "that young people should do something for their country as well as themselves."

continued on page 5

Nutritionist: at DC's, dine with care

By JOHN SWANSON
Collegian Staff

Students on the University of Massachusetts meal plan need to make educated decisions about what foods they choose when eating in the dining commons, according to a coordinator of the Snack Sense program.

Sheila Gilroy, a teaching assistant in the University Health Services education program, said much of what is served by food service programs is high in fat and cholesterol, and low in nutrients.

"If you choose correctly, you can manage," she said, but "a lot of things are higher in fat than they need to be."

Food Science and Nutrition Professor Fergus M. Clydesdale said the cooking processes used by the dining commons reduce the vitamin content of the food. "whenever you heat any kind of food, certain nutrients will be lost," he said.

Clydesdale said the ideal method of preserving nutrients would be "to heat the food and serve it immediately, but that is not always feasible in a dining common situation."

More than 10,000 students are enrolled in the University's three meal plans. Charlotte Williams, administrative dietician for Worcester Dining Commons, said nutritional information for each ingredient used by the program is obtained from a US Department of Agriculture handbook published in 1963. Information for ingredients not listed in the handbook is provided by the companies that distribute the items, she said.

Clydesdale said the quality of the food served in the program depends upon conditions of food storage, such as temperature and exposure to sunlight and oxygen. Williains said the Department of Environmental Health and

continued on page 5

Students take budget cut protest to Boston today

By PETER LUCHT
Collegian Staff

Legislators must be as accountable to students as they are to any other constituency, according to several student leaders who plan to lobby the Massachusetts Statehouse today for increased educational spending.

Two busloads of University of Massachusetts students are scheduled to leave at 7 a.m. today, where they and contingents from other state and community colleges will meet with representatives to protest cuts from the 1990 budget for public higher education.

"It is not an option for most students to attend private institutions. The Commonwealth is just spiting itself by not supporting its schools," said Shari Silkoff, a student leader.

Silkoff said appointments have been made with all of the 160 state representatives and there has been an effort to have students speak to representatives from their home districts.

Most of the talking will be done with congressional aides, as the representatives will be on the floor debating the budget, said Student Trustee Stephanie Orefice, although aides often have the power to sway their congressmen.

Orefice said students will ask for an amendment that would increase funding of higher education. She said that for now a line has been drawn by the legislature, attempting to prevent no additional amendments to the budget.

continued on page 8

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr. GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
AD MANAGER	BETTY-ANN MURPHY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE GEORGE FRANCY TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	RICK SASSON
COPY EDITOR	SAM SILVERSTEIN
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	FLORENCIO TERRA
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	JASON TALERMAN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	FLORENCIO TERRA
PRODUCTION	YANA DLUGY CHRISTINE JOYCE THOM DEVITA BRITT WINER PAUL SPECHT JOE KEENAN

AP photo

Heinz Reiss, left, and Michael Kuehnen, right, two leading members of now-banned West German ultra right-wing party "Nationale Sammlung" (National Rallying) pose next to a portrait of Adolf Hitler and banners with swastickas in this Feb. 2 file file photo, at a time when their party was still legal.

Rona's show to be a feast

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rona Barrett is out to discover if she and three guests can sit around the dining-room table and have a conversation that other people will want to listen in on.

Barrett is host of "At 3Rona's," which NBC is giving a 10-show tryout this week and next. It premiered Monday and runs through March 17.

Guests will include Jill Eikenberry, Christine Lahti, Sherry Lansing, Ann Jillian, Valerie Harper, Malcolm Forbes, Debbie Allen, Sandy Duncan, Michael Tucker, Fred Dryer, Geraldo Rivera and Kitty Kelley, among others.

"We're putting all kinds of people together, not just show-business celebrities, to see what kind of mix works best," she said. "Men and women, all women me with all men. We'll tape it at my home in Beverly Hills, two shows a day. We'll serve real meals, so I guess I'll put on 10 pounds.

"I'll participate in the conversation, but I won't ask questions. This not going to be a one-on-one. We're hoping we can spark some conversations and that people will react to teach other. We know it works as a special but we wanted to see if the concept will work every day."

It's the first TV appearance Barrett has made, other than a stint on CNN as a substitute host on "Larry King Live," since she left "Entertainment Tonight" in 1986. She had also been an entertainment reporter for NBC's "Today" and "Tomorrow" shows and before that for ABC's "Good Morning America."

She said "At Rona's" was first tried as a special for "Entertainment This Week." Her guest were Oprah Winfrey, Dyan Cannon and Mariette Hartley.

The guests for the show will come from entertainment, sports, politics and business.

"We'll start when the people arrive and we serve coffee," she said. "We'll say hello and get acquainted. Like any interview, it takes time for people to warm up. We'll tape the whole thing up edit it.

"We'll try different mixes, and we want to see if you do two shows a day and still be fresh. I want to mix people from different backgrounds and see how that works. Say a person like Malcolm Forbes and a very interesting person from show business or politics and a very savvy woman."

Barrett said she had encountered some difficulties putting the show together.

Blues hero Cray becoming Grammy gobbler

NEW YORK (AP) — It seems that today's most prominent blues hero, Robert Cray, has become a real close friend of the Grammys.

This year, his "Don't Be Afraid of the Dark" single won a Grammy as best contemporary blues recording. It's the title cut from his fifth LP. Last year, his popular "Strong Persuader" album won the bvest contemporary blues recording Grammy. It is also has sold more than any blues album in history.

The year before that, "Showdown," an album by Albert Collins, Cray and Johnny Copeland, won the best tradition blues recording Grammy, proving that Cray can be a traditional blues man when he wants to be. He and Robert Cray Band bassist Richard Cousings recently played on a John Lee Hooker recording.

But these are the 1980's not the heyday of Collins and Hooker, and Cray has found his own voice for his own time.

"A lot of people say it's not blues enough," he said. "It does incorporate a lot of rhythm 'n' blues."

His band doesn't always use the blues' traditional three-chord progressions. "I guess the best way to say what the difference would be is that ours is more funky, more danceable, more current, more in tune with what's going on," he said.

For Cray, blues is a sad or lonely song and somebody in it is blue: "When you go in to record, it's kind of embarrassing. It's spilling your guts."

He wrote three of the 10 songs on "Don't Be Afraid of the JDark" and collaborated on two more. Producers Bruce Bromberg and Dennis Walker do some of the songwriting. Walker wrote "Don't Be Afraid of the Dark." Band members Cousins, drummer Daivid Olson and keyboardist Peter Boe also write.

Cray was recently in New York for a sold-out engagement at Radio City Music Hall. But the veteran of 15 years on the road doesn't get caught up in praise, though fame has allowed him to be freer on stage.

"The excitement level is way up. They're familiar with a lot songs you're going to do. A lot of people are in your corner. You're free to do pretty much what you want. It does make it just a step more comfortable."

Cray and cousins, both sons of career servicemen, met near Tacoma, Wash. In January, 1974, they moved to Eugene, Ore. to start a blues band.

They made their first recording in 1978 after meeting producer Brue Bromberg at a blues festival in San Francisco. But "Who's Be Talkin'" wasn't released until 1980 because the label they were on, Tomato, had problems. Cray currently records for Mercury.

"False Accusations" was released in 1985 but it was "Strong Persuader," the first Cray album distributed by a major record company, which shot him to prominence.

LOCAL

Mt. Holyoke students say no to Coca-Cola

By NANCY KLINGENER
Collegian Staff

SOUTH HADLEY — Mount Holyoke students decided to ban Coca-Cola service and machines from campus in a referendum held last night.

About 59 percent of those voting favored removing Coke machines and services from the campus. All the soda machines at the private women's school now are owned by the Coca-Cola company.

Thirty-one percent of those voting preferred keeping Coke on campus, and 10 percent abstained. About 87 percent of the student body voted, said Leslie Lippi, president of the student government association.

Students who support the ban said the Coca-Cola company does business in South Africa, by supplying Coke syrup to independent bottling companies there.

By supporting Coca-Cola, the students argue, the school is supporting Apartheid.

Dean of Students Sheila Murphy said administrators are pleased with the "intellectual debate on campus" surrounding the issue.

"These students are being provided an education that has a real global emphasis and this has become a very interesting issue where they have been able to find a local connection to a global situation," she said.

"Although this is a non-binding referendum, the college, as a college, is very interested in this," Murphy said.

Trustees at the 152-year-old college voted in 1985 to divest all of its South African holdings — $14.5 million — in 26 companies doing business in that country, Murphy said.

"It's very hypocritical that Mount Holyoke College had divested [from South Africa], but yet still does business with South Africa," said Reehana Raza, a Mount Holyoke student and member of Action-South Africa, the student group that petitioned for the vote.

"I hope other colleges will do the same thing," Raza said.

Action-South Africa was formed several years ago in the student movement for the school's divestment from South Africa.

The Student Government Association ran the referendum, which was held in dining halls at the college, which enrolls about 2,000 students.

"I'll write a letter to the administration if it passes," Lippi said. "They're very receptive to what the students want."

The student government distributed "fact sheets" presenting arguments from both sides and held information sessions before the vote, Lippi said.

Collegian photo by Jason Talerman

Students at Mt. Holyoke yesterday supported a non-binding referendum to ban Coca-Cola on campus because of the company's dealings with South Africa.

Activism not dead at UMass, students say

By DAVID R. MARK
Collegian Staff

Stephanie Orefice rolled her eyes yesterday after she was asked about the low turnout at last week's rally to protest state budget cuts in public higher education.

"I wasn't happy with [the turnout]," the student trustee at the University of Massachusetts said of the 200 students who protested $12 million in cuts levied during the past year.

"I guess it is a lack of activism as far as people seeing the larger picture," she said.

Orefice and others in student government agree that while activism is "not dead" at UMass, if students do not feel a cause directly affects them — such as last spring's rally against the alcohol ban, and last semester's Hands Across UMass — they are less likely to turn out in droves.

"If you target an issue the right way, people will come out," she said of Hands Across UMass, a part of Civility Day. Civility Day, with broad-based University sponsorship, was designed to promote diversity and cultural awareness.

"I don't think this campus is as active as people would like to think it is. UMass has a reputation of being politically charged," she said.

Jason Kofman, a student senator and chairman of the Student Coalition for Soviet Jewry, wrote recently that "instead of 200 people, there should have been 1,000 at the rally [against the budget cuts]. Instead of 1,500 letters, the Statehouse should receive 20,000. We can't sit by and complain and let the usual student activists do all the yelling an screaming this time."

But according to Orefice, it does "always [seem] to be the same people. It isn't a broad-based activist population."

W. Greg Rothman, chairman of the UMass Conservative Alliance, said, however, that a lack of a broad-based student activism does not mean UMass activism is not strong-voiced.

"UMass has the best activists on the right and on the left in the country," he said, citing awards conservative students had won for activism during the past two years. "The majority of students — those who aren't active — have different priorities."

But Diana Ditmore, a UMass student and activist, said she believed activism is strong among a majority of UMass students. She said activism is hard to see sometimes

continued on page 4

Expert: personality crisis a mid-life media myth

By NANCY KLINGENER
Collegian Staff

Long-term psychological studies contradict the notion of a "mid-life crisis" — and instead indicate that the personality remains stable throughout a lifetime, a psychologist said yesterday.

"There's very little evidence to support the notion of a mid-life crisis," said Paul T. Costa Jr., director of the Laboratory of Personality and Cognition at the National Institute on Aging, an arm of the National Institutes of Health.

Based on lifelong patient studies, Costa said personality traits are determined early and do not change at mid-life, or any other time.

"It shows surprisingly little age-related change" especially in the years expected to show "that psychological Loch Ness monster called the mid-life crisis."

Still, some people do experience real dissatisfaction with their lives while in their forties and fifties, Costa said.

"The people who are making those complaints are the same people who are complaining throughout their lives," Costa said. "They'll be complaining about their grandchildren in their sixties."

Costa, the author of four books, and 110 articles on psychology, spoke on "Personality Continuity and the Changes in Adult Life" in front of about students and faculty in Herter Hall. is also on the faculties of Johns Hopkins and Duke universities.

Costa also contends the idea of a "mid-life" crisis exists because it has become popular with the media.

"The mid-life crisis will never go away. It will always be with us. Memory goes, hair goes, teeth go, the waistline goes — why not the personality?" Costa said. "The good news is, your personality is not going to change."

Although psychological evidence shows personality traits did not change over a lifetime, Costa said there is still hope for people who want to change their lives.

"Under the right set of circumstances, you can change personality. It's just that personality doesn't change with age," Costa said. "People who are dissatisfied with their personalities should seek help, since spontaneous change is unlikely."

The statistics supporting his theory use a trait-based personality model, tracing changes in neuroticism, extraversion, openness to experience, agreeableness and conscientiousness.

"Our message is deflating and disappointing to many people," Costa said. But, "the lack of crisis and upheaval might not be so bad."

Costa's speech was one of a series of lectures sponsored by the psychology department.

Edwards to try again

Senior Sandy Edwards has launched her second campaign for student trustee this year and contends that she will be a strong advocate for "student empowerment."

Edwards, who calls herself a moderate, has served as a student senator for two years and is also a Student Development Assistant in charge of programming in John Quincy Adams residence hall. If elected, she said communication between students and the administration will be a main focus of her duties.

"It [will be] my job as student trustee to represent the way the students feel," she said.

Restoring the now-defunct Legal Services Organization as a registered student organization will be a priority in her campaign because students need legal representation, Edwards said.

Edwards stressed the importance of establishing an "executive council" to advise her on student issues and publishing a weekly column from her office explaining the trustee's involvement in issues at hand. "Students need to know what kind of issues are coming up before they happen," she said. "They should have a voice and a right."

— MARIA SACCHETTI

UMass grads in greater demand

By MEREDITH CLELAND
Collegian Correspondent

You've got the degree in your hand and the pat on the back from the University of Massachusetts. You're ready to join thousands of other graduates in the job market.

Now what?

According to Clark Edwards, acting director at University Placement Services, the forecast for job-seeking seniors looks promising.

"The demand of recent college graduates this year is as strong, if not stronger, than last year, and the reason for this is that more employers are impressed with our graduates," he said.

Although the US Labor Department reported that fewer than a quarter of all occupations require a college degree, the Department predicts college graduates will account for almost a third of our nation's workforce by the year 2000.

But while the Labor Department foresees a growing demand for engineers and accountants, they also predict an increasing demand for students who majored in education and the sciences.

In an effort to help job-seeking students, the University Placement Service, located in the Career Center, contacts "approximately 2,000 employers each year," according to Edwards. The service sends information to employers on majors and programs at UMass.

But not all students said they feel the service can help them.

Although communications major Christine Hubbell has already done an internship, she said she is not relying "too heavily" on the University in her search for a job.

"The placement service doesn't do too much for communication majors," she said. "I realized that you have to make your own contacts."

continued on page 5

student activism

continued from page 3

of 200 people, there should have been 1,000 at the rally [against the budget cuts]. Instead of 1,500 letters, the Statehouse should receive 20,000. We can't sit by and complain and let the usual student activists do all the yelling an screaming this time."

But according to Orefice, it does "always [seem] to be the same people. It isn't a broad-based activist population."

W. Greg Rothman, chairman of the UMass Conservative Alliance, said, however, that a lack of a broad-based student activism does not mean UMass activism is not strong-voiced.

"UMass has the best activists on the right and on the left in the country," he said, citing awards conservative students had won for activism during the past two years. "The majority of students — those who aren't active — have different priorities."

But Diana Ditmore, a UMass student and activist, said she believed activism is strong among a majority of UMass students. She said activism is hard to see sometimes because it's long term work, rather than one-time rallying.

"I think people are conditioned to feel they can't do anything," Ditmore said. For the past 11 days, Ditmore has lived in "Cutback City," a mock shantytown near the campus pond that was built to protest budget cuts.

"A lot of people have problems doing something independent like writing a letter," she said. "Coming out for a half hour and going home doesn't show the state anything. But writing a letter will affect the empowerment of students."

Ditmore said that the 19 activists who sleep in the "city," and the dozens of students who stop by one of the shacks to ask questions, are positive signs of activism. She said she and the others living in the shantytown are not "lone rangers" in fighting the budget cuts.

She said her need to be active is a reflection of how difficult it is for her to pay for her education. A continuing education student, Ditmore said she had to drop three of her six credits because she couldn't afford them.

"I have a personal stake (in the fight against the budget cuts), but I think everybody else does, too," she said.

Robert Fadel, acting president of the Student Government Association, agreed that all students have a stake in numerous campus causes, but they "don't have passion" enough to rally on behalf of those causes.

Collegian photo by Mitch Fischer

CUT IT OUT — Student Trustee Stephanie Orefice and student senator Michael Greiner show their opposition last week to imminent state budget cuts at the University of Massachusetts.

BRANDYWINE
AT AMHERST
Now accepting application for June, July, August, and September occupancy.
*Sign up now and be assured of having an apartment next semester.
Brandywine Office
Open Monday to Friday 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.
549-0600
*Restrictions apply

THE UNCO BOX
SECURE YOUR NEW CAR!
• TOP BRANDS OF AUTO SECURITY SYSTEMS
• FULLY WARRANTEED INSTALLATION
• UP TO 20% INSURANCE DISCOUNTS
• UNCO, CHAPMAN, CLIFFORD, THOD BUG & MORE!
FROM $149 INSTALLED
CUSTOM CAR SOUND
NORTHAMPTON 586-5258
W. SPRINGFIELD 734-4995

Ski UTAH
HEBER BRIGHTON ALTA SNOWBIRD DEER VALLEY PARK CITY SOLITUDE PARK WEST
UMass Ski Club has received lodging in Salt Lake City for Spring Break
Price includes lodging, rental car, & air fare. Lift ticket packages are available.
$450—Contact UMass Ski Club
UMASS SKI CLUB

COMEDY NIGHT
5th BUSINESS
featuring COMEDIANS from the Boston Comedy Company
Tuesday March 7 9:00 p.m.
9:00 PM WEDNESDAY MAR. 8 FREE
Rock & Roll with FEED THE CAT
Thursday, March 9th 9:00 p.m.
Fri., Mar. 10 5-6 PM
New Acoustic Music
World Beat Improvisation Duo
the hatch
GROUND FLOOR/STUDENT UNION

campus food

continued from page 1

Safety inspects the DCs weekly to evaluate these conditions.

Gilroy said Food Services faces the task of trying to keep thousands of people well fed while dealing with company contracts and the University's bureaucracy.

"The [University's] nutritionists basically advise on products given the financial constraints of a state system," she said.

Dianne Zabawa, a registered dietician for Worcester DC, said beef purchased by Food Services is accepted by the USDA as at least commercial quality. This meat does not contain more than 20 percent fat. Food Services does not buy meat through the USDA grading service, which rates meat on the basis of flavor, not sanitary quality, she said.

Gilroy said Snacksense Coordinator Robin Levine is now trying to institute a nutrition education program in the University's DCs, where students would be informed which foods are low in fat and high in fiber, she said.

Food Services distributes pamphlets to the DCs which provide information about healthy eating, she said.

Williams said there is no formal procedure for testing the nutritional content of the food served, but Zabawa runs a test kitchen once a week which "evaluates for appearance, texture, flavor and overall eating quality," she said.

Snacksense had been introduced in the Hatch, where certain menu items were labelled in this manner but, Gilroy said, "there weren't a lot of foods that we could label." Once students are informed, they can then work to increase the number of nutritional foods served, she said.

"We're trying to get support for changes, but it really takes support of the student body," she said.

jobs

continued from page 3

David Newman, senior economics major, agreed: "The University gives you the basics, but doesn't hold your hand. A lot of it is your own footwork."

Edwards said he agreed students need to help themselves. "We're always trying to broaden the scope of who we're serving, but let's face it — it's a more technical world out there, and some majors are more job-oriented than others," he said.

He said the service recommends to students that they pursue an interdisciplinary education because there is a greater demand for students with a diverse background.

Students should work in their desired profession even before they graduate, he said. "Go to the workshops, go to the career fairs — don't wait. The less you do, the less the recruiters feel they should do."

SAFA

continued from page 1

Right now, the programs are in their beginning stages, but Knapp said he thinks a pilot program could come out of this year's legislative session.

"It all depends on the political climate," he said. "As with any other [bill], it could be something that dies."

There are still many problems that need to be worked out before any comprehensive national service program is fully implemented, Knapp said. The largest of these is a potential program cost of $50 billion per year, he said.

Currently, 5.2 million students receive some form of federal financial assistance at a total cost of about $13 billion annually, Martin said.

Another pressing problem facing legislators is the student loan default rate, Knapp said. This is because the number of students receiving loans has been increasing steadily since the late 1970s, he said.

"The reason that defaults are a big issue is because, while default rates have remained steady, the actual size of the program has increased," he said.

Knapp said the issue will be dealt with as soon as new regulations concerning the default rates are released by the US Department of Education.

Pianist sees upbringing as influential

By STEPHEN PANGIONE
Collegian Correspondent

NORTHAMPTON — "For me, art should reflect life," Israeli pianist Varda Nishry recently told a small audience in Wright Hall at Smith College.

Nishry talked about how her experiences growing up in Israel have had a profound effect on her and how she transmits what she has learned through her music.

"Other pianists didn't have the background or parents as I did," she said. Nishry's parents were part of a group of pioneer artists who left their homes in search of a better Israel, she said.

They settled in what was once a wilderness outside of Tel-Aviv. She was the first-born child in the community, and got a lot of attention from everyone, she said.

"Growing up in this environment makes one aware of belonging to a group rather than being an outsider like most pianist are," she said.

Nishry said she started touring around Europe when she was eight, playing the accompaniment for her mother, who was a singer. Her mother was also her first piano teacher, she said.

On one of these tours, when she was 10, her family was pulled over and arrested for allegedly blowing up a bridge. In the two days she was in jail, she met many people who were going to be hung by the British.

"Talking to these people impressed me very much," she said. This is one of the experiences that she said has molded her into the person she is today.

During Israel's 1948 war for independence, she played for soldiers in battle. She considered this a privilege. "This gave me my in-depthness for Israel," she said.

"We are only a transmitter of what life puts into you," she said, "and I'm trying to reflect this."

About 20 years ago she fell on some ice in Zurich, Austria, and she was told she would never be able to play the piano again, she said.

Nishry began to study and ponder philosophy and her values, she said. The music of Bach also had a great influence on her.

continued on page 18

99.3 guaranteed Lite
Miller Lite Spring Break Express
LAST CHANCE to register to win a "MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK SURVIVAL KIT" at The Pub.
5 winners will then be qualified to win the "MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK EXPRESS" grand prize.
Winner will be chosen from 20 qualifiers
TOMORROW NIGHT at
THE PUB 15 E. Pleasant St. AMHERST
Wednesday, March 8 at 9:30 - 1:30
MILLER LITE SPRING BREAK EXPRESS GRAND PRIZE CONSISTS OF:
• Round Trip Air Transportation for Two (2) to Washington D.C.
• A Welcoming Reception at the Washington D.C. Train Station
• Round Trip Rail Transportation Aboard the Miller Lite Spring Break Express.
• Food, Beverage and Entertainment while on Board the Spring Break Express
• Five Nights Accommodations (Double Occupancy) at the Treasure Island Inn at Daytona Beach.
• $300 Spending Cash.
• Two (2) Miller Lite Sweatshirts.
• Chartered Transportation to and from the Train Station and Hotel.
• Additional Activities may be Scheduled as Available.
The Grand Prize can not be transferred. Winners who choose not to take the trip will forfeit airfare, train transportation, hotel accommodations but will still receive spending cash and sweatshirts

UPC PRODUCTIONS PRESENT
THAT PETROL EMOTION
& VOICE OF THE BEEHIVE
FRIDAY MARCH 31
8:00pm STUDENT UNION BALLROOM UMASS-AMHERST
$5 UMASS STUDENT
$7 GENERAL PUBLIC
CASH BAR w/ PROPER I.D.
TICKETS ON SALE MARCH 7 AT TIX UNLIMITED, FOR THE RECORD-FACES, AND MAIN ST. RECORDS.

STUDENT AFFAIRS INFORMATION SERVICES

IDB/TIPS

Arrivals and Departures?
Call 545-1540 for TIPS, and ask for these tapes by number:

1302 Applying to the University
7001 Campus Center Hotel
1530 Commencement
1041 Full Time Second Bachelor's Degree
2427 Placement Services and Job Interviews
1034 Professional and Graduate School Exams
1038 Study Abroad
1320 Transferring to UMass
1040 University without Walls
2621 Tour Information (New)

see page 17 of the Student Telephone Directory for a complete listing of TIPS tapes

IF YOU HAVE FURTHER QUESTIONS CALL IDB (545-1555)
Information Data Bank (IDB)
Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

Choose Excellence

COLLEGIAN

"It ain't perfect but it's the only game in town. And it's an important game for students who seek careers in journalism. Experience on the Collegian is increasingly valued by the editors throughout the northeast."

Howard Ziff, UMass Professor since 1971; Reporter & Asst. City Editor, Chicago Daily News

Come write for the Collegian
113 Campus Center

NEW LOW PRICE

CANRAILPASS

Unlimited train travel in Canada for the unlimited imagination.

There's never been a better time to see Canada by train. Now, with VIA Rail's new Canrailpass, you can travel coast-to-coast or by region for one great price. It's your passport to seeing Canada in the most affordable style.

Unlimited mileage and flexibility

The moment you own a Canrailpass is the moment you own the country. You may travel anywhere you want, with as many stops as you want, when you want. Canrailpass is designed for the 'plan as you go' traveler. You can even add days prior to your first departure.

VIA trains cover the country

As Canada's passenger train network, VIA Rail has over 11,100 miles of track. Our trains stop in over 416 Canadian communities. It's a rail network that covers the country as only the train can.

STUDENT CHART
	8 DAYS	15 DAYS	UP TO A MAXIMUM OF 15 EXTRA DAYS
COAST-TO-COAST	N/A	$203	$4.25/day
			UP TO A MAXIMUM OF 7 EXTRA DAYS
MARITIME	$ 59.00	N/A	$4.25/day
EASTERN	$135.00	N/A	$4.25/day
WESTERN	$144.00	N/A	$4.25/day

All prices quoted in U.S. funds based on conversion from Canadian funds. Prices subject to change due to fluctuations in currency.

The romance of train travel

Your vacation begins the moment you board our trains. Friendly service, freedom to move around and opportunities to meet other traveling adventurers like yourself. All these unique qualities make the train a natural choice. Don't forget to bring an address book to record the names of the new friends you'll make!

For complete details, call your travel agent or VIA Rail in the following states:

1 800 665-0200: AZ, CA, CO, IO, KS, LA, MS, MT, ND, NE, NM, NV, OK, OR, SD, TX, UT, WA, WY.
1 800 361-3677: CT, NY, RI.
1 800 387-1144: AR, IA, IL, IN, MI, MN, MO, OH, WI.
1 800 561-3949: AL, DE, FL, GA, KY, MA, MD, ME, NC, NH, NJ, PA, SC, TN, VA, VT, WV.

VIA® Canada's Passenger Train Network

CANRAILPASS

Women form pro-choice organization at UMass

By KATERI WALSH
Collegian Correspondent

A group advocating "a woman's basic human right" to choose abortion and be "in control of her own body," was recently formed at the University of Massachusetts.

The group, People for Choice, shares the same pro-choice goals as the National Organization for Women: "to keep abortion legal, safe, and funded," Marci Lew, a co-founder of the group said. But People for Choice is less involved in the legislative process and more "interested in changing attitudes and bringing women's perspective to light," she said.

The other co-founder of the group, Binky Feldman, said, "We want to challenge the misguided portrayal of the anti-abortion movement as a mainstream ethical group, and instead make clear that the anti-abortion movement does not represent the interests of women."

People for Choice is an action-based group which stresses membership on a multicultural basis and is open to men and women, Lew said.

"Everyone in the group has an equal say, equal power, and equal access to information," she said.

The group, whose first meeting was held Feb.19, will meet every Sunday night, she said. Its activities will include local rallies and demonstrations, as well as trips to Boston to demonstrate, counter-demonstrate, and provide support for the pro-choice objective, according to Lew.

Because the group wants to maintain autonomy, Feldman said, at this time the group does not plan to become a Registered Student Organization.

About 15 people attended last Sunday's meeting, she said, and at this point the group's membership has reached 20. It is too early to predict eventual membership because the group has just begun to publicize itself, Feldman said. One way the group is doing this is by setting up information tables in the Campus Center tomorrow and Wednesday.

Goodell bomb threat called hoax

Police said they received a phone call shortly after 1 p.m. yesterday warning them of a bomb planted somewhere in Goodell Library at the University of Massachusetts.

Amherst Fire responded to look for the alleged explosive device, which police were not furnished a description of or reason for.

Arthur Hilson Director of Public Safety at UMass said he did not have reason to believe the alleged bomb was anything but a threat.

"There is nothing that appears out of the ordinary in this matter. Most bomb threats turn out to be nothing," Hilson said.

As a precautionary measure the building was evacuated and the area cordoned off while the search for the device went on until 4 p.m. when business resumed.

Hilson said his department is investigating any connection between this latest bomb threat and previous bomb threats.

— THOMAS RODRIGUES

Student hit over the head with bottle

By THOMAS RODRIGUES
Collegian Staff

Police said they responded to a call about a multi-person fight outside of Brown Residence Hall Friday.

Upon arrival they discovered a young man who was bleeding profusely from a head wound, police said. The victim was transported to the University of Massachusetts Infirmary by the Amherst Fire Department ambulance for treatment, police said.

Further investigation disclosed the victim had been hit with a beer bottle, police said. The alleged assailant was identified and will be summonsed to court for a show cause hearing, police said.

In other police reports:

- Three windows in Morrill Greenhouse were reported smashed Friday, police said.
- A student reported a gold rope chain worth $500 stolen from his room in John Quincy Adams Residence Hall Friday while he was in the shower, police said.
- A student reported a leather jacket and compact discs worth $970 stolen from his room in Cance Residence Hall Friday, police said.
- An officer reported stopping a young woman outside of Washington Residence Hall where he had seen her carrying a case of beer. She was found to be a minor in possession of alcohol and will be summonsed to court on a show cause hearing, police said.

ASK US

Question: What is date rape and what are some of the resources available to survivors?

Answer: Date rape is forced, manipulated or coerced sexual intercourse by a friend, date and/or acquaintance. It is an act of violence, aggression and power. A woman if forced to have sex through verbal coercion, threats, physical restraint and/or physical violence. Her protests are ignored by her assailant. The most devastating part of date rape is the obscene violation of trust, which is the foundation of any relationship, be it friendship or dating.

Date rape is the most common act of violence committed against college aged women. One in five women will be raped during her four years in college. One in three women will be raped during her lifetime.

A major catalyst in date rape situations is the use of drugs/alcohol just prior to the attack — 75 percent of men and 55 percent of women reported. It is the underlying attitudes and not the substance that allow date rape to occur. 66 percent of reported rape survivors knew their assailant. Some key ideas to help prevent date rape from occuring is to:

- Know your sexual desires and limits.
- Realizing that being turned down when asking for sex is not a rejection of you, but of sex.
- Communicate limits clearly. "No means no." Don't be afraid to be assertive.
- Avoid excessive use of alcohol and drugs.

Campus resources are available to survivors. Every Woman's Center 545-0800, Rape Hot Line 545-2677, Campus Police 545-2121, and Legal Services 545-1995.

Ask Us is a weekly column focusing on health related topics. The questions and answers are provided to the Collegian by Health Services.

THE
EDWIN M. ROSSMAN
ALUMNI CAREER FORUMS

ECONOMICS

DATE: WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1989
TIME: 8:00 PM
LOCATION: CAMPUS CENTER 101

SPONSORED BY:

UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT SERVICE
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
DEPARTMENT OF ECONOMICS

This is an opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this important panel discussion!

ALUMNI PANELISTS:

Mr. Paul McDonald '66 and MBA	Vice President and CFO Friendly Ice Cream Corporation Wilbraham
Ms. Beth Segers '81	Director of Research Bank of New England Boston
Ms. Paula Duggan '83 and MBA	Senior Internal Auditor Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston
Mr. Daniel Sanford '86	Survey Instructor Women's Technical Institute Boston

For more information, please contact
University Placement Service, University Career Center
545-2224

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

NOW ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS

ONE VENDING COORDINATOR
ONE FINANCE COORDINATOR
ONE PUBLIC RELATIONS COORDINATOR
TWO ASSISTANT OFFICE COORDINATORS

information and applications are available at the Board of Governors office Room 817 in the Campus Center (545-0198)
They are due at the office on March 13th by 5PM

THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS IS AN AFFIRMATIVE ACTION/ EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER (AA/EOE)

BOARD OF GOVERNORS
B.O.G.
... Working Towards A Better Union

budget rally

continued from page 1

"[But] if another amendment or two is added to the budget, we would like it to be ours," Orefice said.

Orefice said Salem State College will have 100 students there and Southeastern Massachusetts University will have an additional two busloads. Contingents from the UMass-Boston and other state-funded institutions are also expected.

Orefice said at least 250 students are expected to attend.

Don Siriani, student trustee at Salem State, said there will be a rally on the grand staircase inside the Statehouse.

"We are basically using the squeaky wheel approach," he said. "We realize we must be a presence and lobby legislators. We were hit here with a big 'one-time' fee, but when I looked at the horrible state budget situation I realized another of these 'one-time' fees is definitely possible."

Siriani said Salem State has not been able to hire three college vice-presidents because of a lack of funding for their salaries. He said the search for candidates to fill these positions has had to stop three times.

Opposition to the education cuts has been vocal at every state college and university, Siriani said. At UMass, Students for a Democratic University built and has been expanding "Cutback City," a mock shantytown erected beside the campus pond 11 days ago. The "city," which has housed as many as 19 students, is meant to dramatize the fiscal problems faced by the University.

This Saturday!
MARCH 11th
Killington VERMONT
$32 FOR MEMBERS
add $10 FOR NON-MEMBERS
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.
545-3437

COLLEGIAN WANTS YOU
FRIDAY COLLEGIAN
We are looking for writers
Come down to 113 Campus Center

Discover March's Birthstone In Beautiful Ways
Aquamarine
By David Virtue
Filigree rings & pin in 14kt gold, with Aquamarines
silverscape designs
264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-3324
3 Pleasant St., Northampton 584-3324
GOLDSMITHS • GEM GALLERY

CLASS OF '89!
Party Time!
89 Days to GRADUATION
Celebration at TWISTERS
-Tuesday Night-
89¢ Draughts - Rolling Rock & Miller Lite
89¢ VO Hi-Balls
Dance Music all night Munchies Buffett
Wednesday Night: Reggae Night, Loose Caboose
30 Boltwood Walk, Downstairs, Amherst 253-2663

REGION

Newcomers want town clock silenced

HATFIELD, (AP) — A couple new to this little farming town has asked selectmen to turn off the town clock at night so they can sleep. The clock in the steeple of the Congregational Church has been sounding the hours, day and night, for the better part of two centuries.

Richard Carnall said yesterday that he and his wife moved from Northampton to a home next door to the Main Street church this summer during a period of several months when the municipal timepiece was broken and the chimes didn't sound.

"It's not just loud. At midnight, it rings 12 times and at five in the morning, it rings five times," Carnall said. "We're about 40 feet away and it's as loud as a car pulling into the driveway."

But Carnall said before last night's public hearing that he has gotten mixed reactions to his proposal to silence the bells between midnight and 6 a.m.

"Those bells have been ringing for about 200 years and I don't think too many people want them changed," said Selectman Thomas Hurley, adding that town officials got an earful from Hatfield's 3,000 residents during the months the bells didn't ring. Although the clock is located in the church, built in 1668, the town has been maintaining it for more than a century.

"You get used to it," said Selectman George Zgrodnik, Jr., who has lived across the street from the clock for most of his 47 years.

Mass. House opens budget debates

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts House opened debate on the state's fiscal 1990 budget yesterday with Democrats and Republicans alike urging lawmakers to hold the line on spending in the face of heavy lobbying for more money by special interest groups.

"We are in serious shape," House Ways and Means Chairman Richard Voke said in defending his committee's $12.3 billion budget plan aimed at avoiding Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' $604 million tax increase.

"If anybody tells you that 604 (million dollars) solves the problem, it is a delusion," the Chelsea Democrat said.

Voke said Dukakis' $12.9 billion budget proposal, which calls for a $1 billion increase in spending over this year simply to cover what Dukakis considered required commitments, would set the stage for more tax increases in future years.

The Ways and Means plan, which still would be $450 million larger than this year's budget, seeks to reduce the base of state spending so Massachusetts can more easily live within its means later, Voke said.

Dukakis would balance his fiscal 1990 budget with tax increases on capital gains, gasoline, alcohol, cigarettes, long-distance phone calls and utility equipment purchases.

But Voke predicted that if lawmakers restored the $582 million on program Ways and Means cut from the governor's budget for next year, they will have to be prepared to vote for increases in sales and income taxes in the years ahead to support these programs.

To those who were being urged to swallow hard and vote for increased spending and taxes this year, Voke said: "Get used to swallowing because you will have to swallow again next year. If you want to dance, you have to pay the piper, and the piper is there to collect."

House Republicans, who have been arguing for a reduction in spending for years, praised the Ways and Means budget approach. "We've won on this budget before we've begun [the debate]," House Minority Leader Steven Pierce said.

"There is some bad news in this budget," the Westfield Republican said, "because we will not be able to do all that we would want to do."

But he urged the membership to hold firm against the special interests who are lobbying for millions of dollars more for their programs. "We are going to have to say 'no,' not to everyone, not in every way," he said. "But in general, 'no.'"

Earlier, Jim Braude, executive director of the Tax Equity Alliance of Massachusetts, urged a two-week postponement of the debate, saying, "As the days pass, it becomes clear that there is more - or less - to this budget than first meets the eye."

Braude, joined by special interest advocates of many stripes, said delaying the budget debate would "allow the public and its representatives a better opportunity to craft the fairest, most responsible taxing and spending plan."

Rep. Peter Torkildsen, R-Danvers, carried that argument to the House floor, saying representatives "do not yet have a full idea of what the effect will be" of the Ways and Means committee's version of the budget.

But Ways and Means member Joseph Macket, D-Somerville, countered that lawmaker's had enough time to study the 221-page budget bill unveiled by Ways and Means 10 days earlier. "It is very important to deal with this budget (and) show where the House of Representatives stands," he said.

Torkildsen's motion to delay the debate by one week was defeated by a partisan vote of 107-36.

Torkildsen and other Republicans had also wanted to delay the debate because of a lack of live television coverage, which is normally required under the rules of the House.

WGBX, Channel 44, has been knocked off the air because of renovations to its Statehouse control room. But Al Frezza, spokesman for Speaker George Keverian, said there was a possibility that Channel 44's live House coverage would resume today.

TAKE A BREAK!
STOREWIDE
through March 18
with valid student I.D.
J•RICH
CLOTHING FOR MEN
191 N. Pleasant Street
Amherst • 253-2013
MONDAY-SATURDAY 10:00-6:00

PARIS INTERNSHIPS
Media • Public Relations • Advertising
Government • Financial Institutions
Fashion • Publishing • The Arts • Tourism
The program offers either a nine- or fourteen-week option and includes up to sixteen Boston University semester-hour credits, full-time internships, coursework taught by French faculty, accommodation with either a family or in a foyer, and individualized placements for virtually every academic interest. Program offered during the spring, fall, and summer sessions.
Complete the coupon below for detailed information
Name
Address
City State Zip
College/University
Summer Fall Spring 19
Send me information about the Boston University Paris Internship Program Return to Boston University
International Programs
725 Commonwealth Avenue B2
Boston, MA 02215
617/353-9888
1839 1989
BOSTON UNIVERSITY SESQUICENTENNIAL
An equal opportunity, affirmative action institution

JB's Roast Beef
50 Main St., Amherst
(across from Police Station)
253-7018
HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES
ROMANCE AND JB'S!

Maureen: Ah! Bradley, you're so cute. I love those pudgy cheeks.
Bradley: Yeah, yours aren't so bad either, but I see in your eyes that you want to treat me to JB's. I could really go for a super deluxe roast beef sandwich, chicken fingers, two orders of large fries, mozzarella sticks, onion rings, and a diet coke. I'm trying to watch my weight.
Maureen: Bradley, you read my mind. You're so romantic.
If this is you, bring this ad in for a free order of chicken fingers.

Are you concerned about Eating Problems?

Drop-in for information session
No Charge • No Registration
Tuesdays, 4-5 pm Feb. 7 — May 16
Univ. Health Services RM 304
UHS Nutritionist and Mental Health Therapist will answer questions, show a film and provide general information.

COLLEGIAN
NEEDS WRITERS
Come down to 113 Campus Center to start a successful writing career

TIME OUT

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT Print Shop
228 Triangle St., Amherst

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS
MARCH 18-25
When you break away this year, do it with style

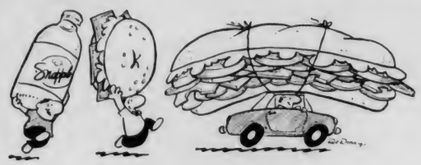
SUN FUN!! round trip air
7 nights
great night life

Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB 547-3437
420 STUDENT UNION BLDG.

$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$559 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$880 Elbow Beach BP

THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION
SAVE $75 Reservation Deposit Required
UMASS SKI CLUB
LAGNAF 430 Student Union • 545-3437

AMHERST DELICATESSEN



10% Off All Off-Campus Deliveries
MON.-WED. 4 TO 8
DELIVERS 549-6314
THURS.-SAT. 4 TO 10
249 NORTH PLEASANT STREET — AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS 549-6314

Council Travel

from New York	Round Trips starting at
LONDON	358
PARIS	458
GUATEMALA City	340
CARACAS	320
HONGKONG	769
TOKYO	679
SYDNEY	1128

Restrictions apply
taxes not included
Check our low teacher fares
EURAIL PASSES
ISSUED ON THE SPOT
Call for
FREE Student Travel Catalog
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

Most likely to help you succeed.

Name: IBM® Personal System/2®

Major: Advanced Academic Excellence

Special Contributions:
—helped organize notes and revise papers
—produced high-quality graphics
—gave up to a 40% discount to all eligible students, faculty and staff

Nicknames: "Brainy," "Study Buddy," "Ol' Reliable"

Motto: "Always be user friendly"

Demonstration on the Concourse
March 8 & 9 10-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on the page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Research helps save lives, not spread disease

The history of social response to science is full of odd episodes. When the benefits of anesthesia were first gaining wide recognition, there was great resistance to it in Scotland by those who cited biblical admonitions against inducing trances. There was quite a bit of debate between those who trusted doctors and those who trusted God, but the situation didn't change until finally someone pointed out that God himself had induced a deep sleep in Adam before surgically removing a rib to make Eve in the book of Genesis. That was something the faithful could relate to.

Rusty Denton

Bizarre as it may seem, we have a similar situation here in Amherst concerning leftist modernist intellectuals instead of conservative fundamentalist homesteaders. There's a project on campus involving a vaccine for the deadly anthrax disease, and the radical fringe groups oppose it because . . . well, because if the Department of Defense (DOD) is funding it, there must be something dirty and diabolical about it.

My interest was piqued, so I did a little library work, and then I telephoned the anthrax researcher. I hope his detractors know how to apologize.

Dr. Curtis B. Thorne has been working at UMass on the the genetics of Bacillus anthracis since 1966. He's a humble and unassuming man, and while he feels a certain patriotism in his association with the DOD, he is appalled at the idea of biological warfare. He's had a DOD grant for eight years, and prior to that, had research money from the National Institutes of Health. As he points out, there are several sources of funding for the sort of work he does; the military is just one of them.

Now a short lesson in biology. Anthrax is a virulent disease that strikes suddenly and can kill all sorts of animals (frogs, birds, cats, etc.), but it's especially hard on livestock. Anthrax spores can survive 40 years or more in the soil, which is how grazing animals contract the disease. Humans get it mostly from working closely with infected farm animals or with infected hides, hair, fur or wool. The disease is not remarkably contagious among people, and it can be treated with antibiotics.

The bacterium must produce both of two things to be dangerous: toxin and capsules (outer coatings). Pasteur developed a vaccine for Anthrax in 1881 in which the bacteria produce capsules but no toxin. That vaccine is still in use around the world for animals, and in countries like the Soviet Union for people. However, it has some nasty side effects, and recent work has shown that what makes the vaccine effective is a small fraction of lethal anthracis.

In the United States, the ANIMAL vaccine is the opposite: a strain with toxin but no capsules. The U.S. HUMAN vaccine has no bacteria at all, but is an immunizing protein produced in very small quantities by the same microbes used in our animal vaccine. Professor Thorne is currently working on genetic ways to improve the amount of immunizing protein that can be harvested from the bacteria. Pretty humanitarian, I'd say.

He actually uses both the Pasteur and the U.S. animal vaccine bacteria, but they are never combined. If mixed they could conceivably exchange DNA and be transformed into the lethal variety of anthracis, which is the only legitimate reason hiswork might be called dangerous. However, safety precautions are such that mixing could only occur after a series of improbable accidents, and even if that happened, the disease would likely affect only people in the lab, since humans become infected only on exposure to a relatively large dose of anthracis.

Heard of any anthrax outbreaks in Amherst in the last 23 years? I didn't think so. Other researchers at UMass have also worked safely with infectious bacteria, some of them lethal.

It's unfortunate that the protesters are revelling in their reactionary ignorance. I first became acquainted with Dr. Thorne ten years ago; his leftist critics have done an enormous injustice to a worthy and honorable man. It's my impression that liberals like to rectify injustices. How about it, folks? Are you big enough to apologize when you're wrong?

Rusty Denton is a Collegian columnist and has, among others, a degree in biochemistry

The Collegian accepts letters and columns from the Umass community and Five-College Area. ALL submissions MUST BE TYPED. Handwritten letters will not be printed!!!! The author's address and phone number should be included.

Submissions automatically become property of the Collegian and are thus subject to editing for grammar, clarity and space. Send or bring submissions to 113 Campus Center, UMass.

If you have any questions, or comments, drop by or call us at 545-3500. Ask for Pam, Meredith, or Janine.

When the public has the right to know

People who decide to run for public office should expect to have every grimy detail of their private life become public knowledge, right? They should know that that's the way our system works. Am I wrong?

Just how far into these private lives should we be allowed to delve into? Do we need to know their income and how many VCRs they own? What brand of sheets that they buy? Who they sleep with? What brands of vodka they have in their homes? If they smoked marijuana in the long-lost past?

Meredith O'Brien

The press has been criticized for its intense coverage of the trivial and private details of a potential politician's life. Has the press gone too far? Yes and no.

Let's take Gary Hart and Donna Rice. Would the fact that Gary Hart committed adultery have influenced his judgements as a politician? Should his entire platform have been judged by his infidelity or by his own words? After all, we all know that a number of our past presidents, not to mention congressmen, have not always been faithful. Do we judge them on that?

How about Dan Quayle? Though his political stances leave much to be desired, should his entire political realm be criticized for something that he did twenty years ago, something that many Americans themselves would have done if they could?

Then there's Douglas Ginsberg who smoked pot in law school. His entire career as a judge was tainted because it was revealed that he tried an illegal substance decades ago, causing him to lose a Supreme Court justice position.

Currently, there's a raging debate over John Tower's nomination for Secretary of Defense. He is accused of womanizing and heavy drinking. A drinking problem would affect one's performance in any job, but womanizing wouldn't. There is no clear evidence whether or not this man has a drinking problem.

Most of the light shed on the personal lives of these people was unnecessary. Trying pot once, having your father get you out of serving in Vietnam, being unfaithful and drinking are common vices among Americans today. None of us are being judged on our personal lives, so why should all of these people? I know that they are supposed to be the epitome of the model citizens, but they are human. Unless their private activities are disruptive to their working capabilities and judgments, or jeopardize their duties in representing their constituents, why do they need to be dragged through the mud?

August Barros wants to be the constable of Carver, Massachusetts again. His private life has recently been made public. This man is the reason that all of those other politicians' lives were exposed. Men like Barros running for public office should have their lives made public. Why? Well. . .

In 1987, August Barros (who was the constable of Carver at the time) was convicted of two counts of child rape. From April 1980 to November 1983, he was convicted of the repeated rapes of a 9 year-old girl. From April 1984 to February 1986, he began habitually raping a 2 year old. He was incarcerated for one year. Now he wants to become constable again, a public official, a public servant. There are many people in Carver that wouldn't feel safe with public servants like him. Isn't information on his private life important?

Then there's David Duke. Wasn't it relevant to delve into his personal life to find out that he was an ex-KKK grand wizard? Don't his constituents deserve to know that?

Maybe sometimes the press goes too far. Hiding in the bushes outside of a hotel doesn't do much for journalistic credibility. Neither does the exploitation of someone's adolescent mistakes. But the line between what should be public knowledge and what should be left alone is very thin. It's hard to walk that line.

Politicians aren't always what they seem. Before judging what is or isn't relevant, think of the ex-Carver constable. Wouldn't you want to know that August Barros was convicted of child rape?

Meredith O'Brien is a Collegian columnist

Aerobics ape more man than iron-pumpers

I'm writing in response to Darren Garnicks's article ("A Study in Aerobic Culture and Life," March 2) — you know, to the ape without the bobbing ponytail in Aerobics and Conditioning II.

You may or may not be one of the "token males" in my class flinging his leg painfully to the left, while the rest of the class kicks effortlessly right with perfect symmetry, but it doesn't matter. You, my furry, ex-defensive lineman friend, represent all the uncoordinated, grunting males whose clunky moves produce titters from some of the females in the class.

But you're wrong about us in some respects, James Fonda. I'm one of the "bobbing ponytails" faction, and I speak for all of us when I say that we respect what your're doing. It's demeaning to do those hip grinds to "Wild Thing" with thirty other leotard-clad bodies. True, aerobics is female-dominated, but we welcome anyone — male or female — who makes us look better.

I'm glad to hear that aerobics is so physically draining to a man. I'll let you in on a little secret: aerobics is torture for women, too. Why do you think we all look like victims of a nuclear holocaust after 45 minutes of "Eight more. . .?"

I'm sick of my "barbell-toting" boyfriend tell me that he could do aerobics blindfolded with one leg tied behind his back while being chased by pandas in heat if he wanted to, but it's so easy it's beneath him to even try. At least you have the courage to try. And that, Darren Garnick, makes you much more of a man than the rest of those "barbell-toting friends" who taunt your valor to boldly go where no man has ever gone before: Aerobics and Conditioning.

Just remember that Monday at class. We don't want to be here any more than you do. running around in circles, jerking my leg up and down at supersonic speed, and inhaling the hideously nauseating scent of mingled sweat (not to mention the toxic fumes wafting over from the other half of the gym — Kung Fu P.U.) is not on my List of Favorite Things to Do at 10 a.m. You belong in Aerobics and Conditioning II just as much as the rest of us. Even if you don't have a ponytail.

Julie Kotsifas
Amherst

YES: TAX REFORM

As all of us here at the University know, public higher education has taken a beating during the state's fiscal crisis. The future of UMass as an affordable, quality institution is on the line, and we students must act to save it. But we must also realize the cutbacks we've experienced are part of a broad sweep of cuts in human service agencies across the state. Yes, Massachusetts faces a serious revenue shortfall, but does that mean major across-the-board cuts in publicly funded programs are inevitable? Dukakis said no, and in January came up with a tax revenue package that would help close the deficit. But in response to loud complaints from conservative tax and business groups, Rep. Voke (the Chair of the House Ways and Means committee) has challenged the Governor by producing his own budget proposal, which slashes all state agencies and provides no revenue increases through tax reform or new taxes. Bipartisan consensus seems to be strong that "NO NEW TAXES" is what sells politically; legislators need to be told that if they don't support vital programs -- i.e, provide the necessary funds -- then they'll be out of their job, not the other way around.

The Governor's tax plan includes one major tax reform measure which can reduce the state's projected deficit of $630 million by half: elimination of the capital gains deduction. Currently, speculators in stocks, bonds, gold, and collectibles (Van Gogh paintings and the like) pay MA income taxes on only 50% of their profits. If this loophole were eliminated, (75% of which now benefits families earning over $200,000 per year), the state would realize $300 -400 million. In 1987, 653 Bay State millionaires each received an $80,000 bonus as a result of this loophole. Clearly this loophole is a tax giveaway for the rich: if anything is to be slashed, this deduction should be, not human service agencies. Only 11% of all MA taxpayers would be affected by this change; low and middle income wage earners will not be penalized. (Note: profits from the sale of your home are exempt if you buy another within 2 years.) How can Voke cut $31 million in public higher education and allow $350 million to slip through his fingers?

Call the State House TODAY

(617) 722-2000

The elimination of the capital gains deduction is the most important proposal in the Duke's tax package in regard to public higher education, for two reasons. First, this component alone will account for 45% of the dollar value of the package, making it the single most important revenue source of all; and secondly, other taxes are earmarked for other specific programs, so that higher education funding must come from capital gains revenues.

There are other tax reform measures that none of the politicians on Beacon Hill have been pushing publicly: for example, the closing of loopholes that have allowed 40% of corporations to pay minimum taxes --$228-- in 1986. All they can think of is mimicking Mr. Bush: no new taxes, just cuts that affect middle and low income wage earners: those who benefit most from state programs.

Those who oppose across-the-board budget cuts must act now. The House of Representatives is currently debating Voke's budget, and will vote on it this week. Not only must we insist that our representatives reject this attack on human services and public education, we must also mobilize to see that some fair tax revenue package is enacted.

BUDGET CUTS AND THE LONG TERM: IS THERE A SOLUTION IN SIGHT ?

Our cuts have been severe here on campus, and they're only a part of the general attack on vital state programs

TAKE PART IN THE BATTLE OVER THE POLITICAL FUTURE OF MASSACHUSETTS

PROTEST CUTS IN STATE FUNDED PROGRAMS

PROTEST VOKE'S BUDGET

1. WRITE YOUR LEGISLATOR TODAY: names and addresses available at the SGA, and GSS offices.

2. JOIN WITH THE PROFESSOR'S UNION AT THE PHONE BANKS IN WHITMORE, 3RD FLOOR; weeknights, 6:00 -9:00; 10:00 -6:00 Saturday and Sunday

3. PROTEST THE LATEST $50 EMERGENCY FEE: MARCH 10th, NOON, STUDENT UNION STEPS

4. MOVE INTO CUTBACK CITY

5.SUPPORT THE GRADUATE UNIONIZATION EFFORT: HELP TO SECURE ADEQUATE PAY FOR TA'S FROM THE STATE, NOT FROM STUDENT FEES

6. RALLY AND LOBBY AT THE STATEHOUSE, MARCH 29th; contact the SGA or GSS offices for more info.

Public Higher Education: Serving all the People of the Commonwealth?

Ought the private universities to be our models? One important issue which the rhetoric of improving quality (read "becoming like a private university") hides is the fact of limited access to public higher education.

With the loss of federal grants and scholarships, financial aid opportunities for students has diminished over the past years. Rising tuition and fees have made the cost of public higher education restrictive for many.(How many of you have had to take a year or two off to work before starting, or finishing, your college education?) Decreased state support has meant students have been turned away and programs for the "non-traditional" student have been cut.

LIMITED ACCESS

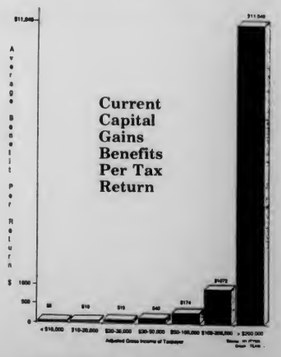
Federal Grants Cut:
PELL grants for 1st year students:
1980: 31.5%
1988: 15.6%
only 7%, for UMass 1st year students

Tuition has risen 18% since 1986.

UMass has already decreased enrollment by 100 students, and plans on decreasing enrollment by another 350 next semester

The WAGES program, which helped women return to and stay at the University has been killed off.

The Educational Access and Outreach office, which provides academic tutoring, may lose 20 -25 tutors next semester.



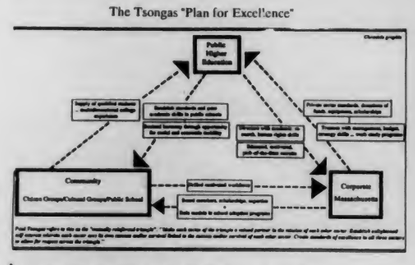
Sponsored by the Graduate Student Senate and the Student Trustee's Office

NO: TSONGAS' PLAN

What's the difference between a private and a public University? Cost! Why is a public University affordable? Because the state provides it with funds so it can fulfill its mission: to offer all citizens an opportunity for higher education.

Q: what's missing from this picture?

The Tsongas "Plan for Excellence"



A: State funding, which is the backbone of a democratic (read"non-elitist")education system.

According to a recent University report, since 1975 "the percentage of the [University's] total budget contributed by state appropriations is down sharply, from 41.5% to 36%."

Our higher education system was established to provide the opportunity for all the state's citizens to obtain a quality public education. By definition, public education is subsidized by the state, and is an alternative to the elitism of private universities. Former Senator Tsongas, the new Chair of the Board of Regents,and thus the overseer of the public higher education system, calls for a new law to

> "commit excellence in public higher education establishing the specific goal of "best in America" by 2000; and > reaffirm the principle of open access into the system by all our citizens, while remaining vigilant in maintaining the quality of our academic standards."
>

We applaud the sentiment of this law, but wonder about its efficacy. Why create a new law when the means of showing support for public higher education occurs every year -- during the budget process? And will such a law succeed in securing funds when lobbying efforts have failed? Tsongas does propose that the state fund higher education by a fixed percentage each year, which will help to forestall cuts; but a large part of his message is to suggest the state schools turn to the private sector for financial support. Whose interests are these private corporations going to serve, do you think? The public's? Low income students'? Minorities'?

If You Can't Beat 'em - Join 'em

Tsongas's plan is no less than an admission of defeat of the theory on which public higher education is based. Tsongas's motto might be "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em." Why is it that 3/4ths of the state's "general scholarship fund" goes to students attending private universities? Because that $84 million was cajoled out of the legislature by the private Universities' lobby group. Public higher education officials have not even been able to wring level funding from the legislature in the last 2 years, never mind to stave off mid year cutbacks. And so what's the solution to this mess? Promise the legislature we'll become like the privates! Spend a year of two wooing the corporations, and when we look more like Harvard and MIT, then maybe the pols on Beacon Hill will pay some attention to us!

Amtrak passengers on rise as strike goes on

BOSTON (AP) — Amtrak reported slightly heavier traffic on its trains from Boston to Washington D.C. yesterday, as the Eastern Airlines Machinist union strike continued in its third day.

Seven Eastern jets, five shuttles and a flight each to Miami and Washington, D.C. took off from Logan International Airport by mid-afternoon. Six Eastern jets landed at Logan, four shuttles and two flights from Atlanta, said Massport spokesman Phil Orlandella, who said the figures came from eastern.

On an average weekday, Eastern has 48 arrivals at Logan and an equal number of departures, Orlandella said.

A federal judge in Manhattan signed a temporary order yesterday barring unionized Amtrak workers from staging a walkout in sympathy with striking Eastern Airlines machinists.

US District Judge Robert P. Patterson signed the order at 3 p.m. barring a sympathy walkout at Amtrak until at least 3 p.m. tomorrow, when he will hold a hearing on whether to issue a longer-term stay.

The order had been sought by Amtrak lawyers.

Patterson signed a similar temporary restraining order Sunday.

The orders have helped avert pickets in support of the Eastern Airlines Machinist union at rail yards and removed a threat to the morning commute into Boston.

The machinists had planned to extend their pickets to Amtrak rail centers, which would have kept workers who operate the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority's commuter rail lines off the job yesterday.

MBTA spokesman Peter Dimond said the MBTA has readied 150 public and private buses to handle about 30 percent of the 35,000 suburban commuters using the authority's rail service.

Dimond said there was a slight decrease on commuter rail riders yesterday and a slight increase in bus and subway service. He attributed the drop in commuter rail to commuter fears that service would be stuck.

There were few passengers at the Eastern terminal yesterday and numerous pickets were standing watch at their assigned sites around Logan Airport in Boston.

"We don't want to make it a mass exodus kind of thing, we're keeping the pickets very orderly.," said Ed Imondi, a representative of the local machinists union. "The pilots and flight attendants are giving us great support."

AP photo

EASTERN STRIKE LINE — Eastern Airline strike supporters picket yesterday morning outside the company's facilities at Logan International Airport, where striking machinists backed by sympathetic pilots and flight attendants virtually grounded the carrier during the weekend.

Kitty Dukakis expected home after month of rehabilitation

BOSTON (AP) — One month after the surprise announcement that Kitty Dukakis developed a sudden and serious drinking problem after her husband lost the presidential election, the wife of Gov. Michael S. Dukakis was due home this week from an alcohol treatment program.

One Statehouse source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said yesterday that Mrs. Dukakis was expected to return to the family's home in suburban Brookline today from Edgehill Newport, an intensive residential facility on Rhode Island.

Other sources did not dispute that timetable, but several sources warned that Mrs. Dukakis' plans might change in order to avoid what aides called "a circus atmosphere" or "a cast of thousands."

Following the family's wishes, the governor's staff was publicly silent yesterday about Mrs. Dukakis' condition, her treatment and her movements. The governor's press office has been bombarded with inquiries and interview requests, but no plans have been made for Mrs. Dukakis to discuss her experience.

One senior Dukakis administration official said he had no reason to believe the treatment was not a success.

"Every indication from the governor's attitude and what he has had to say is that it has been successful and that Kitty is going to resume and active, independently fulfilling schedule, following up all the plans she had been making before," the source said.

"I've heard nothing that would even by implication contradict that," the official said. "The clear thought of all that is that it was successful."

Managers/Manager Trainees

We'll be on campus March 10 to tell you about the best jobs in the business.

Fast foods are big business and Wendy's is the savviest in the industry. A position as a Manager or Manager Trainee at Wendy's is not only a good-starting job in itself. It's a fine training program for bigger and better things. You don't think company presidents start out that way?

Exceptional management training, growth opportunities and good salaries make Wendy's somebody to talk to. We will be on campus to meet with you on

Date: Friday, March 10th
Time: 8:30 AM-5:00 PM
Place: Flint Lab
Contact: Steve Boyton, 545-0497

And take it from the best in the business. If you're graduating and would like to put your management skills to use we'd like to talk to you.

If you are unable to meet with us in person, please forward a resume or call:

John Everett
Wendy's International, Inc.
460 Totten Pond Road
Waltham, MA 02154
(617) 890-4448

Equal Opportunity Employer M/F/H/V

Wendy's

BETWEEN AMHERST DELI AND AVANTI PIZZA
The Foto Factory Carriage Shops
MODRIAN
Carriage Shops • 549-6344
Tux Rentals

SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW HOW TO HANDLE THE BUMPS?
PROVE IT!

At the annual Killington Mogul Challenge on Outer Limits, Saturday, April 1st. Come get an application from the UMass Ski Club, 430 Student Union ($15 application fee)* and join the competition.

OR JUST BE A SPECTATOR, and join us for the Saturday bus trip to Killington.

*Number of applications available are limited, so please hurry to be sure a space is reserved for you.

UMASS SKI CLUB

To assure our consistent high level of quality in processing your photos, we are the only on-premises lab in the area using
KODAK PAPER

Same Day Service
FILM IN BY 10:00 A.M. / PRINTS OUT BY 4:00 P.M.
1-HOUR SERVICE ALSO AVAILABLE

The Foto Factory
257 TRIANGLE STREET IN AMHERST

MARCH 19-25
POISON PREVENTION WEEK
1989

FAMILIES WITH YOUNG CHILDREN

Bring old prescription vials with leftover medication to the pharmacy and receive free a bottle of Ipecac and a poison counterdose chart. (Free only during Poison Prevention Week.)

If no old medication vials are brought in, then the charts and Ipecac are available for $1.00 each.

WORLD & NATION

Lawmaker requests vessel seizures of ocean dumpers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taking a page from the administration's "zero tolerance" policy of seizing boats from drug possessors, a New England Democrat yesterday called for seizures of vessels owned by convicted ocean dumpers.

"Under current law, it is almost worth the risk to dump illegally because the fines and penalties are small compared to the cost of compliance," said Rep. Sam Gejdenson, D-Conn.

> "It is almost worth the risk to dump illegally because the fines and penalties are small compared to the cost of compliance."
> – Rep. Sam Gejdenson

The ocean dumping of municipal solid waste or hazardous waste carries a maximum $50,000 fine. Congress enacted legislation last year that makes the dumping of medical waste a felony with fines up to $250,000.

Gejdensen said his legislation, introduced in the House yesterday, would give the federal government "additional muscle" by allowing the Environmental Protection Agency and the Justice Department to recommend permanent seizure of vessels used to illegally dump waste in the oceans or the Long Island Sound.

Under the bill, the Coast Guard would seize the ship if the dumper is convicted and the judge in the case approves seizure as a sentencing option.

Unlike the controversial "zero tolerance" policy, a dumping-connected seizure could only take place following a conviction, Gejdenson said. The administration's anti-drug policy allows the Coast Guard to seize most recreational vessels immediately if any amount of drugs is found on board.

"This bill would protect the rights of boaters while sending a strong message to illegal dumpers that their actions will no longer be tolerated," Gedjenson said.

The Connecticut Democrat said while East Coast beach closures triggered by the illegal dumping of medical waste captured the public's attention last summer, ocean dumping has much broader economic and environmental effects. He pointed to the impact on shellfish and commercial fishing.

The administration has not announced a position on the legislation, although President Bush vowed during the campaign to push for stronger anti-dumping measures.

AP photo

PALESTINIANS RELEASED FROM PRISON — Two Palestinians on way from Ansar prison display their joy at being two of 124 released yesterday in Gaza City in the occupied Gaza strip. The release was a "gesture of good will" on the part of the Israeli government, according to Israeli radio.

Court rules no jury trials for drunk driving defendants

WASHINGTON (AP) — People accused of driving under the influence of alcohol generally are not entitled to jury trials, a unanimous Supreme Court ruled today.

The court, in a case from Nevada, said states are not required to hold jury trials for drunken driving when the maximum jail terms are six months and other penalties are not particularly severe.

The court left open the possibility the Constitution might require a jury trial in the case of a repeat offender who could be sentenced to more than six months in jail if convicted of driving under the influence more than once.

In another case, the court turned down an appeal by northeastern states seeking to force the federal government to crack down on acid rain and other pollution they say is caused by smokestacks in other states.

The court, without comment, refused to order the federal Environmental Protection Agency to take steps to limit interstate air pollution.

The justice rejected an appeal by two Nevada men, Melvin R. Blanton and Mark D. Fraley, who said the penalties for being convicted of driving under the influence (DUI) are serious enough to warrant jury trials.

Lawyers for the two said Nevada is one of only five states that do not permit jury trials in such cases. They listed the other states as Louisiana, Mississippi, New Jersey and New Mexico.

While there is mounting national concern over the seriousness of drunken driving, Justice Thurgood Marshall said for the court today that Nevada classifies driving under the influence as a petty crime.

The demarcation line for petty crimes is a maximum sentence of six month in jail, Marshall said. The fact that Nevada prescribes other penalties does not raise the offense to a serious crime, he said.

In other action, the court:

-Agreed to review the stiff fines imposed against four Yonkers, N.Y., councilmen for defying a federal judge's order to adopt a housing desegregation plan.

— Said federal workers do not have a right to sue in federal court when they accuse the union representing them of unfair treament.

News show debuts amid controversy

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Channel One, the widely criticized commercial television news program aimed at teen-agers in schools, debuted today in several high schools complete with ads for candy bars, dandruff shampoo and blue jeans.

The 12-minute daily program is being produced by Whittle Communicatins, a Knoxville-based media company, and is being tested over the next two months in six schools around the country. The first program included coverage of the show itself and the controversy surrounding it.

Before the first show was even aired a number of education groups objected to the idea of allowing advertisers to pitch their products to students in the classroom.

Central High School on the north side of Knoxville is one of the test schools and the 20 students in Connie Wilkes' homeroom appeared to pay close attention to the program.

The program featured stories on students' reaction to the continuing death threats against author Salman Rushdie and life for a teen-ager in the Soviet Union, in addition to the one on the controversy involving the launch of Channel One.

Also included in the program were 30-second television ads for Snickers candy bars, Head and Shoulders shampoo, and Levi's 501 jeans.

If the test proves successful and advertisers can be persuaded to make along-term commitment, Whittle Communications LP hopes to make the program available to 8,000 or more schools in fall 1990.

The program is being produced by Whittle, a fast-growing company that has specialized in creating magazines and sponsored posters that enable advertisers to reach narrowly defined audiences.

The Channel One test is expected to cost about $5 million. Whittle estimates the hardware alone required to take the program nationwide will cost more than $100 million.

Each of the test schools was given about $50,000 worth of television monitors, video recording equipment and a satellite dish that Whittle promises to maintain.

FAMILY MANAGER WANTED

Older special needs woman would like to share your home. Should be near her elder day program in Amherst or family in Chicopee. She uses a walker, so a downstairs bedroom and bathroom is a must. A salary of $15,000. is available for someone to be companion, teacher and supervisor. Experience or related education preferred. A room and board stipend and respite funds are available.

A program of Goodwill Industries
For more information, call:
Lucy Price or Peter Van Voorhis at 788-6981

ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31
KAY JEWELERS
ALL ITEMS IN STORE ON SALE UNTIL MARCH 31
The diamond people
STUDENTS TAKE ADDITIONAL
10% OFF ALL SALE PRICED JEWELRY
With any valid student ID
INSTANT CREDIT AVAILABLE
Hampshire Mall, Hadley
MON-SAT: 10-9:30; SUN: 12-5

FREE SCHOLARSHIP INFORMATION FOR STUDENTS WHO NEED
MONEY FOR COLLEGE

Every Student is Eligible for Some Type of Financial Aid Regardless of Grades or Parental Income.

- We have a data bank of over 200,000 listings of scholarships, fellowships, grants, and loans, representing over $10 billion in private sector funding.
- Many scholarships are given to students based on their academic interests, career plans, family heritage and place of residence.
- There's money available for students who have been newspaper carriers, grocery clerks, cheerleaders, non-smokers... etc.
- Results GUARANTEED.

CALL ANYTIME For A Free Brochure (800) 346-6401

Fancy Fingers
NAIL & SKIN CARE SALON
The ultimate in nail fashion and skin beauty
For Appointment call 549-4979
February Special
Complimentary Eyelash Tint with Every Facial
Manicures • Waxing
And Much More!
228 Triangle St., Amherst

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON ZENITH

DATA SYSTEMS
Z-286LP
DESKTOP PC

GREAT THINGS DO COME IN SMALL PACKAGES

SPECIAL UNIVERSITY PRICING!
40–50% OFF RETAIL PRICE GREAT PERFORMANCE • GREAT PRICE

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN–

FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE CONTACT:
Steve Orlandi
ZDS Student Representative
549-1420

American Express,VISA, MasterCard Credit Cards Accepted.

MOUSE
AND MICROSOFT WINDOWS
INCLUDED FREE

Microsoft Windows is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corp.

Prices subject to change without notice.

ARTS & LIVING

Center for Arts dance show a moody delight

By GRAEME THOMSON
Collegian Staff

Gadzooks! Drukman's been at it again, the impudent young whippersnapper. I'm telling you, you've got to watch these correspondent types. Give 'em six column inches, and they'll plagiarise your style. Any road up, what the hell was he blithering on about - placid mouse indeed. I don't know, kids these days. All these walking haircuts who call themselves musicians because they can scratch a record. In my day, we took care of our records!

Of course the records that came out then were worth looking after, real songs sung by people with real voices, not some boil-in-the-bag technotrash squawked by an adenoidal barbie-doll. Jim Reeves, now there was a voice that could make the hairs on your mucous membranes stand on end. But sadly, he went the way of the best of them, coming down to earth with a "bump", destined to rest forever among the Icaruses of popular music. Or did he?

Not according to The Beasts of Bourbon, who on their new album Sour Mash (Red Eye) seem to have entered into a satanic pact to bring back not only the spirit of the velvet voice, but also those of numerous other dead rock stars. Now if this sounds like another Kicking Against the Pricks to you, as it did initially to me (lead singer Tex Perkins' voice is what Nick Cave will sound like after he's been six foot under for a month), you're not far off the mark. The difference is that all the songs on Sour Mash are Beasts of Bourbon originals.

So what if "Hard Work Drivin' Man" is a direct rip-off of Muddy Waters' (yet another victim of gravity's rainbow) "Mannish Boy," when the fact of the matter is that it sounds even more evil than the original. Or if the mutant swamp-blues of "Watch Your Step" is just a mite John Lee Hooker-ish. Sour Mash works brilliantly, torching the nostalgia and reverence with which we tend to view these legends in favor of its own twisted mythology. This is the sound of rotting corpses singing out of a jukebox from hell.

And it's not all blues and country either. "Playground" reminds you in abrupt, noisy fashion, that two of these guys are from Thug, and "Door to your Soul" is, appropriately enough, almost Doors like in its poppiness.

But inevitably my personal favorite has to be the wonderful country ballad, "The Hate Inside" which roasts the clean living image of Jim Reeves over a spit. "I didn't go to the A.A. meetin' today," Tex growls somewhat apologetically, no doubt taking swigs from a bottle of JD between breaths. At their best,the Beasts of Bourbon are like the Triffids without education, swapping metaphysics for methaphysics. They do things that would make the Collostomy Bags puke with envy. Sample some Sour Mash today, you'll believe Jim Reeves can fly.

Center for Arts dance show a moody delight

By DANIELLE DOWLING
Collegian Correspondent

Danscape
Northampton Center For The Arts
March 3

Danscape was a performance that was completely different. it was artful, expressive, seemingly strenuous and overall a delight. The group's exquisite usage of the art of dance covered a broad spectrum of moods and ideas.

Led by artistic directors Jane Ahfield and Patricia Gorman, the Danscape Dance Collaborative has been together for the past seven years. This marked their first major production as the resident dance company at the Center For The Arts.

Dance

Their repertoire extends from improvisation to aerobic dance. friday night's production consisted of seven major pieces three bizarre, short pieces entitled "Messages," so called because the artists would dance as a recorded answering machine message played in the background.

Each piece had a unique idea or message. There was the funkiness of "Dance –23.8," and the playfulness of "Q&A," while the colorful costumes and form of dance in "New Math Mardi Gras" suggested a festive mood. "Entomofauna" in its form and use of the song "Paranomia" by Art of Noise had a techno-pop feel to it. However, these pieces were continually changing in their style which was, although interesting, at times "confusing". The message was often lost in a flash of movement and expression.

Two especially good pieces that were clear in their message were "Between Station" and "Gathering Branches."

Choreographed and performed by Karen Carlson with the help of Ariel Wiess, "Between Stations" truly expressed the chaos experienced on a city train during rush hour. There was a sense of competition between the two performers. The moves suggested a struggle, a conflict of interests, but in the end one reached to the other and offered their hands. It was sincerely touching.

"Gathering Branches," choreographed and performed by David Beadle contained a raw sexual essence. A tribal atmosphere engulfed the mood, form and expression of this piece. It was simplistic, yet fascinating.

COME CELEBRATE
INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY

WEDNESDAY,
MARCH 8

9:30 - 11:30
Cape Cod Lounge

Featuring:
Erica Wheeler
singer, songwriter, guitarist

Free coffee and tea
Free button making

Sponsored by the Student Activities Office.

The Spoke

Drink of the Week
White and Black Russians
$1.75

Beer of the Month
Foster's Cans
$1.50

35 E. Pleasant St. • Proper ID required!

charlie's

1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week • Call for Take Out
Kitchen Open 'till midnight

New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables

Tonight 10¢ Buffalo Wings
9:00 PM - 12:00 AM

Drink of the Week
Seven & Seven $ 1.50

Beer of the Month
Goosehead $1.75

FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Mon. Night 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks 9-12
Wed. 99¢ Nacho & Cheese Platters 9-12
Sunday 4 Burger Platters for $5.00 6-10

Noises Off bites hard at class happy, boorish Brits

By GRAEME THOMSON
Collegian Staff

Noises Off
Mt. Holyoke Theatre
March 3

Michael Frayn has always struck me as a very English writer, dealing primarily with the foibles of the British middle class, their bumbling incompetence and their absurd "privett hedge" mentality. Noises Off is a completely wicked farce within a farce, whose plot revolving around a small repertory theatre company touring seaside resorts with a completely leaden Ray Cooney-style comedy (it's called "Nothing On") is a thin disguise for what is essentially a vicious attack on an archaic, crumbling English class system.

As in all of Frayn's best work, a thin veneer of order gradually gives way to complete, and completely hilarious chaos. In Noises Off the real farce is in the back stage bickerings and back stabbings of the cast and crew, a bunch of characters whose motives are actually even more shallow than the cardboard cut-outs they are playing. Soon, the audience is no longer sure whether the reality exists in front of, or behind the stage.

This two-headed beast that Frayn has created requires split-second timing for the comedy to work, and under the direction of Jim Cavanaugh, the ensemble cast do a tremendous job in bringing off a constant stream of exquisite set-pieces. You've just got to admire their energy and professionalism.

Particularly good are Daniel Banyas as the seen-it-all, done-it-all director, Lloyd Dallas, Paula Alekson doing a Terry Jones as Dotty Otley (portrayer of Mrs. Clackett, the Pythonesque cleaning lady) and Paul Wildman, as the drunken old music hall has-been, Selsdon Mowbray (the Burglar).

Okay, so the accents waver a little, and perhaps there are one or two mispronounciations (although I was probably the only member of the audience to get a laugh out of Alan Morse's "Baaahsingstoke") but these are just petty quibbles which no doubt reflect my own Britishness, my middle-classness.

What really matters is that Noises Off is a complete scream from beginning to end. If this doesn't have you rolling in the aisles you must be dead from the neck up. And by the way, Oliver Allyn's sets are a delight, perfectly capturing both the look and feel of the wonderful old seaside theatres.

■ pianist

continued from page 5

"In Israel, I'm considered to be a medical miracle instead of a musical miracle," she said, adding that Bach's music gave her an extraordinary sense of vitality. She said she discovered some interesting things in his music, and started to share her views with other people.

She said she found many people like his music and became the founder and director of the Bach Centre in Tel-Aviv.

"I try to teach people what classical music is from the inside," she said.

Through all of the music she plays, Nishry said she expresses her innermost pains. The music she chooses for her concerts commemorates the Holocaust, she said.

Nishry also plays Catalogue of Birds by Messiaen. "The Holocaust represents tragedy while the 'Birds' song represents hope," she said.

All of Nishry's pieces are influenced by the many experiences in her life, and she said she purposely does this.

"I had an upbringing and education that had its value," she said.

Photo courtesy of Alligator Records

SON SEALS AND DELIVERS an exciting brand of steamy Chicago blues guitar. Appearing at the Universal Joint March 16, Son Seals has been a strong voice of the blues since his 1973 debut album The Son Seals Blues Band. Sixteen years later, he's as smokin as ever.

Board of Governor's Program Council
Presents...

"WE SCORE MORE"

A Free Lecture on success in and after college by

Jon Katzman
founder of the

THE PRINCETON REVIEW™

LEARN HOW TO:

Score high on the LSAT, GMAT, GRE and MCAT
Master your class work and decrease test anxiety
Use credit and sweat to start a business
Find out what businesses are looking for in campus interviews

 Students who attend and submit a completed Master Card application, will receive a $75-discount coupon for the Princeton Review Course.

A Benefit for naca EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATION
Produced by BWI
Wednesday, March 8th
8:00 pm, Campus Center Auditorium
In Cooperation with BayBank
Presented by MasterCard

Nolte's*King* less than royal

By RAYMOND MARTIN
Collegian Correspondent

Farewell To The King
Mt. Farms Theaters

Film Review

Nick Nolte is best known for his roles in action/adventure movies such as 48 Hrs. and Extreme Prejudice, and Farewell to the King is right up his alley. He plays a soldier in World War II on the island of Borneo. He's just managed to escape from the Japanese, and while stumbling blindly through the jungle, racked with malaria, he is found by a beautiful native girl.

She brings him back to her village where, because of his blue eyes and a tattoo of a dragon on his chest, he is considered special and eventually becomes king. All Nolte wants - his name in the movie isn't made clear (he mumbles a lot) - is to leave the war behind him and live his new life.

However, three years later, Nigel Fairbourne (excellently played by Nigel Havers) is sent to the island to organize the tribes to fight for the British. He and Nolte inevitably clash.

A deeper look at their opposing ideologies would have been fascinating, but unfortunately the movie turns into another good guy vs. bad guy flick, with numerous scenes of Japanese soldiers tumbling through the air after being shot, as if they were acrobats in a Russian circus troupe.

Nolte is never quite believable as the man who has left his military past behind, in favor of a non-violent future. His resisitance to Fairbourne is fleeting and half-hearted - if a King is supposed to be a great leader, I have no idea why his people would follow Nolte.

The movie tries to be both anti-war and an action/adventure piece. Nolte tries to fill this dual role and towards the end of the movie swears, "From this time on, I'll never raise my hand to another man." Of course by this time, he's killed all the men to whom he could possibly raise his hand.

Fifth Business bring red hot show to Hatch

This coming Wednesday, March 8 sees the return of Fifth Business to the Hatch, where they have previously played to capacity crowds.

The members of the band come from a variety of other outfits. Lead Guitarist Chris Bonney previously wielded the axe with D.T and the Shakes, while bassist Tom Mahnken was formerly with the Atomic Elevators and L'Oasis Blues All-Stars. He's also had guest spots with the Radiators and the Dog Act.

Rhythm guitarist Mike Flood was with the Relatives, and finally drummer Rich Jordan used to thump the tubs for Standard Deviations and Rippopotamus.

Fifth Business have been seen at a number of local venues including Sheehan's, the now defunct L'Oasis and at Smith College.

The show begins at 9 p.m. and admission is free.

DELANO'S

Proper Identification A Must
57 NORTH PLEASANT ST • 253-5141

HELD OVER BY POPULAR DEMAND
BEERS OF THE MONTH
ONCE AGAIN

MILLER LITE & BUD BOTTLES $1.00
ALSO FEATURING FOSTER'S BEER $1.50

DRINK OF THE WEEK
VODKA TONIC $1.00

THE ALTERNATIVE SPRING BREAK '89

Killington VERMONT

CONDO LODGING & LIFTS
SKI and PARTY WEEK
MARCH 19-24
$259
LAGNIAPPE

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437

INCLUDES TAXES AND SERVICES
NON-MEMBERS WELCOME

University of Massachusetts

CAMP DAY "1989"

Summer Employment
TUESDAY, MARCH 7
10 a.m.—5 p.m.
Student Union Ballroom

Featuring:
60 Camps from the Northeast

Massachusetts • New York • Maine
Connecticut • New Hampshire
New Jersey • Boston • Pennsylvania

WILL BE INTERVIEWING FOR SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Further Information Contact:
The Student Employment Office
239-A Whitmore - Walk-ins Welcome

HEY SENIORS: Get Shot!

Senior Portrait Sittings will be held from Feb. 27 - Mar. 17, 9-5 pm in Rms 177/178 of the Campus Center. Call 5-2874 for info & appointments.

ORDER your 1989 INDEX NOW!
It's a $25 investment in memories that last a lifetime!

Send coupon to address below.

Make your checks payable to: INDEX Yearbook

NAME _____
PERMANENT ADDRESS _____
_____
LOCAL PHONE NO. _____

INDEX 103 Campus Center/UMass, Amherst 545-0848

AP photo

LABOR LEADER CALLS FOR EMERGENCY BOARD – AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, in Washington yesterday, called on the National Mediation Board to recommend the president to appoint a Presidential Emergency Board to address the strike by Eastern Airline employees. (Related story page 14.)

Man to be tried for shooting rampage

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — The trial of a retired librarian will hinge in whether a jury believes he was temporarily insane when he fired on children, shoppers and police officers during a seven-hour siege, killing six people.

Lawyers for William B. Cruse, 61, planned to argue that alcohol and psychiatric problems caused him to open fire with a semiautomatic rifle, a shotgun and a revolver outside his home in the coastal community of Palm Bay and at two adjacent shopping centers.

Jury selection began yesterday, with Circuit Judge John Antoon convening a pool of more than 100 people from which to select a 12-member jury and several alternates.

The shooting spree April 23, 1987, led to 36 felony charges that could send Cruse to the electric chair: six counts of first-degree murder, 28 of attempted murder and two of kidnapping.

The trial was moved 75 miles west to Bartow after a telephone survey suggested that many people in central Florida's Brevard County believed Cruse guilty.

In a videotaped interview after his arrest, Cruse calmly told police he believed neighbors, strangers and supermarket employees were constantly spreading rumors that he was homosexual. He said he had to stop it.

"I just wanted people to leave me alone," he said in the tape shown publicly for the first time Thursday during a hearing. "I had to do something to stop them. I know I'm not queer."

But he added, "I was drunk and crazy and I just don't remember hurting anyone."

Seemingly meek, Cruse has a reputation as an arrogant demanding prisoner at Brevard County Jail, where he had been held without bond since his arrest.

He quit eating at one point, claiming that jailers were trying to poison him, and he had to be force-fed through a tube in his nose for several days.

Q.T.B.

(Quitting Time Buffet)

Mon-Fri

4-7

Fitzwilly's restaurant bar

23 Main St. • Northampton 584-8666

NO FAT. NO CHOLESTEROL.

Nothing But Delicious.

Try some Nonfat Frozen Yogurt the taste will leave you amazed!

Amherst Boltwood Walk

Northampton Main Street

THE EDWIN M. ROSSMAN ALUMNI CAREER FORUMS

BDIC

DATE: TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1989

TIME: 8:00 PM

LOCATION: CAMPUS CENTER 101

SPONSORED BY:

UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT SERVICE
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
BACHELOR'S DEGREE WITH INDIVIDUAL CONCENTRATION

This is an opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this important panel discussion!

ALUMNI PANELISTS:

Frank Leon McCoy '74 "African Politics"	Consultant Synergos Institute New York, NY
Patricia Hayes '75 "Graphic Communications"	Freelance Graphic & Textile Designer P. Hayes Designs Northampton, MA
Sanford M. Matathia '78 "Land Planning & Development"	Attorney Rackemann, Sawyer and Brewster Boston, MA
James F. Kane '83 "Broadcast Reporting with Specialization in Government"	News Anchor/Reporter WTAG Radio Worcester, MA

For more information, please contact:
University Placement Service, University Career Center
545-2224

ELECTIONS!!!!

for

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

NOMINATION PAPERS AVAILABLE IN ROOM 817 CAMPUS CENTER

RETURN COMPLETED FORMS TO B.O.G. OFFICE BY MARCH 9th

CALL 545-0198 FOR MORE INFORMATION

BOARD OF GOVERNORS B.O.G. ...Working Toward A Better Union

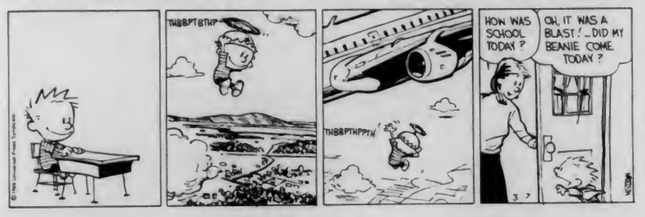
THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"Of course, living in an all-glass house has its disadvantages ... but you should see the birds smack it."

BLOOM COUNTY By BERKE BREATHED

YESTERDAY, MR. P. OPUS WROTE IN THE PICAYUNE THAT OVERLY MADE-UP WOMEN LOOK "UNGODLY".
TODAY, SPEAKING TO HER LOYAL SALES HORDES, MARY KAY REFERRED TO THE OUTSPOKEN AUTHOR:
A MILLION DOLLARS FOR THE NOSE OF THE INFIDEL!
HE'S DOWN
AND FOAMING

CALVIN AND HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON



DOONESBURY By GARRY TRUDEAU

AND FINALLY, THE ISLAMIC CRITICS CIRCLE ORDERS DEATH BY STONING FOR LEO BUSCAGLIA, ERICA JONG AND DONALD TRUMP!
THAT IS ALL. MAY ALLAH'S WILL BE DONE.
HUH? WHAT? THAT'S IT?
HEY! WHAT ABOUT ANDY ROONEY?
YEAH!
WE'VE GOT A BIT OF A SHOCKER HERE, PETER.

CAMPUS COMIX By AL ARPAD

SOPHOCLES DOES COMEDY NIGHT AT THE HATCH...
THE OTHER DAY ON THE ROAD TO THEBES I MET THIS GUY WITH A BEAUTIFUL GIRL ON HIS ARM; SO I ASKED HIM "WHO WAS THAT LADY I SAW YOU WITH LAST NIGHT?"
BUT THE GUY SAYS TO ME "THAT WAS NO LADY, THAT WAS YOUR MOTHER..."
THE BIRTH OF TRAGEDY

YEASTHEAD By JASON TALERMAN

ETC.

"Lunch is for wimps."

Gordon Gecko

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS

1 Community interruption
7 Help
13 Brightly colored handkerchief
15 Tot's toy
16 Kind of well
17 Lass and lassie
18 Metric measure
19 Machine gunned
21 Lacelike fabric
22 Anger
24 Start
25 Neighbor of Brighton
26 — a letter
28 Intolerant
30 Mesa or Brava beginning
31 Capital of Tasmania
33 — Laughing 1967 movie
34 Veneration
35 Soaring
39 More intrusive
41 Ancient weight units
42 Dabble in or babble
45 — of robins in
46 Counterweight
47 Alphabet sequence
51 Dine
52 Chemical suffix
53 Farmers, e.g.
55 The Lion
57 Half gallon container
59 All
61 Arrange beforehand
62 Up-front fee for services
63 Palestinian of old
64 Scraped or grated

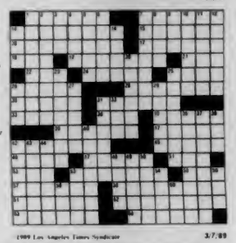
DOWN

1 A Ford
2 Bank bonus
3 Hoosier humorist George
4 Soviet press agency
5 Individual groups
6 Entrap or entangle
7 Area in the news
8 Mediterranean port
9 Hwys.
10 — my fault
11 Garment part
12 Assayed
13 Cote cry
14 Art school subj.
20 Tale-teller
23 International understanding
25 Direct emergency wire
26 Cooler
27 Pictorial playing card
29 Pleasure grass
31 Pageboy or pompadour
32 Be beholden to
36 The Desert Song song
37 Fixed firmly
38 Asian holiday
40 Conceal
42 Treeless tract
43 Some bigwigs
44 Rugged ridges
48 Pitcher
49 Craze
50 Little Margaret
53 Hidden hollow
54 Leon ladies' Abbr.
56 Wordsworth world
58 Mao — Tung
60 Hound sound

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

P	A	C	I	F	I	E	R	■	B	L	O	W
E	C	H	O	■	S	U	C	A	■	A	I	N
G	R	I	N	D	■	S	T	O	N	E	■	A
■	E	P	E	E	■	■	T	R	A	C	T	O
■	■	■	C	I	V	■	S	U	I	T	■	■
M	I	S	D	E	A	L	■	N	E	S	T	E
G	I	L	T	■	S	T	E	P	■	S	T	A
I	L	L	■	F	I	N	E	■	S	U	M	A
L	A	N	D	■	N	O	S	T	■	N	E	T
R	E	D	E	E	M	■	N	O	W	H	E	R
E	■	■	H	E	A	P	■	S	S	I	■	■
R	I	V	E	R	S	■	■	R	A	I	M	S
A	M	E	N	■	S	T	O	N	E	B	R	O
R	I	N	G	■	T	I	N	A	S	■	I	R
E	T	T	E	■	Y	E	N	S	■	■	N	T

3/7/89



© 1989 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 3/7/89

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take advantage of today's slower pace to catch up on paperwork. Tackle details work you tend to postpone. Romance is more exciting and passionate than in the recent past. Be discreet.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Recycling and old idea or learning high-tech skills will boost your earnings. A relationship promises more than it can deliver. Look at a partnership realistically.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Certain sacrifices will be required today. Reach an agreement with a client or creditor before he changes his mind. Keep your eyes open if entering a relationship with a powerful individual.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Concentrate on a long-term plan that will benefit you emotionally and financially. You need to know exactly what your resources will be after retirement. A family member provides stimulating company tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You are more sensitive than usual to other people's feelings. Your private financial reserves will help you turn a clever idea into a gold mine. Relationship differences need to be resolved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be on edge today. Avoid emotional scenes or confrontations. Take advantage of a lull at work to get caught up on routine chores. Postpone signing legal papers until you can consult experts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Put saving ahead of spending until you catch up a bit. Career matters deserve top priority. Your nesting instinct affects the decisions you make. You could find yourself in the spotlight again.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You need more time to reach your objectives. Be patient especially with yourself. Family draws closer together. Seize every opportunity to make a relationship a success. Compromise on little things.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You feel more in harmony with yourself after communicating your hopes and dreams. If single, ask friends to help you meet someone compatible. Travel is iffy now. Stick close to home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can really let your hair down with a visitor. Get more sleep and you will have the extra energy you need to meet your responsibilities. Know your physical and financial limits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) This is the day to step forward and be counted. You face fewer limitations on what you can do. Send out resumes. If you have a grievance discuss it face-to-face.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Hard decisions must be made. Luck is on your side. Look forward to new cash rewards. Settle minor problems and a relationship will be made whole again. Exercise your options without undue delay.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Flat bread sandwich	Stir fry beef and vegetables
Ravioli with tomato sauce	Roast pork/gravy applesauce
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Fishburger on roll	Stir fry vegetables, tofu
Ravioli with tomato sauce	Cheese spinach squares

■ hoop notebook

continued from page 24

newspaper, goes with the position.

The identity of the Hawk is not revealed to the public until the end of each season, but a careful search identified this year's Hawk, the 16th in the school's history, as Jim Scarano.

Not as popular in Philadelphia right now is St. Joe's head coach Jim Boyle.

Fans seem to forget the great seasons Boyle has led the Hawks to, as indicated by shirts worn by some fans that said, "Bo has got to go."

After beating UMass in the first round of the tournament, Boyle's team lost to top-seeded West Virginia in the second round.

But his 144-93 career record and the respect he receives from all the coaches in the conference should be enough to offset the hecklers, who, by the way, could have been a lot more creative with their slogan.

The only coach whose team did worse in the conference this season is George Washington's John Keuster, whose squad was 1-17.

Keuster made good use of the hats the coaches received at the Tip-Off banquet, pulling his down to cover his face while he talked about his team and its chances.

W. Wilson Goode, the mayor of Philadelphia, was the main speaker at the banquet.

"Sports is important in every major single major city," Goode said. "It is the one thing that is common across all lines, and the one way to bring young people together. It is a real way to build unity."

In the interest of unity, Goode said he had a favorite team, but would not reveal who it was.

The ultimate irony of the weekend, perhaps, was that although the crowd for the UMass-St. Joe's game appeared to be less than 3,000 (an official number was not available), a scalper was at work in front of the Palestra 90 minutes before game time.

The biggest surprise of the tournament came last night when Rutgers beat second-seeded Temple and Penn State knocked off West Virginia to set up a Penn State at Rutgers final tomorrow night.

Red Sox blown out by Reds 12-4, home-towne team uses 6 pitchers

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) - Herm Winningham and Luis Quinones drove in three runs each Monday as the Cincinnati Reds rode a 19-hit attack to a 12-4 exibition victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Winningham hit a two-run homer, his second, in Cincinnati's four-run first inning that spoiled the Boston debut of John Dopson, a right hander acquired from Montreal.

Winningham also had an RBI single in a two-run sixth against Mike Smithson, the third of six Boston pitchers.

Quinones had an RBI single in the first and a two-run single against Mike Rochford in the seventh. He also stole second and enabled Joel Youngblood to steal home for the fourth run in the first.

Youngblood led the attack with three hits as the Reds evened their record to 2-2.

Winningham, Van Snider, Todd Benzinger, Reggie Jefferson, Quinones, and Terry McGriff had two hits apiece.

Cincinnati starter Rick Mahler pitched the first three innings for the Reds, allowing two runs with two out in the third on RBI singles by Ellis Burks and Nick Esasky.

Mike Roesler allowed a run in the fifth on Jim Rice's run-scoring single. Mike Moscrey, Mike Griffin, and Rob Dibble blanked Boston through the eighth until Kent Tekulve gave up a run in the ninth on Chris Cannizzaro's sacrifice fly.

Mike Rochford was tagged for another three runs in the Cincinnati seventh and John Leister, another longshot candidate, surrendered two more in the eighth.

Rob Murphy, acquired from the Reds last December, didn't allow a hit in the ninth but gave up an unearned run on a walk and two-out error by Carlos Quintana in shallow center.

The loss dropped Boston's record to 1-4, including 0-2 at home.

Bird's return still up in the air

C's star is rusty and tired

BROOKLINE (AP) - Larry Bird began a critical week of practices by scrimmaging for 45 minutes with his Boston Celtics teammates Monday. He seemed rusty, tired and at least several weeks away from playing in an NBA game.

Bird, sidelined since he had bone spurs removed from both heels Nov. 19, took part in all the drills during the one-hour, 45-minute workout, then shot baskets for about 15 minutes after practice.

Asked if he would talk with reporters afterward, Bird said through team spokesman Jeff Twiss, "maybe at the end of the week, but not today."

With their next two games at home against Chicago Wednesday night and Denver Sunday afternoon, the Celtics plan to take advantage of the light schedule to practice on their days off.

"It's an opportunity to get Larry involved," Boston Coach Jimmy Rodgers said. "At least we've got some back-to-back practices to look at."

The star forward first practiced with his teammates Feb. 27 and complained afterward that his right heel was very painful. It was better the following day, but he didn't practice with the team then.

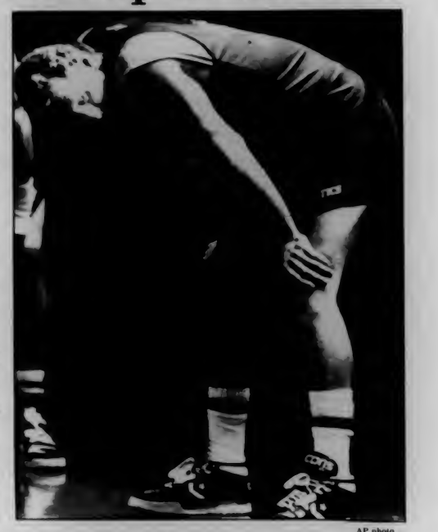
"I have no idea," Rodgers said Monday when asked to estimate the earliest Bird might return to action. "If he feels real good [Tuesday], then we'll see how he feels Wednesday."

The sooner Bird gets back into game condition, the better for the Celtics, especially with Washington trying to unseat them for the final Eastern Conference playoff berth.

Boston is 28-30, two games ahead of Washington, 25-31. Rodgers said the Celtics prefer to make the playoffs, where they have a very slim chance to winning the NBA title, rather than missing them and getting a high draft choice.

"Once you get there [to the playoffs] anything can happen," he said.

The improvement of Bird's physical condition - his stamina and his feet - and his response to practices on consecutive days are more important now than shaking off the rust of nearly four months without playing a game, Rodgers said.



AP photo

Having to take this breather at Celtic's practice yesterday — Larry Bird finds out he's not in as good of shape as he'd like to be.

WHO'S THE BEST IN LSAT PREP?

We usually don't mention Kaplan, for we know, as he should, that The Princeton Review is the best LSAT prep course in the country. Our documented average increase for our November course in Hadley was 13 points! Kaplan will never tell you his documented average.

Let the facts speak for themselves.

AREA	KAPLAN	T.P.R.
TESTING	Only 2. They are not actual LSAS exams or questions. Report for Test 1 only.	4 actual, released LSATs, each accompanied by a personalized report.
CLASS SIZE	40 students is not uncommon. He will tell you his average but BEWARE!	Classes are closed after 13 students. We try to keep it under 10.
CLASS TIME	36 hours.	42 hours.

There you have it. The Princeton Review is the best, and when your future depends on it, do you deserve anything less?

Classes begin April 2 in Hadley and at Smith College.

584-6849

THE PRINCETON REVIEW
The LSAT Experts

Resume Service
• Quality Copies
• Fine Stationery
• Matching Envelopes
kinko's
the copy center
253-2543

BRAND NAME SHIRTS
Factory Outlet Prices
• Shirts
Rt. 5 & 10
Hatfield
Next to Danco
247-9681

AmHERST CINEMA
MISSISSIPPI BURNING
Monday-Thursday 7:30 only
Fri., Sat. & Sun. 2 shows 7:00&9:15
AMITY ST. 253-5426

Learn Bartending during Spring Break... call today
New England Bartenders School (617) 247-1600
811 Boylston Street Boston, MA 02116
Lic. by Comm. of Mass. Department of Education
Member - Mass. Assoc. of Private Career Schools

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-RENT

T.O.E.F.L.
Test of Knowledge as a Foreign Language preparation CLASS
UMass/Amherst
April 3 to May 10
Monday and Wednesday
6:30 pm to 9:30 pm
Experienced Instructors
$150
to register call: 546-4576

Collegian photo by David Higashiguchi

Senior co-captain Beth Wilbor (left) was presented a basket of flowers by senior teammate Christel Zullo after scoring her 1,000th career point in last night's win.

■ women's track

continued from page 24

ed Ambrose. "In this 400, you have the first corner, a straightaway, then the breakline. Well, all four of us [in the heat] got to the breakline at the same time, but I squeaked ahead a little."

A simple track race then suddenly turned into something out of ESPN's All-Star Roller Derby Night as two West Virginia girls played the roles of Big Bertha and her buddy, and unfortunately, Ambrose was caught in the middle for a bumpy ride. She said, "I guessed I couldn't elbow as well, so I went from second to fourth but I ended up third."

When she found out she finished fifth, Ambrose said she was disappointed but now that she looks back on it, she isn't that sad about it.

Her time of 57.1 seconds was certainly subpar for Lee Ann, who has been timed consistently in the 56-second range. "It was a slow track and I think everybody felt it," said Ambrose.

Hill, on the other hand, had perhaps the worst, if not most embarassing race of her life. "I was extremely nervous, but this time it made my tired. I did well for two laps, but then I slowed down, and all I saw was all these people passing me," said Hill.

Ambrose, Hill, and many of the members of the indoor track team will have a chance of improving their times and distances as they prepare for the outdoor track season, which is also coached by LaFreniere.

■ women's hoop

continued from page 24

It was McCusker's offense that got UMass going early. Down 5-4, her short jumper sent UMass on a 10-point spree that made it a 14-5 game. The Minutewomen forced turnovers (20 overall) and ran the floor well, with six of the points in that stretch coming in transition.

"Last game we executed well, and this game we didn't," Telford said. "We were sloppy tonight, and to UMass' credit, they turned it into points."

UMass led by as much as 11 points before the Bonnies went on an eight-point burst to help close to 32-28 at the break.

The game stayed close, with UMass never enjoying more than an eight-point edge for most of the second half. Up just 48-46 with nine minutes left, UMass constructed a timely 10-2 run, including Wilbor's 1,000th point, to expand it to 58-48 with 5:34 to play.

Emotion, determination, and . . . confidence, took over from there, as the Minutewomen successfully put the Bonnies away. Wilbor hit six straight free throws in the final minute to clinch the date with St. Joe's tomorrow night at 7:30.

"We played hard and together and gave a good effort for 40 minutes," Hewelt said. "Everyone contributed something."

Trish Riley, forced to take over the point guard duties after Christel Zullo went down with an ankle injury three weeks ago, had probably her best game to date, with 17 points (8-for-12 shooting) and five assists. Helen Freeman and Dianne Burke lended solid efforts on defense, and Sue Serafini, Jenny Moran and Lisa Hair added just enough relief from the bench.

"I can't say enough about these kids," Hewelt said. "They really came to play tonight, and they didn't want this to be their last game of the season."

They had the confidence to believe it wouldn't be, and then they had the effort to guarantee it.

Minutewomen, 76-62

Massachusetts (76): Beth Wilbor 7-14 10-10 24, Keyburn McCusker 4-10 0-0 16, Helen Freeman 4-13 0-0 8, Trish Riley 8-12 0-0 17, Dianne Burke 0-6 0-0 0, Sue Serafini 2-10 2-2 9, Jenny Moran 0-0 0-0 0, Lisa Hair 0-4 2-2 2. Totals: 30-69 14-20 76

St. Bonaventure (62): Sue Shay 5-12 6-7 16, Leslie McGhee 7-14 2-2 17, Lisa Marquis 1-3 1-2 3, Kristen DeLuca 1-5 3-4 5, Roni Hergenroeder 4-14 1-2 12, Natalie White 1-1 2-3 4, Vachelle Manly 2-5 1-3 5. Totals: 21-54 16-23 62

■ men's track

continued from page 24

qualifying round. "He ran pretty well when you consider he's a freshman."

Another rookie was Kevin Walters. He ran a respectable 22.8 in the 200-meters. "That was solid for a young guy," said O'Brien, "but not up to par with the rest of the field."

The most disappointing performance occured with the distance medley team. Going into the meet, O'Brien felt that this group had the best shot to land some points for UMass. Derek Moore ran the first leg and was in seventh place when he handed the baton off to Brown. After getting the baton, Brown dropped it after some contact with two other runners. Any chance for the medley team to earn some points were finished as soon as the baton hit the ground.

"Steven was in the middle of two guys and got sandwiched," said O'Brien. "It's like fumbling on the five-yard line. It's just a fluke."

Intramural Notices

Entry dates for Spring sports teams have been announced by the Intramurals Office. Monday March 13th is the entry date for Softball, Soccer, and a Volleyball special. The meeting dates for Softball and Soccer are (3/13, 3/14, 3/27, and 3/28), Volleyball special: (3/29).

Anyone interested in participating should contact the Intramural Office this week. The phone numbers are 5-2693 and 5-0022.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE - 308 CC MON.-THURS. 9:00 A.M. - 5:00 P.M. • DEADLINE 3 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION • PAY IN ADVANCE • 20 WORD DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENTS ASSOC. General meeting tonight at 7:30 in Campus Center 803. New members are welcome

JOIN US AT THE UPC MEETING today, 6:30. Earthfoods. We're here for you!

MARHABAN! Visit us at the Arabic Club coffee table 9-noon, mon-fri, 7th floor Herter

BOARD OF GOVERNORS Elections taking place March 14. Nomination Papers Available 817 Campus Center - Due March 9. Join us in working toward a better union

PEOPLE TO PLAY strategy games/axis and allies. Call Kevin 584-7376

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUDIO

MARANTZ SPEAKERS 90 watts 6 mos old 150 or BO Cal for more info 546-6524 Leave message

AUTO FOR SALE

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CHILD CARE

FAMILY DAY OPENINGS: Warm, happy environment 665-4501

CHILD CARE NEEDED

2 DAYS A WEEK for boys ages 2 and 4. Early child ed. major ideal. Must have own transportation and flexible hours. $4.50 per hour. Call 548-9321 or 548-9845. Available immediately!

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances. 258-8528

FOR RENT

IN SUNDERLAND, free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Secure and apartment for August and receive August rent free. For more details call 665-3858. Sign up early

FOR SALE

IBM PC COMPATIBLE 256K, 11 drive, monitor $575 with 10meg hard drive, $699 536-5006

HERSE FOR SALE! I'm dead serious about selling it $2500 or BO. Chris 734-4544/546-4216

EXERCISE BIKE like brand new! Only $35 call 549-5771 Leave message

20" SYLVANIA COLOR TV, like new $100 549-4234 Hugh

6' GRAPHICS $20 Call 549-4234 Hugh Lots of fun

ANSWER MACHINE EX CONDITION $40 and Sony 5" TV Call 546-5354

SI SWIMSUIT VIDEO $15 and Sony Walkman $25. 546-5354

PAY FOR COLLEGE EXPENSES Amherst two year old income property, positive cash flow (gross rental income 18,000/yr), live rent free and make spending money too! Call Dale 253-9949

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles. Call 256-8369

FOUND

TO THE PERSON WHO LEFT THEIR tape recorder at the Wednesday Night speech given in the Campus Center Auditorium. I found it and have it in my room at 311 Dwight. Identify it and it's yours. John Noe Room 311 Dwight

ENTERTAINMENT

HIRE "ONE EYED JAKE" A great Rock and Roll band call steve 546-5106. Tom 253-7517

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

LITTLE BETSEY - Happy 20th, honey! We'll have to party it up in your honor, what a bummer, huh?? I love ya! Me P.S. No, this isn't from Kevy!

HELP WANTED

FULL OR PART TIME National Mail promotions company seeks reliable, responsible people to manage and operate Easter Bunny Photo at Hampshire Mall. Excellent hourly rate. 1-800-366-6661

EARN BIG BUCKS for Spring Break and the summer. Train now and line up your summer job on the cape. Work w/Clean Water Action to stop Ocean Dumping and protect drinking water. Earn up to $10/hr. Call 549-7450

SUMMER DAY CAMP POSITIONS AVAILABLE. Grossman Camp - Jewish Community Center of Greater Boston, Westwood. General counselors, music, nature, waterfront, special needs. Ed Pierman, Director at the Camp Day, March 7, Student Union Ballroom or at 617-965-7410

FOREIGN AREA SPECIALISTS!! Several multi-national corporations currently seeking foreign graduate students/researchers as associate advisors/researchers on scientific, economic, and political developments in their home countries. To be considered, send cover letter/resume to: International Investment Analysis Group, 40 Wall Street Suite 2124, New York, NY 10005

BOARD OF GOVERNORS is hiring the following coordinator positions: 2 assistant office, 1 public relations, 1 finance, 1 special projects. Applications available 817 Campus Center

THIS PAST SUMMER 350 College Students took a Management position gaining exceptional business skills. Average summer earnings $10,740. 1-800-922-5579

MIKE'S WESTVIEW HIRING - $6/hour. Cleaning person to work mornings, 2-3 hours per day, 4 days per week. Call Tom-253-9202

HEY NINETEEN!

JOSH KRANCER- Happy birthday bro! Just think, this is the last B Day we'll spend in school together. Have fun & don't ask too much cake (I know you won't drink too much). -Jen

INSTRUCTION

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE Intermediate course Tuesday/Thursday 7-9pm, 3/28-5/4. $115. 546-4578

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center. Get hands on experience in the legal field--work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided. (545-1995)

LOST

LOST IMITATION GUCCI WATCH at Changes 3/2. Great sentimental value. If found call 6-8675. Reward

BROWN LEATHER FUR-LINED GLOVE between people's market and lower ramp 3/2/89. Please return 586-5218. Kris

PINK MONOPOLY WATCH lost Feb 23 in Bartlett Aud. If found please call Maura at 256-0263

I LOST MY BLUE PADAGONIA AT 2E Brandywine Waiurday Night. It has my keys in the pocket and I need them. Any info, please call 549-9925. No questions asked. Ask for Mo.

LOST EYEGLASSES in black case on 2-28-89. If found please call Renita 546-4219

NEED CASH!

GET SOME SPRING BREAK money before it's too late!! Sell me your baseball cards. Call Todd anytime 549-6361

PERSONALS

TOM FROM SAMMY

I've thought you're so hot since the beginning of the semester. Saw you just the other day in your Jeep and you stole my heart away. Would love to get to know you better. Please respond here.

THE DOCTOR... is back! Long hair and all. You're crazy! Can I help? Call Asi for an appointment at 6-8103

"SHORT STUFF" (Tah) Happy birthday!!! I love you!!! Cary

NATALIA & CHRISTINE. Its our birthday! Break open the champagne! Silvia

"TATA" Happy birthday!!! Two weeks from now we'll be in Georgia!!! Luv Ya Titi!

TO THE BOY NEXT DOOR... Happy 22nd to you! Love the Petosky Girls

ANNIE IN 404 WASH. Did you think I would really put something in the personals that would embarrass you? Keep looking

SCOTT J. WEISS- Happy (late) 21st birthday! Now you can shave off your mustache, you're old enough! Wasn't I sweet no McDonald's this year! Love you. Mere

STEVE & MARK. Congratulations to Zeta ZPSi's newest pledges! Love, Julie

COME SEE
'THE BLUES BROTHERS'
Thursday, March 9
5,7,9, and 11pm
Bartlett 65 $2
by IEEE

TO THE CUTE BLONDE COMING into Morrill hours 3:30 with UMass sweatshirt. I liked your smile and would like to meet you. Please reply here

SHARON, I got you so good. Happy late bday. 2-long Thorow

HEY, YOU LITTLE —. Don't get RD drunk any more. Tone tos

PASSIONATE PERE- Welcome to the family. Love and Harshey's kisses. The monsters

PJ!!! Congrats on getting accepted to Emerson! Love, Your "Colleagues"

JP HAPPY 22nd. See I remembered, and on time too!! Have a great day! Love ya, Jeanne

TO THE GIRL OFFERING more from Sat night. I ain't interested!

NO MORE BOZOS!
Write in TOM RALPH For SGA Pres

KAREN - I know he's an unbelievabult piece of meat, and I've had him for 3 yrs strong. Tear your heart out!

!!!FOR LADIES ONLY!!!
Attractive male will perform for female functions 546-9922.

KAREN SKIPPER- Never had it, never will, give it up. -JT

LOOKING TO TAKE OVER A LEASE for next year six people please call 548-4051

MY CHAMPION, seems our party's an illusion! I'll always remember you. Your prima ballerina. OK?

CINDY SNELL Do you have a boyfriend answer here Racer X

TO THE UMASS GUY WHO WAS in Polisci at Amherst I wish you hadn't dropped, I was really looking forward to getting to know you. Please respond if you would still like to. The Smithe

SENIORS! The Senior Campaign is coming. Get ready for our up and coming kick-off bash for "footprints of '89"!

"THUMPER" Hey babe. We're stylin'! Last weekend was great, but this weekend was the best! Never 4-get. Sat. nite jacuzzi, the blacnubs, and "hey'a doing it again!" Love, Your dumb, ditzy, drunk blonde

ATTENTION STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS! EXCELLENT FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES HELPING WITH AN ON-CAMPUS MARKETING PROJECT. CALL IMMEDIATELY, STUART 546-7612. LEAVE A MESSAGE.

ROOM WANTED

FEMALE SEEKS ROOM IN apt. or house please call Denise 256-0998 4pm or later

RIDE WANTED

WE NEED A RIDE TO FLORIDA for Spring Break. Please call Annmarie 549-6892 or Andrea 256-6456

ROOMMATES WANTED

LINGUISTICS, worked Sunday 2/26. Buy you a beer? Call 549-1660 George

NEW HOME no smoking on bus line $325 inc. 253-7948

LOOKING FOR A RESPONSIBLE NON-SMOKER to share 2bdrm apt. $150 negotiable. Call Kaz 549-6846

SERVICES

LONG LUSHIOUS NAILS! Can be yours affordable price. Experienced. Call Robin 549-6941, 585-5190

STRESSED OUT? Massage therapy. Student offering professional full body massages. Give a gift to yourself or a friend! Call 256-6398

DIRT CHEAP RESUMES
Very experienced. Laserwriter overnight. Counseling/delivery. Lisa 665-8969

PROFESSIONAL EDITING- Term papers, Theses, Dissertations. 1-467-3753 after 7pm

VIDEO RESUME TO GET THAT JOB! Immediate, professional, personalized service. Appointments. Video Image Productions (413) 863-8035

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE ELECTIONS

 SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE ***
 debates!! Come see what the   candidates have to say! Thurs. March  9th C.C. 101 at 7:00pm. Also broadcast   on 91.1 WMUA!! Sponsored by SGA ***
 Governmental Affairs ***

TRAVEL

3 AIRFARE TIX TO DENVER, CO - $270 rdtrp. 3/20 - 3/27. Call Heather 549-9925

ROUND TRIP TICKET TO PHEONIX From March 17-26 a $250 dollar value for $250 or best offer. Call Julie 6-8793 anytime after 8

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $229 COMPLETE! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW, OR CALL DEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TYPING

CASES, PAPERS, THESIS, on-campus, affordable, grammar reviewed, dependable. 584-7924. Nancy

"WORDSMITH" Professional Typing. Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck. 253-4564

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional, accurate. 665-4501

WANTED

LOOKING TO TRADE OUR LEASE. Group of four, responsible, women (starting 6/1/89) Please call Linda or Lisa at 546-9162

TUTOR WANTED FOR OBASE III. Call Steve at 549-0133

WANTED TO RENT

MOVING OUT OF YOUR BIG HOUSE NEXT SEMESTER? A lot of chicks wanna move in! Call 6-8233 ask 4 Danielle Thanx for hookin' us up!!

ANSWER IN TOMORROW'S Collegi. AD...

SPORTS

Minutewomen gain tournament win, 76-62

Collegian photo by David Higashiguchi

Freshman Lisa Hair drives to the hoop during last night's A-10 tourney win over St. Bonaventure at the Cage.

St. Joe's next opponent

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team found out last night that a little confidence can go a long way.

Forget the fact that it had lost its last six games. Forget the fact that its opponent last night, St. Bonaventure University, had stolen a win here just three weeks ago.

The Minutewomen knew the past was history, and life began all over again with last night's Atlantic 10 tournament first-round game. Knowing that everyone would have to give that little extra, the whole team responded to help capture a 76-62 win over the Bonnies at the Curry Hicks Cage.

With the win, UMass is 11-17 overall and will travel to Philadelphia tomorrow to face top seed St. Joseph's University in the quarterfinals. The Bonnies finish at 10-18.

"These kids are great," said UMass coach Kathy Hewelt. "We're not deep, but we have a tremendous amount of heart. They can feel it coming together, and they're very positive."

It was that positive attitude last night that overcame any negative forces and propelled the Minutewomen to victory.

Senior forward Beth Wilbor capped her final Cage game with a game- and career-high 24 points. Never mind that she needed 16 to reach 1,000 points for her career. Wilbor knew that her points would serve a more useful purpose.

"The win was more important," Wilbor said. "I was pumped. We owed them one."

Sophomore forward Keyburn McCusker knew about her opponent, 5-foot-11 Sue Shay, and how the freshman sensation had scored 61 points in two games against the Minutewomen this year. Rather than being intimidated, McCusker asked to guard Shay. She was granted her wish, and held Shay to a mere 16 points.

"It was a physical challenge for me. I played her in the second half of the last game, so I knew what she could do," McCusker said.

"Keyburn had a super defensive effort on Sue Shay," Hewelt said. "She wanted to play her, so we let her. We had to pay attention to her and keep her in check."

Controlling Shay was the big factor. She scored 31 in the teams' first meeting in January in Olean, NY, and 30 in the Bonnies' 75-69 win here on Feb. 18, but never really got her game going last night.

"We knew they'd key on Shay, but we didn't get her the ball," said Bonnie coach Mary Jane Telford. "My concern coming in was that they had a more experienced front line."

The Bonnies had other weapons, as Leslie McGhee had a team-high 17 and long-ranger Roni Hergenroeder added 12, but were forced outside for most of their offense.

Not only did McCusker do it with her defense, but she also was white-hot from the floor, connecting on 8-of-10 shots for 16 points. All this while playing through crunch time with four fouls.

continued on page 23

Wilbor reaches 1,000-point plateau

There couldn't have possibly been a better way for Beth Wilbor to play her final game at the Curry Hicks Cage.

The senior forward and co-captain from Flemington, NJ entered last night's Atlantic 10 tournament first round game needing 16 points to surpass the 1,000-point plateau for her career.

Wilbor achieved that with a game-high 24 points to help her team to a 76-62 win over St. Bonaventure. However, she said, the milestone was just an afterthought.

"We wanted to win the game. That was the important thing," Wilbor said. "I knew that if I didn't get it tonight that I'd get it against St. Joe's [tomorrow in the quarterfinals]."

Wilbor was presented with a basket of flowers during the next timeout by co-captain Christel Zullo, and received the game ball after the final buzzer.

"I'm very happy that Beth got her 1,000th point," UMass coach Kathy Hewelt said. "She's a helluva young lady."

Her 1,008 points places her fourth among all-time UM scorers.

—JIM CLARK

Atlantic 10 men's tournament notebook

McCoy shines bright too little, too late?

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — The way Jim McCoy was crying Saturday afternoon, you would have never guessed he had just scored 35 points.

McCoy, a forward on the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team, scored his career high, only to see his team lose to St. Joseph's University in the first round of the Atlantic 10 Tournament at the Palestra.

Speaking at the press conference after the game, UMass head coach John Calipari said, "Jimmy McCoy is the most unhappy person in the building right now. He scored 35 points and I can't even get him up here."

McCoy did eventually come to the press conference, carrying a towel to wipe his face.

His effort was too little to carry the team, as evidenced by the fact that the Minutemen opened the tournament with a loss for the fifth straight year.

It was also too late. McCoy is considered a favorite to win the A-10 Freshman of the Year award, and showed his stuff to the crowd, coaches, and media covering the tournament.

But unfortunately for McCoy, voting for the award was done before the tournament began.

While signing autographs for a crowd of kids after the St. Joe's game, McCoy was humble when asked about his chances of winning the award.

"I was talking to some coaches," McCoy said, "and it seemed like a lock. But they were mostly talking about All-Conference teams. I won't believe it until I hear it."

One person who believes in McCoy is teammate John Tate, who said, "Next year or the year after, Jim will be the best player in this league, bar none."

The best coach in the league, according to members of the media who cover the A-10 regularly, is Rutgers' Bob Wenzel.

Wenzel, who led the Scarlet Knights to a 13-5 league record in his first season, Friday night was named Coach of the Year.

If there were an award for Mascot of the Year, and the media got to vote, my vote would go to the St. Joe's Hawk.

The Hawk, a cult hero in Philadelphia, is a person in a costume who is best known for keeping its wings flapping non-stop from tip-off to buzzer of every game.

The Hawk is famous enough to warrant his own page in the St. Joe's media guide and has a song about him.

Students try out for the chance to wear the $2,200 Hawk costume and the scholarship which, according to a sports writer for the St. Joe's student

continued on page ??

Collegian photo by Jason Taterman

UMass freshman Jim McCoy.

Track teams end seasons

Minutemen shut-out at Princeton

By JOHN STEVEN MARPLE
Collegian Correspondent

A season that began several months ago finally came to an end last weekend with the Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America meet in Princeton, N.J. Unfortunately for the participants from the University of Massachusetts men's track team the season ended on a sour note, as not a single point was registered by a UMass athlete.

Coach Ken O'Brien stated the obvious when he said that,"it wasn't a good meet for us. I was disappointed."

"This was a big jump from the New England's [last weekend's meet in which the Minutemen finished in 8th place with 30 points]."

O'Brien felt the best UMass performance was turned in by Steven Brown in the 500-meters. His best time was 1:05.2 in the

continued on page 23

Ambrose finishes 5th at Eastern's

By RICK SETO
Collegian Staff

She said, "It's a honor just to be there." Oh no, not another line out of those old Grammy-winning speeches. But this time, it was true. Freshman Lee Ann Ambrose finished a respectable fifth place in the 400 meters at the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Championships, while her teammate, Precious Hill, did not fare nearly as well.

UMass earned only two points from Ambrose's fifth-place finish and that certainly was not good enough to place in the top 10. Penn State won the ECAC's with 72.5 points, followed by St. John's (61) and George Mason (52).

Because there were only eight athletes who showed up for the quartermile, there were no trials and semifinals, just the finals. "It was a interesting race," crack-

continued on page 23

Men's soccer takes first place at indoor tourney in Hartford

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team showed a sign of potential of things to come by capturing the championship of the University of Hartford, Newington Children's Hospital Indoor Soccer Tournament Saturday in Glastonbury, Conn.

The Minutemen survived a field of eight teams in two divisions, winning five out of six games in the one-day event.

Along with a trophy, UMass also received a $600 equipment grant from Hummel, an equipment manufacturer and tournament sponsor.

After losing their opening game to Providence College, 2-1, the Minutemen rebounded with wins over Rhode Island and Adelphi and a tie with Howard University to finish second in their division.

In the semifinals, the Minutemen were rematched with Providence, which was invited after host Hartford dropped out because of a campus-wide measles outbreak. UMass got its revenge with a 4-2 win and then defeated Vermont, 2-1 in the finals.

Sophomore Peter McEvoy was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, while freshman Ray Cunha and junior Tom Skiba each had three goals in the tourney. Freshmen Mike Carvalho and Jon Gruber split time in the net.

"It was nice to see our players blend together," said UMass coach Jeff Gettler, noting the players who participated should build a solid foundation for the team next fall.

— JIM CLARK

Today, mostly sunny and clear high 25-30. Tonight, partly cloudy low in the teens.

A 'tired' Jay Festa leaves UMass after resigning CAG presidency. Page 3.

In our first ever Focus page, meet a UMass alumnus who is now a prison guard. Page 5.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1989

COLLEGIAN

Students rally against cuts at Statehouse

By BETH GATELY
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — About 600 concerned college students from state institutions around Massachusetts rallied in Boston yesterday against budget cuts proposed by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Students from the University of Massachusetts, Southeastern Massachusetts University, Framingham State College and Salem State College gathered at noon on the grand staircase in the Statehouse to make known their wishes for more money to public higher education, chanting, "We won't take no. We won't take no."

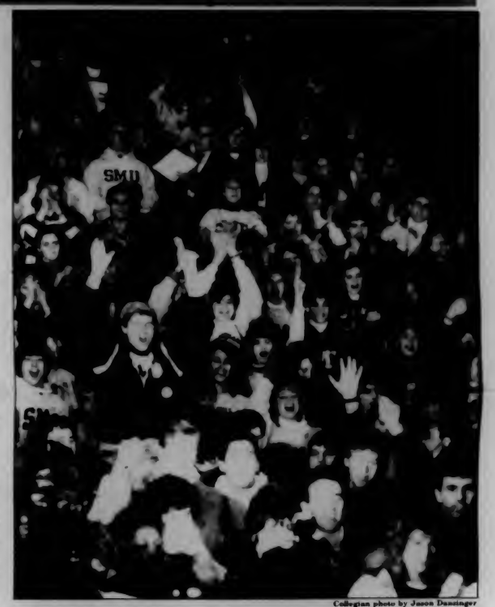
The students also lobbied state representatives for the Rosenburg amendments that would restore $15.7 million to the public higher education budget, which had been cut in the past 18 months, and provide $5 million to libraries in state universities and colleges.

The Rosenburg amendment would provide for an increase in taxes, a two percent cut in the salary of administrators and non-faculty professionals, a two percent savings in energy, water and utilities, a one percent printing and paperwork reduction and from the money saved by implementing mandatory recycling.

Close to 100 UMass students and faculty members spent the day talking to state representatives or their aides. They asked the representatives how they felt about the Rosenburg amendment and if they were undecided what it was about the amendment they didn't like.

UMass student trustee Stephanie Orefice said, "The lobby went really well. We made

continued on page 10



Collegian photo by Jason Dunsinger

Hundreds of students rallied on the grand staircase of the Statehouse in Boston yesterday against state-plannned budget cuts in higher education.

SMU students confused

BOSTON — About half of the estimated 400 students from Southeastern Massachusetts University who arrived at the Statehouse clad in SMU attire and even face paint seemed confused as to the purpose of the rally.

The confused SMU students stormed the Statehouse steps chanting, "SMU not the Zoo," protesting the proposal to consolidate the five state universities in Massachusetts.

Stephanie Orefice, University of Massachusetts student trustee said, "SMU is afraid of being taken over by UMass. They came out loud and in mass to prove their point."

The other half of the students appeared to have grasped the true intention of the rally and chanted "Just say no (to budget cuts)," while holding a large sign proclaiming, "Make love not budget cuts."

Before the rally on the grand staircase, the SMU students yelled "S-M-U, S-M-U." in unison, as would a cheering squad at a football game.

During Rep. Stanley Rosenburg's speech, D- Amherst, the SMU students joined the students from UMass, Framingham State College and Salem State College in their cry for more money for public higher education.

University of Massachusetts SGA co-president Shari Silkoff said, "SMU's turnout was great. However, it's sad that they had to bash UMass." She said, "We (UMass and SMU) were there for the same purpose."

—BETH GATELY

Belchertown state school closing

By NANCY KLINGENER
Collegian Staff

The Dukakis administration plans to close Belchertown State School within three years, the state's Commissioner of Mental Retardation announced yesterday.

The move is "a coming of age" in services for the mentally retarded, said Mary McCarthy, commissioner of the Department of Mental Retardation.

Population in state institutions has been cut in half since 1978, when the state began moving residents out of institutions and into community-based homes, to comply with a federal court order.

In 1972, some parents of Belchertown residents filed a class-action lawsuit because of the poor conditions at the school. The suit led to the court order.

Dr. Benjamin Ricci, who filed the suit, called yesterday's announcement "something we've been looking forward to for many, many years."

"This is an historic occasion," he said at a press conference in Amherst. "At last, we've arrived."

McCarthy, Ricci and school superintendent Joan Pine announced the move at an intermediate care facility in Amherst, where eight former residents of the school

continued on page 16

SAFA meets Frank, Kerry in capital

By ALLEN BERNARD
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON — A half inch of snow nearly paralyzed the nation's capital yesterday, but Students Advocating Financial Aid were still able to express their concerns over a new controversial aid bill to Sen. John Kerry and Rep. Barney Frank.

In the open meeting with the 46 University of Massachusetts SAFA students, Frank, D-Mass., said that the issue of a mandatory national service bill, if approved, would be "a big mistake."

The eight controversial national service bills would require high school graduates seeking financial aid to either work two years of military or community service.

"On a limited and voluntary basis, it makes sense," Frank said, although he said the bill had too many drawbacks.

SAFA students are in the city for the second of a 3-day lobbying effort on behalf of financial aid recipients nationwide.

Frank said that the major obstacle to increasing financial aid this year is George Bush's proposed military budget appropriations.

"If the military budget stays at the level George Bush recommends, financial aid will be hurt badly," he said.

In a meeting with University of Rhode Island students, Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., the originator of Pell grants, said that the national service issue is the "big gimmick" of the year in Congress. He stressed the need for greater academic quality because of competition from other countries such as Japan and Korea.

"I'd like to see a greater emphasis on quality. I just believe that young people can absorb much more than they are asked to absorb," he said.

Earlier in the day, Kerry, D-Mass., met with the entire SAFA group for a question-and-answer session and group photo.

Kerry expressed his concern that financial aid programs are not well-funded, and said the Bush administration is turning a "blind eye" on the issues.

"I wish we could get a little more financial aid to these [students], but it's hard," he said.

Kerry also answered questions about the national service issue, saying he favors the idea, but cost is the program's biggest stumbling block.

Sen. Edward Kennedy's chief education advisor Terry Hartle told SAFA students of Kennedy's position on national service.

"Sen. Kennedy feels that we ought to encourage our young people to do more for our country," he said, adding that linking financial aid to the program is unacceptable.

"The senator believes that people, especially students, will participate if asked," Hartle said.

UMass senior Maria Demeo, a SAFA lobbyist, said the national service bill is a good idea. "It only seems reasonable that [students] would help our country in certain ways. I think it would bring our nation together," she said.

But financial aid should not be part of the program, she said.

"When you tie it to financial aid, you're aiming at a lower economic group," she said.

SAFA students plan to meet with legislators for a final day of lobbying today. They said they plan to push for continued support for financial aid issues.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
New England's largest college daily newspaper. Daily circulation: 21,000. Founded in 1870. Published every weekday during the semester calendar. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is an RSO of the University of Massachusetts. 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003. For more information call (413) 545-3500.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

EDITOR IN CHIEF	RICK SANTOS
MANAGING EDITOR	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL EDITOR	PAMELA McCARTHY
BUSINESS MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
PRODUCTION MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER

BOARD OF EDITORS

MANAGING	YANA DLUGY
EDITORIAL	PAMELA McCARTHY
NEWS	DAVID R. MARK
SPORTS	JIM CLARK RONN GARRY
ARTS	COSMO MACERO Jr GRAEME THOMSON
WOMEN'S ISSUES	SHARON WILKEY ERIN ABBEY
BLACK AFFAIRS	THOMAS MAMBANDE JOSEPH HILL Jr.
PHOTOGRAPHY	JASON TALERMAN

BUSINESS BOARD

MANAGER	ROB CIAPPENELLI
ADVERTISING	BARBRA HINDIN DEBRA BOTZENHART
FINANCE	DANIEL J. MUNROE
CIRCULATION	TODD FRUHBEIS
SUBSCRIPTIONS	MARY HUYGENS

GRAPHICS BOARD

MANAGERS	MARC INFIELD WENDY RAE NUTTER
AD MANAGER	BETTY-ANN MURPHY
SUPERVISORS	ROB LEVINE TERRY STARMER FLORENCIO TERRA CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ GEORGE FRANCY

SUPPORT STAFF

BUSINESS	BRIAN HARRINGTON MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI
GRAPHICS	ANDREA BELANGER

TODAY'S STAFF

NIGHT EDITOR	RONN GARRY
COPY EDITOR	GEORGE AUSTIN
LAYOUT TECHNICIAN	FLORENCIO TERRA
PHOTO TECHNICIAN	DONDI AHEARN
PRODUCTION SUPERVISOR	CHRISTINE ASHE CAMILLE PANSEWICZ
PRODUCTION	TERRY STARMER WENDY RAE NUTTER MICHAEL WESTER BRYAN LONG CATHERINE GILBERT RICK SANTOS

AP photo

PARTIAL ECLIPSE — This is a view of the partial eclipse — about 56 percent — of the sun yesterday morning in Seattle.

Managers/Manager Trainees

We'll be on campus March 10 to tell you about the best jobs in the business.

Fast foods are big business and Wendy's is the savviest in the industry. A position as a Manager or Manager Trainee at Wendy's is not only a good starting job in itself. It's a fine training program for bigger and better things. You don't think company presidents start out that way?

Exceptional management training, growth opportunities and good salaries make Wendy's somebody to talk to. We will be on campus to meet with you on

Date: Friday, March 10th
Time: 8:30 AM-5:00 PM
Place: Flint Lab
Contact: Steve Boyton, 545-0497

And take it from the best in the business. If you're graduating and would like to put your management skills to use we'd like to talk to you.

If you are unable to meet with us in person, please forward a resume or call:

John Everett
Wendy's International, Inc.
460 Totten Pond Road
Waltham, MA 02154
(617) 890-4448

Wendy's

Equal Opportunity Employer M/F/H/V

MARCH 19-25
POISON PREVENTION WEEK
1989

FAMILIES WITH YOUNG CHILDREN

Bring old prescription vials with leftover medication to the pharmacy and receive free a bottle of Ipecac and a poison counterdose chart. (Free only during Poison Prevention Week.)

If no old medication vials are brought in, then the charts and Ipecac are available for $1.00 each.

TOP of the CAMPUS
LOUNGE
Here's another TOC extra
Wing-Ding
Hot and spicy chicken wings FREE every Wed. night at 9:00
Weekly drink specials and never a line at the door!
Lounge Hours
Mon-Fri 11:30 am-12:30 am
Sat & Sun 5:00 pm-12:30 am
11th Floor Campus Center • (413) 549-6000 ext. 7634
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

PARAMOUNT
Performing Arts Center
1700 Main Street, Springfield, MA 01103
MICHELLE SHOCKED
Saturday, March 18
SIS and Digital Equipment Corporation Present
Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble
Saturday, March 11
8 pm
on behalf of VNA, Foundation of Pioneer Valley and its affiliates
Clancy Brothers with Robbie O'Connell with special guest The Dustmen
Sunday, March 12, 7 pm
TICKETS ON SALE FEB. 27
THE FIXX
Sunday, April 2
"An Outspoken Evening with
MORTON DOWNEY, JR.!
May 6
Tickets available at the Paramount Box Office (413) 734-5874
All Ticketron Outlets and Teletron 1-800-382-8080

LOCAL

President resigns from CAG

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

When Jay Festa's turbulent political career and academic life at the University of Massachusetts came to an end last week amid claims of financial improprieties and questionable student status, all the former president of the Commuter Area Government could say is "I'm tired."

Festa, who is also the former president of the Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Alliance, resigned his post Friday after it was determined he lacked enough credits to maintain his status as a full-time student, making him ineligible for the position.

Student Government Association treasurer Laura Filkins said she and Senate Speaker Robert Fadel sent Festa a letter on Friday informing him of his ineligibility and asking him to resign.

Filkins said Festa is also the target of a confidential investigation by the Dean of Students Office into claims that the former president misused CAG funds during his term. No one could be reached at the Dean of Students office yesterday to comment on the case.

But Festa, who has since withdrawn from the University vowing never to return, denied any misuse of funds and said it was the constant harassment, death threats, and obscene phone calls he received from opponents and not the problems with his schedule that prompted his resignation.

"Being under attack cuts your credibility," he said, citing the conservative faction on campus as being particularly threatening.

"I thought I could handle it all," he said. "I'm just the latest in a line of LBGA people who get involved and get splattered. It's a heartache."

In a word-search printed recently in The Minuteman, a conservative student newspaper, Festa said he found his name next to the words "dead," and "homo."

"That scared me. I saw the word find and my heart sank," he said. "I have no idea as to what these people are capable of."

Filkins said yesterday there were people who tried to push Festa out of office last semester but, she added, "This semester it was his own fault because he didn't carry enough credits."

Several senators contend that Festa, who was funding his college education through extra jobs, was "driven" out of office, a victim of constant abuse because of his sexual orientation and political beliefs.

"For his own emotional, mental, and physical health; he had to leave. It was tearing him apart," said former Sen. Robb Smith, currently serving as CAG co-president.

Smith said he is unaware of any misuse of funds, although he admitted disagreeing with Festa on several issues, including the purchase of video games for the CAG's Macintosh computer.

Festa claimed the purchase resulted from an error in the administration of previous CAG president Lynne Murphy, who he said "made a deal with a kid in New Jersey" to trade video games for computer software. The "kid" allegedly sent the games to Murphy, but she did not reciprocate, thereby completing the deal, he said.

The former president was also under fire for refusing to appoint several students to senate positions, including Alan Brynjolfsson, who stood with conservative Sen. Doug Dratch when he chastised Festa's actions during a senate meeting this year.

Festa defended his position and said he refused to appoint people who did not agree with his administration. "I needed people I could trust," he said. "I wasn't going to appoint anyone who would disrupt the senate."

Festa said he hopes to complete a degree in English at another institution by next January, but for now, is concentrating on "becoming human" again.

"I was fighting for more and that's probably the way I'm going to spend my life," he said. "It doesn't matter if it's the SGA or a residential apartment building. I can't just sit back and watch people get trampled upon."

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING AT DUMMY? — A mannequin in front of Steiger's at the Hampshire Mall seems to reflecting upon its own reflection.

Flower show is at Smith

Show opens daily 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

NORTHAMPTON — If the winter cold seems to be lasting forever, a tour of Smith College's annual Bulb Show may be just the thing to reassure you that spring really is just around the corner.

The show, which runs through Sunday, March 12, features over 2,500 flowering bulbs and spring flowers. Preparation for the annual event begins in October, according to Richard Munson, director of the Botanic Gardens at Smith.

"It has been a tradition that has been carried out over the years," he said. "It's one way the college furthers good town relations."

As well as the bulb show, enclosed in the Lyman Plant House is the "jungle room," which features exotic trees from South Africa, Zimbabwe, Australia, and Latin America. In another room, you can see a variety of citrus fruits.

"Due to the international seed exchange Smith is involved in, we are able to display a variety of plants from all over the world," Munson said. "The show is very uplifting."

"The preparation for this show takes a lot of work. Bringing up the bulbs, making sure the temperature is right, arranging the displays . . . all take time," said a Smith gardening assistant, who asked to remain anonymous. "But, it's worth it seeing so many people enjoying it."

The show is open daily from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Following the show, Munson said the college plans to plant the majority of the bulbs around the campus.

—KERRY HERLIHY

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

Kate Askew admires the spring flowers at the Smith College Bulb Show.

Rally to address date rape

Whistles will be handed out on SU's steps

By DANIELLE BIONDA
Collegian Staff

"Blow the whistle on date rape" is tomorrow's theme for Sexual Assault Awareness Day 1989.

At a "speak out" rally on the steps of the Student Union at noon tomorrow, educator/advocates from the Everywoman's Center and Peer Sexuality Educators from Health Services will voice concerns about sexual assault and campus safety.

Gretchen Krull, a coordinator of Peer Sexuality Education at the University of Massachusetts, and an organizer of the event, said, "We want to make it clear by handing out rape whistles that rape isn't only committed by strangers - rape can occur in a dating situation."

By "blowing the whistle," people can expose the campus to the issue of date rape and sexual assault, Krull said.

Krull said, "The idea is to focus in on date rape." She said there are a lot of misread signals in dating situations because men sometimes think that women mean "yes" when they say "no" to sexual advances. "We are trying to get people to be more aware in dating situations," she said.

An information table will also be set up tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in front of the mini store in the Student Union. Whistles, "No means no" balloons, and cards with emergency phone numbers will be handed out.

Two informal discussions about date rape will be held at 1:30 and 3 p.m. in Campus Center Room 911. The open rap sessions will focus on survivors of sexual assault and their feelings.

Sexual Assault Awareness Day is sponsored by the Student Affairs Sexual Assault Education Committee, the Board of Governors, the Everywoman's Center, and Health Services.

Senate seats may be reduced

The Student senate will face several motions tonight regarding the restructuring of electoral districts, which will cause a dramatic decrease in the number of senate seats available, senate Speaker Robert Fadel said recently.

As part of a series of reforms planned for the senate body, Fadel said he has filed several motions calling for the restructuring of electoral districts campus wide.

If passed, the number of seats available for potential senators will be cut in half from the current 120 positions, he said.

Fadel has also filed a motion attempting to limit the amount of time a senator is allowed to speak on the floor to five minutes.

Other items on tonight's agenda include:

- The senate will review a move to endorse UMass anthrax research in the Graduate school. The anthrax virus is of concern recently because it potentialy could be used as a weapon in "germ warfare."
- An motion by Sen. W. Greg Rothman to remove the "Nuclear Free Zone" status from the University will also be considered.
- The senate will consider whether to approve the details for the spring 1989 elections in accordance with chapter 10 of the SGA by-laws insuring that the elections will take place only on March 14.
- The issue of whether a positive or negative check-off should be used on a referendum of the spring 1989 ballot for MassPIRG funding will be discussed.

— MARIA SACCHETTI

Lesbian Bisexual Gay Forum

The LBG forum is a service of the Collegian to the University and area gay, lesbian and bisexual communities. For more information on how to get your press release or public service announcement in the LBG forum, contact Sharon at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Training
Training for speakers of the Speakers Bureau will be from 7 to 10 p.m. tonight in Campus Center Room 804 or from 7:30 to 10:30 Tuesday, March 14 in CC Room 802.

Rap group
The lesbian, bisexual, gay, counseling collective will sponsor an open discussion at 8 p.m. tonight in Student Union 413. Lesbians, gays, bisexuals and heterosexuals questioning their sexuality are welcome. For more information call 545-2645.

Social hours
The LBGA will sponsor a coffee social from 3-5:30 p.m. Friday, March 10, on the 9th floor of the Campus Center. All are welcome. Call 545-0154.

A social hour for graduate students will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Friday, March 10, in Campus Center Room 903.

Counseling
The lesbian, bisexual, gay counseling collective offers free confidential peer counseling in Room 406G Student Union. Office hours are Monday, Wednesday and Thursday 11a.m. to 7 p.m., Tuesday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Friday 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.. Call 545-2645.

Team aims to make people aware of cultural diversity

Some University of Massachusetts graduate students have taken the task of trying to fight cultural misunderstandings and prejudices on campus and in the community.

"We're committed to make people understand that we live in a multicultural environment and not a monoculture," said Ange DiBenedetto, one of the leaders of the Service Action Team.

The Service Action Team provides workshops on social issues, human relationships and organizational development. The way they do this, according to DiBenedetto, is by urging groups and staff members to utilize their SAT's services.

"There's a need to stress the importance of appreciating the cultural diversities prevalent in today's society," she said.

"We're here to help [students and staff] adapt to pluralistic society", said Jerry Koch-Gonzalez.

"We've also provided workshops for groups on organization development," he said. Among the groups the Service Action Team has aided are Cooperative Education, the Graduate Student Senate, Resident Assistants, and Residence Directors, he said.

DiBenedetto said, "We're lucky to have a program for awareness workshops. They just don't seem to be around." The Service Action Team offers free workshops to established groups by appointment, she said, adding that she and Koch-Gonzalez are always encouraging more organizations to get involved.

The Service Action Team, which was established nearly a decade ago, is funded by the New Students Program.

–MONICA ROBERTO

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

IT'S NOT A BIRD, IT'S A CRANE – A crane takes down what used to be the Phenix restaurant in Northampton yesterday.

Ski UTAH

UMass Ski Club has received lodging in Salt Lake City for Spring Break

Price includes lodging, rental car, & air fare. Lift ticket packages are available.

$450—Contact UMass Ski Club

UMASS SKI CLUB

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE

The Best Chinese Buffet

BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Children under 10 - $3.00
1) Hot and Sour Soup
2) Chicken fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Fried Wontons
5) Pan Fried Ravioli
6) Beef with Snow Peas
7) House Spiced Chicken
8) Sweet and Sour Chicken
9) Roast Pork Fried Rice
10) Vegetable Fried Noodles
11) Chinese BBQ Pork
12) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce

256-0251
256-0252
TAKE-OUT SERVICE — FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd., at Rte. 9, Amherst 256-0252
Sun-Tue-Thu 11:30 am-10 pm
Fri-Sat 11 am-11 pm
LUNCHEON SPECIALS
Mon-Sat 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
We Deliver Every Day! 5-9:30 p.m.

SNACKSENSE

ALCOHOL & NUTRITION

Did you know?

- Alcohol contains 7 calories/gram (more than either protein or carbohydrate at 4 calories/gram) but provides no vitamins, minerals or other essential nutrients
- Alcohol can deplete your body of essential vitamins and minerals, particularly the B vitamins, vitamin A and zinc.
- Alcohol diminishes the liver's ability to maintain stable blood sugar levels.

FOCUS

Life in a local prison: a guard speaks out . . .

'. . . the least respected field of law enforcement'

By COSMO MACERO JR.
Collegian Staff

Hold up a bank, knock over a liquor store, deal a few kilos of heroin or rub out your next door neighbor, and there's a good chance you'll end up in jail.

While a lengthy prison sentence remains at the bottom of most people's agenda, there's more than one way to get a ticket to the local penitentiary.

Michael Sullivan, a 1985 UMass graduate, goes to jail everyday. As a correctional officer at the Hampshire County House of Corrections in Northampton, he spends the greater part of his waking hours among convicted felons.

While at the University, Sullivan majored in psychology and minored in sociology, ideal preparation for a career in criminal justice. Observation towers and strip searches aside, a prison guard has a basic and definitive job description.

"A correctional officer maintains the security and the orderly running of the facility . . . he's the authoritative figure to the inmates," Sullivan said.

Though recognizing the potential for a career as a prison guard, Sullivan views his current position as more of a stepping stone toward a future in law enforcement.

"The job is not rewarding at all. For most guys, it's a way to get experience they might need to become a police officer or a state trooper or whatever," he said, "People don't realize what it's actually like inside the prison. They think the prisoners are always locked up and we just monitor them from inside some booth . . . I'm actually interacting with them," he added.

"The position of correctional officer . . . aka prison guard, is probably the least respected field of law enforcement . . . yet it's ranked fourth among the most stressful occupations," Sullivan said, "most inmates are dangerous, habitual criminals with anti-social behavior, and they haven't listened to authority much during the course of their lives, so it's going to be hard for them to listen to me, which makes my job that much more stressful," he added.

As a medium and maximum security facility, the Hampshire County House of Corrections houses inmates ranging from repeat drunk driving offenders and petty thieves, to second degree murderers and convicted rapists. Correctional officers are aware of individual inmates' offenses, yet must be careful to show no favoritism.

"An officer has to learn to be firm and fair with the inmates, regardless of what crime they may have committed . . . we have to treat each inmate equally . . . it's not my job to punish them, their punishment is being there," Sullivan said.

Like all branches of law enforcement, the position of correctional officer requires successful completion of a comprehensive written examination as well as a physical. However, day to day life within the confines of a prison (for the guards at least) is primarily a test of strong mind, not body.

"For eight hours a day, you are actually confined within the walls of the prison, with the inmates. It can take a lot out of you mentally. You don't walk out of there physically tired, but mentally . . . you're exhausted," Sullivan said, " Alcoholism and divorce rates are very high among correctional officers. It can take a toll if you have a family," he added.

While safe to say that the correctional officer's experience is an unnerving one, the inmates, for whom our state facilities exist, must deal with a level of stress unkown to and certainly undesired by most.

"For an inmate, especially a first time offender, it can be a very scary experience entering an institution. Because all they've seen is what's on television . . . which really isn't the case. You've got inmates from various backgrounds, cultures and races, and that's where most problems occur . . . between gangs and cliques," Sullivan said, "An inmate who minds his own business, does his time and follows the rules and regulations can pretty much make his time easy for himself," he added.

While easy time would appear to be the route to follow, there are people who feel nothing should be easy for an inmate convicted of a felony. The question of rehabilitation versus pure and simple incarceration is one contested between those who feel efforts should be made to reform criminals, and those who view a dose of unpleasant punishment as the bottom line.

"It (rehabilitation) is a positive aspect. They'll eventually be getting out, and if there's no effort to rehabilitate (the inmates), they'll just come right back in," Sullivan said.

"Most institutions offer vocational and educational classes. An inmate who hasn't got a high school diploma can earn his GED, he can take computer classes. Some institutions offer college level classes and there's rehabilitation programs like AA and Narcotics Anonymous," he said. "Coupled with work details and recreation time, they can keep themselves pretty busy."

> 'An officer has to learn to be firm and fair with the inmates, regardless of what crime they may have committed . . . it's not my job to punish them, their punishment is being there.'
>
> – Michael Sullivan

Governor Michael Dukakis (by now accustomed to harsh judgement) has been criticized for his policy concerning state prison furlough programs. The case most often cited is that of Willie Horton, who, when released on a weekend furlough broke into a New Jersey home and raped a young woman while her husband was forced to watch. In spite of this obviously disturbing incident, Sullivan feels the state furlough program is well conceived.

"People criticize the furlough program in Massachusetts because of the Horton case, and the fact that killers are getting furloughs," he said, "they don't understand that these are the only things that the guys with long sentences have to look forward to. This is what's keeping them on their good behavior, if you take away their furloughs, they have nothing . . . "

Sullivan has been employed at the Hampshire County jail for 3 years. While holding a degree in psychology, he's been exposed to an education of a very different kind behind the dim walls of the state prison. Working within the correctional system, he knows first hand it is not without its ills.

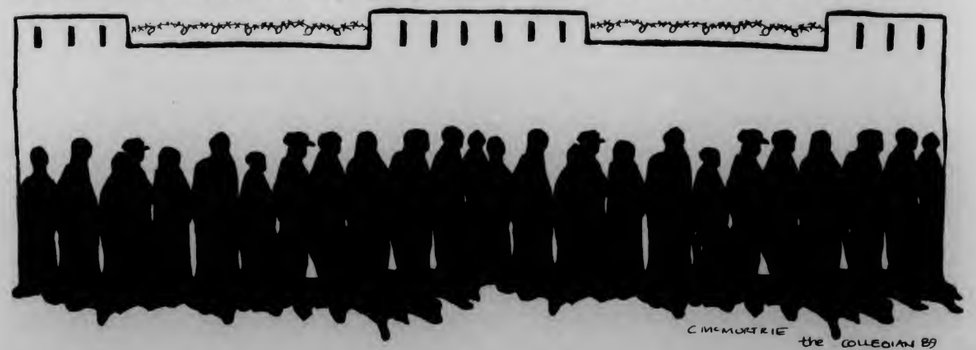
"I do see a problem with the hiring of females in an all male facility. There's only about 8 female inmates awaiting trial (at Hampshire County), so most of the female officers are working in the male population . . . they're not physically strong enough to handle a larger man," he said. "You're delegating authority to the inmates, and they're going to listen to a bigger man before they listen to a woman," he added.

Sullivan's position stems from a practical assesment based on his experience in prison situations, not a sexist attitude. "If I were ever to go into violent situation, I would want a male backing me up, not a female . . . they're just not strong enough," he said.

Perhaps the most pressing and perplexing issue concerning the state correctional system is the dangerous overcrowding of virtually every institution in the commonwealth.

While the expansion of existing, and construction of new facilities requires the appropriation of necessary (and hefty) funds, the most confounding stumbling block for the Dukakis administration has been the "not in our backyard" syndrome, most recently appearing in the rural town of New Braintree, where protests have abounded in the face of a proposed prison site.

"With mandatory sentences for the gun laws and drunk driving, incarceration is on the rise, and the state just does not have enough bedding, enough facilities to hold these prisoners," Sullivan said. "As a result, the facilities in the state have become overcrowded, and there have been outbreaks of violence, and protests like in Springfield a few months ago," he continued, "It's not a serious problem here (Hampshire County) because it's a new facility, and the general living conditions are pretty good, however, it's only going to get worse unless the state does something about it. Everybody knows we need them (new prisons) but nobody wants them in their town."



SAFA: letting legislators know students' needs

By ERIN ABBEY
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON — Legislators hurrying to meetings through underground tunnels on Capitol Hill often lose touch with their constituents' needs.

Students Advocating Financial Aid members bring legislators face-to-face with the effects of financial aid programs, said Howard Woodson, legislative aid for Rep. Charles Hayes, D-Ill.

"It doesn't seem to me they realize the impact of their cuts. It brings it home at least for me," Woodson said. Students cope here and remind lawmakers: "I'm a product of the program you're trying to fund or cut," he said.

Gerry Grady, advisor and founder of SAFA, said the group's accomplishments cannot be definitively determined. Instead, he said, SAFA is effective because members plug personal accounts into legislators' minds.

"If they have to defend their position in a committee meeting, they remember us," Grady said.

In a meeting with Rep. Ronald Machtley, R-R.I., Maria Gemma, a SAFA member from Rhode Island, told Machtley that she thinks the proposed national service programs would discriminate against financially disadvantaged students.

Some national service proposals (there are eight in all) would require high school students seeking financial aid to work for two years either in military or community service.

Gemma told Machtley that class differences are already visible on campuses and the national service proposals would only highlight the differences.

After meeting with Gemma, Machtley, the author of one of the proposals, said the students raised important concerns, such as discrimination.

"I had never thought about that before," Machtley said.

Ellen Cogen, his legislative aid, added, "For him to listen makes a world of difference; it's planted in his mind now."

Machtley said, "In an economic environment that competes for dollars, if you get organized, you do have a voice. If I don't ever hear from students then I get the sense everything is fine. It's absolutely essential you come down here."

The National Association of Financial Aid Administrators (NASFAA) is a professional lobby organization that advocates for student financial aid. Karl Knapp, an assistant for research and policy analyst at NASFAA, and also the son of University of Massachusetts President David Knapp, said he believes SAFA is effective.

He said NASFAA acts as a macro-group that uses facts and figures to persuade legislators. SAFA, he said, acts as the micro-group that drives home NASFAA's statistics.

Grady said, "Students can be persuasive by the examples they give." He suggested that students should mention that UMass has to use plastic cups in the dining commons because of a work-study workers shortage.

SAFA member Todd Hill said, "When people you're lobbying against are conservative, you have to bring it down to a more personal level so they no longer can deal with figures and numbers. They don't see the people that are the numbers."

Dean Wagner, a SAFA member from Rhode Island, agrees SAFA members have to rely on delivering personal stories. "I don't think shooting off figures works."

"If you want sincerity from the heart," David Mengebier, legislative aid to Rep. Carl Pursell R-Mich., said, "then you need to hear from the students."

BRANDYWINE
AT AMHERST
Now accepting application for June, July, August, and September occupancy.
*Sign up now and be assured of having an apartment next semester.
Brandywine Office
Open Monday to Friday 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.
549-0600
*Restrictions apply

WHOPPER SANDWICH
BURGER KING
Buy one, Get one FREE
Good with this coupon, Thursday & Friday 4 pm-12am
BURGER KING
ROUTE 9, HADLEY
not good with any other offer Exp. 4-1-89

Board of Governor's Program Council
Presents...
"WE SCORE MORE"
A Free Lecture on success in and after college by TODAY Jon Katzman TODAY
founder of the
THE PRINCETON REVIEW™
LEARN HOW TO:
*Score high on the LSAT, GMAT, GRE and MCAT
*Master your class work and decrease test anxiety
*Use credit and sweat to start a business
*Find out what businesses are looking for in campus interviews
* Students who attend and submit a completed Master Card application, will receive a $75-discount coupon for the Princeton Review Course.
A Benefit for naca EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATION
Produced by BWI
Wednesday, March 8th
8:00 pm, Campus Center Auditorium
In Cooperation with BayBank
Presented by MasterCard

Collegian photo by Lee Rosenburg

RESTING — Liz Rensenbrink, a sophomore psychology major, stares out at the night from the steps above the Campus Center.

Windshield of car smashed by chunk of ice in parking lot

A student reported the windshield of his car parked in Lot 22 smashed with a large chunk of ice yesterday. Damage was estimated at $300, police said.

In other police reports:

- A sweater and wrist watch worth $30 were reported stolen from Draper Hall Monday, police said.
- A telephone worth $50 was reported stolen from an office in Morrill Science Building Monday, police said.
- Several compact discs worth $105 were reported stolen from Baker Residence Hall Monday, police said.
- Police said they confiscated two forms of false identification from an individual in the Campus Center Garage yesterday.

— THOMAS RODRIGUES

Forum commemorates Women's Week

In celebration of International Women's Week, People for Choice and the University of Massachusetts' chapter of the National Organization for Women are co-sponsoring an open forum from 3 to 6 p.m. today in the Suffolk Room (301) of the Student Union.

"The main idea is for people to bring poetry, their favorite excerpts, or music," said Binky Feldman, member of pro-choice activist group People for Choice.

The forum, called "Food for Thought," is the only event today which commemorates International Women's Week, Feldman said. Feldman and a NOW member will lead the forum.

International Women's Week commemorates the 1908 uprising by 20,000 women in New York City's garment district who went on strike after hundreds of women, locked in a garment factory, were killed when the factory caught on fire.

"Anything people want to read or share with the group in honor of International Women's Week is welcome," Feldman said. Guitars and other instruments are also encouraged.

Hillel helped to organize the event.

FREE SCHOLARSHIP INFORMATION FOR STUDENTS WHO NEED
MONEY FOR COLLEGE
Every Student is Eligible for Some Type of Financial Aid Regardless of Grades or Parental Income.
- We have a data bank of over 200,000 listings of scholarships, fellowships, grants, and loans, representing over $10 billion in private sector funding.
- Many scholarships are given to students based on their academic interests, career plans, family heritage and place of residence.
- There's money available for students who have been newspaper carriers, grocery clerks, cheerleaders, non-smokers... etc.
- Results GUARANTEED.
CALL ANYTIME For A Free Brochure (800) 346-6401

FAMILY MANAGER WANTED
Older special needs woman would like to share your home. Should be near her elder day program in Amherst or family in Chicopee. She uses a walker, so a downstairs bedroom and bathroom is a must. A salary of $15,000 is available for someone to be companion, teacher, and supervisor. Experience or related education preferred. A room and board stipend and respite funds are available.
A program of Goodwill Industries
For more information, call:
Lucy Price or Peter Van Vourhis at 788-6981

UPC PRESENTS

MIKE + THE MECHANICS
Living Years
mike rutherford
paul carrack
paul young peter van hooke
tim renwick adrian lee
special guest THE ESCAPE CLUB
SUNDAY, APRIL 9
8:00pm FINE ARTS CENTER-UMASS
$12 UMASS STUDENTS
$14 GENERAL PUBLIC
TICKETS ON SALE AT F.A.C. BOX OFFICE ONLY OR CALL TO CHARGE: 545-2511

FIRST RESPONSE®
is the only 5-minute, yes or no pregnancy test.
I just did it! The FIRST RESPONSE® Pregnancy Test.
Well, what's the news?
Only FIRST RESPONSE can tell you in 5 minutes! Turns pink for pregnant. Stays white for not pregnant. And it's so easy to see.
You knew, in just 5 minutes!
Yup, and when FIRST RESPONSE says yes or no, it's for sure. With other tests, you have to wait longer for results.
So which is it, yes or no?
Now, why do you think I'm smiling?
You can always trust your FIRST RESPONSE®.

FIRST RESPONSE®, TAMPAX and the Human Figure Design are registered trademarks of Tambrands Inc. Lake Success, NY 11042 ©1989 Tambrands Inc.
From the maker of TAMPAX®
Questions? Call toll free 1-800-523-0014.

Tested on the toughest courses.

The IBM* Personal System/2* is the lean, mean study machine that helps you turn your toughest assignments into sharp looking winners. And if you buy one now, you'll get a great student discount.

So stop in to see us. We'll show you how the IBM PS/2* can help you better organize your notes, write and revise all your papers, produce high-quality graphics to make all your work look sharper, and more.

With the IBM PS/2, you'll always finish first.

Demonstration on Concourse
March 8,9 10-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

IBM, Personal System/2 and PS/2 are registered trademarks of IBM Corp.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Would a bar provide an incentive for protesters?

"Cutback City" residents should build a bar. Maybe then more students would move into the shantytown that protesters of cuts by Gov. Michael Dukakis to the University of Massachusetts budget built near the Campus Pond last week.

Pedro Pereira

Since students haven't been tempted by the backyard view of the pond — nature's generous gift to UMass — or "Cutback City's" convenient location, only steps away from the Tower Library, the Campus Center/Student Union complex and several academic buildings, they might just find a bar incentive to move into the shacks.

After all, when Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey snatched the bottles from the lips of tailgaters and concert-goers last spring, more than 2,000 protesters shook their heads in disapproval.

Not only that, they broke out the cloth banners, Budweiser T-shirts and the six-foot inflatable bottle of Bartles & James and took to the Student Union steps, the Southwest pyramids and the chancellor's front lawn to denounce what they viewed as an inexcusable violation of one of those rights that makes us proud to be American. The administration, they cried, acted unreasonably by removing their "right to drink."

But now the hardy defenders of intrinsic American "rights" are too busy drinking in their rooms and apartments to come out in support of the students fighting to save the University from further budget cuts.

A rally against the cuts last Thursday on the Student Union steps attracted only about 200 people, a mere pittance compared to last year's numbers that protested the alcohol ban. Perhaps rally organizers should have tricked students into thinking they were fighting for booze consumption by wearing Budweiser caps and sporting the six-foot bottle of Bartles & James.

Or perhaps they should have had a keg party at somebody's apartment.

Or perhaps "Cutback City" residents could sneak a keg into one of the shacks and pass the word around. You can bet your collectible bottle caps that defenders of the "right to drink" would convert immediately into defenders of the University's financial health and line up in front of "Cutback City's" real estate agency.

The most sensible solution, however, is probably to acquire permission from the University and the town to build a bar. Think of the profit "Cutback City" could make out of a liquor-selling establishment. The money could be used for the construction of more shacks or to help the University fill the gaps widened by the budget cuts.

Excellent as these suggestions may be, the reality is that turning the pro-booze protesters into anti-budget cuts radicals would prove nearly impossible. The pro-booze protesters not only find the fight for maintaining the quality of education radical, but they would also slur every other word when speaking out against the cuts.

Besides, why the hell would they participate in budget cuts protests, the success of which would enable the availability of more classes? If the state keeps slashing the University's budget, causing the cancellation of more classes, the defenders of the "right to drink" will have a lot more time to exercise their right back in their hometowns.

Pedro Pereira is a Collegian coulmnist

"WHAT MODEL NUMBER? . . . THAT'S THIS AIRPLANE'S AGE!"

Beware of poster-made candidates and apathy

The poster war. It's everywhere on our campus. No matter where students walk there are banners and colored copies of the names of the contenders for president and student trustee. I have no idea who these people are, and I never met any of the candidates. I don't know what their campaign pledges are. The only thing I do know is that some candidates are making the most out of the campaign funds allotted to them.

Gayle Long

Who are the candidates? Is the election a popularity contest? I find it hard to believe that the students of this university will determine the fate of the Student Government Association by who uses the trendiest cartoon character on their posters. Since when is the SGA a comic strip?

There is one person on my residential hall who attends the senate meetings, and returns with his face aglow as he describes the antics of the conservatives and leberals. This man, although entitled to his beliefs, can not see that the concept of student government is deteriorating into a playroom for the right and left wings to fight for the rattle of power.

The lack of awareness in regards to the SGA can mean only one thing: two handfuls of extremists are fighting out their ideas of government and losing sight as to why the SGA was formed. The establishment of the SGA was to allow the students to have a say in university and state education policies, as well as to give students control of their funds. These are important issues, yet there are people running for president and trustee who claim their platform includes updating dining commons equipment. What does that say about how most students view their governing body?

The majority of students choose not to get involved, but maybe they should be a little less apathetic and realize what is going on at UMass. I am not saying that everyone should run for SGA president, but for a disinterested student to talk to a student senator, attend a senate meeting, or write as I am doing here, indicates that students are fed up with the chaos and lunacy of the SGA.

And so the stage is set. In less than two weeks there will be another election, and either the left or right wing will be claiming victory. But before this will occur, the debate will be the only probable place the candidates will prove their mettle or their ignorance. Don't expect to meet the contenders any other way. On a large campus, I understand that it could be impossible to meet everyone. But, unless I attend or listen to the debate, I could be making a mistake — voting because the name looks familiar. Since I know none of the hopefuls, the mistake may be greater. If I vote because of the posters on campus I may as well be asleep or dead, voting in this fashion.

Now that I have come to the conclusion to my warning about the poster-made candidate. I hope the debate shows me that one or maybe more are worth voting for. If not, maybe the best poster should be in charge of the SGA.

Gayle Long is a UMass student

The Collegian accepts letters and columns from the Umass community and Five-College Area. ALL submissions must be typed. Handwritten letters will not be printed! The author's address and phone number should be included.

Submissions automatically become property of the Collegian and are thus subject to editing for grammar, clarity and space. Send or bring submissions to 113 Campus Center, UMass. If you have any questions, or comments, drop by or call us at 545-3500.

Show support for MASSPIRG

At this time last semester, I was about as politically helpless as a person can get. Disgusted at the way both presidential campaigns were run and by the people who were running in them, I began to feel ashamed that these people were from the United States, a country whose ideals I'm very proud of.

From mud-slinging debates to CIA leakages of voter manipulation, it seemed that the more I found out about politics, the more corrupt it appeared to be. So I decided to join MASSPIRG, the state's leading public interest group.

Not only did MASSPIRG work on a statewide level last semester by raising thousands of dollars for hunger relief, passing the Auto Insurance Reform Bill and helping to prevent toxic waste. We have also worked on a voter registration campaign here in Amherst. As a result, 2,300 people registered and voted who may not otherwise do so. This type of action epitomizes the democratic ideals which this country was founded on, but are lost today in an apathetic society manipulated by the interests of big business.

We fight this by stressing that people should develop their own views of the world and the way they want the world to be, and then acting on them. MASSPIRG is one of the most effective mediums through which people can act on their own ideals. We subscribe to the mottos "Think globally, act locally."

In 1972, students (by majority) voted to form the MASSPIRG at UMass and fund it through the waiveable fee on the tuition bill. Every few years, campus-wide votes have been held to show that a majority of students on campus still support MASSPIRG and the issues we work on. In the last referendum in 1986, 83% of students voted in favor of MASSPIRG.

On March 13th and 14th, a new referendum will be held to show that students support the PIRG chapter at UMass. Please vote "yes" to continue our chapter here, and to allow our group to keep working for a better quality of life for everyone in Massachusetts.

Matthew J. Rimkus
Central

Assault awareness increasing

In the past few years, sexual assault awareness on campus has increased. This is shown in the use of the Escort Service, which has increased by 28% just within the last year. In 1983, the average number of phone calls received was one per night, whereas currently, the Escort Service receives anywhere between 30-40 calls a night.

While it is estimated that 50-90% of all sexual assaults are not reported at all, there seems to be an indication that the situation is slowly changing. With more outreach to the community from organizations such as the Board of Governors, the Everywoman's Center, and Health Services, we hope to help victims of assault realize that they are not responsible and that here are support services to help them during times of crisis.

Campus safety is an issue that should concern us all. The week of March 6th has been designated as Sexual Assault Awareness Week. As a concerned student organization, the Board of Governors of the Campus Center/Student Union complex is providing workshops and informal sessions on campus safety issues.

Some of the programs that will be taking place are: Wednesday March 8, from 3 to 5 pm — an informational discussion entitled "Is This Campus Able to Protect You?" will be held in room 803 in the Campus Center, and on March 9, at 1:30 and at 3 pm there will be informal rap sessions (the room numbers will be posted at the information desk in the Campus Center).

The Board of Governors exists to represent student concerns in the Campus Center/Student Union complex. We're working toward a better Union.

Tracy Davis
Susan Gordon
Board of Governors

Protest

continued from page 1

our presence known. We hit just about all the legislators and made them realize there's a constituency out there."

Shari Silkoff, co-president elect, said, "We let them know that we are supporting a tax increase. The increase is the only feasible way to generate revenue," she said. "In that sense we did win."

"There's a wall five feet thick between us and the increased budget. We have to get through that wall. I tried to construct an amendment we have a chance of [passing]," he said. "We're not asking for the world, we're asking for survival."

Rosenburg said all the money needed can't be requested, because the legislators would never grant higher education $45 million.

"Your work today is absolutely critical," Rosenburg said, "because most of the legislators are undecided about the amendment."

Rosenburg urged students to tell their story, "the most important thing is to tell our story — the story of those who could not be here and the story of the 2,000 students who lost the opportunity to pursue a dream because of the cuts," he said.

Orefice, told students "we have to convince them (the legislators) to change their minds and vote for the Rosenburg amendment and for more money (to public higher education)."

Chancellor of the Board of Regents of Higher Education, Franklin Jenifer urged students to "express yourselves as citizens, we're not talking about services, we're talking about the future of the commonwealth. That's why your presence here is so important."

"You have come here and taken an awesome responsibility. I need you now more than ever before," Jenifer said.

Rosenburg said, "today, public education made history-students, faculty, staff and parents of 180,000 students across the state stood shoulder to shoulder to say that education is right of every citizen."

Janet Freedman, the dean of library services at SMU, said, "There's no money for library materials unless the House acts on Rosenburg's amendment. Even with the amendment, there's still not enough money to buy new books and journals."

She said Massachusetts ranks 51st in the nation for providing library materials per student, (the District of Columbia is included in the tally). In addition, she said all public higher education institutions are in grave danger of losing their accreditation.

This Friday OPENING at 9:30 p.m.
It's New
Murray D's
Jam with Rack-A-Disc on the highest dance floor in the Valley!
Hot Popcorn $1.00
Draft Beer $1.00
Murray D's CARE Baskets
Choice of Roast Beef, Ham, or Turkey Sandwich with French Fries and a Pickle ...
only $2.50
This Friday & Every Friday from 9:30 pm-12 am
—Eleventh Floor— Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center
Proper ID Required

ARTS & LIVING

Jazz you can borrow

By BILL ROSENBLATT
Collegian Correspondent

Libraries are great, often overlooked resources for exposing yourself to jazz or any other kind of music. This community, with several academic and public libraries, offers an embarrassment of riches, and of course it's all free. This week's column is a guide to what's available.

Because UMass has a jazz program within the music department, the University Music Library (242 Fine Arts Center, 545-2870) probably has the best jazz collection in Western Mass, including record, tapes and CDs. Unfortunately you can't borrow them; you have to listen in the library through headphones. But what better way to study! They also have practically every book on jazz ever published.

Valley Jazz

The closest lending library to UMass is the Jones Library (256-0246) at 43 Amity Street, across from the Amherst Cinema. It allows cardholders to borrow up to five recordings at a time for two weeks. Their collection is relatively small in number, but very high in quality. In particular, the Bahai'i Faith recently donated several albums by the great artists who live and/or teach in this area: Max Roach, Archie Shepp, Marion Brown and Yusef Lateef.

Northampton's public library has an entire art and music wing. the Forbes Library (534-8399) is located on West Street in NoHo: take route 9 through the center of town and take the left fork at the beginning of the Smith campus; the library is a half-block down on the left. It allows up to four recordings to be borrowed for four weeks. Its jazz collection is bigger than the Jones', and I have discovered some rare, out-of-print gems there, but overall the Jones library has better quality stuff. Their CD collection is growing fast.

Thye best collection in the area requires the longest trip: the massive Springfield City Library (1-739-3871). Take I-91 to exit 7, then take a left on State St. (the second traffic light) and continue for a few blocks until you see the large stone building on your left. Parking is available in a lot across the street. This library also has an art and music wing, and the selection is magnificent. They allow a generous eight recordings to be borrowed for two weeks. Unfortunately, their LPs are organized by "catalog number" instead of alphabetically by artist , and cassettes and CDs are only organized by musical category. However, they have a separate alphabetical catalog that helps make up for this.

The only disadvantage to borrowing records from libraries is that sometimes they are in poor condition; therefore CDs are preferable if you have access to a player. Libraries are recognizing this and buying more and more CDs. Of course, the biggetst disadvantage to borrowing recordings in any format is that you have to return them.

Photo Courtesy of Rounder Records

Barrence Whitfield at Pearl St. Thurs. night.

Photo courtesy of Atlantic Records

TUNING UP - Tickets for the upcoming Mike and the Mechanics show at the F.A.C. Concert Hall go on sale today. The group, formed by Genesis guitarist Mike Rutherford, also features Paul Carrack, formerly of Squeeze.

VITA helps students pay taxes

By Al KAUFMAN
Collegian Correspondent

Students who are having difficulty in filing their their tax returns, and cannot afford professional assistance, now have a place to turn.

Accounting majors, who are members of the business fraternity, Beta Alpha Psi at the University of Massachusetts, have become part of the Internal Revenue Service sponsored Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program. The supervisor for the UMass chapter is Professor Nelson Pion, assistant professor of accounting and former associate dean.

Every Wednesday and Thursday afternoon unitil April 15, accounting majors will make themselves available to helping students file their tax returns. A table will be set up in the campus center concourse for students to make appointments.

Fourteen students have pledged to give three to five hours a week to the program. Pion explained that all of the students have taken at least one introductory tax course and had to pass a series of examinations from the IRS, in order to become certified for the program.

Pion also stressed that the service is primarily for students who are not financially well-off.

"The service is for people who have trouble hiring a professional, so their forms are usually simple," he said. "If a person has a complicated return, chances are they can afford professional assistance and, frankly, we would prefer them to go to a professional, because this program is not for them."

Pion also said that there is "a host of information" that will be made available to all students. this includes tax forms and information on the new 1986 tax laws that many students may be unaware of.

For instance, Pion explained that most students already know that they can no longer claim themselves, if their parents claim them as dependents.

But many students do not know that the standard deduction for a person who is a claimed dependent is $500, or the amount of earned income up to $3000. This means that as soon as a claimed dependent earns over $500, all unearned money, such as interest and dividends, becomes taxable. If a person fails to report this, the IRS will fine them for negligence in filing a tax return.

Unfortunately, the VITA program will not be able to file non-resident tax returns for people who work in Massachusetts, but do not live there. "However," Pion said, "if we see a great need for that later on, we will try to set up a program for them."

Pion expressed great optimism about the VITA program and said the accounting majors involved are very excited about it. "They want to do it because it's great experience for them, and they get a chance to help people out.

Hampden blessed with new play

By MICHAEL T. PUOPOLO
Collegian Correspondent

Coming up this weekend in the Hampden Theater is a play called "Blessed." Well, this play is extraordinary because it is written, produced, directed and acted entirely by students. What I really wanted to know was what it's like to do your own play completely from scratch. How much time is required? Where do you get the necessary finance?

"Blessed" is about an Irish Catholic family that fell apart many years ago, but who are reunited at the family home for the father's funeral. The family bends up coming together to help, each other through death, bulemia, alcoholism, and other family problems. the characters are original and the acting supreme. The writing is humorous but the topics are serious. "Blessed" is a dark comedy.

"It is autobiographical and has to do with the Irish Catholic culture I grew up in," said writer Maureen Futtner, when I asked her how she came up with the story.

She said that most of the characters were members of her own family, exaggerated for comic purposes.

Director Lisa Channer said that she had met Futtner's family many times, and they definitely deserved a comedy. Futtner and Channer said that their respective families have been very supportive throughout the production.

"They have given me nothing but constructive criticism and positive feedback," Futtner stated.

Channer and Futtner are both undergraduate senior theater majors. "Since we don't have the "graduate grace," we are not allowed to propose plays, or direct them, in the theater department. So, we just decided to do our own play with the Student Valley Productions under producer Rich Gershberg.

Both women agree that the advice and help offered to them by professors and other undergraduates has been very valuable.

"We are both really pleased that people want to help us with the show. The people working on the show are very dedicated, because they are receiving no credit and no money," said Channer.

Channer and Futtner also did readings of the play all over Massachusetts this summer.

"The text has changed a lot. What is coming to UMass is the eighth draft of the play," Futtner said. She said that the whole process of writing the play took approximately two years. Two years is a lot of work for a student play. ,What happens if the show is a flop?

"LIfe is a gamble, we decided to take that chance. Even if the show is a failure, we still have the experience," said Channer.

"The experience is the most important thing for us. We have learned so much an it is working well," Futtner added.

Both women look at the play as a personal challenge, as well as an experience. What made Chnner want to direct this play?

I was an actor to start off, so I feel I have a solid base for dealing with the actors. I am also really bossy so I decided to try directing."

Futtner and channer agree that "the cast is great." They come from three of the five colleges in the area. Both Tone Nunes, who plays Franny, and Teresa O'Brien, who portrays Christine, come from UMass. Other cast members come from Smith and Hampshire college, while two of the ensemble are local residents.

"Blessed" opens at Hampden Theatre on Friday, March 10 at 8 p.m. with additional shows Saturday (8 p.m.) and Sunday (2 p.m.).

charlie's

1 Pray St., Amherst · 549-5403 · Open 11 a.m.
7 Days A Week · Call for Take Out
Kitchen Open till midnight

New Game Room with 2 Pool Tables

Tonight 99¢ Nacho & Cheese Platters

9:00 PM - 12:00 AM

Drink of the Week
Seven & Seven $ 1.50

Beer of the Month
Moosehead $1.75

FOOD GIVE-A-WAYS
Mon. 10¢ Mozzarella Sticks 9-12
Tues. 10¢ Buffalo Wings 9-12
Sunday 4 Burger Platters for $5.00 6-10

PISTACHIOS MIXED NUTS
CASHEWS N' PEANUTS
ALL FOR YOUR FACE
GREEN KIWI STUCK TO YOUR SHOE
PACÉ PICANTE BEARRITOS FOR YOU
GROOVY TUNES JALAPINO CHEESE PUFFS
CELERY, CREAM CHEESE, TOOTHPASTE
KISS MY FACE, YOGURT, AND CHEEZ
EAT IT ALL PLEEZ

PEOPLE'S MARKET
SENSUOUS PROVISIONS
STUDENT UNION • BEHIND EARTHFOODS • MONDAY THRU FRIDAY
NINE TO FIVE.

THE ALTERNATIVE
SPRING BREAK 89

Killington VERMONT

CONDO LODGING & LIFTS

SKI and PARTY WEEK

MARCH 19-24
$259
LAGNIAPPE

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 student union
545 3437
NON-MEMBERS WELCOME

INCLUDES TAXES AND SERVICES

The Student Activities Office would like to thank you for helping to make Student Union Day 1989 a great success!

Special thanks to:

*SAO Volunteers *Student Volunteers

*Board of Governors

*Student Union Craft Shop

*On-campus and area businesses for their donations:

Regency * Faces * The Pub * Peleton's * Seasons * Pot Belly Deli * The Sub * Fancy Fingers * Jeffrey Amherst * Utopia Spas * Ren's Mobile * Styles by Deborah * Midas * Mystique Moustache * Paper House * Bruno's * Knowles Flower Shop * Lord Jeffrey Inn * Atkins * Albion Books * Taco Villa * Delano's * North Star * Stables * Pizza Hut * Classe Cafe * John Dellaria * UPC * Fine Arts Center * Third World Theater * U. Mass Ski Club

Grand Prize Winners:

1.) Jeff Adams - Ski Trip For Two to Killington
2.) John Pankauski - $50 Gift Certificate to Albion Books
3.) Tania Sojka - $30 Gift Certificate to North Star Restaurant
4.) Charles Auclair - 2 tickets to all of UPC's Spring shows
5.) Rebecca Potts - $25 Gift Certificate to Faces
6.) Gayle Liles - $25 Gift Certificate to the Lord Jeffrey Inn
7.) Michelle Connolly - $25 Gift Certificate to John Dellaria
8.) Rose Harrington - 2 tickets to CATS

Candy Heart Count Winners (correct guess of 2010):

1.) Martha Tawney - Brunch for two at Seasons
2.) Lisa Melanson - 2 tickets to all of UPC's Spring Shows

LEGAL PROBLEMS?
Call LSC serving the students of UMass

Housing • Family • Student Rights • Civil Rights • Workers Rights • Criminal and Consumer Law •

(We regret that we can no longer offer legal representation to students following the Trustees' August 31, 1987 decision)

call 545-1995

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Wednesday Night is Mexican Night!

Free Nachos!

Corona $2.00
Jose Cuervo $1.75
Margaritas $2.00

T-Shirts & Prizes!

SMART COOKIES KNOW...

#1 Z9 LUNCH SPECIAL

興旺樓
CHINESE KITCHEN

150 KING ST., NOHO • 586-8220
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 253-2571

Photo by Stephen Long courtesy of UMass Department of Theater.

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE - the classic Shakespeare comedy will be presented by the UMass Department of Theater, March 9-11 and 15-18 at 8 p.m. in the Rand Theater. In this scene, Shylock (played by Harry Mahnken), warns his daughter Jessica (Amanda Percival) against the revelers outside.

STUDENTS

LESSON NO. 1 NEVER CONSIDER DOING BUSINESS WITH SOMEONE WHO IS NOT WILLING TO WORK FOR IT!

LESSON NO. 2 ONE DEALERSHIP IN YOUR AREA IS WILLING TO HELP AND WORK FOR YOUR BUSINESS!

See Lesson No. 3 next week.

WE WILL PAY YOUR FIRST 4 PAYMENTS*

Bring your student ID. Must be shown upon entering.

For people who won t consider compromise...for people like you!!

Previously owned cars starting under $2,500 Available

NORTHAMPTON HONDA
Excludes all other promotions.
586-8626 171 KING STREET, NORTHAMPTON, MASS 586-8626
1000 total maximum payments

Pearl Street
NIGHTCLUB
NORTHAMPTON

UPSTAIRS DANCE CLUB
GET DOWM DOWN TOWN
FRI & SAT NIGHTS 8:30-1:00
COVER IS ONLY 99¢ BEFORE 9:30

TEN BELOW U-JOINT

THURSDAY MARCH 9th
A wild rambunctious mix of Soul, Rock, R&B Horndrivin, Dance Music Yow!
BARRENCE WHITFIELD AND THE SAVAGES
DOORS OPEN AT 8:30
ONLY $6.00 AT THE DOOR, HE'S GOT STEAM DRIVEN LUNGS.OW!

FRIDAY MARCH 10th
BIM SKALA BIM
BIG FUN, BIG BAND, SKA, SKA, SKA $5.00
DOORS OPEN AT 9:00 SHOW STARTS AT 9:45
BIM SKALA BIM
ALL AGES SHOW DOORS OPEN AT 7:00 P.M.
SHOW STARTS AT 7:30 $8.00

SATURDAY MARCH 11th
DIRECT FROM N.Y.C'S RITZ
THE TOASTERS
ONLY $5.00 AT THE DOOR
NEW YORK CITY'S HOTTEST SKA BAND
SHOW BEGINS STRAIGHT AFTER COMEDY AT 10:00 P.M.

COMING IN MARCH
16th SON SEALS BAND
17th MATT GUITAR MURPHY
18th THE INCREDIBLE CASUALS
23th LOOSE CABOOSE
24th THE SKATALITES

413-584-7744
10 PEARL ST. N'HAMP

REGION

Attorney claims jealousy caused man to set deadly fire

NEWBURYPORT (AP) — A man accused of setting a rooming house on fire that killed 15 people was spurred by jealousy and rage over a soured love affair, a prosecutor said yesterday.

James Carver, 24, of Ipswich, faces 15 counts of second-degree murder and one charge of arson on the July 4, 1984 blaze in Beverly, the deadliest in Massachusetts the 1942 Cocoanut Grove fire.

Essex County Assistant District Attorney Robert Weiner said Carver acted in a fit of jealousy because his former girlfriend, Lisa Maggiacomo, had begun dating a rooming house resident, Richard Nickerson. Nickerson was among those who died in the fire.

Weiner said Carver confessed to a female friend that he set the fire but did not intend to kill anyone.

"The defendant, in his love for Lisa Maggiacomo, had a burning jealousy," Weiner said. "Anything that stood between the defendant and Lisa Maggiacomo he did not like, he hated (it) and he wanted to eradicate (it)," Weiner said.

But defense attorney Dennis Jackson said Carver was in bed at his parents' home in Danvers at the time of the 4 a.m. fire.

He questioned the credibility of the state's witnesses, including the woman who reported Carver's alleged confession, saying some had said they were coached by prosecutors. Jackson questioned why Carver was not charged until May 1988, saying the state would have won an indictment sooner if their case was strong.

Prosecutors have said they did not learn until late 1987 about Carver's alleged confession. Weiner said yesterday the conversation took place in the fall of 1984, when Carver called a friend, Christine Coletti, and told her he had to speak to her.

"With his head in his hands, he describes to Christine Coletti how he set the fire, how he used newspapers, poured the flammable substance on them. ... He says, 'I didn't mean to kill the people, but I lit the fire,'" Weiner said.

But Jackson said Coletti told an investigator from his office that she didn't recall what Carver said and the defendant was not talking about the Elliott Chambers fire.

The fire, in Beverly, a suburb about 20 miles north of Boston, focused attention on the poor living conditions of former residents in the rooming house, some of whom were deinstitutionalized mental patients. The attention let to reform legislations, new state policy and new housing initiatives.

Thirteen people were trapped inside the rooming house and died, one was fatally injured jumping from a window and a 15th victim died several weeks after the fire.

Yesterday, the jury in Essex Superior Court saw videotapes of the fire that showed jets of flame shooting from the rooming house windows.

Beverly Fire Cheif Kenneth Polenzi, who helped fight the fire, said he called for back-up after reaching the house because "we had people hanging out the windows."

Polenzi said he climbed the fire escape to the second story, kicked in a window and helped one man escape. He said he then got an ax and forced a rear door on the second floor, but could not get in because of the smoke.

AP photo

James Carver is being tried for allegedly setting fire to a rooming house in 1984. The fire killed 14 people.

Town union officials sentenced for embezzlement

BOSTON (AP) — Two union officials were sentenced in federal courts yesterday for what prosecutors said was the largest embezzlement of union funds in the history of New England labor.

US District Court Judge David A. Mazzone sentenced Robert E. McNulty, 59, former business agent for ironworkers Local 357 in Springfield, to serve two years in federal prison for his role in the embezzlement of $330,000 from union health and pension funds.

McNulty was one of three union officials who pleaded guilty to the embezzlement scheme on Jan. 18. The union is now trying to recover the stolen funds, but prosecutor Greg Sullivan said it is not yet clear whether that will be possible.

"After they became aware of the investigation, they began to put some money they had stolen "Back in" accounts they controlled, Sullivan said. "The government's calculations was that $195,000 to $215,000 was still owed to the union."

McNulty was ordered to spend two years in prison for each of two counts of conspiracy to embezzle and embezzlement of $35,000, with the two sentences to be served concurrently, said Sullivan.

Sullivan had recommended a four-year prison term.

Mazzone also gave the former local president, James J. Kennedy, 54, a one-year suspended sentence and two years' probation, Sullivan said. Kennedy had pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate a record-keeping provision of a labor law, a misdemeanor.

A third union official, Gerald Thomas Callahan, 53, is scheduled to be sentenced on Friday.

Callahan, former financial secretary and treasurer, pleaded guilty to conspiracy to convert union funds of approximately $330,000 and conspiracy to fail to keep and maintain records for trips taken on union business.

Callahan and McNulty will be barred from holding union posts in the future without special dispensation from their paroie boards under a management, said Diane Kottmyer, acting chief of the New England Organized Crime Strike Force.

Yesterday's sentencing culminated an investigation that began four years ago, Sullivan said. The three men were accused of diverting payments of union dues for their personal benefit, and making false entries in union records to avoid being caught.

McNulty had faced a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $20,000 fine, Kennedy one year in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Kottmyer said the sentences were lighter because of a plea-bargain agreement. Callahan faces six years in prison and a $20,000 fine, but is also expected to get a lighter sentence because of his guilty plea.

This Saturday!

MARCH 11th

Killington VERMONT

$32 FOR MEMBERS

add $10 FOR NON-MEMBERS

LAGNAF

PRESENTED BY UMASS SKI CLUB

430 STUDENT UNION BLDG.
545-3437

We're Ready For The New LSAT. Are You?

If you're one of the thousands of students who will be studying for the LSAT this June, you could be preparing for an exam that's already outdated.

While other prep courses are still teaching the old test, Stanley H. Kaplan has already designed a whole new course so you'll breeze through the new LSAT revised logic and reading sections.

What hasn't changed is our formula for success. Small classes, expert instruction, a distinguished research faculty, 135 Centers nationwide and our 50 years of experience. So call us today. We're ready to prepare you for the new LSAT.

STANLEY H. KAPLAN
Take Kaplan Or Take Your Chances

CLASSES BEGIN: MARCH 28th & APRIL 20th

358 No. Pleasant Street, Amherst 549-5780

For other locations call 800-KAP-TEST

For Your Information

For Your Information is a service of the Collegian to its readers. Because of a lack of space, not all press releases can be included in FYI. For more information, contact David at the Collegian, at 545-3500.

Lecture
Paul McDonough of the Paris Fashion Institute is scheduled to speak tomorrow at 3:00 p.m. in Skinner Lounge on fashion marketing. For more information, contact Hannah M. Donovan at 323-6182.

Discussion
The Board of Governors is sponsoring a discussion on campus safety. "Is This Campus Able to Protect You," is scheduled for tomorrow at 3 p.m. in room 803 of the Campus Center. For more information, contact the Board of Governors at 545-0198.

Workshop
"Sexual Assault on the Campus," is the subject of a workshop scheduled for 3:30 p.m. in room 903 of the Campus Center. The forum is sponsored by the Everywoman's Center Counselor Advocate Program.

Meeting
The Pioneer Valley Chapter of Professional Secretaries International has scheduled its March meeting on Monday, March 13 at the Hotel Northampton. The dinner meeting is scheduled to begin at 6:15 p.m. followed by a guest speaker, Epi Bodhi, health educator for Amherst. Bodhi will talk about "Separating Facts From Fiction About AIDS." For more information, contact Marie McReynolds at 253-9373.

Discussion
Students interested in finding out more about the Judaism can ask questions at weekly forums sponsored by Chabad House. The informal forums are scheduled for every Tuesday night at 9:00 p.m. at Chabad House, 30 N. Hadley Rd. For more information, call 549-4094.

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEKS

MARCH 18-25

When you break away this year, do it with style

SUN FUN!! round trip air 7 nights great night life

Contact: UMASS SKI CLUB 547-3437 420 STUDENT UNION BLDG.

$439 Guest Houses
$499 Deluxe Apt. Comp.
$569 Mermaid Beach EP
$749 Mermaid Beach MAP
$589 Elbow Beach BP

THE ULTIMATE SPRING VACATION

SAVE A $75 Reservation Deposit Required

UMASS SKI CLUB

LAGNAF 430 Student Union • 545-3437

TWISTERS TAVERN

THIS WEEK'S ENTERTAINMENT:

TONIGHT—REGGAE NIGHT
LOOSE CABOOSE

THURSDAY—RHYTHM & BLUES
From the Cape
THE CYCLONES

FRIDAY—JOIN US FOR DINNER WITH
THE SHAWN PATTERSON QUARTET 6:30-9:30

SATURDAY—RHTHM & BLUES
EVENING PRO-BLUSICA

TRY OUR DELICOUS FULL MENU

30 BOLTWOOD WALK, DOWNTOWN, AMHERST 253-2003

THEY'RE HEEERE—

20% OFF Storewide

HAPPY FACE:
Boxer Shorts • Tee Shirts • Socks

J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN

191 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst • 253-2013

MONDAY-SATURDAY 10-6

Munchy Sale

ON SALE NOW THROUGH MARCH 10

Wheat Wafer 1 ¼ oz.....Sale 5/$1.00
Friut & Fiber Cereal 12 oz.....Sale $2.00
Poptarts.....Sale $1.19
Maxwell House Coffee.....Sale $2.99
Drip or Reg. Grind
Very Fine Juices 10 oz.....Sale 2/$1.00
Chips Ahoy.....Sale $1.69
Teddy Grahams.....Sale $1.29
M & M's 1.69 oz.....Sale 3/$1.00
Plain or Peanut

STOCK UP NOW!

AVAILABLE IN THESE MUNCHYS
HAMPDEN WORCESTER FRANKLIN

FRIDAY NIGHT LIVE
with
DENNIS MILLER

Tickets On Sale NOW

FAC Box Office 545-2511

APRIL 7,1989 8PM

HEY SENIORS: Get Shot!

Senior Portrait Sittings
will be held from Feb. 27 - Mar. 17, 9-5 pm in Rms 177/178 of the Campus Center. Call 5-2874 for info & appointments.

ORDER your 1989 INDEX NOW!
It's a $25 investment in memories that last a lifetime!

Send coupon to address below.

Make your checks payable to: INDEX Yearbook

NAME _____

PERMANENT ADDRESS _____

_____

LOCAL PHONE NO. _____

INDEX 103 Campus Center/UMass. Amherst 545-0848

THE
EDWIN M. ROSSMAN
ALUMNI CAREER FORUMS

BDIC

DATE: TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1989
TIME: 8:00 PM
LOCATION: CAMPUS CENTER 101

SPONSORED BY:
UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT SERVICE
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
BACHELOR'S DEGREE WITH INDIVIDUAL CONCENTRATION

This is an opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this important panel discussion!

ALUMNI PANELISTS:

Frank Leon McCoy '74 "African Politics".	Consultant Synergos Institute New York, NY
Patricia Hayes '75 "Graphic Communications"	Freelance Graphic & Textile Designer P. Hayes Designs Northampton, MA
Sanford M. Matathia '78 "Land Planning & Development"	Attorney Rackemann, Sawyer and Brewster Boston, MA
James F. Kane '83 "Broadcast Reporting with Specialization in Government"	News Anchor/Reporter WTAG Radio Worcester, MA

For more information, please contact:
University Placement Service, University Career Center
545-2224

■ Belchertown

continued from page 1

now live.

The state plans to move most of the Belchertown school residents to community services, like the home in Amherst.

"A phasedown of Belchertown will result in more appropriate services for the residents who are there today," McCarthy said.

Belchertown now houses 266 people, down from 1,400 in 1969. No new residents have been admitted in eight years, according to the report.

State legislators commissioned the report in July, to look at consolidating four of the state's seven state institutions. Of the four, Belchertown was the only school named for closing.

"For Belchertown, it makes a lot of sense," said Maureen Sullivan, spokeswoman for the state department of mental retardation. "This is really what the parents back in 1978 were asking for."

Strategy of tests discussed tonight

Princeton Review founder and President John Katzman is scheduled to speak tonight, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium, on how to increase test scores and decrease test anxiety.

The Princeton Review, a national test-taking service, has published four books on test strategy and philosophy.

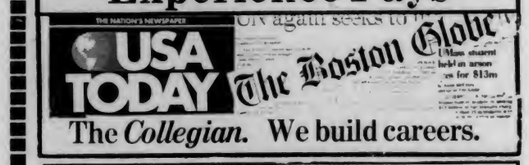
In the lecture, "We Score More," Katzman said he plans to also discuss mastering job interviews and how to become a successful entrepreneur by "turning your dreams for a successful career into realistic goals."

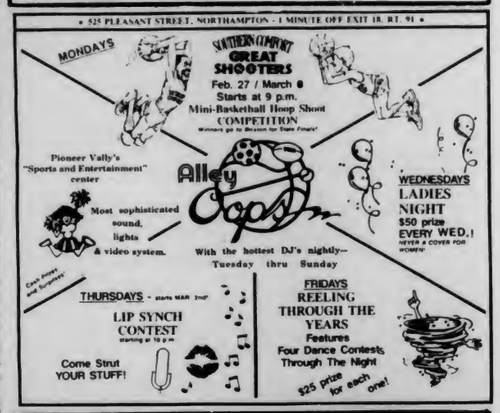
A question-and-answer session is scheduled for after the lecture.

The lecture is sponsored by Mastercard and Baybanks.

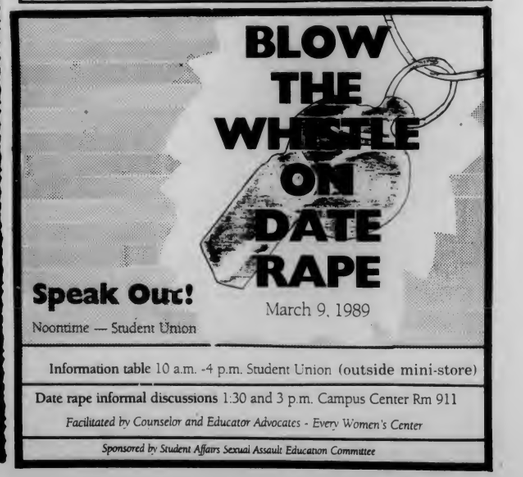
–MEREDITH CLELAND

Experience Pays





• 525 PLEASANT STREET, NORTHAMPTON - 1 MINUTE OFF EXIT 18, RT. 91 •
MONDAYS
NORTHAMPTON'S GREAT SHOOTERS
Feb. 27 / March
Starts at 9 p.m.
Mini-Basketball Hoop Shoot COMPETITION
Pioneer Valley's "Sports and Entertainment" center
Most sophisticated sound, lights & video system.
Alley Oops
With the hottest DJ's nightly— Tuesday thru Sunday
WEDNESDAYS
LADIES NIGHT
$50 prize
EVERY WED.!
NEVER A COVER FOR WOMEN
THURSDAYS - starts MAR 2nd
LIP SYNCH CONTEST
Come Strut YOUR STUFF!
FRIDAYS
REELING THROUGH THE YEARS
Features
Four Dance Contests, Through The Night
$25 prize for each one!



BLOW THE WHISTLE ON DATE RAPE
Speak Out!
Noontime — Student Union
March 9, 1989
Information table 10 a.m. -4 p.m. Student Union (outside mini-store)
Date rape informal discussions 1:30 and 3 p.m. Campus Center Rm 911
Facilitated by Counselor and Educator Advocates - Every Women's Center
Sponsored by Student Affairs Sexual Assault Education Committee

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

BLOOM COUNTY
By BERKE BREATHED

OPUS, THERE ARE A THOUSAND DROOLING MARY KAY SALESLADIES OUT FRONT ASKING FOR YOU...
THEY'RE WAXING SHARPENED EYEBROW PENCILS AND YELLING "DISEMBOWEL THE INFIDEL FROM TOE TO TONSIL!"
WHAT SHOULD I SAY?
I'M OUT
HE'S OUT!

GRAPHICS

SUPERVISORS

Don't forget -
Graphics Board is at 4:30 today. Be there . . .

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

PLEASE LET MY BEANIE COME TODAY! I PROMISE I WON'T EVER BE BAD AGAIN! I'LL DO WHATEVER YOU WANT!
PLEASE, PLEASE, PLEASE! I'LL NEVER ASK ANOTHER FAVOR IF TODAY'S THE DAY I GET MY BEANIE!
DID I GET MY BEANIE?
NOPE.
WHAT'S IT TAKE, HUH?!

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

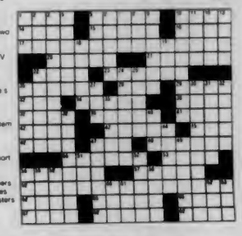
ACROSS
1 Iris spot
5 Enjoys warmth
10 Younger — springtime
14 Path
15 CPA's examination
16 Unique
17 City in California
20 Brag
21 Played TV's Marshal Dillon
22 Silo site
23 Wheat features
26 Tenant
28 They loop the Loop
29 Vicars
33 Ending with Japan or Siam
34 Rise
36 Cut short
37 Pain
39 Door word
41 Turner of song
42 Destroy
43 Day of music
45 Church bench
46 Court dividers
47 Power plant
48 Villain
50 Sartre novel
53 Contest for two
54 Draw tight
57 Make small
59 Prime time TV show
64 Intertwine
65 Bellowing
66 Shakespeare's river
67 Is in debt
68 Navy: a sout
69 Restaurant item

DOWN
1 Sandwich order for short
2 Statute
3 Songs
4 Choir members
5 Brown horses
6 Mother's sisters
7 Star Wars: Abbr.
8 Reasons
9 T-bone and porterhouse
10 Carry on business
11 Healthy
12 Limbs
13 Monster's loch
18 Domesticates
19 Before dawn or game
22 Lawn grass
24 Electron tube
25 More mature
26 Gain skill
27 Summer, along the Seine
30 Shake my hand
31 Shaped like an evergreen cone
32 Produce
35 South American range
38 Traps
40 Parody
44 Egyptian statesman
47 Lumberjack of folklore
49 Bull —
51 River: suet
52 Madison Ave. exec.
54 WWII battle site
55 Men
56 Phat ingredient
58 The Way We —
60 Broadway hit sisters
61 Goose eggs
62 Persona — grata
63 Wildebeest

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

H	I	A	T	U	S		A	I	S		L	I	S	T
B	A	N	D	A	N	N	A		R	A	T	T	L	E
A	R	T	E	S	I	A	N		M	I	S	E	S
A	R	E		T	R	A	I	L	E	D		S	E	T
			T	H	R	E	S	E		I	N	M	O	V
I	S	E	N	T			B	I	G	O	T	E	D
C	O	S	T	A		R	O	B	A	R	T
E	N	T	E	R		A	W	E		A	L	O	F	T
			N	O	S	I	E		M	I	N	A	E
S	M	A	T	T	E	R		A	N	T	E
T	A	R			C	O	E	F	G		R	A	T
E	N	E		G	R	E	W	E	R	S		L	E	O
P	O	S	T	E		R	E	V	E	R	T	O	N	E
P	R	E	S	E	T		R	E	T	A	I	N	E	R
E	S	S	E	N	E		R	A	S	P	E	D

3/8/89



DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

...AND FOR HIS TURGID PROSE IN "THE FORTUNE," WE ALSO CONDEMN MICHAEL KORDA!
THAT WAS THE SCENE IN TEHERAN TODAY AS A MOB WAS THROWN OVER THE NEW SPRING BOOK LIST.
THE THREATS MADE HERE TODAY ARE ANYTHING BUT IDLE, AND IN THE CASE OF MICHAEL KORDA, AN ASSASSIN HAS ALREADY BEEN DISPATCHED TO ENSURE HE NEVER PUBLISHES AGAIN!
IF HE SUCCEEDS, THE HIT MAN CAN LOOK FORWARD TO HOLY PASSAGE INTO HEAVEN, AS WELL AS A MORE IMMEDIATE REWARD HERE ON EARTH!
ROLAND, ANY WORD ON WHAT THAT REWARD MIGHT BE?
PETER, AS I UNDERSTAND IT, THE ASSASSIN WILL RECEIVE A NEW BUICK.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Hidden benefits are possible if you pursue an important project. Although a relationship will involve some struggle, it will be worth your efforts. Keep a low profile at a luncheon.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Genuine love and friendship lift you to a new plateau. Do not despair if romance has its difficult moments. You both have minds of your own and a right to speak out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Meet your responsibilities head-on. A sense of accomplishment will color the decisions you make late in the day. Stay on your toes! Some opportunities come only once. Travel is best postponed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You should be in a marvelous mood today. Tend to the needs of older people, especially those who were there when you needed support. Time spent with children is a wise investment.

LEO (June 23-Aug. 22) You will be delighted by a shift in trends today. The spotlight is on your personal affairs and your ability to overcome any shortcomings. Write important letters concerning finances or college.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Others are easily impressed today. An offbeat offer commands your attention. Stay calm if a relationship goes awry. Any problems are temporary. A quiet stroll together helps smooth out a glitch in romance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A talk with your siblings or parents brings the desired result. Although monotonous tasks get on your nerves, getting them done will be a feather in your cap. Beware of traffic hazards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You have a strongly spiritual nature that keeps you calm in times of crisis. A patient and loving approach will help you develop the kind of lasting friendship you desire. Forgive mistakes.

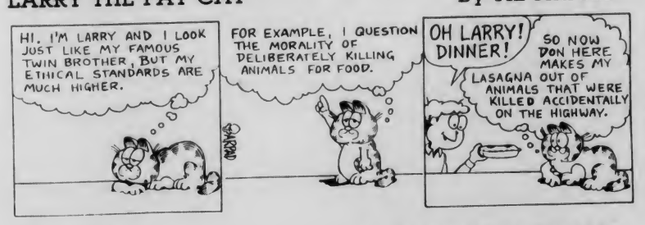
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Most of your day should be spent tying up important loose ends at home or work. Shun schemes that seem risky or just plain impractical. Avoid delegating tasks you should handle yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Business pursuits get a helping hand. Hard-and-fast choices have to be made. Talk over the situation with a trusted associate first. A gift or special purchase delights you. Be appreciative.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) It is wonderfully clear that you are on the road to success! Cash flow problems begin to ease. Your ideas need refining and, in some cases, a complete overhaul. Travel is favored.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Expenses could rise. Others may try to force new rules on you. Let them know that is not the way to build a lasting relationship. Probe partner's feelings and then act decisively.

LARRY THE FAT CAT
By AL ARPAD



HI. I'M LARRY AND I LOOK JUST LIKE MY FAMOUS TWIN BROTHER, BUT MY ETHICAL STANDARDS ARE MUCH HIGHER.
FOR EXAMPLE, I QUESTION THE MORALITY OF DELIBERATELY KILLING ANIMALS FOR FOOD.
OH LARRY! DINNER!
SO NOW DON HERE MAKES MY LASAGNA OUT OF ANIMALS THAT WERE KILLED ACCIDENTALLY ON THE HIGHWAY.

YEASTHEAD
By JASON TALERMAN

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Grilled cheese sandwich Duchess meat pie	Roast turkey Baked stuffed flounder
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Tomato torte Grilled cheese on wheatberry	Deep dish vegetable pie Roast turkey

WORLD & NATION

AP photo

MEMORIAL COALITION — David Goodman, brother of civil rights worker Andrew Goodman who was slain 25 years ago with fellow workers James Chaney and Michael Schwerner in Philadelphia, Miss., speaks at a news conference in Jackson, Miss. yesterday. The conference was held to announce upcoming events on behalf of the newly formed Chaney Goodman Schwerner Memorial Coalition.

Miami area feels effects of airline strike

MIAMI SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — This airport bedroom community, founded by aviation pioneer Glen Curtiss, was already losing money, so it was hit especially hard when Eastern Airlines idled 9,500 employees.

Pedro Hidalgo has owned the Eldorado jewelry shop for eight years in the corner of the central drug store in this city of 12,000 on the edge of Miami International Airport. Now he wonders if he'll be looking for a new job soon.

Open for 2½ hours yesterday, Hidalgo went to his desk to locate his only receipt for the day - a $2 repair.

"By this time of day, I was usually crowded and people were waiting outside," said Hidalgo. "My survival amount to cover everything is $100 a day. Yesterday, I made $62."

He feels the strike by the Machinists union against money-losing Eastern is to blame.

Shopkeepers around the downtown traffic circle estimate 40 percent to 60 percent of their business comes from the airline industry and a significant segment of that from Eastern, whose headquarters is just outside the city.

Betty Russell, a newsstand employee at the airport for 17 years, was wondering how much longer the airport concession would keep her shop open in the nearly deserted Eastern terminal.

"I live in the Springs, and practically all the people that live in the Springs work for Eastern," she said.

At one point, she called the strike by the 8,500-member Machinists union "very foolish" but, no matter what happens, she concluded, "Nobody's going to win."

Her employer already has closed stores on Eastern's shuttered boarding ramps and is pushing its workers to take vacations or shift to a four-day work week.

"I've been here 17 years and I make $5 an hour. I always say half a loaf is betting than nothing," she said. "It's going to be a sad thing down here in Miami. It's bad."

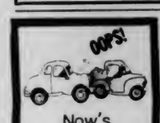
Ticket agents and skycaps, who, on Monday, were placed on what Eastern calls "no-work status", were called in yesterday morning for a meeting with management.

A supervisor told them they could apply for unemployment benefits but could be called back at any time. Their medical insurance expired at midnight Monday, no vacation pay could be considered, and questions about early retirement went unanswered.

Iza Emmett, a 24-year Eastern veteran who had been working in international passenger services, hugged coworkers and wiped away tears as she headed to pick up a paycheck.

"We don't get vacation pay, we don't get severance pay, we don't get anything," she said.

"They're upset, very upset, because they want to know what's happening in the future," said ramp service manager Joseph Brazeau, a 23-year Eastern veteran.



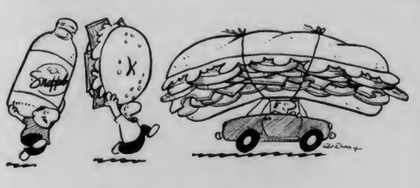
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd.
No. Amherst 549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Beautiful Cliffs... Endless Beaches...
Only In JAMAICA!
Spring Break '89
Call Paul at 549-4289

AMHERST CINEMA
MISSISSIPPI BURNING
Monday-Thursday 7:30 only
Fri., Sat. & Sun. 2 shows 7:00&9:15
AMITY ST. 253-5426

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

AMHERST DELICATESSEN



10% Off
All Off-Campus
Deliveries
MON.-WED. 4 TO 8
DELIVERS 549-6314
THURS.-SAT. 4 TO 10
233 NORTH PLEASANT STREET — AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS 549-6314

SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW HOW TO HANDLE THE BUMPS?
PROVE IT!
At the annual Killington Mogul Challenge on Outer Limits, Saturday, April 1st. Come get an application from the UMass Ski Club, 430 Student Union ($15 application fee)* and join the competition.
OR JUST BE A SPECTATOR, and join us for the Saturday bus trip to Killington.
*Number of applications available are limited, so please hurry to be sure a space is reserved for you.
UMASS SKI CLUB

RESUMES
Super Rush Available
549-3840
COPYCAT
Print Shop
228 Triangle St., Amherst

Council Travel
from New York — Round Trips starting at LONDON 358
PARIS 458
GUATEMALA City 340
CARACAS 320
HONGKONG 769
TOKYO 679
SYDNEY 1128
Restrictions apply, taxes not included
Check our low teacher fares
EURAIL PASSES ISSUED ON THE SPOT
Call for FREE Student Travel Catalog!
413-256-1261
AMHERST
79 So. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002

men's hoop

continued from page 20

but became the invisible man in the second half when McCoy went on his scoring sprees. Look for Brown to become a force next year.

Sophomore John Tate surpassed all expectations and became UMass' anchor in the middle.

Sophomore guard Rafer Giles, relegated to a reserve role earlier in the year, stepped in mid-season and showed the scoring flair that he is known for.

The Minutemen also got quality bench time from junior Michael Byrnes and sophomore walk-on Ishmael Butler, among others.

And finally, they have gotten verbal commitments from a pair of highly-touted prep schoolers, Indianapolis' Tony Barbee and Denver's Tom Pace, with more help possibly on the way. Calipari didn't promise a rose garden immediately, but this team should be optimistic about the future.

Final Hoop Stats

Final UMass men's hoop stats (not included A-10 tournament game)

Name	Scoring	Rebounding
Jim McCoy	19.3	3.4
Anton Brown	12.9	3.6
Rafer Giles	12.3	1.8
John Tate	10.9	7.6
John Milum	5.1	4.9
George Hardin	4.9	4.7
Michael Byrnes	4.0	2.5
Ishmael Butler	3.8	2.0
Matt Anderson	1.7	1.6
Cary Herer	0.9	0.9
Sean Nelen	0.8	0.6
Chris Bailey	0.8	0.7
Ben Grodski	0.7	1.7

Lewis gives Celtics needed relief

BROOKLINE (AP) — Boston's Reggie Lewis began this season as a backup forward. It's turned out much differently and much better.

He has spent most it as a starter in place of the injured Larry Bird and sometimes shifts to guard. The second-year pro is handling all his unexpected roles well and ranks fourth on the Celtics with 16.9 points per game.

He gets a chance Wednesday night to guard another high scorer, Chicago's Michael Jordan. Like his other challenges this season, Lewis doesn't shrink from it.

"By playing him, it just makes me a better ballplayer," Lewis said. "I look at him as being another person out there because I feel that have to stop me also.

It's very hard for one guy to guard Michael Jordan so I just try and move him to the middle where the help is."

Lewis, the Celtics' first-round draft choice from Northeastern in 1987, has given them plenty of help since Bird underwent surgery on both heels Nov. 19 after playing just six games. Bird resumed practicing with his teammates Feb. 27 but is not in game shape and officials of the NBA team say they don't know when he'll play again. Lewis' role expanded further when the Celtics traded guard Danny Ainge to Sacramento last month and guard Jim Paxson was sidelined by a groin injury that may keep him out of the home game against the Bulls.

"In those situations this year where we put him [Lewis] on a guard, it hasn't been a major problem," Celtics' Coach Jimmy Rodgers said. "He has matured. He's got confidence."

Lewis usually is quicker but weaker than the player he's matched against at small forward. He thinks he's quick enough to guard smaller backcourtmen.

"It's easier for me guard somebody a little smaller who has the quickness," Lewis said. "Most of the guys I'm guarding who are small forwards have the height advantage so usually they just post me up down low.

"Most of the guards [he faces] aren't quicker than me," even though they're usually shorter, said the lanky, 6-foot-7 Lewis.

On offense, Lewis has displayed himself as a reliable jumper, particularly from the foul-line area. He also has potential as a 3-point shooter and nearly sank a key 3-pointer in the final seconds of Saturday night's 98-95 loss at New Jersey.

"It could be a dimension he adds to this team," Rodgers said. "We've asked Reggie to do a lot this season."

"I've been thinking about taking 3-pointers," Lewis said, "but I'm just not one of those shooters who just stands there and catches the ball. I've got to get the ball on the move and shoot it. Mostly when I'm on the move I'm inside the 3-point line."

Even if he doesn't develop that part of his game this season, he's already exceeded expectations after playing only 405 minutes and averaging only 4.9 points per game as a rookie.

"He makes some very difficult plays look very easy," Rodgers said. "He's really come along very well and he's a guy who can continue to get better for a long time."

Sports Notices

The playoff brackets for all the intramural basketball teams have been posted outside the Intramural Office outside 215 Boyden. In the men's bracket, there are 77 undergraduate and 13 graduate teams. There are also seven women's teams and 14 co-rec teams. All tourneys will end March 16, when the winners will receive T-shirts and the runners-up hats.

The intramural office also announced that softball, volleyball and soccer entries are due Monday.

The UMass golf club will be holding a meeting for anyone interested in playing tonight at 5:00 in 223 Boyden.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE TO PLACE YOUR CLASSIFIED AD. 113 CAMPUS CENTER. DEADLINE IS 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION.

ACTIVITIES

WANT TO LEARN TO FLY? Take hang gliding lessons! Informative meeting on 3/9@ 7:00pm rm 803 Campus Center. All are welcome.

INTERESTED IN THE STRUGGLE for peace, justice and equality? The Young Communist League is holding an open rap session at Earthbooks Cafe in the Student Union Thursday 3-9 7pm Refreshments shall be served.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS Elections taking place March 14. Nomination Papers available 817 Campus Center - Due March 9. Join us in working toward a better union.

ATTENTION: ALL UMASS STUDENTS

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COLLEGIAN are available. Keep your friends and parents informed about what is going on at UMass. We can send it almost anywhere. For more information come down to Room 113 Campus Center or Call 545-3500

AUDIO

ACOUSTIC LINEAR SYSTEM Custom built dynamic speakers, brand new and cheap! 200w. Call to find out more! 545-0015.

AUTO FOR SALE

BMW 1974 2002 MAROON loaded must sell 3500.00 or BO. Can be seen at Lambda Chi Alpha call Sean at 253-9032

CHILD CARE

FAMILY DAY OPENINGS: Warm, happy environment 665-4501

CHILD CARE NEEDED

2 DAYS A WEEK for boys ages 2 and 4. Early child ed. major ideal. Must have own transportation and flexible hours. $4.50 per hour. Call 546-9321 or 546-9845. Available immediately!

ENFERTAINMENT

HIRE "ONE EYED JAKE" A great Rock and Roll band call steve 546-5106 Tom 253-7517.

FOR A GOOD TIME CALL

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT. Disc jockeys, lights and large screen video dances. 256-8586

FOR RENT

IN SUNDERLAND, free bus service to UMass and shopping areas. Secure and apartment for August and recieve August rent free. For more details call 665-3656 Sign up early.

FOR SALE

SICK OF DORMS? Buy a house. Rent out rooms to your friends to pay the bills! This house has sn 18 000/year rental income! Call Dale or Ginny 253-9949

HUGE DORM FRIDGE 4.8 cu ft ex condition call evening 253-2473 or 256-4904

HONDA ACCORN 80 PSPS Automatic new brakes tires muffler $1450/BO contact Sonya 546-9980

IBM PC/XT COMPATIBLE 640K RAM 2 drives (1-5.25 360K, 1-3.5 720K) Monitor $700 549-7185.

APPLE MACINTOSH 512K MEMORY Apple image-writer printer security system $1000 549-2781 Anne

IBM PC COMPATIBLE 256K, 11 drive, monitor $575 with 10meg hard drive $699 536-5008

HEARSE FOR SALE I'm dead serious about selling a $2500 or BO. Chris 734-4544/546-4218

EXERCISE BIKE like brand new! Only $35 call 549-5771 Leave message

ANSWER MACHINE EX CONDITION $40 TV Call 546-5354

SI SWIMSUIT VIDEO $15 and Sony Walkman $25 546-5354

OLD OMEGA 81 Excellent condition 93,000 miles Call 256-8369

FOUND

NECKLACE WAS FOUND IN ORCHARD HILL During weekend Contact sue at 546-9887 for more information

TO THE PERSON WHO LEFT THEIR tape recorder at the Wednesday Night speech given in the Campus Center Auditorium. I found it and have it in my room at 311 Dwight. Identify it and it's yours John Noe Room 311 Dwight

HELP WANTED

LOOKING FOR A FRATERNITY, SORORITY, or student organization that would like to make $500-$1000 for a one week on-campus marketing project. Must be organized and hardworking Call Jill or Corrine at 1-800-592-2121.

FULL OR PART TIME National Mail promotions company seeks reliable, responsible people to manage and operate Easter Bunny Photo at Hampshire Mall. Excellent hourly rate. 1-800-366-6661.

EARN BIG BUCKS for Spring Break and the summer. Train now and line up your summer job on the cape. Work w/Clean Water Action to stop Ocean Dumping and protect drinking water. Earn up to $10/hr. Call 549-7450

FOREIGN AREA SPECIALISTS!! Several multi-national corporations currently seeking foreign graduate students/researchers as associate advisors/researchers on scientific, economic, and political developments in their home countries. To be considered, send cover letter/resume to International Investment Analysis Group, 40 Wall Street, Suite 2124, New York, NY 10005

BOARD OF GOVERNORS is hiring the following coordinator positions: 2 assistant office, 1 public relations, 1 finance, 1 special projects. Applications available 817 Campus Center

MIKE'S WESTVIEW HIRING - $6/hour Cleaning person to work mornings, 2-3 hours per day, 4 days per week Call Tom 253-9202

HEY NINETEEN!

JOSH KRANCER - Happy birthday bro! Just think, this is the last B-Day we'll spend in school together. Have fun & don't eat too much cake (I know you won't drink too much.) -Jen

INSTRUCTION

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE intermediate course. Tuesday/Thursday 7-9pm. 3/28-5/4. $115 546-4576.

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

FALL 1989 INTERNSHIPS WITH THE Legal Services Center! Get hands on experience in the legal field-work directly with attorneys and clients! Earn up to 15 Undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary--training provided (545-1995)

LOST

LOST IMITATION GUCCI WATCH at Changes 3/2 Great sentimental value If found call 8-8675 Reward

I LOST MY BLUE PADAGONIA AT 2E Brandywine Waturday Night It has my keys in the pocket and I need them! Any info please call 549-9925 No questions asked Ask for Mo

LOST EYEGLASSES in black case on 2-28-89 If found please ciall Renita 546-4219

MINIBUS SANDWITCH

DON'T MISS THEM THURS night at Katina's Good Luck Guys!

NEED CASH!

GET SOME SPRING BREAK money before it's too late!! Sell me your baseball cards Call Todd anytime 549-6361

PERSONALS

TO THE SISTERS OF ALPHA CHI. We're psyched for a great semester! Thanks for everything. Love your Pledges.

WE WONT TELL ANYONE you weigh 107 lbs!!! Moo! Love Andrea, Lauren & Jen

GREG PRATT AKA "GRAMPS" Have the bestest 21st birthday We love ya' Amy, Kristin & Pam.

ANDREA SALVADOR Have a great 21st birthday Have fun and drink lots love Beverly

HEY BROWN EYES.... I love you! From one ECE major to another

ERIN- You R the coolest and a great friend U know what I am talking about- Love ya! Kristin

DAVE KENNEDY - Thank you so much for returning my check! I appreciate it more than I can say. Mary Gorman

ANDREA P SALVADOR - Alias Dinkwod, chicken, salva-suck, Happy 21st Birthday you dook! Can you wait till Friday? We can! Just kidding - we'll celebrate tonite. Use control-but remember naughty girls need love too! Love, Nance, Buck, Spike, Millis Vanille

TO THE MICROBIO FAG: Why are you in such a lame major? Your Buddy!?

ROSS HARTMAN I hope you appreciate me sending you this, I just wanted to tell you that I love you! Your daffodil

LISA L — What happened to HS?! miss our talks and more. Do you still remember our goals? Only 1 more week until we hit Florida I'm sure it will be as memorable as everything else we've done. Thanks for being the best! TW

HAPPY 21st LEIGH CONNOR! Help us celebrate the way she likes best- even if the bathroom gets overcrowded! Love, The Clams

TABLETOP- Castles made of snad slip into the sea eventually - KC

WAVED TO YOUR MOM AT DC a few Sundays ago. Met you briefly Sat 140 Brandy by my drunk friend. Say hi to your Mom for me and reply here.

TO THE SMITHIE AT AMHERST: What time is your Porsci Calss?

TO THE BROTHERS OF SIG EP Good job for donating your time this w/end for a charity telethon in Springfld

7 BONJOVI TIX 3/12 $50 each or BO 6-7633 or 6-7631 leave a message

SIGMA KAPPA CONGRADULATES our awesome new pledges Debbie, Tammy, Lisa, Kim, Meg, Lori and Colleen Lots of Luck

UNIVERSITY PLAYERS are looking for individuals interested, 5-college area, for playing in orchestra for upcoming musical! For more info, call Ellen at 253-9182

UNIVERSITY PLAYERS are looking for interested individuals, 5-college are, for tech. positions for upcoming musical! No experience necessary. Call Eric at 253-2348

DEAR KATHY, Hope you're feeling hyper tonight because am coming over tonight to wear you out with some math

UMASS LAX SHIRTS Fri only CC Concourse $8

DUNCAN & DAVEZ, 3 strikes you're out! Friday, Baker - Be there! Love ya, Rachel

LAURA, THE PRETTY STEPEY major from Webster, how about dinner this Friday at Page's Port? -The guy you didn't meet at Oxford 253-5954 (5:30-9:30pm)

COLOR IN THE CAGE II Indoor color guard Festival-Demonstration March 12 2:00 at the Cage $2

CLAMS OF 43 TOWNEHOUSE: Tracy, Kristin, Kim, Anne thanks for a great birthday party. I had a blast! You are the best! Love, Leigh.

MARK- Thanks for all your help! You are the best friend I could have- Love, Cynthia.

CONGRATULATIONS TO LIZ, KERI, & JILL the newest pledges of Tri Sigma. Get psyched for a terrific sememester. Love the Sisters of Tri Sigma.

3 GIRLS NEED A RIDE to Florida!!! Will help w/expenses. Please call! 546-9852 or Kristin 546-6526!!

FRIDAY NIGHT LIVE with Dennis Miller April 7 FAC tix on sale now

JASON COLBERT HAPPY BIRTHDAY! To one of our favorite Delta Chi men. We love ya lots Love Stephanie and Kristen.

JULES- Thanks for the quickie friday. It was a learning experience - To Julie's friend in the Peach sweats, you're a cutie -Paul.

34 TOWNEHOUSE APT - Looking for 2 roommates for Fall 89. If interested, call 549-0952.

UMASS COED NAKED LACROSSE TSHIRTS and boxers on sale today only in Campus Center concourse. Don't miss out on the best shirt on campus. Rough, tough, and in the buff

THE DOCTOR.... Is back! Long hair and all. You're crazy! Can I help? Call Axl for an appointment at 6-8103

COME SEE
THE BLUES BROTHERS'
Thursday, March 9
5,7,9, and 11pm
Bartlett 65 $2
by IEEE

HEY, YOU LITTLE — Don't get RD drunk any more Tone los

PASSIONATE PETE- Welcome to the family. Love and Hershey's kisses. The monsters

!!!FOR LADIES ONLY!!!

Attractive male will perform for female functions 546-9922

LOOKING TO TAKE OVER A LEASE for next year six people please call 546-4051

TO THE UMASS GUY WHO WAS in Polaco at Amherst I wish you hadn't dropped, I was really looking forward to getting to know you. Please respond if you would still like to. The Smithie

SENIORS! The Senior Campaign is coming Get ready for our up and coming kick-off bash for "footprints of 89"! - Governmental Affairs

"THUMPER" Hey babe. We're stylin'! Last weekend was great, but this weekend was the best! Never 4-get. Sat. nite jacuzzi.. the backrubs, and "They're doing it again!" Love, Your dumb, dirty, drunk blonde

ATTENTION STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS! EXCELLENT FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES HELPING WITH AN ON-CAMPUS MARKETING PROJECT. CALL IMMEDIATELY. STUART 546-7612. LEAVE A MESSAGE.

TO DAN L. (tiger) in Wheeler Here's to more whopped cream in fun places, hot showers in the dark and body painting in the moonlight. I can make all your dreams come true. Let me show you! The redhead in black heels and negligee

SHARON R — Saturday Nights, Hallways, & ice patches have taken on new meanings Thanks for being a real friend, shsa!! Love, Debbie

JOHN T. It's been six sexy ones -woo woo! Love you, K

IT'S NOT TOO LATE TO roast your bums for spring break: round trip jet airfare to ten carribean, $189!!! Why hang around and freeze when you can be stretched out on the sand of a beautiful carribean resort island (or lovely coastal resort in Mexic or South Americas) for only 189 bucks? Flights go from Logan and/or JFK. Call Sunhoch 217-864-2000

HEADING FOR EUROPE THIS SUMMER (or Anytime?) Jet there for no more than $180 with Airhitch(r) as reported in consumer reports, NY Times, Let's Go, Newsday, Good Housekeeping, and National Network Morning Shows. For details, Call 212-864-2000 or write Airhitch, 2901 Broadway, Suite 100A, NY, NY 10025

ROOMMATES WANTED

LINGUISTICS, worked Sunday 2/26. Buy you a beer? Call 549-1660 George

NEW HOME no smoking on bus line $325 inc. 253-7948.

LOOKING FOR A RESPONSIBLE NON-SMOKER to share 2bdrm apt. $150 negotiable Call Kaz 549-6846.

SERVICES

PROFESSIONAL RESUMES in 24 hours 665-8873

LONG LUSHIOUS NAILS! Can be yours affordable price. Experienced. Call Robin 549-6941, 585-5190

STRESSED OUT? Massage therapy Student offering professional full body massages. Give a gift to yourself or a friend! Call 256-8398.

DIRT CHEAP RESUMES
Very experienced. Laserwriter overnight Counseling/delivery. Lisa 665-8969

PROFESSIONAL EDITING- Term papers, Theses, Dissertations 1-467-3753 after 7pm

VIDEO RESUME TO GET THAT JOB! Immediate, professional, personalized service Appointments, Video Image Productions (413) 863-8030

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE ELECTIONS

SGA PRESIDENT AND TRUSTEE debates!!! Come see what the candidates have to say! Thurs. March 9th C.C. 101 at 7:00pm Also broadcast on 91.1 WMUA!! Sponsored by SGA - Governmental Affairs

SLUDGE T-SHIRTS

SOME OF THE LIVING, they're wakin' too! I mean it kids, sludge t-shirts are here. Boxers and tank tops too. We've got additional designs too, some of which aren't disgusting. We're affordable and believe only in the highest quality, natural fiber, and all that hippie crap. Come to the Collegian photo dept for a fitting, verbal abuse

TRAVEL

FLORIDA ROUNDTRIP PLANE TICKET Bradley to Sarasota, leave evening 3-15 return morning 3-27 $300 or BO Call 586-2100 ext 4285

2 PLANE TICKETS — Denver $345 each rndtrip March 18-25 Call Bob 253-9537

DISNEYWORLD- Orlando March 17-24 Includes flight/hotel D/O, car for the week $369.00 per person. Two people together only call now Lisa 6-8065.

3 AIRFARE TIX TO DENVER, CO - $270 rdtrip 3/20 - 3/27 Call Heather 549-9905.

ROUND TRIP TICKET TO PHEONIX From March 17-28 a $260 dollar value for $250 or best offer. Call Julie 6-6793 anytime after 6.

NEWEST SPRING BREAK HOT SPOT-COME PARTY WITH 250,000 BREAKERS IN PANAMA CITY BEACH, FLORIDA. $239 COMPLETE!! $50 DEPOSIT RESERVES YOUR SPOT. SIGN UP AT SUB TOMORROW. OR CALL OEB 549-0840 or LYNN 546-7483.

TYPING

CASES, PAPERS, THESIS, on-campus, affordable, grammar reviewed, dependable. 584-7924, Nancy

"WORDSMITH" Professional Typing Papers, resumes and more! Laserprinting with spellcheck. 253-4564.

WORD PROCESSING fast, professional, accurate. 665-4501.

WANTED

ARE YOU A FEMALE ORIENTAL? Need some quick money? Must be Mass resident See it you qualify 736-1259 Judy Leave name and number

LOOKING TO TAKE OVER LEASE. Group of four, responsible, women (starting 6/1/89) Please call Linda or Lisa at 546-9162

TUTOR WANTED FOR OBASE III. Call Steve at 549-0133.

REBPONSIBLE PERSONS seek to take over lease beginning 6/89 or later. If you can help us please contact Paul at 548-5256

SPORTS

Women's hoop team visits Philly for quarterfinal with St. Joseph's

By JIM CLARK
Collegian Staff

There seems to be strange trend occurring here.

Last year the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team entered the Atlantic 10 conference tournament with a 10-17 record. The Minutewomen hosted St. Bonaventure University in the first round at the Curry Hicks Cage, picked up a win, and then advanced to the quarterfinal round to face St. Joseph's University.

Amazingly, the more things change, the more they stay the same. This year, the Minutewomen finished the regular season at 10-17, faced the Bonnies in the first round, won and will . . .

You guessed it — travel to Philadelphia tonight to meet St. Joe's in the quarterfinal at 7:00.

However, the Minutewomen can only hope the similarities stop here. In last year's contest, the Lady Hawks welcomed UMass to the City of Brotherly Love and then turned around and sent their guests packing after a 67-43 victory.

It won't be easy for UMass to overcome the odds. The Minutewomen are the eighth seed in the tournament, going up against a team that is the top seed and beat them by 22 points just four days ago at the Cage.

But, according to UMass coach Kathy Hewelt, if either team will be edgy, it will be St. Joe's.

"We have absolutely nothing to lose, and they have everything to lose," Hewelt said. "Anything can happen."

Hewelt likened it to Monday's night A-10 men's playoff game between Penn State and West Virginia. The heavily-favored Mountaineers quickly found out the kind of punishment a fired-up team is capable of doling out, as the Nittany Lions chuckled at the experts and blew WVU out of the Palestra, 86-62.

Of course, that's not to say that UMass will beat St. Joe's. It's still going to take a superior effort for the Minutewomen to win this one.

"St. Joe's is an excellent ballclub. [Head coach] Jim Foster is doing a great job with them," Hewelt said.

Foster also has a little bit of help, though. He has arguably the finest player in the league in junior center Dale Hodges, and the fine balance of senior forward Kim Foley and junior guard Ellen Shields. Any and all can take the team on their shoulders at any given time.

"They can beat us inside and outside," Hewelt said.

Case in point is last Saturday's 82-60 St. Joe's win. The Hawks heated up early behind the outside game of Shields (four early three-pointers, 14 points overall) as the Minutewomen sagged to stop the inside game. Then with UMass forced to pay a little closer attention to the outer reaches, Hodges and Foley took over and struck for 18 each.

With the Hawks pinning a pair of 20-plus losses on UMass this year, it became obvious Hewelt would have to go back to the drawing board to find a new way to stop the Hawks.

But, after Monday's 76-62 win over St. Bonaventure, it's also obvious the Minutewomen are prepared for anything thrown at them.

In Monday's contest, they knew they had to find a way to stop St. Bonaventure forward Sue Shay. Sophomore Keyburn McCusker stepped to the forefront, accepted the challenge gratefully and held the freshman to a less-than-astounding 16 points.

McCusker considered it a physical challenge to stop Shay, and said she would gladly try to do the same with Hodges.

"We just may let [McCusker] play [Hodges]," Hewelt said.

The Minutewomen will also need to stop St. Joe's from making a mockery of the game early (it shot 58 percent from the floor Saturday), and get a solid all-around effort similar to the one that carried them past the Bonnies on Monday.

"A couple of players could suddenly get hot," Hewelt said. "You never know."

Hoop-la: The Minutewomen are 2-6 in tournament play, including a bagel in their six quarterfinal appearances . . . Senior forward Beth Wilbor got her well-publicized 1,000th point Monday, which places her fourth on the all-time UM scoring list. But she also quietly moved up to fifth on the career rebounding list with 529 total. No. 4 Sue Peters is just 17 away . . . the UM depth chart continues to get thinner. Sophomore guard Colleen Hopkins will not make the trip for personal reasons, leaving the team with only eight healthy players on the roster.

Collegian photo by David Higashiguchi

Helen Freeman and the Minutewomen face St. Joe's tonight in an A-10 quarterfinal playoff game.

Bone Cow All-America

Word has it that I've attracted a few more critics. They've complained about a lack of hoop knowledge on my part, but they spend too much time in the low light of the Cage squinting to focus on missed layups, dropped lobs. I, on the other hand, prop myself up on the ottoman in front of 25 radiated inches of ESPN. Dick Vitale is my shepherd. The optic nerve leads directly to the brain, where power lies.

Jason Talerman

The AP, USA Today, Sports Illustrated basketball All-America lists are just around the corner. I suspect giant payoffs. If Oklahoma survives the voting without a subpeona it will be happy. Forget about all that crap though, because today, here and now, we have the Bone Cow Nation team, meticulously selected, in house by these very hands. The exclusions were painful, but with the gracious help of the Sambuca Romana corporation I have chosen the finest athletes that this great democracy has to offer.

At point guard me and my people deem that Jay Burson should take the reins. I was thinking Mark Macon but then I heard about his straight edge religious background and I realized he'd never fit in. Besides nobody pulls up like Burson. Automatic. Even if he never plays another game he's got a bright future as an Easter Seals poster child.

At shooting guard there could be no doubt, Iowa's Roy Marble. I hear he takes a thousand jumpers a day and anyone who can do that without lapsing into fantasyland has enough mental courage to make my team. I'd pick him No. 1. At the very least, he's the next Byron Scott. At most . . . well, Mr. Nike shudders to think.

At small forward Syracuse's Stephen Thompson is a lock. When he averages twenty the Orange win. The Orange win a lot. Enough said. My nervous system is going to be sending flashbacks up my spine of 6'3" Stevie's knees grazing the chin of Dekembe Mutombo in the waning moments of last Sunday's Syracuse victory.

I don't have too much to say about Tom Hammonds but I'm sure Dean Smith does. J.R. is going to have to watch a lot of film or the Tarheels are gonna have a short weekend.

At my center spot lies Loyola's Hank Gathers. By being the main beneficiary of Paul Westhead's four-second offense Hank might be the only player in the country to know what it's like to play hoop inside the human digestive tract.

On the subject of human insides, I leave you. Argue my judgement if you like. The Bone Cow team has got soul.

A look back at men's hoop season

By RONN GARRY
Collegian Staff

Like Sgt. Joe Friday would say, "Just the facts."

There are plenty of facts, stats, and opinions about this season's University of Massachusetts men's basketball team. Like most teams, UMass had some ups, some downs, and even some contoversy.

COMMENTARY

Like a giant stew many ingredients went into this year's hoop du-jour.

First, the events of the morning of Jan. 3 (read: the arrest and suspension of seniors David Brown and Duane Chase) turned a senior-led team into a young, rawly talented and shallow team.

Second, the Minutemen were one of the worst "road teams" in the conference (2-15 away from the Cage), maybe the country.

Finally, salvation came in the form of freshmen. And, considering only one starter was older than a sophomore, this year's squad finished only one game behind last year's team with a 10-18 record.

